71f3

THE NEW WORLD OF WORDS:

OR, Univerſal Engliſh Dictionary.

CONTAINING
An Account of the Original or Proper Senſe, and Various Significations of all Hard WORDS derived from other Languages, viz. Hebrew, Arabick, Syriack, Greek, Latin, Italian, French, Spaniſh, Britiſh, Saxon, Daniſh, Dutch, &c. as now made uſe of in our Engliſh Tongue.

Together with
A Brief and Plain Explication of all Terms relating to any of the Arts and Sciences, either Liberal or Mechanical, viz. Grammar, Rhetorick, Logick, Theology, Law, Metaphyſicks, Ethicks, Natural Philoſophy, Phyſick, Surgery, Anatomy, Chymiſtry, Pharmacy, Botanicks, Arithmetick, Geometry, Aſtronomy, Aſtrology, Coſmography, Geography, Hydrography, Navigation, Architecture, Fortification, Dialling, Surveying, Gauging, Opticks, Catoptricks, Dioptricks, Perſpective, Muſick, Mechanicks, Staticks, Chiromancy, Phyſiognomy, Heraldry, Merchandize, Maritime and Military Affairs, Agriculture, Gardening, Handicrafts, Jewelling, Painting, Carving, Engraving, Confectionery, Cookery, Horſemanſhip, Hawking, Hunting, Fowling, Fiſhing, &c,

To which is Added,
The Interpretation of Proper Names of Men and Women, that derive their Original from the above-mention'd Ancient and Modern Tongues, with thoſe of Writs and Proceſſes at Law: Alſo the Greek and Latin Names of divers ſorts of Animals, Plants, Metals, Minerals, &c. and ſeveral other remarkable Matters more particularly expreſs'd in the Preface.

Compiled by EDWARD PHILLIPS, Gent.

The Sixth Edition, Reviſed, Corrected, and Improved; with the Addition of near Twenty Thouſand Words, from the beſt Authors, Domeſtick and Foreign, that treat of the ſeveral Subjects:

By J. K. Philobibl.

A Work very neceſſary for Strangers, as well as our own Country-men, in order to the right underſtanding of what they Speak, Write, or Read.

Labor improbus omnia vincit. HOR.

LONDON:
Printed for J. Phillips, at the King's-Arms in S. Paul's Church-Yard; H. Rhodes, at the Star, the Corner of Bride-Lane, in Fleet-ſtreet; and J. Taylor, at the Ship in S. Paul's Church-Yard. MDCCVI.

THE NEW WORLD
OF WORDS:

Or, Universal English Dictionary.

CONTAINING

[illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible]

Compiled by EDWARD PHILLIPS, Gent.

[illegible]

By J. K. Philobibl.

[illegible]

[illegible]

MDCCVI.

THE PREFACE.

THE Publick being very ſenſible of the great Advantage and Uſefulneſs of DICTIONARIES, as is evident from the general Acceptation that many New Ones, in moſt Faculties, have lately met with, it were altogether needleſs to inſiſt on that Topick; but it is requiſite to give ſome Account of the preſent Undertaking, and to ſhew what Improvements are here made to the Elaborate Work of our Ingenious Country-man Mr. Edward Phillips, the Merit of which has been already ſufficiently made known to the World, by the Sale of Five ſeveral Impreſſions.

THE Whole has been carefully Reviſ'd, in order to correct Faults, ſupply Defects, and retrench Superfluities; and it was judg'd expedient to leave out all Abſtracts of the Lives of Eminent Perſons, Poetical Fictions, Geographical Deſcriptions of Places, &c. (except a few that ſerve to illuſtrate or explain other Terms, which have their Derivation from, or ſome Dependance on them) in regard that they are already treated of at large, in ſeveral particular Dictionaries. In the room of theſe, are inſerted near Twenty thouſand hard Words and Terms in all Arts and Sciences, which are not to be found in the former Editions of this Work, nor in any other General Dictionary whatſoever; that is to ſay, ſuch Terms as relate to Divinity, the Civil and Canon Law, the Common and Statute Laws of this Realm, Moral and Natural Philoſophy, Metaphyſicks, Mathematicks, Botanicks, Muſick, Phyſick, Surgery, Anatomy, Chymiſtry, Pharmacy, Confectionery, Cookery, Maritime and Military Affairs, Merchandize, Huſbandry, Horſemanſhip, Handicrafts, and Manufactures: To which are added many Country-Words, and ſuch as are us'd in our ancient Latin Writers, old Records, Deeds, Charters, Evidences, &c. Alſo the Greek and Latin Names of many ſorts of Beaſts, Birds, Fiſhes, Inſects, Plants, Metals, Minerals, and other Productions of Nature, with their reſpective Qualities, and principal Virtues. The Magiſtrates and Officers of the Grecian and Roman Empires, with their Sacred Rites, Laws, Cuſtoms, Feſtivals, Games, Exerciſes and Sports, are likewiſe particularly inſiſted on. Beſides a ſummary View of Religious Orders, Monaſteries, Hereſies and Sects; with a ſhort Deſcription of Publick Buildings, noted Colleges, Hoſpitals, Schools, Offices, Natural Rarities, and other Remarkable Things in England, and our American Plantations: Alſo an exact Account of Ancient and Modern Coins, Weights, and Meaſures, with their preſent Value, Extent, and Capacity, &c. all digeſted into Alphabetical Order, and Methodically expreſs'd in their proper Places.

THIS Collection is made out of the moſt Approved Authors, and the beſt Originals the preſent Age affords; and 'tis far the largeſt of any hitherto extant, (as it has been already hinted) in regard that it contains all manner of difficult Words and Terms of Art, which are to be found in any Writers of Note: So that now, more than ever, it may be juſtly ſaid to Anſwer the Title of The New World of Words, Univerſal Dictionary, or Compleat Gloſſography. As for the individual Terms, care has been taken every where to ſet down their Original and Proper Signification, which tends very much to clear up the ſeveral Senſes wherein they are now generally receiv'd: And they are alſo explain'd with all poſſible Perſpicuity and Brevity, ſo as not to interpret any hard Word by others that are as little intelligible, at leaſt not ſo obvious to Perſons who are not well verſ'd in Polite Literature; a Fault too frequent in Performances of this Nature.

AND farther, although it be no Part of our Deſign, to teach the Liberal or Mechanical Arts and Sciences, as a late Learned Author has attempted to do; nevertheleſs, it may be fairly affirm'd, There are many Principles and Rules laid down, with appoſite Hints, and Remarks throughout the whole Work, which may give Light even to the Knowledge of thoſe Arts: So as to be of very good Uſe to young Students and Practitioners of every Profeſſion; as alſo to Foreigners, who are deſirous to be acquainted with the Terms and peculiar Idioms of our Engliſh Tongue; which is now ſo far improv'd, that for Copiouſneſs, variety of Style, clearneſs and elegancy of Expreſſion, and other Advantages, it may be ſaid to equal, if not ſurpaſs, all other Modern Languages.

TO conclude, if this Undertaking meet with a favourable Reception among the Judicious, it will be an ample Recompence for the great Pains taken by the Publiſher, who is ever ambitious to approve himſelf,

Their very humble Servant,

John Kerſey.

THE WORLD
OF Engliſh Words:
Or, a General
DICTIONARY,

CONTAINING

The Terms, Definitions, and perfect Interpretations of Hard Engliſh Words, throughout the Arts and Sciences, Liberal and Mechanick; as alſo all other Subjects, that are uſeful, or appertain to the Language of our Nation.

AAron the Son of Amram, and Brother of Moſes, the firſt High-prieſt of the Jews: The word in Hebrew, ſignifies a Teacher, or a Mountain of Strength.

Abaciſta, a Term us'd in ancient Writers for an Arithmetician. See Abacus.

Abacot, a Royal Cap of State made in the ſhape of two Crowns, and anciently us'd by the Kings of England.

Abactors (Lat. Law-term) drivers away, or ſtealers of Cattel in Herds or great Numbers at once; whence in old Records Abactores are diſtinguiſhed from Fures, or Thieves that only ſteal a Sheep or two.

Abacus (Lat.) a Counting-table, ſuch as Accountants or Aſtronomers uſe, which was heretofore made of Braſs, and then call'd the Table of Pythagoras: Alſo ſometimes the Numeral Figures which us'd to be drawn on a Table cover'd with ſmall Sand or Duſt; a Stone to write or ſcore upon: In ſome of our old Records it is taken for Arithmetick, or the Art of Numbering: Alſo a Cup-board for Plate, or in general, any kind of Cup-board or Safe.

In Architecture, Abacus is a four-ſquare Table at the top of a Pillar, which makes the Capital; and in the Corinthian Order, repreſents that kind of Square Tile which is uſually ſet over the Figure of a Basket encompaſs'd with Leaves.

Abaddon (Heb. i.e. a Deſtroyer) one of the Names of Satan or the Devil in the Revelation of St. John.

Abaft, or Aft, a Sea-word, ſignifying from the fore-part of the Ship, or towards the Stern; as the Maſt hangs abaſt. See Aft.

Abalienatio (Lat.) an Alienation or Eſtrangement: In the old Roman Law, a giving up one's Right to another; a making over an Eſtate or Goods by Sale, or due Courſe of Law. Theſe Eſtates were either in Slaves or Cattel, and ſometimes Lands of Inheritance, but they muſt be in Italy.

To Abandon (Fr.) to forſake utterly, to caſt off; alſo to give one's ſelf up wholly to any prevailing Paſſion.

Abandum (old Law word) any thing that is Sequeſtred, Confiſcated, or Forfeited.

Abanet or Abnet, (Heb.) a ſort of Girdle that Prieſts wore among the Jews.

Abaptiston or Anabaptiston, a Surgeon's Inſtrument, being a kind of Trepan for the Scull, with a Gage that it cannot go too deep.

Abarnare, an old Latin Law-term, ſignifying to detect or diſcover any ſecret Crime; from the Saxon word Abarian, to make bare, uncover, or diſcloſe.

To Abaſe (Fr.) to bring down, to lower or humble.

Abaſhed, made aſhamed or confounded.

Abaſhment, Aſtoniſhment, Confuſion.

Abaſſi a Coin current in Perſia and other Eaſtern Countries, worth about two Spaniſh Reals, or 1 s. 2 d. Sterling.

To Abate (Fr.) to diminiſh, to make or grow leſs: In Common Law to diſable, defeat or overthrow; to come to nought, to be aboliſhed, quaſhed, or made of no effect: Thus to abate a Writ is to deſtroy it for a time, thro' want of good ground, or other defect. The Appeal abateth by Couſenage, i. e. the accuſation is defeated or made void by Deceit.

A Stranger is alſo ſaid to Abate, when he enters upon a Houſe or Land immediately after the death of the laſt Poſſeſſour, before the right Heir take Poſſeſſion, and ſo keeps the ſaid Heir out of it.

Abatement, that which is abated, a leſſening: In a Law-ſenſe, the Act of Abating, Defeating, or Diſabling; as the Abatement of a Writ, &c. Alſo the entring upon an Inheritance, by ſtepping in between the former Poſſeſſour and his Heir:

Abatement of Honour (in Heraldry) is an accidental Mark added to a Coat of Arms, whereby its Dignity is abaſed, upon account of ſome Diſhonourable Quality or Stain in the Bearer; and it is either a Mark of Diminution; as a Delf, a Point Dexter parted Tenne, a Goar Siniſter, &c. Or elſe an abſolute Reverſion or Over-turning of the whole Eſcutcheon.

Abator (Law-Term) one that abates, i. e. intrudes into Houſes or Land, void by the death of the former Poſſeſſour, and as yet not entred or taken up by his Heir.

Abatures (among Hunters) Foiling, the Sprigs or Graſs that a Stag thruſts down in paſſing by.

Abawed, abaſhed, daunted, a word us'd by the famous Engliſh Poet, Geffrey Chaucer.

Abba a Scripture-word, ſignifying Father in the Syriack Tongue.

Abbacy, or Abbathy, a Law-word for an Abbey.

Abbat, ſee Abbot.

Abbatis (in old Records) an Avener or Steward of the Stables; an Hoſtler.

Abbeſs, a Governeſs of Nuns.

Abbey, a Monaſtery or Convent, a Houſe for Religious Perſons.

Abbot, or Abbat, the chief Ruler of an Abbey: Of theſe ſome in England wore Miters, ſome not; ſuch as were Mitred, being free from the Biſhop's Juriſdiction, had the ſame Authority within their Bounds, and were alſo Lords of Parliament, but the other ſort were ſubject to the Biſhop in all Eccleſiaſtical Affairs.

To Abbreviate (Lat.) to Abridge or make ſhort:

Abbreviation, an Abbreviating or Expreſſing a thing in fewer Terms.

Abbreviature, a ſhort'ning, as the putting of a Letter for a Word.

Abbreuvoir (Fr.) a Watering-place: In Maſonry,

Abbreuvoirs, are the ſpaces between the Stones to put the Mortar in as they are laying.

Abbrochment (Law-word) the engroſſing or buying up of Wares before they are brought to a Market or Fair, and ſelling them again by Retail; the Fore-ſtalling of a Market.

Abbuttals, the Buttings and Boundings of Land, High-ways, &c. either to the Eaſt, Weſt, North, or South; ſhewing how they lie with Reſpect to other Places.

Abdals, a kind of religious Perſons among the Perſians, who make Profeſſion of Poverty and lodge in Churches: They take Name from Abdala the Father of their falſe Prophet Mahomet.

Abdevenam, the Head of the twelfth Houſe in a Scheme or Figure of the Heavens, ſometimes ſo call'd by Aſtrologers.

Abdi (Heb. my Servant) the Father of Kiſh, and Grandfather of Saul the firſt King of Iſrael.

Abdicare (Lat.) a Term in the Roman Law ſignifying to abdicate, to renounce, abandon, or quit; as Abdicare filium, to diſinherit, diſown, or caſt off a Son; Abdicare Magiſtratum, or ſe Magiſtratu, to Renounce the Office of a Magiſtrate, to lay down or abandon it; and abdicare ſe ſtatu ſuo, was to Renounce his Condition, to become a Slave, and be degraded from the Privilege of a Citizen of Rome.

To Abdicate, to Renounce or Reſign, to give over.

Abdication, the Voluntary Act of Abdicating, Renouncing, Diſowning, &c. A Term generally us'd among the Civilians, and alſo in the Common Law, where there is only an Implicit Renunciation: As when a Perſon does Actions that are altogether inconſiſtent with the Nature of his Truſt he does in effect Renounce it; which was the famous Caſe of a late unfortunate Prince.

Abdicere (Lat.) a Word us'd among the Roman Augurs or Sooth-ſayers, for to diſown or forbid: In a Law-ſenſe, to give Sentence againſt one, to debar him from his Demands, or not to allow them: Thus abdicere vindicias ſignify'd as much as not to allow a Man the Poſſeſſion of a Thing in Controverſy; and addicere vindicias imply'd the quite contrary.

Abditorium (in our old Writers) an Abditory or Place to hide and keep Goods, Plate, Money, &c.

Abdomen (in Anat.) that part of the Belly which is between the Navel and the Privities, the lower Belly; the lowermoſt of the three Venters or great Cavities, which contains the Stomach, Guts, Liver, Spleen, Bladder, &c. And is cover'd on the inſide with a Membrane or thin Skin, call'd the Peritonæum.

Abducent Muſcles, ſee Abductores.

Abduction, properly a drawing or carrying away: In Logick an Argument, that leads from the Concluſion to the Demonſtration of a Propoſition.

Abductor Indicis (Lat. in Anat:) a Muſcle that ſerves to draw the Fore-finger from the others, and is by ſome reckon'd among the Interoſſei: It ariſes from the Os Metacarpi that bears up the Fore-finger, and joyning one of the Lumbrical Muſcles is inſerted with it, together with the Tendon of the Abductor Pollicis.

Abductor minimi Digiti, a Muſcle which draws the little Finger from the reſt, and appears in ſome Bodies divided into two or three Muſcles, each having a different Series of Fibres: It takes riſe from the Ligamentum Tranſverſale, and fourth Bone of the Carpus, as alſo from the third Bone of the Carpus, and from the upper Parts of the Os Metacarpi. The firſt of theſe Originations ends at the upper part of the firſt Bone of the little Finger forwards; the ſecond at the ſame part of the ſaid Bone ſide-ways; and the third is inſerted with the Tendon of the Extenſor minimi Digiti, to the upper part of the third Bone of the little Finger.

Abductor minimi Digiti Pedis, a Muſcle of the little Toe, which draws it off from the reſt, and ſprings from the outward part of the Os Calcis or Heel bone, as alſo from the out-ſide of the Os Metatarſi of the little Toe; where it makes one Tendon at its Inſertion to the upper part of the firſt Bone of the little Toe, on the out-ſide and ſide-ways.

Abductor Oculi, a Muſcle of the Eye, ſo nam'd from its Action, which is to draw off the Eye from the Noſe: It is alſo call'd Indignabundus, from its being made uſe of in Scornful Reſentments.

Abductor Pollicis, is a Muſcle of the Thumb, which ariſes from the inner part of the Ligamentum Tranſverſale Carpi, and becomes Tendinous at its Implantation to the upper and outward part of the ſecond Bone of the Thumb ſide-ways. This Muſcle takes Name from its Uſe, which is to draw the Thumb from the Fingers.

Abductor Pollicis Pedis, a Muſcle of the great Toe which pulls it from the reſt: It takes riſe from the Os Calcis on the in-ſide and ſide-ways, and in half its Progreſs joyns with another fleſhy Beginning that ſprings from the Os Cuneiforme Majus, which bears up the Os Metatarſi of the great Toe; till at laſt both making one Tendon are implanted to the outward part of the Os Seſamoides of the great Toe ſide-ways.

Abductores, or Abducent Muſcles (in the general) are all thoſe which ſerve to open or pull back divers Parts of the Body, as the Arms, Legs, Eyes, Noſtrils, Lips, &c. And the Oppoſites to theſe are uſually termed Adductores, or Adducent Muſcles.

A-bearing (Law-word) as To be bound to a good a-bearing, i. e. to one's good Behaviour. See Surety of the Peace.

To Abedge, to abide, Chaucer.

Abel (Heb. Vanity) the Name of Adam's ſecond Son, who was kill'd by his Brother Cain.

Abele-Tree a finer kind of white Poplar.

Abere, Murder (old Law-term) plain or downright Murder, as diſtinguiſhed from Manſlaughter and Chance-medley, from the Saxon Words abere apparent, notorious and Mord Murder.

To Abet, to encourage, egg, or ſet on; to maintain, uphold, or back; to aſſiſt or aid.

Abetment, (in Common-Law) an encouraging or ſetting on to commit any Crime.

Abetter, or Abettor, one that eggs on or aſſiſts another in the doing of an Unlawful Act; as Abettors of Murder, Treaſon, Felony, &c.

Abettors, (in a Law-ſenſe) are alſo thoſe that without Cauſe procure others to ſue out falſe Appeals of Murder or Felony againſt Men, in order to render them infamous.

Abeyance, Lands, Tenements, Goods, &c. Are ſaid to be in Abeyſance, when they are only in Expectation or Underſtanding; that is to ſay, in the Intendment and Conſideration of the Law. So when a Parſon dies and the Church is void, the Fee is in Abeyance, becauſe it is not determined who ſhall ſucceed him.

To Abhor, (Lat.) to loath or hate.

Abhorrence, or Abhorrency, an abhorring or loathing.

Abhorrent, that abhors or loaths, that is averſe from; as Humane Nature is abhorrent from all ſuch Evils.

Abiah, (Heb. the Will of the Lord) the Son of the Prophet Samuel, alſo the Son of Rehoboam King of Judah.

Abiathar, (i. e. Father of the Remnant, or of Contemplation, or excellent Father) the Name of a Son of Abimelech.

To Abide, to ſuffer or endure, to dwell or live in a Place, to continue, tarry or ſtay.

Abject (Lat. i.e. caſt away) Vile, Baſe or mean. An Abject a Perſon of no Repute or Eſteem.

Abjection or Abjectneſs, Abject Condition, low Eſtate, Meanneſs, Vileneſs.

Abies, (Lat.) the Fir-tree

Abiezar (Heb. the Father's Help) one of King David's Thirty Champions, or Worthies.

Abiga, (Lat.) the Herb Ground-pine, whoſe Leaves are like thoſe of the Fir-tree, and ſerve to haſten Delivery in Child-birth.

Abigail, (i. e. the Father's Joy) the Wife of Nabal, and afterwards of King David.

Abimelech, (i. e. my Father the King, or chief Father) a King of Geran, who thinking Sarah to have been Abraham's Siſter, would have taken her to Wife.

Abintestate, (Law-word) an Heir to a Man that dy'd without a Will.

Abiſhag, (Heb. the Father's Error) a fair young Virgin, who cheriſh'd King David in his old Age.

Abiſhai, (i. e. the Father's Reward) one of King David's Champions.

Abiſhering, an old Law-word, which properly ſignifies Forfeiture; a being quit of Amerciaments, Forfeits or Fines, for a Tranſgreſſion prov'd before any Judge: It is otherwiſe expreſs'd Miſhering or Miskering.

Abjuration, (among the Romans) ſignify'd an abjuring or denying a thing upon Oath, a denying that a Man had promiſed, committed, detained or did owe any thing upon his Oath: Thus Abjurare Creditum was to forſwear a Debt, or to deny on Oath that he ow'd the Debt.

In our Law, Abjuration is a Renouncing by Oath, a ſworn Baniſhment, or Forſwearing of the Realm, which was a Benefit heretofore allow'd to one, who having committed Felony, betook himſelf to a Sanctuary, and there confeſs'd his Crime to the Juſtices or to the Coroner.

To Abjure, to renounce or quit an Opinion: In a Law-ſenſe, to Forſwear the Realm for ever, rather than come to a Legal Tryal.

Ablactation, the Weaning of a Child that has Suck'd for ſome time. Among Gardiners, a particular manner of Grafting, when the Cion is as it were wean'd by degrees from its Mother, but not wholly cut off from it, till it be firmly united to the Stock on which it is Grafted.

Ablaqueation, a laying bare, or uncovering the bottom of the Trunks and Roots of Trees, that ſo being expoſed to the Air, Sun and Rain, they may bear Fruit more plentifully the next Year.

Ablative Caſe, (in Grammar) the laſt of the ſix Caſes of Nouns and Participles, ſo nam'd, becauſe it is generally us'd in Actions of taking away. 'Tis alſo call'd the Latin Caſe, from its being almoſt peculiar to the Latin Tongue.

Abluent, Medicines, the ſame as Abſtergentia; which ſee.

Ablution, (i. e. Waſhing, or Rinſing) a Purgation or Waſhing in uſe among Popiſh Prieſts: Alſo the preparing of a Medicine in any Liquor to cleanſe it from its Dregs, or any bad Quality.

Abnegation, properly the denying of a thing point blank: In Divinity, the Renouncing of one's Paſſions, Pleaſures or Intereſts; Self-denial.

Abner, (Heb. the Father's Candle) the Son of Ner, Saul's Uncle, and Captain General of his Army.

Abnodation, (Lat. in Husbandry) the pruning, or cutting away of Knots or Knobs from Trees.

Aboard, (a Sea-word) as to go Aboard, i. e. to enter a Ship.

To Aboliſh, to Deface utterly, to Repeal, to Reduce to nothing; to Deſtroy a thing after ſuch manner, that no Foot-ſteps of it remain.

Aboliſhment, an Aboliſhing or Diſannulling.

Abolition, (Law-term) an Aboliſhing or Razing out, the Abſolute Repealing of a Law or Cuſtom, or the entire taking of it away, ſo that it ſhall never have force again: Alſo leave given by the King or Judges to a Criminal Accuſer, to forbear farther Proſecution: In Metaphyſicks, an utter Deſtruction of any Being.

Abolla (Lat.) a Soldier's Cloak ſhorter and courſer than the Roman Toga or Gown.

Abomaſum, the Paunch of a Beaſt, the Tripes: In Anatomy, one of the four Stomachs of Rumi- nant Animals, or Creatures that chew the Cud; the other three being Venter, Reticulum, & Omaſum.

Abominable, that is to be abominated, or abhorr'd or hated, hateful; as An Abominable Fact.

To Abominate, to abhor, hate or loath; the word originally ſignifies to take a thing for an ill Omen, or unlucky Sign, to pray againſt it; or wiſh the contrary by certain forms of Speech.

Abomination, a deteſtable thing, a thing to be abhorr'd or loathed.

Aborigines, (Lat.) a People brought into Italy by Saturn, or as others ſay, by Chamaſenus or Cham, and thought to have been the moſt ancient Inhabitants of that Country, who pretended to be without Original or Derivation from any other Nation or People: Whence the word is taken to ſignify any People born where they live, the firſt Natives or Inhabitants of a Country; as the Britains in England, the Indians in America, &c.

Abortion, Miſcarriage in Women, or the bringing forth of a Child ſo long before its time, that it is in no capacity to live.

Abortive, belonging to ſuch a Birth, ſtill-born, untimely, alſo that miſcarries or comes to nought; as An Abortive Deſign. Abortive alſo ſignifies a ſort of fine Vellam made of the Skin of a caſt Calf or Lamb.

Abraham (Heb. i. e. the Father of a great Multitude) the Name of the great Patriarch of the Jewiſh Nation, who is ſtyled in Holy Scripture the Father of the Faithful, and was at firſt call'd Abram, which ſignifies a high Father.

Abraham's Balm, or Hemp-tree, a kind of Willow ſo call'd.

Abraid, a word us'd in Chaucer and ſignifying upſtart, recovered.

Abramus (Lat.) the Bream, a Freſh-water Fiſh.

Abreding, Upbraiding, Chaucer.

Abrenunciation, a renouncing or forſaking any thing entirely.

Abric, a word us'd by ſome Chymiſts for Sulphur.

To Abridge (Fr.) to contract, to make ſhorter in words, ſtill retaining the Senſe and Subſtance. In common Law, to make a Declaration or Count ſhort, by leaving out part of the Plaint or Demand, and praying that the Defendant may anſwer to the other.

Abridgment, an abridging, an Epitome, a ſhort Account of a Matter.

To Abrogate, to aboliſh or diſannul, eſpecially to repeal or make void a Law which was before in force.

Abrogation, the Act of Abrogating.

Abrotanites (Gr.) a ſort of Wine made of Southern-wood.

Abrotanum, the Herb Southern-wood, which is of a binding and diſſolving quality.

Abrupt (Lat.) ſuddenly breaking off, unſeaſonable, rough, haſty.

Abſalom (Heb. the Father's Peace or Reward) King David's Son that rebelled againſt him.

Abſceſs (Lat.) a groſs Tumour or ſwelling in any part of the Body, that may either be diſſolved, or brought to run with Matter: It is commonly call'd an Impoſtume.

Abſciſſæ (in a Conick Section, or other crooked-lin'd Geometrical Figure) are the parts of the Axis cut off by the Ordinates, and counted downwards from the Vertex or top of the Section: Theſe are alſo termed by ſome Writers, the Intercepted Axes, or Intercepted Diameters.

Abſciſſion (i. e. cutting off) a Term in Aſtrology, when three Planets being within the bounds of their Orbs, and in different Degrees of the Sign; the third comes to a Conjunction with the middle Planet, and cuts off the light of the firſt.

To Abſcond, to hide one's ſelf.

Abſent, that is out of the way, miſſing or wanting.

To Abſent one's ſelf, to be willingly abſent, to keep out of the way, not to appear.

Abſinthites (Gr.) Wormwood-wine.

Abſinthium, or Abſynthium, the Herb Wormwood, which is good to ſtrengthen the Stomach, procures an Appetite and opens Stoppages.

Abſis or Apſis, the bowed or arched Roof of a Houſe, Room, or Oven; the Ring or Compaſs of a Wheel: Alſo a Term us'd by Aſtronomers, when the Planets moving to their higheſt or loweſt Places, are at a ſtay; the high Abſis, being call'd the Apogæum, and the low Abſis, the Perigæum.

Abſolvatory, (Lat.) belonging to a diſcharge or Requital.

To Abſolve, to acquit or diſcharge of a Crime or Accuſation laid againſt one.

Abſolute, that has Perfection in it ſelf, free from the Power of another, Arbitrary, Unlimited: Thus Almighty God is abſolute from the Perfection of his Nature, as containing in himſelf all poſſible Power, and lying under no Limitations or Reſtraints from any. A Prince is ſaid to be Abſolute, when he acts altogether at his own Pleaſure, and will not in any reſpect be reſtrain'd or controuled by the Laws of the Country.

Abſolute Equation (in Aſtron.) is the Aggregate or Sum of the Eccentrick and Optik Equations. See Equation Aſtronomical.

Abſolute Eſtate (according to the Law-Definition) is one free from all manner of Conditions and Incumbrances.

Abſolute Number (in Algebra) is that which poſſeſſes one entire part or ſide of an Equation, and is always a known quantity: Thus in this Equation $aa+16a=36$ the abſolute Number is 36.

Abſolute Space. See Space.

Abſolutely, after an abſolute manner. Sometimes the Terms of a Propoſition are ſaid to be taken abſolutely, that is without relation to any thing elſe: It is alſo us'd in oppoſition to Terms and Conditions: Thus God does not forgive Men their Sins abſolutely, but upon condition of their Repentance and future Amendment.

Abſolution, a pardoning, remiſſion, or forgiveneſs of Sins pronounced by a Prieſt, &c.

Abſolutorium (Lat.) an abſolute Remedy or moſt effectual Medicine; a certain Cure, or perfect Recovery.

Abſonant or Abſonous, diſagreeing from the Purpoſe, abſurd.

Abſoniare (in old Latin Records) to deteſt and avoid.

To Abſorb, to ſwallow up, to conſume or waſte.

Abſorbents, Medicines that temper and qualify the ſharp Juices in the Body, by imbibing or ſoaking them up. Thus Alkali's are ſaid to abſorb Acids.

Abſtemious, properly that drinks no Wine, Moderate, Sober, temperate in Diet.

Abſtention, (in Common-Law) a keeping or with-holding the Heir from taking poſſeſſion of his Land.

Abſtergent, or Abſterſive, that is of a ſcowring or cleanſing Quality.

Abſtergentia, (Lat.) abſterſive or cleanſing Medicines.

Abſterſion, a cleanſing, or wiping away, particularly the Effect produced by abſterſive Medicines; i. e. ſuch as are made uſe of to clear the Skin, or outward Parts of the Body, from Filth.

Abſterſive, ſee Abſtergent.

Abſtract, a Copy, or ſhort Draught of an Original Writing, an Abridgment of a Record, Deed or Book. In Logick, any Quality, as it is conſidered a-part, without regard to its Concrete or Subject: ſee Concrete.

Abſtract Numbers, (in Arithm.) thoſe that are conſidered as pure Numbers, without being apply'd to any ſubject. And ſo Abſtracted Mathematicks is us'd in Oppoſition to Mix'd Mathematicks; the former ſignifying pure Arithmetick, Geometry, or Algebra, &c.

Abſtraction, a Faculty or Power peculiar to the Mind of Man, in Contradiſtinction to the natural Capacity of Brutes; whereby he can make his Idea's, or Conceptions relating to particular Things become general, ſo as to repreſent all of the ſame Kind. Thus if my Eye repreſent to me Whiteneſs in a Wall, I can abſtractedly conſider that Quality of Whiteneſs, and find it may be attributed to many other things beſides; as to Chalk, Milk, Snow, &c.

Abſtruſe, lying hid, ſecret, obſcure, dark, hard to be underſtood.

Abſurd, that is not agreeable to Reaſon or common Senſe, fooliſh, ſilly, impertinent.

Abundant, abounding with, Plentiful.

Abundant Numbers, (in Arithmetick) are thoſe, whoſe Aliquot Parts added together, make more than the whole Number which they are Parts of; as 12, whoſe Parts being 1, 2, 3, 4, and 6, if added all together make 16: So likewiſe the Aliquot Parts of 20, make 22.

Abus, ſee Abſis.

Abuſe, ill Uſe, Affront.

To Abuſe, to make a bad uſe of, to miſuſe, affront, or do one an Injury.

Abuſio, (Lat.) the abuſing, or miſuſing of a thing; alſo a Figure in Rhetorick, the ſame as Catachreſis, which ſee.

Abuſive, injurious, offenſive, affrontive.

Abyſs, (Gr.) a bottomleſs Gulph or Pit, a prodigious deep Place that has no Bottom diſcernible, or at leaſt is ſuppoſed to have none; a vaſt unfathomable Maſs of Waters, ſuch as is thought to be incloſed in the Bowels of the Earth.

Abyſſins, a People of Ethiopia, that are Chriſtians of the Greek Church, and whoſe Emperour, ſtyled the Grand Negus, is by ſome falſely taken for Preſter John.

Acacia, the Gum of the Thorn Acacia, or binding Bean-tree, very hard to be got; ſo that inſtead of it, Conſerves of Sloes are ſometimes us'd, under the Name of Rob Acacia.

Academicks, (Gr.) the Followers of Plato, anciently ſo call'd becauſe they ſtudied in the publick School call'd Academia. Afterwards the Name was given to a Sect of Sceptical Philoſophers, who held, That all things were uncertain, that Men ought to doubt of all Things, and believe nothing, &c.

Academy, an Univerſity, a Place where Youth are taught the liberal Arts and Sciences, or other Exerciſes. Alſo a particular Society of ingenious Perſons, eſtabliſhed for the Improvement of Learning, &c. The Word is deriv'd from Academia, a famous School near Athens, built and planted with Trees, ſome ſay by Cadmus the Phenician, others by one Academus, whence it had its Name.

Acana, a Rod or Perch ten Foot long, anciently us'd to meaſure Land with.

Acaid, a Word us'd by ſome Chymiſts for Vinegar.

Acalanthis, (Gr.) a Bird feeding and ſitting on Thiſtles: ſee Acanthis.

Acale, a Word in Chaucer ſignifying Cold.

Acaliphe, (Gr.) the great ſtinging Nettle, or the Sea-nettle, a ſenſible Plant.

Acanos, a Shrub, or Herb, with Prickles.

Acantabolus, a Surgeon's Inſtrument, like a Pair of Pincers, to take out any thing that may happen to ſtick in the Oeſophagus, or Gullet.

Acantha, a Thorn, Brier, or Bramble; a Prickle: In Anatomy, the moſt backward Protuberance or Knob of the Vertebra's, or Turning-Joynts of the Back, otherwiſe call'd Spina Dorſi.

Acanthion, the Oat-Thiſtle, whoſe Seeds are like Oats; or the Cotton-thiſtle with Leaves, having a Moſs like Cotton upon them.

Acanthis, the Thiſtle-Finch, or Siſkin, a Bird; alſo the Herb Groundſel.

Acanthus, a pleaſant Ægyptian Plant with a yellow Flower, the Figure of which uſed to be engrav'd on Cups, or embroider'd on Garments; alſo the Herb Brank-Urſin, Bears-breech, or Bears-foot.

Acanzii, certain Turkiſh light Horſemen, who are as it were the Avant-Couriers of the Grand Seignior's Army.

Acapnon, (Greek) a kind of Honey, taken out of the Hive without ſmoaking the Bees.

Acarnar, the ſame with Acherner; which ſee.

Acarne, a certain Sea-fiſh, the Fiſh-thiſtle, or Sea-roach.

Acacon, wild Myrtle, or Gow; alſo Butchers-broom, an Herb whoſe Root is one of the five opening ones.

Acarus, the Hand-worm, a little Worm that breeds in Wax, a Mite; alſo a Muſhroom or Toad-ſtool.

Acatalectos, or Acatalectick Verſe, (in Greek and Latin Poetry) a Verſe exactly perfect, in which not ſo much as one Syllable is over and above, or wanting.

Acatera, the great Juniper Tree, a Shrub.

Accedas ad Curiam, is a Writ returnable in the Queens-bench, or Common Pleas, and directed to the Sheriff, requiring him to go to the Court of ſome Lord, or Franchiſe where any falſe Judgment is ſuppos'd to be made in any Suit, in ſuch a Court that is not a Court of Record, in order to make a Record of the ſaid Suit there, and to certify it into the Queen's Court, at a Day appointed in the Writ.

Accedas ad Vice-comitem, a Writ directed to the Coroner, commanding him to deliver a Writ to the Sheriff, who having a Pone delivered him, ſuppreſſes it.

To Accelerate, (in Philoſ.) to haſten, to put on, or quicken.

Acceleration, the Act of Accelerating, haſtening, &c. as The Acceleration of the Deſcent of heavy Bodies.

Acceleratores Urinæ, (in Anat.) a pair of Muſcles belonging to the Penis, whoſe Uſe is to promote the Paſſage of the Urine and Genitura. They ariſe from the upper Part of the Urethra, as it paſſes under the Os Pubis, and are inſerted on each ſide the Corpora Cavernoſa Penis.

Accenſion, (in Philoſophy) the Inkindling, or ſetting any natural Body on fire.

Accent, Tune, Tone, or Tenour; the Riſing or Falling of the Voice: In Grammar, a Mark ſet over a particular Syllable of any Word, ſo as it may be pronounc'd with a ſtronger or weaker Voice. Theſe Accents are uſually counted three in Number, viz. Acute, Grave, and Circumflex, and thus expreſſed [´] [`] and [^] but the Circumflex in Greek is diſtinguiſhed by this Mark [˜]

Accent, in Muſick, is a Modulation, or warbling of the Voice, to expreſs the Paſſions, either naturally or artificially.

Accentor, ſee Incentor.

To Accept, to receive kindly, or favourably.

Acceptable, that may be ſo received, agreeable.

Acceptance or Acceptation, an accepting or receiving kindly: In a Law-ſenſe, a Tacit agreeing to ſome former Act done by another which might have been undone or avoided, if ſuch Acceptance had not been: Thus, if a Man and his Wife Poſſeſſed of Land in Right of his Wife, do joyn in making a Leaſe by Deed, reſerving Rent: and the Husband dying, the Wife accepts of or receives the Rent. By this Acceptance in her, the Leaſe is made good, and ſhall bar her from bringing a Writ, call'd, Cui in Vita againſt the Tenant.

Acceptation (in Grammar) the received meaning of a Word, or the Senſe in which it is uſually taken.

Acceptilation, a Diſcharge by word of Mouth from the Creditor to the Debtor; the ſame among the Civilians as Acquittance is in the Common-Law.

Acceſs, Admittance, Approach or Paſſage to a Place or Perſon: In old Engliſh, an Ague, the Fit of an Ague or Feaver.

Acceſſary, ſee Acceſſory.

Acceſſible, Approachable, that is eaſie to be come at.

Acceſſible Height, is either that which may be Mechanically meaſured by the Application of a Meaſure to it; or elſe an Height whoſe Baſe or Foot may be approached to, and from thence a Length meaſured on the Ground.

Acceſſion, Addition or Encreaſe; alſo coming; as the Acceſſion of a King to the Crown.

Acceſſorius Williſſii (in Anat.) a Nerve, ſo call'd from its Inventer Dr. Willis, which ariſes from the Spinal Marrow, about the beginning of the ſixth Pair of the Neck, and aſcends to the Head, where having enter'd the Scull, it paſſes out of it again, and is wholly ſpent upon the Muſculus Trapezius.

Acceſſory or Acceſſary (among the Civilians) is generally taken for any thing that of Right belongs or depends on another, tho' ſeparated from it; as Tiles taken off a Houſe, to be laid on again are an Acceſſory, when the Houſe is to be ſold.

In Common-Law, the Word uſually ſignifies a Perſon guilty of Felony, not Principally but by Participation, as Command, Advice, or Concealment, Aiding or Aſſiſting; which may be either before or after the Fact: There is alſo an Acceſſory by Statute, i. e. ſuch a one as Encourages, Adviſes, or Conceals a Party that commits an Offence which is made Felony by the Statute.

Accidence, a little Book, commonly ſo call'd, which contains the firſt Principles of the Latin Tongue.

Accident, Caſualty or Chance. Among Logicians it is taken in a threefold Senſe, viz. I. For whatever does not really belong to a thing, but only Caſually; as the Cloaths a Man has on, the Money in his Purſe, &c. Theſe are more properly call'd Adjuncts, and by the School-men, Verbal Accidents.

II. In Contradiſtinction to the Eſſential Properties of any Subject many Qualities are call'd Accidents. This in the Schools is termed Accidens Prædicabilé, and implies a common Quality which may or may not be in a Subject; as a particular colour, viz. Whiteneſs in a Wall, &c.

III. In Oppoſition to Subſtance, a thing is ſaid to be an Accident, when it is its Eſſence or Nature to ſubſiſt in, inhere or cleave to ſome Subſtance, and cannot be alone: This is call'd Accidens Prædicamentale, and the nine laſt Logical Predicaments are in this Senſe Accidents.

A Thing is alſo often ſtyled an Accident with reſpect to its Cauſe, or at leaſt as to our knowledge of it, whereby is commonly underſtood, an Effect either Caſually produced, or which to us appears to have been ſo.

In Heraldry, Accidents are the particular Points and Abatements in an Eſcutcheon.

Among Aſtrologers, Accidents are the moſt remarkable Chances that have happen'd to a Man in the Courſe of his Life; as a great Sickneſs at ſuch a Year, an extraordinary Fortune ſuch a Year, a remarkable Danger at ſuch a time, &c.

Accidental, belonging to Accidents, happening by chance.

Accidental Dignities and Debilities (in Aſtrol.) certain Caſual Affections or Diſpoſitions of the Planets, whereby they are ſtrengthen'd or weaken'd upon account of their being in ſuch a Houſe of the Figure, &c.

Accidental Point (in Perſpective) is a Point in the Horizontal Line, where Lines Parallel among themſelves, tho' not Perpendicular to the Picture do meet.

Accipiter (Lat.) the Hawk, a Bird of Prey.

Accipitrina, the Herb Hawk-weed.

Acclamation, a crying out of the People, a ſhouting for Joy; the Applauſe given to Perſons and Things upon ſeveral Occaſions.

Acclivity, the riſing ſteepneſs of a Hill, &c. Properly Steepneſs reckon'd upwards on a Slope-line, as Declivity is a Steepneſs downwards.

Accloyed, as a Horſe Accloy'd or Cloyed, i. e. nail'd or prickt in the Shooing.

Accolade (Fr.) clipping and colling, embracing about the Neck.

To Accommodate (Lat.) to Adjuſt, to apply or fit; to lend, to provide for, or furniſh with; to agree or make up a difference. Among Geometers, to fit a Line or Figure into a Circle, &c. According as the Conditions of the Propoſition or Problem require.

Accommodation, the Act of Accommodating, Adjuſting, Fitting, &c. Convenience, the putting an end to a Conteſt or Quarrel.

To Accompany (Fr.) to keep Company with, to wait on; to come or go along with.

Accomplice, one that has a hand in a Matter or that is privy to the ſame Crime with another.

To Accompliſh, to perform, finiſh, or fulfil; to Execute, or to bring to Perſection.

Accompliſhed, as a well Accompliſhed Perſon, i. e. one of extraordinary Parts and Endowments.

Accompt, ſee Account.

Accord, Agreement, Conſent; in Common-Law, an Agreement between ſeveral Parties to make Satisfaction for a Treſpaſs or Offence done one to another; which is a good Bar, if the other after the Performance of ſuch an Agreement ſhould bring a new Action for the ſame Treſpaſs.

To Accord, to agree, to hang together.

To Accoſt, to approach or draw near; to make or come up to a Perſon.

Account, Reckoning, Eſteem, Repute, Relation or Rehearſal, Ground. In Common-Law Account or Accompt is taken for a Writ or Action which lies againſt a Man, who being oblig'd by his Office or Employment to give an Account to another, refuſes to do it; as a Bailiff to his Maſter, a Guardian in Socage to his Ward, &c.

Account of Sales, a Term in Traffick, ſignifying an Account in which the Sale of Goods is particularly ſet down.

Accountable, liable to give an Account, anſwerable.

An Accountant, a Perſon well verſ'd in Caſting up Accounts, an able Arithmetician: In a Law-Senſe, one that is oblig'd to render an Account to another.

To Accouter, to dreſs, attire, or trim.

Accoutrement, Dreſs, Garb, Pickle.

To Accoy, (old Word) to aſſwage.

Accretion, (Lat.) properly a growing, or ſticking to. Among Naturaliſts it is taken for an Addition of Matter to any Body outwardly; but 'tis uſually apply'd to the Increaſe of Bodies without Life, and is ſometimes call'd Appoſition or Juxtapoſition.

Accroachment, ſee Encroachment.

To Accrew or Accrue, to be encreaſed or added to; to ariſe from, to fall to; as What good will accrue thereby? Theſe are things that accrue to the Heir, with the Houſe it ſelf by Cuſtom.

To Accumulate, (Lat.) to heap up, or gather together in Heaps.

Accumulation, the Act of accumulating or heaping up.

Accuracy, Exactneſs, Carefulneſs, Diligence.

Accurate, exact or curious, exactly or nicely done.

Accurſed, lying under a Curſe, or under a Sentence of Excommunication.

Accuſation, an accuſing, an Information, Impeachment, or Charge. See Endictment.

Accuſative Caſe, (in Grammar) the fourth Caſe of a Noun, always govern'd by a Verb Active.

To Accuſe, to charge with a Crime, to indict, impeach or inform againſt, to cenſure.

To Accuſtom one's ſelf, to inure or uſe himſelf to a thing.

Ace, that point of the Dice with which the Number One is expreſs'd; whence Ambs-ace or Amms-ace, i.e. a throwing two Aces with two Dice.

Acephali, (Gr. i.e. that have no Head) a ſort of Hereticks, whoſe firſt Ring-leader is unknown. Alſo certain Levellers that acknowledg'd no Head or Superiour, mention'd in the Laws of K. Henry I.

Acephali Sacerdotes, Prieſts that own no Biſhop over them, Independent Miniſters.

Acephali Verſus, (in Greek and Latin Poetry) are Verſes that begin with a ſhort Syllable inſtead of a long one.

Acer, (Lat.) the Maple-tree, of whoſe Wood fine Tables and many other pieces of Art were anciently made.

Acerb, a Taſte between ſour and bitter; ſuch as moſt Fruits have before they are ripe.

Acerbity, Sharpneſs, Sourneſs.

Acetabulum, (Lat.) a Saucer or ſuch like Veſſel for Vinegar: Alſo the Herb Navel-wort good for Inflammations and St. Anthony's Fire. In Anatomy, the cavity or hollow in the Huckle-bone, which receives the Head of the Thigh-bone within it. Certain Glandules or Kernels in the Chorion, one of the Skins that cover a Child in the Womb, are alſo call'd Acetabula. See Cotyledones.

Acetoſa, the Herb Sorrel, good to ſtir up the Appetite and quench Thirſt.

Acetum, Vinegar; in general any ſharp Liquor, as Spirit of Salt, Nitre, Vitriol, &c. but in Apothecaries Shops it is only taken for Vinegar of Wine or Grapes.

Acetum Alcalicitum or Alcaliſatum, diſtilled Vinegar in which ſome Alkalizate Salt is infus'd.

Acetum Philoſophicum, a ſharp Liquor diſtill'd from Honey: Alſo a ſour Liquor made by diſſolving a little Butter or Icy Oil of Antimony in a conſiderable Quanity of Water.

Acetum Radicatum, the ſharpeſt part of Vinegar, that has its Phlegm or Water drawn off.

Achamech, the Droſs of Silver, ſo call'd by ſome Chymiſts.

Achan, (Heb. troubling or gnawing) an Iſraelite who was Stoned to Death for reſerving a Garment and Wedge of Gold out of the Enemies Spoils.

Achana or Achane, a Perſian Meaſure containing 45 Medimni: Alſo a kind of Veſſel for thoſe that went to ſee Publick Shews, to put Proviſion in.

Achat, (Fr.) Purchace, a purchaſing or buying: In our Common-law it is taken for a Contract or Bargain.

Achates, (Gr.) the Agate, a precious Stone of ſeveral Colours, the Veins and Spots of which, make an admirable Variety of Figures; as of Horns, Trees, Shrubs, &c.

Achators, a Word us'd in Stat. 36. E. 3. for Purveyors ſee Achat.

Ache, a Pain in any part of the Body: Alſo a Diſeaſe in Horſes, which cauſes a Numneſs in the Joynts, and proceeds from Cold taken upon hard and violent Exerciſe or Labour.

Acheked, Choaked, Chaucer.

Acherner or Acarnar, a bright fixed Star of the firſt Magnitude or Light in the Conſtellation nam'd Eridanus; whoſe Longitude is 10 Degr. 31 Min. Latitude 59 d. 18 m.

Acherois, (Gr.) a kind of white Poplar-tree growing by the River Acheron.

Acheta, the bigger ſort of Singing Graſs-hopper.

To Achieve, ſee To Atchieve.

Achillea, the Herb Milfoil or Yarrow, with which Achilles is ſaid to have cur'd Telephus of a dangerous Ulcer.

Achilleis, a ſort of Barley.

Achilles, the chief Champion of the Greeks at the Trojan War, who ſlew Hector and was kill'd by Paris with an Arrow ſhot at his Heel.

Achimenis, the Herb Poley.

Achiſh, (Heb. ſure it is) a King of Gath, to whom King David flying for Refuge, feign'd himſelf mad.

Achlys, (Gr.) a fault in the Eye, accounted one of the kinds of Amblyopia, or Dimneſs of Sight.

Acholites, See Acolytes.

Achor, a Diſeaſe in the hairy Scalp or muſculous Skin of the Head, that eats through it like a Moth, and is commonly call'd the Scald; the difference between Achor and Favus is this, that the Cavities or Holes in the former, are ſmall and ſometimes not viſible; but in a Favus they are more large and apparent. See Cruſta lactea.

Achras, a wild Choak-pear.

Achroi, Men that have loſt their natural Colour; as thoſe who are of an ill habit of Body, or troubled with the Jaundice, Melancholy, &c.

Achronical, See Achronychal.

Acicula, (Lat.) a Pin or ſmall Needle: Alſo wild Chervil or Shepherds Needle, an Herb.

Acid, Sour, Sharp, Biting, Tart.

Acid Spirit, See Spirit.

Acids, (among Chymiſts) Bodies whoſe ſmall Parts are ſuppos'd to be ſomewhat long and flexible, and which have their Points ſharp and piercing; and theſe are either Natural or Artificial, the former have a proper Sharpneſs of their own, without the help of Art, as Juice of Lemmons. &c. but the latter are made by Fire, in Chymical Operations.

Acidity, Sharpneſs, Keenneſs; the Taſte which Bodies that are Acid or Sharp, leaves in the Mouth: In a Chymical Senſe, the Acidity of any Liquor, conſiſts in keen Particles of Salts diſſolved, and put into a violent Motion by means of Fire.

Acidula, (Lat.) a kind of Sorrel, an Herb.

Acidulæ, any Medicinal or Spaw-Waters that are not hot; in which reſpect they are oppos'd to Thermæ.

Aciniformis Tunica, (in Anat.) a Coat of the Eye, the ſame as the Uvea Tunica; which ſee.

Acinos, (Greek) the Herb wild Baſil.

Acinus, (Lat.) a Grape-ſtone, the Stone in Raiſins, the Kernel of a Pomegranate. Among Herbaliſts the Fruit of all ſuch Plants as bear it in Cluſters, in a manner reſembling Grapes; being ſofter and more juicy than a Berry; which alſo often grows ſingle.

Acipenſer, a rare Fiſh among the Romans, which us'd to be ſerv'd up in Pomp, with Garlands on the Heads of thoſe that ſet it on the Table, and is falſely taken for a Sturgeon.

Acloyed, a Word us'd in Chaucer for over-charged.

Acmaſtica, (Greek) a continued Feaver ſo call'd by ſome, the ſame with Synochus.

Acme, the Edge or Point of a Weapon, the Flower of Age, the Prime of a thing. Among Phyſicians the height of a Diſeaſe, many of which have four Periods, viz. 1. The Arche, or Beginning; 2. The Anabaſis, i. e. the Growth or Encreaſe; 3. The Acme, when the Matter of the Diſtemper is fully ripe; 4. The Paracme, or the declining of it.

To Acknowledge, to own or confeſs, to conſider, to be grateful or thankful for, to requite or reward.

Acknowledgement, Owning, Confeſſion, Gratitude or Thankfulneſs, Requital or Reward.

Acknowledgement-Money, a Piece of Money paid by the Tenant upon the Death of his Land-lord, in Acknowledgement of the new Land-lord.

Acæmeti, (Gr.) an Order of Greek Monks at Conſtantinople, ſo call'd becauſe uſually dividing themſelves into three Companies, for the performance of Religious Duties, they never ſlept altogether, but by turns.

Acæton, a kind of pure Honey, live Honey; the pureſt and thinneſt part of Honey, without Dreggs or Settling.

Acolytes, (i. e. Followers) certain inferiour Church-Officers in the Primitive Times, who aſſiſted the Prieſt. Deacons and Sub-Deacons; performing the meaner Offices of lighting the Candles, carrying the Bread and Wine, &c. The Word is ſtill us'd among Roman Catholicks, for a kind of Under-Deacon or Prieſt's Attendant, that waits upon him while he ſays Maſs.

Aconitum, a poiſonous Herb call'd Libbards-bane or Woolf-bane.

Acontias, a ſort of Comet or Blazing-ſtar, in ſhape reſembling a Dart or Javelin; its Head being ſometimes round, ſometimes longiſh and compreſſed, and its Tail or Train ſlender, but extended to a great length. Alſo a kind of Serpent that moves very ſwiftly like a Dart.

Acopica, Ingredients put into Medicines againſt Wearineſs.

Acopum, (according to ſome Writers) a Fomentation made of warm and ſoftening Ingredients, to allay the Senſe of Wearineſs, occaſioned by too violent Labour or Exerciſe. Alſo a Medicine for Horſes us'd for the ſame purpoſe; being alſo good for Convulſions, String-halts, Colds, Stoppages, and all ſorts of inward Diſeaſes.

Acorna, the Thiſtle, otherwiſe call'd Androſæmon, or Man's Blood.

Acorus, a ſweet-ſmelling Herb of great Virtue in Phyſick; the ſweet Cane, the greater Galingale, the ſweet Garden-flag.

Acoſmia, (in the Art of Phyſick) an ill ſtate of Health, with the loſs of the natural Colour in the Face.

To Acoup, (old Word) to reprehend or reprove.

Acouſtica or Acouſticks, Medicines or Inſtruments which help the Senſe of Hearing.

To Acquaint one, (Fr.) or make one acquainted with, to make known to one, to give him Notice or Intelligence of, to inform or tell him of.

Acquaintance, Fellowſhip, Correſpondence, Converſation; alſo a Perſon with whom one is acquainted or converſant.

To Acquieſce, (Lat.) to reſt ſatisfied, to conſent, to yield, to ſubmit, to comply with.

Acquieſcence or Acquieſcency, the Act of acquieſcing, Conſent, Condeſcenſion, Compliance.

Acquietandis Plegiis, a Writ lying for a Surety againſt a Creditor, who refuſes to acquit one after Payment of the Debt.

Acquietantia de Shiris & Hundredis, (Law-Phraſe) a being free from Suit and Service in Shires and Hundreds.

To Acquire, to purchaſe, to get, to attain to.

Acquiſition, an acquiring, purchaſing, obtaining or winning.

Acquiſts, Purchaces, properly Victories gain'd, or Conqueſts won by the Sword.

To Acquit, (Fr.) to diſcharge or free from.

Acquittal or Acquitment, a Deliverance or ſetting free from the Suſpicion or Guilt of an Offence. Alſo the Diſcharge of a Tenant by a Meſne Land-lord from doing Service to, or being diſturb'd in the Poſſeſſion by any Paramount or ſuperiour Lord.

Acquittal in Fact, is when a Man is found not Guilty of the Offence with which he is charg'd, either by the Verdict of a Jury, or by overcoming the Accuſer in Battel or ſingle Combat.

Acquittal in Law, is when two Perſons are indicted, one as Principal, and the other as Acceſſory, ſo that the former being diſcharged, the latter by conſequence is alſo acquitted.

Acquittance, a Diſcharge or Releaſe in Writing, for a Summ of Money, or other Duty which ought to be paid or done.

Acraſia, (Gr.) Indiſpoſition, Diſorder. Among ſome Writers in Phyſick, it is taken for the exceſs or predominancy of one Quality above another in the Conſtitution of a human Body.

Acre, a Meaſure of Land containing 40 Perches in length, and 4 in breadth, or 160 ſquare Poles or Perches, or 4840 ſquare Yards, or 43560 ſquare Feet. A Welſh Acre is uſually equal to two Engliſh ones.

Acredula, (Lat.) the Screech-Owl; a Bird.

Acreme, a Law-word for ten Acres of Land.

Acrimonious Bodies, (in Philoſ.) ſuch Bodies as have a great Acrimony, whoſe Particles or ſmall Parts do eat, fret, deſtroy, and diſſolve what comes in their way.

Acrimony, (Lat.) Sharpneſs, Eagerneſs, Tartneſs.

Acriſia, that of which no Judgment is paſſed or Choice made; a Matter in diſpute, or that is not yet determin'd; alſo want of Judiciouſneſs, Raſhneſs in Judging: Alſo a Term us'd by Phyſicians, when the ſtate of a Diſtemper is ſo uncertain, that they cannot paſs a right Judgment upon it.

Acrochordon, a ſort of great Wart, with a ſmall Root like a String.

Acrocorium, a kind of Onion.

Acrodrya, all Fruits having hard Rinds or Shells; as Nuts, Cheſnuts, Almonds, Acorns, &c.

Acromion, (in Anat.) the upper Proceſs or Knob of the Shoulder-blade, or the top of the Shoulder where the Neck-Bones are joyn'd with the Shoulder-blade.

Acromphalum, the top or middle of the Navel.

Acron, the utmoſt end of any Member; alſo a little Stock or Stem.

Acron Sylvaticum, the Herb Milfoil or Yarrow.

Acronychal, (in Aſtron.) belonging to the Evening-Twilight: When a Star riſes at Sun-ſet, it is ſaid to Riſe achronychally, and when a Star ſets with the Sun, 'tis ſaid To Set acronychally; which is one of the three Poetical Riſings or Settings.

Acronyctæ, Stars riſing in the Twilight about Sun-ſetting.

Acros, the top of a Finger, Herb, &c. Among ſome Writers it is taken for the height of a Diſeaſe eaſe, and by ſome Anatomiſts for the Prominences, Knobs, or Tops of Bones.

Acroſpire, ſee Plume.

Acroſtick, a piece of Poetry ſo order'd, that the firſt Letters of every Verſe, may contain ſome particular Name, Title, Sentence, or Motto.

Acroteres, (in Architect.) Pedeſtals upon the Corners and Middle of a Pedement to ſupport Statues.

Acroteria, the utmoſt parts of a Man's Body, as his Fingers-ends; In Architecture, thoſe Spiry Battlements or Pinnacles that ſtand in Ranges, with Rails and Balliſters upon flat Buildings.

Acſah, (Heb. Adorn'd or Wantonneſs) the Daughter of Caleb, and Wife of Othniel.

Act, (Lat.) a Deed, a Decree of Parliament, or any other Court of Judicature. Alſo the time when Degrees are taken in the Univerſity of Oxford; being the ſame as the Commencement at Cambridge.

Acts of Parliament, poſitive Laws conſiſting of two Parts, viz. the Words of the Act and the Senſe, both which joyn'd together make the Law.

Clerk of the Acts, an Officer who receives and enters the Lord Admiral's Commiſſions and Warrants; and regiſters the Acts and Orders of the Commiſſioners of the Navy. His Salery is 500 l. per Annum.

Actæa, a kind of Herb, by ſome call'd Wallwort or ſhrubby Elder.

Acte, the Sea-ſhore or Coaſt; alſo the Elder-Tree.

Actifs, an Order of Friers that feed on Roots, and wear Twany-colour'd Habits: They ſeem to be ſo call'd from their Activity and Readineſs to perform all Exerciſes of ſevere Pennance.

Actinoboliſm, (Gr. in Philoſ.) the diradiation, diffuſion or ſpreading abroad of Light or Sound, by which it is carry'd or flows every way from its Centre.

Action, an Act, Deed or Feat, a particular way of Delivery in making a Speech or Sermon. Among Phyſicians and Naturaliſts, Action is diſtinguiſh'd into Voluntary and Spontaneous, the former being that which is directed by the Will; as Walking, Running, Handling, &c. whereas the other does not depend on the Will; as the Circulation of the Blood, the Beating of the Arteries, &c.

In a Legal Senſe, Action is taken for the Proceſs or Form of a Suit given by the Law to recover a Right, and of theſe there are ſeveral ſorts, viz.

Action Mix'd, is when it is part Real and part Perſonal: Alſo a Suit given by the Law, to recover the Thing detain'd, and Dammages for the Wrong done; as an Action for Tithes, &c.

Action Penal, an Action which aims at ſome Penalty or Puniſhment on the Party ſued; either on his Body, or by way of Fine on his Eſtate; as the next Friends of a Man wilfully Murder'd or Wounded, ſhall purſue the Law againſt the Offender, and bring him to due Puniſhment.

Action Perſonal, is that which one Man may have againſt another upon account of any Bargain for Money or Goods, or for any Wrong done to his Perſon, by him or ſome other for whoſe Fact he is anſwerable.

Action Popular, an Action given upon the breach of ſome Penal Statute, which any Man that will, may ſue for himſelf and the Queen, by Information or otherwiſe.

Action Real, an Action whereby one claims Title to Lands, Tenements, Rents or Commons, in Fee-ſimple, Fee-tail or for Term of Life.

Action of a Writ, a Phraſe us'd when one pleads ſome Matter, by which he ſhews the Plaintiff had no Cauſe to have the Writ which he brought, tho' he may perhaps have another Action for the ſame Matter.

Action upon the Caſe, is a Writ brought for an Offence done without Force againſt any Man; as for not Performance of Promiſe, for ſpeaking Words whereby the Plaintiff is defam'd, or for ſome other Miſdemeanour or Deceit.

Action upon the Statute, that which is brought upon the breach of a Statute, whereby an Action is given that lay not before; as where Perjury is committed to another's Prejudice, the endammag'd Party ſhall have a Writ upon the Statute.

Actionable, that bears an Action, or affords Cauſe on which an Action may be grounded.

Active, fit to act, nimble, lively, quick.

Active Principles, (among Chymiſts) are the Spirit, Oil and Salt; ſo call'd, becauſe their Parts being briskly in Motion, cauſe Action in other Bodies.

Active Voice of a Verb, (in Grammar) that Voice which ſignifies Action or Doing; as Amo I love, Doceo I teach, &c.

Activity, Nimbleneſs, Briskneſs, Vigour.

Acto, Acton or Aketon, a Word us'd in ſome old Records for a Coat of Mail.

Acton Burnel, a Caſtle in Shropſhire ſome time belonging to the Family of Burnel, and famous for a Parliament there held under King Edward I. in which was ordain'd the Statute-Merchant, thence call'd the Statute of Acton Burnel.

Actor, properly the Doer of any Thing; one that acts a Part and repreſents ſome Perſon upon the Stage: In the Civil-Law, an Advocate or Proctor.

Actual, real, effectual. In Metaphyſicks, that is ſaid To be Actual or in Act, which has a real Exiſtence or Being, and is underſtood as oppos'd to that which is Potential.

Actual Fire, ſee Ignis Actualis.

Actuary, the Clerk that Regiſters the Canons and Ordinances of a Convocation.

To Actuate, to bring into Act, to move, to ſtir up, or quicken.

Aculeatus Piſciculus, the Banſtickle or Prickling; a Fiſh.

Acure, a Term us'd by ſome Chymiſts, when a Liquor is heighten'd or made more piercing by a ſtronger; as Spirit of Wine quickens Lemmon-Juice, &c.

Acus, (Lat.) a Needle to ſow with, a Bodkin: Alſo a Sea-Fiſh call'd the Needle-Fiſh, Horn-Fiſh or Gar-Fiſh, and by the Inhabitants of Cornwall an Old Wife. Alſo the Husk of ſome Seeds, reſembling the Figure of a Needle.

Acute, ſharp-pointed, keen, ſharp-witted, Subtil, Ingenious.

Acute Accent, ſee Accent.

Acute Angle, (in Geom.) any Angle that is leſs than a Right one, or that contains leſs than 90 Degrees: See Angle.

Acute-angled Cone: See Cone.

Acute-angled Triangle, is that which has all its Angles Acute.

Acute-angular Section of a Cone, a Term us'd by the ancient Geometricians for an Ellipſis or Oval Figure, which they conſider'd only in that Cone whoſe Section by the Axis, is a Triangle Acute-angled at the Vertex or Top; but Apollonius Pergaus afterwards demonſtrated that the Section of any Cone thro' both its Sides will produce the ſame Figure.

Acute Diſeaſe, is a Diſtemper which by reaſon of its Vehemency, ſoon grows to a height, and either abates, or elſe deſtroys the Patient; as a Fever, Pleuriſy, &c.

Acylos, (Gr.) a kind of Acorn.

Acyrologia, (in Rhetorick) an improper way of ſpeaking; a Bull.

Adacted, beat or driven in by Force.

Adadunephros, (Gr.) a kind of precious Stone like a Kidney.

Adage, (Lat.) a Proverb or old Saying.

Adam, (Heb. red Earth) the firſt created Man and Parent of Mankind.

Adamant, (Gr.) a Stone otherwiſe call'd a Diamond, the hardeſt, moſt glittering and moſt valuable of all precious Stones.

Adamantine, belonging to, or made of Adamant; hard, inflexible.

Adamantis, an Herb of the nature of the Adamant.

Adamites, a ſort of Hereticks, who pretending to be reſtored to Adam's Innocence, go Naked in their Aſſemblies: They are ſaid to condemn Marriage, and to have Women in Common.

To Adapt, (Lat.) to make fit, to apply or ſuit one thing to another.

Adarcon, a Hebrew Gold-Coin worth fifteen Shillings Sterling.

Adarige, a Term apply'd by ſome Chymiſts to ſignify Sal Armoniack.

Adaſhed, (old Word) aſhamed.

To Adaw, (old Word) to awaken; but it is us'd by the Poet Spencer, in his Fairy Queen, for to ſlacken.

Adax or Addax, (Gr.) a kind of Beaſt in Africa, with wreathed Horns.

To Add, (Lat.) to join or put to.

Addephagia, ſee Adephagia.

Adder, a dangerous Serpent whoſe Poiſon is moſt deadly.

Adders-graſs, ſee Dogs-Stones.

Adders-tongue, an Herb having one ſingle Leaf, in the midſt of which comes up a little Stalk like the Tongue of that Serpent.

Adders-wort, ſee Biſtort.

Addice or Adize, a kind of Axe generally made uſe of by Coopers for cutting the hollow ſide of any Cask or Board.

To Addict, (Lat.) to give one's ſelf up wholly to a thing, to follow it cloſe, to apply one's Mind altogether to it.

Addictio, (in the Roman Law) a paſſing over Goods to another, or to him that will give moſt.

Addictio in diem, an adjudging a Thing to a Perſon for a certain Price, unleſs by ſuch a Day the Owner, or ſome other, give a better Price for it. 'Tis alſo us'd for taking an Adminiſtration, and paying the Debts of the Deceaſed.

Additament, a Thing added; an Encreaſe or Advantage. In Phyſick and Chymiſtry, Additaments are Things added a-new to the ordinary Ingredients of any Compoſition; or to a Menſtrum, for the better enabling it to open and diſſolve any mixt Body.

Addition, an adding, joining or putting to, an Encreaſe, Advantage or Ornament: In Arithmetick, a Rule whereby ſeveral Numbers are added or gathered together, to the end that their Total or Summ may be diſcover'd; as 2 and 4 make 6; and it is either Simple or Compound.

Simple Addition, is the gathering together of ſeveral Numbers that expreſs things of the ſame kind into one Summ; as Pounds, Miles, Yards, Years, &c.

Compound Addition, is the adding or ſumming up of things of different names or kinds; as Pounds, Shillings and Pence; Miles, Furlongs and Perches; Yards and Nails; Years, Months, Weeks and Days, &c.

Addition, (in Algebra or Species) is performed by joining together the Quantities propos'd, preſerving their proper Signs; and the peculiar Sign or Mark of Addition, is +, which is always ſuppos'd to belong to the Quantity that follows it: Thus, if to $3a$ you add $2a$, the Summ is $3a+2a$ or $5a$.

In a Law-ſenſe, Addition is a Title given to a Man beſides his proper Name and Sir-Name, to ſhew his Quality, Degree, Trade, Place of Abode, &c. ſuch are Additions of Eſtate, as Eſquire, Gentleman, Yeoman; of Trades, as Stationer, Printer, Carpenter; of Places, as of London, York, Briſtol.

Additional, that is added over and above; as An Additional Exciſe.

Additionales, (Lat. in the Civil-Law) additional Terms or Propoſitions to be added to the former Agreement.

Addle, (Sax.) empty or rotten; properly ſpoken of an Egg, and figuratively apply'd to a Hair-brain'd, Empty-ſcull'd Fellow.

Addreſs, (Fr.) dext'rous Carriage in the Management of a Buſineſs, prudent Conduct, Skill, Induſtry: Alſo an Application or Dedication to a Perſon; a ſhort Remonſtrance or Petition made by the Parliament to the Soveraign, &c.

To Addreſs, to make Application to, to preſent a Petition, to direct a Letter.

Adducent Muſcles, ſee Adductores.

Adductor Oculi, (in Anat.) a Muſcle of the Eye ſo nam'd, becauſe it draws its Pupil or Apple towards the Noſe; and alſo Bibitorius, from its directing the Eye towards the Cup, when one is drinking.

Adductor Pollicis, a Muſcle that brings the Thumb nearer the Fore-finger: It ariſes in common with the Abductor Indicis, and aſcends obliquely to its Inſertion at the upper part of the firſt Bone of the Thumb.

Adductor Pollicis Pedis, a Muſcle of the great Toe, which it brings nearer the reſt: It takes riſe from the lower Parts of the Os Cuneiforme Tertium, and is inſerted to the inner Part of the Oſſa Seſamoidea of the great Toe; being oppoſite ſideways to the end of the Abductor Pollicis Pedis.

Adductores or Adducent Muſcles (in General) are thoſe that bring forward, cloſe, or draw together the Parts of the Body, whereto they are joyned.

Adelantado, (Span.) the Deputy of a Province for a King or General.

Adeling, Atheling or Etheling, (Sax.) a Title of Honour among the Engliſh Saxons, properly belonging to the Heir Apparent of the Crown, and ſignifying Excellent; ſuch was Edgar Atheling, the deſign'd Succeſſour of Edward the Confeſſour.

Adelphides, (Gr.) a kind of Palm having the Taſte of Figgs.

Aden, (in Anat.) a Glandule or Kernel in an Animal Body; ſome alſo take it for a Swelling in the Groin, the ſame as Bubo.

Adephagia or Addephagia, an eating one's Fill, Greedineſs, as when Children Crave to eat before their former Victuals are digeſted.

Adeps, (Lat.) Fat, Tallow, Greaſe: Among Anatomiſts, it is conſider'd as a ſimilar Part of the Body, differing in this reſpect from Pinguedo, that it is a thicker, harder, and more earthy Subſtance, which flows from the Blood thro' peculiar Veſſels into certain Baggs or Bladders that receive it.

Adepts or Adeptiſts, the obtaining Sons of Art, well skill'd in Alchymy, who by great Labour and Induſtry have gain'd, or are ſaid to have found out, by their Tribe, the Secret of the Tranſmutation of Metals, or of making the Grand Elixir, commonly call'd the Philoſophers-Stone.

Adequate, even, equal, or proportionable. A Thing is ſaid To be Adequate to, or adequately to agree with another, when it is every way equal to it in Capacity, Extent, Power, and all other Properties; neither exceeding nor falling ſhort of it in any reſpect.

Adequate Idea's, are thoſe Idea's or Conceptions that perfectly repreſent the Archetype or Original Images, which the Mind ſuppoſes them to be taken from, which it intends them to ſtand for, and whereto it refers them.

Adfected Equations, ſee Equation.

To Adhere, to ſtick faſt or cleave to, to be join'd to, or take part with.

Adherence or Adherency, the Act of adhering or ſticking cloſe to the Intereſts or Opinions of others.

An Adherent, one that adheres to a Party; a Stickler, Follower, or Favourer.

Adjacent, lying near to, bordering upon.

Adjacent Angles, ſee Angles.

Adiantum, (Gr.) the Herb Maiden-Hair, ſo call'd becauſe its Leaves take no wet; being good for Coughs, ſhortneſs of Breath, as alſo for Pains in the Side, Kidneys or Bladder.

Adiaphora, Things indifferent, neither commanded nor forbidden, which whilſt ſuch, a Man is at liberty to do, or not to do.

Adiaphorous, neutral, indifferent; a Name given by Mr. Boyle to a kind of Spirit that he diſtill'd from Tartar and ſome other vegetable Bodies, and which was neither Acid, Vinous nor Urinous.

Adiapneuſtia, a breathing thro' the Pores of the Body.

Adjective or Noun Adjective, (in Grammar) a Word that only ſets forth the manner of the Being of a Thing, and which to render the Senſe intelligible, requires the help of a Subſtantive joined with it.

Adieu, (Fr.) God be with you, Farewell.

Adjicialis Cœna or Adjiciales Epulæ, (among the Romans) a ſolemn Feaſt, ſuch as a Conſecration Dinner, a Lord Mayor's or Sheriff's Feaſt.

Ad Inquirendum, a Judicial Writ commanding Inquiry to be made of any thing about a Cauſe that depends in the King's Court, for the better Execution of Juſtice; as of Baſtardy, Bondmen, &c.

Adjournment, (Fr. in Common-Law) the putting off any Court or Meeting, and appointing it to be kept again at another Place or Time; ſo Adjournment in Eyre, is an Appointment of a Day when the Juſtices in Eyre mean to ſit again. See Prorogation.

Adjoyning, lying next to, or neighbouring.

Adjoyning or Adjacent Angles, ſee Angles.

Adipoſa Membrana, (Lat. in Anat.) a Membrane or Skin that encloſes the Cellulæ Adipoſæ, or a certain number of little Cells or Holes full of Fat.

Adipoſa Vena or Renalis, a Vein that ariſes from the deſcending Trunk of the Vena Cava, and ſpreads it ſelf on the Coat and Fat that covers the Kidneys.

Adipoſi Ductus, are Veſſels which convey the Adeps or Fat into the Interſtices of the Muſcles, or to the Parts between the Fleſh and the Skin: They are otherwiſe call'd Lobuli adipoſi, Sacculi adipoſi, and Veſiculæ adipoſæ.

Adipſa, (Gr.) Medicines or Juleps to quench Thirſt.

Adipſatheon, a branchy Shrub full of Thorns and Prickles.

Adipſos, Licoriſh, a Root full of Juice to prevent Thirſt: Alſo a kind of Palm-Tree, otherwiſe call'd Phœnicobalanos.

Adit, (Lat. i. e. Entry or Paſſage) the Shaft or Entrance into any Mine.

To Adjudge, to give by Sentence or Judgment of the Court, to award: Thus when a determinate Sentence is paſs'd in favour of a Man, the Caſe is ſaid To be Adjudg'd for him.

Adjudication, an adjudging, a giving or ſettling by a Sentence, Judgment or Decree.

Adjunct, that which is join'd to another Thing; a Circumſtance: In Logick, a Quality joined or belonging to any thing as its Subject; as Heat to Fire, Greenneſs to Graſs, &c. In a Philoſophical Senſe, whatever comes to any Being from without, is call'd an Adjunct to that Being, as not naturally and eſſentially belonging to it, but adjoined or added thereto over and above.

Ad Jura Regis, a Writ that lies for the King's Clerk againſt one that ſought to put him out of Poſſeſſion, to the Prejudice of the King's Title in Right of his Crown.

To Adjure, to charge earneſtly, to put one to his Oath, to Command a Devil or evil Spirit by the force of Inchantments.

To Adjuſt, to make fit, ſet in order or ſettle; to State an Account, to determine or make up a Difference.

Adjutant, an Aſſiſter or Helper, an Abettor; eſpecially an Officer in a Regiment of Soldiers: See Aide Major.

Adjutant-General, one that accompanies the General of an Army, to aſſiſt him in matter of Counſel and Advice, or otherwiſe.

Adjutory, aiding or helping; as the Adjutory Bones, two Bones that reach from the Shoulders to the Elbows, and are ſo call'd by ſome Anatomiſts.

Admeaſurement, (in Common-Law) ſignifies a Writ that lies for the bringing of thoſe to Reaſon, that uſurp more than their Part or Share, and it takes Effect in two Caſes, viz.

Admeaſurement of Dower, which is where the Widow of the deceaſed Party holds from the Heir, or his Guardian, more under colour of her Dower, than ſhe has a juſt Title to.

Admeaſurement of Paſture, lies between thoſe that have Common of Paſture belonging to their Freeholds, or Common by Neighbourhood, when any of them over-charge the Common with more Cattel than they ought.

Admenſuration, (Lat.) Admeaſurement, the Act of equalizing, or making equal.

Adminicle, (in old Statutes) Aid or Help, Succour or Support: In Civil-Law, it ſignifies imperfect Proof.

To Adminiſter, to do Service, to give or diſpenſe, to govern, manage or diſpoſe.

Adminiſtration, the Act of adminiſtring, the doing or managing of ſome Affair: In a Law-ſenſe, the diſpoſing of the Eſtate or Goods of a Man that dy'd Inteſtate, or without making any Will, with an Intent to give an Account thereof.

Adminiſtrator, one that has the Government or Management of any Thing, particularly of Publick Affairs inſtead of a Soveraign Prince; as The Adminiſtrator of Sweden. In Common-Law, he that has the Goods, &c. of a Perſon, dying without a Will, committed to his Charge by the Ordinary, and is accountable for the ſame as an Executor.

Adminiſtratrix, ſhe that has ſuch Goods and Power committed to her.

Admirable, that deſerves to be Admired, wonderful, marvellous, excellent, rare, good.

Admiral or Lord High Admiral of England, a principal Officer of the Crown, who has the chief Government of the Royal Navy, and the determining of all Cauſes Maritime, as well Civil as Criminal: The Word is ſaid to be deriv'd from Amir in Arabick ſignifying a Governour, and Halios in Greek, i. e. belonging to the Sea. This great Truſt is at preſent committed to His Royal Highneſs Prince George of Denmark.

The Title of Admiral is alſo generally given to the chief Commander of any diſtinct Squadron or Number of Ships; as the Admiral of the Red, White and Blew Squadrons, who carry their Flags in the Ships Main-top, with the Colours of their Country. There are alſo Vice-Admirals and Rear-Admirals; which ſee in Vice and Rear.

Admiralty Court or High Court of Admiralty, the Lord High Admiral's chief Court at London, for the deciding of Maritime Controverſies, Tryal of Malefactors for Crimes committed at Sea, &c. where all Proceedings run in his Name; and he has a Lieutenant call'd The Judge of the Admiralty, who is commonly ſome learned Doctor of the Civil-Law.

Admiration, (Lat.) the Act of admiring or wondering.

To Admire, to look upon with Wonder, to wonder much, to be ſurprized at.

Admiſſion or Admittance, Receiving into, Entrance upon, Allowance: In a Law-ſenſe, Admiſſion is when a Preſentation to a void Benefice being made by the Patron, the Biſhop upon Examination allows the Clerk to be able, by ſaying, Admitto te habilem, &c.

To Admit or Admit of, to receive, to allow of, to permit or ſuffer.

Admittendo Clerico, a Writ granted to one that has recover'd his Right of Preſentation againſt the Biſhop, in the Common Bench.

Admittendo in Socium, a Writ for the aſſociating of certain Perſons to Juſtices of Aſſize before appointed.

To Admoniſh, to warn, to adviſe, hint or put in mind of; to reprove.

Admonition or Admoniſhment, a giving Warning, Inſtruction or Advice.

Adnaſcentia or Adnata, (Lat. in Anat.) Branches which ſprout out of the main Stock, as in the Veins and Arteries.

Adnata Tunica, the common Membrane or Coat of the Eye, otherwiſe call'd Conjunctiva and Albuginea: It ariſes from the Scull, grows to the outward part of the Tunica Cornea, and that the Viſible Species may paſs there, leaves a round hollow Space forward, to which is join'd another nameleſs Coat made up of the Tendons of thoſe Muſcles that move the Eye.

Adnichiled, (old Law-word) annulled, brought to nothing or made void.

Ad Octo, (Lat. i. e. to the eighth Number) a Term us'd by ſome ancient Philoſophers for the ſuperlative or higheſt Degree; becauſe they reckoned no Degree above the Eighth, in their Method of diſtinguiſhing Qualities or Accidents.

Adoleſcency, the flower of Youth, the State from 12 Years of Age to 21 in Women; or from 14 to 25 or 30 in Men.

Adolph, (Sax. happy Help) a proper Name of Men, particularly of a German Emperour, the ſecond of the Auſtrian Family.

Adonai, a Hebrew word ſignifying Lord, and ſometimes us'd inſtead of Jehovah, for the Lord God.

Adoniah, (i. e. a ruling Lord, or the Lord is Ruler) one of King David's Sons.

Adonibezek, (i. e. the Lord of Bezek or of Thunder) a King of Canaan, who was overcome by the Iſraelites.

Adonick Verſe, (in Greek and Latin Poetry) a ſort of Verſe firſt compos'd for the bewailing of Adonis's Death: It conſiſts only of a Dactyl and a Spondee, and is ſeldom us'd but with Sapphicks at the end of every Strophe or Strain; as Rara juventus.

Adonis, the fair Son of Cynaras King of Cyprus, by his own Daughter Myrrha, who hunting (as the Story goes) in the Idalian Grove, and being kill'd with the Tusk of a Wild Boar, was chang'd by Venus into a Flower of a Purple Colour, which bears his Name. Adonis is alſo taken for the Sleeper, a kind of Sea-Fiſh, which leaving the Water, uſes to ſleep on the Shore.

Adonium, an Herb feign'd to have ſprung up from the Blood of Adonis, the Darling of Venus; a ſort of Southernwood.

Adonizedek, (Heb. the Lord's Juſtice) an ancient King of Jeruſalem.

To Adopt, (Lat.) to take a Stranger into one's Family, chuſing him for a Son or Heir; to make one that is not a-kin capable to inherit.

Adoption, The Act of adopting, a free Choice of one for one's Son.

Adoptive, belonging to, or admitted by Adoption.

Ador, (Lat.) a kind of pure bearded Wheat, anciently us'd in Sacrifices.

Adorable, fit to be adored or worſhipped; the Word when apply'd to mortal Men, ſignifies worthy of all Honour and Reſpect.

Adorat, a Chymical Weight of 4 Pounds.

Adoration, the Act of Adoring, a rend'ring of profound Reſpect and Submiſſion; Worſhip, Reverence, Reſpect, Obſervance.

Do Adore, to pay Divine Worſhip, to reverance: Alſo to ſhew profound Reſpect and Submiſſion, to reſpect in a high Meaſure, to admire or dote extravagantly upon.

Adorea, (Lat.) a Largeſs or Dole of Corn, anciently given to the Roman Soldiers on a Day of Triumph.

To Adorn, to beautify, to deck, trim, or ſet off.

Ad Pondus omnium, (Lat.) an Expreſſion us'd in Phyſicians Bills, and ſignifying, that the laſt mention'd Medicine ought to weigh as much as all the reſt preſcrib'd before.

Ad quod Damnum, (i. e. to what Dammage) a Writ that lies for the Sheriff to enquire what Dammage it may be to others, for the King to grant a Fair or Market, &c. or for a private Perſon to give Lands in Mortmaine to any Religious Houſe, or other Body Politick.

There is alſo another Writ Ad quod Damnum lying where one would turn a Common Road or High-way, and lay out another as beneficial.

Adramelech, (Heb. the King's Cloak, or the King's Greatneſs) an Idol of the Aſſyrians, to whom they burnt their Children in Sacrifice: Alſo the Name of one of Sennacherib's three Sons.

Adrectare or Adrettiare, (in old Latin Records) to ſatisfy, to make amends.

Adſcititious, added, borrowed, far fetched, foreign, falſe, counterfeit.

Adſtantes, ſee Proſtata.

Ad Terminum qui præteriit, a Writ of Entry that lies where a Man having Leaſed Lands or Tenements, for Term of Life or Years, and after the Term expir'd is held from them by the Tenant, or a Stranger that poſſeſſes the ſame, and keeps out the Leſſor. In ſuch Caſe this Writ lies for the Leſſor and his Heirs.

To Advance, (Fr.) to ſtep or go forward, to prefer or raiſe, to promote or further, to give before-hand.

Advance-Ditch, (in Fortif.) is a Ditch digged all along the Glacis beyond the Counterſcarp, and uſually fill'd with Water.

Advance-Guard, (in the Art of War) the firſt Line or Diviſion of an Army, ranged or marching in Battel-array, or that part which is next to the Enemy, or which marches firſt towards them. The whole Body of any Army conſiſts of the Advance-Guard or Van-Guard, the Main Body and the Rear-Guard. Sometimes alſo a Party of 15 or 20 Horſe Commanded by a Lieutenant, beyond, but within ſight of the Main Guard, is call'd an Advance-Guard.

Advancement, Preferment, Promotion.

Advancer, (among Hunters) one of the Starts or Branches of a Buck's Attire, viz. that between the Back-Antler and the Palm.

Advantage, Good, Benefit, Profit, Gain, Over-meaſure.

Advantageous, tending to one's Good or Profit; uſeful, convenient, excellent, honourable.

Advectitious, (Lat.) that is brought or carry'd from another Place; foreign.

Advent, (i. e. Coming) a Time ſet a-part by the Church in order to be ſpent in a pious Preparation for the approaching or coming on Feſtival of our bleſſed Saviour's Nativity.

Advent-Sundays, are four in Number, the firſt of which, if it do not fall on St. Andrew's Day, November 30, is the next Sunday after. During this Time of Advent, all Law-Suits were anciently laid aſide, and it is determin'd to continue till Chriſtmas-Day.

Adventaile, a Coat of Defence; Chaucer.

Adventitia Bona, (Lat. in the Roman Law) ſuch Goods as come to a Man unexpectedly, and which are now commonly call'd Wind-falls.

Adventitia Dos, a Dowry or Portion given to a Woman by ſome other Friend beſides her Parents.

Adventitious, that comes unexpectedly or by Chance.

Adventitious Glandules, ſee Glandules.

Adventitious Matter, (in Philoſ.) ſuch Matter as does not properly belong to any natural or mixt Body, but comes to it from ſome other Place; Thus 'tis a Queſtion, whether in the freezing of Water, there do not enter in ſome frigorifick Particles, which are adventitious to the Water from the Air or the freezing Mixture.

Ad Ventrem inſpiciendum, a Writ mention'd in the Statute of Eſſoins. See Ventre inſpiciendo.

Adventure, (Fr.) Chance, Luck, accidental Encounter, Enterprize, Hazard.

To Adventure, to venture, or put to the Venture, to hazard.

Adventurous, hazardous, bold; as A very adventurous Act.

Adverb, (in Grammar) one of the four undeclinable Parts of Speech, which being join'd to a Verb, ſerves to expreſs the manner of Action: Theſe are uſually diſtinguiſh'd into Adverbs of Time, Place, &c.

Adverbial, belonging to an Adverb.

Adverſary, an Oppoſer, one that is againſt another, or is at Law with him; the adverſe Party.

Adverſative, as An Adverſative Particle, a Term in Grammar ſignifying a ſmall part of Speech that expreſſes ſome Contrariety or Oppoſition.

Adverſe, contrary, oppoſite: In Logick it is when the two Contraries have a perpetual and abſolute Oppoſition one to another.

Adverſity, Calamity, Miſery, Affliction, Miſfortune, Trouble.

To Advert, to mark, mind or take heed.

Advertency, Attention, Mindfulneſs, Heedfulneſs.

To Advertiſe, to give Advice or Intelligence of, to warn.

Advertiſement, Advice, a putting in Mind, a Warning; Information, Intelligence.

Advice, (Fr.) Counſel; alſo Notice or Account.

Adviſable, that may be adviſed about, fit to be done.

To Adviſe, to counſel, to give an Account or Information of; to weigh in Mind or conſider.

Adulation, (Lat.) Flattery, Fawning.

Adulator, a Flatterer, a fawning Fellow, a Claw-back.

Adulatory, belonging to, or full of Flattery.

Adult, that is grown or come to full ripeneſs of Age.

Adulterate, adulterated, marred, ſpoiled, counterfeit.

To Adulterate, to corrupt or counterfeit, to marr or ſpoil.

Adulteration, the Act of adulterating, ſpoiling, &c. In reſpect of Wines, Medicinal Drugs, Chymical Preparations, &c. it is the mixing ſome baſer Matter with thoſe Things, which hinders them from being genuine and truly good in their kind.

Adulterous, belonging to, or given to Adultery.

Adultery, the defiling of the Marriage-bed, properly the Sin of Incontinency between two marry'd Perſons, yet if but one be marry'd it is Adultery.

Adumbrated, ſhadowed, reſembled.

Adumbration, a ſhadowing; Among Painters, a Sketch, a rude or rough Draught of a Picture: In Heraldry, an abſolute taking away the Subſtance of the Charge or Thing born, ſo that there remains nothing of it, but the bare proportion of the outward Lines: It is alſo call'd Tranſparency.

Advocate, a Man well ſkill'd in the Civil Law, who by Word of Mouth or Writing, maintains the right of ſuch Parties as have need of his Aſſiſtance: In a figurative Senſe, one that lays to Heart or ſecures the Intereſts of another upon all Occaſions: Thus Chriſt is ſaid To be our Advocate in Heaven.

Eccleſiaſtical or Church-Advocates were of two ſorts, viz. 1. The Advocate of the Cauſes and Intereſts of the Church, retain'd as a Counſellour and Pleader, to maintain the Properties and Rights. Or 2. The Patron, who had the Advowſon and Preſentation.

Advocatione Decimarum, (Lat.) a Writ that lies for the Claim of the fourth Part or upwards of the Tithes that belong to any Church.

To Advow or Avow, (Law-Term) to juſtify or maintain an Act formerly done: As when one takes a Diſtreſs for Rent, &c. and the Party Diſtrain'd ſues a Replevin to have his Goods again; now he that took the Diſtreſs, or to whoſe uſe the Diſtreſs was taken, juſtifying or maintaining the Act, is ſaid To Avow.

Advowee or Avowee, one that has a Right to Preſent to a Benefice.

Advowee Paramount, the higheſt Patron, that is to ſay, the King, according to Stat. 25. E. 3.

Advowſon or Advowzen, (in Common-Law) is a Right which a Biſhop, Dean and Chapter, or their Succeſſours, or any Lay-Patron have, to preſent a Clerk to a Benefice when it becomes void: 'Tis much the ſame as Jus Patronatus in the Canon-Law, and is of two ſorts, viz. either Appendant or in Groſs.

Advowſon Appendant, that which depends on a Manour, as an Appurtenance of it, and is therefore termed an Incident by Kitchen, but it may be ſold by it ſelf, and then it is in Groſs.

Advowſon in Groſs, that Right of Preſentation which is principal, ſole or abſolute, and does not belong to any Manour, as a part of its Right.

Advowtry, an old Word us'd for Adultery, in ſeveral of our Statute-Laws and other ancient Records.

Aduſt, (Lat.) burnt, parched, over-heated. Among Phyſicians the Blood is ſaid To be Aduſt, when by reaſon of exceſſive Heat, the thinner Parts of it ſteem forth in Vapours, whilſt the thicker remain black and full of Dregs, as if they were burnt.

Aduſtion, ſcorching, parching.

Ædiles, (Lat.) certain Magiſtrates among the ancient Romans, who had the Overſight of Buildings both Holy and Profane; as alſo of Baths, Water-courſes, Conduits, &c. Of theſe there were three ſorts, viz.

Ædiles Plebeii or Minores, who being two in Number, were choſen from among the Commonalty, and ſerv'd at the ſame time with the Tribunes of the People.

Ædiles Cereales, were great Officers appointed and taken out of the Patrician Order, to manage Affairs relating to the Price of Corn, wholeſomeneſs of Victuals, &c.

Ædiles Curules or Majores, were Patricians or Noble-Men, whoſe chief Office was to look after the Celebration of the great Games and Sports, to be at the Charge of Plays, and the Shews of Gladiators or Sword-Players; beſides their ſhare in all the other Offices of the Plebeian Ædiles.

Ædœica Ulcera, Ulcers or Sores about the Privy Parts; Buboes, Shankers.

Ægilops (Gr.) a Weed that grows amidſt Corn, Darnel, Wild Oats; a ſort of Root like Garlick or Onions; a kind of Tree that bears Acorns or Maſt: Alſo a Swelling betwixt the Noſe and great corner of the Eye, which if it be not ſeaſonably open'd, the Bone underneath will putrify: It is alſo often taken for the Fiſtula Lachrymalis.

Ægipanes, Beaſts like Men, having their Feet and lower Parts like Goats; Satyrs or rather Devils. Lev. 27. 7.

Ægipyros, a kind of Plant, q: d. Buck-wheat.

Ægirinon, a ſort of Ointment made of the Berries of the black Poplar-tree.

Ægithus, a little Bird ſaid to be at deadly hatred with the Aſs for ſpoiling her Neſt, which is for the moſt part amidſt the Thiſtles, ſo that ſhe continually vexes him by pecking his gall'd Back.

Ægloga, a Paſtoral Song. See Eclogue.

Ægocephalus, a kind of Bird that has no Spleen.

Ægoceras, an Herb like a Goat's Horn; Fenegreek.

Ægoceros, one of the Signs of the Zodiack, call'd Capricorn in Latin.

Ægolethron, a ſort of Crow-foot, a Flower.

Ægolios, a kind of Owl, a Bird.

Ægonychon, the Herb Gromwell.

Ægophthalmos, a precious Stone like a Goat's-Eye.

Ægyptiacum ſc. Unguentum, an Ointment made of Engliſh Honey, Verdegreeſe, Diers Galls, Green Copperas, &c. which is of a very cleanſing Quality for Ulcers, and takes Name from its black Colour like the Hue of an Egyptian.

Ælurus, the Cat, a well known Creature, ſo call'd, becauſe its Tail is ſtreak'd with ſeveral Colours.

Ænigma, ſee Enigma.

Æolick Mood, ſee Mood in Muſick.

Æolipile or Æolipyle, a Device anciently made uſe of to help ſmoaking Chimneys: Alſo a round hollow Ball made of Braſs, Copper, or other Metal, with a Neck and a very ſmall Hole; which being about two third parts filled with Water, and ſet on or near the Fire, the Vaporous Air will break forth with very great Noiſe and Violence: Alſo an Inſtrument, otherwiſe call'd the Hermetical or Wind-bellows uſeful for Smiths, and in Chymical Operations.

Æquator, ſee Equator.

Æquilateral, ſee Equilateral.

Æquilibrium (Lat. in Mechanicks) is when either equal Weights at equal Diſtances, or unequal ones at Diſtances mutually proportionable to the Center, cauſe the Arms of any Libra or Ballance to hang even, ſo that they do not out-weigh one another; even Weight and Poiſe. See Equilibrium.

Æquivocal, ſee Equivocal.

Aer (Gr.) the Air, one of the four Elements, Weather.

Æra, the Weed Darnel or Cockle.

Æra, (Lat. in Chronol.) a particular Account or Reckoning of Time and Years from ſome remarkable Event, as from the Creation of the World, the Deſtruction of Troy, the Building of Rome, and more eſpecially that of the Chriſtians from the Birth of our Bleſſed Lord and Saviour. It is the ſame with Epocha; which See.

Æreolum or Æreolus (Lat.) the Weight of two Grains, the thirty ſixth part of a Drachm.

Aerial, belonging to the Air.

Ærica (Lat.) a Fiſh of the Colour of Braſs, an Herring, a Red-Herring.

Aerizuſa (Gr.) a Jaſper-ſtone like the Air or Sky in Colour.

Aeromancy, a Divining or Fore-telling of things by certain Signs in the Air.

Aeromeli, Honey-dew or Manna.

Ærugo (Lat.) the Ruſt or Canker of Metal, the Green Ruſt of Copper or Braſs; Verdegreeſe: Alſo Mildew or the Blaſting of Corn, &c.

Aery, ſee Airy.

Æs, Braſs or Copper.

Æs Uſtum, calcined Copper, which is made by laying Copper-plates in Beds with Powder of Sulphur or Brimſtone in a Crucible, whoſe Cover or Lid has a hole in it to give the Vapours Vent, while the Matter is Calcining in a ſtrong Fire.

Æſalon (Gr.) a kind of little Hawk, the Merlin, the Hobby.

Æſchna, the Aſh-coloured Water-fly, an Inſect.

Æſchynomenous Plants (among Herbaliſts) thoſe Plants which as one comes near them with the Hand, ſhrink in their Leaves, the ſame with the Senſitive; which See.

Æſculus (Lat.) a kind of Tree bearing Maſt Beach, and having a broad Leaf.

Aeſnecy, ſee Eſnecy.

Æſtimatio Capitis (Lat.) a Value ſet on one's Head; a Term in the old Saxon Law. King Athelſtan, in a great Aſſembly held at Exeter, declar'd what Fines were to be paid pro æſtimatione Capitis, for Offences committed againſt ſeveral Perſons, according to their Degrees: Thus the Eſtimation of the King's Head was 30000 Thrymſa's; that of an Archbiſhop or Prince 15000; of a Biſhop or Senator 8000, of a Prieſt or Thane 2000, &c.

Æſtival, belonging to the Summer; as the Æſtival Solſtice. See Solſtice.

Æſtuary, a Place over-flow'd with Sea-water, ſuch as the Waſhes and Fens in Lincoln-ſhire, a Marſh full of Salt-water: In a Medicinal Senſe, a receiving of the Vapours or Steam of certain boiled Drugs into the Body, thro' a hole made in a Seat or Chair. See Vaporary.

Ætate probanda, a Writ that lies for the Heir of the Tenant that held of the King in Chief, to prove that he is of full Age, that ſo he may become Tenant to the King by the ſame Services that were perform'd by his Anceſtour.

Æther (Gr.) the Firmament, the Sky, that part of Heaven which is above the three Regions of the Air, and fill'd with a pure Subſtance.

Æthereal, belonging to the Heavens, Sky, or Air, Heavenly.

Æthereal Matter, or Æther (among Naturaliſts) is taken for a very fine, thin, tranſparent Fluid, that ſome will have to ſurround the Earth, up as far as the Firmament of fixed Stars, which eaſily pierces and runs thro' all things, and lets all things run as eaſily through it.

Æthiopis, an Herb growing in Ethiopia like Lettice, with which Inchanters heretofore us'd to open Locks, dry up Rivers, &c.

Æthiops, a Native of Ethiopia, a Country of Africa, a Black-moor.

Æthiops Mineral, a Medicine made by Imbodying equal Parts of running Quick-ſilver and Flower of Brimſtone, and then Deflagrating or Burning off the Mixture in a Crucible: Or elſe only mingling them well together in a Glaſs-Mortar, without inkindling the Matter at all; till the Quick-ſilver quite diſappears and the Powder turns black.

Ætiologia (in Rhetorick) a ſhewing of a Cauſe or Reaſon: Among Phyſicians, the Reaſon which is given of Natural or Preternatural Accidents in Human Bodies.

Ætiologica, that part of Phyſick which explains the Cauſes and Reaſons of Diſeaſes, in order to their Cure.

Aetites, the Eagle-ſtone, a certain Stone which when ſhaken, rattles as if there were another within it: 'Tis found by the ſides of Rivers, in Fields, and on Mountains, but falſely ſaid to be taken out of Eagles Neſts.

Ætna, a Burning Mountain in the Iſland of Sicily, which continually ſends forth Whirl-winds of Fire and Smoak, with Clouds of Aſhes, and ſometimes great Stones into the Neighbouring Country.

Affability, eaſineſs of Addreſs, Courteſy, Kindneſs, Gentleneſs.

Affable, eaſie to be ſpoken to, Courteous, Civil.

Affair (Fr.) Buſineſs, Thing, Matter, Concern.

To Affect (Lat.) to ſtudy or ſet one's Mind upon, to Vouch or have Inclination for, or move, to love, to deſire or hanker after, to endeavour to get, to aſpire to.

Affectation, an eager Deſire: Alſo Affectedneſs, affected Study, Preciſeneſs, Niceneſs, Formality, formal Way.

Affected, diſpoſed or inclined to; alſo ſtudied, over-curiouſly done; as an affected Style: Alſo Preciſe, Nice, Formal; as Affected Ways: In a Medicinal Senſe, troubled or ſeized with a Diſtemper, Diſeaſed; as the Part affected.

Affection, Love, Paſſion, Good-will, Kindneſs, Inclination towards.

Affectionate, well Affected to, full of Affection, Kind, Loving.

Affectus (Lat.) the Affection, Diſpoſition, or Motion of the Mind: Among Phyſicians, it is taken for Sickneſs or any Diſturbance in the Body. See Pathema and Paſſion.

Affeerers (Law-term) Perſons impower'd by Courts-leet upon Oath to ſet Fines on thoſe that have committed Faults, which are Arbitrarily Puniſhable, and have no expreſs Penalty appointed by the Statute.

To Affere an Amercement, to mitigate or leſſen the Rigour of a Fine.

Affiance (Fr.) Truſt, Confidence. In a Law-ſenſe the plighting of Troth between a Man and a Woman, upon an Agreement of Marriage.

† To Affiance, to Betroth.

Affidare (in old Latin Records) to plight one's Faith, or give Fealty by making Oath.

Affidatio Dominorum, an Oath taken by the Lords in Parliament.

Affidatus, a Tenant by Fealty.

Affidavit, a Law-word, ſignifying a Depoſition, or the Witneſſing of a Thing upon Oath; as To make Affidavit.

Affidiari, or Affidiari ad arma (in ancient Deeds) to be Enrolled and Muſtered for Soldiers, upon an Oath of Fidelity.

Affinage (Fr.) a Refining of Metals.

Affinity (Lat.) Kindred or Alliance by Marriage; Relation or Agreeableneſs between ſeveral things.

To Affirm, to Aſſure, Avouch, or maintain the Truth of a Thing. In a Legal Senſe, to Ratify or Confirm a former Law, Sentence or Decree; as If the Judgment be affirmed, &c.

Affirmance, the Act of Affirming or Ratifying after ſuch a manner.

Affirmation, an Affirming, Aſſuring or Speaking Point-blank.

Affirmative, that ſerves to Affirm, Peremptory, Poſitive; in which reſpect it is oppoſed to Negative.

To Affix, to faſten to, to ſet up, or poſt up a Bill, &c.

To Afflict, to caſt down, to grieve, trouble, diſquiet, or vex.

Affliction, Trouble, Sorrow, Anguiſh, Vexation, Grief; Adverſity, Misfortune, Calamity, Miſery, Diſtreſs.

Affluence, Plenty, great Store, Abundance, Wealth.

Afflux, a flowing as of Humours upon or to any Part.

Afforciament, (in old Records) a Fort or Strong Hold.

Afforciamentum Curiæ, the calling of a Court upon a ſolemn and extraordinary Occaſion.

To Afford, to give or yield.

To Afforeſt, (a Term in the Foreſt-Law) to lay waſte a piece of Ground, and turn it into Foreſt.

To Affranchiſe, (Fr.) to ſet one at Liberty from Slavery, to make him Free.

Affray, a Fray, Skirmiſh, or Fight between two or more Parties: In a Law-Senſe, a Terrour caus'd in the Subject, even without a Word ſpoken, or a Blow given, which may be done by making an unlawful Shew of Violence; as a Man appearing with Armour or Weapons not uſually worn, may ſtrike a Fear into others unarmed; ſo that it is a Wrong to the Common-Wealth, and in that reſpect differs from an Aſſault which is an Injury to a particular Perſon.

Affretamentum, (in old Latin Records) the Fraight of a Ship, from the French Word Fret of the ſame Signification.

Affri or Affra, Bullocks or Beaſts of the Plough: In Northumberland to this Day, a ſlow or dull Horſe is call'd a falſe Aver or Afer.

To Affright, to put in a Fright or Fear, to ſcare.

Affront, (Fr.) Abuſe or Wrong; an Injury done one, either by Words or Blows, or other bad Uſage.

To Affront, to offer an Affront, to brave or ſwagger over, to abuſe.

Affrontive, abuſive, injurious.

Affuſion, a pouring in or upon.

Africa, one of the four Parts of the World, ſo call'd from Afer, the Son or Companion of Hercules; or according to Joſephus, from Opher the Grandſon of Abraham.

Africans or Africa-Marigolds, a ſort of Flower.

Africus, the Wind South-Weſt and by Weſt, ſo call'd by the Latin Poets, becauſe it blows from the Continent of Africa.

Aft or Abaft, a Word us'd by Seamen to ſignify any Action, Motion, or Application, from the Stem of the Ship towards the Stern; as Go aft, i. e. Go towards the Stern; How chear ye fore and aft? i. e. How fares all your Ships Company?

And becauſe the Maſter's or Captain's Cabbin is generally in the hinder part of the Ship under the Quarter-Deck, 'tis a uſual Compliment to a Perſon come on board, Sir, will you pleaſe to walk aft.

After-Math, (in Husbandry) the After-Graſs, or ſecond Mowings of Graſs; or elſe Graſs or Stubble cut after Corn.

After-Sails, (among Seamen) the Sails that belong to the Main and Miſſen Maſts, and keep the Ship to the Wind.

Aga, a Turkiſh Word ſignifying a great Officer; as The Aga or chief Captain of the Janizaries.

Agag, (Heb. a Garret or upper Room) a King of the Amalekites, who being taken Priſoner by Saul, was hewn in pieces alive.

Agai, a Term in Merchandize, ſignifying the difference in Holland or Venice of the Value of Current Money and Bank-Notes, which in Holland is often 3 or 4 per Cent. in favour of the Notes.

Agalactia, (Gr.) want of Milk to give Suck with.

Agallachum, Wood of Aloes.

Agape, Love, Charity, Kindneſs, Alms-giving; whence

Agapæ, Love-Feaſts, certain Feaſts us'd among the Primitive Chriſtians, after they had receiv'd the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper together, for the more cloſe uniting themſelves in Love and Friendſhip.

Agaricon, Agarick, a kind of Muſhroom that grows on the Trunks and great Branches of old Trees, eſpecially the Larch-Tree: 'Tis both Male and Female, but the Female is moſt us'd in Phyſick, to purge the Brain, &c.

Agaſæus, a Gaſe-hound.

Agaſt, (old word) put in a great Fright, diſmay'd with Fear.

Agate, a precious Stone of which Hafts for Knives and other Curioſities are made. See Achates.

Age, (Fr.) the whole continuance of Man's Life; alſo a ſpace of Time of 100 Years compleat: In a Law-Senſe, it is taken for thoſe ſpecial Times which enable Men and Women to do that which for want of riper Years and Judgment, they could not do before. Thus a Man at 12 Years may take an Oath of Allegiance in a Leet, at 14 he is at the Age of Diſcretion, and at 21 of full Age, &c.

Age-prier, (in Common-Law) is when an Action is brought againſt one that is under Age, for Lands coming to him by Deſcent; for then he may move the Court, and Pray that the Action may be ſtaid till he attain to his full Age; which is generally allow'd in moſt Caſes: But it is otherwiſe in the Civil Law, which obliges Children in their Minority to anſwer by their Tutours or Guardians.

Agema, (Gr.) a Battalion of Horſe or Foot, a Squadron, a Brigade.

Agemoglans, (Turk. i. e. untaught) the Children of Chriſtians, who while young are ſeized on by the Turkiſh Officers, to be inſtructed in the Mahometan Principles, and made Janizaries.

Agenhine, ſee Hogenhine.

Agent, (Lat.) a Doer, a Factor or Dealer for another; a Reſident that manages the Affairs of a Prince or Common-Wealth in a foreign Country. In a Phyſical-Senſe, that which acts upon Bodies, and cauſes all Generations and Corruptions.

Agent and Patient, a Law-Phraſe, us'd when one is the Doer of a Thing, and alſo the Party to whom it is done; as where a Woman endows her ſelf of the faireſt Poſſeſſion of her Husband.

Agerasia, (Gr.) a vigorous old Age.

Ageraton, an Herb call'd Everlaſting; Mothwort, Cotton-weed, or Maudlin.

† To Agglomerate, to roll or wind up into a Bottom.

To Aggrandize, to make great, to enlarge, to raiſe, to advance, or prefer.

To Aggravate, to make heavy or grievous, to heighten, to inlarge upon the heinouſneſs of a Crime.

Aggravation, the Act of Aggravating.

Aggregate, the whole Maſs that ariſes from the joining or gathering together of ſeveral Things: In Arithmetick, the Total or Summ of divers Numbers added together.

To Aggregate, to join together and unite to the ſame Body; to aſſociate; to admit or receive into a Society.

Aggregated Flower, ſee Compounded Flower.

Aggregation, the Act of aggregating or joining together, &c.

Aggreſſes or Ogreſſes, (in Heraldry) the ſame as Pellets and Balls: See Balls and Ogreſſes.

Aggreſſour, an Aſſailer, one that firſt ſets upon or aſſaults; a Beginner of an Enterprize.

Aggreſtein, a Diſeaſe in Hawks proceeding from a ſharp Humour.

Aggrieved, afflicted, or troubled, wronged.

Agild, (Sax. Law-Term) free from Gild or Penalty, not ſubject to the Cuſtomary Fine or Tax.

Agile, (Lat.) quick, nimble, ſwift.

Agility, Activity, Nimbleneſs.

Agilted, offended. Chaucer.

Agillarius, (in old Latin Records) a Hayward or Keeper of the Herd of Cattel in a Common Field, Sworn at the Lord's Court by Solemn Oath. This Officer was of two ſorts, viz. I. The Common Hayward of a Town or Village, appointed to look after and guard the greater Cattel or Common Herd of Kine and Oxen, and to keep them within their due Bounds. II. The Agillarius of the Lord of a Manour, or of a Religious Houſe, who was to take care of the Tillage, Fencing, Harveſt-work, &c. And to ſee that there were no Encroachments or Treſpaſſes committed on that particular Diſtrict; much the ſame with that Officer, who has ſince been call'd the Fields-man.

Agiſt (Fr.) properly a Bed or Reſting-place: Whence in Common-law, to Agiſt ſignifies to take in and feed the Cattel of Strangers in the Queen's Foreſt, and to gather the Money due for the ſame, to her Majeſty's Uſe: Alſo to take in other Mens Cattel into any Ground, at a certain Rate per Week.

Agiſtator or Agiſtor, an Officer that takes Cattel into a Foreſt, and receives Money upon that account; Theſe Officers otherwiſe call'd Gueſt-takers, or Giſt-takers in Engliſh, are made by the Queen's Letters Patent, and are four in Number in every Foreſt where ſhe has Pawnage.

Agiſtment, the Herbage or Feeding of Cattel in a Foreſt or Common.

To Agitate, (Lat.) to tumble and toſs, to bandy, to debate a Queſtion; alſo a Term in Philoſophy; as Fire or Heat agitates, i. e. ſtirs up the Particles or ſmall Parts of all Bodies, and puts them into a ſwift Motion.

Agitation, an agitating, violent Motion, joulting, tumbling or toſſing; Diſturbance or Diſquiet of Mind, Trouble; alſo the management of a Buſineſs in Hand. In a Philoſophical Senſe, the brisk inward Motion of the Corpuſcles or very ſmall Parts of any natural Body.

Agitator, one that carries on any Buſineſs or Deſign: The Name of Agitators was particularly apply'd during the Civil Wars A. D. 1647, to certain Perſons, who were choſen out of every Regiment to ſit in Council, and to manage the Affairs of the Parliament-Army.

Aglaophotis, a Plant which ſome take for the Peony.

Aglet, (Fr.) the Tag of a Point; a little Plate of Metal; alſo a kind of ſubſtance growing out of ſome Trees before the Leaves.

Aglets or Agleets, (among Floriſts) are the Pendants that hang on the Tip-ends of Chives and Threads; as in Tulips, Roſes, Spike-graſs, &c.

Agnail, a Sore that breaks out at the root of the Nails, in the Fingers or Toes.

Agnation, (Lat. in the Civil Law) that Line of Conſanguinity or Kindred by Blood, which is between Males deſcended from the ſame Father; as Cognation is the Line of Parentage between Males and Females, both deſcended from the ſame Father.

Agnes, (Gr.) a Proper Name of Women, ſignifying Chaſte.

Agnina Lingua, (Lat.) Lambs-tongue, or Ribwort-Plantain; an Herb.

Agnition, an Acknowledgment, in ſpeaking of a Perſon, or Thing known or diſcovered by ſome Mark or Token.

Agnomen, (among the Romans) a Name added to the Sir-name of a Perſon, and given upon account of ſome particular Action; as one of the Scipio's was named Africanus, and the other Aſiaticus, from their brave Exploits in Africa and Aſia. Thus with us K. William I. was Sir-named the Conquerour.

Agnus, a Lamb, or young Sheep under a Year old.

Agnus Caſtus, the chaſte Tree; a Tree otherwiſe call'd Abraham's Balm and Italian Willow.

Agnus Dei, (i. e. the Lamb of God) a Figure of the Holy Lamb with a Croſs ſtamp'd on a piece of white Wax of an Oval Form, and bleſs'd by the Pope in order to be given or ſold, as a precious Relick.

Agonalia, (Gr.) certain Feaſts kept yearly among the ancient Romans, Jan. 9. with Games, playing of Prizes and other Exerciſes.

Agoniſta, a Champion, one that ſtrives in Maſteries; a Wreſtler.

Agonotheta, an Overſeer at Feats of Activity, [illegible] Judge in ſuch Games, a Maſter of the Revels.

Agony, extremity of Anguiſh, when Nature makes the laſt effort againſt a Diſeaſe, the Pangs of Death; an Horrour or trembling Paſſion, exceſſive Grief or trouble of Mind.

Agouty, a little American Beaſt like a Rabbet in ſhape and ſize, having but two Teeth in each Jaw, and feeding it ſelf like a Squirrel: But they are fierce, and when anger'd ſtamp with their Hind-feet, and ſet their Hair perfectly upright.

Agramed, (old Word) grieved.

Agrarian Law, a certain Law made by the ancient Romans, for the ſharing of Lands got by Conqueſt, among the common People.

To Agredge, to gather together, Chaucer.

To Agree, (Fr.) to yield or conſent, to ſtrike up a Bargain, to make up a Difference.

Agreeable, that agrees or ſuits with; alſo pleaſant, charming, graceful.

Agreement, Agreeableneſs, Union, Relation, Reconcilement; alſo Articles agreed upon, Contract or Bargain: In Common Law, it is taken for a joyning together or conſent of two or more Minds, in any thing already done, or to be done hereafter.

Agria, a ſcurvy Scab hard to cure, a rebellious Ulcer: Alſo the Shrub Holly, the Leaves of which are good for the Colick and Pains in the Bowels.

Agriacantha, a ſort of wild Thiſtle.

Agricultura, (Lat.) the Art of Husbandry, or Improvement of Land, by which means the Earth is tilled and manured, in order to render it fruitful, and to make it bring forth Trees, Plants and Fruits.

Agrielea, (Gr.) the wild Olive-tree.

Agrifolium, (Lat.) the Holly or Holm-tree.

Agrimonia, Agrimony, an Herb ſomewhat like Tanſey, good againſt ſtoppages of the Liver, as alſo in the Dropſy, Jaundice &c.

Agrimonia Sylveſtris, wild Tanſey, Silver-weed.

Agriocardamum, (Gr.) a ſort of Water-creſſes, an Herb.

Agriocaſtanum, Earth-nut, a Root, which being peel'd and boil'd in Broth, is a pleaſant Food and very nouriſhing.

Agriococcymelea, wild Prunes or Plums.

Agriocynara, the wild Artichoak.

Agriomelea, a ſort of wild Quince.

Agrion, a kind of wild Radiſh.

Agriopaſtinaca, the wild [illegible]ret or Parſnip; alſo an Herb call'd Saxifrage [illegible] Candia.

Agriophyllon, Hogs-fennel or Sulphur-wort; an Herb.

Agrioſelinum, a ſort of Crow-foot, a Flower.

Agrioſtari, a kind of wild Wheat.

Agrippa, (Lat.) a Name given to ſuch as came into the World with Difficulty, or were born with their Feet forward: Several Perſons of Note among the Ancients have had this Name, particularly ſome of the Kings of Judæa.

Agriſe, (old Word) aſtoniſhed, much afraid.

Agroted, a word in Chaucer, ſignifying, ſwelled or made big.

Agrutched, Abbridged, Chaucer.

Agrypnia, (Gr.) a watching or a dreaming Slumber, a Diſtemper which proceeds from ſome Diſorder in the Brain.

Agrypnocoma, the ſame as Coma Vigil; which See.

Ague, a Diſeaſe proceeding from a hot and dry Diſtemper of the Blood; which is known by a violent Motion of the Pulſes and a ſhaking Fit.

Ague-tree, See Saſſafras.

Aguiſh, belonging to, or troubled with an Ague.

Agurah, a Hebrew Coin, See Gerah.

Agyrta, (Gr.) a Mountebank that ſells his Drugs to the Common People; a Juggler or Fortune-teller.

Ahab, (Heb. the Brother's Father) a wicked King of Iſrael, who married Jezebel.

Ahaz, (i. e. a taking or poſſeſſing) an Idolatrous King of Judah.

Ahaziah, (i. e. apprehenſion or ſight of the Lord) a diſſolute King of Iſrael.

Ahiezer, (i. e. a Brother's Help) a Prince of Dan.

Ahimelech, (i. e. a King's Brother, or of his Council) a Prieſt who receiving David at Nob, was put to Death with other Prieſts by Doeg.

Ahitophel, (i. e. a Brother forſaken, or without Wiſdom or Grace) a Councellour to King David, who conſpir'd with Abſalom againſt him.

Aholiab, (i. e. the Tabernacle, or brightneſs of the Lord) an excellent Workman, who was employ'd in the making of the Tabernacle.

Aholibamah, (i. e. my Tent or famous Manſion) the Wife of Eſau.

Aid, (Fr.) Aſſiſtance, Help, Succour, Support, Relief. In a Law-ſenſe, a Subſidy or Tax: It was alſo heretofore taken for an Impoſition laid upon Tenants by the King or other Lord for Knighting his eldeſt Son, or marrying his Daughter. Alſo a Petition made in Court, for the calling in of help from another that has Intereſt in the Cauſe in Queſtion, and is likely to give ſtrength to the the Party that Prays in Aid of him.

Aide de Camp, an Officer in the Army that always attends one of the Generals, i. e. the General, Lieutenant-General, or Major-General, to receive and carry their Orders, as occaſion requires: And the King's Aides de Camp, are certain young Gentlemen of Note appointed for that purpoſe by the King when he is in the Field.

Aide Major or Adjutant, a Military Officer, that eaſes the Major of part of the Burden of his Duty, and performs it all in his abſence: When the Battalion is drawn up, his Poſt is on the Left, beyond all the Captains, and behind the Lieutenant Colonel.

Aiel or Aile, the name of a Writ: See Ayel.

Aigleuces, (Gr.) a kind of ſweet Wine, that never work'd, Stum.

Aigre de Cedre, (Fr.) a cooling Liquor made of Lemmon and Sugar.

Aigreen: See Houſe-Leek.

To Ail, (old Word) to be ſick or ill at eaſe; whence the common Queſtion, What ails you? from the Saxon Word Adle, i. e. Sickneſs.

Ailment, a light diſorder, or indiſpoſition of the Body.

Aim, the point where one looks to ſhoot at a Mark; a Deſign or Purpoſe.

Air, one of the four Elements wherein we breath, and which ſome define to be a tranſparent fluid Body, capable of being drawn together or inlarged, covering the Earth and Sea, to a great height above the higheſt Mountains: Alſo a Tune in Muſick; alſo Looks, Countenance, Carriage, or the harmony of Features, eſpecially in a Picture.

Air-Pump, an Inſtrument contrived to draw the Air out of proper Veſſels.

Aire or Airy, (among Falconers) a neſt of Hawks, or other Birds of Prey; eſpecially the Neſt, which Falcons make choice of to hatch their Young in.

Airy, belonging to the Air, brisk, full of Air or Life; alſo, that is of no ſubſtance, thin, light.

Airy Meteors: See Meteors.

Airy Triplicity, the Signs of Gemini, Libra and Aquarius, according to the account of Aſtrologers, who uſually divide the Twelve Signs of the Zodiack into four Ternaries or Combinations of three, conformably to the Qualities of the four Elements.

Aiſe or Ax-weed, a ſort of Herb.

Aiſiamenta, (in ancient Latin Deeds) Eaſements or Conveniences, including any liberty of Paſſage, open Way, Water-courſe, &c. for the eaſe and benefit of any Tenant of a Houſe or Land.

Aiſtheſis, (Gr.) Senſe which is two-fold, viz. either outward; as Seeing, Hearing, Smelling, Taſting and Feeling; or inward uſually ſtyl'd the common Senſory; as the Fancy, the Memory, &c. Alſo the Act of feeling, &c.

Aiſtheterion, the Organ or Inſtrument of Senſe: It is alſo taken by Anatomiſts for the Seat of the common Senſory in the Brain, which Des Cartes would have plac'd in the Glandula Pinealis, but is now generally ſuppoſed to be about the beginning of the Medulla Oblongata in the Corpus Striatum.

Ait or Eyght, (Sax) a little Iſland in a River, where Oſiers grow; as thoſe in the Thames by Brantford, Chiſwick, &c.

Aithales, (Gr.) the Herb Sengreen, or Houſe-leek.

Ajutage, (Fr.) the ſpout for a Jet d' Eau, or Pipe that throws up Water in any Fountain.

Aizoon, (Gr.) an Herb always green, call'd Airgreen or Sengreen, of which there are ſeveral ſorts, as Houſe-leek, &c.

Al, an Arabick Particle often put to Words, to give them a more emphatical Signification; as Alchymy, Algebra, Alkali, &c.

Ala, (Lat.) the Wing of a Bird, a Pinnion: Among Herbaliſts the Angle which either the Leaves or the Foot-ſtalks of Leaves make with the Stalk; or with any branch of the Stalk, and which is always tending upwards: Sometimes it is alſo taken for a ſmall Branch making an Angle likewiſe with the Stalk.

Alæ, was alſo taken by the Romans, for the Wings of their Army, being two Bodies of Men, one on the Right, and the other on the Left, each of which uſually conſiſted of 400 Horſe and 4200 Foot; being wholly made up of Confederate Troops.

In Anatomy, Alæ are the ſides of the Noſe, the Lips of the Pudendum in Women, or the upper part of the Ear; alſo the Arm-pits, and the Proceſs of the Os Sphenoides or Wedge-like Bone.

Alæ Eccleſiæ, the wings or ſide-Iſles of a Church.

Alabandica Roſa, a kind of Damask Roſe with whitiſh Leaves, ſo call'd from Alabanda a City of Caria in the Leſſer Aſia: Some will have it to be the Province-Roſe, which is more eſteemed for its being double, than for its ſweet Smell or Uſe.

Alabaſter, a kind of ſoft and very white Marble, which takes name from Alabaſtrum, a Town of Egypt, where there was good ſtore of it; being much us'd for the making of Statues, Figures and other carved Works.

Alabaſter-Pear, a ſort of Pear otherwiſe call'd Bell-pear or Gourd-pear.

Alabaſtrites, the Alabaſter-ſtone.

Alabaſtrum or Alabaſtrus, an Alabaſter-box of Ointment: Among Herbaliſts, the Bud or green Leaves of Plants, which encloſe the bottom of the Flowers, before they are ſpread.

Alabes, a kind of Fiſh peculiar to the River Nile.

Alacrity, (Lat.) Chearfulneſs, Briskneſs, Courage.

A-la-mi-re, the loweſt Note but one in each of the three Septenaries of the Gamut or Scale of Muſick.

Alamode, (Fr. i. e. after the faſhion,) a ſort of Silk or Taffety, commonly us'd for Womens Hoods, Scarves, &c.

Alan, a proper Name of Men ſignifying in Sclavoniſh, a Gray-hound.

Alanerarius, (in old Latin Records) a Keeper or manager of Spaniels or Setting-Dogs for the ſport of Hawking.

Alares or Alares Copiæ, (among the Romans) the Troops that were in the Alæ or Wings of their Army.

Alares Muſculi: See Aliformes Muſculi.

Alarm or Alarum, a Signal given by loud Cries, or the ſound of warlike Inſtruments, to cauſe People to take Arms upon the ſudden arrival of the Enemy. It is figuratively taken for all manner of ſudden Fear, Fright, or Trouble; alſo a Chime ſet in a Clock or Watch.

To Alarm, to give an Alarm, to fright or put in a Fright.

Alaternus, (Lat.) a kind of Shrub, one of the moſt beautiful and uſeful for Hedges; yielding a lovely green colour, and a very ſweet-ſcented Bloſſom.

Alauda, the Lark, a Bird; alſo the Sea-Lark, a Fiſh.

Alauſa or Aloſa, a kind of Fiſh; a Shad.

Alay, a Term us'd in Hunting, when freſh Dogs are ſent into the Cry.

Alba, (Lat. in old Records) the Albe or Aube; the Surplice or white Veſtment us'd by a Prieſt officiating at Divine Service.

Alba Firma, (Law Term) a yearly Rent payable to the chief Lord of a Hundred, and ſo call'd becauſe it is not paid according to the cuſtom of old Times in Corn, which was termed Black-mail, but in Silver, or as it is now ſaid in ſome parts of England, in White Money: There are ſome Tenures of this Nature in Weſtmoreland.

Alba Pituita, a Diſeaſe, the ſame with Leucophlegmatias; which See.

Alba Spina, the White-thorn or Lady-thiſtle.

Albe or Aube, a Veſtment of white Linnen, reaching down to the Feet, and worn by Popiſh Prieſts: Alſo a Surplice, ſuch as is in uſe among the Clergy of the Church of England.

Alberge, (Fr.) a ſmall forward Peach of a yellow Colour.

Albert, (Sax.) a propet Name of Men ſignifying All-bright.

Albicerata Ficus, (Lat.) a kind of broad Fig with a ſmall Stalk.

Albicilla, the white tail'd Sparrow living in Woods and Heaths.

Albinum, the Herb Chaff-weed, or Cud-weed.

Albion, a Name anciently given to the Iſland of Great Britain, by reaſon of the white Rocks, on the Sea-coaſts, or as ſome ſay, from Albion the Son of Neptune.

Albricias, (Span.) a word much us'd by Spaniſh Merchants, and ſignifying a reward of good News.

Albucum, (Lat.) the white Daffodil, a Flower.

Albuelis, a kind of white Grape.

Albuginea Oculi, (in Anat.) a very thin Tunicle or Coat of the Eye, ſo call'd by reaſon of its whiteneſs; being the ſame as Adnata Tunica; which See.

Albuginea Teſtis, the white Membrane, or Skin, which immediately covers the Teſtes or Teſticles.

Albugo, a white Speck in the horney Coat of the Eye; a Pearl or Web that grows over the Sight, and uſually follows a Wound, Ulcer, or Inflammation of that Part: It is alſo ſometimes taken for the White of the Eye, being that part where the Tunica Adnata or Albuginea ſticks to the Sclerotis: Alſo the White of an Egg.

Album, White, Whiteneſs.

Album Canis, white Dogs-turd, which is much uſed in Phyſick.

Album Hiſpanicum, Spaniſh-White, a ſort of Earth.

Album Oculi, the White of the Eye; the ſame with Albugo: But by Galen and Hippocrates, 'tis taken for the Coat of the Eye, which is uſually call'd Adnata and Albuginea.

Album Prætoris, (among the Romans) a whited Table on which the Pretors or Judges had their Statutes or Decrees written; a Matricular-Regiſter to Inroll Names in, a Muſter-roll.

Album Rhaſis, a kind of Ointment, ſo call'd from the Inventer's Name.

Albumen, the White of an Egg, or of the Eye.

Alburn Colour, See Auburn.

Alburnum, the white Sap, or ſappy part of Trees, on the out-ſide, next to the Bark.

Alburnus, the Bleak or Blay, a ſmall white freſh-water Fiſh.

Alcaheſt, See Alkaheſt.

Alcaick Verſe, (in Greek and Latin Poetry) a kind of Verſe conſiſting of two Dactyls and two Trochees, ſo call'd from Alcæus the firſt Inventer of it, as Heſperiæ mala luctuoſæ Hor. Others will have it conſiſt of five Feet, viz. the firſt a Spondee or Iambick, the Second an Iambick, the Third a long Syllable, the Fourth a Dactyl, and the Fifth a Dactyl or Amphimacer; as in theſe of Horace.

Vides ut alta ſtet nive Candidum
Soracte, nec jam ſuſtineant onus.

Alcalde, (Span.) the Sheriff or Officer of a Town, whoſe Buſineſs is to weigh Bread and other Proviſions.

Alcali, ſee Alkali.

Alcanna, Iſing-Glaſs; ſee Ichthyocolla.

Alcatrace, a kind of Fowl much like a Heron.

Alce, (Gr.) the Elk, a wild Beaſt ſhap'd like a Hart, but of a larger Size; See Elk.

Alcea, a kind of wild Mallows, Vervain-Mallow, an Herb good againſt the ſtinging of Serpents.

Alcedo, (Lat.) the King's-Fiſher, a Bird that makes her Neſt in the Sea, about Mid-winter; See Halcyon.

Alchata, a ſmall wild Pigeon, in the Colour of its Feathers, reſembling a Partridge, and common about Montpellier in France.

Alchimilla, Ladies-Mantle, an excellent Wound-Herb, of a hot, dry and binding Quality.

Alchymiſt, one that ſtudies Alchymy, or practices Chymical Operations.

Alchymy, the ſublimer Part of Chymiſtry; the Arabick Particle Al, being only added, to make its Signification more forceable; which pretended Art more eſpecially relates to the Tranſmutation or Change of the Form of Metals, and to the Philoſopher's Stone.

Alcochoden, (Arab. i. e. the Giver of Life or Years) a Planet that bears Rule in the principal Places of an Aſtrological Figure, when a Perſon is born; ſo that his Life may be expected to be longer or ſhorter, according to the Station or Condition of this Planet.

Alcahol or Alcool (in Chymiſtry) the pure Subſtance of any thing ſeparated from the more Groſs: It is more eſpecially taken for a moſt ſubtil and highly refined Powder, and ſometimes for a very pure Spirit: Thus the higheſt rectify'd Spirit of Wine is call'd Alcohol Vini.

Alcibion, an Herb good againſt the ſtinging of Serpents; Vipers-graſs.

Alcoholization, the Act of Alcoholizing, or reducing any ſolid Subſtance into a fine Powder: But in Liquids, it is the depriving Alcohols, or rectified Spirits of their Phlegm or wateriſh Parts.

To Alcoholize, (among Chymiſts) to reduce into Alcohol, to ſubtilize; as when a mixt Body is beaten into a Powder ſo fine, that it is impalpable, as they term it, or can ſcarce be felt.

Alcoran, the Turks Bible, or the Book of their Law, written by the Impoſtor Mahomet, their falſe Prophet.

Alcoranes, high ſlender Turrets, which the Mahometans generally build for Uſe and Ornament, near their Moſques or Churches.

Alcove, (Span.) a particular Place in a Chamber, ſeparated by an Eſtrade or Partition, made with Pillars, Rails, and other ſuitable Ornaments, in which is ſet a Bed of State, often rais'd upon two or three Steps; or ſometimes Seats, to entertain Company. Theſe Alcoves are frequent in Noble-mens Houſes in Spain, and other Parts beyond Sea.

Alcyon or Alcyonis, (Gr.) the King's-fiſher, a Bird; See Alcedo and Halcyon.

Alcyonia, Halcyon-Stones, a kind of Stones bred of the Froth of the Sea, with which the Kings-fiſhers make their Neſts.

Aldebaran, (Arab.) the Name of a Royal fixed Star of the firſt Magnitude, ſeated in the Head of the Conſtellation of the Bull, and therefore uſually call'd the Bull's-Eye.

Alder, or Alder-tree, a tall ſtraight Tree, that delights in watery and boggy Places.

Alderman, (Sax.) a Senatour or Senior, the ſame as Earl among the Danes: But they are now call'd Aldermen, who are Aſſociates to the chief Civil Magiſtrates of a City or Town Corporate.

Ale, a well known Drink, made of ground Malt, infus'd in boiling Water, and wrought up with Yeaſt, &c.

Ale-conner, or Ale-taſter, an Officer appointed in every Court-Leet, and Sworn to look to the Aſſize and Goodneſs of Bread, Ale and Beer, ſold within the Juriſdiction of the Leet.

Ale-coſt, an Herb very beneficial to cold and weak Livers, and otherwiſe call'd Coſt-mary or Maudlin.

Ale-hoof, an Herb with round Leaves and blew Flowers, ſo call'd becauſe it ſerves to clear Ale or Beer: It is of admirable Virtue in Diſeaſes of the Lungs, Stoppages of the Kidneys, Colick Pains, &c. and is alſo known by the Names of Ground-Ivy, Cats-foot, Jill-creep-by the Ground and Hay-mids.

Ale-ſhot, ſee Scot-Ale.

Ale-ſilver, a particular Rent or Duty yearly paid to the Lord Mayor of London, by thoſe that ſell Ale within the City.

Alectoria or Alectorius, (Gr.) the Cock-ſtone, or Capon-ſtone, a Stone found in the Maw or Ghizzard of a Cock, of a Cryſtal-colour, and about the bigneſs of a Bean.

Alectorolophos, an Herb good againſt Coughs, having Leaves like the tuft of Feathers on the Crown of a Cock; Cock's-comb, Louſe-herb, or Rattle-graſs.

Aledge, a Word uſed by Chaucer for Eaſe.

Alegar, a ſort of Vinegar made of Beer.

Alembick, or Limbeck, (Arab.) a Still, a Chymical Veſſel uſed in Diſtilling, ſhaped like a Helmet, and towards the bottom, having a Beak or Noſe, about a Foot and a half long, by which the Vapours deſcend: They are commonly made of Copper tinn'd over on the inſide, and often of Glaſs.

Alephanginæ, or Aloephanginæ Pilulæ, (Lat.) certain Purging-Pills made of Aloes and ſeveral ſorts of Spice.

Aler ſans jour, (Fr. Law-Phraſe, i. e. to go without Day) to be finally diſmiſs'd the Court; there being no further Day appointed for Appearance.

Alet, (among Falconers) the true Faulcon of Peru, that never lets her Prey eſcape.

Aletheia, (Gr. i. e. Truth) a proper Name of a Women.

Aleuromancy, a kind of Divination or Sooth-ſaying, among the Ancients by Bread, or Cake-paſte.

Alec, (Lat.) a ſort of Pickle, Brine, or Salt Liquor, made of Fiſh, and good for ſeveral uſes.

Alexander, (Gr. i. e. an Helper of Men) the Name of ſeveral great Emperours and Kings; but the moſt famous in Hiſtory was Alexander the Great, Son of Philip of Macedon, who overthrew the Perſian Monarchy.

Alexanders, or Aleſſanders, an Herb common in Gardens, which is good for a Cold Stomach, and opens Stoppages of the Liver or Spleen.

Alexander's Foot, a Plant whoſe Root reſembles a Foot.

Alexipharmick, endued with a Quality to expel Poiſon, as Alexipharmick Medicines, i. e. ſuch as are us'd as Antidotes againſt Poiſon or any infectious Diſeaſe; or elſe to raiſe or ſtrengthen the decayed or drooping Spirits in malignant Diſtempers.

Alexipyreticum or Alexipyretum, a Remedy that drives away Feavers.

Alexiterical or Alexiterick, that preſerves from, or drives out Poiſon, and hinders its miſchievous Effects in a Humane Body.

Alexiterium, a Preſervative againſt Poiſon or Infection.

Alferes, (Span.) an Enſign-bearer.

Alfet, a kind of Tryal of Innocency, by a great Cauldron of ſcalding-hot Water, into which the accuſed Perſon was to put his Arm up to the Elbow; ſo that if hurt, he was held guilty, if not, acquitted; ſee Ordeal.

Alfetum, (in old Latin Records) a Cauldron or Furnace.

Alfred, (Sax i. e. all Peace) the Name of a Wiſe, temperate, pious and learned King of England, who made a Law, That all Free-men poſſeſſing two Hides of Land, ſhould bring up their Sons in Religion and Learning.

Alfridary, a Word often us'd by Arabian Aſtrologers, for a temporary Power which the Planets have over the Life of a Perſon.

Alga, (Lat.) an Herb or Weed growing on the Sea-ſhore; Reets or Sea-weed.

Algarot, a Chymical Preparation made of Butter of Antimony, diluted or waſh'd in a large Quantity of warm Water, till it turn to a white Powder. This Medicine is given in Quartans, intermitting Feavers, and all Diſeaſes, wherein 'tis requiſite to Purge and Vomit ſtrongly; and it is otherwiſe call'd Mercurius Vita.

Algate, (old Word) if to be, notwithſtanding, altogether.

Algates, (old Word) ever, even now, for all that.

Algebra, or The Analytical Art, is a Science of Quantity in general, or a peculiar manner of Reaſoning, which takes the Quantity ſought, whether it be a Number or Line, as if it were known or granted; and then by the help of one or more Quantities given, proceeds by undeniable Conſequences, 'till at length the Quantity firſt only ſuppos'd or feign'd to be known, is found equal to ſome Quantity or Quantities certainly known, and is therefore likewiſe known. This Science is ſo call'd from the Arabick Particle, Al i. e. excellent and Geber, the Name of its ſuppoſed Inventer; and it is twofold, viz. Numeral and Literal.

Numeral or Vulgar Algebra, being the more Ancient, ſerves only for the Reſolution of Arithmetical Queſtions; and it is ſo termed, becauſe in this Method, the Quantity ſought or unknown, is repreſented by ſome Alphabetical Letter, or other Character taken at Pleaſure; but all the given Quantities are expreſs'd by Numbers.

Literal or Specious Algebra, or The New Algebra, is that Method, by which as well the given or known Quantities, as the unknown, are all ſeverally expreſs'd or repreſented by Alphabetical Letters; and it is generally uſeful, for the ſolving of all Mathematical Problems, both Arithmetical and Geometrical.

Algema, (Gr.) Pain, Sickneſs.

Algeneb, (Arab.) a fixed Star of the ſecond Magnitude, or Size, in the right Side of Perſeus, whoſe Longitude is 57 Degr. 17 Min. Latitude 30 D. 5 M. Right Aſcenſion 44 D. 15 M.

Algol, or Meduſa's Head, a fixed Star of the third Magnitude in the ſame Conſtellation of Perſeus, having for its Longitude 31 D. 37 M. Latitude 22 D. 22 M. and Declination 39 D. 39 M.

Algoriſm, the practical Operation in the ſeveral Parts of Specious Arithmetick or Algebra; ſometimes it is taken for the Practice of Common Arithmetick by the ten Numeral Figures.

Algorithm, the Art of computing or reckoning by Numbers, which contains the five principal Rules of Arithmetick, viz. Numeration, Addition, Subſtraction, Multiplication and Diviſion; to which may be added Extraction of Roots: It is alſo call'd Logiſtica Numeralis.

Alguazil, a Sergeant or Officer that arreſts People in Spain, and executes the Magiſtrates Orders.

Algum or Almug, (Heb.) a ſort of fine Wood growing on Mount Lebanon.

Alhidada, (Arab.) the Index or Ruler that moves on the Center of an Aſtrolabe Quadrant, or other Mathematical Inſtrument, and carries the Sight: It is ſo call'd by the Arabian Writers of Mathematicks, from whom we have taken ſeveral other Arabick Terms; Almacanter, Azimuth, Zenith, Nadir, &c.

Alica, (Lat.) a kind of Italian Wheat: Alſo Meat, Potage or Drink made of that Corn; Frumenty, Flummery, Barley-broth, &c. Alſo a nouriſhing Phyſical Potion.

Alicant-Wine, a ſort of Wine made of Mulberries growing about Alicant, one of the chief Towns of the Province of Valentia in Spain.

Alice, (Germ.) a proper Name of Women, from Adeliza i. e. Noble.

Alien, (Lat.) a Foreigner or Stranger, one born in a foreign Country, who according to our Common Law, is not capable to inherit Lands in England, till he be naturaliz'd by Act of Parliament.

To Alien, (Law-word) to transfer or convey the Property of any thing to another. To Alien in Fee, is to ſell the Fee Simple of any Land, or Tenement, or of any Incorporeal Right. To Alien in Mortmain, is to make over an Eſtate to a Religious Houſe, or other Body Politick.

Alien Priories, thoſe Cells of Monks ſome time eſtabliſhed in England, which belong'd to foreign Monaſteries, and were diſſolv'd by Authority of Parliament, under K. Henry IV. but ſome were made Indigena or Endenized.

To Alienate, to ſell, give, or make over the Property of any thing to another; alſo to eſtrange or draw away the Affections.

Alienation, the Act of Alienating, Selling, making over, &c.

Aliformes Muſculi, (Lat. in Anat.) certain Muſcles that ariſe from the Oſſa Pterygoidea, or Wing-like Bones, as alſo from the Proceſs of the Os Cuneiforme, and end in the Neck of the lower Jaw. Theſe Muſcles are otherwiſe call'd Alares, and Pterygoides in Greek.

Aliformes Proceſſus, are the Prominences or Knobs of the Os Cuneiforme, or Wedge-like Bone, from the Fore-part, and the ſame with the Pterygoides.

Aliment, Food or Nouriſhment: In a Phyſical Senſe, whatever may be diſſolved by the Ferment or natural Heat of the Stomach, and Chang'd, into the Juice call'd Chyle, to repair the continual waſting of the Parts of the Body: Alſo that which ſerves to nouriſh and ſupply the Decays of a vegetable Body, as a Plant, Tree, &c.

Alimentalis Ductus; See Ductus Alimentalis.

Alimentary, belonging to Nouriſhment.

Alimony, formerly ſignify'd Maintenance, Suſtenance or Food: But it is now only taken in a Law-Senſe, for that Portion or Allowance, which a marry'd Woman may ſue for, upon any occaſional Separation from her Husband, wherein ſhe is not charged with Elopement or Adultery.]

Alindeſis, (Gr.) a kind of Exerciſe among the Ancients, when they anointed their Bodies with Oil, and afterwards roll'd themſelves in the Duſt.

Alipæna, Plaiſters that have no Fat in them.

Alipaſma, a ſort of fine Powder mixt with Oil, in order to be ſoak'd into the Body, to hinder Sweating.

Alipterium, a Place in the Bath, where People were anointed after they had waſh'd.

Aliptes, (among the Ancients) an Officer that anointed the Wreſtlers, before they went to Exerciſe, and took Care to keep them in Strength and good Complexion: It is alſo taken by Cornelius Celſus for a Surgeon.

Aliquant Part, (Lat. in Arithm.) ſuch a Part of a great Number, as is contain'd certain times therein, with ſome Remainder over and above: Thus 2 is contain'd thrice in 7, and 1 is left as a Remainder.

Aliquot Part, a Part which being taken aliquoties, or certain times preciſely conſtitutes the greater Number: So 3 is an aliquot Part of 12; for 3 taken four times exactly makes 12, without any Exceſs or Defect.

Aliſanders, an Herb otherwiſe call'd Lovage.

Alkaheſt, (among Chymiſts) an Univerſal Menſtruum or Diſſolvent capable (as they ſay) of diſſolving or reducing all manner of mixt Bodies, into a Liquor of its own Subſtance, preſerving the Power of its Seeds, with its natural Eſſential Form entire; and by this Menſtruum they alſo pretend to extract the Sulphur of Metals.

Alkakengi or Winter-Cherry, the Fruit of one of the Sorts of the Plant call'd Night-ſhade.

Alkali, (in Chymiſtry) a fixed Salt drawn out of the Aſhes of calcin'd Herbs or Minerals by means of a boiled Lixivium or Lie: Its Name is taken from the Herb Kali, otherwiſe call'd Salt-wort and Glaſs-wort, being a kind of Sea-blite, which is one of the chief Ingredients us'd in the making of Glaſs, and affords a great Quantity of this ſort of Salt. Alſo any earthy Matter that ferments and works with Acids, is termed an Alkali.

Alkalizate Bodies, are thoſe which have their Pores naturally ſo formed in ſuch a Proportion, as that they are fit to be pierc'd and put into a violent Motion, by the Points of the Acid pour'd upon them.

Alkalizate Spirit of Wine, a pure and rich Spirit that will burn all-away, and even fire Gun-Powder, ſo call'd by Mr. Boyle, and made by diſtilling Spirit of Wine, from Salt of Tartar, or Tartar calcin'd to Whiteneſs.

Alkalization, a turning into an Alkali, as when ſome Alkali is infus'd in Spirit of Wine, to heighten its diſſolving Quality.

Alkanet, an Herb otherwiſe call'd Spaniſh-Bugloſs, the Root of which is us'd to Colour things with; and being made into an Ointment, it helps old Ulcers, hot Inflammations, Burns, Scalds, and St. Anthony's Fire.

Alkermes, a Confection ſold in Apothecaries Shops; ſo named from the Arabick Particle Al, and the chief Ingredient of it call'd Kermes or Chermes, which are certain red or ſcarlet Grains.

All-a-bone, (old Word) a made Requeſt.

All-good, a ſort of Herb commonly call'd Mercury, and by ſome Good-Henry.

All-heal, a vulnerary Herb, otherwiſe call'd Clown's Wound-wort.

All-ſeed, an Herb ſo named from its fulneſs of Seed.

Allantois or Allantoides, (Gr. in Anat.) one of the Coats that belong to a Child in the Womb; which being plac'd between the Amnion and the Chorion, receives the Urine that comes out of the Bladder, by the Navel and Urachus. It is alſo call'd Farciminalis Tunica, becauſe in many Brutes 'tis of the ſhape of a Gut-pudding; but in Man and ſome few other Creatures it is round.

Aller, the Alder-tree, a buſhy Tree, whoſe inward Bark is very yellow, and purges Choler, Phlegm and Watery Humours.

To Allay, to Aſſwage or Eaſe, to leſſen one's Pain or Grief; alſo to Temper or Mix Metals with a baſer ſort. See Alloy.

To Allay a Pheaſant, is to Cut or Carve it up at Table.

Allecti, (Lat. among the Romans) they that were taken out of the Rank of Gentry, to fill up the Senatours Places.

Allective, that is of an Alluring, Charming, Enticing, or Engaging Quality.

To Alledge, to produce a thing for Proof, to Quote, to Inſtance in.

Allegation, an Alledging or Proving; the Quotation of an Authority, Book, &c. to make good any Point or Aſſertion.

Allegiance, the natural and ſworn Obedience that is due from Subjects to their Soveraign Prince. The Word at firſt properly ſignify'd the Legal Subjection of every Vaſſal to his Lord.

Allegiare, (Old Latin Law-word) to Excuſe, Defend, or Juſtify by courſe of Law. Leges Alvredi, cap. 4. ——— Allegiat ſe facinoris, i. e. let him Clear or Purge himſelf of the Crime laid to his charge.

Allegorical, belonging to, or partaking of the Nature of an Allegory.

To Allegorize, to uſe Allegories, or to explain according to the Allegorical ſenſe.

Allegory, (Gr. i. e. ſaying one thing and meaning another) a Rhetorical Term, being a continued Metaphor, wherein there is ſomething couch'd in the Words, that is different from the literal Senſe, and the Figure is carried on through the whole Diſcourſe.

Alleluja, or rather Hallelujah, an Hebrew word, ſignifying Praiſe ye our Lord. Alſo the Name of an Herb otherwiſe call'd Wood-ſorrel, or French Sorrel, which is of ſingular uſe in Feavers and Agues, defending the Heart from all Infection.

Allemande or Almain, a kind of grave ſolemn Muſick, where the Meaſure is full and the Movement ſlow.

Alleviare, (Lat.) to make Light of, to Slight or Diſparage. In ſome old Records, to Levy or Pay an accuſtomed Fine or Compoſition.

To Alleviate, to Lighten, or Soften, to Allay, Aſſwage, or Eaſe; to leſſen ones Pain or Grief.

Alleviation, Alleviating, or Allaying; Eaſe, Comfort, Refreſhment.

Alley (Fr.) a narrow Lane, a Walk in a Garden.

Alliaria, (Lat.) an Herb taſting like Garlick, and call'd Jack of the Hedge, or Sauce alone; Ramſons.

Alliance, (Fr.) an Uniting or Joyning of Famiſies together by Marriage, or of Common-Wealths by Leagues; Kindred by Marriage, Match, League.

Allied, Matched, United or Joyned by a League.

Allies, Princes or States that have enter'd into an Alliance or League for their mutual Defence and Preſervation.

Alligation, (Lat.) a Tying or Binding to: In Arithmetick, a Rule by which ſuch Queſtions are reſolv'd, as relate to the mixing of divers Merchandizes, Metals, Simples, Druggs, &c. of unequal Price, one with another, ſo as to find how much of each muſt be taken, according to the tenour of the particular Queſtion. This Rule is ſo call'd from the Numbers being bound or joyn'd together by circular Lines, and is of two ſorts, viz. Medial and Alternate.

Alligation Medial, is, when having the ſeveral Quantities and Rates of divers Simples propoſed, we diſcover the mean Rate of a Mixture, compounded of theſe Simples.

Alligation Alternate, is when having the ſeveral Rates of divers Simples given, we find out ſuch Quantities of them, as are neceſſary to make a Mixture, which may bear a certain Rate propoſed.

Alligator (Lat. in Husbandry) a Binder or Tyer of the Vines to their Stakes. Alſo a kind of Weſt-Indian Crocodile, that keeps both in the Water and on Land: Theſe monſtrous Creatures grow as long as they live, being ſometimes 18 Foot long, and as big as a Hogſhead; they ſmell like Musk ſo ſtrongly, that the Air is ſcented for 100 Paces about them, and the Water in which they lie.

Alliteration, (in Rhetorick) a Repeating and Playing on the ſame Letter.

Allioth, the Name of a Star in the Tail of the Great Bear; the obſervation of which is much us'd at Sea, in order to find out the height of the Pole, or the Latitude, &c.

Alliotícum, (Gr.) a Medicine, which by its cleanſing Quality, alters and purifies the Blood.

Allium, (Lat.) Garlick, a known Plant.

Allocation, properly a Placing or Adding to. In a Law-ſenſe, an Allowance made upon an Account in the Exchequer. Allocations are alſo thr Allowances of Officers under a Prince or Nobleman.

Allocatione facienda, a Writ directed to the Lord Treaſurer and Barons of the Exchequer, upon complaint of an Accountant; requiring them to allow him ſuch Sums as he has lawfully and reaſonably disburs'd by virtue of his Office.

Allodial or Allodian, that is Free, or for which no Rents or Services are due; as Allodian Lands, i. e. Free Lands.

Allodium, (in the Civil Law) Free-hold, every Man's own Land or Eſtate that he poſſeſſes, meerly in his own Right; without yielding any Services to another, which is a Property in the higheſt degree, and is uſually oppos'd to Feodum, or Fee.

Allæotheta, (Gr.) Things differently plac'd: Alſo a Grammatical Figure that varies from the common Rules of Syntax; as Pars in fruſta ſecant: Dulce ſatis humor.

Allophylus, one of another Tribe, Nation, or Kindred; an Alien or Stranger.

To Allot, to Aſſign or Appoint; to Set out, Deliver, or Share by Lot.

Allotting of Goods, a Term in Merchandize, when a Ship's Cargo is divided into ſeveral Parcels, to be bought by divers Perſons, whoſe Names being wrote on as many pieces of Paper, are apply'd by an indifferent Perſon to the reſpective Lots or Parcels; ſo that every Man has the Parcel of Goods that anſwers to the Lot with his Name on it.

Allotment, Allotting, Aſſignation, Appointment.

To Allow, to Give or Grant; to Approve of; to Permit or Suffer.

Allowable, that may be Allowed or Approved.

Allowance, Portion, Salary, Maintenance; alſo an Allowing or Permitting, Winking at.

Alloy or Allay, the Proportion of a baſer Metal temper'd or mingled with a finer or purer; as the quantity of Copper or Silver that is mix'd with Gold, to make it of a due hardneſs to be Coin'd into Money, is call'd its Alloy; and Metal that has more of this than it ought to have, is ſaid To be of a courſer or greater Alloy.

To Allude, (Lat.) to ſpeak a thing which has ſome reſemblance, reſpect, or regard to another Matter: The Word properly ſignifies, to play or make ſport with, to quibble or pun.

Allum, a kind of Mineral, the beſt ſort of which is call'd Roch, or Rock-Allum.

Alluminor, a Word us'd in the Statute Ann. 1 Ric. III. for one that Paints upon Paper or Parchment, or that colours Maps, printed Pictures, &c. a Limner: See To Illuminate.

To Allure, to draw to the Lure or Bait; to Decoy or Entice.

Alluſion, an alluding or ſpeaking a thing in reference to another. Thus an Alluſion is made to an Hiſtory, Cuſtom, Wiſe-ſaying, &c. when we Speak or Write any thing that has relation to it.

Almacantars, (Arab. in Aſtron.) are Circles of Altitude parallel to the Horizon, whoſe common Pole is the Zenith or Vertical Point. Some write it Almicanterahs, and others Almucanterahs.

Almacantar-Staff, a Mathematical Inſtrument uſually made of Box or Pear-tree, with an Arch of 15 Degrees, to take Obſervations of the Sun, at the times of its Riſing and Setting; in order to find the Amplitude, and conſequently the Variation of the Compaſs.

Almade, a kind of Boat us'd in the Indies, and made altogether of one piece of Timber.

Almageſt, the Title of an excellent Treatiſe of the Sphere, Written by Ptolemy, and of another Aſtronomical Work by Francis Riccioli.

A main, a German or Native of Germany. In Muſick, a kind of Air that moves in Common Time.

Almain-rivets, a ſort of light Armour, having Sleeves of Mail or Iron-Plates riveted with Braces, for the defence of the Arms.

Almanack, (Arab.) Diſtribution or Numbering: Whence our yearly Accounts, wherein the Days of the Month, Eclipſes, Feſtivals, &c. are ſet down in due order, are commonly call'd Almanacks; altho' others derive the Word from the High-Dutch Al-maen-achte, i. e, an Obſervation of all the Months.

Almandine, a courſe ſort of Ruby, ſofter and lighter than the Oriental.

Almanzor, (Arab. Defender) the Name of ſeveral Princes and great Men among the Moors.

Almeriola: See Almonarium.

Almeſfeoh or Aelmeſfeoh, (Sax. i. e. Alms-Money) It was taken for Peter-pence, paid heretofore in England to the Pope Aug. I. and firſt given by Ina King of the Weſt-Saxons; being alſo known by the Names of Romefeoh, Romeſcot and Hearthpening.

Almoine: See Frank-almoine.

Almonarium, Almorietum, or Almeriola, (Lat. in old Records) a Cupboard or Safe to ſet up cold and broken Victuals, to be thence diſtributed for Alms to the Poor. This ſort of Cupboard, in the Northern parts, is ſtill call'd the Aumbry, Ambry and Ammery.

Almond, a ſort of Fruit, downy on the outſide, the Kernel of which contain'd in a thick ſmooth Stone is ſweet in ſome, and in others ſomewhat bitter.

Almonds of the Throat, are a Glandulous Subſtance, repreſenting two Kernels plac'd on each ſide of the Uvula, at the root of the Tongue: They receive the Saliva or Spittle from the Brain, and diſperſe it to the Jaws, Tongue, Throat and Gullet, in order to moiſten thoſe parts and make them ſlippery. When theſe are ſwell'd and inflam'd by a Cold, &c. they very much ſtraighten the Paſſage of the Throat, and render ſwallowing painful and difficult; ſo that they help to make what is commonly call'd a Sore Throat, and as the Country People expreſs it, the The falling down of the Almonds of the Ears.

Almond-Furnace or Sweep, a kind of Furnace us'd by Refiners, for ſeparating all ſorts of Metals from Cinders, parts of Melting-pots, Teſts, Brick and other hard Bodies: This Furnace is more eſpecially us'd at the Silver-Mines in Cardigan-Shire, in which the Slags, or Refuſe of the Litharge are melted with Charcoal.

Almond-Tree, one of the firſt Trees that Bloom, bearing a moſt delicious Nut, and beautiful Flowers, of a Purple Red Colour, which make a fine Shew in a Garden: This Tree grows chiefly in the Eaſtern Countries, eſpecially in the Holy Land, near the River Jordan, whence the beſt of this Fruit are call'd Jordan-Almonds.

Almoner or Almner, a Church-Officer belonging to a King or Prince, whoſe Buſineſs is to take Care of the Diſtribution of Alms, to viſit ſick and neceſſitous People, to receive and deliver all caſt Horſes, Robes, Money, &c. given in Alms: He has alſo all Forfeitures by Miſadventure, and the Goods of Self-murderers, and is to diſpoſe of them in Alms to the Poor.

Almonry or Aumry, the Almoners Office or Lodgings; alſo the Place where Alms are given.

Alms, whatever is freely given to the Poor for God's Sake.

Alms-Houſe, a Houſe built by a Man or Woman in a private Capacity, and endow'd with a ſufficient Revenue for the Maintenance of a certain Number of poor, aged, or diſabled Perſons.

Almug-Tree: See Algum.

Almucanterahs: See Almacantars.

Almuten, (Arab. in Aſtrol.) the Lord of a figure, or ſtrongeſt Planet in a Nativity.

Alnage, Meaſuring with an Ell, Ell-meaſure.

Alnager, Aulnegar, or Alnegar, (i. e. a Meaſurer by the Ell) a publick ſworn Officer, whoſe buſineſs was to look to the Aſſize of Woollen Cloth made throughout the Realm, and to the Seals appointed for that purpoſe. There are three diſtinct Officers, known by the Names of Searcher, Meaſurer and Alnager; who were all heretofore compriſed in one Perſon; but the Alnager is now only Collector of the Subſidy or Tax, granted to the King or Queen by ſeveral Acts of Parliament.

Alney: See the Eight.

Alnus (Lat.) the Alder-tree.

Aloes, (Gr.) the Juice or Gum of a Tree, that bears the ſame Name, and grows in ſeveral Countries, eſpecially in Egypt: The beſt is call'd Hepatick, from its Liver-colour, and Succotrine, from Soccotra or Zocotora, an Iſland on the Coaſts of Zanguebar in Ethiopia, that produces good ſtore of it.

Aloes Caballina, the groſſer ſort of Aloes, ſo call'd, becauſe Farriers uſe it moſt for their Horſes.

Aloetick, belonging to Aloes; as Aloetick Pills.

Aloeticks, Medicines that conſiſt chiefly of Aloes.

Aloft, a Sea-word ſignifying, on High, or in the Upper part.

Alogia, (Gr.) Unreaſonableneſs, particularly in eating; a brutiſh cramming of the Gut: Alſo a Prince's Releaſe of an Officer from giving up his Accounts.

Alogotrophia, (among ſome Writers in Phyſick) a diſproportionate Nouriſhment, when one part of the Body is nouriſh'd more or leſs than another, as in the Rickets.

Alola, a kind of Beaſt like a Mule, having no Joints in the Knees, and therefore cannot lie down or riſe up, but leans againſt a Tree to reſt: See Elk.

Aloof, or keep your Loof (i. e. keep the Ship near the Wind) an Expreſſion us'd in ſpeaking to the Steers-man.

Alopecia, a Diſeaſe call'd the Scurf or Fox Evil, wherein the Hairs fall off from the Head by the Roots; a ſhedding of the Hair, occaſion'd by Venereal Diſtempers, or otherwiſe.

Alopecias, a Kind of Fiſh ſo call'd, as it were the Sea-Fox; becauſe, after having ſwallow'd the Hook, ſhe craftily bites off the Line.

Alopecis uva, a ſort of ſorry Grape.

Alopecuroides Gramen, Fox-tail Graſs; an Herb.

Alopecurus, an Herb like a Fox's Tail, ſhaggy and moſſy; tailed Wheat, Fox-tail.

Alopex, the Fox, a Beaſt of Chace.

Alosa, (Lat.) the Shad, a Sea-fiſh.

Alp, a Country-word for the Bulfinch, a Bird.

Alpha, the firſt Letter of the Greek Alphabet, as Omega is the laſt: Whence that Expreſſion in St. John's Revelation, I am Alpha and Omega, ſaith the Lord, the beginning and the ending, the firſt and the laſt, to ſhew the eternal Exiſtence of the Son of God, the ſecond Perſon in the ever bleſſed Trinity.

Alphabet, the whole Order of Letters in any Language; the Word being derived from Alpha and Beta, the Names of the two firſt Letters of the Greek Tongue.

Alphabetical or Alphabetick, belonging, or agreeable to the Order of the Alphabet.

Alpheta, a Star of the ſecond Magnitude, the ſame as Lucida Corona; which See.

Alphenſine Tables, certain Aſtronomical Calculations, made by Alphonſus King of Arragon.

Alphonſus, a proper Name of Men, very common among the Spaniards and Portugueſes, from the Gothick Word Helphuns, i. e. our Help.

Alphos, (Gr.) a kind of Morphew or White Specks on the Skin; which differs from Leuce in this reſpect, that it does not pierce ſo deep as the latter.

Alpine, belonging to the Mountains of Italy, call'd the Alps.

Alpine-Mouſe, a Creature about thoſe Mountains, of the bigneſs of a Rabbet, having a Head like a Hare, and Ears ſo ſhort, that they ſcarce appear above it.

Alrumech, (Arab.) the name of a Star, the ſame as Arcturus.

Alſine, (Gr.) the Herb Chick-weed, which being of a cooling and moiſtening quality, is good for Inflammations and Heat.

Altaheſt Paracelſi, (among Chymiſts) a mixt Body reduc'd to its firſt Principles.

Altarage, (Law-Word) the Free Offerings made upon the Altar by the People; as alſo, all the Profits that ariſe to the Prieſt, upon account of the Altar, viz. ſmall Tithes of Wool, Lamb, Colt, Calf, &c.

Alta Tenura: See Baſſa Tenura.

To Alter, to Change, to Turn, to Vary.

Alterantia, (Lat.) Medicines that ſerve to Alter, Purify and Reſtore the due mixture of the Blood, and other circulating Humours.

Alteration, Change. In a Phyſical Senſe, it is that Motion by which a Natural Body is varied and changed in ſome Circumſtances, from what it really was before; tho' as to Senſe, its Nature and Bulk appear to continue ſtill the ſame.

Altercation, Contentious Diſpute, Brawling or Wrangling.

Altercum, (Lat.) the Herb Hen-bane.

Altering Remedies: See Alterantia.

Altern Baſe, a Term in Trigonometry, or the Doctrine of Triangles: Thus in Oblique Triangles, the True Baſe, is either the Sum of the Sides, and then the Difference of the Sides is the Altern Baſe; or elſe the True Baſe is the Difference of the Sides, and then the Sum of the Sides is call'd the Altern Baſe.

Alternate or Alternative, that is done by Turn, or Courſe one after another.

Alternate Alligation: See Alligation Alternate.

Alternate Angles: See Angles.

Alternation, a Changing by turns: Some Mathematicians take it for the different Changes or Alterations of Order in any number of things propoſed; as the ſeveral Changes rung on Bells, &c.

Althæa, (Gr.) Wild Mallows, or Marſh-Mallows, an Herb good to ſoften and diſſolve, to eaſe Pain, and to correct ſharp Humours.

Altimetry, that part of Geometry, which teaches the Method of taking and meaſuring of Heights, whether Acceſſible or Inacceſſible.

Altitude, (Lat. in Aſtronomy) is the height of the Sun, Moon, Stars or any Planet or Point of the Heavens, comprehended between the Horizon and any parallel Circle of Altitude, or between the Star, or aſſigned Point in the Heavens and the Horizon.

The Sums Meridian Altitude, is an Arch of the Meridian, contain'd between the Sun and the Horizon, at that time when the Sun is in the Meridian.

Altitude of a Figure, (in Geom.) is the perpendicular Diſtance between the Vertex or top of a Figure and its Baſe.

Altitude of Motion, a Term us'd by Dr. Wallis in his Mechanicks, for the Meaſure of any Motion counted according to the Line of Direction of the moving Force.

Altitude of the Pole: See Elevation of the Pole.

Alto and Baſſo or in Alto and Baſſo (old Law Phraſe) the abſolute Submiſſion of all Differences, ſmall or great, high and low, to a Judge or Arbitrator.

Aluco, (Lat.) the Leech-Owl; a Bird.

Aludels, (among Chymiſts) are Pots without Bottoms, ſet on the top of another, and fitted to a Pot with a Hole in the middle, fix'd under them in the Furnace, which holds the Matter to be ſublimed; and at the top of all the Pots, there is a Head to receive the Flowers that ſublime or riſe up thither.

Alvearium, (Lat.) a Hive of Bees, or a place where Bee-hives ſtand: In Anatomy, the inward Cavity or Hollow of the Ear, near the Paſſage that conveys the Sound.

Alveolus, any wooden Veſſel made hollow; a Tray. Among Anatomiſts, Alveoli dentium are the Holes of the Jaws in which the Teeth are ſet.

Alviduca, looſening Medicines.

Alvi Fluxus, a looſeneſs of the Belly.

Alum, the Herb Comfrey or Camfrey.

Alumen, Allum, a kind of Mineral Salt.

Alumen Saccharinum, a mixture of Roch-Allum, Roſe-water and the White of an Egg, ſo call'd from the reſemblance it has to Sugar.

Aluminous, belonging to Allum.

Alyſſon, (Gr.) an Herb which cures Madneſs, and prevents it in thoſe that are bit by a Mad-Dog.

Alytarcha, (among the ancient Greeks) the chief Officer at Publick Games and Sports; particularly the Prieſt of Antioch in Syria, who at ſuch times was to ſee good Order kept.

Amadetto, (Ital.) a ſort of Pear.

Amain, a Word uſ'd at Sea, when a Man of War gives Defiance to another, and bids her yield. To Wave amain with a naked Sword, is as much as to command another Ship to lower her Top-ſails; and to bid her ſtrike amain, is to require her to let fall her Top-ſails.

Amalek, (Heb. a Licking or Smiting People) the Son of Eliphaz, by his Concubine Timna, from whom the Amalekites deſcended.

To Amalgamate, (in Chymiſtry) to mix Mercury or Quick-ſilver with Gold, or ſome other noble Metal melted; ſo as to reduce it into a kind of Paſte, fit to be laid on ſome Works, as in Gilding, &c. or elſe to change it into a very fine Powder: Alſo to moiſten any thing, eſpecially for a Medicinal uſe, into a ſoft Pap.

Amalgamation, the Act of Amalgamating.

Amalgame, any Metal that is ſo amalgamated or reduced to a ſoft Paſte; which Operation cannot be performed on Iron or Copper.

Amalgaminge, a Word uſ'd by Chaucer for an Amalgame or Mixture of Quick-ſilver with other Metals.

Amanſes, a Word uſ'd by ſome Chymiſts, for Gems or precious Stones.

Amanuenſis, one that Writes what is Indited by another; a Secretary, or Clerk.

Amaracus or Amaracum, (Gr.) the Herb Sweet Marjoram.

Amarantus or Amaranthus, Everlaſting, a Flower that continues long without any ſenſible Decay. Amaranthus purpureus, a Flower gentle, with a purple Flower. Amaranthus luteus, Maudlin-wort or Baltazar, an Herb that bears a yellow Flower.

Amarella, the Herb Feverfew or Milk-wort.

Amaſah, (Heb. ſparing the People) the Son of Abigail, treacherouſly kill'd by Joab.

Amaſiah, (i. e. the Burden of the Lord) a King of Judah.

To Amaſs, (Fr.) to Heap up, to Hoard or Treaſure up.

To Amate, (old Word) to Diſcourage.

Amatory, (Lat.) belonging to Love-matters, or Lovers; as Amatory Verſes, or Letters.

Amauroſis, (Gr.) a Dimneſs or loſs of Sight, without any outward Fault to be ſeen in the Eye.

Amayl, a Word uſ'd in old Records for Enamel.

To Amaze, (q. d. to put into a Maze) to Aſtoniſh or Surpriſe, to Daunt.

Amazons, (Gr.) certain warlike Women of Aſia, living near the River Thermodoon, who burnt or cut off their right Paps, and kill'd all their Male Children; that they might have no Man among them.

Ambacti, (among the ancient Gauls) thoſe Servants and Retainers that belong'd to their chief Nobility.

Ambages, a long Circumſtance of Words, remote from the true ſcope of the Matter; a tedious Story to no purpoſe, a Compaſs or Fetch about.

Ambar or Ambarum, Amber-greece.

Ambarvalia, (Lat.) a Feſtival Time among the ancient Romans, when they pray'd for their Fields and Corn, with a ſolemn Proceſſion.

Ambaſſadour or Embaſſadour, a Perſon ſent by a Soveraign Prince or State to another, either to Compliment or to Treat about ſome important Buſineſs.

Ambe, (Gr.) the Ridge or Edge of a Hill: In Surgery, a ſuperficial jutting out of the Bones; alſo an Inſtrument with which disjoynted Bones are ſet again.

Amber, a kind of hard Gum, of a lively bright Yellow colour, of which Beads and Bracelets are made: In Pruſſia there is great ſtore of it, which grows like Coral on a Rock of the North-Sea, and being broken off by the force of the Waves, is caſt up into their Harbours.

Black Amber, See Jeat.

Amber-Fiſh. See Dorado.

Amber-greece, a ſweet-ſcented clammy Juice or Perfume, which ſome take to be a kind of Bitumen that riſes from Springs in the bottom of the Sea, and grows hard by floating on the Water. It is found in many Places on the Sea-ſhore, but eſpecially in the Indies.

Ambidens, (Lat.) a Sheep that has Teeth on both Sides, both the upper and lower; a Theave, a Hogrel.

Ambidexter, one that uſes both Hands a-like; a Jack on both ſides or Prevaricator. In Common Law, a Juror that takes Money of both Parties for the giving of his Verdict; for which Offence he forfeits ten times as much as he takes.

Ambidextrous, belonging to ſuch foul Practices, Juggling; as Ambidextrous Dealings.

Ambient, Incircling or Encompaſſing round about. In Philoſophy, Natural Bodies that happen to be plac'd round any other Body, are call'd the Ambient, and often the Circumambient Bodies; and the whole Body of the Air, becauſe it ſurrounds all things on the Surface of the Earth, is term'd the Ambient, by way of Eminence.

Ambigu, (in Cookery) ſeveral ſorts of Meat and Pulſe ſerv'd up in the ſame Diſh; a Banquet of Meat and Fruit altogether.

Ambiguity, Double Meaning, Obſcurity in Words.

Ambiguous, Uncertain or Doubtful; with reſpect to Words of doubtful meaning, that may be taken ſeveral ways.

Ambit of a Figure, (in Geom.) is the Perimeter, Circumference, or Sum of all the bounding or encompaſſing Lines that encloſe it.

Ambition, an immoderate Deſire of Honour and Promotion.

Ambitious, full of Ambition, deſirous or greedy of Honours.

Amble, the Going of a Horſe between Pace and Trot.

Ambloſis, (Gr.) Abortion, or Miſcarriage; an abortive Birth.

Ambloticks, Medicines that cauſe Abortion.

Amblygon, (in Geom.) a Figure that has an obtuſe or blunt Angle; any plain Figure, whoſe Sides make an obtuſe Angle one with another.

Amblygonial, belonging to ſuch a Figure. Thus an Amblygonial Triangle, is that which has one obtuſe Angle.

Amblyopia, Dulneſs or Dimneſs of Sight, when the Object is not clearly diſcern'd at what diſtance ſoever it be plac'd.

Ambra, (Lat.) Amber-greece: Alſo a kind of Veſſel or liquid Meaſure among our Saxon Anceſtours, the Content of which is not now known.

Ambroſe, (Gr. Immortal) a proper Name of Men.

Ambroſia, a Word often uſ'd by the Poets, for the delicious Jellies and Food of the Heathen Gods: Whence it is taken for a kind of Medicine prepared to be as grateful and pleaſing to the Palate as is poſſible: Alſo an Herb call'd Oak of Jeruſalem.

one part of the Body is nouriſh'd more or leſs than another, as in the Rickets.

Alce, a kind of Beaſt like a Mule, having no Joints in the Knees, and therefore cannot lie down or riſe up, but leans againſt a Tree to reſt: See Elk.

Aloof, or keep your Loof (i. e. keep the Ship near the Wind) an Expreſſion us'd in ſpeaking to the Steers-man.

Alopecia, a Diſeaſe call'd the Scurf or Fox Evil, wherein the Hairs fall off from the Head by the Roots; a ſhedding of the Hair, occaſion'd by Venereal Diſtempers, or otherwiſe.

Alopecias, a Kind of Fiſh ſo call'd, as it were the Sea-Fox; becauſe, after having ſwallow'd the Hook, ſhe craftily bites off the Line.

Alopecis uva, a ſort of ſorry Grape.

Alopecuroides Gramen, Fox-tail Graſs; an Herb.

Alopecurus, an Herb like a Fox's Tail, ſhaggy and moſſy; tailed Wheat, Fox-tail.

Alopex, the Fox, a Beaſt of Chace.

Aloſa, (Lat.) the Shad, a Sea-fiſh.

Alp, a Country-word for the Bulfinch, a Bird.

Alpha, the firſt Letter of the Greek Alphabet, as Omega is the laſt: Whence that Expreſſion in St. John's Revelation, I am Alpha and Omega, ſaith the Lord, the beginning and the ending, the firſt and the laſt, to ſhew the eternal Exiſtence of the Son of God, the ſecond Perſon in the ever bleſſed Trinity.

Alphabet, the whole Order of Letters in any Language; the Word being derived from Alpha and Beta, the Names of the two firſt Letters of the Greek Tongue.

Alphabetical or Alphabetick, belonging, or agreeable to the Order of the Alphabet.

Alpheta, a Star of the ſecond Magnitude, the ſame as Lucida Corona; which See.

Alphonſine Tables, certain Aſtronomical Calculations, made by Alphonſus King of Arragon.

Alphonſus, a proper Name of Men, very common among the Spaniards and Portugueſes, from the Gothick Word Helphuns, i. e. our Help.

Alphos, (Gr.) a kind of Morphew or White Specks on the Skin; which differs from Leuce in this reſpect, that it does not pierce ſo deep as the latter.

Alpine, belonging to the Mountains of Italy, call'd the Alps.

Alpine-Mouſe, a Creature about thoſe Mountains, of the bigneſs of a Rabbet, having a Head like a Hare, and Ears ſo ſhort, that they ſcarce appear above it.

Alrumech, (Arab.) the name of a Star, the ſame as Arcturus.

Alſine, (Gr.) the Herb Chick-weed, which being of a cooling and moiſtening quality, is good for Inflammations and Heat.

Alcaheſt Paracelſi, (among Chymiſts) a mixt Body reduc'd to its firſt Principles.

Altarage, (Law-Word) the Free Offerings made upon the Altar by the People; as alſo, all the Profits that ariſe to the Prieſt, upon account of the Altar, viz. ſmall Tithes of Wool, Lamb, Colt, Calf, &c.

Alta Tenura: See Baſſa Tenura.

To Alter, to Change, to Turn, to Vary.

Alterantia, (Lat.) Medicines that ſerve to Alter, Purify and Reſtore the due mixture of the Blood, and other circulating Humours.

Alteration, Change. In a Phyſical Senſe, it is that Motion by which a Natural Body is varied and changed in ſome Circumſtances, from what it really was before; tho' as to Senſe, its Nature and Bulk appear to continue ſtill the ſame.

Altercation, Contentious Diſpute, Brawling or Wrangling.

Altercum, (Lat.) the Herb Hen-bane.

Altering Remedies: See Alterantia.

Altern Baſe, a Term in Trigonometry, or the Doctrine of Triangles: Thus in Oblique Triangles, the True Baſe, is either the Sum of the Sides, and then the Difference of the Sides is the Altern Baſe; or elſe the True Baſe is the Difference of the Sides, and then the Sum of the Sides is call'd the Altern Baſe.

Alternate or Alternative, that is done by Turn, or Courſe one after another.

Alternate Alligation: See Alligation Alternate.

Alternate Angles: See Angles.

Alternation, a Changing by turns: Some Mathematicians take it for the different Changes or Alterations of Order in any number of things propoſed; as the ſeveral Changes rung on Bells, &c.

Althæa, (Gr.) Wild Mallows, or Marſh-Mallows, an Herb good to ſoften and diſſolve, to eaſe Pain, and to correct ſharp Humours.

Altimetry, that part of Geometry, which teaches the Method of taking and meaſuring of Heights, whether Acceſſible or Inacceſſible.

Altitude, (Lat. in Aſtronomy) is the height of the Sun, Moon, Stars or any Planet or Point of the Heavens, comprehended between the Horizon and any parallel Circle of Altitude, or between the Star, or aſſigned Point in the Heavens and the Horizon.

The Suns Meridian Altitude, is an Arch of the Meridian, contain'd between the Sun and the Horizon, at that time when the Sun is in the Meridian.

Altitude of a Figure, (in Geom.) is the perpendicular Diſtance between the Vertex or top of a Figure and its Baſe.

Altitude of Motion, a Term us'd by Dr. Wallis in his Mechanicks, for the Meaſure of any Motion counted according to the Line of Direction of the moving Force.

Altitude of the Pole: See Elevation of the Pole.

Alto and Baſſo or in Alto and Baſſo (old Law Phraſe) the abſolute Submiſſion of all Differences, ſmall or great, high and low, to a Judge or Arbitrator.

Aluco, (Lat.) the Leech-Owl; a Bird.

Aludels, (among Chymiſts) are Pots without Bottoms, ſet on the top of another, and fitted to a Pot with a Hole in the middle, fix'd under them in the Furnace, which holds the Matter to be ſublimed; and at the top of all the Pots, there is a Head to receive the Flowers that ſublime or riſe up thither.

Alvearium, (Lat.) a Hive of Bees, or a place where Bee-hives ſtand: In Anatomy, the inward Cavity or Hollow of the Ear, near the Paſſage that conveys the Sound.

Alveolus, any wooden Veſſel made hollow; a Tray. Among Anatomiſts, Alveoli dentium are the Holes of the Jaws in which the Teeth are ſet.

Alviduca, looſening Medicines.

Alvi Fluxus, a looſeneſs of the Belly.

Alum, the Herb Comfrey or Camfrey.

Alumen, Allum, a kind of Mineral Salt.

Alumen Saccharinum, a mixture of Roch-Allum, Roſe-water and the White of an Egg, ſo call'd from the reſemblance it has to Sugar.

Aluminous, belonging to Allum.

Alyſſon, (Gr.) an Herb which cures Madneſs, and prevents it in thoſe that are bit by a Mad-Dog.

Alycar-

Alytarcha, (among the ancient Greeks) the chief Officer at Publick Games and Sports; particularly the Prieſt of Antioch in Syria, who at ſuch times was to ſee good Order kept.

Amadetto, (Ital.) a ſort of Pear.

Amain, a Word uſ'd at Sea, when a Man of War gives Defiance to another, and bids her yield. To Wave amain with a naked Sword, is as much as to command another Ship to lower her Top-ſails; and to bid her ſtrike amain, is to require her to let fall her Top-ſails.

Amalek, (Heb. a Licking or Smiting People) the Son of Eliphaz, by his Concubine Timna, from whom the Amalekites deſcended.

To Amalgamate, (in Chymiſtry) to mix Mercury or Quick-ſilver with Gold, or ſome other noble Metal melted; ſo as to reduce it into a kind of Paſte, fit to be laid on ſome Works, as in Gilding, &c. or elſe to change it into a very fine Powder: Alſo to moiſten any thing, eſpecially for a Medicinal uſe, into a ſoft Pap.

Amalgamation, the Act of Amalgamating.

Amalgame, any Metal that is ſo amalgamated or reduced to a ſoft Paſte; which Operation cannot be performed on Iron or Copper.

Amalgaminge, a Word uſ'd by Chaucer for an Amalgame or Mixture of Quick-ſilver with other Metals.

Amauſes, a Word uſ'd by ſome Chymiſts, for Gems or precious Stones.

Amanuenſis, one that Writes what is Indited by another; a Secretary, or Clerk.

Amaracus or Amaracum, (Gr.) the Herb Sweet Marjoram.

Amarantus or Amaranthus, Everlaſting, a Flower that continues long without any ſenſible Decay. Amaranthus purpureus, a Flower gentle, with a purple Flower. Amaranthus luteus, Maudlin-wort or Baltazar, an Herb that bears a yellow Flower.

Amarella, the Herb Feverfew or Milk-wort.

Amaſah, (Heb. ſparing the People) the Son of Abigail, treacherouſly kill'd by Joab.

Amaſiah, (i. e. the Burden of the Lord) a King of Judah.

To Amaſs, (Fr.) to Heap up, to Hoard or Treaſure up.

To Amate, (old Word) to Diſcourage.

Amatory, (Lat.) belonging to Love-matters, or Lovers; as Amatory Verſes, or Letters.

Amauroſis, (Gr.) a Dimneſs or loſs of Sight, without any outward Fault to be ſeen in the Eye.

Amayl, a Word uſ'd in old Records for Enamel.

To Amaze, (q. d. to put into a Maze) to Aſtoniſh or Surpriſe, to Daunt.

Amazons, (Gr.) certain warlike Women of Aſia, living near the River Thermodoon, who burnt or cut off their right Paps, and kill'd all their Male Children, that they might have no Man among them.

Ambacti, (among the ancient Gauls) thoſe Servants and Retainers that belong'd to their chief Nobility.

Ambages, a long Circumſtance of Words, remote from the true ſcope of the Matter; a tedious Story to no purpoſe, a Compaſs or Fetch about.

Ambar or Ambarum, Amber-greece.

Ambarvalia, (Lat.) a Feſtival Time among the ancient Romans, when they pray'd for their Fields and Corn, with a ſolemn Proceſſion.

Ambaſſadour or Embaſſadour, a Perſon ſent by a Soveraign Prince or State to another, either to Compliment or to Treat about ſome important Buſineſs.

Ambe, (Gr.) the Ridge or Edge of a Hill: In Surgery, a ſuperficial jutting out of the Bones; alſo an Inſtrument with which diſjoynted Bones are ſet again.

Amber, a kind of hard Gum, of a lively bright Yellow colour, of which Beads and Bracelets are made: In Pruſſia there is great ſtore of it, which grows like Coral on a Rock of the North-Sea, and being broken off by the force of the Waves, is caſt up into their Harbours.

Black Amber, See Jeat.

Amber-Fiſh. See Dorado.

Amber-greece, a ſweet-ſcented clammy Juice or Perfume, which ſome take to be a kind of Bitumen that riſes from Springs in the bottom of the Sea, and grows hard by floating on the Water. It is found in many Places on the Sea-ſhore, but eſpecially in the Indies.

Ambidens, (Lat.) a Sheep that has Teeth on both Sides, both the upper and lower; a Theave, a Hogrel.

Ambidexter, one that uſes both Hands a-like; a Jack on both ſides or Prevaricator. In Common Law, a Juror that takes Money of both Parties for the giving of his Verdict; for which Offence he forfeits ten times as much as he takes.

Ambidextrous, belonging to ſuch foul Practices, Juggling; as Ambidextrous Dealings.

Ambient, Incircling or Encompaſſing round about. In Philoſophy, Natural Bodies that happen to be plac'd round any other Body, are call'd the Ambient, and often the Circumambient Bodies; and the whole Body of the Air, becauſe it ſurrounds all things on the Surface of the Earth, is term'd the Ambient, by way of Eminence.

Ambigu, (in Cookery) ſeveral ſorts of Meat and Pulſe ſerv'd up in the ſame Diſh; a Banquet of Meat and Fruit altogether.

Ambiguity, Double Meaning, Obſcurity in Words.

Ambiguous, Uncertain or Doubtful; with reſpect to Words of doubtful meaning, that may be taken ſeveral ways.

Ambit of a Figure, (in Geom.) is the Perimeter, Circumference, or Sum of all the bounding or encompaſſing Lines that encloſe it.

Ambition, an immoderate Deſire of Honour and Promotion.

Ambitious, full of Ambition, deſirous or greedy of Honours.

Amble, the Going of a Horſe between Pace and Trot.

Ambloſis, (Gr.) Abortion, or Miſcarriage; an abortive Birth.

Ambloticks, Medicines that cauſe Abortion.

Amblygon, (in Geom.) a Figure that has an obtuſe or blunt Angle; any plain Figure, whoſe Sides make an obtuſe Angle one with another.

Amblygonial, belonging to ſuch a Figure. Thus an Amblygonial Triangle, is that which has one obtuſe Angle.

Amblyopia, Dulneſs or Dimneſs of Sight, when the Object is not clearly diſcern'd at what diſtance ſoever it be plac'd.

Ambra, (Lat.) Amber-greece: Alſo a kind of Veſſel or liquid Meaſure among our Saxon Anceſtours, the Content of which is not now known.

Ambroſe, (Gr. Immortal) a proper Name of Men.

Ambroſia, a Word often uſ'd by the Poets, for the delicious Jellies and Food of the Heathen Gods: Whence it is taken for a kind of Medicine prepared to be as grateful and pleaſing to the Palate as is poſſible: Alſo an Herb call'd Oak of Jeruſalem.

Ambry, Ammery, or Aumbry, (Country-Word) a kind of Cupboard or Safe for the keeping of cold and broken Victuals; properly ſuch as are to be diſtributed for Alms to the Poor.

Ambs-ace, See Ace.

Ambubaiæ, (Lat.) certain Women of Syria, who got their Living at Rome, by playing on Muſick and other lewd Pranks.

Ambulation, a Walking: In Surgery, the ſpreading of a Gangrene.

Ambulatory, Going or Moving up and down, not being fixed to any Place.

Amburbial Sacrifices, (among the Romans) a kind of Solemnity when the Beaſts were led round about the City, before they were Sacrificed.

Ambury, a Diſeaſe in Horſes which cauſes them to break forth in ſpungy Swellings full of hot Blood and Matter.

Ambuſcade, Ambuſh, or Ambuſhment, properly, a Body of Men that lies hid in a Wood or other convenient Place, ſo as to ruſh out upon or encloſe an Enemy unawares; a lying wait privily to Surprize, Catch, or Intrap one.

Ambuſtion, (in Surgery) a Solution of the continuity of the Parts, caus'd by ſome outward Burning; a Burn, or Scald.

Amel-Corn or French-Rice, a kind of Grain of which Starch is made.

Amen, a Syriack Word, ſignifying Verily, ſo be it; and therefore added to the cloſe of all Prayers.

Amenable, (Fr.) eaſy to be Led or Ruled, Tractable; a Term apply'd in our Law-books to a Woman that may be govern'd by her Husband.

To Amend, to Repair, to Reform or Correct; to Make or to Grow better.

Amendment, Reformation, Correction: In a Law-ſenſe, the Correction of an Errour committed in a Proceſs, and eſpy'd before Judgment, which may alſo be amended by the Juſtices after Judgment.

Amends, Satisfaction or Recompence.

Amentia, (Lat.) Madneſs, Fooliſhneſs. See Inſania.

Amenuſed, (old Word) Diminiſhed, or Leſſened.

Ameos, (Gr.) Biſhop's-Weed, an Herb, the Seed of which is one of the four leſſer Seeds us'd in Phyſick, for cauſing to break Wind.

To Amerce, to ſet a Fine, or Forfeiture upon one.

Amercement or Amerciament, (Law Term) a Penalty aſſeſs'd by the Peers or Equals of the Party amerced, for an Offence done againſt the Queen or ſome Lord. Amercements differ from Fines, in regard that they are arbitrarily impoſed, whereas Fines are expreſly appointed by the Statute.

Amercement Royal, is where a Sheriff, Coroner, or other Officer of the Queen, is Amerced or Fined by the Juſtices, for Abuſe in his Office.

America, the Fourth part of the World, which was firſt diſcover'd by Chriſtopher Columbus or Colon, a Genoeſe, A. D. 1492. but took Name from Americus Veſpuſius a Florentine, who made a farther Diſcovery of thoſe Parts in 1497.

Amerina Salix, a kind of Willow ſo call'd from Ameria, a Town of the Province of Ombria in Italy, where it grows plentifully; the Twig-withy good to make Baskets of.

Amery or Almeric, a proper Name of Men, from the German Word Emeric, i. e. always Rich and Powerful.

Ameſs, Amice, or Amict, (Lat.) an Ornament which Popiſh Canons or Prieſts wear on their Arms, when they go to ſay Maſs.

Amethyſt, (Gr.) a precious Stone of a Violet colour and faint Luſtre, ſo call'd becauſe it is ſaid to prevent Drunkenneſs. In Heraldry, the Purple colour in the Coats of Noblemen, which in the Eſcutcheons of the lower Gentry is call'd Purpure and Mercury; in thoſe of Soveraign Princes.

Amethyſtizontes, the beſt ſort of Carbuncles or Rubies.

Amiable, (Lat.) worthy to be Loved, Lovely, Charming.

Amiable Numbers, (according to M. Ozanam) ſuch as are mutually equal to the whole Sum of one another's Aliquot Parts; as theſe two Numbers 284 and 220: For 284 is equal to the Sum of all the Aliquot Parts of the ſecond Number 220, which are 1, 2, 4, 5, 10, 11, 20, 22, 44, 55, 110; and the latter Number 210 is equal to all the Aliquot Parts of 284, viz. 1, 2, 4, 71, 142.

Amiantus, (Gr.) a kind of Stone that is tozy like Wool, and call'd Earth flax or Salamander's Hair, which being put into the Fire, it will never burn or conſume.

Amicable, Friendly, Loving, Kind, Courteous.

Amient, a Roman Gold-Coin, worth 17*s.* 1 d. 3 ob. Engliſh Money, and otherwiſe call'd Conſularis from its being firſt Stampt by the Conſuls.

Aminadab, (Heb. a Free or Vowing People, or a Prince of People) the Son of Ram, and Father of Nabſhon; alſo the Son of Korath.

Aminæum Vinum, a ſort of Wine ſo call'd from Aminæa or Apulia, a Country of Italy.

Amittere Legem Terræ, (Lat. Law-Phraſe) to loſe the Law of the Land, or to be deprived of the Liberty of Swearing in any Court, anciently the Puniſhment of a Champion overcome or yielding in Fight; as alſo of Jurors found guilty in a Writ of Attaint, and of Perſons Outlawed.

Amity, Friendſhip, Love, Affection.

Amma, (Gr.) a Tying, Knitting, a Band; among Surgeons a Truſs us'd in Ruptures.

Ammi or Ammium, the Herb Biſhop's-Weed, good for the Gripes, difficulty of Urine, and the biting of Venomous Creatures.

Ammaſhaddai, (Heb. the People of the Almighty) a Prince of the Tribe of Dan.

Ammochryſos, (Gr.) a precious Stone appearing like Gold-Sands.

Ammodytes, a ſort of Serpent ſomewhat reſembling a Viper in ſhape, but of a Sandy colour; the Sand-Viper.

Ammon or Ammonites, (Heb. the Son of my People) a People deſcended from Benammi the Son of Lot.

Ammoniacum Gummi, Gum Ammoniack, a kind of Gum or Juice of a Plant, like our Giant-Fennel, growing near Cyrene in Barbary.

Ammonites, a ſort of Stone call'd the leſſer Spawn-ſtone.

Ammonitrum, a ſort of Nitre made of Sand and Nitre mixt together.

Amms-Ace, See Ace.

Ammunition, (Lat.) all ſorts of warlike Proviſions and Stores, eſpecially Powder and Ball.

Ammunition-Bread, the Bread that is provided for, and given to the Soldiers.

Amneſty, (Gr.) an Act of Oblivion, a general Pardon granted by a Prince to his Subjects for all former Offences.

Amnion or Amnios, (in Anat.) the Coat or ſoft Skin that immediately covers a Child in the Womb, and which is voided after the Birth with the others, call'd Allantois and Chorion.

Amnon, (Heb. True, alſo an Artificer or School-maſter) King David's Firſt-born Son by Abinoam, who having forc'd his Siſter Tamar, was kill'd by his Brother Abſalom.

Amœbean Verſes, (in Grammar) are ſuch as anſwer one another by courſe; as in ſome of Virgil's Eclogues.

Amomum, certain Grains of a Purple colour, biting Taſte, and ſpicy Smell; the Fruit of a Tree in the Eaſt-Indies: Some take it for a kind of Shrub growing in Armenia, round together like a Cluſter of Grapes, with a Flower reſembling a white Violet, and Leaves like the White Vine: Alſo the Herb call'd Jeruſalem, or our Lady's Roſe.

Amorites, or Amorrheans, a People of Paleſtine.

Amoroſo, (Ital.) an Amorous Man, a Lover, a Gallant, a Spark.

Amorous, apt to fall in Love, or belonging to Love.

A-mort, (Fr.) Dead: Whence one that is in a Melancholy Fit, is ſaid to be all A-mort, i. e. quite Dead-hearted.

Amortization, the Act of Amortizing. See Mortmain.

To Amortize, to Kill, a Word uſed by Chaucer: In a Law-ſenſe, to make over Lands or Tenements to a Corporation, Guild, or Fraternity and their Succeſſours.

To Amount, (Fr.) to riſe up in Value, or Tenour.

Amos, (Heb. a Burden or Burdening) an ancient Prophet of the Jews, whoſe Writings are ſtill extant among the Books of the Holy Scripture.

Amouriſt, (Fr.) an Amorous Perſon, one that is apt to be in Love.

Amours, Love-concerns, or Intrigues.

Amouſes, Counterfeit Gems or precious Stones.

Amoz, (Heb. Strong or Mighty) the Father of the Prophet Iſaiah.

Ampelitis, (Gr.) a kind of black, bituminous, clammy Earth, with which Vines were anointed to kill the Worms and make them thrive the better; Kennel-coal or Baſtard Jet.

Ampelodeſmos, a ſort of Herb which the Inhabitants of the Iſland of Sicily, us'd inſtead of Twigs to tie their Vines with.

Ampeloleuce, the Herb Briony, or the White Vine.

Ampeloprаſon, an Herb that grows about Vines or Vine-yards, Leak-Vine, Bears-Garlick, or Raiſins.

Ampelos agria, the Wild Vine, a ſort of Herb.

Amphemerinus, a Feaver or Ague that comes every Day.

Amphibious, that lives both in the Water and upon Land: Thus the Beaver, Otter, Frog, Gooſe, &c. are ſaid To be amphibious Creatures.

Amphibleſtroides, (in Anat.) a ſoft white ſlimy Skin or Coat of the Eye, ſo named, becauſe that being thrown in Water, it reſembles a Net. It is otherwiſe call'd Tunica Retiformis, and Retina.

Amphibology, a dark Speech that has a double meaning.

Amphibrachys, a Foot in Greek and Latin Verſe, having a long Syllable in the middle, and a ſhort one on each Side, as ămārĕ.

Amphibranchia, (in Anat.) certain Places about the Glandules or Kernels in the Jaws, that ſerve to moiſten the Throat, Stomach, &c.

Amphictyons, a Name anciently given to the Great Council of Greece, which conſiſted of eminent Perſons, choſen out of the Twelve chief Cities, for the making of Laws and deciding of Controverſies.

Amphidæum, a Term uſed by ſome Anatomical Writers, for the Summit or Top of the Mouth of the Womb.

Amphimacer, a Foot in Verſe, that has a ſhort Syllable in the midſt, and a long one on either Side; as æquĭtās.

Amphimallus, a Garment frized or ſhagged on both Sides.

Amphiproſtylos or Amphiproſtyle, (in Architect.) a kind of Temple of the Ancients, which had four Columns or Pillars in the Front, and as many in the Face behind.

Amphiſbæna, a kind of Serpent, which ſeems to have a Head at both ends, and goes both ways; the double-headed Serpent.

Amphiſcii, (in Geog.) thoſe People whoſe Shadows, at different times of the Year, fall both ways, viz. to the South Pole, when the Sun is beyond them in Northern Signs, and to the North Pole, when the Sun is to the Southwards of them in Southern Signs; and theſe muſt be the Inhabitants of the Torrid Zone.

Amphiſmela, a kind of Inſtrument uſed by Anatomiſts in the Diſſecting of Bodies.

Amphitane, a precious Stone of a Gold colour, which is of the ſame nature with the Load-ſtone, and draws Gold in like manner.

Amphitheater, a Place built by the ancient Romans, of a round or oval Figure, aud containing a great number of Seats, one above another, where the People ſaw divers Shews and Sports; as Prizes between Sword-players, Wild Beaſts Fighting, Repreſentations of Sea-fights, &c. See Theater.

Amphora, an ancient Meaſure of liquid things; a Veſſel of a Foot ſquare, with two Ears to hold by in lifting it up or carrying it; a Kilderkin or Firkin. The Italick Amphora contain'd five Gallons, and the Attick ſeven Gallons and a half.

Ample, (Lat.) that is of a large Extent, or of great Power; Noble, Abundant.

Ampliation, an Enlargement: In a Law-ſenſe, a deferring of Judgment till the Cauſe be better examin'd.

Amplification, an Amplifying or Enlarging: In Rhetorick, an Enlarging upon an Argument, to work upon the Hearers and gain their Belief of what is ſaid.

To Amplify, to Enlarge a Diſcourſe, or upon a Subject; to Romance, to Help the Matter, to Add to the Story.

Amplitude, Greatneſs, Largeneſs: In Aſtronomy, the Amplitude of the Sun and Stars, is an Arch of the Horizon, comprehended between the true Eaſt and Weſt Point of it, and the Center of the Sun, Moon, or any Star, at its Riſing or Setting: Or if the Sun, Moon, or Star be above the Horizon, then ſo many Degrees as are contain'd between the Azimuth of the Sun, Moon, or Star, and the ſaid Eaſt or Weſt, Point, ſhall be call'd The Amplitude.

Amputation, a Cutting away, or Lopping off: In Surgery, it is taken for the Cutting off any corrupted or putrefy'd Part or Member, to prevent the Infection from ſpreading through the whole Body.

Amram, (Heb. a high People) the Father of Moſes, Aaron and Miriam.

Amraphel, (i. e. a ſpeaking Deſtruction, or a ſpeaking Judgment) an ancient King of Shinar.

Amulet, a kind of Phyſical Compoſition or Charm to wear about one, to preſerve from the Plague, Poiſon, Inchantment, &c.

Amurath, the Name of ſeveral Ottoman Emperours, rours, and common to others in Turkey.

Amurca, (Lat.) the Mother, Lees, or Dregs, of Oil.

To Amuſe, (Fr.) to Stop or Stay one with a trifling Story, to make him loſe his time, to Feed with vain Expectations, to hold in Play.

Amuſement, a trifling Buſineſs to paſs away the time, a Toy; alſo the making of vain Promiſes to gain Time.

Amuſſis, (Lat.) a Maſon's or Carpenter's Rule or Line, Chalk'd or Oker'd, with which they level their Work: Whence the Phraſe Ad Amuſſim aliquid facere, To do a thing exactly by Line and Rule to a Hair's breadth.

Amy, (Fr. i. e. Friendly or Kind) a proper Name common to Men and Women: Alſo a Law-word; as Prochein Amy, i. e. the next Friend or Perſon to be truſted for an Infant or Orphan. See Prochein.

Amygdala, (Gr.) the Almond-tree or its Fruit. Amygdalæ is alſo taken for the Almonds of the Ears, the ſame with Pariſthmia and Tonſillæ; which See.

Amygdalate, an Artificial Milk or Phyſick-drink, made of blanch'd Almonds and other Ingredients.

Amygdalites, an Herb of the Spurge-kind, with Leaves like thoſe of an Almond-tree.

Amylon or Amylum, a kind of Food made of Wheat without grinding it, Bowls of Wheat or Frumenty; alſo White Starch.

Amyntica Emplaſtra, Defenſative Strengthning Plaiſters.

Amyris, a kind of ſweet Shrub that bears no Fruit, and which ſome took to be the Myrrh-tree.

Amyſtis, a Carouſe or Way of Drinking among the Thracians, who us'd to pour their Liquor down Gutter-lane, without fetching Breath, or without winking; alſo the Bowl or Cup they drunk out of.

An Jour & Waſte, (Fr. Law-phraſe) See Year, Day and Waſte.

Ana, (Gr.) a Word us'd by Phyſicians in their Bills, to ſignifie an equal or like quantity of each Ingredient to be taken for the compounding of any Medicine: Alſo an Eaſt-India Coin, worth $1\frac{1}{16}$d. or ſomewhat above an Engliſh Penny: Alſo a kind of Indian Beaſt, with long Teeth and ſharp Nails.

Anabaptiſton, See Abaptiſton.

Anabaptiſts, (Gr. i. e. Rebaptizers) certain Sectaries, who firſt appear'd in Germany, under the conduct of one Nicholas Stork, A. D. 1521. Their chief Tenet is, That Perſons ought not to be Baptized, till they are able to give an Account of their Faith.

Anabaſis, an aſcending or getting up, an Aſcent or Riſe: In the Art of Phyſick, the growth or encreaſe of a Diſeaſe.

Anabibazon, (i. e. Aſcending or Riſing up) a Term ſometimes uſed in Aſtronomy, for the Dragon's-Head, or the Northern Node of the Moon, where ſhe riſes from South to North Latitude, See Dragon's-Head and Nodes.

Anabrochiſmus, (in Surgery) a particular manner of drawing out the pricking Hairs of the Eye-lids that are turn'd inwards, viz. by means of a Thread of a fine Silk in the Eye of a Needle, which when doubled, the Hair is put through and ſo drawn out.

Anabroſis, a Coroding or Eating away: Among Surgeons, a Conſuming or Waſting of any part of the Body by ſharp Humours.

Anacampſeros, an Herb, which being but touch'd, has the force to reconcile Lovers or Friends fallen out; the Herb Orpin.

Anacamptical or Anacamptick, Reflecting, Turning or Bowing back or again, a Word often uſed with reſpect to Ecchoes, which are Sounds produced Anacamptically, or by Reflection.

Anacampticks or Catopticks, a Branch of Opticks, a Science which by the Rays of ſome luminous Object, reflected on a plain Surface, finds out and conſiders its Form, Dimenſions, Diſtance and other Properties.

Anacardium, a kind of Bean growing in Malacca, like a little Birds Heart.

Anacatharſis, a Medicine that Purges or Diſcharges Nature by ſome of the upper Parts; as any thing that provokes to Vomit, to Sneezing or Spitting.

Anacathartick Medicines, are ſuch as cauſe Vomiting.

Anacephalæoſis, a brief Recapitulation or Summary of the Heads of any Matter ſpoken or deliver'd in Writing; a ſhort Repetition or Summing up of what went before.

Anachites, the Diamond, a precious Stone ſo call'd, becauſe it is ſaid to have the virtue of driving away Diſtempers of the Mind, and to be a Preſervative againſt Poiſon.

Anachoreta, an Anchoret or Monk that retires from Company, and lives ſolitary by himſelf.

Anachroniſm, an Errour in Chronology or in the Computation of Time; a falſe Chronicling.

Anaclaticks, a part of Opticks which treats of all ſorts of Refractions, and is the ſame with Dioptricks.

Anacollema, a kind of Medicine to be apply'd to the Fore-head or Noſtrils, in Diſeaſes of the Eyes, or to ſtanch Bleeding; a binding Plaiſter for the Temples, &c. to ſtop the flowing down of Rheum. Alſo a Medicine that will conglutinate or cloſe the Parts, and breed Fleſh in a Wound or Ulcer.

Anacoluthon, (q. d. an Inconſequence in Diſcourſe) a Rhetorical Figure, when a Word that is to anſwer another, is not expreſs'd.

Anacreontick Verſe, a kind of Verſe that conſiſts of ſeven Syllables, without being tied to any certain Law of Quantity, and takes Name from its Author Anacreon, a famous Greek Lyrick Poet, who was choak'd with a Grape-Stone, and ſome of whoſe Poems are ſtill extant.

Anadendromalache, the Roſe-mallow Tree.

Anadeſma, a Band or Tie: Among Surgeons a Swathe or Bandage to bind up Wounds.

Anadiploſis, a Redoubling: In Rhetorick, a Figure, when the laſt Word in the end of a Verſe or Sentence is repeated in the beginning of the next, as —ſit Tityrus Orpheus, Orpheus in Sylvis. Virg. It is alſo ſometimes us'd in Medicine, for the redoubling of the Fits of Feavers, Agues, &c. and in this Senſe is call'd Epanadiploſis by ſome Writers.

Anadoſis, a Burſting forth, or Bubbling up as Water does; a Diſtribution: In the Art of Phyſick, it is chiefly us'd for the conveying of the Juice call'd Chyle, thro' the proper Veſſels, and ſometimes for whatever tends upwards in the Body, as a Vomit, &c.

Anagallis, the Herb Pimpernel, good for Wounds, and to cure the Pin or Web in the Eye. Anagallis aquatica, Sea-Purſlane or Brook-Lime. Anagallis Sylveſtris, the Herb Calves-Snout.

Anaglyptice or the Anaglyptick Art, the Art of Engraving, Chaſing, or Imboſſing Plate, &c.

Anagnoſtes, a Reader, a Clerk.

Anagoge, a raiſing of the Mind to ſearch out the hidden Meaning of any Paſſage; eſpecially the myſtical Senſe of the Holy Scriptures.

Anagogical, belonging to Myſteries, Myſterious, Myſtical; that has a raiſed or uncommon Signification, or that raiſes the Mind up to Divine Contemplations.

Anagram, an ingenious Interpretation of one's Name, Title, &c. by tranſpoſing the Letters of it, in order to make out ſomething to the Honour and Praiſe of the Perſon.

Anagraphe, a Regiſt'ring, or Recording of Matters; a Commentary, an Inventory, a Breviate.

Anagyris, a kind of Herb that is fair to the Sight, but has a ſtinking Smell; Bean-trefoil.

Anah, (Heb. Anſwering or Singing, or Poor) the Father of Abomilabab, one of Eſau's Wives.

Anaiſtheſia, (Gr.) a Defect or Loſs of Senſe, which happens to Perſons troubled with the Palſie, or that are Blaſted.

Anak, (Heb.) a Giant, from whom deſcended the Race of the Anakim or Giants that were deſtroyed by Joſhua.

Analecta, (Gr.) properly Fragments or Crums gather'd from Table; whence it is taken for Collections or Scraps out of Authors.

Analecta or Analectes, a Servant that gathers up the Crums and Scraps on the Floor after Dinner, the Sewer of the Table that takes away; alſo a well-read Scholar.

Analemma, a lofty Building, a Citadel or Fort. In Aſtronomy, an Orthographical Projection of the Sphere on the Plane of the Meridian, the Eye being ſuppoſed to be at an infinite Diſtance, and in the Eaſt or Weſt Points of the Horizon. In Dialling, a particular way to find out the Courſe or Height of the Sun or any other Planet; alſo a Mathematical Inſtrument us'd for that purpoſe.

Analepticks, Medicines that renew and cheriſh the Strength: Alſo a part of that Method in Phyſick which is call'd Hygieina, i. e. the Art of preſerving Health; whereby weak Perſons are recovered.

Analgeſia, Indolency, a being free from Pain or Grief.

Analogical, belonging to Proportion, Proportionable.

Analogiſm, (in Logick) a forcible Argument drawn from the Cauſe to the Effect, ſo as to imply an unavoidable Neceſſity: In the Art of Phyſick, a Compariſou of Cauſes relating to a Diſeaſe.

Analogous, anſwering in Proportion, Reſemblance or Faſhion; bearing Relation to, Proportionable, Alike.

Analogy, like Reaſon, Relation, Proportion, Agreement, Correſpondency: In Grammar, the Declining of a Noun, or Conjugating of a Verb, according to its Rule or Standard. In Mathematicks, the Compariſon of ſeveral Ratio's or Reaſons of Quantities or Numbers one to another; being much the ſame with Proportion; which See.

Analyſis, the Reſolving or Severing of a Matter into its Parts, for the better underſtanding of it: In Mathematicks, it is the Art of Diſcovering the truth or Falſhood of a Propoſition, by ſuppoſing the Queſtion to be always ſolved, and then examining the Conſequences, till ſome known and evident Truth be found out, or elſe the impoſſibility of the Propoſition in Hand.

In Chymyſtry Analyſis, is the reducing of any Subſtance into its firſt Principles: Among Anatomiſts, an exact Diviſion of all the Parts of a Humane Body, performed by a particular Diſſection of them.

Analytical or Analytick, belonging to an Analyſis or Method of Reſolving, &c.

Analytick, (in Logick) is a part of that Science which teaches to Decline and Conſtrue Reaſons, as Grammar does Words.

Analyticks or the Analytical Art, Algebra, often ſo call'd, as being nothing elſe but a general Analyſis of the pure Mathematicks; or becauſe it ſhews how to ſolve Queſtions and demonſtrate Theorems, by enquiring into the fundamental Nature and Frame of the Thing, which for that purpoſe is as it were reſolved into its Parts or taken all to pieces, and then put together again: In this Senſe, Analytical Demonſtrations are oppoſed to Synthetical ones; which See.

To Analyze Bodies, (in Chymiſtry) is to Diſſolve them by means of Fire, in order to find out the ſeveral Parts of which they are made.

Anamneſis, Remembrance: In Rhetorick, a Figure, whereby the Oratour calls to mind Matters that are paſs'd.

Anamneticks, Medicines that ſerve to reſtore the Memory.

Anancæon, a Rhetorical Figure that makes out the Neceſſity of a thing.

Ananiah or Ananias, (Heb. the Cloud or Divination of the Lord) the proper Name of ſeveral Perſons mentioned in Holy Scripture.

Anapæſtus or Anapeſt, a Foot or Meaſure in Greek or Latin Verſe, that has the two firſt Syllables ſhort, and the laſt long; as Piĕtās.

Anapeſtick Verſes, are thoſe that have ſuch Feet, and which are commonly us'd in Tragedies; where there are three Feet, which are made uſe of in all parts of the Verſe indifferently.

Anaphora, (i. e. Relation or Repetition) a Rhetorical Figure, when in the beginning of every Verſe or Member of a Sentence the ſame Word is repeated. Among ſome ancient Aſtronomers, it is taken for an aſcenſion or riſing up of the twelve Signs of the Zodiack from the Eaſt, by the daily courſe of the Heavens.

Anaphromeli, Honey that has no Froth.

Anapleroſis, a Filling up, or Supplying: In Surgery, that part of the Art, which reſtores what either Nature has denied or is otherwiſe decayed.

Anapleroticks, Medicines that help to fill Ulcers with Fleſh.

Anarchy, a being without Rule, want of all Government in a Nation or State, no Supreme Authority being there lodg'd, either in Prince or Rulers; ſo that all things are in the utmoſt Diſorder and Confuſion.

Anareta, (i. e. the Killer or Murderer) a Name given by Aſtrologers to the fatal Planet, which threatens Death in a Nativity.

Anarrhinon, a kind of Herb like Pimpernel; Calves-ſnout.

Anas, (Lat.) the Duck or Drake; a Water-Fowl.

Anaſarca, (Gr.) a kind of Dropſy, a white ſoft yielding Tumour or Swelling of the whole Body, or of ſome of its Parts, which dints in when the Fleſh is preſs'd.

Anaſtœchiaſis, a Reſolving of mixt Bodies into their Elements or firſt Principles by Chymical Operations.

Anaſtomoſis, a Looſening or Opening: In the Art of Phyſick, it is more eſpecially taken for a flowing out of the Natural Humours of the Body; as Blood, Lympha, Chyle, &c. at the meeting of Veſſels that are not well cloſed: Alſo the mutual opening of Arteries and Veins one into another.

Anaſtomoticks, Medicines that open and widen the Orifices of the Veſſels, ſo as to cauſe the Blood to circulate freely and paſs eaſily out of the Arteries into the Veins: Or Medicines which ſerve to open the Pores and Paſſages; ſuch are thoſe that purge or provoke Sweat or Urine, &c.

Anaſtrophe, (i. e. Inverſion or Turning the contrary way) a Grammatical Figure, when that Word is ſet foremoſt which ſhould follow; as Italiam contra.

Anataria, (Lat.) a kind of Eagle that preys upon Ducks.

Anataſis, (Gr.) an Extenſion upwards, a Stretching or Reaching out: In Surgery, the ſtretching out of the Body towards the upper Parts.

Anathēma, (the laſt Syllable but one being long) ſignifies any Offering or Gift ſet a-part or given to God, or to his Church; properly thoſe that were Conſecrated by the ancient Heathens to their Idols, and were uſually hang'd up on the Walls or Pillars of their Temples.

Anathĕma, (the laſt Syllable but one ſhort) is a ſolemn Curſe or Sentence of Excommunication; alſo any accurſed Thing, or a Perſon cut off from the Communion of the Church.

To Anathematize, to Excommunicate; to put under a Curſe.

Anathymiaſis, an Exhalation, Vapour, or Steam; a Perfume.

Anatociſm, a yearly renewing of Uſury, and taking Uſe upon Uſe, ſo as the Intereſt becomes the Principal.

Anatomical, belonging to Anatomy.

Anatomiſt, one skill'd in that Art.

To Anatomize, to Diſſect or Cut up a dead Body, in order to view its Parts.

Anatomy, a neat Diſſection or Cutting open of the Body of a Man or other Creature, whereby the Parts are ſeverally diſcovered, in order to explain their Original, Nature and Uſe; for improving the Art of Phyſick and Natural Philoſophy.

Anatripſis, a Rubbing againſt or upon; a Braying or Bruiſing: In Surgery, the Bruiſing or Breaking of a Bone, or of the Stone in the Bladder or Kidneys.

Anatron or Natron, a kind of Salt drawn from the Water of the River Nile in Egypt.

Anaxyris, the Herb Sorrel.

Anbury, a kind of Wen or ſpungy Wart full of Blood growing in any part of a Horſe's Body.

Anceſtour, (Fr.) a Fore-father: In Common-Law, the Difference between Anceſtour and Predeceſſour is, that the former is apply'd to a Natural Perſon; as J. K. and his Anceſtours, and the other to a Corporation or Body Politick; as A Biſhop and his Predeceſſours.

Anceſtrel, (Law-word) belonging to Anceſtours; as Homage Anceſtrel, i. e. Homage that has been done by one's Anceſtours.

Anchor, (Gr.) a well known Iron-Inſtrument that holds a Ship in the Place where ſhe Rides, and of which there are ſeveral ſorts, viz. The Bowers, the Grapnel, the Kedger, the Stream-Anchor and the Sheet-Anchor: Which See. The Parts of an Anchor are the Arm, Beam or Shank, the Flook or Fluke, the Ring and the Stock; all which are explain'd under thoſe Articles.

The Anchor, is ſaid To be a Cock-bell, when it hangs right up and down by the Ship's ſide; and To be a Peek, when it is juſt under the Hawſe or Hole in the Ship's Stern, thro' which the Cable belonging to it runs out: The Seamen ſay The Anchor is foul, when the Cable by the turning of the Ship is Hitched about the Fluke.

To Boat the Anchor, is to put it into the Boat: The Anchor is ſaid To come home, when it cannot hold the Ship, but that ſhe drives away by the violence of the Tide or Wind; and To fetch or bring home the Anchor, is to Weigh it: To let fall or drop the Anchor, is to put it down into the Sea, in order to make the Ship ride. To ſhoe the Anchor, is to caſe the Flook of it with Boards, that it may the better take hold where the Ground is ſoft.

Anchorage or Anchoring, Ground fit to hold a Ship's Anchor, ſo that ſhe may ride it out ſafely; the beſt ſort of which is a ſtiff Clay or hard Sand: In a Law-ſenſe, Anchorage is a Duty paid to the King for Caſting Anchor in the Pool of a Harbour.

Anchoralis Proceſſus, See Ancyroides.

Anchoret, a Hermit or Monk that leads a ſolitary Life in a Deſart.

Anchuſa, (Gr.) an Herb, a kind of Bugloſs; Alchanet or Orchanet.

Anchyle: See Ancyle.

Anchylops, a Swelling between the greater Corner of the Eye and the Noſe; the ſame as Ægilops.

Anchyſe: See Dragon's-Blood.

Ancient, Old, that is of former Time, particularly as oppoſed to Modern or Late.

Ancient Demeaſne, (Law-Term) a certain Tenure, by which all Manours belonging to the Crown, were held in the time of King Edward the Confeſſour, and William the Conquerour.

An Ancient or Anſhent, a Flag or Streamer, ſet up in the Stern of a Ship.

Ancients, a Title given in the Middle-Temple, to ſuch as are paſs'd their Reading and never read. In Gray's-Inn, the Society conſiſts of Benchers, Ancients, Barriſters and Students under the Bar. The Inns of Chancery have likewiſe their Ancients and Students or Clerks, and among the Ancients, one is choſen Principal or Treaſurer.

Ancienty, (Law-word) Ancientneſs, Seniority, Elderſhip, as The eldeſt Siſter can demand no more than her other Siſters by reaſon of her Ancienty.

Ancome, a kind of Boil, Sore or foul Swelling, that breaks out in the fleſhy Parts.

Ancon, (Gr.) properly the Place where the Arm is bent or bowed; the Elbow, the top or point of the Elbow: It is alſo ſometimes taken by Anatomiſts for the backward and larger ſhooting forth of the Bone of the Arm call'd Ulna.

In Architecture Ancones, are the Corners or Coins of Walls; the bowings or meetings of Members like an Elbow or the bent of the Arm; Croſs-beams or Rafters.

Anconæus, a Muſcle that helps to ſtretch out the Elbow, and is ſo call'd by Riolanus from its ſituation: It ariſes from the lower and back part of the Os Humeri or Shoulder-bone, and is inſerted to the lateral Part of the Brachiæus Externus, a Thumb's length below the Olecranum.

Ancony, a Term of Art us'd at the Iron-mines, when the Metal is work'd in the Finery-Forge, from a Bloom or four-ſquare Maſs, to a Bar of about three Foot long of any ſhape; leaving at each end a ſquare rough piece, to be wrought at the Chafery.

Ancteres, (Gr.) a Surgeon's Bands to tie or ſtitch up a Wound cloſe.

Ancyle, a kind of Javelin or Dart, or the Leather-thong, with which it is thrown: In Anatomy, the bending of the Elbow or of the Ham; the Contraction or Drawing together of a Joynt.

Ancyloblepharum, the growing of the Eye-lids to the Tunica Cornea or to the Albuginia, ſo that ſometimes both the Eye-lids cloſe and ſtick together.

Ancylogloſſum, a being Tongue-tied, when the ſmall ſtring under the Tongue is too ſtraight, which cauſes a difficulty in the uttering of the Words.

Ancylogloſſus, one that is Tongue-tied, or has an Impediment in his Speech.

Ancylotomus, a little Knife to cut the String under the Tongue.

Ancyroides, the Proceſs or ſhooting forth of the Shoulder-bones like a Beak; otherwiſe call'd Anchoralis, Coracoides and Cornicularis.

Andabatæ; (among the Romans) a ſort of Fencers, who fought hood-wink'd, or Champions that fought on Horſe-back blind-fold.

Andouille, (Fr. in Cookery) a kind of Chitterling, made either of Hogs or Calves Guts; the former being uſually ſtuff'd with Pork, and the other with Calves-Chaldron, Udder, &c.

Andouillet, minced Veal with Bacon and other Ingredients roll'd into a Paſte: Andouillets for Fiſh-days are alſo made of Eels and Carp's-fleſh, chopt ſmall or pounded in a Mortar.

Andrachne, (Gr.) the Herb Purſlain. Andrachne agria, wild Purſlain.

Andradſwald, a Wood in Suſſex, anciently 120 Miles in length, noted for the Death of Sigebert King of the Weſt-Saxons, who was Stabb'd there by a Swine-herd.

Andrew, a proper Name of Men, ſignifying Manly or Couragious, in Greek.

Androdamas, (Gr.) a precious Stone bright as Silver, in many Squares like a Diamond: Alſo a ſort of Blood-ſtone, very hard and weighty, which bleeds when rubb'd on a Whet-ſtone.

Androgynus, one that is both Man and Woman, or has the Natural Parts of both Sexes; a Scrat or Will-Jill, an effeminate Fellow.

Andromeda, a Northern Conſtellation, conſiſting of 27 Stars.

Androſaces, (i. e. Man's Remedy) a white Herb that grows on the Sea-coaſts of Syria, ſo call'd becauſe it forces Urine in Perſons troubled with the Dropſy; Dodder, or Withwind.

Androſæmon, a Plant, the Flower of which yields a Juice like Man's Blood; St. John's-wort or Tuſan, an excellent Plant for Wounds, either taken inwardly or outwardly applied.

Androtomy, a Diſſection of Humane Bodies; as Zootomy is that of other Living Creatures.

Anemius Furnus, (among Chymiſts) a Wind-Furnace us'd to make ſtrong Fires for Diſtilling or Melting.

Anemone, the Emony or Wind-flower, of which there is great variety in our Engliſh Gardens.

Anemoſcope, a Device invented to fore-ſhew the Change of the Air, or the Shifting of the Wind.

Anent, (Scotch) Concerning, or Relating to; alſo an old Egliſh Word for Over-againſt.

Anes or Awns, the Spires or Beards of Barley, or other bearded Grain.

Anethum, (Gr.) the Herb Dill.

Aneuriſm, (in Surgery) a Stretching or Burſting of the Arteries, ſo that they continually beat and ſwell, ſometimes to the bigneſs of an Egg; which Swelling yields if preſſ'd, but ſoon recoils

Angaria, the Preſſing of Horſes, Teams, Ships, Men, &c. for the Publick Uſe; any compelled Service. In our old Records, it is taken for any troubleſome or vexatious Duty or Service done by the Tenant to his Lord.

Angel, (Gr.) the Word properly ſignifies a Meſſenger or Bringer of Tidings, and is generally apply'd to thoſe Immaterial and Intellectual Beings, which God makes uſe of as his Miniſters to execute the Orders of his Divine Providence.

Angel, a ſort of Gold-coin that has the Figure of an Angel ſtampt on it, and is worth Ten Shillings: Alſo a kind of Chain-ſhot, a Cannon-bullet cut in two, and having the Halves joyn'd together with a Chain.

Angel-bed, a ſort of open Bed, without Bed-poſts.

Angelica, an Herb, the Diſtilled Water of which, and eſpecially the Roots reſiſt Poiſon and all infectious Vapours.

Angelical, belonging to, or partaking of the Nature of Angels.

Angelot, (Fr.) a kind of ſmall Cheeſe, commonly made in France: Alſo a Muſical Inſtrument ſomewhat like a Lute.

Angigloſſi, (Gr.) they that Stammer in their Speech, particularly ſuch as find it difficult to pronounce the Letters L, R and K.

Angild, (old Law-term) the bare ſingle Valuation or Satisfaction made for a Man or Thing, from the Saxon Words An one and Gild, Payment, Mulct, or Fine: So Twigild was the double Fine, and Trigild the Treble Fine according to the Ability of the Perſon.

Angina, (Lat.) an Inflammation of the Jaws and Throat, attended with a continual Feaver and a difficulty of Breathing and Swallowing; the Quinſey, which is of two ſorts either Spuria or Exquiſita, i. e. a baſtard or a true Quinſey: Again the latter is four-fold, viz. Cynanche, Paracynanche, Synanche and Paraſynanche; which See in their proper Places.

Angina Lini, the Herb Dodder.

Angina Vinaria, the Drunken Hiccough.

Angiology, (Gr.) a Diſcourſe or Treatiſe of the Veſſels of a Humane Body; as of the Veins, Arteries, Sinews, &c.

Angiotomy, a Cutting open of thoſe Veſſels; as in opening of an Artery, or Vein.

Angle, (Lat.) a Corner; alſo a Fiſhing-rod. In Geometry, a Space comprehended between the meeting of two Lines, which is either greater or leſs, as thoſe Lines incline towards one another, or ſtand farther aſunder. Theſe Angles are of two ſorts, viz. Plain or Spherical.

Plain Angle, is the Diſtance or Opening of Two Lines that touch one another in the ſame Plane, but ſo as not to make one ſtraight Line, and the Lines that form it are termed Legs: Or it is a Space bounded by the meeting of two Lines, which cut one another on a Plane; and may be either Right-lined, Curvilinear, or Mixed:

A Right-lined or Rectilineal Angle, is an Angle made by the meeting of two Right Lines. A Curvi-linear or Crooked-lin'd Angle, that which is made by the Interſection or Mutual cutting one another of two crooked Lines. A Mixti-linear or Mixed Angle, that which takes it's riſe from the meeting of a Right Line and a Curve or Crooked Line.

Spherical Angle, an Angle made by the meeting of two Arches of great Circles, which interſect or mutually cut one another on the Surface of the Globe or Sphere.

Angles, whether Plain or Spherical, may be conſider'd as Right, Acute, and Obtuſe.

A Right Angle, is when one Right Line falls perpendicularly on another, ſo as to leave an equal ſpace on each ſide, and the Meaſure of this Angle is always 90 Degrees or one quarter of a Circle; every Circle being uſually divided into 360 equal Parts, call'd Degrees.

An Acute Angle, is that which is leſs than a Right one, or contains leſs than 90 Degrees, and is ſo call'd becauſe its Angular Point is ſharp: An Obtuſe Angle, having its Angular Point blunt or broad, is greater than a Right one, and conſiſts of more than 90 Degrees. But no Angle can contain fully 180 Degrees; for then one Leg falls into the ſame Right Line with the other, and they make the Diameter of the Circle.

Angles, have alſo ſeveral other Names according to their different Poſitions, their Relation to the reſpective Figures they are in, and the Lines that form them; as either Contiguous or Oppoſite, External or Internal, Oblique, Solid, &c.

Contiguous or Adjacent Angles, have one Leg common to both Angles, and both taken together are always equal to two Right ones: Oppoſite or Vertical Angles, thoſe that are made by two Right Lines croſſing each other, and which only touch in the Angular Point. They take Name from their being oppoſed ad Verticem or at the Top, and therefore in ſome Books are call'd Head-Angles. An Angle alſo in any Triangle is ſaid To be oppoſite to the Side that ſubtends it.

External Angles, are the Angles of any Right-lined Figure without it, when all the Sides are ſeverally produced or lengthened; and they are all taken together, equal to four Right Angles.

Internal Angles, (in General) are all Angles made by the Sides of any Right-lined Figure within.

Oblique Angles, are ſuch as are either Acute or Obtuſe, in oppoſition to Right-Angles.

A Solid Angle, is the Meeting of ſeveral Planes or level Surfaces; which mutually cut one another, and meet all in one Point.

Angle at the Circumference, is an Angle made by any two Chords which meet there in a Point.

Angle of a Segment, is an Angle made by the Circumference of a Circle and a Right-Line cutting it: And Angle in a Segment is an Angle made by two Right-Lines riſing from the Angles of the Segment, and meeting in the Circumference.

Angle of Longitude, (in Aſtron.) is the Angle which the Circle of a Star's Longitude, makes with the Meridian, at the Pole of the Ecliptick.

Angle of the Sun's Poſition, an Angle made by the meeting of an Arch of a Meridian Line, with an Arch of an Azimuth, or any other great Circle paſſing thro' the Body of the Sun.

Angle of Incidence, (in Catoptricks) is an Angle made by a Ray of Light falling on a Body, with any Tangent Line of that Body, which is next the luminous or light Body: In Dialling, it is an Angle made by the ſtraight Line that proceeds from the Sun to the Dial-plane.

Angle of Reflection, that which is form'd by the reflected Ray, at the Point of Reflection, with the other part of the Tangent Line of the ſaid Body: In Dialling, an Angle made by a ſtraight Line which proceeds from the Angle of Incidence.

Angle of Refraction, that which is made by the Ray of Incidence, prolonged through another Medium (as out of the Air into the Water) and the Ray of Refraction; or the ſame Ray conſider'd, as it were broken and deviating from a Right-Line.

Angle of the Interval of two Places, (in Opticks) is the Angle made by the Lines directed from the Eye to thoſe Places.

Angle Refracted, is the Angle between the Refracted Ray and the Perpendicular.

Angle of the Baſtion, (in Fortif.) an Angle made by the two Faces of the Baſtion, being the utmoſt part, call'd the Point of it, and moſt expoſ'd to the Enemies Batteries: It is the ſame with the Flanke'd Angle.

Angle at the Center, an Angle made in the midſt of the Polygon or many-ſided Figure, by two Lines proceeding from the Center, and ending at the two neareſt Angles of the Polygon.

Angle of the Circumference, is the mix'd Angle made by the Arch which is drawn from one Gorge to another.

Angle of the Complement of the Line of Defence, is the Angle that proceeds from the interſection of the two Complements one with another.

Angle of the Courtin or Angle of the Flank, that which is made by, or contained between the Courtin and the Flank in any piece of Fortification.

Angle of the Counterſcarp, that which is made by two Sides of the Counterſcarp, and meets before the middle of the Courtin.

Angle Diminiſhed, an Angle made by the Face of the Baſtion, with the outward ſide of the Polygon, and only in uſe among the Engineers of Holland.

Angle of the Epaule: See Epaule.

Angle of the Exteriour Figure or Angle of the Polygon, that which is formed at the Point of the Baſtion, by the meeting of the two outermoſt Baſes or Sides of the Polygon.

Angle of the Interiour Figure, that which is made in the Center or Middle of the Baſtion, by the meeting of the innermoſt Sides of the Figure.

Angle of the Flank. See Angle of the Courtin.

Angle Flanked, that which is made by the meeting of the two Faces of the Baſtion: See Angle of the Baſtion.

Angle flanking outward, that which is form'd by the meeting of the two Razant Lines of Defence; that is to ſay, the two Faces of the Baſtion prolonged. See Angle of the Tenaille.

Angle flanking inward, the Angle made by the Flanking Line and the Courtin.

Angle forming the Face, is that which conſiſts of one Flank and one Face.

Angle forming the Flank, that which is made up of one Flank and one Demi-Gorge; or an Angle made by the Flank and that part of the ſide of the Polygon, which runs from the ſaid Flank to the Angle of the Polygon; which if lengthened, croſſes the Baſtion, and is only uſed by Dutch Engineers.

Angle of the Moat, that which is made before the Courtin where it is interſected.

Angle Mort. See Angle of the Tenaille.

Angle of the Polygon: See Angle of the Exteriour Figure.

Angle Re-ent'ring or Rentrant Angle, is an Angle that points inward towards the Body of the Place.

Angle Saillant or Saliant, otherwiſe call'd Sortant and Vif, is an Angle that thruſts out its Point towards the Campaign or Country.

Angle of the Shoulder or Epaule, an Angle made by the Lines of the Face and Flank of the Baſtion.

Angle of the Tenaille or the outward flanking Angle, that which is made by the two Lines Fichant, i. e. the Faces of the two Baſtions extended till they meet in an Angle towards the Courtin; ſo as always to carry its Point in towards the Work: It is alſo call'd Angle-Mort or the Dead Angle, and Angle Rentrant or Angle inwards.

Angle of the Triangle, is half the Angle of the Polygon.

Angle of the Eaſt, (in Navigat.) that Point of the Compaſs which the Ship ſails upon. Alſo an Aſtrological Term: See Angles in Aſtrology.

Angles of a Battallion, (in the Art of War) are made by the laſt Men at the ends of the Ranks and Files: Whence the two laſt Men of the Front-Rank are call'd Front-Angles, and the two laſt Men of the Rear-Rank, Rear-Angles.

In Aſtrology, Angles are taken for certain Houſes of a Scheme or Figure of the Heavens, viz. the Horoſcope or Firſt Houſe term'd The Angle of the Eaſt; the Seventh Houſe, The Angle of the Weſt; the Fourth Houſe, The Angle of the North; and the Tenth Houſe The Angle of the South.

To Angle, to Fiſh with an Angle, or Rod.

Anglia, (Lat.) a part of the Iſland of Great Britain, now call'd England.

Angliciſm, a Propriety of the Engliſh Speech; the Engliſh Way of ſpeaking or Writing.

Angober, a kind of Pear bluſh-coloured on one ſide, and a grainiſh Ruſſet on the other.

Anguelles, (in Falconry) a ſort of ſmall Worms caſt up by ſick Hawks.

Anguifer or Anguitenens, (Lat.) a Conſtellation or Cluſter of Stars in the Heavens, the Figure of which repreſents a Man holding a Serpent, and 'tis ſaid to fore-bode a Storm, when it ſets in the Morning: See Ophiuchus.

Anguilla, an Eel or Grig, a known Fiſh: Anguilla arenaria, the Sand-Eel.

Anguis, a Serpent, a Snake, an Adder.

Anguiſh, (Fr.) exceſſive Grief, or Pain; great Trouble of Mind, or Body; Affliction, Diſtreſs.

Anguitenens: See Anguifer.

Angular, belonging to, or having Angles or Corners.

Anguloſity, (a Philoſophical Term) the quality of that which has ſeveral Angles.

Anguſtus Clavus, a ſmall Stud or Button, ſhap'd like the Head of a Nail, which the Roman Knights us'd to wear on a Garment, thence call'd Tunica anguſti Clavi; whereas the Senatours had them of a larger Size; and their Coat was therefore nam'd Tunica lati Clavi.

Anhaltina, Medicines which promote Reſpiration or the more eaſy fetching one's Breath; ſuch as Wound-herbs, Brimſtone, &c.

Anhelation, a difficulty in Breathing, ſhortneſs of Breath.

Anhelote or Anlote, an old Law-word, ſignifying that every one ſhould pay his reſpective Part and Share, according to the Cuſtom of the Country.

Anicetum, (Lat.) Aniſe-ſeeds, an excellent Remedy for Wind in the Stomach and the Wind-Colick.

Anima, (Lat.) the Breath, the Soul, the Principle of Life.

Anima Gummi, a ſort of whitiſh Gum, like Frankincenſe, brought from Ethiopia, as alſo from the Eaſt and Weſt-Indies.

Anima Hepatis, (i. e. the Soul of the Liver) a Name given by ſome Chymiſts to Vitriol and Sal Martis, or Salt of Steel, becauſe the Diſeaſes of the Liver are cur'd by it.

Anima Saturni, (according to ſome Chymiſts) ſignifies the Extract of Lead.

Animadverſion, the Act of animadverting, or obſerving; a ſerious conſideration and reflection upon any Point; Correction, a Remark or Obſervation on a Book, &c.

Animadverſive, that Conſiders, or Reflects; as The Animadverſive Faculty.

To Animadvert, to bend or turn the Mind to a thing, to take Notice of, to Remark or Obſerve.

Animal, Living, that belongs to Life, that has Life in it; as The Animal Spirits. In Morals, Animal is oppos'd to Rational.

Animal Bezoar. See Bezoar.

Animal Faculty, the Act by which a Man exerciſes Senſe, Motion, and the principal Functions of the Mind; as Imagination, Reaſoning, Memory, &c.

An Animal, a Living-Creature, any thing that has Life and Senſe; as a Man, a Beaſt, a Bird, &c.

Animalcula, (Lat.) are very ſmall Animals, ſuch as by the Microſcope have been diſcovered in moſt Liquors, of which there are prodigious numbers in Black-Pepper-water; as alſo in Water wherein Barley, Oats, and eſpecially Wheat has been ſteep'd for four or five Days.

To Animate, to give Life, Enliven, or Quicken; to Hearten, or Encourage; to Abet, Egg, or Set on.

Animated Mercury, ſo Mr. Boyle calls Quickſilver, which being impregnated or fill'd with ſome ſubtil, nimble and ſpirituous Particles is made capable of growing hot when mingled with Gold; and ſuch alſo he calls Incaleſcent Mercuries.

Animated Needle, is one touch'd with a Loadſtone.

Animation, the ſupplying of an Animal Body with a Soul. Thus the Fœtus, or Child in the Womb is ſaid To come to its Animation, when it begins to act like a true Living-Creature, or after the Female that bears it is Quick; according to the uſual manner of Expreſſion.

Animi Deliquium. See Deliquium Animi.

Animodar, (in Aſtrol.) one of the Methods of rectifying Nativities, ſo as artificially to find out the exact Minute aſcending at one's Birth.

Animoſity, Stoutneſs, Stomachfulneſs, Wilfulneſs; alſo Heart-burning, Hatred, Grudge.

Ani Procidentia: See Procidentia Ani.

Aniſcalptor: or Aniſcalptoris Muſculi Par, (Lat. i. e. the Arſe-ſcratcher) the Name of a pair of Muſcles ſo call'd from that Action which is perform'd by the help of it; as ſerving to draw the Arm backward and downward: It is alſo term'd Latiſſimus Dorſi, i. e. the broadeſt of the Back from its Largeneſs.

Aniſum, Aniſe, a ſweet-ſmelling Herb, ſomewhat like Smallage, the Seeds of which are good for ſhortneſs of Breath; a Cough, &c.

Ank'red, (in Heraldry) a kind of Croſs for a Coat of Arms, the ends of which are ſhap'd like the Flook of an Anchor.

Anlace, (old Word) a Falchion or Sword, whoſe ſhape reſembles a Scithe.

Anna or Ann, (Heb.) a Chriſtian Name of Women, ſignifying Gracious, full of Mercy or Courteſy.

Annales, (Lat.) Hiſtories, or Chronicles of things done from Year to Year. In ſome old Records, Yearlings are young Cattel of the firſt Year.

Annaliſt, a Writer of Annals.

Annals, yearly Chronicles, a Chronological Account of remarkable Paſſages happening in a Kingdom or Common-wealth from Year to Year: In this reſpect, they differfrom Hiſtory which deſcants upon thoſe Events, and on the Cauſes that produc'd them.

Annarian Law, (among the Romans) a certain Law relating to the Age in which a Man might ſue for, or exerciſe any Publick Office.

Annas, (Heb.) a High Prieſt of the Jews, who ſent Chriſt bound to Caiaphas his Father-in-Law.

Annats or Annates, (Lat.) Firſt-Fruits out of Spiritual Livings, being the value of one Year's Profit, anciently paid to the Pope and now to the King. See Firſt-Fruits.

Anneal, a certain Commodity brought from Barbary, to be uſed by Dyers and Painters.

Annealing, a Staining and Baking of Glaſs, ſo that the Colour may go quite thro' it; an Art by ſome Caſualty altogether loſt in England, if not in Europe, but lately reviv'd and improv'd; Annealing is alſo a particular way of Baking Tiles.

To Annex, to Unite or Joyn one thing to another, eſpecially Lands, Provinces, &c.

Annexation, the Annexing, or Uniting of Lands, or Rents to the Crown.

Annienten, (Fr. Law-word) Brought to nought, Fruſtrated, or made void.

To Annihilate, (Lat.) to Bring, or Turn any created Being to nothing, to Deſtroy it utterly.

Annihilation, the Act of Annihilating.

Anni Nubiles, (Lat. Law-Phraſe) the marriageable Age of a Maiden, i.e. at Twelve Years; before which time, ſhe is ſaid To be infra annos nubiles.

Anniverſary, done yearly at a certain time, or celebrated every Year.

Anniverſary Days, (among our Saxon Anceſtours) were certain ſolemn Days appointed yearly, in remembrance of the Deaths, or Martyrdoms of Saints: Alſo Days on which at the return of every Year, People us'd to pray for the Souls of their deceaſed Friends; which cuſtom is ſtill in uſe among Roman Catholicks.

An Anniverſary, a yearly Obit, or Service ſaid by a Popiſh Prieſt, for a dead Perſon, once every Year.

Anno Domini, (Lat. i. e. in the Year of our Lord) is that reckoning of Time from our Saviour's Birth, which with the Year of the King's or Queen's Reign, is commonly us'd in England, for the Date of Publick Deeds and Writings.

Annolis, a Creature in America, about the bigneſs of a Lizard, and of a yellowiſh Skin, which in the Day-time is continually a prouling about the Cottages for Food, and in the Night lies under Ground, making a great Noiſe.

Annotation, Note, Remark, or Obſervation.

To Annoy, (Ital.) to Hurt, to Prejudice, to Endammage.

Annoyance, Prejudice, Dammage, Injury: See Anoyſance.

Annua Penſione, a Writ whereby the King having due to him a yearly Penſion from an Abbot or Prior for any of his Chaplains, us'd to demand it of ſuch an Abbot or Prior and requir'd him, for his Chaplain's better Aſſurance to give his Letters Patent for the ſame.

Annual, Yearly, that comes every Year.

Annual Leaves, are ſuch as come up in the Spring and periſh in the Winter.

Annual Equation or the mean Motion of the Luminaries: See Equation.

Annualia, (in old Latin Deeds) a yearly Salary, or Allowance made to a Prieſt for keeping an Anniverſary; or otherwiſe, for ſaying continued Maſſes one Year for the Soul of a deceaſed Perſon.

Annuates Muſculi, (in Anat.) a pair of Muſcles ſeated at the root of the Tranſverſe Vertebra of the Back, and ſo nam'd by Mr. Cowper, becauſe they make the Head nod directly forwards: He alſo calls them Recti interni minores, from their lying under the Recti majores.

Annuity, a yearly Rent, or Income, to be paid for term of Life, or Years: The main difference between an Annuity and a Rent, is that the latter is payable out of Land; whereas an Annuity only charges the Perſon of the Grantor, or his Heirs.

To Annul, to Aboliſh, to Repeal, to make void.

Annularis Cartilago, (Lat. in Anat.) the ſecond Cartilage, or Griſtle of the Larynx, or top of the Wind-pipe, which is encompaſs'd by it, as it were, with a Ring.

Annularis Digitus, the Ring-finger, which is between the Middle-finger and the Little-finger.

Annularis Proceſſus, a Bunch, or Knob made by the meeting of the Proceſſes of the Medulla Oblongata under the ſide of it.

Annularis Protuberantia, a certain part of the Humane Brain, lying between the Cerebellum and the two backward Prominences, or Bunching out Parts; the ſame as Annularis Proceſſus.

Annulet, a little Ring, or any thing made in the ſhape of a Ring: In Heraldry, the Figure of ſuch a Ring, being the mark of Diſtinction, which the fifth Brother of any Family uſually bears in his Coat of Arms: Annulets are alſo part of the Coat-Armour of ſeveral good Families.

In Architecture, Annulets are ſmall ſquare Parts turn'd about in the Corinthian Capital under the Echinus, or Quarter-Round: Alſo certain ſquare Members put upon the Dorick Chapiter, above the fourth part of the Oval.

To Annumerate, to put into the Number.

Annunciation, the delivery of a Meſſage: The Word is peculiarly apply'd to the Feſtival commonly call'd Lady-day kept yearly March 25. in remembrance of the Meſſage concerning our Saviour's Birth, brought by the Angel Gabriel, to the Bleſſed Virgin Mary.

Anodyne, (Gr.) that ſerves to aſſwage, eaſe, or quite take away Pain.

Anodynes, Medicines us'd for that purpoſe: They are alſo ſometimes call'd Paragoricks, from the Comfort and Quiet that they procure to the Patient.

Anœa, (Gr.) Madneſs, a loſs of the Faculties of Imagination and Judgment.

Anomalous, that is out of Rule, Irregular, Unequal, Unlike: In Grammar, there are four kinds of Anomalous Nouns, viz. Heterogeneal, Heteroclites, Difficients and Redundants: Which See under thoſe Words.

Anomaly, (in Grammar) an Irregularity in the Conjugations of Verbs or Declenſions of Nouns, when they do not follow the common Rule. Among Aſtronomers, it is taken for an Inequality or Unlikelineſs in the Motions of the Planets; as alſo ſometimes for the Argument of the Irregularity, and the Equation which ſhould adjuſt it.

The True or equal Anomaly of a Planet, is an Arch of the Eccentrick, comprehended between the true Place and the Apogæum.

The Mean Anomaly of the Sun or other Planet, (in the old Aſtronomy) is an Arch of the Ecliptick, between its mean Place and its Apogee.

The Mean, or Equable Anomaly of a Planet, (in the New Aſtron.) is the Area contain'd under a certain Line drawn from the Sun to the Planet, and ſo call'd, becauſe this Area encreaſes equably, or in proportion to the Time of the Planet's Revolution round the Sun in the Focus, or Navel-point of the Elliptical Figure.

The Mean Anomaly of the Center, (in the Ptolemaick Theory) is an Arch of the Zodiack of the Primum Mobile, terminated by the Linea Apſidum, and by the Line of the Mean Motion of the Center.

The True Anomaly of the Center, is the ſame Arch of the Zodiack, bounded by the Line of the Apſes, and by that of the true Motion of the Center.

Anomaly of the Orbit, is the Arch, or Diſtance of a Planet from its Aphelion.

Anomœomeres, (in Philoſ.) that which conſiſts of ſeveral and different Particles.

Anonis, the Herb Commock, or Reſt-harrow, the Root of which ſteep'd in Wine provokes Urine, and drives out Gravel.

Anonium, the Nettle without Sting, Dead-Nettle, or Archangel.

Anonymous, that is without a Name, Nameleſs.

Anonymous, that is without a Name, Nameleſs.

Anonymous Spirit, (in Chymiſtry) a kind of Spirit that may be ſeparated from Tartar and ſeveral ſorts of Wood; the ſame as Adiaphorous or Neutral Spirit, which See.

Anopſia, a want of Sight, or Blindneſs.

Anorexia, a want of Appetite, a Loathing of Meat, occaſioned by an ill Diſpoſition of the Stomach.

Anoyſance, Noyſance, or Nuſance, (Law-term) any hurt or dammage done to a Publick Place, as a High-way, Bridge, &c. Or to a private one by Encroachment, by laying any thing that may breed Infection, or otherwiſe.

Anſa, (Lat.) the Ear or Handle of a Cup, Pot, or Jug; any thing to hold by: Among Aſtronomers, Anſa or Anſes are taken for the various Poſitions of the Ring of Saturn, becauſe they ſometimes appear like Handles to the Body of that Planet. See Ring of Saturn.

Anſel-weight. See Auncel-weight.

Anſelm, (Germ.) a proper Name of Men, ſignifying Defence of Authority.

Anſepeſade, ſee L'ancepeſade.

Anſer, (Lat.) the Gooſe or Gander, a Water-fowl. Anſer Baſſianus, the Solan Gooſe, which breeds in an Iſland on the Coaſt of Scotland, call'd the Baſs.

Anſerina, Wild Tanſey or Silver-weed, an Herb that Geeſe feed upon.

Anſwerable, that is obliged to anſwer for a thing, accountable; alſo that has ſome relation to a thing proportionable.

Antachates, (Gr.) a precious Stone of the Agate kind, which being burnt ſmells like Myrrh.

Antagoniſt, one that ſtrives for the Maſtery againſt, or out-vies another, one that in Diſputation or Arguing oppoſes another.

Antagoniſta or Antagoniſt, (in Anat.) is taken for a Muſcle of an oppoſite Situation or contrary Quality: As the Abductor and the Adductor, of the Cubitus; the former ſerving to pull back the Arm, and the other to ſtretch it out.

Antanaclaſis, (i.e. a reflecting or beating back) a Rhetorical Figure, when a Word ſpoken in one Senſe is handſomly turn'd to another; as A Gentleman being told that his Son waited for his Death, and the Son denying it, the Father reply'd, I would have you wait for it, (long enough) he meant.

Antanagoge, properly a going forth to meet the Enemy, a producing on the contrary Side: In Rhetorick, a Figure, when not being able to anſwer the Adverſary's Accuſation, we return the Charge, by loading him with the ſame Crimes.

Antaphroditicks, Medicines that are us'd againſt the French Pox.

Antapocha, the Counter-part of a Deed, or Writing; a Counter-bond.

Antapodoſis, a returning or repaying on the other Side or by turns: In Rhetorick, the Counter-part or latter Clauſe of a Similitude, anſwering the former. Thus, As the Soil is improv'd by Tilling, ſo the Mind is more refin'd, and render'd more ſublime by good Diſcipline.

Antarctick, (in Aſtron.) as The Antarctick Pole, i. e. the South Pole, or end of the Axis of the World, ſo call'd from its being oppoſite to the Arctick or North Pole.

Antarctick Circles, one of the leſſer Circles of the Globe or Sphere, which is deſcribed 23 Degrees and a half from the Antarctick or South Pole. See Arctick and Polar Circles.

Antares, the Scorpion's Heart, a fixed Star of the firſt Magnitude in the Conſtellation Scorpio; its Longitude being 245 Deg. 13 Min. Latitude 4 Deg. 27 Min.

Antarthriticks, Remedies good againſt the Gout.

Antaſthmaticks, Medicines againſt the Tiſſick or ſhortneſs of Breath.

Anteambuſo, (Lat.) a Sergeant of the Mace to a Prince, a Verger or Gentleman-uſher.

Antecedence, Among Aſtronomers, a Planet is ſaid To be in Antecedentia, or in Antecedence, when it appears to move contrary to the uſual Courſe or Order of the Signs of the Zodiack; as when it moves from Taurus towards Aries: But if it proceed from Aries to Taurus, and ſo to Gemini, &c. They ſay, it goes in Conſequentia or in Conſequence.

Antecedent, going before in Time, fore-going.

Antecedent Signs, (in the Art of Phyſick) ſuch Signs or Cauſes as are obſerved before a Diſeaſe; as An ill Diſpoſition of the Pancreatick Juice or of the Choler is the cauſe of many Diſeaſes.

The Antecedent, (in Grammar) is that Word which the Relative refers to; See Relative: In Logick, it is the former part of the Syllogiſm or Argument. See Conditional Propoſitions.

Antecedent of the Reaſon, (in Mathematicks) is the firſt Term of Compariſon in a Proportion, or that which is compar'd to another. Thus if the Reaſon or Proportion were of the Quantity A to B, or of the Number 4 to 8; A or 4 is the Antecedent, and B or 8 the Conſequent of that Reaſon.

Anteceſſor, (Lat.) one that goes before. In the Roman Law, the Prepoſſeſſour of an Eſtate, or the Predeceſſour in an Office.

Antecurſor, a Fore-runner, a Scout, a Dragoon; one of the Forlorn Hope that rode before the Army.

Antedate, an older Date than it ought to be.

To Antedate, to Date a Letter, or other Writing before the time.

Antediluvian, belonging to the Time before Noah's Floud; as the Antidiluvian Earth, i. e. the Earth that then was, before it was deſtroy'd by the Floud.

Antediluvians, thoſe Generations from Adam that were before the Floud; as thoſe ſince deſcended from Noah, are call'd Poſt-Diluvians.

Antemeridian, belonging to the time before Noon or Mid-day.

Antemeticks, (Gr.) Medicines that are given againſt Vomiting.

Antenantioſis. See Enantioſis.

Antendeixis, (a Term in Phyſick) a contrary Indication, Symptom, or Sign, forbidding that to be us'd which appear'd to be proper by a former Indication: Thus abundance of ill Juice in the Bloud requires Purging, &c. But the Weakneſs of the Patient may forbid it.

Antepaſt, (Lat.) a Fore-taſte.

Antepenultima, (in Grammar) the third Syllable of a Word, beginning to count from the laſt.

Antepredicaments, (in Logick) things neceſſary to be known before-hand, for the better underſtanding of the Predicaments; as Definitions, of Univocal, Equivocal and Denominative Terms, &c.

Anterides, (Gr. in Architect.) Buttreſſes ſet againſt the Walls, to uphold or bear up the Building.

Anteros, a precious Stone, the beſt ſort of Amethyſt.

Antes, (Lat.) the Fore-ranks or outmoſt Ranks of Vines: In Architecture, Pillars or huge Stones ſet to under-prop the Front of a Houſe; alſo ſquare Pilaſters, which the Ancients us'd to place at the corners of the Walls of their Temples.

Anteſtature, (Fr. in Fortif.) a Traverſe or ſmall Intrenchment made of Palliſadoes, or of Sacks fill'd with Earth, and rais'd in haſte, to diſpute the reſt of the Ground, when the Enemy has already gain'd part.

Anthalium, (Gr.) a kind of Apple growing in the Sandy Places of Egypt, about the bigneſs of a Medlar, and anciently us'd in Second Courſes.

Anthedon, a ſort of Medlar-tree, with a Flower like that of an Almond-tree; the Fruit delicious and laſting.

Anthelix, (in Anat.) the Protuberance or Knob of the Ear, or the inward brink of the outward Ear, being a Semi-circle within the Helix, and almoſt parallel to it.

Anthelminticks, Medicines that deſtroy Worms in Humane Bodies.

Anthem, an Hymn or Spiritual Song ſung in Divine Service in ſeveral Parts, eſpecially in Cathedral and Collegiate Churches.

Anthemis, the Herb Camomile.

Anthera, the yellow Seeds in the middle of a Roſe; alſo a Salve of a bright Orient Colour; alſo a kind of Medicine for ſore Mouths.

Among Herbaliſts Antheræ are taken for thoſe little Knobs that grow on the tops of the Stamina of Flowers, and are oftener call'd Apices; which See.

Anthology, a Diſcourſe or Treatiſe of Flowers or of the Floriſt's Art; alſo a choice Collection of Epigrams or Sentences.

Anthonians, an Order of Religious Perſons ſet up by the Egyptian Monk St. Anthony, about A. C. 324.

Anthony, a Proper Name of Men, which in Greek ſignifies Flouriſhing.

St. Anthony's-Fire, a kind of Swelling full of Heat and Redneſs.

Anthophylli, (Gr.) a large ſort of Cloves.

Anthora or Antithora, a Counter-poiſon to Thora or Wolfs-bane, which is of a venomous Quality.

Anthracites, a precious Stone in which appear as it were Sparks of Fire.

Anthracoſis Oculi, a Scaly Eating Ulcer in the Eye, accompany'd with a general Swelling, eſpecially of thoſe Parts.

Anthrax, a Coal, a Live-Coal; a Carbuncle or precious Stone like a burning Coal, a kind of Ruby: Alſo a Carbuncle-ſwelling, otherwiſe call'd Carbo and Pruna that ariſes in ſeveral Parts, ſurrounded with fiery, ſharp and painful Pimples; which cannot be brought to run with Matter, but turn to an Ulcer that looks as if it were burnt with a hot Iron.

Anthriſcus or Anthriſcum, an Herb like wild Chervil, but having its Leaves ſomewhat thinne.

Anthropology, a Diſcourſe or Deſcription of Man, or of a Man's Body.

Anthropomorphites, a Sect of Hereticks that appear'd in Egypt, A. C. 395, and were ſo call'd from their chief Tenet, viz. That God had a Bodily Shape.

Anthropomorphus, the Mandrake, a ſort of Plant.

Anthropopathy, (a Term in Divinity) a being endued with the Paſſions or Affections of Men.

Anthropophagi, Men-eaters, Savage People that eats Man's Fleſh; ſuch are thoſe of Scythia and ſeveral parts of America.

Anthus or Florus, the neighing Bird, a ſmall Bird that feeds upon Flowers, and imitates the Neighing of a Horſe.

Anthyllion, an Herb like a Lentil, which being drunk in Wine, frees the Bladder from Stoppages, and ſtanches Blood.

Anthyllis, an Herb like Ground-Ivy.

Anthypnoticks, Medicines that hinder Sleep.

Anthypochondriaca, Remedies againſt the Diſeaſes of the Hypochondria.

Anthypophora, a Rhetorical Figure, in which the Inſinuations or Objections, that the Adverſary may make are fairly anſwer'd.

Anthyſtericks, Medicines good againſt the Fits of the Mother.

Antiades, the Glandules or Kernels, commonly call'd the Almonds of the Ears; or an Inflammation in thoſe Parts.

Antiaphroditicks, Medicines that allay the Heat of Luſt.

Antiarthriticks, Remedies againſt the Gout.

Antibacchius, a Foot in Greek or Latin Verſe, conſiſting of the two firſt Syllables long, and a third ſhort, as nātūră.

Antiballomena, Medicines that are of an equal or like Strength.

Anticachecticks, Remedies that correct the ill Diſpoſition of the Blood.

Anticardium, a hollow part in the Breaſt above the Region or Place of the Heart; the Heart-pit, or Pit of the Stomach.

Anticellium, an Herb, otherwiſe call'd Anthyllion, which See.

Antichamber, an Apartment in a Houſe before the principal Chamber, where Strangers are firſt admitted, a Withdrawing-room.

Antichreſis, (Gr. in the Civil Law) a Mortgage or Pawn, left for the Creditor to uſe till the Debt be paid.

Antichriſt, an Adverſary to Chriſt, a Seducer that puts himſelf in Chriſt's room and ſtead.

Antichthones, the ſame as Antipodes; which See.

To Anticipate, (Lat.) to take up before-hand, or before the time; to prevent, to fore-ſtall.

Anticipation, the Act of Anticipating.

Antichnemium, (Gr.) the fore-part of the Leg.

Antick, a piece of Antiquity: Alſo a Buffoon, or Juggler; as He is a meer Antick.

Anticks or Antick-work, (in Painting or Carving) a Device of ſeveral odd Figures or Shapes of Men, Beaſts, Birds, Fiſhes, Flowers, &c. that are rudely form'd one out of another, according to the Artificer's Fancy, and afford a grateful Variety to the Beholder's Eye.

To Dance Anticks, is to dance like a Jack-pudding, after an odd and ridiculous manner.

Anticolica, (Gr.) Remedies againſt the Cholick.

Antidactylus or Anapeſt, a Foot in Verſe, contrary to a Dactyl, and conſiſting of the two firſt Syllables ſhort and the laſt long; as pĭĕtās.

Antidicomarians, a ſort of Hereticks that were againſt the Virgin Mary.

Antidinica, Medicines againſt Dizzineſs of the Head.

Antidote, a Remedy againſt deadly Poiſon, a Counter-poiſon; as Mithridate, Treacle, Orvietan, &c.

Antidyſenterica, Medicines that are effectual againſt the Dyſentery, or Bloody-flux.

Antiemeticks, Remedies that ſtop Vomiting.

Antiepilepticks or Antiepileptick Medicines, ſuch as are good againſt the Falling-ſickneſs.

Antipileptick Elixir, a Spirit of the Humane Head, mingled with an equal quantity of Spirit of Wine, in which Opium has been diſſolv'd: It is good for the Apoplexy, Falling-ſickneſs, Scurvy, and ſeveral other Diſeaſes.

Antihecticks, Remedies againſt a Hectick Feaver, or Conſumption.

Antihecticum Poterii, or Jupiter's Diaphoretick, a Chymical Medicine made of a mixture of Tin with the Martial Regulus of Antimony, and fixed by Salt-peter.

Antihypnoticks, Medicines that drive away Sleep.

Antihypochondriacks, Remedies us'd againſt the Hypochondriack Melancholy.

Antiloemica, Medicines againſt the Plague.

Antilogarithm, (in Trigonometry) the Complement of the Logarithm of any Sine, Tangent, or Secant, to 90 Degrees.

Antilogia or Antilogy, a Contradiction between any Paſſages, or Words in an Author.

Antilope, a Mungrel Beaſt having wreathed Horns, which is engender'd of a Heart and a Goat.

Antimetrical, that is contrary to the Nature and Order of Metre or Verſe.

Antimeria, a Figure in Rhetorick, when one part of Speech is put for another.

Antimetabole, a Rhetorical Figure, when Words are repeated in the ſame Sentence, in a different Caſe, Tenſe, or Perſon; as Non ut edam vivo, ſed ut vivam edo.

Antimetaſtaſis, a tranſlating or changing to the contrary Part.

Antimonarchical, that is againſt Monarchy, or Kingly Government.

Antimonium, Antimony, a Mineral conſiſting of a Sulphur like common Brimſtone, and of a Subſtance which comes near that of Metals: It is ſometimes call'd the Red-Lion by Alchymiſts, and ſometimes the Philoſopher's Wolf; becauſe it turns Red, and conſumes all Metals except Gold.

Antimonium Diaphoreticum, a Chymical Medicine made of one part of Antimony and three of Salt-peter, powder'd, mix'd together, and prepar'd according to Art; ſo that its Sulphurs are fix'd by the Salt-peter, and hinder'd from working otherwiſe than by Sweat: The Doſe is from ſix or eight Grains to thirty.

Antimonium Medicamentoſum, is a Preparation conſiſting of 5 Ounces of Antimony, 1 Ounce of Salt of Tartar and 4 Ounces of Salt-peter Fluxed together into a Regulus, which is afterwards reduc'd to Powder and waſh'd.

Antimonium Reſuſcitatum, is made of equal Parts of Antimony and Sal-Armoniack ſublimed together three times; then the Sublimate is to be waſh'd with Diſtilled Vinegar warm, to get out the Salts.

Antinephriticks or Antinephritick Medicines, ſuch as are good againſt Diſtempers of the Reins, or the Stone in the Kidneys.

Antinomia, the Repugnance, or Contrariety between two Laws.

Antinomians, a Sect of People that hold the keeping of Moſes's Law to be unprofitable, and that there is no Sin in Children: They began to appear ſomewhat above 100 Years ago, and had one John Iſlebius a German for their Ring-leader.

Antioch, a City of Syria, were the Diſciples were firſt called Chriſtians.

Antiochus, the Name of the ſeveral Kings of Syria that ſucceeded Alexander the Great.

Antiœci. See Antæci.

Antipagmenta, (Lat. in Architect.) the Garniſhings of Poſts or Pillars.

Antiparaſtaſis, a Rhetorical Figure, when one grants what the Adverſary ſays, but denies his Inference.

Antipaſis, the Revulſion or drawing back of a Diſeaſe, when Humours that flow into ſome one Part, are turn'd back again and forc'd to take ſome other Courſe, by opening a Vein in a remote Part, &c.

Antipater, (i. e. inſtead of, or againſt a Father) a proper Name of ſeveral Men, particularly of one of Alexander the Great's Captains and Succeſſours, and of Herod's Father Governour of the Jews.

Antipathy, a Contrariety of Natural Qualities betwixt ſome Creatures and Things; a Natural Averſion: In a Phyſical Senſe, a Contrariety of Humours in the Body, or of Medicines.

Antipendium, (Lat.) a large Silver-ſkreen that covers the Front of a Popiſh Altar in ſome Churches, and is hanged on with Screws upon a Feſtival-Day.

Antiperiſtaltick Motion, an irregular Motion of the Guts from the bottom to the top, contrary to their Natural Courſe.

Antiperiſtaſis, (in Philoſ.) the Encounter, or Combat between two contrary Qualities joyn'd together, by which means their Force and Vigour is encreas'd: Thus Heat, or Cold when beſet with its contrary Quality, is render'd much more intenſe and violent; whence Springs are ſaid to be hotteſt in Winter, or cold Weather; and Lime grows hot by pouring cold Water on it, &c.

Antipharmacum, a Remedy againſt Poiſon, or againſt any Diſeaſe.

Antiphone, a Singing by way of Anſwers, when one Side of the Choir ſings one Verſe, and the other another.

Antiphraſis, a Grammatical Figure, when a Word has a meaning contrary to the original Senſe; alſo a Figurative Speech, that has a contrary Meaning to what it carries in appearance.

Antiphthiſica, Medicines againſt a Conſumption, or Phthiſick.

Antipleuriticum, a Remedy againſt the Pleuriſy.

Antipodagrica, Medicines proper for the Gout.

Antipodes, (in Geog.) thoſe Inhabitants of the Earth who live in oppoſite Parallels of Latitude, and under the oppoſite Half of the ſame Meridian: and go with their Feet directly oppoſite one to another: So that they have their Summer and Winter, their Noon and Midnight, as alſo the Riſing and Setting of the Stars, quite contrary one to another.

Antipope, a falſe Pope ſet up by a particular Faction, againſt one that is duley choſen.

Antiptoſis, a Grammar-Figure, when one Caſe of a Noun is put for another.

Antipyreudicum or Antipyreticum, a Medicine that allays Heat in Feavers.

Antiquarii, (Lat.) certain Secretaries, who were appointed by the Roman Emperours, to Copy out old Books, in order to tranſmit them to Poſterity.

Antiquartanarium or Antiquartium, a Remedy againſt a Quartan-Ague.

Antiquary, one that is well ſkill'd in, or applies himſelf to the Study of Antiquity.

To Antiquate, to Aboliſh, Repeal, or make void.

Antirrhinon or Anarrhinon, the Herb Calves-ſnout, or Snap-Dragon.

Antiſabbatarians, a Sect of Hereticks that deny the Sabbath.

Antiſcii, (in Geogr.) People that live in ſuch Parts of the World, that their Shadows are caſt contrary at Noon; as thoſe on the South Side of the Equinoctial, with reſpect to us on the North Side of that Line.

Antiſcions, (in Aſtrol.) certain Degrees in the Zodiack, anſwering one to another. And Antiſcion-Signs are thoſe which with reference to each other, are equally diſtant from the two Tropcal Signs Cancer and Capricorn; ſo that a Planet in ſuch a Station, is ſaid to caſt its Antiſcion, i. e. to give Virtue, or Influence to another Star or Planet, that is in the oppoſite Sign.

Antiſcorbuticks, (Lat.) Medicines againſt the Scurvey.

Antiſcorodon, (Gr.) a kind of Garlick call'd alſo Allium Cyprium and Ulpicum.

Antiſigma, a Note or Mark in the ancient Writings, where the Order of the Verſes is to be chang'd; a Sigma revers'd (σ)

Antiſophiſtes or Antiſophiſta, a Counter-Sophiſter, one that Diſputes on the contrary Part, that Argues or Declaims againſt another.

Antiſpaſmodicks, Medicines againſt the Cramp, Shrinking of the Sinews, or Convulſions.

Antiſpaſticum, a revulſive Remedy, that turns Diſtempers to other Parts.

Antiſpaſtus, a Foot in Greek or Latin Verſe, conſiſting of the firſt Syllable ſhort, the ſecond and third long and the fourth ſhort, as Alexāndĕr.

Antiſpoda or Antiſpodia, ſuch Drugs as have the ſame Operation that Spodium has, and are us'd inſtead of it; a kind of Medicinal Aſhes made of certain Herbs.

Antiſtœchon, (i. e. a changing of Letters) a a Term in Grammar, when one Letter is put for another; as Promuſcis for Proboſcis; where the Conſonant m is put for b, and the Vowel u for o.

Antiſtrophe, (i. e. turning on the contrary Side) a Figure in Rhetorick, when a Turn, or Change is made between two Terms that have dependance one on another; as if one ſhould ſay, The Servant of the Maſter, or the Maſter of the Servant. In ancient Stage-plays it ſignifies the turning of the Chorus, or Choir the contrary way; the Strophe, or firſt Turn of the Singers being on one Side of the Stage, and the Antitrophe, or Counter-turn on the other.

Antitaſis, an Extending on the contrary Side, Reluctancy, Reſiſtance: In Anatomy, an oppoſite placing of Parts in the Body, as that of the Liver and Spleen.

Antithenar, one of the Muſcles that ſerve to ſtretch out the Thumb.

Antitheſis, a ſetting one thing againſt another; Oppoſition: In Rhetorick, a kind of Flouriſh when Contraries are ingeniouſly oppos'd to Contraries in the ſame Period, or Sentence; ſo that the Excellence of one, and the Evil or Vanity of the other may more plainly appear.

Antitragus, (in Anat.) a little Knob in the Ear, ſeated at the lower end of the Anthelix, and oppoſite to the Tragus: Which See.

Antitrinitarians, a Sect of Hereticks, who deny the Trinity of the Three Divine Perſons in the Godhead.

Antitype, (a Term in Divinity) an Example, or Copy, like the Pattern; as the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper is with reſpect to the Jewiſh Paſſover, or as the Sanctuary is ſaid To be an Antitype of Heaven, Heb. 9. 24.

Antivenereal, as Antivenereal Medicines, i. e. ſuch as are proper for rooting out the French Pox.

Antlet, a Term us'd among Hunters; ſo the Start, or Branch in a Deer's Attire, next the Head is call'd the Brow-Antler, and the next above that the Bezantler.

Antocow, (among Farriers) a round Swelling about half as big as one's Fiſt, which breaks out in the Breaſt of a Horſe, over againſt the Heart.

Antœci or Antiœci (Gr. in Geogr.) thoſe Inhabitants of the Earth who live under the ſame Meridian, but oppoſite Parallels: So that they dwell in the ſame Zone and the ſame Climate, but under different Poles, and have Noon and Midnight at the ſame Time, but different Seaſons; it being Winter with one, whilſt it is Summer with the other.

Antonians. See Anthonians.

Antonomaſia, a Rhetorical Figure, whereby inſtead of a Proper Name, an Appellative or Common one is put; as The Philoſopher inſtead of Ariſtotle, the Apoſtle inſtead of St. Paul: Alſo when the proper Name of one Perſon or Thing is apply'd to ſeveral others, or on the contrary, the Name of ſeveral Things to one: Thus any voluptuous Perſon is call'd a Sardanapalus, and any cruel Man a Nero, in regard that thoſe Princes were tranſcendently noted for Diſſoluteneſs and Cruelty.

Antrum, (Lat.) a Cave or Den: In an Anatomical Senſe it is taken by Dr. Willis, for the beginning of the Pylorus, or lower Mouth of the Stomach where its Coats are thickeſt.

Anvil, a well known Tool on which Smiths and other Artificers Forge their Works.

Riſing-Anvil, a kind of Anvil with two Nooks or Corners, us'd by Gold-ſmiths or Silver-ſmiths in rounding any piece of Metal.

Anus, (Lat. in Anat.) the end of the Inteſtinum Rectum, or ſtraight Gut, conſiſting of three Muſcles, viz. two call'd the Levatores, which ſtretch out and widen the Fundament, in order to diſcharge the Excrements, and one nam'd the Sphincter, which ſhuts it up and keeps it ſo: Alſo a Cavity or hollow part in the Brain, which ariſes from the four Trunks of the Spinal Marrow: Some alſo take it for the Skin that goes over the Navel, which when wrinkled is a ſign of old Age.

Anweald, (Sax.) Authority.

Anxiety, (Lat.) Anguiſh, Vexation, Sorrow; Heavineſs, or great Trouble of Mind.

Anxious, Sad, Sorrowful, Careful, Doubtful, Thoughtful, much concerned.

Anydron, (Gr.) a ſort of Herb which makes thoſe thirſty that taſte it.

Aoriſt, (in Grammar, i. e. Indefinite) the Name of two Tenſes of the Greek Verbs, which ſignify a great uncertainty of Time, viz. a thing a doing, or already done, lately or long ſince; alſo ſometimes that is to be done.

Aorta, (in Anat.) the great Artery which proceeds from the left Ventricle of the Heart, beats continually, and diſtributes Blood to the whole Body for Nouriſhment. See Arteria Aorta.

Apagma, (Gr. in Surgery) the thruſting of a Bone or other part out of its proper Place.

Apagogical Demonſtrations, (in Logick) are ſuch as do not prove the thing directly, but ſhew the Impoſſibility and Abſurdity that ariſes from denying it; and therefore it is uſually termed Reductio ad impoſſibile, aut ad abſurdum.

Aparctias, the North-Wind.

Aparine, Cleavers or Gooſe-graſs, an Herb good againſt the King's-Evil, Jaundice, Stone, &c.

Apartment, that part of a great Houſe where one or more Perſons lodge ſeparately by themſelves.

Apathy, (Gr.) a being abſolutely void of Paſſions, or Affections.

Apeliotes, the South-Eaſt Wind.

Apepſia, a want of Digeſtion, a bad Digeſtion or Rawneſs of Stomach.

Aper, (Lat.) a Wild-Boar, alſo the Sea-boar, a Fiſh.

Aperiens Palpebram Rectus, (in Anat.) a Muſcle ſo call'd from its ſtraight Progreſs and Uſe: It ariſes from the deepeſt part of the Orbit of the Eye, near the place where the Optick Nerve is ſent forth, and paſſing directly over the Muſculus Attollens, is inſerted to the whole upper part of the upper Eye-lid.

Aperientia, Aperitives, Medicines that are of an opening Quality, particularly ſuch as open the Paſſages that are ſtopt up in the ſmall Veſſels, Glands, or Pores, and by that means promote a due Circulation of the Juices contain'd in them.

Apertio Portarum, (Lat. i. e. an Opening of the Gates) a Term us'd by Aſtrologers, to ſignify ſome great and manifeſt Change of the Air, upon certain Configurations, or Meetings of the Planets.

Apertura, (in Architect.) an Aperture, little Hole, or Paſſage in a Building.

Apertura Feudi, (in the Civil-Law) the loſs of a Feudal Tenure, by default of Iſſue of him, to whom the Feude, or Fee was firſt given, or granted.

Apertura Tabularum, the Breaking up of one's laſt Will and Teſtament.

Aperture, (in ſome Writers of Geometry) the Inclination, or Leaning of one Right-line towards another, which meet in a Point and make an Angle. It is ſo call'd, as being the opening of the Legs of the Angle, like thoſe of a Joynt-Rule.

In Opticks Aperture, is the Hole next to the Object-Glaſs of a Teleſcope, or Microſcope, thro' which the Light and Image of the Object comes into the Tube, or Pipe, and is convey'd thence to the Eye.

Apetalous Flowers or Plants, (among Herbaliſts) are ſuch as want the fine colour'd Leaves of Flowers, which they call Petala. Theſe Flowers are otherwiſe term'd Stamineous, and are reckon'd Imperfect.

Apex, (Lat.) the Top, Point, Higheſt pitch, or Uppermoſt and Sharpeſt Part of any thing: In Geometry, the Top of a Cone, or ſuch like Figure, which ends in a ſharp Point.

Aphaca or Aphace, (Gr.) a kind of Pulſe, the wild Vetch.

Aphæreſis, a Taking away: In Grammar, a Figure that takes away a Letter or Syllable from the beginning of a Word; as ruit for eruit. Virg.

Aphelion or Aphelium, (in Aſtron.) that Point of any Planet's Orbit in which it is the fartheſt diſtant from the Sun, that it can ever be; as Perihelion is the Point wherein it is at its neareſt Diſtance.

Apheta, the Name of a Planet, otherwiſe call'd Hylech, which Aſtrologers take to be the Giver, or Diſpoſer of Life in a Nativity.

Aphetical, belonging to that Planet.

Aphoriſm, a notable Definition, an eminent but ſhort Remark; a general Maxim, or Rule in any Art or Science, particularly ſuch a one as is experienced for a Truth, or relates to Practice.

Aphrodiſia Phrenitis, a Mad and Violent Love-Paſſion in Maids.

Aphron, a kind of Poppey, a Flower.

Aphronitrum, a ſort of Salt-peter.

Aphroſcorodon, a kind of great Garlick.

Aphthæ, the Thruſh, eſpecially in Children; certain Wheals, Ulcers, or Pimples about the inward Parts of the Mouth; as alſo about the Stomach and Guts, which when come to the height, fall off by piece-meals, and are often accompany'd with a Feaver, in thoſe of riper Years.

Aphya, a kind of Fiſh, which being ſet on the Fire, is boil'd in an inſtant; a Groveling, a Minow, or Peel; a Leach, or Pink: See Apua.

Apiary, (Lat.) a Place, or Court where Bees are kept.

Apiaſtra, a Bird that eats Bees, call'd, a Midwal, or Martinet.

Apiaſtrum, an Herb which Bees delight in; Balm-gentle, or Mint.

Apica Ovis, a kind of ſmall-body'd Sheep, bearing little Wool; a pilled Ewe.

Apices of a Flower, (among Herbaliſts) are thoſe ſmall Knobs that grow on the tops of the Stamina, or fine Threads in the middle of the Flower, and are commonly of a dark Purple colour.

Apios, (Gr.) a Pear; alſo the Horſe-radiſh Root.

Apis, (Lat.) the Bee, an Inſect.

Apium, the Herb Parſley.

Apium paluſtre, Smallage, an Herb whoſe Root is reckon'd among the Five opening Roots, and its Seed among the leſſer hot Seeds.

Aplanes, (Gr. i. e. free from Wand'ring, or Settled) the fixed Stars, ſo call'd by ſome Aſtronomical Writers, in oppoſition to the Planets; alſo the Spheres themſelves in which they are plac'd.

Apnœa, (q. d. a want of Breath) an Impairing, Leſſening, or utter Loſs of the Faculty of Breathing, at leaſt as to Senſe; as it happens in Swoonings, Fits of the Mother and ſtrong Apoplexies.

Apocalypſe, the Revelation of St. John the Evangeliſt, the laſt Book of the New Teſtament, ſo call'd, becauſe it contains many dark Myſteries which were reveal'd to him.

Apochyliſma, (among Apothecaries) any Juice boil'd and thicken'd with Honey or Sugar, into a kind of hard Conſiſtence. It is otherwiſe call'd Rob, Rohob and Succago.

Apoclaſma, a Breaking off, or aſunder. In Surgery, the Breaking off any part of the Body.

Apocope, (i. e. a Cutting off) a Grammatical Figure, in which the laſt Syllable, or Letter of a Word is taken away; as Viden' for Videſne: In Surgery, the Cutting off any Part or Member.

Apocriſiarius, a Surrogate, Commiſſary, or Chancellour to a Biſhop; an Office which was firſt eſtabliſh'd in the Church, in the time of Conſtantine the Great.

Apocriſis or Apocriſia, (in the Art of Phyſick) a Caſting, or Voiding of Superfluities out of the Body.

Apocrouſticks, (among ſome Phyſicians) are ſuch Medicines as hinder the flowing of the Humours into any particular Part of the Body, and force back thoſe that are beginning to flow thither.

Apocrypha, (i. e. Hidden, or Dark) certain Books of doubtful Authority, which are not receiv'd into the Canon of Holy Scripture.

Apocryphal, belonging to thoſe Books, or to any others, whoſe Original is unknown.

Apocynon, a kind of Shrub, or Herb, which kills Dogs that eat it.

Apodacryticum, a Medicine that provokes Tears.

Apodes, Martinets, or Swallows ſo call'd becauſe their Feet are ſo ſhort, that they have but little uſe of them.

Apodictical or Apodictick, Demonſtrable, Eaſy to be ſhewn or made to appear: Whence in Logick, an Apodictical Syllogiſm is a clear Demonſtrative Argument.

Apodidraſcinda, a Play among Children, call'd King by your leave, or Hide and Seek.

Apodioxis, an Expelling, or Driving out. In Rhetorick, a Figure when any Argument or Objection, is with Indignation rejected as abſurd.

Apodixis, a plain Proof, or evident Demonſtration.

Apodoſis, a Giving again, or Recompenſing: Alſo a Rhetorical Figure, call'd Redition, being the Application, or latter part of a Similitude.

Apogæi, Winds that blow from the Land.

Apogæum or Apoge, (in Aſtron.) that Point of Heaven where the Sun, or any other Planet is fartheſt from the Center of the Earth; as Perigæum is the Point where a Planet is at its neareſt Diſtance from the Earth.

The Mean Apogæe of the Epicycle, is a Point where the Epicycle is cut above by a Right-line drawn from its Center, to the Center of the Equant; or the Point of the Epicycle moſt remote from the Earth.

Apogæe of the Equant, is the fartheſt Diſtance of it from the Earth; or, that Point where the Circumference of the Equant is cut by the Line of the Apſes in the remoteſt part of the Diameter: As the Perigee of the Equant, is the oppoſite Point of the neareſt part of the Diameter.

Apographa, an Inventory of Goods.

Apographon, a Copy written, or drawn after another; a Pattern, a Draught.

Apolecti, (among the Romans) principal Senatours, or Counſellours; the Council of State, or Privy Council.

Apolectus, a kind of Tuwney-Fiſh.

Apolepſia, a Receiving, or Recovering; an Intercepting, or Preventing: Among Phyſicians, a Stoppage in the Courſe of the Blood or Animal Spirits.

Apollyon, a Name ſignifying the Deſtroyer, and in Holy Scripture given to the Devil.

Apologetical or Apologetick, belonging to an Apology, or to any thing that is Said or Written by way of Excuſe for any Action.

Apologiſt or Apologer, one that makes an Apology.

To Apologize, to make one's Defence.

Apologue, a Moral, Inſtructive Fable, or Tale; ſuch as thoſe of Eſop.

Apology, an Excuſe, or Defence; a juſtifying Anſwer; a Clearing of one's ſelf.

Apomecometry, an Art that ſhews how to meaſure things at a Diſtance, or to find how far they are off from one.

Aponeuroſis, (in Anat.) the Spreading, or Stretching of a Nerve, or a Tendon out in Breadth after the manner of a Membrane. Alſo the Cutting off a Nerve or Tendon is ſo call'd.

Apophaſis, (i. e. a Denial) a Rhetorical Figure, when the Oratour ſeems to wave what he would plainly inſinuate, as I will not proceed againſt you with the utmoſt Rigour, I will not mention what perhaps I might obtain. Alſo a Verdict, or Sentence paſs'd in a Court of Juſtice.

Apopherota, Gifts, or Preſents anciently made at certain Feſtivals, or Solemnities, to be carry'd away by the Gueſts.

Apophlegmatical Medicines, ſuch as are endu'd with the Faculty of Drawing cold Phlegmatick Humours from the Head, and diſcharging them by the Noſe or Mouth.

Apophthegm, a ſhort, pithy, inſtructive Sentence, or Saying; eſpecially, of ſome grave and eminent Perſon; as the Apophthegms of Plutarch, or thoſe of the Ancients collected by Lycoſthenes.

Apophthora, the bringing forth of a Child putrify'd in the Womb; an Abortion, or untimely Birth.

Apophyge, a Flight, an Eſcape: In Architect. that part of a Pillar, where it ſeems to fly out of its Baſe, like the Proceſs of a Bone in a Man's Leg, and begins to ſhoot upwards: But this Apophyge is really nothing elſe but the Rings or Ferrils heretofore faſten'd at the ends of wooden Pillars to keep them from ſplitting, and afterwards imitated in Stone-work.

Apophyſis, (in Surgery) a Proceſs, or Part of a Bone that grows out beyond its plain Surface; a Bunch, or Knob in a Bone, made by its Fibres produc'd or lengthen'd, which is commonly at the end of it.

Apoplectical, belonging to, or ſubject to the Apoplexy.

Apoplectick, Proper for, or Good againſt that Diſeaſe; as Apoplectick Balſam.

Apoplexy, (q. d. a deadly ſtunning or aſtoniſhing) a Diſeaſe in which the paſſages of the Brain being ſtopt, and the courſe of the Animal Spirits hinder'd, the affected Perſon becomes like one in a Trance, altogether void of Senſe and Motion.

Apore or Aporime, (in Mathem.) a Problem, which tho' it be not impoſſible, yet is very difficult to be reſolved, and has not yet actually been ſo: Thus the Quadrature, or Squaring of a Circle may be call'd an Apore; becauſe as yet there is no Way or Path diſcover'd to lead the Inquirer into it.

Aporia, an intricate Buſineſs, Perplexity of Mind, Doubtfulneſs, Difficulty: In Rhetorick, a Figure, when one is at a ſtand what to do; as Eloquar & ſileam? Shall I ſpeak out, or ſhall I be Silent?

Aporrhœa's, a Word us'd by Mr. Boyle for Effluviums.

Aporrhoe, a flowing down, or iſſuing from; a ſteaming out of Vapours or Sulphureous Effluviums thro' the Pores of the Body.

Aporrhœa, the ſame: Alſo a Term appropriated by Aſtrologers to the Moon, when ſhe ſeparates from one Planet and applies to another.

Apoſceparniſmus, (in Surgery) a ſort of Fracture, or breaking of the Scull, when ſome Part is plainly raiſed.

Apoſiopeſis, (i. e. a holding one's Peace) a Rhetorical Figure, when one leaves out ſome Word or Part of a Sentence, and yet may be underſtood; as Quos ego——ſed motos præſtat componere fluctus. Virg. Subintell. puniam, multabo, vel quid ſimile.

Apoſitia, a loathing of Meat.

Apoſpaſma, part of a thing drawn, pull'd or born off: In Surgery, the drawing of one part from another which naturally ſtuck to it; as when the Skin is ſeparated from a Membrane, a Membrane from a Muſcle, one Muſcle from another, &c.

Apoſta, a Creature in the Iſland of Tobago in America, ſo much in love with Men, that it often follows them and delights to gaze on them.

Apoſtare Leges, or Apoſtatare Leges, (in old Latin Records) wilfully to tranſgreſs or break the Laws.

Apoſtaſy, (Gr.) a revolting or falling away from the true Religion; or from a Religious Order.

Apoſtata capiendo, a Writ heretofore directed to the Sheriff, to take the Body of one, who having enter'd into or profeſs'd any Religious Order, leaves it, departs from his Monaſtery, and wanders about the Country.

Apoſtate, a Revolter from his Religion, a Back-ſlider, a Renegado; a Monk that breaks his Vows, and caſts off his Habit.

To Apoſtatize, to play the Apoſtate, to quit one's Religion, or a Religious Order.

Apoſtema or Apoſteme (Gr. i. e. a ſtanding a-part) a preternatural Swelling caus'd by corrupt Matter gather'd together in any Part of the Body and commonly call'd an Impoſtume or Abſceſs.

Apoſtle, a Perſon ſent as a Meſſenger or Ambaſſadour to preach the Goſpel; of whom our Bleſſed Saviour at firſt choſe Twelve, and at his Departure appointed them to Plant and Govern Churches throughout the World.

Apoſtolate or Apoſtleſhip, the Dignity, Miniſtery, or Office of an Apoſtle.

Apoſtolical or Apoſtolick, deriving Authority from, or belonging to the Apoſtles.

Apoſtolorum Unguentum, a cleanſing Ointment, ſo call'd, becauſe it is made of twelve Drugs, according to the number of the Apoſtles.

Apoſtrophe, (i. e. a Turning away) In Grammar, an Accent, or Mark, ſhewing that there is a Vowel cut off; which is expreſs'd thus (') and ſet at the Head of the Letter; as Ain' for Aiſne. Alſo a Rhetorical Figure, when the Oratour turns his Speech from the Judge, or the Hearers, to one that is abſent, or to any Being, whether ſenſible or inſenſible, which he beſpeaks as if it were a Perſon.

Apoſyrma, (Gr.) that which is Drawn, Shaved, or Parted off; In Surgery, a ſhaving of the Skin, or of a Bone.

Apothecary, one that Prepares and Sells all ſorts of Medicines, Drugs, &c.

Apotheoſis, a Conſecration, or ſolemn Enrolling of Great Men after their Death, in the number of the Gods; a Cuſtom much in uſe among the Ancient Heathens.

Apotome, a Cutting, or Cutting off: In Mathematicks, an irrational Remainder, or reſidual Root, when from a rational Line, a Part is cut off, which is only commenſurable in Power to the whole Line. In Muſick, it is the Difference between the greater and leſſer Semitone, or the remaining part of a whole Tone, when a greater Semitone is taken from it.

Apozeme, a Phyſical Decoction, a Diet-Drink made of ſeveral Roots, Woods, Barks, Herbs, Drugs, Flowers, Seeds, &c. boil'd together.

To Appall, (old Word) to Daunt, to Diſcourage.

Appanage: See Appennage.

Apparatus, major & minor, (Lat. i. e. the greater and leſſer Preparation) a Phraſe us'd by Lethotomiſts or Operators that Cut for the Stone, according to two particular Methods.

Apparel, Cloathing, Raiment, Habit: Among Surgeons, Furniture for the Dreſſing of a Wound. In Sea-Affairs, the Tackle, Sails and Rigging of a Ship.

Apparent, that Appears, Viſible, Plain, Manifeſt, Certain, as An Heir apparent to the Crown, i. e. one whoſe Title is clear, beyond Diſpute or Contradiction.

Apparent Colours. See Emphatical Colours.

Apparent Conjunction, a Term in Aſtronomy: See Conjunction of Planets.

Apparent Declination; See Declination.

Apparent Horizon. See Horizon.

Apparent Place of any Object, (in Opticks) is that in which it appears when ſeen through one or more Glaſſes, and is different from the Real one; being occaſion'd by the various Refractions of the Rays of Light.

Apparent Place of a Star or Planet, (in Aſtron.) is its viſible Place, or that Point of the Heaven it ſeems to be in, by the Right-line that proceeds to it from the Eye.

Apparition, the Appearing of a Spirit; a Ghoſt, a Viſion.

Apparitour, a Meſſenger that ſummons Offenders, in an Eccleſiaſtical or Spiritual Court, and ſerves the Proceſs of it.

Apparlement, (Fr in Common Law) a Reſemblance or Likelihood; as Apparlement of War.

Apparura, an old Latin Law-word for Furniture. Carrucarum Apparura, Plough-tackle, all manner of Implements belonging to a Plough.

Appartment: See Apartment.

To Appeach or Impeach, to Accuſe one of any Crime.

Appeal, (Law-term) an Accuſation, or Declaration of another's Crime; particularly the accuſing of a Murderer, by a Perſon that has Intereſt in the Party murder'd, or of a Felon, by one of his Accomplices: Alſo the Removing of a Cauſe from an Inferiour Judge, or Court to a Superiour.

Appeal of Mayhem, an Accuſing of one that has Maim'd another.

Appeal of wrong Impriſonment, a Term us'd by ſome for an Action of wrong Impriſonment.

To Appeal, to make an Appeal: Alſo an old Word, ſignifying to Diſmay, or Daunt; but Chaucer uſes it for to Decay.

To Appear, (Lat.) to be in Sight, to Shew one's ſelf, to be ready at hand; to make a Figure or Shew, to Seem or Look.

To Appeaſe, (Fr.) to Pacify, or Qualify, to Allay, or Aſſwage; to Suppreſs, to Calm.

Appellant, (Lat. Law-word) he that brings an Appeal; alſo the ſame as Appellour and Approver, which See.

Appellation, a Naming, or Calling any thing by a particular Name; a Name, a Term, or Title.

Appellative or Noun Appellative, (in Grammar) a Name that is proper to many, and oppos'd to Proper; as Man, Artificer, Engineer, &c.

Appellee, (Law-Term) one that is Appeal'd or Accus'd.

Appellour or Appellant, one who having confeſs'd a Crime, Appeals, i. e. Accuſes others that were his Accomplices.

Appendage. See Appendix.

Appendant, a thing that by Preſcription, Depends on, or Belongs to another that is Principal; as, an Hoſpital may be appendant to a Manour, Common of Fiſhing to a Free-hold, &c.

Appendicula Vermiformis, (Lat.) the Inteſtinum cæcum, or Blind Gut, ſo call'd by ſome Anatomiſts from its Figure and Situation, in regard, that in ſome Creatures it hangs down like a Worm, and is not fill'd with Ordure as the others are.

Appenditia, (in ancient Deeds) the Appendages, or Appertenances to an Eſtate.

Appendix, any thing that is added by it ſelf to another, eſpecially a Supplement, or ſeparate Addition to a Book. In Anatomy, the ſame as Epiphyſis, Appennage or Appanage, (Fr.) the Portion a Soveraign Prince gives to his younger Children: In France, by virtue of the Law of Appennage, the King's younger Sons have Dutchies, Counties, or Baronies granted to them and their Heirs, the Reverſion reſerv'd to the Crown, and all Matters of Regality, as Coinage, levying Taxes, &c. Thus the Dutchy of Orleans is the Appennage of the French King's ſecond Son.

Appenſa, (Lat.) things Hang'd up, or Weigh'd out: Among Phyſicians, the ſame with Periapta, i. e. ſuch things as are hung about the Neck of Diſeaſed Perſons, to free them from ſome particular Diſtemper; as a dry'd Toad to ſtop Bleeding, Peony-Roots for Convulſions, &c.

Appenſura, (in old Records) the Payment of Money at the Scale, or by Weight.

To Appertain, to have a Dependance upon; to Belong to.

Appertinancies or Appurtenances, (in Common-Law) Things both Corporeal belonging to another thing that is more principal; as Hamlets to a chief Manour, Common of Paſture, Turbary, Piſcary, &c. Courts, Yards, Drains, &c. to a Houſe: And Incorporeal, as Liberties and Services of Tenants.

Appetency, earneſt Deſire, great Inclination.

Appetite, the Affection of the Mind, by which we are ſtirr'd up to any thing, inordinate Deſire, Luſt: Alſo the deſire of Nouriſhment, or a Stomach to one's Victuals.

Appetitive, belonging to the Appetite, or Deſire.

Appetitus Caninus, a Dog-like, or ravenous Appetite; a Diſeaſe. See Cynoreris.

To Applaud, to commend highly, as it were with the clapping of Hands, to approve well of what is done.

Applauſe, great Commendation, publick Praiſe.

Apple, (among Herbaliſts,) is taken not only for the Fruit of the Apple-tree, but alſo for all ſorts of round Fruit, as well of Herbs as Trees; as Mandrake-apples, Pine-apples, Cypreſs-apples, &c.

Apple of Love, a kind of Night-ſhade, a Plant ſo call'd from the Beauty of its Fruit, which reſemble Cherries.

Appliable or Applicable, (Lat.) that may be apply'd, that has relation to, conformable.

Applicate, (in Geom.) a Right-line, otherwiſe call'd the Ordinate or Semi-ordinate in a Conick Section.

Applicate Ordinate, a Right-line applied at Right-angles to the Axis of any Conick Section, and bounded by the Curve: See Ordinate.

Application, the Act of applying, the making of an Addreſs to a Perſon: Alſo attention of the Mind, Care, Diligence, or Study: It is alſo ſometimes the Geometrical Term for Diviſion: See Diviſion Geometrical.

In Aſtrology, the approaching of two Planets towards each other.

To Apply, to Put, Set, or Lay one thing to another; to have Recourſe to a Perſon, or Thing; to beſtow upon ſome Uſes, to Betake, or Give one's ſelf up to.

Among Geometricians, To Apply, is taken in ſeveral Senſes, viz. 1. To Transfer a Line given into Circle, or into any other Figure, ſo that it may be there accommodated, or fitted according to its proper length. 2. To fit Quantities, whoſe Area's are equal, but Figures different, ſo that they ſhall conform one to another. 3. To expreſs Diviſion in Geometry, eſpecially by the Latin Writers, who as they ſay, duc 6 in 8; when they would have 8 multiply'd by 6: So they ſay Applica 6 ad 18, when they would have 18 divided by 6.

To Appoint, (Fr.) to Commiſſionate, or Order; to Determine, or Deſign; to ſet a Task.

Appointee, a Foot-Soldier in France, who for his long Service and ſingular Bravery, receives Pay above the Private Sentinels, and ſtands fair to be advanc'd.

Appointment, the Act of Appointing; an Order, an Aſſignation: Alſo a Penſion allow'd by Perſons of Quality, for the retaining of Servants of good Credit.

To Apportion, (Law-Term) to Proportion, to Divide into convenient Portions.

Apportionment, the dividing of a Rent that is not whole or entire, into parts, according as the Land whence the Rent iſſues is ſhar'd among ſeveral Perſons: Thus if a Man have a Rent-ſervice iſſuing out of Land, and he purchaſes parcel of the Land, the Rent ſhall be apportioned according to the value of the ſaid Land.

Apportum, (Lat. in old Records) Revenue, Gain or Profit, which a thing brings in to its Owner; a Corrody, or Penſion allow'd out of a Religious Houſe.

Appoſal of Sheriffs, the charging them with Money receiv'd upon their Account in the Exchequer.

Appoſer: See Foreign Appoſer.

Appoſite, Well applied, that is ſaid, or done to the Purpoſe, Pat.

Appoſition, properly an Adding, or Putting to an Applying: In Grammar, the putting together of two Nouns Subſtantive in the ſame Caſe; as Vrbs Roma for Vrbs Roma, the City of Rome: Alſo a Term in Philoſophy the ſame as Accretion; which See.

To Appraiſe, to Value, Rate, or Set a Price on Goods.

To Apprehend, to lay Hold of, Seize, or Arreſt; to Comprehend, Conceive, or Underſtand; to Fear, or Suſpect.

Apprehenſion, Conception, Underſtanding; Fear, Jealouſy.

Apprehenſive, Quick of Apprehenſion, Senſible.

Apprendre, (Fr.) to Learn a thing, to get the Knowledge of it: Alſo a Common-Law Term; as A Fee, or Profit apprendre, i. e. to be Taken, or Receiv'd.

Apprentice, one that is Bound by Indenture, or otherwiſe to another Perſon for a Term of Years, to learn his, or her Art or Myſtery.

To Approach, to draw Nigh, to come Near.

Approachable, that may be Approached.

Approaches, (in Fortif.) all ſorts of Works by the help of which, an Advance is made towards a Place beſieged; as Trenches, Redouts, Lodgments, &c. Approaches are alſo taken for Attacks.

Approbation, an approving, or liking.

Appropriare Communam, (Lat. Law-Phraſe) to diſcommon, i. e. to ſeparate and encloſe any parcel of Land, that was before open Common.

Appropriare ad Honorem, to bring a Manour within the extent or liberty of ſuch a particular Honour.

To Appropriate, to uſurp the Property of a thing, to claim or take to one's ſelf, to apply particularly.

Appropriation, the Act of appropriating. In a Law-ſenſe, it is when the Profits of a Church-living are made over to the proper and perpetual uſe of ſome Biſhop, Dean and Chapter, College or Religious Houſe, and to their Succeſſours; ſo that the Body or Houſe is both Patron and Parſon, and ſome one of the Members officiates as Vicar.

To Approve, to allow of, to like, to render one's ſelf recommendable. In Common-Law, it is taken for to improve or encreaſe.

Approvement of Land (in general) is a making the beſt Advantage of it, by approving or encreaſing the Rent: Alſo where a Man has Common in the Lord's Waſte Ground, and the Lord encloſes part of the Waſte for himſelf, nevertheleſs, leaving ſufficient Common, with Egreſs and Regreſs for the Commoners; this encloſing is call'd Approvement.

Approver, one that approves or allows of: In a Law-ſenſe, the ſame as Appellor, i. e. a Felon that appeals or accuſes one or more of his Companions, as guilty of the ſame Crime, and he is ſo call'd, becauſe he muſt prove what he has alledged in his Appeal.

Approvers, are alſo certain Perſons, ſent into ſeveral Counties, to encreaſe the Farms of Hundreds and Wapentakes, which formerly were ſet at a certain rate to the Sheriffs, who likewiſe demis'd or let them to others.

Approvers of the King, are thoſe that have the letting of the King's Lands in ſmall Manours, to his beſt advantage; and in ſome old Statutes, the Sheriffs Style themſelves the King's Approvers.

Approvers in the Marches of Wales, were ſuch as had licence to ſell and buy Cattel in thoſe Parts.

Approximation, (in Philoſ.) a coming or putting nearer: In Mathematicks, a continual ſtill coming nearer and nearer to the Root or Quantity ſought, without expecting to have it exactly; as $2 + \frac{1}{2} + \frac{1}{4} + \frac{1}{8}$, &c. approaches continually nearer to 3 ad infinitum. Approximation is alſo one of the Methods of Tranſplantation in Natural Magick: See Tranſplantation.

Appurtenances. See Appertinances.

Apricock, a ſort of Wall-fruit that requires much of the Sun's Warmth to ripen it.

April, the fourth Month of the Year, which takes its Name from the Latin Word Aperire, i. e. to open; becauſe in this Month, the Flowers begin to blow, and the Earth ſends forth Seeds and Plants.

Aprize, (old Word) Adventure.

Apſis. See Abſis.

Apſychia, (Gr.) a Swooning, or fainting away.

Apſycton, a kind of precious Stone, which when it is hot, will keep ſo ſeven Days: Alſo the cold or ſhaking Fit of an Ague.

Apt, (Lat.) fit, meet, proper, convenient, forwardly inclined to.

To Aptate a Planet, (in Aſtrol.) is to ſtrengthen the Planet in poſition of Houſe, and Dignities, to the greateſt Advantage, for the compaſſing of the deſired End.

Ap-Thanes, the higher Nobility of Scotland, anciently ſo call'd, to diſtinguiſh them from the lower ſort, or Under-Thanes.

Aptitude or Aptneſs, (Lat.) Fitneſs, a natural Diſpoſition to do any thing.

Aptoton, (Gr. in Grammar) a Noun that is not declined with Caſes, as Nequam.

Apua, the Spirling, Smy, or Sea-dace; a ſort of Fiſh.

Apus, a kind of Swallow with ſhort Feet; a Martinet, or Swift: See Apodes. Apus Indica, the Bird of Paradiſe.

Apyrexia, the cooling, abating, or ſlackening of a Feaver; or the cold fit of an Ague.

Apyrotos, the beſt ſort of Carbuncle, a precious Stone, that glows like a burning-Coal, and yet the Fire cannot hurt it.

Apyrum Sulphur, Sulphur or Brimſtone that has not felt the Fire, or has not been burnt.

Aqua, (Lat.) Water, Rain, Wateriſh Humour or Juice.

Aqua Cœleſtis, (i e. Heavenly Water) a Liquor which the Chymiſts call Rectified Wine.

Aqua Diſtillata, diſtilled Water, ſuch as is drawn out by diſtilling any ſort of Herbs, or Drugs.

Aqua Florum omnium, (i. e. Water of all Flowers) the diſtilled Water of Cow-dung, when the Cows go to Graſs.

Aqua Fortis, (i. e. Strong Water) a Liquor made of a mixture of equal parts of purify'd Nitre, or Salt-peter, Vitriol calcined White, and Potters Earth or clay diſtilled in a cloſe Reverberatory Furnace: It is a ſtrong Poiſon, ſo as to eat even Iron and Steel, and is us'd for the diſſolving of Metals, &c.

Aqua Intercus, (i. e. Water between the Skin) the Dropſy, a Diſeaſe.

Aqua Pericardii, that Liquor, or Humour, which is gather'd about the Heart, and ſerves to cool it: See Pericardium.

Aqua Regalis, (i. e. Royal Water) a Liquor made by the diſſolving of Sal Armoniack in Spirit of Nitre, and ſo call'd becauſe it diſſolves Gold which is the King of Metals: It is alſo termed Aqua Stygia and Chryſulca.

Aqua Secunda, a Liquor made of common Water, and the Powder or Precipitate of Silver, which is good to make the Eſcar fall off in Shankers, and to conſume Proud Fleſh.

Aqua Vitæ, (i. e. Water of Life) a ſort of Cordial Water, made of brew'd Beer ſtrongly hopp'd, and well fermented.

Aquæductus, an Aqueduct or conveyance of Water by Pipes: In Anatomy, the bony Paſſage from the Tympanum, or Drum of the Ear to the Palate of the Mouth; ſo nam'd from its Shape, which reſembles a Conduit-Pipe.

Aquagium, (in old Records) an Aquage, or Water-courſe.

Aqualiculus, a Hog-trough; alſo the loweſt part of the Belly or Paunch, the ſame as Hypogaſtrium.

Aquarius, (i. e. the Water-pourer) one of the Twelve Signs in the Zodiack, and the laſt but one in Order; which the Sun enters in the Month of January: This Conſtellation is made up of 33 Stars and uſually marked thus (♒)

Aquatick or Aquatile, growing, living, or breeding in or about the Water; as Aquatick Animals, Plants, or Flowers.

Aqueduct, (in Architect.) a Conduit or Paſſage for conveying Water from one Place to another. The ancient Roman Aqueducts were ſtately Stone-Buildings, rais'd on uneven Ground, to preſerve the level of the Water, which ſometimes reach'd a hundred thouſand Geometrical Paces in length.

Aqueous, like Water, wateriſh.

Aqueous Humour, or the Watery Humour, one of the Humours of the Eye, which is the outmoſt, being tranſparent and of no Colour: It fills up the ſpace between the Tunica Cornea, and the Cryſtalline Humour: See Humores Oculi.

Aquifolium, (Lat.) a kind of Holm-tree, with prickly Leaves; alſo the Holly-tree.

Aquila, the Eagle, a Bird of Prey; alſo the Name of a Conſtellation in the Northern Hemiſphere, otherwiſe call'd Vultur Volans, and conſiſting of 32 Stars.

Aquila Alba, or the White Eagle, the ſame with Mercurius Dulcis; which See.

Aquila Philoſophorum, (i. e. the Philoſopher's Eagle) a Term us'd by Alchymiſts for the reducing of Metals to the firſt Matter.

Aquileia, Aquilegia, or Aquilina, Columbine, an Herb and Flower, the Seed of which powder'd is of good uſe in Phyſick, eſpecially in Gargariſms for the Mouth.

Aquilifer, (among the Romans) the Standard-bearer, who had in his Colours the Picture of an Eagle; an Enſign, or Cornet.

Aquiline Noſe, a hooked Noſe like an Eagle's Beak, a Hawks-Noſe.

Aquilo, the North, or North-Eaſt Wind.

Aquoſi Ductus. See Ductus Aquoſi.

Aquoſity, Wateriſhneſs.

Aquula, (Lat.) a little Water or Brook: Alſo a ſmall watery Bladder in the Liver, Spleen, or ſome other Bowel. See Hydatides.

Ara, (Lat.) an Altar, or Sanctuary: Alſo a Southern Conſtellation containing eight Stars.

Arabella, (i. e. fair Altar) a proper Name of Women.

Arabeſque, certain curious flouriſhing or branched Work, in Painting or Tapeſtry, after the Arabick manner.

Arabia, a large Country of Aſia, reaching from India to Egypt.

Arabick, the Arabian Language.

Arabicum Gummi, a kind of tranſparent Gum, brought from Arabia and America, which eaſily diſſolves in Water, and looks on the out-ſide, as if it were Worm-eaten.

Arabis, a ſort of Water-creſs call'd candy Thlaſpy.

Arable, as Arable Land. i. e. Land fit to be plough'd, or tilled.

Arabus Lapis, a Stone white like Ivory, the Powder of which is good to cleanſe the Teeth.

Arachne, (Gr.) the Spider. an Inſect, or a Cob-web.

Arachnoides, (in Anat.) the Cryſtalline Coat of the Eye, So call'd from its reſembling a Spider's Web.

Aræoſtylos, (in Architect.) a ſort of Building where the Pillars are ſet at a great diſtance one from another.

Araignee, (Fr.) a Spider. In Fortification, the Branch, Return, or Gallery of a Mine.

Araine, a Word us'd in Nottingham-ſhire, for a Spider.

Aralia, (in Dooms-day Book) arable, or ploughed Ground.

Aram, (Heb. Highneſs or Deceiving, or their Curſe) the Son of Shem, from whom deſcended the Aramites or Syrians.

Aranea Tunica or Cryſtallina, (Lat. in Anat.) a Coat of the Eye, that ſurrounds and encloſes the Cryſtalline Humour; taking Name from its thin light Contexture like that of a Cob-web.

Araneus, the Spider; alſo the Weaver, or Wiver, a Sea-fiſh.

Arbaleſtra, a great Engine for the throwing of Darts, in uſe among the ancient Romans.

Arbiter, an Arbitrator, an Umpire, a Sovereign Diſpoſer. See Arbitrator.

Arbitrable, that may be put to, or decided by Arbitration.

Arbitrage, an Arbitrator's or Umpire's Decree or Sentence.

Arbitrary, that depends altogether upon one's Will or Choice, that is without controll; abſolute, free.

To Arbitrate, to award, give Sentence, adjudge, or act as an Arbitrator.

Arbitration, the Act of Arbitrating, the putting an end to a Difference by the means of Arbitrators.

Arbitrator, an extraordinary Judge indifferently choſen by the mutual conſent of two Parties, to decide any Controverſy between them; a Days-man, or Referree: The Civilians make a difference between Arbiter and Arbitrator; the former being oblig'd to proceed according to Law and Equity; whereas the latter is left wholly to his own Diſcretion, to act without Solemnity of Proceſs, or courſe of Judgment.

Arbitrement, (Law-Word) a Power given by two or more contending Parties, to ſome Perſon or Perſons to determine the matter in diſpute between them, to which they are bound to ſtand under a certain Penalty: And the Determination thus made is call'd an Award, or the Reſult of an Arbitration.

Arblaſter, a Word us'd by Chaucer for a Croſs-bow.

Arbor, (Lat.) a Tree.

Arbor Dianæ See Dianæ Arbor.

Arbor Maris, (i. e. Tree of the Sea) a Name that ſome Chymiſts give to Coral, becauſe it grows like a Tree or Plant under the Water of the Sea.

Arbor Vitæ, (i. e. Tree of Life) a kind of Tree often planted for its pleaſant green Leaf.

Arboreous, a Term apply'd by Herbaliſts to ſuch Muſhrooms or Moſſes as grow on Trees: Thus Agarick is call'd an Arboreous Muſhroom, becauſe it always grows on the Larch-tree.

Arboriſt, one that is well skill'd in the ſeveral kinds and natures of Trees, and knows how to plant, improve, and preſerve them after the beſt manner.

Arbour, a Bower in a Garden, a ſhady Place made by Art, to ſit and take the Air in.

Arbutus, (Lat.) the Arbut, or Arbute-tree, a ſort of Shrub, otherwiſe call'd the Strawberry-tree, or Wilding.

Arcanum Coralinum, (among Chymiſts) is the red Precipitate of Mercury, or Quick-ſilver, on which well rectify'd Spirit of Wine has been burnt ſix times, in order to clear off ſome of the Acids, and make the Medicine fit to be taken inwardly.

Arcanum Duplum, a kind of Salt made by waſhing the Caput Mortuum, or groſs Matter remaining after the Diſtillation of Double Aqua fortis, with warm Water; ſo that the Water being afterwards ſtrain'd, and its moiſture drawn off, the Salt will remain at the bottom of the Glaſs.

Arcanum Jovis, is an Amalgama, made of equal Parts of Tin and Mercury, powder'd and digeſted with good Spirit of Nitre; and the Spirit being drawn from it in a Retort, the dry Maſs is powder'd again, and then digeſted with Spirit of Wine, 'till the Powder become taſteleſs.

Arceuthos, (Gr.) the Juniper-tree; a Shrub.

Arch, arrant, or notorious; as An Arch-Rogue, an Arch-Traytor, &c.

An Arch, (in Architect.) is any hollow Building, rais'd with a Mould in form of a Semi-circle; as Arch of a great Gate or Church-window, the Arches of a Bridge, &c.

In Geometry, Arch or Ark, is any part of the Circumference of a Circle, or crooked Line, lying from one Point to another, by which the quantity of the whole Circle, or Line, or ſome other thing ſought after, may be gathered.

Arch of Direction, (in Aſtrol.) a Portion of the Equator, comprehended between two Points in Heaven, whereof one is the Place of the Significator, and the other of the Promiſſor. See Ark of Direction.

In the Compoſition of ſeveral Words, Arch is a mark of Dignity, ſignifying chief; as Arch-angel, Archbiſhop, &c.

Archangel, the Prince of Angels, of which Order St. Michael is ſaid to be: Alſo a noted Sea-port Town of Muſcovy, and the Staple of all Merchants that trade to thoſe Parts. Alſo the Name of a Weed like dead Nettles, the Flowers of which reſemble Honey-ſuckles.

Archangelica, Water-Angelica, an Herb.

Archbiſhop, a chief Biſhop that has Power over a certain number of other Biſhops.

Archbiſhoprick, the extent of the Juriſdiction, the Dignity and Benefice of an Archbiſhop.

Archdapifer, a chief Sewer, one of the principal Offices of the Empire of Germany, belonging to the Count Palatine of the Rhine.

Archdeacon, a dignify'd Clergy-man, whoſe Office is to viſit two Years in three, to reform Abuſes in Eccleſiaſtical Matters, and to bring the more weighty Affairs before the Biſhop of the Dioceſs.

Archdeaconry, the extent of an Archdeacon's Spiritual Juriſdiction.

Archdeaconſhip, the Dignity and Office of an Archdeacon.

Archduke, one that has ſome Preheminence over other Dukes; as the Archduke of Auſtria, which Title was firſt eſtabliſh'd about, A. D. 1298.

Arch-Dukedom, the Territory, or Juriſdiction of an Arch-Duke.

Archdutcheſs, an Archduke's Wife.

Arch-Heretick, a Ring-leader of Hereticks, the firſt Brocher of an Hereſie.

Arch-Pirate, the Head of the Pirates; a principal Rover.

Arch-Presbyter, or Arch-Prieſt, a Chief Prieſt, or a Rural Dean.

Archaiſms, are old Expreſſions, now quite out of uſe, and only found in ancient Authors.

Archaiſmus, (in Rhetorick) an imitation of the Ancients in Expreſſions or Words.

Archal, an Herb, otherwiſe call'd Derby-ſhire Liver-wort, becauſe it grows upon the Free-ſtones of the Mountain Peak in that County.

Arche, (Gr.) a Beginning, an Entrance: In a Medicinal Senſe, the beginning of a Diſeaſe.

Archer, one skill'd in Archery.

Archery, the Art of Shooting with the Long-Bow.

Arches or Court of Arches, the Chief Conſiſtory belonging to the Archbiſhop of Canterbury, for the Debating of Eccleſiaſtical Cauſes, and ſo call'd, becauſe it us'd to be kept in the Church of St. Mary le Bow, London, the top of whoſe Steeple was formerly rais'd with Stone-pillars, built Arch-wiſe, like ſo many bent Bows.

The Dean of the Arches or the Official of the Arches Court, the chief Judge of that Court who has a peculiar Juriſdiction of thirteen Pariſhes in the City of London, termed a Deanry, and freed from the Authority of the Biſhop of that Dioceſs: The Juriſdiction of this Judge is ordinary, and extends it ſelf through the whole Province of Canterbury.

Archetype, (Gr.) the firſt Example or Pattern, an Authentick Copy; the Original of a Writing, Picture, or any Piece of Art.

Archeus, (among the Paracelſians) the Principle of Life and Vigour in any Living-Creature: Alſo the higheſt, moſt exalted and inviſible Spirit that can be ſeparated from mixt Bodies; an hidden Quality, Efficacy, or Virtue of Nature.

Archezoſtis, the White-Wine; an Herb.

Archiater or Archiatrus, the Principal, or Chief Phyſician; a Phyſician to a Prince, ſo ſtyled by way of Excellency.

Archigeni Morbi, Acute Diſeaſes.

Archigrammateus, the Principal Secretary, or the chief Clerk of an Office; a Chancellour.

Archilochium Carmen. See Iambick Verſe.

Archimandrita, an Abbot, Prior, or Chief Governour of an Hermitage or Convent.

Archipelagus or Archipelago, (in Geogr.) a Main Sea or large Gulph, containing a cluſter of ſmall Iſlands one near another, and ſeveral little Seas that take Name from thoſe Iſlands: Of theſe four are chiefly remarkable, viz. That of Europe, in the Sea formerly call'd the Ægean; the Archipelago of St. Lazarus, with thoſe of Malucca and of the Maldives in the East-Indies.

Archiſtrategus, the Generaliſſimo or Captain General of an Army, the Lord General.

Archiſynagogus, the Ruler of the Jewiſh Synagogue.

Architect, a Maſter-Builder, a chief Workman, a Surveyor of the Building.

Architectonice, the Art or Science of Building, Maſonry, Carpentry.

Architectonick, that builds a thing up regularly according to the Nature and Properties of it: Thus that Forming Nature, Power, or Spirit, which hatches the Ova or Eggs of Females into Living-Creatures of the ſame kind, is by ſome call'd, the Architectonick Spirit.

Architecture, a Skill grounded on the Rules of Geometry, which ſhews the right Method of deſigning and raiſing all manner of Buildings; and it is uſually divided into Civil and Military.

Civil Architecture, teaches how to make any kinds of Buildings, whether Publick or Private; as Churches, Palaces, Arches, Houſes, Gates, &c. And Military Architecture diſcovers the beſt way of raiſing Fortifications about Cities, Towns, Camps, Sea-Ports, or any other Places of Strength.

Architrave, the main Beam in any Building, and the firſt Member of the Entablature, i. e. that part of a Stone-Pillar, which is above the Capital, and below the Frize: In Timber-Buildings, it is call'd the Reaſon-piece or Maſter-beam; in Chimneys, the Mantle-piece; and over the Jambs of Doors or Lintels of Windows, 'tis termed Hyperthyron.

Archives, a Place where ancient Records, Charters and Evidences are kept; as the Office of the Maſter of the Rolls, the Chancery or Exchequer.

Archontes, chief Magiſtrates appointed in the City of Athens in Greece, after Kingly Government was there aboliſh'd.

Archonticks, certain Hereticks, ſo call'd from Archon the Ring-leader of that Sect, which began to appear, A. C. 334. They deny'd the Reſurrection, and held the World to be the Work of Princes.

† Arctation, (Lat.) a Straightening, or Crowding.

Arctick, (Gr. in Aſtron.) as The Arctick Pole, i. e. the North-Pole of the World, and the Arctick Circle, one of the leſſer Circles of the Sphere, diſtant 23 Degrees and a half from the ſaid Pole; both ſo nam'd from Arctos, i. e. the Bear, a Conſtellation or Cluſter of Stars in the Northern part of Heaven.

Arctophylax. See Bootes.

Arctos Minor, the ſame with Urſa Minor; which See.

Arctoſcorodon, Ramſons; an Herb.

Arctoſtaphylos, a Black-berry or Bilberry.

Arcturus, a fixed Star of the firſt Magnitude or Light, plac'd in the Skirt of the Conſtellation, call'd Arctophylax or Bootes: Its Longitude is 199 Deg. 39 Min. Latitude 31 Deg. 2 Min. Right Aſcenſion, 210 Deg. 13 Min. and Declination 20 Deg. 58 Min.

Arcuation, (Lat.) properly a faſhioning or ſhaping like an Arch or Bow: In Surgery, the bending of the Bones.

Arcubaliſta, a Warlike Engine anciently us'd for caſting forth great Stones.

Ardea, the Heron, a kind of Water-Fowl. Ardea Stellaris, the Bittern.

Ardency or Ardentneſs, Heat of Paſſion, Zeal, &c.

Ardenna, a great Foreſt in Germany, reaching from the River Rhine to the City of Tournay, for the ſpace of 500 Miles. There is alſo another great Foreſt in Warwick-ſhire of that Name; the Word in the old Gauliſh Tongue, ſignifying a Wood.

Ardent, very hot, vehement, eager, zealous.

Ardent Spirits, (in Chymiſtry) ſuch Spirits as being Diſtilled from Fermented Vegetables or Plants, will take Fire and burn; as Spirit of Wine, Brandy, Aqua Vitæ, &c.

Ardentes Febres, burning Feavers or thoſe that are accompany'd with a great Heat and Thirſt.

Arders, (in Husbandry) the Fallowings, or Ploughings of Ground.

Ardor, (Lat.) burning Heat: In a Medicinal Senſe, a very great Heat raiſ'd in a Humane Body.

Ardor Ventriculi, a kind of Pain in the Stomach, commonly call'd Heart-Burning.

Ardor Urinæ, a Sharpneſs of Urine.

Ardour, Ardent Affection, great Zeal, Eagerneſs, Heat.

A-re or A-la-mi-re, the Name of one of the eight Notes in the Scale of Muſick.

To Are, a Country-Word for to Plough, from the Latin, Aro of the ſame Signification.

Area, (Lat.) a Barn-Floor, a void ſpace of Ground, the Ground-Plot of a Building; a Bed or Quarter in a Garden: Alſo a Circle about the Moon and ſome Stars, otherwiſe call'd Halo: Alſo an Ulcer or Sore in the Head that cauſes Baldneſs; the ſame with Alopecia.

The Area of a Figure, (in Geom.) is its inward Capacity or Superficial Content, or the Surface comprehended between the Sides of ſuch a Figure, whether it be plain or Spherical; and it is reckon'd in the Square Parts of any Meaſure. Thus, if a Field be in Form of a Square, and each ſide of it be 30 Yards in length, its Area or whole Content will be 900 Square Yards.

In Fortification, Area is the Superficial Content of any Rampart or other Work, according to its particular Figure.

Aregon, (Gr.) an Ointment of a diſſolving, looſening, and thinning Quality.

Arena, (Lat.) Sand, Gravel, Grit: Alſo Gravel bred in a Humane Body, which conſiſts of a great deal of Salt and Earth, and often grows up into a Stone.

Arenaria, a ſort of Buck-Thorn, an Herb.

Arnarium Saxum, Sand-Stone, or Free-Stone.

Arenatio, (in the Art of Phyſick) a kind of dry Bath, when the Patient ſits with his Feet upon hot Sand.

Areola, a little Bed in a Garden; a ſmall Court-Yard.

Areola Papillaris, the Circle about a Nipple, or Teat.

Areometer, (Gr.) an Inſtrument to meaſure the Gravity or Weight of any Fluid or Liquor: It is uſually made of a fine thin Glaſs, and ſealed at the top, after as much running Quick-Silver has been put into it, as will ſerve to keep it ſwimming upright: So that the Stem or Neck being divided into Degrees, the Heavineſs or Lightneſs of any Liquor may be diſcover'd by the Deſcent of the Veſſel into it.

Areopagites, certain Judges of a Court in Athens, appointed by Solon, for the Tryal of Malefactors, and ſo call'd from Areopagus or Mars's Hill, a Village near that City, where they ſate.

Areoſtyle, (in Architect.) a Building where the Pillars ſtand at a conſiderable Diſtance one from another.

Areotectonicks, that part of Military Architecture or Fortification, which ſhews how to attack ſafely, and to encounter an Enemy at the beſt Advantage.

Areotick Medicines, ſuch as open the Pores of the Skin, and render them large enough for the Matter that cauſes the Diſeaſe to be carry'd off by Sweat, or inſenſible Tranſpiration.

Arereiſment, (old Law-word) Affright, Surprize; as To the great Arereiſment and Extenyſement of the Common Law.

Aret, (old Word) an Account.

Aretophila, (Gr.) a Proper Name of Women, ſignifying a Friend of Vertue.

Argal, hard Lees ſticking to the ſides of Wine-Veſſels, and otherwiſe call'd Tartar.

Argema, (Gr.) a Web or Pin in the Eye, which in the Black of it looks white, and on the other ſide red; a ſmall Ulcer in the Circle of the Eye call'd Iris.

Argemone, an Herb like wild Poppey, good againſt ſuch a Web or Diſeaſe in the Eye; Wild-Tanſy, Silver-Weed.

Argent, (Lat. in Heraldry) the Silver or white Colour in the Coats of Gentlemen, Knights and Baronets: But in the Eſcutcheons of Noble-Men, it is call'd a Pearl, and Luna in thoſe of Soveraign Princes. See Or.

Argentangina, the Silver-Quinſey, when a Pleader at Law being Brib'd, feigns himſelf ſick, and not able to ſpeak.

Argentina, Silver-Weed or Wild-Tanſey, an Herb that cools moderately, and is of a very binding Quality.

Argentum, Silver, the nobleſt Metal next to Gold; Plate, Money, Coin.

Argentum album, (in Dooms-day-book) Silver-Coin, or Current Money.

Argentum Dei, (in old Records, i. e. God's Money) Money given as Earneſt upon the making of a Bargain, and ſtill call'd God's Penny in the North.

Argentum Vivum, Mercury, or Quick-Silver.

Argeſtes, (Gr.) a South-Weſt Wind, or more preciſely, South-Weſt and by Weſt, which blows gently with fair Weather.

Argilla, (Lat.) white Clay.

Argoil, a Word us'd by Chaucer for Clay.

Argo Navis or the Ship Argo, a Southern Conſtellation conſiſting of 42 Stars.

To Argue, to Reaſon or Diſcourſe, to Diſpute or Debate, to ſhew or make appear.

Argument, a Reaſon, Proof, or Mark; the Summ or Subſtance of a Diſcourſe, or Treatiſe; a Theme or Subject to ſpeak or write of: In Logick, a Probability invented to create Belief; any Subject or Matter laid down, as a Foundation whereon to argue: In Painting or Drawing the Argument ſignifies the Perſons repreſented in a Landskip, in Contradiſtinction from the Country. See Landskip.

Argumentum Cornutum. See Cornutum Argumentum.

In Aſtronomy, Argument is an Arch by which the Artiſt ſeeks another Arch unknown and proportionable to the firſt.

Argument of Inclination, is an Arch of a Planet's Orb comprehended between the aſcending Node and the Place of that Planet, with reſpect to the Sun; being number'd according to the Succeſſion of the Signs.

Argument of the Moon's Latitude, the Moon's Diſtance from the Dragon's Head or Tail, that is to ſay, where her Orb, in two Points Diametrically oppoſite, is cut by the Ecliptick; whereby is found out the quantity of the real darkening in Eclipſes, or how many Digits are darken'd.

Argumentation, a Reaſoning, or Proving by Arguments; a diſputing for and againſt.

Argyritis, (Gr.) the Scum or Fome that riſes from Silver, or Lead that is mixed with Silver in the Refining-Furnace.

Argyrocome, a ſort of Cud-weed, an Herb.

Argyrocomus, a Silver-coloured Comet, that differs very little from the Solar Comet, except that it is of a brighter Silver-colour, and ſhines with ſo great a Luſtre that it dazzles the Beholders Eyes.

Argyrodamas, (q. d. Silver-Diamond) a precious Stone of a bright Silver-colour.

Argyrolithos, Talk, a ſort of Mineral Stone.

Arianiſm, the Doctrine and Opinions of Arius a noted Heretick in the time of the Emperour Conſtantine the Great, who deny'd the Son of God to be of the ſame Subſtance with the Father, and began to broach that damnable Hereſy about it. A. C. 315.

Aricinum, (Lat.) the headed Leak or ſet Leak, ſo call'd from Aricia or Arezzo a Town in Italy, where they thrive much.

Arico, The French-Bean, or Kidney-Bean.

Aries, a Ram, or Tup: Alſo a Warlike Engine us'd by the ancient Romans, for the battering down of City-Walls; a great Beam of Wood, ſtrengthen'd with Iron-Spikes at the end, repreſenting a Ram's-Head Alſo among Aſtronomers, the firſt Sign of the Zodiack which the Sun enters in the beginning of March, and it is drawn on the Globes in the Figure of a Ram; being a Conſtellation or Company of 19 Stars uſually expreſs'd by this Character (♈.)

Arietum Levatio, (in old Records) a Sportive Exerciſe which ſeems to be a kind of Tilting, or running at the Quintain.

Ariſarum, (Gr.) a ſmall ſort of Wake-Robin; an Herb.

To Ariſe, to riſe up; to take riſe, or proceed from.

Ariſta, (Lat. among Herbaliſts) that long, ſlender, Needle-like Beard which grows out from the Husk of Corn or Graſs.

Ariſtalthæa, (Gr.) Marſh-Mallows, or white Mallows; an Herb.

Ariſtobulus, (Gr. i. e. beſt Counſel) the Name of two Kings of Judæa of the Maccabean Race.

Ariſtocracy, the Government of a Common-Wealth, where the Nobility only bear Rule; as the States of Holland, the Republicks of Venice, Genoa, &c.

Ariſtocratical or Ariſtocratick, belonging to ſuch a Government.

Ariſtolochia, Corruptly call'd Aſtrologe, Hartwort, or Birth-wort, an Herb good for Women in Child-birth; to haſten their Delivery, and fetch away the After-burden.

To Arite, (old Word) to arreſt, to ſtay, or ſtop.

Arithmetical, (Gr.) belonging to Arithmetick.

Arithmetical Complement of a Logarithm, is what that Logarithm wants of 10.0000000.

Arithmetical Progreſſion or Proportion. See the Words Progreſſion and Proportion.

Arithmetician, one skill'd in Arithmetick; an able Accountant.

Arithmetick, a Science which Teaches the Art of Accounting by Number, and alſo ſhews all the Powers and Properties of Numbers or Diſcrete Quantity: It is divided into two General Branches, viz. Common Arithmetick and Algebra; which See.

Ark, (Scripture-Word) a kind of Ship or Boat; as Noah's Ark, Moſes's Ark; alſo a Cheſt or Coffer: Alſo a Country-word for a large Cheſt, to put Fruit or Corn in.

Ark of the Covenant, the Cheſt in which the Tables of the Levitical Law were kept, among the Iſraelites or ancient Jews.

In Geometry Ark or Arch, is ſome part of the Circumference of a Circle. See Arch.

Ark of Direction or Progreſſion, (in Aſtron.) is that Ark of the Zodiack, which Planet appears to deſcribe when its Motion is forwards according to the Order of the Signs. In the Ptolemaick Syſtem, it is alſo the Ark of the Epicycle which a Planet deſcribes, when it is Progreſſive according to the Order of the Signs.

Ark of the firſt and ſecond Station, is the Arch which a Planet deſcribes in the former or the latter Semi-Circumference of its Epicycle, when it appears Stationary.

Ark of Retrogradation, is that which a Planet deſcribes when it is Retrograde, or moves contrary to the Order of the Signs.

Arles-Penny, a Word us'd in ſome Parts of England, for Earneſt-Money given to Servants.

Arm of an Anchor, that part of it to which the Flook is ſet.

To Arm a Shot, (in Gunnery) is to roll Okam, Rope-yarn or old Clouts round about one end of the Iron-ſpike or Bar, which paſſes thro' the Shot, that it may be the better ramm'd home to the Powder; and eſpecially that the ſharp end of the Bar may not catch hold in any Honey-Combs of the Piece, and ſo endanger the breaking it.

Arma dare, (in ancient Latin Writers) to dub, or make a Knight.

Arma Moluta, ſharp cutting Weapons, diſtinguiſhed from thoſe that only break or bruiſe.

Armada, (Span.) a Navy well Armed or Manned.

Armadillo, a Creature brought from the Weſt-Indies, whom Nature has ſo fortify'd with an Armour-like Skin, that it cannot be wounded in any Part except the Flank.

Arman, a kind of Confection for Horſes, made of Honey of Roſes, Crums of White Bread, Powder of Nutmegs and Cinnamon, &c.

Armarium Unguentum, (Lat.) a Weapon-Salve, by which Wounds (as ſome give out) may be cur'd at any Diſtance only by dreſſing the Weapon: It is alſo termed Hoplochryſma and Magnes Microcoſmicus.

Armed, (in Heraldry) a Term us'd for repreſenting the Beaks and Feet of Cocks and all Birds of Prey; and theſe are always Painted of a different Colour from the Bird it ſelf. Thus the uſual Expreſſion is, He bears a Cock or a Falcon Armed Or, Gules, &c.

In Sea-Affairs, a Ship is ſaid To be Armed, when it is every way provided and furniſhed for a Man of War: For a Croſs-bar-ſhot Armed. See To Arm a Shot.

Armenus Lapis. See Lapis Armenus.

Armiger, (Lat.) a Title of Dignity, properly an Armour-bearer to a Knight, an Eſquire, a Squire of the Body; any one that bears, or gives a Coat of Arms.

Armilla, a Bracelet or Jewel worn on the Arm or Wriſt: Alſo an Iron-Ring, Hoop, or Brace, in which the Gudgeons of a Wheel move.

Armilla Membranoſa, (in Anat.) a Ligament, Band, or String that comprehends the other Ligaments of the Hand, in a kind of Circle.

Armillary Sphere, an Artificial hollow Sphere, made up only of Circles of Paſte-board, Wood, Braſs, &c. put together and ſet in a Frame; ſo as to repreſent the true Poſition and Motion of all the Circles of the Sphere, both greater and leſſer, in their Natural Order.

Arminianiſm, the Doctrine of the Arminians, the Followers of Jacobus Arminius, who ſpread abroad his Heterodox Opinions in Holland, A. D. 1605: They hold Free Grace and Univerſal Redemption.

Armiſalii, (Lat.) a ſort of Dancers in Armour, among the ancient Romans, who Danc'd the Dance, call'd Pyrricha, keeping time, by ſtriking their Swords and Javelins againſt their Bucklers.

Armlet, a piece of Armour for the Arm; alſo a Bracelet of Pearl.

Armoniack. See Bole-armoniack.

Armoniack Salt. See Sal Armoniack.

Armoniack Volatile Spirit. See Volatile Spirit of Sal Armoniack.

Armoracia, (Lat.) a kind of wild Radiſh, Horſe-radiſh.

Armorial, belonging to Armory ; as Armorial Enſigns.

Armory, the ſame as Heraldry ; the Art of diſplaying and marſhalling all Coats of Arms, and appointing them to their proper Bearers.

Armour, warlike Harneſs, defenſive Arms that cover the Body : In a Law Senſe, it is taken for any thing that a Man either wears for a Defence, or that in his Fury or Rage, he takes into his Hand to throw at or ſtrike another.

Armourer, one that makes or ſells all ſorts of Armour, Guns, Piſtols, &c.

Armoury, a Store-houſe of Armour, a particular Place, where Arms are laid up and kept.

Arms, all manner of Weapons made uſe of by Men, either for attacking others, or defending themſelves : In Falconry, Arms are the Legs of a Bird of Prey, from the Thigh to the Foot.

Army, a great number of armed Men, or Soldiers gather'd into one Body, conſiſting of Horſe, Foot and Dragoons, under the command of a General.

Flying-Army. See Camp Volant.

Arnaldia or Arnoldia, (in old Latin Writers) a kind of Diſeaſe that makes the Hair fall off like the Alopecia, or Fox-evil.

Arnogloſſum, (Gr.) the Herb Lambs-tongue, Plantain, Rib-wort, or Way-bread.

Arobe, a Portugueſe Meaſure for Sugar, containing 25 Buſhels.

Aroma, (Gr.) all ſweet Spices ; as Caſſia, Cinnamon, Cloves, Mace, &c. and in general all ſorts of Drugs, Grocery-Ware.

Aromatica Nux, Nutmeg.

Aromatical or Aromatick, having a ſpicy Smell, ſweet-ſcented, perfumed.

Aromatick Volatile Salt. See Sal Volatile Oleoſum.

Aromatites, Hippocras, or Wine brew'd with Spice ; alſo a precious Stone ſmelling like Myrrh.

Aromatization or Aromatizing of Medicines, is mingling them with a due proportion of Spices, aromatick Drugs, &c. in order to make them more pleaſant and uſeful.

Aromatopola, a ſeller of Spices, a Grocer, a Druggiſt.

Aron or Arum, an Herb call'd Wake-Robin, Cuckoe-pintle, or Ramp ; which is of a very biting Taſte, and the Juice good to cleanſe foul Ulcers.

Aroughena, a wild Beaſt in Virginia, ſomewhat like a Badger.

Arpent, (Fr.) a Meaſure of Land us'd in France, containing 100 ſquare Perches of 18 Foot each.

Arphaxad, (Heb.) the Son of Shem ; alſo a certain King who was defeated by Nebuchadnezzar.

Arquata, (Lat.) the Curlew, a ſort of Fowl ſo call'd from its crooked Beak : Arquata Congener, the Stone-Curlew.

Arquatus Morbus, the Jaundice, a Diſeaſe ſo call'd from its reſembling the colour of the Rainbow, in Latin, Arquus or Arcus Cæleſtis.

Arquebuſe or Harquebuſs, (Fr.) a large Hand-gun, ſomewhat bigger than our Musket, which ſome call a Caliever.

Arquites, (Lat.) an order of Soldiers among the old Romans, who ſhot Arrows out of Bows ; Bow-men, Archers.

Arrach, an Herb of two ſorts, viz. one called Garden-arrach, the other wild and ſtinking Arrach ; which laſt is alſo known by the Names of Dogs-arrach, Goats-arrach, and ſtinking Mother-wort.

Arraiatio Peditum, (in ancient Latin Deeds) the arraying of Foot-Soldiers.

To Arraign, (Fr. Law-Term) to ſet a thing in order or in its Place.

To Arraign the Aſſize, is to cauſe the Tenant to be call'd, to make the Plaint, and to ſet the Cauſe in ſuch Order, as the Tenant may be forc'd to Anſwer thereto.

A Priſoner is alſo ſaid To be arraigned at the Bar of a Court of Juſtice when he is indicted and brought forth, in order to his Tryal.

Arraignment, the Act of arraigning a Priſoner.

Arrant, meer, downright, as An arrant Dunce, Fool, Knave, &c.

Arras-Hangings, a ſort of rich Tapeſtry made at Arras, a large City of the County of Artois in Flanders.

Array, (old Fr.) Order : In Common Law, the ranking or ſetting forth of a Jury or Inqueſt of Men, impannelled upon a Cauſe : Whence the Phraſes To Array a Pannel, The Array ſhall be quaſh'd, &c.

In the Art of War, Array is the drawing up, or ranking of Soldiers in order of Battel.

Arrayers or Commiſſioners of Array, certain Officers, whoſe Buſineſs is to take care of the Soldiers Armour, and to ſee them duly accoutred.

Arrearages or Arrears, the remainder of any Rents or Moneys unpaid at the due time, the Remains of a Reckoning, or Debt : In a ſtrict Law-ſenſe, it ſignifies the Remainder of an Account, or Summ of Money in the Hands of an Accountant.

Arrectaria, (Lat. in Architect.) Beams, Poſts, Pillars, or Stones in Buildings, that ſtand upright, to bear the weight above them.

Arrectatus, (Law-word) ſuſpected, accuſed of, or charged with.

Arrenatus, arraigned, or brought forth to a Tryal.

Arrendare, (in the Practick of Scotland,) is to ſet Lands to any one for a yearly Rent.

Arrentation, (in the Foreſt-Law) a licenſing an Owner of Lands in a Foreſt, to encloſe them with a low Hedge, and a little Ditch, under a yearly Rent : And ſaving of the Arrentations, is the reſerving a Power to grant ſuch Licences.

Arreſt, (Fr.) a Stop, or Stay ; a Judgment, Decree, or final Sentence of a Court : In our Common Law, a ſtopping or ſeizing of one's Perſon, by Order of ſome Court, or of ſome Officer of Juſtice.

To Move or plead in Arreſt of Judgment, is to ſhew Cauſe, why Judgment ſhould be ſtay'd, tho there be a Verdict in the Caſe : And To plead in Arreſt of taking the Inqueſt upon a former Iſſue, is to ſhew Cauſe why an Inqueſt ſhould not be taken.

Arreſtandis Bonis ne diſſipentur, a Writ in favour of one whoſe Cattel or Goods are ſeiz'd by another, who during the Conteſt does, or is like to make them away, and will hardly be able to make Satisfaction afterwards.

Arreſtando ipſum qui pecuniam recepit ad proficiſcendum in obſequium Reginæ, &c. A Writ that lies for the apprehending of a Man, that has taken Preſt-money, towards the Queen's Wars, and hides himſelf when he ſhould go.

Arreſto facto ſuper bonis mercatorum alienigenorum, a Writ that lies for a Denizen, againſt the Goods of Strangers in another Country, found within the Kingdom, to make amends for Goods taken from him in that Foreign Country, after denial of Reſtitution.

To Arret, to lay blame on, an old Word uſ'd by Chaucer.

Arretted, (Law-Term) that is ſummoned before a Judge, and charged with a Crime: It is alſo ſometimes uſ'd for imputed, or laid unto; as No Folly may be arretted to him, being under Age.

Arriere-ban, (Fr.) a Proclamation whereby all Gentlemen in France, that hold Eſtates of the King by a meſne Tenure, or Knights-ſervice, are ſummoned to appear in Arms, to ſerve him in his Wars: Alſo the Aſſembly of the Perſons ſo ſummoned.

Arriere-Guard, the Rear of an Army, or that part of it which marches after the main Battel, to hinder and ſtop Deſerters, &c.

Arrival, arriving, or coming.

To Arrive, (properly to come to the Bank or Shore) to come to a Place, to attain to, to compaſs a thing.

Arrobas, a kind of foreign Weight. See Roove.

Arrogance or Arrogancy, (Lat.) Pride, Preſumption, Haughtineſs, Self-conceit.

Arrogant, proud, haughty, preſumptuous.

To Arrogate, to claim, challenge, or attribute to one's ſelf, to take upon one's ſelf.

Arrow-Head, a Water-herb, ſo call'd, becauſe the Leaves of it reſemble the Head of a three-forked Arrow.

Arſe, the Fundament, Breech, or back Parts. In a Sea-Language, the Arſe of a Block or Pulley, thro' which any Rope runs, is the lower end of it.

Arſe-foot, a Water-fowl, otherwiſe call'd the little Didapper.

Arſe-ſmart or Water-Pepper, a ſort of Herb.

Arſe-verſy or Arſy-verſy, Heels over Head, topſy-turvy, prepoſterouſly.

Arſenal, (Fr.) a Royal or Publick Store-houſe of Arms, and all ſorts of Warlike Ammunition; a Place appointed for the making and keeping of every thing that is neceſſary for Defence and Aſſault.

Arſenick, a Mineral Body, conſiſting of much Sulphur and ſome Cauſtick Salts, of which there are three ſorts, viz. White, Yellow, and Red.

Regulus of Arſenick, a Chymical Compoſition, or Subſtance like Butter, made of Nitre, Tartar, Orpiment, Scales of Steel, and corroſive Sublimate.

Ruby of Arſenick, a Preparation of Arſenick with Sulphur, or Brimſtone, by means of ſeveral repeated Sublimations, which give it the tincture or die of a Ruby.

Arſenogonon, (Gr.) an Herb which being ſteept in Wine, and drunk off, procures the getting of a Male Child.

Arſis, a raiſing or lifting up, the raiſing of the Voice in Pronunciation; alſo a taking away, or from.

Arſis & Theſis, certain Terms in Muſical Compoſition: Thus a Point being inverted or turned, is ſaid, To move per Arſin and Theſin, that is to ſay when a Point riſes in one Part, and falls in another; or on the contrary, when it falls in one Part, and riſes in another; which occaſions a very agreeable Variety.

Arſura, (in old Latin Records) the Tryal of Money by Fire, after the coyning of it.

Art, (Lat.) all that which is performed by the Wit and Induſtry of Man; a Collection of Rules, Inventions and Experiments, which being obſerv'd, give ſucceſs to our Undertakings in all manner of Affairs.

Liberal Arts and Sciences, ſuch as are noble and genteel, viz. Grammar, Rhetorick, Muſick, Phyſick, the Mathematicks; as Arithmetick, Geometry, Aſtronomy, Navigation, &c. See Science.

Mechanick Arts, are thoſe that more require the labour of the Hand and Body, than of the Mind; as thoſe of Statuaries, Carvers, Gravers, Chaſers, &c.

Art and Part, (North-Country Term) as To be Art and Part in the committing of a Crime, i. e. when one was both a Contriver, and acted his part in it.

Artemiſia, Queen of Caria and Wife of Mauſolus, who built ſo ſtately a Tomb for her deceaſed Husband, that it was counted one of the ſeven Wonders of the World: Alſo the Herb Mug-wort, or Mother-wort; which took Name from that Princeſs, and is of great Virtue in all Diſeaſes peculiar to Women.

To Arten, to conſtrain, or force. Chaucer.

Arteria, (Gr. in Anat.) an Artery: The Arteries are thoſe hollow skinny Veſſels like Veins, in which the moſt thin and hotteſt part of the Blood, together with the Vital Spirits, paſs thro' the Body.

Arteria Aorta or Magna, the great Artery, a Veſſel conſiſting of four Coats, and continually beating, which carries the ſpirituous Blood from the left Ventricle of the Heart, by its Branches to all Parts of the Body.

Arteria Cœliaca. See Cœliack Artery.

Arteria trachea or Aſpera, (i. e. the rough Artery) the Wind-pipe, a griſtly Veſſel which conſiſts of ſeveral Rings and Parts; its uſe being to form and convey the Voice, to take in Breath, &c.

Arteria Venoſa, the Vein of the Lungs: See Pulmonaria Vena.

Arteriaca Medicamenta, Medicines that cure Diſeaſes in the Wind-pipe, and help the Voice.

Arteriace, a Medicine for the Arteries.

Arterial, belonging to thoſe Veſſels.

Arterioſa Vena. See Pulmonaria Arteria.

Arteriotomy, an artificial cutting or opening of an Artery, for the letting of Blood in an obſtinate Head-ache, Madneſs, Falling-Sickneſs, &c. and the Inciſion is uſually made in the Fore-head, Temples, or behind the Ears.

Arthanita, the Herb Sow-bread.

Arthetica, the Cowſlip, Ox-lip, or Primroſe; a Flower.

Arthritis or Morbus Articularis, the Gout, a Pain in the Joynts of the Limbs, accompany'd with Swelling, Redneſs, hard Knobs in ſeveral Parts of the Body and other Symptoms.

Arthritis Planetica or Vaga, the wand'ring Gout, a Diſeaſe that flies or moves about, cauſing Pain ſometimes in one Limb, and ſometimes in another.

Arthritical or Arthritick, diſeaſed in the Joynts, belonging to, or troubled with the Gout.

Arthrodia, (in Anat.) a kind of Joynting, whereby two Bones are joyn'd together, with a flat Head received into a Cavity or Hollow of a ſmall Depth; as the head of the Shoulder-bone, with the Cavity of the Scapula or Shoulder-blade.

Arthron, a Joynt, or a joyning together of Bones.

Arthroſis, the ſame as Articulation; which See.

Arthur, a famous warlike King of the Britains, who beat the Saxons in ſeveral ſet Battels.

Artichoke, a known Plant of an excellent ſtrengthening Quality.

Jeruſalem-Artichoke; a Plant near of the ſame Nature as Potatoes.

Artick Pole. See Arctick Pole.

Article, (Lat.) a Condition in a Covenant or Agreement; a chief head of a Diſcourſe, Writing, Treatiſe, Account, &c. a Point, Clauſe, or ſmall Member of a Sentence.

In Grammar, Article is a ſmall Word that ſerves to diſtinguiſh the Genders of Nouns, and is therefore commonly ſet before them, throughout their ſeveral Declenſions; as ὁ, ἡ, τὸ, in the Greek Tongue, and hic, hæc, hoc in the Latin.

In Arithmetick, Article ſignifies Ten, with all other whole Numbers that may be exactly divided into ten Parts, as 10, 20, 30, 40, &c. Theſe are alſo ſometimes call'd Decads, and ſometimes Round Figures.

Articles of the Clergy, Statutes or Ordinances, made about Eccleſiaſtical Perſons and Cauſes.

To Article, to make, or draw up Articles.

Articularis Morbus. See Arrhritis.

Articulate, diſtinct, as when Words are ſo clearly pronounc'd, that one may hear every Syllable.

Articulate Sounds, ſuch Sounds as can be expreſs'd by Letters, and ſerve to make Words.

Articulation, (in Grammar) is that part of it which treats firſt of Sounds and Letters, and then of the manner of their Combination, or joyning together for the compoſing of Syllables and Words; ſo that a Man who utters his Words, diſtinctly and clearly, is ſaid To pronounce them articulately.

In Anatomy, Articulation is a joyning together of the Limbs of an Animal Body, for the due performing of Motion; and it is otherwiſe call'd Arthroſis. Among Herbaliſts, Articulation is taken for the Joynts or Knots that are in ſome Husks or Cods, as thoſe of the Herb Ornithopodium or Birds-foot, and in the Roots of Polygonaton or Solomon's Seal.

Articulus, (Lat.) a Joynt in the Body of a Living-Creature; a knuckle of the Fingers, a Joynt or Knot in Plants: Alſo an Article or Condition in a Covenant, &c. a chief Head in a Diſcourſe: In ſome of our ancient Writers; an Article or Complaint preſented by way of Libel in a Spiritual Court.

Artifice, a Trick, Slight, or Knack; a cunning Fetch, or crafty Device.

Artificer, one that profeſſes ſome Art or Trade; a Handicrafts-man, a Workman.

Artificial, done according to the Rules of Art, Artful.

Artificial Day. See Day.

Artificial Lines, (on a Sector or Scale) are Lines ſo contrived as to repreſent the Logarithmick Sines and Tangents, which by the help of the Line of Numbers, will ſolve all Queſtions in Trigonometry, Navigation, &c.

Artificial Numbers, are Logarithms, and Logarithmical Numbers relating to Sines, Secants, Tangents, &c.

Artillery, warlike Furniture comprehending all ſorts of Fire-arms, viz. Cannons, Mortar-pieces, Carbines, Muskets, &c. with their Appurtenances; as Bombs, Granado's, Carcaſſes, &c.

Artillery-Company, a particular Company of Citizens of London, train'd up and well-skill'd in Military Diſcipline.

Artiſan, (Lat.) an Artificer, or Tradeſman.

Artiſt, a Maſter of any Art, an ingenious Workman.

Artolaganus or Artolaganum, (Gr.) fine Cake bread; a Flawn, a Cuſtard, a Cheeſe-cake.

Artomeli, Broth made of Honey and Bread.

Artus, (Lat.) the Members, Limbs, or Joynts of the Body.

Arval Brothers, (among the Romans) a Corporation of Prieſts, Twelve in Number; who beſides their performance of Sacrifices, were appointed Judges of Land-marks.

Arval, Arvil, or Arfal, (old Word) a Burial, or Funeral Solemnity.

Arvil-Bread, the Loaves diſtributed to the Poor upon ſuch Occaſions.

Arvil-Supper, a Feaſt or Entertainment given at Funerals; a Cuſtom ſtill obſerv'd in ſome of the North and North-Weſt Parts of England.

Arviſian Wine, a ſort of Greek Wine brought from Arvis, now Amiſta a Town in the Iſland of Chios.

Arum, (Gr.) the Herb Wake-Robin, whoſe Root is an excellent Remedy againſt Poiſon, the Plague, and other Diſtempers.

Arura, (Lat. for Aratura) a Word us'd in ancient Deeds for ploughing: Una Arura, one Days-work at the Plough.

Arytæna, (Gr.) a little Baſon or Diſh, a Bathing-Veſſel, a Pitcher to draw Water or Wine with, a Veſſel like a Ladle, to take up any Liquor.

Arytænoides, (in Anat.) two Cartilages or Griſtles, which with others make up the top of the Larynx or Wind-pipe, and ſerve to render the Voice more ſhrill or deep: They are ſo nam'd, becauſe when their Proceſſes are joyn'd together, they repreſent the Mouth of an Ewer, or the indented Lip of a Cup or Veſſel: They are alſo call'd Gutturales, upon the ſame account from the Latin word Gutturnium, a Laver or Ewer.

Arytenoideus, the ſmalleſt Muſcle belonging to the Larynx, which ariſes from the outward part of one of the Arytænoidal Griſtles, and running croſs-ways, is inſerted to the other.

Arythmus, a Term us'd by ſome Writers in Phyſick, for a Pulſe which is ſo far loſt that it cannot be any longer felt.

As, (Lat.) otherwiſe call'd Libra and Pondo, a Roman Pound-weight, containing 12 Ounces; or any entire thing divided into twelve Parts, as an Inheritance, an Eſtate, &c. in which Caſe the Parts were nam'd Ounces. As is alſo an ancient Coin made at firſt of Copper, without any Stamp, in value according to our Money not above Half-penny-farthing.

Aſa, (Heb. a Healer of Sickneſs) a Name of a King of Judah, who deſtroy'd the High Places.

Aſa dulcis, (Lat.) the Gum, otherwiſe call'd Benjamin or Benzoin.

Aſa fætida, a ſort of Gum preſs'd out of a certain Plant, which grows in Perſia, and is good for Women troubled with fits of the Mother.

Aſahel, (Heb. God has wrought) Joab's Brother, who by his ſwiftneſs overtaking Abner, was kill'd by him.

Aſaph, (i. e. Gathering) a famous Muſician among the ancient Jews, and one of the chief of K. David's Quire.

Aſaphia, (Gr.) Obſcurity, Uncertainty: In a Medicinal Senſe, a lowneſs of Voice proceeding from an ill Frame or Diſpoſition of the Organs of Speech.

Aſapi, the forlorn Hope of the Turkiſh Foot-Soldiers, who are ſet upon all the moſt deſperate Services.

Aſarabacca or Aſarum, (Gr.) an Herb growing with thick, round, ſhining Leaves like thoſe of the Violet, but larger: The Leaves are much us'd to provoke Vomiting, to force the Courſes, &c.

Aſarotum, (among the Romans) a ſort of fine Pavement in Dining-rooms, made of ſmall Tiles of ſeveral Colours, ſo artificially contriv'd and inlaid, that the Room look'd, as if it were not ſwept, but the ſcraps were left on the Floor.

Aſbeſtine Paper or Cloth, ſuch as will burn in the Fire, be purify'd by it, and yet not conſume: It is made of the Stone Asbeſtos, and by ſome call'd Linum Vivum.

Aſbeſtos, a ſort of Stone of which Cloth was anciently made, that would not burn or waſte, tho' thrown into a great Fire; the ſame with Amiantus; which See.

Aſcalabotes, a kind of Evet, or Eſt.

Aſcalonia or Aſcalonium, a ſort of Onion, which took Name from Aſcalon a noted City of Idumæa; a Scallion.

Aſcarides, little Worms which breeding in the Inteſtinum Rectum, or Straight Gut, tickle and trouble it; Arſe-worms, the Bots in Horſes.

Aſcaunſe, (old Word) a-thwart, or a-croſs.

To Aſcend, (Lat.) to go, get, or climb up, to riſe upwards.

Aſcendant, (in Aſtrol.) the Degree of the Equator, or that part of the Heaven which riſes or is coming above the Horizon in the Eaſt, when any Perſon is born: 'Tis alſo call'd the Horoſcope, the Angle of the Eaſt, and the firſt Houſe in a Scheme or Figure: In a Figurative Senſe, Aſcendant is taken for an Over-ruling or Powerful Influence over any one. Alſo a Term in Architecture. See Chambranle.

Aſcenſion, an aſcending, ariſing, going, or getting up.

Aſcenſion-Day, a Feſtival kept ten Days before Whitſuntide, in remembrance of our Bleſſed Saviour's Aſcenſion or going up into Heaven, and commonly call'd Holy Thurſday.

Aſcenſions and Deſcenſions of Signs, (in Aſtron.) are Arches of the Equator, which riſe or ſet with ſuch a Sign or Part of the Zodiack, or with any Planet or Star happening to be therein; which are either Right or Oblique.

Right Aſcenſion, is that Degree of the Equator, counted from the beginning of Aries, which riſes with the Sign, Sun, or Star on the Horizon of a Right Sphere: Or it is that Degree and Minute of the Equinoctial, which comes to the Meridian with the Sun or Star, or with any Point of the Heavens.

Oblique Aſcenſion, is that Degree and Minute of the Equator; which riſes with the Center of the Sun or Star, or with any Point of the Heavens on the Horizon of an Oblique Sphere.

Aſcenſional Difference, is the Number of Degrees remaining after Subtraction of the Oblique from the Right Aſcenſion: Or it is the ſpace of Time the Sun riſes or ſets, before or after ſix of the Clock.

Aſcent, the Act of aſcending or going up; the Steepneſs of a Hill, a Riſing-ground: In Logick, that ſort of Reaſoning, in which we proceed from Particulars to Univerſals.

To Aſcertain, (q. d. to aſſert for certain) to aſſure, to fix or ſet a Price, &c.

Aſcetick, (Gr.) belonging to Religious Exerciſes, as Meditation, Prayer, &c. A Term in Divinity.

Aſchynomene, an Herb ſo call'd from Bluſhing, becauſe when any one comes near it, it gathers its Leaves in. See Æſchynomenous and Senſitive Plants.

Aſcii, (in Geogr.) thoſe People that have no Shadows, by reaſon that the Sun at Noon being twice a Year in their Zenith or Vertical Point, their Bodies then do not caſt any Shadow; and ſuch are the Inhabitants of the Torrid Zone.

Aſcites, a kind of Dropſie, when a Maſs of Watery Humours, with a little Wind is gather'd between the inner Rim of the Belly and the Guts, which cauſes the lower Belly, Scrotum, Thighs and Feet to ſwell and ſtand out as it were a Bottle, call'd Aſcos in Greek.

Aſcitick, belonging to, or troubled with the Aſcites.

Aſclepiadean Verſe, a ſort of Greek or Latin Verſe, conſiſting of four Feet, viz. A Spondee, a Choriambus and two Dactyls; as Mecænas atavis edite regibus. Hor.

Aſclepias, an Herb with long Branches and many Roots, Leaved like Ivy; Swallow-wort or Silken Cicely; chiefly us'd againſt the Plague and other Infectious Diſeaſes.

Aſcoliaſmus, a kind of Play, call'd, Fox to thy Hole, in which Boys hopping on one Leg, beat one another with Gloves or pieces of Leather.

To Aſcribe, (Lat.) to attribute or impute, to father a thing upon one.

Aſcyron, (Gr.) an Herb call'd St. Peter's-Wort.

Aſellus, (Lat.) a little Aſs, an Aſs-Colt or young Aſs: Alſo the Cod-fiſh or Stock-fiſh; Haberdine, or Barrel-cod: Alſo the Tiler's Lowſe or Sow; an Inſect.

Aſellus Minor, the Whiting or Buckthorn, a Fiſh. Aſellus Niger, the Coal-Fiſh, Coal-Whiting, or Pollock.

Aſh, a Quick-thriving Tree that delights in a Fat and Chalky Soil: It is reputed to be Male and Female, one growing chiefly on high Grounds, and the other in Plains.

Aſh-Fire or Sand-Fire, the mildeſt Fire us'd in Chymical Operations, when the Veſſel that contains the Matter to be heated, is cover'd underneath and on all ſides, with Aſhes, Sand, or the Filings of Iron.

Aſh-Wedneſday, the firſt Day of Lent, ſo call'd from the ancient Cuſtom of Faſting in Sack-Cloath, with Aſhes on the Head, in Token of Repentance.

Aſh-Weed, a kind of Herb.

Aſher, (Heb. Bleſſedneſs or Happineſs) the Son of Jacob by Ziplah, and Founder of one of the twelve Tribes of the Iſraelites.

Aſhur, (i. e. bleſſed or beholding) the Son of Shem; alſo the Land of Aſſyria.

Aſia, one of the four Parts of the World, ſaid to be ſo call'd from Aſia the Wife of Prometheus, or from the Hebrew Word Eſh, i. e. Fire, which was generally Worſhipped in Perſia and other Parts of that Continent.

Aſiaticks, the People or Inhabitants of Aſia.

An Aſide, (in a Play) that which is ſpoken aſide on the Stage, as if it were not heard by the other Actors.

Aſilus or Aſilum, (Lat.) a great Fly that bites Cattel; the Horſe-fly or Breez, the Whame or Gad-Fly.

Aſilus Marinus, the Sea-breez, an Inſect which gets under the Fins of the Tunney and other great Fiſhes, and ſtings them ſo grievouſly, that ſometimes they leap out of the Sea into Ships.

Aſineſia, (Gr. in ſome Writers of the Art of Phyſick) an unmoveableneſs of the whole Body, or of any part of it; as in a Palſie, Apoplexy, Swoonings, &c.

Aſinus, (Lat.) the Aſs, a ſluggiſh Beaſt; alſo a Block-head, or heavy dull Fellow.

Aſio, a great Owl with long Feathers ſtanding up like Ears, the Horn-Owl.

Aſkaunt, (old Word) as To look aſkaunt, i. e. to look ſide-ways.

Aſmodeus, the Name of a certain Evil Spirit, mention'd in the Apocryphal Book of Tobit.

Aſp or Aſpen-tree, a kind of white Poplar, the Leaves of which are ſmall and always tremble.

Aſp or Aſpic, a little Serpent whoſe Bite is deadly. See Aſpis.

Aſpalathum or Aſpalathus, (Gr.) a Roſe-Wood, the Wood of a ſmall Thorny Shrub, tart and bitter to the Taſte; ſometimes ſold for Lignum Aloes, which it much reſembles.

Aſparagus, a Plant call'd Sparrow-graſs by the Common People; whoſe firſt Shoots being boil'd are counted a dainty Diſh at their firſt coming in the Spring-time: Among Herbaliſts, it is taken for the firſt Sprout or Shoot of a Plant, coming out before the Leaves are unfolded; which may either be eaten by it ſelf, or boil'd in Broth.

Aſparagus Sylveſtris, wild Sperage.

Aſpect, (Lat.) Looks, the Air of one's Countenance.

In Aſtrology, Aſpect is, when two Planets are joyn'd with, or beheld of each other; or when they are plac'd at ſuch a Diſtance in the Zodiack, that they mutually help or afflict one another, or have their Virtues, encreas'd or ſpoil'd: They are uſually counted five in number, viz. The Sextile, Quartile, Trine, Oppoſition and Conjunction, beſides eight new Aſpects added by Kepler, viz. Demiſextile, Decile, Octile, Quintile, Tredecile, Seſquequartile, Biquintile and Quincunx; all which ſee in their proper Places.

Aſpen-tree. See Aſp.

Aſper, (Lat.) rough, rugged, ſharp, harſh; alſo the Sharpling, a kind of Fiſh: Alſo a Turkiſh Coin in value about five Farthings of our Engliſh Money.

Aſpera Arteria. See Arteria trachea.

Aſperifoliæ Plantæ, (among Hebaliſts) rough-leaved Plants, ſuch as have their Leaves plac'd alternately, or in no certain Order on the Stalks, and whoſe Flower is Monopetalous, or conſiſting only of one ſingle Leaf cut or divided into five Partitions, as Hounds-Tongue, Wild Bugloſs, Comfrey, &c.

Aſperity, Roughneſs, Sharpneſs, Harſhneſs. In a Philoſophical Senſe, the Roughneſs or Uneveneſs of the Surface of any Natural Body, ſo that ſome Parts of it ſtick out ſo above the reſt, as to hinder one's Hand, &c. from paſſing over it eaſily and freely.

To Aſperſe, to Defame or Slander, to ſpeak Evil of, to caſt a Blemiſh upon one's Reputation.

Aſperſion, (properly a ſprinkling or daſhing of Water, &c.) a Beſpattering, a Slander, a falſe Imputation.

Aſperula, the Herb Wood-row or Wood-roof by ſome call'd Stare, Liver-wort; which is of good uſe in the Jaundice.

Aſphaltites, (Gr.) a Lake of Judæa, commonly call'd the Dead-Sea, where a Sodom and Gomorrah, with three other noted Cities once ſtood in a moſt fruitful Valley.

Aſphaltos, a ſort of Bitumen or Pitch, gather'd of that Lake.

Aſphodelus, the Daffodil or Daffadown-dilly; a Plant and Flower.

Aſphodil, a kind of Flower, otherwiſe call'd Kings-ſpear.

Aſphyxia, (in the Art of Phyſick) a Ceſſation of the Pulſe throughout the whole Body; which is the higheſt degree of Swooning and next to Death.

Aſpilates, a Precious Stone of a Siver-colour, good againſt Lunacy: Alſo a ſparkling Arabian Gem, found in ſome Birds-neſts, and good for thoſe that are troubled with the Spleen.

To Aſpirate, (Lat.) to pronounce with an Aſpiration.

Aſpiration, Breathing, the fetching or drawing in of the outward Air: In Grammar, a Mark which is expreſs'd thus, (ʽ) and uſually ſet over a Greek Vowel, to give it the force or full ſound of the Letter h: Thus we pronounce ſome Syllables or Words which have that Letter before them, ſtrongly with a good deal of Breath, and ſome Vehemency; as haſt, hear, heat, &c. Whereas if the h were left out, they would be ſounded much ſofter and eaſier; as aſt, ear, eat, &c.

To Aſpire to a thing, to covet or deſire it with Earneſtneſs, ambitiouſly to ſeek or aim at.

Aſpis, (Gr.) the Aſp or Aſpick, a moſt Venomous Serpent, having its Eyes not in the Forehead, but in the Temples: One kind kills by Thirſt, another by Sleep, and a third by Blood; the Parties bit by them, either Thirſting, Sleeping, or Bleeding to Death.

Aſplenon or Aſplenium, the Herb Ceterach, Milt-waſte or Spleen-wort, ſo call'd upon account of its Virtue in Curing Diſeaſes of the Spleen.

Aſprella, (Lat.) an Herb call'd great Shave-graſs or Horſe-tail.

Aſſa fœtida. See Aſa fœtida.

To Aſſail, (Fr.) to Aſſault or Attack, to ſet upon.

Aſſailant, one that Aſſaults or ſets upon another.

Aſſaraback. See Aſarabacca.

Aſſapanick, a flying Squirrel a little Creature, peculiar to Virginia and Mary-land in the Weſt-Indies.

Aſſart, (Fr. Law-Term) an Offence committed in a Foreſt, by pulling up by the Roots the Woods or Thickets that are Covert for the Deer, ſo as they can never grow again, and by making all Plough'd Land.

To Aſſart, to grub up Trees, Shrubs, Buſhes, &c. by the Roots.

An Aſſaſſinate, a Private or Treacherous Murder, Villany.

To Aſſaſſinate, to Murder one privately, or barbarouſly.

Aſſaſſine, a Private or Treacherous Murderer that kills another for Gain, or upon Hope or Promiſe of Reward.

Aſſaſſines, a preciſe Sect of Mahometans, fill'd with the very Spirits of that Poiſonous Superſtition: They had ſix Cities in their Poſſeſſion, and were about 40000 in Number, living near Antaradus in Syria. At the Command of their Chief Maſter, they would refuſe no Pain or Peril; ſo as even to ſtab any Prince whom he appointed for Deſtruction: Whence thoſe that are ready to execute bloody Deſigns are commonly call'd Aſſaſſines.

Aſſath or Aſſach, an old Cuſtom among the Welſh, whereby the Party accuſed of a Crime us'd to purge or clear himſelf upon the Oath of 300 Men; and it continu'd till the firſt Year of the Reign of K. Henry V.

Aſſation, (Lat.) a Roaſting: In the Apothecaries Art, a peculiar kind of Decoction or Boiling of Drugs.

Aſſault, (Fr.) an Attack or Onſet: In a Law-ſenſe a violent kind of Injury done to a Man's Perſon, by offering to give a Blow, or by a threat'ning Speech. See Affray.

In the Art of War, Aſſault is an effort made upon a Place or Poſt, to gain it by main Force; and the uſual Expreſſions are, To give an Aſſault to ſuch a Place, To be commanded to the Aſſault, To ſtand an Aſſault, To ſecond an Aſſault, To repulſe by Aſſault, To carry by Aſſault, &c.

To Aſſault, to Attack, to ſet upon, See To Inſult.

Aſſay, Proof, or Tryal.

Aſſay of Weights and Meaſures, an Examination of them, by the Clerk of the Market.

Aſſay-Maſter, an Officer of the Mint, who weighs the Bullion, and ſees that it be according to the Standard, having for his Fee 250 Pounds per Annum.

Aſſayer of the Queen, an Officer for the due Tryal of Silver, indifferently appointed between the Maſter of the Mint, and the Merchants that bring Silver thither for Exchange.

Aſſaying, a Term us'd by Muſicians for a Flouriſh before they begin to Play.

Aſſayſiare, (in ancient Latin Deeds) to take Aſſeſſours, or Fellow-Judges.

To Aſſemble, (Fr.) to call, or to meet together; to gather, come, or get together.

Aſſembly, a Concourſe, or Meeting of People.

Unlawful Aſſembly, (in Common Law) the Meeting of three or more Perſons, for the committing of an unlawful Act, altho' they do not compaſs it.

Aſſent, (Lat.) Conſent, Approbation, properly of a Superiour; as The Queen has given her Royal Aſſent to the Following Acts.

To Aſſent, to agree to.

Aſſentamen, a kind of Pink, a Flower peculiar to the Countries of Virginia and Mary-land.

† Aſſentation, (Lat.) a complying with another's Opinion, out of Flattery or Diſſimulation; a Cogging and Soothing.

To Aſſert, to affirm, to maintain, to hold.

Aſſertion, Affirmation, Concluſion; an Opinion brought forth and maintained.

To Aſſeſs, to Rate or Tax, to appoint what every one ought to pay.

Aſſeſſment, the Act of Aſſeſſing, or Rating.

Aſſeſſour, one that ſits by, and helps another in Office and Authority; a Judge Lateral, a chief Counſellour or Aſſiſtant to a Judge: Alſo one that appoints or allots the Payment of Publick Taxes, according to every Man's Stock or Ability: Alſo an Officer in the Presbyterian Aſſemblies.

Aſſets, (Fr. i. e. enough) a Law-Term, ſignifying Goods ſufficient with which an Heir or Executor, may diſcharge the Anceſtour's or Teſtatour's Debts or Legacies.

Aſſeveration, (Lat.) an earneſt Affirming, or Avouching.

Aſſewiare (in old Latin Writers) to drain, or draw out Water from Marſhy Grounds.

Aſſiduity, great Diligence, continual Care or Attendance, conſtant Application.

Aſſiduous, diligent, cloſe at Buſineſs, continual.

Aſſign, (Law-Term) one that is deputed or appointed by another, to perform any Buſineſs or enjoy any thing.

To Aſſign, to appoint, to allot, to ſhew or ſet forth: In a Law-Senſe, to appoint a Deputy; to ſet, or make over a Right to another: Alſo to appoint or ſet forth; as To Aſſign Errours, i. e. to ſhew where the Errours are committed.

To Aſſign falſe Judgment, is to ſhew how and where the Judgment is Unjuſt: To Aſſign the Ceſſor, to ſhew how the Plaintiff has Ceſſed or given over. To Aſſign Waſte, to ſhew eſpecially wherein the Waſte is committed.

Aſſignee, a Perſon to whom a thing is Lawfully Aſſigned or made over, or who is appointed to act for another; and ſuch a one may be either by Deed or in Law.

Aſſignee by Deed, one that is appointed by a Perſon; as when the Leſſee of a Term Aſſigns the ſame to another, he is his Aſſignee by Deed:

Aſſignee in Law, is he whom the Law ſo makes, without any Appointment of the Perſon: So an Executor is Aſſignee in Law to the Teſtator.

Aſſignment, the Act of Aſſigning, a ſetting over the Intereſt in any thing to another; as The Aſſignment of a Leaſe, &c.

Aſſignment of Dower, the ſetting out of a Woman's Dower or Marriage-Portion, by the Heir, according to the Eſtabliſhment formerly made by the Husband or his Friends.

Aſſimilation, a making or being like: In Anatomy, it is the Operation of Nature whereby the Nutritious Juice is made like the Subſtance of that living Body into which it is to be Chang'd and United; the changing of the Humour call'd Chyle into Blood, &c.

Aſſipondium, (Lat.) a Pound-weight.

Aſſiſa Cadere, a Law-Term for to be Nonſuited.

Aſſiſa Nocumenti, an Aſſize of Nuiſance.

Aſſiſa Continuanda, a Writ directed to the Juſtices appointed to take an Aſſize, for the continuance of a Cauſe, where certain Records alledged, cannot be procured in time, by the Party that would uſe them.

Aſſiſa Panis & Cerviſiæ, the Power or Privilege Aſſizing or Adjuſting the Weights and Meaſures of Bread and Beer: Whence the Weight of Bread appointed by the Magiſtrate is ſtill call'd the Aſſize or Size of Bread.

Aſſiſa proroganda, a Writ directed to the Juſtices of Aſſize, for the Stay of Proceedings, by reaſon of the Queen's Buſineſs, in which the Party is employ'd.

Aſſiſors, (in Scotland) the ſame as our Jurors.

Aſſiſus, (Lat. old Law-word) demiſed or Farmed out for ſuch an Aſſize, or certain Aſſeſſed Rent in Money or Proviſions: Whence Terra aſſiſa was the Land let out to inferiour Tenants, and uſually oppos'd to Terra Dominica, or that Land which was held in Demaine, and poſſeſs'd by the Lord himſelf.

To Aſſiſt, to ſtand by, Succour, Aid, or Help; to be preſent at.

Aſſiſtance, Aid, Help, Succour.

Aſſiſtant, aſſiſting or helping; as I will be aſſiſtant to you

An Aſſiſtant, a ſtander by, an Auditour or Hearer, a Helper; a Colleague or Partner in the Management of a Buſineſs, &c.

Aſſius Lapis, (Lat.) a kind of Stone with which Coffins were anciently made, that waſted the dead Body; ſo call'd from Aſſus a Town of Myſia, where they were digged.

Aſſize, a Law-Term, ſignifying, 1. A ſitting of Juſtices upon their Commiſſion, to hear and determine Cauſes; and that Court, or Meeting is call'd The Aſſizes. 2. A fourfold Writ for recovering the Poſſeſſion of Lands, Tenements, &c. of which one has been diſpoſſeſs'd. 3. The Jury Summoned upon ſuch Writs. 4. A Statute or Ordinance relating to the Price, Weight, Meaſure, or Order of ſeveral Commodities; as The Statute or Aſſize of Bread and Ale; alſo the Meaſure, or Quantity it ſelf: Thus 'tis ſaid when Wheat, &c. is at ſuch a Price, the Bread ſhall be of ſuch Aſſize.

Aſſize of Darrein Preſentment, is a Writ that lies, where a Man and his Anceſtour have preſented a Clerk to a Church, and afterwards it being void by his Death or otherwiſe, a Stranger preſents his Clerk to the ſame Church, in oppoſition to the former Patron.

Aſſize of the Foreſt, a Statute concerning Orders to be obſerv'd in the Queen's Foreſt, Aſſize of Mort d' Anceſtor, a Writ lying where one's Father, Mother, Brother, Siſter, Uncle, Aunt, &c. dy'd poſſeſſed of Lands, Tenements, Rents, &c. and after his or her Death, a Stranger abates or gets Poſſeſſion of them.

Aſſize of Novel Diſſeiſin, a Writ that lies where a Tenant in Fee-ſimple, Fee-tail, or for Term of Life, is lately deſſeized, or diſpoſſeſſed of his Lands or Tenements, or elſe of a Rent-ſervice, Rent-charge, Common of Paſture, Toll, Office, &c. and in ſeveral other Caſes.

Aſſize de Utrum, a Writ that lies for a Parſon againſt a Lay-man, or a Lay-man againſt a Parſon, for Land or Tenement, that is doubtful, whether it be Lay-fee, or free Alms.

Clerk of Aſſize, an Officer that ſets down all things judiciouſly done by the Juſtices of Aſſize, in their Circuits.

Aſſizer of Weights and Meaſures, an Officer that has the Overſight of thoſe matters.

An Aſſociate, a Companion, or Partner.

To Aſſociate, to bring into ſome Society, or Fellowſhip; to joyn with, or to keep Company with.

Aſſociation, an entering into Society with others; a joyning with them to perform ſome Act: In a Law Senſe, a Patent ſent by the Queen, to the Juſtices of Aſſize, to admit others for Colleagues, and Fellows in that Buſineſs.

Aſſodes or Aſſodes Febris, (Gr.) a kind of burning Feaver, in which the Patient continually tumbles and toſſes, being extremely reſtleſs, and ſubject to Sickneſs at the Stomach, and Vomiting.

To Aſſoil or Aſſoyle, to acquit, to pardon; alſo to anſwer, a Word us'd by Chaucer. In Common Law, it ſignifies to deliver or ſet free from an Excommunication.

To Aſſume, (Lat.) to take to, or upon one's ſelf.

Aſſumpſit, (Law-Term) a voluntary Promiſe, made by Word of Mouth, as when a Man aſſumes, or takes upon him to perform or pay any thing to another; and it is otherwiſe call'd a Nude Contract.

Aſſumption, properly an aſſuming, or taking; an Inference upon: In Logick, the Minor, or ſecond Propoſition of a Syllogiſm: Alſo a Feſtival kept by the Papiſts, in Honour of the Bleſſed Virgin Mary's being taken up into Heaven.

Aſſurance, Sureneſs, Certainty, Security, Safety, Confidence.

To Aſſure, to affirm or aſſert, to warrant; to undertake, or promiſe a Thing.

To Aſſwage, to allay, or appeaſe; to abate, to grow calm.

Aſſyria, a Province of Chaldæa, in Ancient times the chief Part of the Aſſyrian, or firſt Great Monarchy in the World.

Aſtacus, (Gr.) the Lobſter, a Sea Fiſh. Aſtacus fluviatilis, the Crevis or Crey-fiſh.

Aſtaphis, a Raiſin or dry'd Grape. Aſtaphis agria, the Herb Staves-acre.

Aſteiſmus, Courteſy, Civility, Pleaſantry. In Rhetorick, a Figure wherein ſome pleaſant Jeſt is expreſs'd, a kind of Irony; as Qui Bavium non odit, amet tua carmina Mævi. Mart.

Aſter, a Star; alſo the Herb Star-wort, Share-wart, or Cod-wort.

Aſterantium, the Herb Maſter-wort, or Pellitory of Spain.

Aſterias, a kind of Heron, the Egret; a ſort of Fowl.

Aſterias or Aſterius, a precious Stone ſhining like a Star.

Aſtericum, the Herb Pellitory of the Wall.

Aſterion, a kind of Spider, the Bite of which is ſaid to weaken the Knees; alſo an Herb call'd Cow-parſnep.

Aſteriſk, a little Mark in a Writing, or Book, in Shape of a Star (*) ſet over any Word or Sentence, to ſhew the want of ſomewhat, or ſomething to be more eſpecially taken Notice of.

Aſteriſm, a Conſtellation, or Cluſter of fixed Stars, which on the Globe is uſually repreſented by ſome particular Image, or Figure, of a Living-Creature, &c. for the better diſtinguiſhing of their Places; as the two Bear-Stars, call'd Urſa major & minor: Aries the Ram, Taurus the Bull, and other Signs of the Zodiack.

Aſterites, a kind of Opal, a precious Stone, which ſparkles with Beams like a Star, whence it has its Name.

Aſterlagour, a Word us'd by Chaucer, for an Aſtrolabe.

Aſtert, (old Word) paſſed.

Aſthma, (Gr.) a frequent Breathing, or Difficulty in fetching Breath, joyn'd with a rattling Sound and a Cough, eſpecially in the Night; Shortneſs of Breath, a Wheezing Phthiſick.

Aſthmatick, belonging to, or troubled with an Aſthma, or Difficulty of breathing; Purſy.

† Aſtipulation, (Lat.) mutual Conſent, or Agreement, between ſeveral Parties.

Aſtiſmus. See Aſteiſmus.

To Aſtoniſh, to cauſe an extraordinary Surprize and Admiration.

Aſtoniſhment, extreme Surprize, Amazement.

Aſtragal, (in Architect.) a Member or round Moulding like a Ring, that encircles the Baſes, Cornices, or Architectraves of Pillars, according to the ſeveral Orders: It is call'd Talon by the French, and Tondino by the Italians. In Gunnery, Aſtragal is the Cornice-Ring of a Piece of Ordinance.

Aſtragaliſmus, (Gr.) the Play at Cockal, Dice, &c.

Aſtragalus, the Huckle-Bone: Alſo the firſt principal Bone of the Foot, which with other little ones, makes up that Part which immediately ſucceeds the Leg, and is call'd the Paſtern in Beaſts: Alſo an Aſtragal, Wreath or Circle about a Pillar: Alſo an Herb, which for the Shape of it, may be call'd Peaſe-Earthnut.

Aſtragalus Sylvaticus, Wood-peaſe, or Heath-peaſe.

Aſtral Year. See Solar Year.

Aſtraliſh, (a Term among Miners) that Oar of Gold, which as yet lies in its firſt State or Condition.

Aſtrapias, (Gr.) a precious Stone, whoſe Luſtre reſembles Flaſhes of Light'ning.

Aſtrictoria, (Lat.) Medicines that are aſtringent, or of a binding Quality.

Aſtringent, binding, or making coſtive.

Aſtringents, (in Phyſick) are thoſe things, which with the Thickneſs and Figure of their ſmall Parts, force and bind together, the Parts of the Body.

Aſtrobolas, a Gem like the Eye of a Fiſh, which ſome take to be the ſame with Aſterias.

Aſtroites, a kind of Tecolite, a precious Stone; alſo the Star-ſtone, ſo call'd, becauſe it is ſet off on all Sides, with little blackiſh Stars.

Aſtrolabe, a Mathematical Inſtrument, chiefly us'd at Sea, to take the height of the Sun or Stars. It conſiſts of an entire Circle, whoſe Limb is divided into Degrees, and Decimal Parts of a Degree, with a moveable Ruler or Label, which turns upon the Center, and carries two Sights; a Ring on the top, to hang it by in the time of Obſervation, &c.

Aſtrologe, an Herb otherwiſe call'd Birth-wort, and Hart-wort.

Aſtrologer, one that profeſſes Aſtrology; a Fortune-teller.

Aſtrological, belonging to Aſtrology.

Aſtrology, an Art that teaches to judge of the Influences, or Effects of the Stars; and which pretends to foretel future Things, from the Motion of the Heavenly Bodies, and their Aſpects one to another.

Aſtronomer, one skill'd in Aſtronomy.

Aſtronomical, belonging to that Science.

Aſtronomical Calendar, an Inſtrument, conſiſting of a Board on which is paſted Paper, printed from Engrav'd Copper-Plates, with a Braſs Slider, which carries a Hair, and ſhews upon Sight, the Sun's Meridian Altitude, Right Aſcenſion, Amplitude, Declination, &c. to a greater Nicity than the largeſt Globes now made.

Aſtronomical Day. See Day.

Aſtronomical Numbers or Aſtronomicals. See Sexageſimal Fractions.

Aſtronomical Place of a Star or Planet, is its Longitude, or Place, in the Ecliptick, reckoned from the Beginning of Aries, in Conſequentia, or according to the Natural Order of the Signs.

Aſtronomical Quadrant, an Inſtrument curiouſly Fram'd, having the Degrees exactly divided by means of a Screw on the Edge of the Limb, and fitted with Teleſcopes, &c. in order to take Obſervations of the Sun, Moon, or Stars.

Aſtronomical Years. See Year.

Aſtronomy, a Mathematical Science, which treats of the Stars, or Heavenly Bodies; ſhewing their reſpective Meaſures, Magnitude or Size, Order, Diſtance, Eclipſes and Motions. In a large Senſe, it alſo comprehends the Doctrine of the Syſtem of the World, the Laws of the Planetary Motions, &c. which ſome reckon as a Part of Phyſicks, or Natural Philoſophy.

Aſtrum, a Conſtellation, or Celeſtial Sign, conſiſting of many Stars. In ſome ancient Deeds, it is taken for an Houſe, Habitation, or Place of Abode, from the old Word Aſtre, i. e. the Hearth of a Chimney.

Aſtur, (Lat.) a Hawk, or Buzzard; a Bird of Prey.

Aſturco, an ambling Nag, a Spaniſh Gennet.

Aſtylis, (Gr.) a kind of Lettice that reſtrains Venery.

Aſylum, a Sanctuary, a Place of Safety for Offenders to fly to, and eſcape Puniſhment; a Temple or privileged Place.

Aſymmetral, the ſame as Incommenſurable, a Mathematical Term: Thus two Quantities are ſaid to be Aſymmetral, when there is no common Meaſure between them. See Incommenſurable.

Aſymmetry, Incommenſurability.

Aſymptotes, (i. e. that do not fall together) are Lines which continually draw nearer to each other; but tho' continued infinitely, can never meet. Of theſe there are ſeveral ſorts; as the Curve of the Conchoid or Ciſſoid, the noted Aſymptotes, in Conick Sections, &c.

Aſyndeton, (in Grammar) a Defect, or want of Conjunctions in a Sentence; as Polyſyndeton is a Redundance or abounding of them; or a Figure, in which Comma's are put inſtead of Conjunctions Copulative; as Veni, vidi, vici, i. e. I came, I ſaw, I conquer'd.

Aſyſtaton, (in Logick) an idle inconſiſtent Story or Aſſertion, that does not hang together, but contradicts it ſelf; as He affirm'd, he knew this one thing, that nothing could be known.

Atabalipa, a King of Peru, in Southern America, who was taken Priſoner by the Spaniards, under Francis Pizarro, and forc'd to pay for his Ranſom, a Chamber full of Gold and Silver, judg'd to be worth Ten Millions; which when they had receiv'd, they treacherouſly put him to Death.

Ataxia, (Gr.) Want of Order, Irregularity: Among ſome Writers, in the Art of Phyſick, it is taken for a confounding of Critical Days.

Atechnia, Inartificialneſs, Ignorance, Unſkilfulneſs.

Ateramna, a kind of Pulſe that requires much boiling.

Ateramnos, a Weed in fat Ground, that grows amidſt Beans, and kills them.

Atcheked, (Old Word) choaked.

To Atchieve, (Fr.) to execute, perform, or compaſs; in ſpeaking of ſome notable Enterprize.

Atchievement, the Performance of ſome great Exploit: In Heraldry, the Coat of Arms of any Gentleman, duly marſhalled, or ſet forth with all its proper Ornaments; viz. Supporters, Helmet, Wreath and Creſt, Mantles, Woods, &c. Such are uſually hung out on the Fronts of Houſes, after the Death of the Lord, Lady, Maſter, or other conſiderable Perſon, and are now corruptly call'd Hatchments.

Athaliah, (Heb. the Hour or Time of the Lord) the Daughter of Omri, King of Iſrael, who uſurp'd the Kingdom of Judah.

Athanaſia, (Gr.) Immortality; alſo the Herb Tanſey.

Athanatos, a kind of Herb call'd Roſe-Champion.

Athanor, (among Chymiſts) a kind of large Digeſting-Furnace, made with a Tower, and contriv'd ſo as to keep a conſtant Heat, for a Fortnight, Month, &c. Or the Heat may be encreas'd, or leſſen'd at Pleaſure, by opening, or ſhuting the Regiſters.

Atharer, (Arab.) a Term us'd by Aſtrologers, when the Moon is in the ſame Degree and Minute with the Sun.

Atheiſm, the Opinions and Practice of thoſe that deny the Being of a God.

Atheiſt, one who holds and maintains ſuch wicked Doctrines; a Godleſs Fellow, a Miſcreant, an Infidel.

Atheiſtical, belonging to an Atheiſt.

Atheling, a Title, which in the time of the Saxons, was uſually given to the King's Eldeſt Son, as that of Prince of Wales is at preſent.

Athenæum, (Gr.) a Place in the City of Athens, Conſecrated to Minerva, the Goddeſs of Wiſdom, where the Greek Poets us'd to make an Offering of their Works.

Atherina, the Prickle-Fiſh, a kind of Sea-Fiſh.

Atheroma, (in Surgery) a kind of Swelling, contain'd in its own Coat, which proceeds from a thick and tough Humour, like Oatmeal-Gruel, or Pap of ſodden Barley: It does not cauſe Pain, nor change the Colour of the Skin; neither does it eaſily yield to the Touch, or leave any Dint, when preſs'd.

Athletick, Champion-like, that is of a ſtrong Conſtitution, Luſty.

Athroted, (Old Word) cloyed, glutted.

Athymia, (Gr.) Dejection, or Trouble of Mind; Deſpondency, Deſpair, Sadneſs.

Atinia, a kind of the moſt lofty Elm-tree, ſo call'd from Atina, a Town of Campania, in Italy, which was noted for good ſtore of thoſe Trees.

Atizoes, a ſort of precious Stone that ſhines like Silver; found in Perſia and India.

Atlantes, (in Architect.) certain Images of Men bearing up Pillars, or ſupporting the Pile of Building.

Atlantick Sea. See Ocean.

Atlas, an ancient King of Mauritania, who upon account of his great Skill in Aſtronomy, was feign'd by the Poets to bear Heaven on his Shoulders, and to have been chang'd into a vaſt Mountain of a prodigious height, now known by the Name of Anchiſa, or Montes claros. Whence a Book of Univerſal Geography, containing the Maps of the whole World is call'd an Atlas.

In Anatomy, Atlas is the firſt Vertebra or Turning-joynt of the Neck, ſo nam'd, becauſe it ſeems to hold up the Head.

Atmoſphere, that Region or Space of Air round about the Earth, into which Exhalations or Vapours are rais'd, either by Reflection from the Sun's Heat, or by being forc'd up by the Fire under Ground. The Planets are alſo ſaid to have their reſpective Atmoſpheres, with which they are enclos'd.

Atmoſphere of Conſiſtent Bodies, a Term us'd by Mr. Boyle, who in a ſmall Eſſay on this Subject proves, That very many and probably all ſolid, firm and conſiſtent Bodies have certain Effluvia of Particles of Matter which exhale or ſteam out from them: Thus, Glaſs, Stones and Metals being rubb'd againſt one another ſtrongly, ſend forth ſenſible and even offenſive Smells.

Atocia, (Gr.) a being without Children, or barren.

Atocium, any Medicine that hinders the Conception, or Birth.

Atom, (in Philoſ.) a part of Matter ſo extremely ſmall, that it cannot Phyſically be cut, or divided into leſſer Parts.

To Atone, to appeaſe the Divine Anger, to make Satisfaction for Sin, or amends for a Fault.

Atonement, Reconcilement, or Appeaſing of Anger.

Atonia, (Gr.) a looſening of the Nerves or Sinews, a Failing or Decay of Strength; Infirmity, Faintneſs, Weakneſs.

Atra Bilis, (Lat.) black Choler, a kind of Sulphureous, Earthy Salt, which being bred in the Body of a Living-Creature, is carry'd about in the Blood, and making an undue Fermentation in it, occaſions Melancholy, and other ſuch like Diſtempers.

Atractylis, (Gr.) a Thorny Shrub of which Spindles were anciently made; wild Carthamus, or a kind of Cnicus.

Atraphaxis, or Atriplex, the Herb Orrach, or Arrach.

Atreus, one whoſe Fundament, or Privy Parts are not perforated.

Atricapilla, (Lat.) a Bird with Black Feathers on the Head, much like a Linget or Titling.

Atriplex, Orrach, or Golden Herb.

Atriplex latifolia, Gooſe-foot, or Sow-bane.

Atriplex olida ſive fœtida, ſtinking Orrach, or Notch-weed; an Herb good for Mother-fits and Stoppages in Women.

Atrocity, Hainouſneſs, Grievouſneſs, Odiouſneſs, Outragiouſneſs, Cruelty.

Atrophus, (Gr.) one that is in a Conſumption, whoſe Victuals do him no good; a Starveling.

Atrophy, a kind of Conſumption, when the whole Body, or any particular Limb is not nouriſhed by the Food, but inſenſibly withers, decays and waſtes away.

To Attach, (Fr. Law-word) to apprehend, lay hold on, or take by force of a Writ, or Precept.

Attachiamenta Bonorum, (in ancient Latin Deeds) a Diſtreſs taken upon the Goods or Chattels of any Sued for Perſonal Eſtate or Debt, by the Legal Attachiatores or Bailiffs, as a Security to anſwer the Action.

Attachiamenta de Spinis & Boſco, a Privilege granted to the Officers of a Foreſt to take for their own uſe, Thorns, Bruſh and Wind-fall, within the particular Precincts or Liberties committed to their Charge.

Attachment, the Act of Attaching: It differs from an Arreſt, which lies only on the Body of a Perſon, and from a Diſtreſs that ſeizes on Lands, Tenements, or Goods; whereas an Attachment is ſometimes on the Goods only, and ſometimes on Body and Goods.

Foreign Attachment, is the Attaching of a Foreigner's Goods found in ſome Liberty or City, to ſatisfy ſome Creditor of his within ſuch Bounds; and by the Cuſtom of London, a Man may Attach Money or Goods in the Hand of a Stranger, while he is within the Liberty of that City.

Attachment of the Foreſt, is the loweſt of the three Courts held there; the other two being the Swainmote, and the Juſtice in Eyre's Seat: This Court ſeems to be ſo call'd, becauſe the Verderours have therein no other Authority, but to receive Attachments of Offences againſt Vert and Veniſon, taken by the reſt of the Officers, and to enroll them, that they may be preſented and Puniſh'd at the next Juſtice-ſeat.

Attack, (Fr.) Onſet, Attempt, Encounter, Charge, Brunt: In the Art of War, the General Aſſault or Onſet, that is given to gain a Poſt, or upon any Body of Troops.

Attack of a Siege, the Works carry'd on by the Beſiegers, as Trenches, Mines, Galleries, Breaches, &c. in order to make themſelves Maſters of the Place by Storming one of its Sides; and this Attack is either Falſe, or Regular.

Falſe Attack, is an Effort to the ſame end, but manag'd with leſs Vigour than the reſt; as intended only to give a Diverſion to the Beſieged, and to divide the Garriſon.

Regular, Droit, or Right Attack, that which is made in due Form, according to the Rules of Art; and To gain a Place by Right Attack, is to carry it by Formal Attack and Regular Works, without a General Storm.

To Attack, to Charge or Encounter, to fall or ſet upon; to provoke, urge, or quarrel with.

To Attack in Flank, (at a Siege) is to Attack both ſides of the Baſtion.

Attagen, (Gr.) a kind of Fowl of a Brick-colour; the Heath-cock, a Godwit, a Snite.

To Attain, (Lat.) to reach or come to, to obtain or get, to compaſs a thing.

Attainable, that may be attained.

Attainder, (Fr.) a Law-word us'd, when Judgment is paſs'd upon one that has committed Felony or Treaſon; for then his Blood is ſaid To be Attainted, i. e. Corrupted, and if he were Noble or Genteel before, his Poſterity are degraded and made baſe.

Bill of Attainder, a Bill brought into the Parliament for the Attainting, Condemning, and Executing of a particular Perſon for High Treaſon; or ſome other Crimes.

Attainment, (Lat.) an attaining, obtaining, or getting.

Attaint, (Fr.) a Writ which lies againſt a Jury that has given a falſe Verdict in any Court of Record, if the Debt or Dammages amount to above the Summ of forty Shillings. The Puniſhment for ſuch Offenders is, That their Meadows ſhall be Plough'd, their Woods grubb'd up, their Houſes pull'd down, and all their Lands and Tenements forfeited to the Queen, and their Perſons Impriſon'd.

Attaint or Atteint, a Term us'd by Farriers, and ſignifying a Knock or Hurt in a Horſe's Leg.

To Attaint, to Taint, to Corrupt, to Stain the Blood, as High-Treaſon does.

Attainted, Corrupted; as Attainted Fleſh: In a Law-ſenſe, it is apply'd to ſuch as are found guilty of ſome Crime or Offence, eſpecially Felony or Treaſon; alſo one is ſaid To be Attainted of Diſſeiſin.

Attainture, an Attainting, Corruption of Blood.

Attelabus, (Lat.) a kind of ſmall Locuſt, without Wings; the Wood-Sere.

To Attemper, to temper, allay, qualify, or moderate; to mix in a juſt Proportion.

To Attempt, to make an Attempt or Effort, to endeavour, to undertake, to try.

To Attend, to bend the Mind to; to regard, to take heed to; to give Ear, or liſten to: Alſo to do one Service, to wait on, or for, &c.

Attendance, Attending, or Waiting, Service; a Retinue, or Train of Servants.

Attendant, a Servant, a Follower, one that waits upon another. In a Law-ſenſe, one that owes Duty or Service to, or that after ſome manner depends on another.

Attention, Heedfulneſs, Carefulneſs, Earneſtneſs, Diligence.

Attentive, heedful, mindful, diligently hearkening to; intent, or bent upon a thing.

Attenuantia, (Lat.) attenuating Medicines, i.e. ſuch as open the Pores of the Body, with their ſharp Particles, ſo as to cut the thick and clammy Humours, and make them paſs eaſily through the Veſſels.

To Attenuate, to make thin, to weaken, or leſſen.

Attenuation, the Act of Attenuating: In a Medicinal Senſe, a leſſening of the Power or Quantity of the Matter that cauſes Diſeaſes.

To Atteſt, to Witneſs, to Certify; to Aſſure, or Vouch.

Atteſtation, the Act of Atteſting, a Teſtimony given in Writing of the Truth of any thing.

Atticiſm, a Phraſe or manner of Speech, us'd by the ancient Athenians, an Elegancy of the Attick Dialect.

Attick, belonging to the Country of Attica in Greece.

In Architecture, Attick is a kind of Order, after the manner of the City of Athens: According to Vitruvius, the Name of a Baſis, which Modern Architects have ſince given to the Dorick Pillar: In our Buildings, Attick is a ſmall Order plac'd upon another that is much greater, and inſtead of Pillars there are only Pilaſters of a particular Form or Faſhion.

Attilatus equus, (in old Latin Records) a Horſe dreſs'd with his Geers or Harneſs, for the Work of the Cart or Plough.

Attilia, the Rigging of a Ship; alſo the Tools and Implements of Husbandry: It was alſo ſometimes taken for Warlike Harneſs, or Accoutrements.

Attilus, a great Fiſh of the Sturgeon-kind in the River Po, ſometimes weighing a thouſand Pounds, taken with a Hook and a great Chain, and dragg'd out with a Team of Oxen.

Attire, Women's Apparel, Dreſſes and Furniture: In Heraldry, the Horns of a Stag or Buck.

An Attiring, a Dreſſing or Furniſhing: Among Hunters, the branching Horns of a Buck.

Attollens Auriculam, (in Anat.) a Muſcle that draws up the Ear: It is joyn'd to that part of the Membrane of the Scull, call'd Pericranium, which covers the Temporal Muſcle, and is inſerted to the upper part of the ſecond Wrinkle of the Cartilage, or Griſtle of the Ear.

Attollens Nares, a Muſcle of the Noſe, which ſerves to draw up the Noſtrils.

Attollens Oculum, otherwiſe nam'd Superbus, one of the ſix pair of Muſcles belonging to the Eye; which it lifts upwards.

Attollentes, a pair of Muſcles, which acting both together, draw the whole upper Lip directly upward and outward; but if one of them only move, then one ſide of the Lip is drawn obliquely.

Attonitus Stupor or Morbus Attonitus, the Apoplexy a Diſeaſe; alſo a being Planet-ſtruck, or Blaſted.

Attornare rem, (in ancient Writers) to attourn or turn over Money and Goods, i.e. to appoint or apply them to ſome particular Uſe and Service.

Attornato faciendo vel recipiendo, a Writ which a Man owing Suit to a County, Hundred, Wapentake, or other Court, and deſiring to make an Attorney to appear for him, whom he doubts whether the Sheriff, or Bailiff will admit or not; obtains to command ſuch Officer to receive and admit him.

Attorney or Atturney, (Fr.) one appointed by another Man, to do any thing in his ſtead, or to take upon him the Charge of his Buſineſs in his Abſence; eſpecially ſuch as are employ'd for the Management of Law-ſuits, and theſe are either General or Special.

Attorney General, is he that is appointed by General Authority, to manage all Affairs or Suits; as The Queen's Attorney General, &c. and theſe are made either by the Queen's Letters Patent, or by Order before Juſtices in Eyre, in open Court.

Attorney Special or Particular, is he that is employ'd in one or more Cauſes, particularly ſpecify'd: There are alſo, in Reſpect of the divers Courts, Attorneys at Large and Attorneys Special, belonging to this or that Court only.

Attorney of the Court of the Dutchy of Lancaſter, is the ſecond Officer in that Court, and ſeems for his Skill in Law plac'd as Aſſeſſour to the Chancellour of the Dutchy; being for the moſt part ſome honourable Perſon.

Attour, (old Word) towards.

Attournment, (in Common Law) is when the Tenant attourns to, or acknowledges a new Lord: Or it is a transferring thoſe Duties which the Tenant ow'd his former Lord, to another, and it may be done either by Word, or Act.

To Attract, (Lat.) to draw to one's ſelf; to allure, or entice.

Attraction, an Attracting or Drawing to; the drawing of one thing to another.

Attractive, that is apt to attract, or draw.

Attrahentia, (Lat.) attracting or drawing Medicines, i.e. thoſe that with their ſmall Particles open the Pores of the Body, ſo as to diſperſe the Humours, cauſe the Parts to ſwell, and draw Bliſters in the Skin.

Attrebatii, the ancient Name of thoſe People, who inhabited that part of England, which is now call'd Bark-ſhire.

Attribute, (in Logick) is whatever may be truly predicated, pronounced, or affirmed of a Thing. In Metaphyſicks, a certain formal Reaſon ſubſequent to the Reaſon of the Subject, and proceeding from it, yet ſo as not to be really diſtinct from the Subject.

In Divinity, Attributes are certain Properties, or glorious Excellencies attributed to God, to enable us the better to conceive of him; as that he is Eternal, Almighty, Infinitely Wiſe, &c.

To Attribute, to impute a thing to one, to father it upon him.

Attrition, properly a rubbing, fretting, or wearing: In Natural Philoſophy, the rubbing of one thing againſt another; as when Amber, and other ſuch like Bodies are rubb'd, to make them draw, or ſend forth their Electrick Force.

Among Divines, Attrition is taken for an imperfect Sorrow for Sin; the loweſt Degree of Repentance, which ariſes from the Apprehenſion of being liable to Puniſhment and Miſery on Account of ſuch Offence, rather than from the Love of God.

Atturney. See Attorney.

Avage or Aviſage, a Rent, or Duty, which every Tenant of the Manour of Writtel, in Eſſex, pays to the Lord, on St. Leonard's Day, November 6, for the Liberty of Pannage, or feeding their Hogs in his Woods.

To Avail, (Fr.) to be ſerviceable, profitable, or advantageous to.

Available, that may avail, be profitable, or turn to good Account.

Availment, Uſefulneſs, Advantage, Profit.

Avant, (Fr.) before, forward; alſo a Term of Diſdain, as much as to ſay, Away, out of my Sight, get you gone!

Avant Foſſe, (in Fortif.) a Moat, or Ditch full of Water, running round the Counterſcarp, on the out-ſide, next the Country, at the Foot of the Glacis.

Avant-Mure, an outward Wall.

Avant-Peach, an haſty Peach that is early ripe.

Avant-ward, (in old Writers) the Avant-Guard, or Front in an Army. See Van.

Avarice, (Lat.) Covetouſneſs, inordinate Deſire of Money; Niggardlineſs.

Avaricious, Covetous, Stingy, Niggardly, Cloſe-fiſted.

Avaſt, a Word often us'd by Sea-men, and ſignifying as much as make haſte, diſpatch; alſo ſtop, hold, or ſtay.

Aubade, (Fr.) Morning-Muſick, ſuch as is play'd at the Dawn of Day, before one's Door, or under one's Window.

Auburn, a dark brown, or Cheſnut-colour.

Auction, (Lat.) a Publick, or open Sale of Goods, in which the higheſt Bidder is the Buyer; the Word properly ſignifies the Act of Increaſing: Among ſome Writers in Phyſick, it is taken for the Nouriſhment of an Animal Body, whereby more is reſtor'd than was loſt, or decay'd; an encreaſe of Vigour and Strength.

Auctionarii or Auxionarii, (in old Records) Sellers, Regraters, or Retailers of Commodities.

Auctioneer, one that Sells, or manages the Sale by Auction.

Audacious, confident, over-bold, daring.

Audacity or Audaciouſneſs, Confidence, Raſhneſs, Saucineſs.

Audible, that may be heard.

Audience, the hearing of one that ſpeaks, or the Aſſembly of Hearers.

Audience-Court, a Court belonging to the Archbiſhop of Canterbury, of equal Authority with the Arches Court, tho' inferiour both in Dignity and Antiquity.

Audiendo & Terminando, a Writ, or rather Commiſſion, directed to certain Perſons, for the trying and puniſhing of thoſe that are concern'd in a riotous Aſſembly, Inſurrection, or hainous Miſdemeanour committed in any Place. See Oyer and Terminer.

Audit, the Act of hearing and examining an Account.

Audita Querela, a Writ that lies for one that is bound in a Statute-Merchant, or Recognizance, or where Judgment is given againſt him for a Debt, &c. upon his Complaint, ſhewing ſome juſt Cauſe, why Execution ſhould not be granted; as a Releaſe, or other Exception.

Auditor, a Hearer, one that hears a Sermon, Lecture, or other Diſcourſe in Publick, or in an Aſſembly. In a Law-ſenſe, an Officer of the Queen, or ſome other great Perſon, appointed yearly to examine the Accounts of all Under-Officers, and to make a general Book, which ſhews the difference between their Receipts and Charge.

Auditors Conventual, Collegiate, &c. certain Officers formerly appointed among the Religious, to examine and paſs the Houſe-accounts: Whence the Auditory, Audit-Houſe, and Audit-time, in Cathedral and Collegiate Bodies.

Auditors of the Exchequer, Officers that take and ſettle the Accounts of the Receivers, who collect the Revenues of the Augmentation, as alſo thoſe of the Sheriffs, Eſcheators, Cuſtomers, &c.

Auditors of the Mint, they that take the Accounts there, and make them up; their Fee being twenty Pounds per annum each.

Auditors of the Preſts or Impreſts, are Officers in the Exchequer, who take and make up the great Accounts of Ireland, Berwick and the Mint; as alſo of Money impreſted to any Man for the Queen's Service.

Auditor of the Receipts, is alſo an Officer of the Exchequer, that files the Tellers Bills, makes an Entry of them, and gives the Lord Treaſurer a Certificate of the Money receiv'd the Week before: He alſo makes Debentures to every Teller, before they pay any Money and takes their Accounts.

Auditory, belonging to the Senſe of Hearing.

Auditory Nerve, (in Anat.) is the ſeventh Pair of Nerves that comes from the Medulla Oblongata, and takes riſe from the hinder part of the Proceſſus Annularis: It is divided into two Branches, viz. one ſoft, call'd Portio mollis, and the other hard, nam'd Portio dura; which are diſtributed in the Ear, Noſe, Lips and Cheeks.

An Auditory, an Aſſembly of Hearers.

Auditus, (Lat.) the Senſe of Hearing.

Avellana or Nux avellana, the Filberd-nut; a Fruit.

Avellanarius Mus, the Haſel-mouſe.

Avellane, (in Heraldry) a kind of Croſs; which takes Name from its Figure reſembling four Filberds in their Husks or Caſes, joyn'd together at the great Ends.

Avena, (Lat.) Oats, a ſort of Grain.

Avenage, (Law-word) a certain Quantity of Oats, which a Land-Lord receives in ſtead of ſome other Duties, or as a Rent from the Tenant.

Avenor, an Officer belonging to the Queen's Stables, that provides Oats for her Horſes.

Avens, an Herb growing in Gardens and elſewhere, the Root of which is Comfortable to the Heart, and a good Preſervative againſt the Plague.

Aventurœ, (in old Latin Writers) Adventures, voluntary Feats, or Tryals of Skill at Arms.

Aventure, (Fr. more properly Adventure) a Law-Term, ſignifying a Miſchance that cauſes the Death of a Man, without Felony; as when he is drowned or burnt, by accidentally falling into the Water or Fire. See Miſadventure.

Avenue, a Paſſage, Entrance, or Way lying open to a Place: Among Gardiners, a Row or

Walks

Walk of Trees, &c. In the Art of War and Fortification, a Space left for Paſſage in a Camp, Garriſon, or Quarter; an Opening, or Inlet, into any Fort, Baſtion, or other Work.

Aver-Corn, a Rent in Corn formerly paid to Religious Houſes, by their Farmers, or Tenants.

Aver-penny, Money contributed towards the King's ro Averages, or Carriages to be freed from that Charge.

Avera, a Word us'd in Doomſday-book, for a Day's Work, or Day's Wages of a Plough-man, i. e. Eight Pence.

Average, (in Traffick) ſignifies, 1. The general Allowance made to a Maſter of a Ship of one Penny, or two Pence in every Shilling Fraight. 2. An Allowance to him upon ſpecial Occaſions, when he ſuffers Dammage, paid by each Merchant, according to his Cargo. 3. The Contribution that ſeveral Inſurers pay, to make Satiſfaction for the Loſs of Goods caſt over-board, which are by them inſured.

In Common Law, Average is taken for that Service which the Tenant owes the Lord, to be done by Horſe or Carriages: In Huſbandry, Paſturage or Fodder for Cattel, eſpecially the Eddiſh, or Graſs that comes after mowing or reaping.

Aver, a Word us'd among Huſband-men, for a Labouring-Beaſt.

Averdupois. See Avoir-du-pois.

Averia, a Latin Law-Term for Cattel from Aver, or from the French Verb Avoir, to have or poſſeſs; the Word ſometime including all Perſonal Eſtate, as Catalla did all Goods and Chattels.

Averiis captis in Withernam, a Writ for the taking of Cattel to his Uſe, that has his Cattel unlawfully ſeiz'd by another, and driven out of the County where they were taken, that they cannot be replevy'd.

Averment, (Law-Term) when the Defendant offers to make good, or juſtifie an Exception pleaded in Abatement, or Bar of the Plaintiff's Action.

To Aver, (Fr.) to aſſert the Truth, to affirm or avouch, to evidence or prove.

Averruncation, (Lat. in Huſbandry) a Lopping off the ſuperfluous Branches of Trees.

Averſe, that diſlikes, or cannot endure a thing; not inclined to.

Averſion or Averſeneſs, a being averſe from, or having no Inclination for.

To Avert, to turn away, to drive, or keep back.

Avery, a Place where Oats or Provender are kept for the Queen's Horſes.

Auff or Elf, a Fool, or ſilly Fellow.

Augar or Auger, a Wimble, a Carpenter's Tool, for the boring of ſmall Holes.

Auge, (in Aſtron.) the ſame as Apogæum, or that Point of the Orbit, wherein a Planet being, is fartheſt diſtant from the Central Body, about which it rolls, and is then ſloweſt in Motion.

Augea, (in ancient Latin Deeds) a Ciſtern for Water.

To Augment, to encreaſe, to enlarge, to improve.

Augmentation, Increaſe, Inlargement, Improvement, Addition.

Augmentation-Court, a Court ſet up by King Henry VIII. for the Encreaſe of his Crown-Revenues, by the Suppreſſion of Monaſteries and Religious Houſes: This Court was diſſolved by Q. Mary I. but the Office of Augmentation ſtill continues, and in it are many Records of great Uſe and Importance.

Augmentum, (Lat.) Growth, Increaſe: In Grammar, an Addition made in certain Tenſes of Greek Verbs, by encreaſing the Number of Syllables; as τύπτω, ἔτυπτον, ἔτυψα, τέτυφα, &c. See Temporale Augmentum.

Augmentum Febricum, (among Phyſicians) a Reckoning from what time the Heat of a continual Feaver has ſeiz'd upon the Maſs of Blood, till it come to the Height.

Augur, (among the Romans) a Sooth-ſayer, or Diviner that foretells things to come, by obſerving the chiriping of Birds, the Courſe of the Heavens, or the Effects of Nature.

To Augurate, to conjecture, or gueſs; to ſurmiſe, or ſuppoſe.

Augury, a Divination, or Sooth-ſaying, by the Singing, Flight, or feeding of Birds.

Auguſt, Imperial, Royal, Majeſtick, Venerable, Sacred; as An auguſt Aſſembly.

Auguſt, the Eighth Month in the Year, ſo call'd, in Honour of Auguſtus Cæſar, the Second Emperour of Rome, becauſe in that Month, he enter'd on his Second Conſulſhip, conquer'd Ægypt and put an end to the Civil Wars.

Auguſtan Confeſſion, a Confeſſion of Chriſtian Faith made by the Proteſtants at Auguſta, or Augsbury in Germany. A. D. 1530.

Auguſtin, a proper Name of ſeveral great Men; particularly of the moſt Ancient of the Latin Fathers and Biſhop of Hippo in Africa.

Auguſtin or Auſtin Friers, a ſort of Black Friers, of the Order of St. Auguſtin.

Auguſtinians, a Sect of Hereticks, otherwiſe call'd Sacramentarians, who hold, That Heaven-Gates are not open'd till the the General Reſurrection: They were firſt ſet up by Andrew Caroloſtadius, A. D. 1524, and afterwards confirm'd by one Auguſtin a Bohemian.

Aviary, (Lat.) a great Cage, or Place where Birds are kept.

Avice, (Germ.) a proper Name of Women.

Avidity, (Lat.) Greedineſs, Eagerneſs, eager Deſire, or Appetite.

Aviſage. See Avage.

Aukward, untoward, or unhandy.

Auln, a Meaſure us'd in France, which at Rouen, is equal to one Engliſh Ell, at Lyons, to 1. 016 at Calais, to 1. 52, and at Paris, to 0. 95.

Aulnegeor. See Alnager.

Aumbry, a Country-Word for a Cupbord to keep Victuals in. See Ambry.

Aume, or Awme, (of Rheniſh Wine) a Meaſure containing about 160 Paris-Pints, or 40 Engliſh Gallons.

Aumelet or Omelet, (Fr.) a Pancake made of Eggs, after the French Way.

Aumone, a Law-Word for Alms. Tenure in Aumone, is where Lands are given to a Church, or Religious Houſe, upon Condition, that ſome ſort of Service, or Prayers, ſhall be ſaid for the Good of the Donour's Soul, &c.

Aumonire, an Almoner, or Diſtributer of Alms.

Auncel-Weight, (q. d. Hand-ſale Weight) a kind of ancient Weight, with Scales hanging, or Hooks faſten'd to each End of a Beam, or Shaft, which being rais'd upon one's Fore-Finger, or Hand, ſhew'd the difference between the Weight, and the thing weigh'd: But this Weight was forbidden by ſeveral Statute-Laws, upon Account of great Deceit in the Uſe of it, and quite taken away by one made, 22 Car. 2.

Avocation, (Lat.) properly a calling away, or from; a Let, or Hinderance.

To Avoid, to ſhun, to eſcape, to quit or leave: In a Medicinal Senſe, to diſcharge, or caſt forth by Stool, Urine, &c.

Avoidance, a Law-Term us'd when a Benefice becomes void of an Incumbent.

Avoir-du-pois, (Fr. i. e. to have full Weight) a Weight of ſixteen Ounces to the Pound, commonly us'd in the Weighing of Butter, Cheeſe, Fleſh, Grocery-Ware, and every thing, from which iſſues a Refuſe, or Waſte. In a Law-Senſe, it alſo ſignifies ſuch Merchandizes as are weighed by this Weight, and not by Troy-weight.

Avoſetta, the Scooper, a ſort of Bird.

To Avouch, to affirm reſolutely or boldly, to aſſert, or maintain ; to vouch, or anſwer for another.

To Avow, (Fr.) to own, confeſs, acknowledge, or grant. In a Law-ſenſe, to juſtify a thing already done.

Avowee or Advowee, (Law-word) the Patron of a Benefice ; or a Perſon to whom the Right of Advowſon of any Church properly belongs, ſo that he may preſent in his own Name ; in which Reſpect he is diſtinguiſh'd from a Guardian, who preſents in the Name of his Ward, and from thoſe that have Lands, whereto an Advowſon appertains only for Term of their Lives, or of Years, &c.

Avowry, When a Diſtreſs has been taken for Rent, or other thing, and the Party diſtrained ſues a Replevin ; the Taker ſhall make Avowry, or juſtify his Plea, for what Cauſe he took it.

Aura, (Lat.) a gentle Gale, or Blaſt of Wind ; a Breez, a cool Air : Alſo the Parret-beak'd Crow of New Spain ; a ſort of Bird.

Aurantium, an Orange, a Fruit ſo call'd from its Golden Colour.

Aurata, the Gilt-head, a Sea-Fiſh.

Aurea Alexandrina, a ſort of Opiate Medicine, or Antidote.

Aurelia, an Herb call'd Golden Stœchados, or Golden Floramour ; alſo the Inſect that turns to a Butter-fly.

Aureus, a Gold-coin, a Noble, a Crown : Alſo a ſort of Weight among the Arabians, conſiſting of a Dram and a ſeventh Part.

Aurichalcum, Latten, or Copper-Metal.

Auricomum, a kind of Crow-foot ; a Flower.

Auricula, an Ear, the out-ſide of the Ear : Alſo the Herb Burrage, having rough hairy Leaves, with fair Blew ſharp-pointed Flowers : Alſo the Flower call'd Bears-Ears.

Auricula Aſini, an Herb call'd great Comfrey.

Auriculæ Cordis, (in Anat.) the two Auricles, or Boſoms of the Heart, which are ſeated at its Baſis over the Ventricles, and ſo call'd from their ſomewhat reſembling the Ears of a Man's Head : Their Uſe is to receive the Venal Blood from the Vena Cava and Pulmonaris, and as it were to meaſure it into the Ventricles.

Auricula infima, the lower part, or tip of the Ear.

Auricula Judæ, Jews-ear, a kind of Subſtance that grows on the Trunk of the Elder-tree, and is us'd in Phyſick.

Auricula Leporis, Hares-ear, or Scorpion-wort ; an Herb.

Auricula Muris, the Herb Mouſe-ear, often us'd ſucceſfully in Wound-drinks, Plaiſters and Ointments, and for the Cure of ſeveral Diſeaſes.

Auricula Urſi, Bears-ear ; a ſort of Herb.

Auricular, belonging to the Ear ; as Auricular Confeſſion, i. e. ſuch as Roman Catholicks uſually whiſper into the Ears of a Prieſt, or Father-Confeſſour.

Auricularis Digitus, the little Finger, with which the Ears are pick'd.

Auriflamb. See Oriflamb.

Auriga, a Carter, a Waggoner, a Coach-man, or Charioteer : Alſo the Name of a Conſtellation, conſiſting of 23 Stars in the Northern Part of Heaven, and noted for Tempeſts.

Aurigo, the Yellow Jaundice ; a Diſeaſe.

Auripigmentum, a kind of Arſenick of a Gold-Colour ; Yellow Orpine, or Orpiment.

Auris, an Ear ; the Organ, or Inſtrument of Hearing.

Auris Marina, a kind of Shell-fiſh, the Shape of which exactly reſembles an Ear.

Aurora, the Morning-twilight, the Dawn, or break of Day, which begins to appear, when the Sun comes within Eighteen Degrees of the Horizon, and ends when it riſes above it.

Aurum, Gold, the moſt pure and perfect of all Metals.

Aurum Fulminans or Saffron of Gold, a Chymical Powder made of Gold, diſſolved in Aqua Regalis, and precipitated with Volatile Spirit of Sal Armoniack, or Oil of Tartar : It takes Name from its fulminating, or making a great Noiſe like Thunder, when 'tis heated over the Fire in a Spoon : For it will flie off and give a Report like a Gun, without doing any Miſchief ; its Force being chiefly downward, and quite contrary to Gun-powder that burns upward. See Pulvis Fulminans.

Aurum Moſaicum or Muſivum, a ſort of Compoſition Chymically prepar'd, which Painters and Statuaries make uſe of, to lay on a Colour like Braſs or Copper : It is made of a Mixture of Quick-ſilver, Tin, Sulphur and Sal Armoniack, ſublimed all together.

Aurum Potabile, Gold made liquid, or fit to be drunk ; or as ſome define it, a Medicine made of the Body of Gold, reduced into a Blood-red, Gummy, or Honey-like Subſtance : However the real Aurum Potabile, is uſually nothing elſe but ſome rich Cordial Liquor, with pieces of Leaf-gold in it.

Aurum Reginæ, a certain Revenue peculiar to a Queen-Conſort of England, and commonly call'd Queen-Gold ; which See.

Auſpicious, fortunate, proſperous, happily begun, lucky, favourable.

Auſpicium, (among the Romans) a kind of Sooth-ſaying, when they obſerv'd the flight and chirping of Birds, to know whether any Undertaking they were about, would prove happy, or unfortunate : Whence a thing is ſaid To be done under the Auſpices of a great Perſon, i. e. under his Command, Conduct, Guidance, or Protection.

Auſter, the South-wind, the South Part of the World.

Auſtere, ſow'r, ſevere, harſh, crabbed, ſtern.

Auſtere Taſte, is ſuch a one as leaves ſome Roughneſs on the Mouth and Tongue ; as is the Taſte of unripe Fruits.

Auſterity or Auſtereneſs, Severity, Strictneſs, Rigour.

Auſtin Friers. See Auguſtin Friers.

Auſtral, Southern, belonging to the South ; as The ſix auſtral Signs of the Zodiack, viz. Libra, Scorpio, Sagittarius, Capricornus, Aquarius and Piſces, ſo call'd, becauſe they are on the South Side of the Equinoctial Line.

Auſturcus, a Word us'd in ſome ancient Latin Deeds, for the Goſhawk, a Bird of Prey.

Authentick, (Gr.) that is of good Authority, generally allowed or approved of ; Original, credible.

Authenticks, the Title of the Third Volume, or Tome of the Civil Law, ſo call'd, becauſe it has its Authority from it ſelf ; as proceeding from the Emperour's own Mouth, or elſe for that it is an Original to other Writings which are copy'd out of it : 'Tis a Volume of New Conſtitutions, or Ordinances ſet forth by the Emperour Juſtinian after the Code, and brought into the Body of the Law, under one Book.

Author, (Lat.) one that is the firſt Cauſe of a Thing; the Inventer, Contriver, or Maker of a Thing; the Writer, or Compoſer of a Book; the Head of a Party, Faction, or Sedition.

Authoritative, done, or maintained by Authority.

Authority, Power, Rule, Preheminence, Credit, Intereſt; alſo a Teſtimony, or Paſſage of an Author, quoted to make good what one ſays.

To Authorize, to give Authority, or Power, to Impower; to allow by Authority, to Countenance.

Autochthones, (Gr.) the Original and Primitive Inhabitants of any Country, as it were ſprung out of the Earth it ſelf; particularly the moſt ancient People of Athens in Greece were ſo call'd. See Aborigines.

Autographum or Autography, the peculiar Hand-writing of any particular Perſon; or the Original of any Treatiſe, or Diſcourſe, with reſpect to a Copy.

Automaton, (in Mechanicks) an Engine or Inſtrument that goes by a Vice, Spring, Screw, or Weight; any piece of Art that ſeems to move of it ſelf; as a Clock, Watch, Jack, &c. Among ſome Writers in Phyſick, it is taken for the Motion of the Heart, the Working of the Bowels, &c.

Automatous or Automatical, Self-moving, or that ſeems to have a Motion within it ſelf.

Autopsia, the View of any thing taken by the Sight, or the ſeeing a thing with one's own Eyes.

Autophoros, (in the Civil Law) a Thief taken in the very Fact, or with the thing he ſtole about him; Back-berond.

Autopyros Panis, Houſhold-bread made of Corn, as it comes from the Mill, Flower and Bran all together.

Autremite, (q. d. another Miter) a kind of Veſtment mention'd in Chaucer.

Autumn, (Lat.) the third Seaſon of the Year, when Grapes and other Fruits are gather'd; the time of Harveſt and Vintage.

Autumn-Calvile, a ſort of Apple, of a longiſh Shape, and very red Colour, both within and without: 'Tis a very good Fruit to eat raw, and no leſs uſeful for Compotes.

Autumnal, belonging to Autumn.

Avulsion, a pulling, or plucking away.

Aux, an Aſtronomical Term, the ſame with Auge and Apogæum; which See.

Auxesis, (Gr. i. e. Increaſe) a Figure in Rhetorick, when any thing is magnify'd too much.

Auxiliary, (Lat.) that comes to aid, ſuccour and aſſiſt; helpful.

Auxiliary Verbs, (in Grammar) are ſuch as help to Form or Conjugate others, as To have, and To be, in the Engliſh Tongue, avoir and être in the French.

Auxiliaries or Auxiliary Forces, ſeveral Regiments that are rais'd in the City of London, upon ſome extraordinary Occaſion, to aſſiſt the Trained Bands.

Auxilium, (Lat.) Aid, Help, Succour, Supply: In a Medicinal Senſe, any Remedy that is good againſt a Diſeaſe.

Auxilium Curiæ, (in old Records) a Precept or Order of Court, for the Citing or Summoning of one Party, at the Suit of another.

Auxilium facere alicui in Curia Regis, to be another's Friend and Sollicitour in the King's Court; an Office heretofore ſolemnly undertaken by ſome Courtiers for their Dependents in the County.

Auxilium petere, to pray Aid, or Suit in a Cauſe: Thus when an inferiour Tenant is impleaded, and not capable to defend the Right in his own Name, he prays Aid of the Superiour Lord, to aſſiſt and juſtify his Plea.

Auxilium Reginæ, the Queen's Aid, or Money rais'd for the Queen's Uſe and Publick Service.

Auxilium Vicecomitum, the Aid or Cuſtomary Dues paid to the Sheriff, for the better ſupport of his Office.

Aw, Fear, Dread, Obſervance, Reſpect.

Awhaped, (old Word) amazed.

Await, (in ancient Statutes) Way-laying, or lying in Wait to do a Miſchief.

Award, (Law-Term) properly the Judgment of one who is neither appointed by the Law, nor by any Judge, to make up a Difference, but indifferently choſen by the Perſons at Variance; a Judgment, or Sentence upon Arbitration.

Awful, apt to ſtrike a Terrour into, terrible, to be revered or feared.

Awn or Ane, (in Husbandry) the Spire or Beard of Barley, or other Bearded Grain, the Beard growing out of the Husk of Corn, or Graſs.

Awning, (Sea-word) a Canvas-ſail, or piece of Tarpawling, hung over any part of a Ship above the Decks to keep off the Sun, Rain, or Wind: Alſo a Canopy ſupported by Iron-rods, often ſet over a Wherry, or Pleaſure-boat on the River Thames.

Awnsel-weight, a Poiſing of a Joynt of Meat, &c. only by the Hand, without putting it into the Scales. See Auncel-weight.

Ax or Axe, the ſame with Axis; which See.

Ax-vetch or Ax-wort, a kind of Herb.

Axilla, (Lat.) the Arm-hole, or Arm-pit.

Axillar or Axillary, belonging to that Part.

Axillary Artery, is that part of the Subclavian Branches of the aſcending Trunk of the Aorta, or great Artery which is got out of the Cheſt, and paſſes into the Arm-pits.

Axillary Veins, are the two Branches of the aſcending Trunk of the Vena Cava, nam'd Rami Subclavii, which running obliquely under the Clavicula, as ſoon as they are paſs'd them, and go up to the Arm-pits, are call'd Axillares.

Axiom, (Gr.) a Propoſition, a Maxim, a generally received Ground, Principle, or Rule in any Art or Science; a common and Self-evident Notion, that cannot be made more plain by Demonſtration; as, That where there is no Law, there is no Tranſgreſſion, That a thing cannot be and not be at the ſame time, That the whole is greater than its Parts, &c.

In Logick, Axioma is the diſpoſing of one Argument with another, whereby a thing is ſaid to be or not to be.

Axis, (Lat.) the Axle-tree of a Cart, or Coach: In Anatomy, the third Vertebra or Turning-joynt from the Scull: In Geometry, a ſtraight Line, conceiv'd to proceed from the Vertex, or top of a Figure to the Baſe.

Axis of a Circle or Sphere, is a ſtraight Line, paſſing thro' the Center, from one Side to another, and is the ſame with the Diameter.

In Conick Sections, Axis is a Line that goes thro' the middle of the Figure, and is perpendicular to the Ordinates.

Axis Conjugatus, in the Hyperbola, See Conjugate.

Axis, Intercepted. See Abſciſſa.

Axis Determinate, (in that Figure) is a Right-Line, drawn between the Vertex's, or tops of the oppoſite Sections, or Hyperbola.

Axis Indeterminate, is a Right Line, which divides into two equal Parts, and at Right Angles an infinite number of Lines drawn parallel to one another within the Hyperbola.

Axis Secundus, ſometimes call'd Axis Rectus, in the Hyperbola and Ellipſis, is the Conjugate Diameter; which See.

Axis of a Cylinder, is that quieſcent, or Reſting Right Line, about which the Parallelogram is turned.

Axis in Peritrochio, (in Mechanicks) is an Engine for the raiſing of Weights, made up of a Beam, ſhap'd like a Cylinder, which is the Axis, lying Horizontally, and ſupported at each end with a piece of Timber: In ſome part of it is alſo fixt a kind of Wheel, call'd the Peritrochium, in whoſe Circumference are Holes made to put in Staves, like thoſe of a Windlaſs, or Capſtan, in order to turn the Axis round the more eaſily, and to raiſe the Weight required, by means of a Rope that winds about the Axis.

Axis of Rotation or Circumvolution, (in Geom.) is an imaginary Line, about which any plain Figure is conceiv'd to be turned for the making of a Solid: Thus a Sphere is ſaid to be made by the Rotation of a Semi-circle about its Diameter, and a Cone by that of a Right-angled Triangle about its Perpendicular.

In Opticks, Axis is the Ray, which of all that are ſent to the Eye, falls Perpendicularly on it, and which conſequently paſſes thro' the Center of the Eye.

Axis Common or Mean, is a Right-line drawn from the Point of Concourſe of the two Optick Nerves, thro' the middle of the Right-line which joyns the Extremity, or End of the ſame Optick Nerves.

Axis of any Glaſs, is a Right-line, drawn Perpendicularly thro' the Center of the Glaſs; or if it be a Concave Glaſs thro' the thinneſt part, if a Convex through the thickeſt part, (which in each is termed the Pole of the Glaſs) directly on to the Center of the Sphere, the Glaſs-Figure is a Segment of.

In Dioptricks, Axis of Incidence, is a Right-line drawn thro' the Point of Incidence, and Perpendicular to the Refracting Surface.

Axis of Refraction, that which is made by the Ray of Incidence, directly prolonged, or lengthen'd on the in-ſide of the ſecond Medium, by the Ray of Refraction.

In Aſtronomy, Axis of the World, is an imaginary Line, ſuppoſed to paſs thro' the Center of the Earth, from one Pole to the other, about which the whole Frame of the Univerſe moves.

Axis of the Zodiack, is a Line conceived to paſs in like manner thro' the Earth, and to be bounded in the Poles of the Zodiack.

Axungia, the Greaſe or Swarf in the Axle-tree of a Wheel; the Fat or Tallow of an Hog, Boars-Greaſe.

Aye, (old Word) for ever.

Ayel, (Fr.) a Writ which lies where the Grand-father dying poſſeſs'd of Lands, or Tenements in Fee Simple, a Stranger abates, or enters; ſo as to diſpoſſeſs the Heir.

Azaldus, (in old Latin Records) a poor ſorry Horſe, or Jade.

Azamoglans, (among the Turks) young Men train'd up in order to be made Janizaries, and ſo call'd before they are inroll'd, or enter into Pay. See Agemoglans.

Azariah, (Heb. the help of the Lord) a King of Judah.

Azimen Degrees, (Arab. i. e. lame, or weak) certain Degrees in the Zodiack, ſo call'd by Aſtrologers, becauſe Perſons born, when any of them aſcend, are generally afflicted with Lameneſs, Blindneſs, Dumbneſs, or ſome other Natural perfection.

Azimuths, (in Aſtron.) are great Vertical Circles, which cut one another in the Points call'd Zenith and Nadir, after the ſame manner as Meridians or Hour-Circles do in the Poles, and paſs through all the Degrees of the Horizon at Right Angles. On the Globes, theſe Circles are not drawn, but repreſented by the Quadrant of Altitude, when it is ſcrew'd in the Zenith.

Azimuth, is alſo taken for an Arch of the Horizon comprehended between the Meridian of the Place, and any other Azimuth-Circle; or contained between the Prime Vertical, and any other Azimuth-Circle.

Azimuth Magnetical. See Magnetical Azimuth.

Azimuth-Compaſs, an Inſtrument made in a large Braſs-Box, with Jambols, and a broad Limb, having 90 Degrees diagonally divided, an Index, Thread, &c. Its uſe is to take the Sun's Amplitude, or Azimuth, in order to find the Variation of the Compaſs.

Azores, certain Iſlands of the Atlantick Ocean in the North Latitude of 40 Degrees, belonging to the Kingdom of Portugal; where ſome place the firſt Meridian for the counting of Longitude.

Azorium, (in ancient Deeds) the Azure, or blew Colour.

Azoth, (among Chymiſts) is ſometimes taken for an Univerſal Medicine, and ſometimes for the Mercury, or firſt Matter of a Metal.

Azure, the Sky-colour, or light-Blew; In Heraldry it is more eſpecially us'd for a Blew Colour in the Coats of all Perſons under the Degree of a Baron; but in the Eſcutcheons of the Nobility it is call'd Sapphir, and Jupiter in thoſe of Soveraign Princes.

Azygos, (Gr. in Anat.) a notable Vein which proceeds from the Vena Cava, or great hollow Vein, and paſſes to the Vertebra's, or Turning-joynts of the Back. It is ſo call'd, as alſo ſine jugo, or pari in Latine, from its being ſingle, or without a Fellow.

Azyma or Azymes, the Feaſt of Unleavened Bread, a Solemn Feaſt kept by the Jews, for ſeven Days before the Paſſeover, during which it was not lawful to eat Leaven'd Bread.

B A

B-mi, the third Note in the Gam-ut, or Scale of Muſick.

Baal, an Aſſyrian Word, ſignifying a Lord, or Poſſeſſour; the Name of an Idol of the Sidonians.

Baard, (in old Records) a ſort of a Sea-Veſſel, or Tranſport-Ship.

Baaſha, (Heb. making or preſſing together) a King of Iſrael.

Babel or Babylon, anciently the chief City of the Aſſyrian Monarchs, ſo call'd from the Confuſion of Languages that was there caus'd.

Baca, (in old Latin Records) a Hook, Link of Iron, or Staple.

Bacca, a Berry, any ſmall Fruit of Trees, as of the Bay, Juniper, Elder, &c.

Baccalaureatus, the Degree of a Batchelor.

Baccalaureus, a Bacheler of Arts in an Univerſity, as of Divinity, Law, Phyſick, &c.

Bacchanals, the drunken Feaſts, or Revels of Bacchus the God of Wine.

Bacchar or Baccharis, a Syrian Plant, ſweet and pleaſant, which ſome take for our Lady's Glove.

Baccarach or Bacrag-Wines, a ſort of excellent Rheniſh Wine, ſo call'd from Baccarach, a Town of Germany on the River Rhine, famous upon that Account.

Bacchius, (Gr.) a Foot in Greek and Latin Verſe, conſiſting of Three Syllables, the firſt ſhort, and the other two long; as Hŏnēſtās.

Bacciferous Plants, (among Herbaliſts) are ſuch Trees, Shrubs, or Herbs as bear Berries.

Baccivorous Animals; ſuch Living-Creatures as feed upon Berries.

Bacheler, Bachelor or Batchelour, (Fr.) a ſingle, or unmarry'd Man.

Bacheler of Arts, one that takes the firſt Degree in the Profeſſion of any Art or Science, in an Univerſity.

Bacheler of a Company or Corporation, a young Member, ſpringing towards the State of thoſe that ſit in the Court of Aſſiſtants.

Bacheler-Knight. See Knight-Bacheler.

Bachelers-Buttons, a kind of Crow-foot; an Herb that bears a pleaſant Flower.

Bachileria; (in ancient Deeds) the Commonalty, as diſtinguiſh'd from the Nobility.

Bacilli, little Staves, or Sticks: Alſo Medicines made up of a long round Figure like a Stick.

To Back, to mount, or get up on the Back of a Horſe; alſo to ſupport, abet, or countenance.

Back-bear, (in the Foreſt-Law) one of the four Caſes, wherein a Foreſter may arreſt an Offender againſt Vert or Veniſon, when he is found bearing it on his Back.

Back-berond. See Backberind.

Back-board, (Sea-Term) as To leave a Land on Back-board, i. e. to leave it behind the Ship.

Back-ſtaff or Back-Quadrant, an Inſtrument us'd by Sea-men, to take the Height of the Sun, with one's Back towards it: It is the ſame with Davis's Quadrant, ſo call'd as being invented by one Capt. Davis a Welſh-man, as alſo the Engliſh Quadrant by the French.

Back-ſtays of a Ship, certain Stays, or Ropes, belonging to the Main and Fore-maſt, which go down on either Side of the Ship, and ſerve to ſtay, or keep the Maſt from pitching forward, or overboard.

Backberind or Backberond, (Sax.) a Law-word apply'd to a Thief taken, having on his Back, or about him, the things he has ſtolen.

To Backbite, to ſlander, or ſpeak evil of one behind his Back, or in his Abſence.

To Backſlide, to turn back, to revolt, to ſhuffle or flinch.

Baco, a Word often found in our old Charters and other Deeds; for a fat Hog, or Bacon-Hog.

Bacule or Baſcule, (Fr.) a Swipe. In Fortification, a Gate made like a Pit-fall, with a Counter-poiſe, and ſupported by two great Stakes; a kind of Portcullice.

Baculometry, (Lat. & Gr.) the Art of meaſuring acceſſible, or inacceſſible Diſtances, or Lines, by the Help of one or more Staves.

Badge, a Cognizance, or Coat of Arms, worn by ſome Servants of Noble-men, or Perſons of Quality: Alſo a Sign or Mark; as White is the Badge of Innocence.

Badger, (Fr.) one that carries Baggage, or Luggage: In a Law-Senſe, a Licenſed Huckſter, that buys Corn or other Proviſions, in one Place, and carries them to another to ſell.

Badger, is alſo a kind of wild Beaſt, whoſe Legs are ſaid to be ſhorter on the Right Side than on the Left, and the Teeth ſo ſharp, that they meet in whatever it bites: It is otherwiſe call'd a Brock, Grey, Boreſon or Bawſon, &c.

To Baffle, to confound by Reaſons, or put to a Non-plus; to ſham or fool; to diſappoint or balk.

Bag, a Sack or Pouch. In Traffick, a particular Quantity of ſome ſorts of Commodities; as of Almonds, about Three Hundred Weight. Of Aniſeed, from 3 to 4 C. Of Goats-hair, from 2 to 4 C. Of Pepper, from 1¼ to 3 C. &c.

Bags of Earth, us'd in Fortification. See Canvas-Bags.

Bag or Big, a Country-word for Cow's Udder.

Baga, (in old Latin Records) a Bag, or Purſe.

† Bagatel, a Word borrow'd from the French, for a Toy or Trifle.

Baggage, Soldiers Furniture and Neceſſaries, Proviſion for an Army: Alſo a Trull, a Soldier's Punk, a Camp-whore.

Bagnio, (Ital.) a Place to bath and ſweat in.

Baſardour, (in ancient Writers) a Carrier, or Bearer of any Weight or Burden.

Bajazet, an Emperour of the Turks, who being taken by Tamerlane, and put into an Iron-cage, beat out his own Brains againſt the Bars of it.

Bail, (Fr. in Common Law) the Freeing, or ſetting at Liberty of one arreſted, or impriſon'd upon any Action, Civil or Criminal, under Sureties taken for his Appearance, at a Day and Place appointed. Alſo a certain Limit, or Bound within a Foreſt, accordingly as it is divided into the particular Charges of ſeveral Foreſters.

Bails, (among Sea-men) Hoops ſet over the Stern of a Boat, to bear up the Tilt, eſpecially when they lodge in a Harbour.

Bailable, that may be bailed, or ſet free upon Bail.

To Bail. See To Bale.

Bailliff or Bailly, (Fr.) a Magiſtrate appointed within a particular Province, or Precinct; to execute Juſtice, to maintain the Peace, and to ſecure the People from Vexations and Wrongs: Alſo the Name of the chief Magiſtrate in ſeveral Towns, as in Colcheſter, Ipſwich, Yarmouth, &c. The Officers of every Hundred, or Wapentake, and of Towns Corporate, are alſo call'd Bailiffs: Alſo certain Officers appointed to arreſt Perſons for Debt.

There are alſo Bailliffs of Huſbandry, or Land-Stewards, belonging to private Perſons that are Lords of Manours, who gather the Profits for their Maſter's Uſe, deliver an Account of the ſame when requir'd, diſpoſe of the Under-Servants, &c.

Bailliff's Errant, certain Officers appointed by the Sheriffs, to go about the County, to ſerve Writs, to ſummon the County-Seſſions, Aſſizes, &c.

Bailliffs of Franchiſes, thoſe that are appointed by every Lord, to do ſuch Offices within his Liberty or Precinct, as the Bailiff Errant does at large in the County.

Bailliwick, the Precinct, or Juriſdiction of a Bailiff.

Bailment, (Law-Term) the Delivery of Things, as Writings, Goods, &c. to another, ſometimes to be deliver'd back to the Baillor, or Party that deliver'd them; ſometimes to the Uſe of the Baillee, i. e. him to whom they are deliver'd; and ſometimes to a Third Perſon.

Bain, (Fr.) a Bath, or hot Houſe.

Bairman, (old Law-word) a poor Inſolvent Debtor, left bare and naked, who was oblig'd to ſwear in Court, that he was not worth above five Shillings and five Pence.

To Bait, to allure or entice, to ſet Beaſts a fighting together, to teaz or vex; alſo to ſtop to eat, drink, or take ſome Refreſhment on a Journey. In Falconry, a Hawk is ſaid To bait, when ſhe claps her Wings, or ſtoops at her Prey.

Baiz. See Bayz.

Balaam or Bileam, (Heb. the ancient of the People) a Prophet among the Iſraelites.

Balæna, (Gr.) the Whale, a vaſt Sea-fiſh.

Balak, (Heb. covering or deſtroying) a King of the Moabites, who would have hir'd Balaam the Prophet, to curſe the People of Iſrael.

Balani, (Gr. among Naturaliſts) certain Excreſcences that uſually grow, or ſtick to the Shells of the larger ſorts of Sea Shell-Fiſh.

Balanites, a precious Stone, ſomewhat Green, and like Corinthian Braſs, with a Flame-colour'd Vein running thro' the middle of it.

Balanitis, a kind of round Cheſnuts.

Balanus, a ſort of Maſt or Acorn; any Fruits or Roots that have round Heads, as a Walnut or Cheſnut: Alſo a Suppoſitory ſhap'd, like an Acorn, to looſen the Belly; alſo the Nut of a Man's Yard, or the Clitoris in Women; alſo a kind of Sell-fiſh call'd Center-ſhells.

Balanus Myrepſica, the Fruit which Apothecaries call Ben; but ſome take it for the Nutmeg.

Balaſſius, the Balaſs-Ruby, a precious Stone of a faint red Colour.

Balauſtium, the Flower of the wild Pomegranate; alſo the Tree it ſelf.

Balbuties, (Lat.) a ſtammering, or ſtuttering in Speech.

Balcony, (Fr.) a Frame of Stone, Wood or Iron, before the Window of a Houſe, to take the Air in, or to look out at a Diſtance.

Baldachin, a piece of Architecture, in Shape of a Canopy or Crown, ſet over ſeveral Pillars, to ſerve for a Covering to an Altar: Alſo a Canopy carry'd over the Hoſt in Popiſh Countries.

Balderdaſh, a rude Mixture, or Mingle-mangle; a paltry confus'd Diſcourſe.

Baldmony, a ſort of Herb

Baldwin, (Germ. i. e. bold Conquerour) a proper Name, particularly of five Kings of Jeruſalem, after the Conqueſt of it by the Chriſtians.

Bale, a Pack of Commodities of different Sorts and Quantity, as of Cloth, Silk, Books, &c. A Bale of Cotton-Yarn contains from three to four Hundred Weight: Of raw Silk, from 1 to 4 C. Of Dowlas, or Lockram, three, three and a half, or four Pieces.

To Bale or Bail, (Sea-word) to ſcoop or lade Water out of the Ship's Hold, or out of a Boat.

Baleful, (old Word) ſorrowful, woeful.

Baleuga, (in ancient Deeds) a Territory, or Precinct.

Baliſta or Balliſta, a Warlike Engine, in form of a Croſs-Bow, which the Ancients us'd for caſting Stones with Slings made after divers manners.

Baliſta Chalybea, a Stock-bow, or Steel-bow.

Baliſta Fulminalis, a great Engine made uſe of to ſecure the Walls, or Banks of a River.

Baliſtarius, a maker of Slings, Guns, or Croſsbows, or one that ſhoots out of them: It is alſo taken in our old Records, for a Baliſtar, or Croſs-bow Man.

Balivo amovendo, a Writ to remove a Bailiff out of his Office, for want of ſufficient Living in his Baili-wick.

Balk, Diſapointment or Baffle, Prejudice or Dammage. In Husbandry, a Ridge of Land betwixt two Furrows, or a piece of Ground left unplough'd: Among Brick-layers, a great Beam, ſuch as are us'd in making Scaffolds; a Pole or Rafter over an Out-houſe or Barn.

To Balk, to paſs by, or take no notice of; to neglect, to diſcourage.

Balkers, they that from a Cliff, or high Place on the Shore, ſhew the Paſſage of Herrings to the Fiſhers. See Conders.

Ball, any round thing, a Bullet for a Gun; alſo a ſolemn Publick Dancing-meeting. Balls or Bullets are alſo a frequent Bearing in Coats of Arms, tho' never ſo call'd by Heralds; but according to their ſeveral Colours they have theſe Names, viz. Bezants, Golpes, Guzes, Hurts, Oranges, Pellets or Agreſſes, Plates, Pomeis and Torteauxes; all which, See in their proper Places.

Ball and Socket, a Device made of Braſs, with a perpetual Screw to hold any Teleſcope, Quadrant, or other Mathematical Inſtrument on a Staff, for Surveying, Aſtronomical Uſes, &c.

Ballad, a common Song ſung up and down the Streets.

Balladin, (Fr.) a Dancer, a Vaulter.

Ballance, a pair of Scales, an even Weight: In Mechanicks, one of the ſix Principles, or ſimple Powers, which is conceiv'd to be a Right-Line, or a Beam hung up by a Point in the Middle, and ſerves to find out the equality, or difference of Weights in heavy Bodies.

In Aſtronomy, it is one of the Signs of the Zodiack, commonly call'd by the Latin Name Libra. Alſo two Stars named the North and South Ballance: Alſo a Term us'd in Merchants Accounts, when the Reckoning between the Debtor and Creditor is made even.

Ballance of the Air. See Barometer.

Ballance of Trade, is the Difference, or Exceſs between the Value of Commodities bought of Foreigners, and the Value of our own native Productions carry'd into other Nations.

Ballance of a Watch or Clock, is that part of it, which by its Motion, regulates and determines the Beats.

To Ballance, to poiſe or make even Weight, to even an Account; to weigh in Mind, or conſider.

Ballaſt, a certain Quantity of Gravel, Sand, Stones, of any Weight put into the bottom of a Ship, to make her ſail right and ſteady, and to keep her from over-ſetting.

The Ballaſt is ſaid To ſhoot, or be ſhot, when it runs from one Side to the other. To trench the Ballaſt, is to divide or ſeparate it.

Balliol-College, a College in the Univerſity of Oxford, built by John Balliol, Father of the King of Scots of that Name.

Balliſta. See Baliſta.

Balliſter or Baleuſter, (in Architect.) the Lateral, or ſide-part of the Scroll, which makes the Curl-tuft in the Capital of a Pillar of the Ionick Order: Alſo a Rail or little Pillar, ſuch as are ſeen on the out-ſide of Cloiſters, Terraſſes, Galleries, &c. Alſo an Incloſure of Pillars that rails in the Communion-Table in a Church, or ſuch as is ſet about the State-Bed of a Prince, &c.

Balliva, (in ancient Latin Deeds) a Bailiwick, i. e. a whole County under the Juriſdiction of the Sheriff; a Hundred, with reſpect to the chief Conſtable; a Manour, with reſpect to the Steward, &c.

Ballivo amovendo. See Balivo amovendo.

Ballon or Balloon, (Fr.) a Foot-ball; alſo a great Ball with which Princes and Noble-men uſe to play. In Architecture, a round Globe, or top of a Pillar: Among Chymiſts, a large Receiver, or Veſſel to hold what is diſtilled, or drawn off by the Fire.

Ballot, a little Ball us'd in the giving of Votes.

Ballotation or Balloting, a particular manner of chooſing State-Officers, in Uſe at Venice, when every one that has a Vote, puts ſuch a Ballot, or Ball of a different Colour, according to the Diverſity of the Parties that ſtand for the Office, into a Box or Baſon made for that purpoſe.

Ballote, (Gr.) an Herb call'd ſtinking Horehound, black Hore-hound.

Balluſtrade, (in Architect.) a Row of Balliſters, or little turn'd Pillars, ſo high as for a Man to reſt his Elbows; fixed upon a Terraſs-walk, or on the top of a Building, or to make any Separation between one part of it and another.

Balm, the Juice or Oil of a certain Tree that grows only in Paleſtine and Ægypt, very precious, and of a very healing Quality.

Balm or Balm-mint, a ſweet-ſmelling Herb, whoſe Leaf, when tender, makes a part of Sallet-furniture: It reſiſts Poiſon or Peſtilence, is a Soveraign Cordial for the Brain, and ſtrengthens the Memory.

Balm-Apple, a kind of Plant.

Balneum, (Lat.) a Bath, a Waſhing-place; a Bain, Stew, or Hot-houſe: Among ſome Writers in Phyſick, it is taken for a Bathing of the whole Body, or of the lower Parts only: Alſo a Name given by Chymiſts to ſeveral gentle Ways of Diſtillation; As Balneum Arenæ or Balneum arenoſum, the Sand-bath, when Flowers, Fruits, or other Phyſical Ingredients are infus'd, by putting them with Water into a Cucurbite, or Body cloſe ſtopt, and ſetting the Veſſel in hot Sand, or elſe in Aſhes; and then it is a termed Balneum Cineris, or Balneum Cinereum.

Balneum Mariæ, is when the Cucurbite containing any Matter to be diſtilled, is cloſe ſtopt, and plac'd in a Veſſel of Water; ſo that the Water growing hot, may heat the Cucurbite gently, and by Degrees: This Term is corruptly us'd for Balneum Maris, i. e. a Sea or Water-bath.

Balneum Vaporis or Balneum Vaporoſum, the Vapourous Bath, is when the Veſſel that contains the Matter, is ſet in another, half full of Water, and is heated by the Vapours, or Steams that ariſe from the hot or boiling Water.

Balſam, ſignifies, 1. The Juice of the Balſam, or Balm-tree, and ſome other natural Balſams; as that of Toli, Peru, &c. 2. A kind of Perfume, or ſweet-ſcented ſpirituous Subſtance of the Conſiſtence of an Ointment, as Apoplectick Balſam, Balſam of Roſes, &c. 3. Certain Liquors extracted, or drawn from Gums, or roſiny Subſtances with Spirit of Wine; as Nervous Balſam, Sciatick Balſam. 4. The Solutions and Preparations of ſome Salts, ſo call'd by Chymiſts, as Balſam of Saturn, Tartar, Sal Gemma, &c. 5. Some particular Preparations of Medicines in that Form; as Balſam of Sulphur, &c.

Balſam of Saturn, is a Solution of Saccharum Saturni, or Sugar of Lead, made with Spirit, or Oil of Turpentine, and digeſted till the Matter has gain'd a red Tincture.

Balſam of Sulphur, the oily Parts of common Sulphur, or Brimſtone diſſolved in Oil of Turpentine, or ſome other diſtilled Oil; an excellent Remedy for Ulcers of the Breaſt and Lungs.

Balſamella or Balſamina, (Lat.) an Herb of which Balſam is made to heal Ulcers.

Balſamick, belonging to, or having the Quality of Balſam.

Balſamita, the Herb Coſt-mary. Balſamita mas, the Herb Maudlin.

Balſamitor, an Herb ſo call'd from its Balſamick Smill.

Balſamum, Balſam, the Balm-tree, and the Juice of a moſt fragrant Smell that drops from it.

Baltemore-Bird, a beautiful Bird in Mary-land, with black and yellow Feathers, ſo call'd from the Colours of Or and Sable, in the Coat of Arms, belonging to the Lord Baltemore, Proprietour of that Province.

Bamma, (Gr.) a Tincture or Die; alſo a Liquor in which any thing is dipped or ſoak'd; as Bread ſopt in Broth.

Ban, (Fr.) a Proclamation made at the Head of a Body of Troops, by the ſound of Trumpet, or beat of Drum, for the obſerving of Martial Diſcipline, for declaring a new Officer, or puniſhing a Soldier, &c.

Ban and Arriere-ban, a Proclamation in France, by which all that hold Lands of the Crown, except ſome privileged Officers and Citizens, are ſummon'd to meet at a certain Place, in order to ſerve the King in his Wars, either Perſonally or by Proxy.

Bancalia, (Lat. in old Writers) Cuſhions, or ſuch like Coverings for Benches or Seats.

Bancus, a Bench, Stall, or Table, on which Goods are expos'd to Sale.

Bancus Reginæ, & Communium Placitorum, See Bank.

Band, any ſort of Tie; alſo a Body, or Company of Foot-Soldiers. In Architecture, one of the Diviſions of the Architrave. See Epiſtylium.

The Band of Penſioners, (at Court) a particular Company of Gentlemen bearing Halbards, and attending the Queen's Perſon upon Solemn Occaſions. See Penſioners.

Train-bands or Trained-Bands, certain Regiments made of the Inhabitants of a City or Town, train'd up to bear Arms, and inſtructed in Military Diſcipline.

Band-dog, a Dog kept in Bands, or tied up; a Maſtiff proper for the Houſe, as alſo for baiting the Bull, Bear, &c.

Bandage, (Fr.) the binding up of any thing: In Surgery, Linnen-cloth conveniently fitted for the binding up, and dreſſing of Wounds, Sores, or broken Bones; the Application of a Swathe, Roller, or Fillet to any Part.

Bandeleer. See Bandoleer.

Bandelet, (Fr.) a little Fillet, Band, or String: In Architecture, one of the Ornaments which the French alſo call Regle: It encompaſſes a Pillar quite round about like a Ring; being greater than a Liſt, but ſomewhat leſs than a Plat-band.

Banditto, (Ital.) properly an out-law'd Perſon in Italy, turn'd Robber; a Vagabond, a High-way Man, a Padder, a Cut-throat.

Bandle, an Iriſh Meaſure of two Foot in Length.

Bandoe, (Fr.) a kind of Peak, or Forehead-cloth worn by Widows.

Bandoleers or Bandeleers, little wooden Caſes cover'd with Leather; each of them containing the Charge of Powder for a Musket; of which every Musketeer wears twelve hanging on a Shoulder-belt, or Collar.

Bandore, a kind of Muſical Inſtrument with Strings.

Bandrol, a little Flag, or Streamer; alſo the fringed Silk that hangs on a Trumpet.

Bandy, a ſort of Club, or crooked Stick to ſtrike a Ball with.

To Bandy, to make a Party at Tennis-play, to toſs about; to Debate, or Canvaſs a Buſineſs; alſo to gather in a Faction.

Bane, Poiſon, great Miſchief, Deſtruction, Overthrow.

Bane-wort or Night-ſhade, a kind of Herb.

Banes. See Banns.

To Baniſh, (Fr.) to ſend, or turn one out of his Native Country into ſome Foreign Parts; to chaſe, or drive away.

Bank, a little Hill or Riſing-ground, the Side of the Sea or of a River; or a Shelf in the Sea: In a Law-ſenſe, it is uſually taken for a Bench, or Seat of Judgment; as Bank la Royne, the Queen's Bench, Bank de Common Pleas, the Bench, or Court of Common Pleas, call'd alſo in Latin Bancus Reginæ, and Bancus communium Placitorum.

Bank, is alſo a Stock of Money, or a Place where great Summs are taken in, and let out to Uſe, to be return'd by Exchange, or otherwiſe diſpos'd to Profit.

Banker, one that keeps a Bank, or Trades in Money; a Money'd Goldſmith, an Uſurer.

Bankrupcy, the Act of turning Bankrupt; a Breaking.

Bankrupt, a Trader that breaks and ſteps aſide, pretending to be unable to pay his Debts, or one that having got together other Mens Goods into his Hands, hides himſelf, with a deſign to defraud his Creditors.

Bann or Banns, (among the Feudiſts) Publick Notice given of any thing; a Proclamation by which any thing is commanded, or forbidden. See Ban.

Banns or Banes of Matrimony, the Publiſhing of Marriage-Contracts in the Church, before the Parties are Marry'd.

To Bann, to Exclaim againſt, to Curſe.

Banner, a Standard, or Enſign.

Banneret. See Knight Banneret.

Bannians, a fair-ſpoken, but crafty People of India, who ſell the Rarities brought from thoſe Parts: They are of a peculiar Religion, differing from the Pagans and Mahometans, and are divided into three Sects, viz. The Cutteries, Shudderies and Wyſes: When they die, their Wives muſt burn themſelves, or ſhave, or be counted Monſters.

Bannimus, (i. e. we baniſh) the Form of Expulſion of any Member, from the Univerſity of Oxford, by poſting up the Sentence in ſome Publick Places.

Bannitus, (in ancient Deeds) an Out-Law, or baniſhed Man.

Bannock, an Oaten Cake temper'd with Water, and bak'd under the Embers.

Bannum or Banleuga, (in old Records) the utmoſt Bounds of a Town, or Manour.

Banquet, a Feaſt, or Entertainment.

Banquette, (Fr.) a little Bank, a raiſed way: In Fortification, a ſmall Foot-pace in form of a Step at the bottom of a Parapet, or Breaſt-work, on which the Soldiers get up to diſcover the Counterſcarp, or to Fire upon the Enemies in the Moat, or in the Covert-way.

Banſtickle, or Stickle-back, a kind of Fiſh.

To Banter, to Jeſt or Jeer; to Amuſe or Play upon.

Bantling, a young Child.

Baptiſm, (Gr. i. e. a Waſhing, Dipping, or Sprinkling) one of the Holy Sacraments that are of Divine Appointment, whereby the Perſons Baptized are admitted into the Communion of the Catholick Church.

Baptiſmal, belonging to Baptiſm.

Baptiſt, (i. e. a Baptizer) a Title given to St. John, who was our Bleſſed Saviour's Fore-runner, and the firſt that Baptiz'd in his Name.

Baptiſterium, a Bath, a Veſſel to waſh the Body in, a Font for the Adminiſtration of Baptiſm.

To Baptize, to Adminiſter the Sacrament of Baptiſm, by plunging in, or Sprinkling the Party Baptized with Water, in the Name of the Father, Son, and Holy Ghoſt, for the Remiſſion of Sins, &c. To Chriſten.

Bar, a long, narrow piece of Wood, or Iron, for ſeveral Uſes: Alſo the Place bounded by a material Bar, where the Sergeants at Law, or Counſellours ſtand to Plead Cauſes in Courts of Juſtice, or Priſoners to anſwer their Indictments: In a Law-ſenſe, it is alſo taken for a Peremptory Exception againſt a Demand or Plaint, or a Plea that is ſufficient to deſtroy the Plaintiff's Action; and it is either to Common Intendment, or Special.

Bar to Common Intendment, is an ordinary, or general Bar that uſually diſables the Action or Plea of the Plaintiff.

Special Bar, is that which is more than ordinary, and falls out in the Caſe in hand, upon ſome ſpecial Circumſtance of the Fact.

In Muſick, a Bar is a Line drawn Perpendicular thro' the Note-lines, to bar in, or compriſe a certain Number of Notes: In Heraldry, it is a ſmaller Feſſe, only containing the fifth part of the Field; whereas the Feſſe takes up the third: In Sea-Language, a Rock lying before a Harbour, which is not to be Sail'd over, but put upon the Flood.

Bar of the Port, is a Billet, or Stake thruſt thro' the Rings that ſerve to ſhut up the Port-holes in a Ship.

Bar-fee, a Fee of twenty Pence, which every Priſoner acquitted of Felony pays to the Gaoler.

Barack. See Barrack.

Bara-picklet, Bread made of fine Flower, and kneaded up with Barm, or Yeſt, which makes it very light and ſpungy.

Baratta, a kind of Balſam brought from the Weſt-Indies.

Barator. See Barrator.

Baratry, (in Common Law) is when the Maſter of a Ship cheats the Owners, or Inſurers, either by running away with the Ship, or imbezilling their Goods.

Barb, a Barbary-Horſe.

Barbs, a ſort of Horſe-armour formerly in uſe, which cover'd the Neck, Breaſt, and Crupper. See Barbes.

To Barb a Lobſter, (among Carvers) is to cut it up.

Barba, (Lat.) a Beard, the hairy part of the Lips and Chin.

Barba Caprina, an Herb ſo call'd from the ſhape of its Flowers, which reſemble a Goat's Beard. Barba Jovis, the Herb Sengreen, or Houſe-leek.

Barbara, a Proper Name of Women, ſignifying in Latin, foreign, or ſtrange.

Barbarea, Rocket, or Winter-creſs, a Sallet-herb, good in the Scurvy, and to Cleanſe foul Ulcers.

Barbarians, barbarous, wild, or rude People.

Barbariſm, an Impropriety of Speech, or rudeneſs of Language.

Barbarity, Inhumanity, Cruelty.

Barbarous, ſavage, rude, wild, fierce, cruel; alſo improper, or broken, with reſpect to Speech.

Barbarouſneſs, Outragiouſneſs, Cruelty, Unpoliteneſs, Clowniſhneſs, want of good Breeding.

Barbary, a large Country of Africa.

Barbary-Falcons, a ſort of Hawks ſo call'd, becauſe they make their Paſſage thro' that Country, and are more frequently taken there than in any other Place: This Bird is very bold, and ſomewhat leſs than the Tiercel Gentle; being plumed red under the Wings, and ſtrong armed with long Talons and Stretchers.

Barbe, (Fr.) a Beard: Whence To fire en Barbe, a Military Phraſe, ſignifying to diſcharge the Cannon over a Parapet, or Breaſt-work, inſtead of putting it thro' the Loop-holes.

Barbes, a common Diſeaſe in Horſes, known by two Paps under the Tongue, which ſeldom prove hurtful till they be inflam'd by Corrupt Blood: In Black Cattel, this Diſtemper is a ſuperfluous piece of Fleſh on their Tongues, which often hinders them from eating their Meat.

Barbed, covered with Barbs, Bearded like a Fiſh-hook; as A Barbed Arrow; alſo Shaved or Trimmed.

Barbel, a Fiſh of good Taſte, ſo call'd from the Beard that is under its Noſe or Chaps.

Barberry-tree, a prickly Shrub, bearing a red Berry of a ſharp Taſte, and cooling Quality.

† Barbican, (Fr.) an Out-work in a Building, a Bulwark, a Watch-Tower: Alſo the Name of a Place in the Suburbs of London, near Alderſgate-ſtreet.

Barbles, a kind of Swelling that riſes in the Throat, and under the Tongue of a Horſe.

Barbus, Barbulus, or Barbo, (Lat.) the Barbel, a Fiſh.

Barcaria, (in old Records) a Barkary, or Tanhouſe.

Barcarium, a Berghery, a Sheep-coat, and ſometimes a Sheep-walk. See Bercaria.

To Bard or Beard Wooll, to cut off the Head and Neck from the reſt of the Fleece.

Bards, certain Poets among the Ancient Britains and Gauls, who ſet forth in Verſe, the brave Actions of the great Men of the Nation.

In Cookery, Bards are thin broad ſlices of Bacon, with which Capons, Pullets, Pigeons, &c. are cover'd, in order to be Roaſted, Bak'd, or otherwiſe Dreſs'd.

Bardach or Bardaſh, (Ital.) a Boy kept for Pleaſure, to be abus'd contrary to Nature.

Bardana, (Lat.) the Burr-dock, an Herb of a drying and cleanſing Quality.

Bardulph or Bartulph, (Germ.) a proper Name of Men, ſignifying Help in Counſel, or a famous Helper.

Bare, naked, uncovered, plain.

A Bare, a Place without Graſs, made ſmooth to Bowl in, inſtead of a Bowling-green, eſpecially in the Winter.

Bare-Pump, (in a Ship) a little piece of hollow Wood, or Metal, like an Elder-gun, to Pump Beer, or Water out of a Caſk.

Bargain and Sale, (in Common Law) a Contract, or Agreement made for Manours, Lands, Tenements, &c. Transferring the Property of them from the Bargainor, or Perſon that offers the Bargain to the Bargainee, i.e. him that accepts it; eſpecially in conſideration of a certain Summ of Money.

Barge, a kind of Boat, commonly us'd for State; as to carry Admirals, Chief Captains, or any Perſons of Quality: Alſo a large Veſſel made uſe of for carrying Goods on a River.

Bargh-Maſter, a Surveyor of Mines. See Bergh-Maſter.

Bark, a ſmall ſort of Ship, or Sea-Veſſel, that has but one Deck; alſo the rind, or outermoſt Coat of a Tree.

To Bark, to cry like a Dog: Foxes are alſo ſaid To bark, when they make a noiſe at Rutting-time.

Bark-binding, a Diſtemper that happens to Trees; which is cur'd by ſlitting, or cutting the Bark along the Grain of it; as in Apple-trees, Pear-trees, &c. or round about, as in Cherry-trees, &c.

Bark-fat, a Tanner's Tub.

Bark-galling, is when Trees are bound to Stakes, or by Thorns, or otherwiſe; for the remedying of which Inconvenience, ſome Clay may be laid on the galled Part, and Hay-bands wrapt about it.

Barkary, a Tan-houſe, Heath-houſe, or Place where Barks of Trees are kept for the uſe of Tanners, &c.

Barley, a ſort of Grain, chiefly us'd for the making of Beer.

Barley-corn, is taken for the leaſt of our Engliſh Long Meaſures, three of which in length make an Inch.

Barm, (Sax.) Yeſt, the Head, or Workings out of Ale, or Beer.

Barm-cloth, an Apron. Chaucer.

Barmote, a Court kept within the Hundred of the Peak in Derby-Shire, for regulating Matters relating to the Miners Trade.

Barn or Bearn, a Scotch, or North-Country Word for a Child.

Barnabas or Barnaby, (Syr. i.e. the Son of Conſolation) a proper Name of Men.

Barnacle, a kind of Bit, or Curb for a Horſe: Alſo a Soland-Gooſe, ſaid to breed out of the rotten Wood of Trees in Scotland: Alſo a ſort of Fiſh like a long red Worm, which will eat thro' the Planks of a Ship, if it be not Sheath'd.

Among Farriers, Barnacles, Horſe-twitchers, or Brakes, are Tools put on the Noſtrils of Horſes, when they will not ſtand quietly to be Shoo'd, Blooded, or Dreſs'd of any Sore.

Baroco, one of the barbarous Words that expreſs the Syllogiſtick Moods in Logick; and in this Mood, the firſt Propoſition muſt be an Univerſal Affirmative, and the two other Negatives.

Barometer or Baroſcope, an Inſtrument newly invented to find out the leaſt Variations of the Weight of the Air, and thence to diſcover its future Temper, with reſpect to fair, or foul Weather: It conſiſts of a long Glaſs-Tube, or Pipe, Hermetically Seal'd at one end, which being almoſt fill'd with Quick-ſilver, is turn'd up-ſide down, ſo that the open end of it may reſt in ſtagnant Quick-ſilver, contain'd in a larger Glaſs under it, and expos'd to the Preſſure of the outward Air.

Marine Barometer, an Inſtrument contriv'd by Dr. Hook, for the uſe of thoſe that would make ſuch Philoſophical Experiments at Sea.

Wheel-Barometer, a Contrivance for the applying of an Index, or Hand to any common Baroſcope, whether the Glaſs be only a ſingle Cane, or have a round Bolt-head at the Top.

Baron, a Degree and Title of Nobility, next to a Viſcount, of which there are ſeveral ſorts, viz. 1. The Barons that are Peers of the Realm, and ſit in the Houſe of Lords. 2. The Barons, or Judges of the Exchequer, four in number, whoſe Office is to look to the Queen's Accounts, and to decide all Cauſes belonging to that Court. 3. The Barons of the Cinque-Ports, that have Place in the Houſe of Commons. The chief Magiſtrates of the City of London, before the Eſtabliſhing of a Lord Mayor, were alſo ſtyl'd Barons.

Baron and Femme, a Term us'd in all our Law-Books, Written in French, for a Man and his Wife: It is alſo made uſe of in Heraldry, when the Coats of Arms of a Man and his Wife are born per Pale in the ſame Eſcutcheon; the Man's on the Dexter, or Right Side, and the Woman's on the Siniſter, or Left Side. Otherwiſe, if the Wife be an Heireſs, her Coat muſt be born by the Husband on an Ineſcutcheon, or Eſcutcheon of Pretence.

Baronage, the Title, or Dignity of a Baron: Alſo a Tax, or Subſidy of Aid, to be raiſ'd for the King, or Queen out of the Precincts, or Bounds of Baronies.

Baronet, the loweſt Degree of Honour that is Hereditary, firſt Founded by K. James I. A. D. 1611. They have Precedence before all Knights, except Knights of the Garter, and ſuch as are Privy Counſellours. See Knight-Baronet.

Barony, that Honour, or Lordſhip which gives Title to a Baron, comprehending not only the Fees and Lands of Temporal Barons, but alſo of Biſhops, or Lords Spiritual.

Baroſcope, the ſame as Barometer; which See.

Barr. See Bar.

Barracan, a ſort of courſe Camlet.

Barrack or Barraque, a Hut like a little Cottage for Soldiers to lodge in a Camp, when they have no Tents, or when an Army lies long in a Place in bad Weather.

Barrator. See Barretor.

Barrel, a Meaſure of Wine, Oil, &c. containing 2 Kilderkins, or 31 Gallons and a half: Of Ale, 32 Gallons, and of Beer, 36. Of Soap, 31 Gallons.

Barrel of Eſſex-Butter, contains 136 Pounds: Of Suffolk-Butter, 256 Pounds.

Barrel of the Ear, (in Anat.) a pretty large Cavity, or Hollow behind the Tympanum, or Drum, which is about three or four Lines deep, and five, or ſix wide; cover'd with a fine Membrane, on which there are ſeveral Veins and Arteries.

Barrels of Earth, uſ'd in Fortification, are, as it were half Hogſheads, which being fill'd with Earth, ſerve to make Breaſt-works for covering the Men, as alſo to break the Gabions made in the Ditch, and to roll into Breaches.

Barrel of a Watch. See Fuſee.

Barren, unfruitful, empty, dry, ſorry, poor.

Barren or Creeping Ivy, a ſort of Herb.

Barren Signs, are Gemini, Leo and Virgo, ſo call'd by Aſtrologers, becauſe when a Queſtion is put, whether ſuch a one ſhall have Children or no? If one of theſe Signs be upon the Cuſp, or firſt Point of the fifth Houſe, they take it for granted, the Inquirer ſhall have none.

Barretor or Barrator, (Law-Term) a common Wrangler that ſets Men at Variance, and is never quiet but at Brawl with one or another; a ſtirrer up, and maintainer of Law-ſuits and Quarrels.

Barretry, a Word that is uſ'd in Policies of Inſurance for Ships; ſignifying Diſſenſions and Quarrels among the Officers and Sea-men.

Barricadoe, (Span.) a ſort of Intrenchment, or Defence made in haſte of Barrels fill'd with Earth, Carts, or Trees cut down, &c. In a Regular Fortification, Barricadoes are Trees cut with ſix Faces, and croſs'd with Battoons as long as a Half-Pike, bound about with Iron at the Feet; in order to be ſet up in Paſſages, or Breaches, to keep back both Horſe and Foot.

Barrier, (Fr.) that which ſerves for a Boundary, or Defence.

Barriers, a kind of Warlike Sport, or Exerciſe of Armed Men, Fighting with ſhort Swords within certain Bars, or Rails, ſet up to ſeparate them from the Spectators; but theſe Sports are now quite out of uſe.

In Fortification, Barriers are great Stakes planted ten Foot one from another, and about four or five Foot high, with their Tranſoms, or overthwart Rafters, to ſtop thoſe that would enter, or ruſh in by Violence: Theſe Barriers are commonly ſet up in the void ſpace between the Citadel and the Town, in the Half-Moons, and other Works.

Barriſter, a Pleader at the Bar of a Court of Judicature; who are of two ſorts, viz. 1. The Outward, or Utter Barriſter, who after long Study of the Law, for ſeven Years at leaſt are call'd to Publick Practice, and admitted to Plead ſtanding without the Bar. 2. The Inner Barriſters, who being Sergeants at Law, or elſe Attorneys of the King, Queen, or Prince, or any of the King or Queen's Counſel, are allow'd out of reſpect the Privilege of Pleading within the Bar.

Vacation-Barriſters, ſuch as are newly call'd to the Bar, who are oblig'd to attend the Exerciſe of the Houſe for the ſix next long Vacations, viz. in Lent and Summer, and are therefore ſo ſtyl'd during theſe three Years.

Barrow, a little Hill, or Mount of Earth, ſuch as are raiſ'd, or caſt up in many Parts of England; which may ſeem to be a mark of the Roman Burial-places.

Barrow-Hog, a Boar-Hog.

Barry, (in Heraldry) When an Eſcutcheon is divided Bar-ways into an even number of Partitions, 'tis uſually expreſs'd by the Word Barry, and the number of Pieces is to be ſpecify'd: But if the Diviſions be odd, then the Field muſt be firſt nam'd, and the number of Bars expreſs'd.

Barry-bendy, is when an Eſcutcheon is divided evenly both Bar and Bend-ways, as Barry-bendy, Argent and Sable.

Barry-Pily, another particular way of blazoning, or dividing a Coat, which is to conſiſt of eight Pieces.

To Barter, to Truck, or Exchange one Commodity for another of a different kind, as Wooll for Cloth, Silk for Stuff, &c.

Barth, (Country-word) a warm Place, or Paſture for Calves, Lambs, &c.

Bartholomew, (Heb. the Son of him that makes the Waters to mount) the Name of one of the Twelve Apoſtles of our Lord and Saviour, ſince often taken for a Chriſtian Name of Men.

St. Bartholomew's Hoſpital, which adjoyns to that of Chriſt's Hoſpital London, had at firſt 500 Marks a Year, left by K. Henry VIII. for the Relief of Poor People: But it was more largely endow'd, for the uſe of Sick and Lame Perſons only, by Edward VI. So that ſometimes above 2000 Perſons are cur'd there in a Year; and reliev'd with Money and other Neceſſaries, at their Departure.

Barton, a Coop, or Place to keep Poultry in. The Word is uſ'd in Devon-ſhire, and elſewhere, for the Demeſne Lands of a Manour, ſometimes for the Manour-houſe it ſelf, and in ſome Places for Out-houſes, Fold-yards, or Back-ſides.

Barulet, (in Heraldry) is the quarter of a Bar, or half of the Cloſet.

Barycoccalon, (Gr.) the Thorn-apple, a ſort of Fruit.

Baryphonia, a difficulty in ſpeaking.

Barzillai, (Heb. as hard as Iron) a Jewiſh Nobleman who reliev'd K. David in his Diſtreſs.

Bas, (Fr.) low, ſhallow, mean.

Bas Chevaliers, low or Inferiour Knights, by Tenure of a bare Military Fee, as diſtinguiſhed from Bannerets and Baronets, who were the Chief or Superiour Knights: Whence we call our bare Simple Knights, Knights-Bachelers, and the Name of Bachelers Degree in the Univerſities, probably had the ſame Riſe.

Baſaltes, (Gr.) a kind of Marble cf an Iron-colour; the hardeſt black Marble.

Baſanites, a Whet-ſtone, or Touch-ſtone.

Baſe, mean, low, vile; ſhameful, diſhoneſt, knaviſh; ſneaking, cowardly; cloſe-fiſted, ſtingy.

Baſe Coin, Money that is of leſs Value than it ought to be.

Baſe Court, (Law-word) any inferiour Court, that is not of Record; as the Court-Baron, Court-Leet, &c.

Baſe Eſtate or Baſe Fee, Lands or Tenements held at the Will of the Lord of the Manour.

Baſe Tenants, ſuch Tenants as perform to their Lords, any Services in Villenage.

Baſe Tenure. See Baſſa Tenura.

Baſe, a kind of Fiſh, otherwiſe call'd a Sea-Wolf.

Baſe, is alſo the ſmalleſt Piece of Ordinance that is 4½ Foot long, and weighs 200 Pounds; the Diameter at the Bore, being 1¼ Inches: It carries a Ball of 5 or 6 Ounces Weight. and 1⅛ Inch Diameter.

Baſe or Baſis, (Gr.) the Bottom of any thing, eſpecially of a Geometrical Figure: In Architecture, the Foot of a Pillar that bears it up, or that part which is under the Body, and lies upon the Zocle or Pedeſtal.

Baſe of a Conick Section, (in Geom.) is a Right-line, in the Hyperbola and Parabola, ariſing from the common Interſection, or mutual Cutting of the Secant Plane, and the Baſe of the Cone.

Baſe of any ſolid Figure, is its lowermoſt Side, or that on which it ſtands.

Baſe of a Triangle, Any one Side of a Triangle may be call'd the Baſe, but commonly, and moſt properly, it is taken for that Side which lies parallel to the Horizon: It is alſo the ſame, as to any other Right-lined Figure.

In Fortification, Baſe is the Level Line on which any Work ſtands, and which is even with the Campain or Ground: In Heraldry, the loweſt part of an Eſcutcheon, conſiſting of the Dexter, Middle and Siniſter Baſe-points. For Baſe in Muſick. See Baſs.

Baſe Diſtinct, a Term in Opticks. See Diſtinct Baſe.

Baſe Ring, (of a Cannon) is the great Ring next to, and behind the Touch-hole.

Baſelerd, a Word us'd by Chaucer, for a Dagger or Wood-knife.

Baſhaw. See Baſſa.

Baſil, (Gr. i. e. Royal or Kingly) a proper Name of Men: Alſo one of the Proteſtant Cantons of Switzerland, with its chief City of the ſame Name.

Baſil or Sweet Baſil, an Herb of a ſtrong heady Scent, whoſe tender Leaves, in a ſmall Quantity, are us'd with the Furnitures of Sallets.

Baſilare Os, (in Anat.) the ſame with Sphenoides; which See.

Baſilica, or the Baſilick Vein, the inner Vein of the Arm, otherwiſe call'd Hepatica, being the lower Branch of the Axillaris, divided into three Branches, under the Muſculus Pectoralis.

In the ancient Architecture, Baſilica was a great Hall that had two Ranges of Pillars, and two Iſles or Wings, with Galleries over them: Theſe Halls at firſt made for the Palaces of Princes, were afterwards turn'd into Courts of Juſtice, and at laſt into Churches. Whence Baſilick, is generally taken for a great and ſtately Church; as The Baſilick of St. Peter at Rome.

Baſilick Conſtitutions, were an Abridgment and Reform of the Laws of the Emperour Juſtinian, made under Baſilius and Leo, whence they took their Name; and they were in Force in the Eaſtern Empire, till its Diſſolution.

Baſilicon, a Royal Ointment or Plaiſter, otherwiſe call'd Tetrapharmacon, becauſe it is made up of four Ingredients, viz. Pitch, Roſin, Wax and Oil.

Baſilicus, a fixed Star of the firſt Magnitude, plac'd in the Conſtellation Leo, and otherwiſe call'd Cor Leonis, or Lions-Heart and Regulus: Its Longitude is 145 Deg. 21 Min. Latitude 00 d. 26 m. Right Aſcenſion, 147 d. 47 m.

Baſilinda, the Play call'd Queſtions and Commands; the Chooſing of King and Queen, as on Twelfth Night.

Baſiliſk, a kind of Serpent, otherwiſe call'd a Cockatrice, having a white Spot on the Head, as it were a Diadem or Crown: She drives away all other Serpents with her hiſſing; neither does ſhe roll up in Folds as others do, but bears her Body upright to the Middle. This Serpent is ſaid to deſtroy Living-Creatures, Fruits, &c. by her infectious Breath, to burn Herbs, and to break Stones: Alſo a long piece of Ordinance call'd Baſiſco in Italian, and a Star nam'd the Lion's-Heart.

Baſinets, a kind of Herb.

Baſiogloſſum, (Gr. in Anat.) a pair of Muſcles that ariſe from the Baſis or Root of the Bone Hyoides, and ſerve to depreſs or keep down the Tongue.

Baſis, a Baſe, Foundation, or Bottom. In Anatomy, the upper and broader Part of the Heart, oppoſite to the Mucro or Point: Alſo the bottom of the Bone Hyoides, at the Root of the Tongue.

To Bask, to lie, or keep in a Place expoſed to the Heat of the Sun.

Basket, a well known Utenſil for ſeveral Uſes.

Basket of Aſſa fœtida, is a Quantity from 20 to 50 Pounds Weight: Of Medlars, two Buſhels.

Baskets of Earth. See Corbeils.

Baſnetum (in old Records) a Baſnet, or Helmet.

Baſs, (in Muſick) the loweſt of all its Parts, which ſerves as a Foundation to the others.

The Baſs, an Iſland on the Coaſts of Scotland, noted for the Reſort of great Flocks of Sea-fowl, eſpecially Soland-Geeſe, or Barnacles, which as ſome ſay, breed there out of the rotton Wood of Trees by the Sea-ſide.

Baſs or Haſſock, a kind of Cuſhion made of Straw, ſuch as are us'd to kneel upon in Churches.

Baſs-Violin. See Violin.

Baſſa or Baſhaw (among the Turks) a Magiſtrate or Governour of a particular Place; a Commander in chief over a Body of Soldiers.

Baſſa Tenura, (in old Latin Deeds) baſe Tenure, or holding by Villenage or other Cuſtomary Service, as diſtinguiſh'd from Alta Tenura, the higher Tenure in Capite, i. e. in Chief, or by Military Service, &c.

Baſſe, (old Word) a Collar for Cart-Horſes, made of Straw, Sedge, Ruſhes, &c. whence the Baſs for kneeling in Churches.

Baſſe Enceinte or Baſſe Incloſure, (in Fortif.) the ſame as Falſe Bray; which See.

Baſſet, a kind of Game at Cards.

Baſſoon, the Baſs Haut-boy; a Muſical Inſtrument.

Baſſo Relievo. See Relievo.

Baſt, Lime-tree Wood made into Ropes and Mats, which Gard'ners make uſe of to cover their tender Plants: It is alſo us'd for the Packing up of ſeveral Commodities.

Baſtard, born out of Wedlock, not genuine or true, falſe, counterfeit; as A baſtard Child, baſtard Fruits, &c.

Baſtard Tumours. See Tumours.

A Baſtard, a baſe-born Perſon: In a Legal Senſe, one that is born of any Woman not married, ſo that the Father is not known by Order of Law. See Nothus.

To Baſtardize, to make Baſtards; to corrupt, to marr, or ſpoil.

Baſtardy, the being a Baſtard: Alſo an Inquiry, Examination, or Tryal at Law, whether one be a Baſtard or no.

To Baſte, to moiſten Meat as it is roaſting, with Butter, Dripping, &c. to ſow ſlightly, with long Stitches; to beat, or bang one ſoundly.

Baſtille, the Name of a Caſtle at Paris in France, which is the chief Priſon of that Kingdom.

Baſtinado, (Span.) Blows given with a Stick, a Cudgelling, or banging with a Cudgel.

Baſtion, (Fr. in Fortif.) a great Work ſometimes fac'd or lin'd with Stone or Brick, and ſometimes with Sods, which generally advances towards the Campaign or Field; its bounding Lines being two Faces, two Flanks, and two Demi-gorges.

Baſtion Compoſed, is when the two Sides of the inner Polygon are very unequal, which makes the Gorges alſo unequal.

Baſtion Cut or Baſtion with a Tenaille, one whoſe Point is cut off, ſo as to make an Angle inwards, and two Points outward, that is, a Tenaille: This is done when Water, &c. hinders carrying on the Baſtion to its full Extent, or when it would be too ſharp.

Baſtion deformed, that which wants one of the Demi-gorges, becauſe one Side of the inner Polygon is ſo very ſhort.

Baſtion detached or cut off, that which is ſeparated from the Body of the Works.

Demi-Baſtion, a Work that has but one Face and Flank, and is uſually rais'd before a Horn-work, or Crown-work: It is otherwiſe call'd an Epaulment.

Double Baſtion, that which on the Plane of the great Baſtion, has another Baſtion built higher, leaving 12 or 18 Feet, between the Parapet, or Breaſt-work of the lower, and the Foot of the higher.

Hollow or Voided Baſtion, is that which has only a Rampart and Parapet, ranging about its Flanks and Faces, ſo that a void Space is left towards the Center or Middle; and the Earth there is ſo low, that if the Rampart be taken, there is no making a Retrenchment, but what will be under the Fire of the Beſiegers.

Plat Baſtion or Flat Baſtion, that which is rais'd in the Middle before the Courtin, or ſtraight Line, when it is too long to be defended by the Baſtions on each Side; whereas the others are generally before the Angles.

Regular Baſtion, that which has a due Proportion of Faces, Flanks and Gorges.

Solid Baſtion, that which riſes equally to the Rampart of the Place, without any empty Space towards the Center; ſo that Earth enough is afforded to make a Retrenchment, in Caſe the Beſieged are reſolv'd to diſpute every Foot of Ground.

Baſton or Batoon, a Staff, Club, or Cudgel: In Architecture, the ſame as Torus; which See: Alſo a Title given to one of the Servants, or Officers under the Warden of the Fleet, that attends the Queen's Court with a red Staff, for the taking of ſuch Men into Cuſtody, as are committed by the Court.

Bat, a ſmall Bird reſembling a Mouſe that flies only in the Night: Alſo a kind of Club to ſtrike a Ball with, at the Play call'd Cricket.

Bat-Fowling, a particular way of taking Birds in the Night, as they are rooſting on Pearches, or in Trees, or Hedge-rows; by lighting Straw, or Torches, and beating the Buſhes, ſo that the Birds will ſoon fly towards the Flames, and may be taken with Nets or otherwiſe.

Batable Ground, the Land lying between England and Scotland, which was in Queſtion to whom it belong'd, before the uniting of the Kingdoms.

Batchelor. See Bacheler.

To Bate, to abate, or take off from a Reckoning. In Falconry, a Hawk is ſaid To Bate or Bait, when ſhe flutters with her Wings, either from Perch or Fiſt; as it were ſtriving to get away.

Bath, a noted City in Somerſet-ſhire, which took Name from its hot Baths of Medicinal Waters.

To Bathe, to waſh, to ſoak.

Bathing, (in Falconry) is when a Hawk is made to waſh her ſelf, either at home in a Baſon, or abroad in a ſmall River or Brook, that ſhe may gain Strength with a ſharp Appetite, ſo as to grow more bold and hardy.

Bathmis, (Gr.) a Step in a Ladder: In Anatomy, a Cavity or Hollow, in the Bone of the Arm or Shouldier, on each Side one, which receives the Proceſs of the undermoſt and leſſer of the two long Bones of the Cubit, when the whole Hand is ſtretch'd out and bended. This is alſo call'd Trochlea.

Bathypicron, broad-leav'd Wormwood; an Herb.

Batman, a kind of Weight us'd at Smyrna, containing 6 Oaks of 400 Drams each; which amount to 16 Pounds 6 Ounces, and 15 Drams of Engliſh Weight.

Batrachites, (Gr.) a Stone in Colour and Shape, like a Green Frog.

Batrachium, Crow-foot, Gold-knap, or Yellow Craw; a Flower: Alſo a kind of Chymical Gold-ſoder, ſo ſtrong a Poiſon that it kills People with the very Steam.

Batrachus, a Frog; alſo the Frog-fiſh, Fiſhing-frog, or Sea-devil: Alſo a kind of Bliſter fill'd with ſlimy Water, that ariſes under the Tongue, near the String.

Battail, (Fr. in Common Law) an ancient Tryal by Combate, which the Defendant, in an Appeal of Murder, Robbery, or Felony, might chuſe, in order to fight a Duel with the Appellant or Accuſer, for Proof, whether he were guilty or not: But this way of Tryal is now grown out of Uſe, and wholly laid aſide.

Battailed, (old Word) embattled, or having Battlements.

Battalia, (in Military Diſcipline) Battel-array, Order of Battel; as To draw up an Army in Battalia.

Battallion, a Body of Foot-Soldiers, conſiſting of about Six, Seven or Eight Hundred Men; of which uſually two Thirds are Musketeers, ranged on the right and lift Wings, and the other Third Pike-men, who are poſted in the middle; but the Number of Men is by no means certain.

To draw up Battallions, is to range a Body of Foot in ſuch Order, as may be moſt advantageous for Engaging a greater Body, either of Horſe or Foot, or both; or to prevent the Foot's being broke by the Horſe, when attacked in open Field.

Battel or Battle, the Engagement, or general Fight of two Armies.

Battel-Array, the Order of Battel, the Form of drawing up the Army for Fight.

Battel-Royal, (a Term in Cock-fighting) a Fight between three, five, or ſeven Cocks, all engag'd together, ſo that the Cock which ſtands longeſt gets the Day.

Main-Battel, the main Body of an Army, the Second of the three Lines; the firſt being the Van, and the third the Rear or Reſerve.

To Battel (old Word) to feed as Cattel do, to grow fat.

To Batten, to welter, or roll about in; alſo to fatten, or get Fleſh.

Batter, (in Cookery) a Mixture of Flower, Water, Eggs, Spice, &c. proper to make Pancakes, or Puddings.

To Batter, to beat or bruiſe, to play upon with Ordinance or great Guns.

Battering-Pieces. See Pieces.

Battery, (Law-Term) a violent beating or ſtriking of any Perſon, an Act which tends to the Breach of the Peace; ſo that the Party injur'd may either indict the other at the Seſſions, or have an Action of Treſpaſs of Aſſault and Battery againſt him.

In Fortification, Battery is a Place rais'd, whereon to plant the great Guns and play upon the Enemy; alſo the Cannon themſelves ſo planted.

Battery of a Camp, a Place where Cannon are likewiſe planted, which is uſually ſurrounded with a Trench and Palliſadoes at the Bottom, as alſo with a Parapet or Breaſt-work on the top, having as many Holes as there are Pieces of Artillery: There are alſo two Redouts on the Wings, or certain Places of Arms capable of covering the Men appointed for its Defence.

Battery d'Enfilade, is a Battery that ſcours, or ſweeps the whole length of a ſtraight Line.

Battery en Echarp, that which plays on any Work obliquely, or Side-ways.

Battery de Revers, or Murdering Battery, is one that beats upon the Back of any Place.

Battery ſunk or buried, is when its Platform is ſunk or let down into the Ground, ſo that Trenches muſt be cut in the Earth againſt the Muzzles of the Guns for them to fire out at, and to ſerve at Loop-holes. This ſort of Battery which the French call en Terre and Ruinante, is generally uſ'd on the firſt making of Approaches to beat down the Parapet of any Place.

Croſs Batteries, two Batteries which play athwart one another, upon the ſame Thing, making an Angle there, ſo as to beat with greater Violence and Deſtruction, becauſe what one Bullet ſhakes, the other beats down.

Joint Battery or Batteria par Camerade, is when ſeveral Guns fire at the ſame time upon one Place.

Batteurs d'Eſtrade, Scouts or Diſcoverers, Horſemen ſent out before, or on the Wings of an Army, a Mile, two, or three, to diſcover and give the General an Account of what they ſee.

Batting-Staff, an Inſtrument us'd by Laundreſſes, to beat waſh'd Linnen.

Battle (old Word) a kind of ſmall Boat; alſo the ſame as Battle, which See.

To Battle, (in Oxford-Univerſity) is to take up Proviſions in the College-Book.

Battlement, a piece of Maſonry on the top of a Wall or Building, like a Dent, or in form of Embraſures and Merlons, as in fortify'd Places; alſo the Turret of a Houſe.

Battler, a Scholar or young Student, that battles or ſcores for Diet in the Univerſity.

Battology (Gr.) a fooliſh repeating of the ſame Words over and over again in any Diſcourſe, vain babbling; from Battus, a certain ridiculous Poet, who frequently us'd the ſame Repetitions in his Works.

Battoon, (Fr.) a ſhort thick Club, or Stick; a Truncheon, or Marſhall's Staff: In Heraldry, it is a fourth part of a Bend Siniſter, and the uſual Mark of Illegitimacy, being always born couped or cut off at each End, ſo as not to touch the Chief or Baſe-Point. It alſo ſignifies the Earl Marſhall's Staff; as He bears Or, a Battoon Gules.

Batus, (Gr.) a Bramble or Brier; alſo an Hebrew Meaſure of liquid things, containing 72 Sextaries: In ſome old Latin Records, it is taken for a Boat.

Bavaria, a great Province or Dukedom in Germany, and one of the Ten Circles of the Empire.

Baubels, (old Word) Jewels cut.

Baucia, (Gr.) the wild Parſnep; a Root.

Baudekyn, Tiſſue or Cloth of Gold, upon which Figures in Silk were Embroider'd.

Baufrey, (old Word) a Beam, or Joiſt.

Bavins, Bruſh-faggots, made with the Bruſh at length.

Bawd, a lewd Woman that makes it her Buſineſs to debauch others for Gain; a Procureſs.

Bawdrick, a Cord or Thong for a Bell-clapper: Alſo an old Word for Furniture; alſo a Sword-belt, or an old faſhion'd Jewel.

Bawdry, a Bawd's Trade, or Imployment.

Bawdy, lewd, filthy, ſmutty; alſo filthy Words, or Diſcourſe.

Bawrel, a kind Hawk, that for Size and Shape, is ſomewhat like the Lanner, but has a longer Body and Sails.

Bawſin, (old Word) groſs, big: A Badger is alſo call'd a Bawſin, by ſome Writers that treat of the Exerciſe of Hunting.

Bay, (among Geographers and Sea-men) an Arm of the Sea that comes up into the Land, and ends in a Nook: It is a kind of ſmall Gulph bigger than a Creek, near ſome Harbour, where Ships may ride ſafe; and its Entrance is call'd the Mouth of the Bay.

In Architecture, the Bay is a Space left in a Wall for a Gate, Door, or Window; alſo a Bay of Joiſts, is the Space between two Beams. In Fortification, Bays are Holes in a Parapet, or Breaſt-work, to receive the Mouth of a Cannon. Among Fowlers, a Dog detaining a Pheaſant by barking, till ſhe be ſhot, is ſaid To keep her at Bay.

Bay or Pen, a Pond-head made up of a great Height, to keep in ſtore of Water for driving the Wheels or Hammer belonging to an Iron-Mill, &c.

Bay-Colour, (in Horſes) a light brown Red Colour: Dark or black Bay, is a deep-colour'd Red, a Cheſnut-Colour.

Bay-Tree, the Female Laurel, the Berries of which are Soveraign in Diſtempers of the Nerves, Colick, &c.

Bay-window, (in Architect.) a round Window, or one made arch-ways.

To Bay, to bark as a Dog does, to bleet or cry like a Lamb: Among Huntſmen, Deer are ſaid To Bay, when after being hard run, they turn Head againſt the Hounds.

Bayard, a Bay-Horſe.

Bayonnette, (Fr.) a broad Dagger without a Guard, made with a round taper Handle, to ſtick in the Muzzle of a Muſket, ſo that it may ſerve inſtead of a Pike, to receive the Charge of Horſe.

Bazar, a Word uſ'd in Perſia, and the Eaſt-Indies for a Market-place.

Bdellium, (Gr.) the Gum of a black Tree in Arabia, of the bigneſs of an Olive-tree: It is ſomewhat like Wax, of a ſweet Smell, and bitter Taſte.

Beacon, (Sax. a Signal) a long Pole ſet up in ſeveral Places, eſpecially on ſome riſing Ground near the Sea-coaſts, on which are faſten'd Pitch-barrels to be fir'd, or make a Smoak by Night, in order to give notice of an approaching Invaſion.

Beaconage, Money paid for the maintaining of Beacons.

Bead, a Saxon Word for a Prayer; as To ſay over one's Beads.

Bead-roll or Bed-roll, a Liſt of thoſe that uſ'd to be Pray'd for in the Church: But the Word is now taken in a Comical Senſe, for any long tedious Liſt, or confus'd reckoning up of many things together.

Bead-tree, a ſort of Shrub that bears white Berries.

Beadle, an Apparitor, or Meſſenger of a Court, that Summons Men to appear there: Alſo an Officer belonging to an Univerſity, or to a particular Ward, Pariſh, or Liberty: Alſo a Foreſt-Officer that makes Garniſhments for the Courts of the Foreſt, as alſo all Proclamations there, and executes all the Proceſs of them.

Beagle, a kind of Hunting-dog.

Beak, the Bill, or Nib of a Bird: In Falconry, the upper part of a Hawk's Bill that is crooked.

Beak or Beak-head, (of a Ship) that part of it without, before the Fore-Caſtle, which is faſten'd to the Stem, and ſupported by the Main Knee, being the chief Ornament and Grace of the Ship.

Beaking, (a Term in Cock-fighting) the fighting of thoſe Birds with their Bills; or their holding with the Bill, and ſtriking with the Heels.

Beal, a Whelk, or Puſh.

To Beal, to gather Matter, as a Sore does.

Beam, a great piece of Timber uſ'd in Building; the Pole of a Coach, or Waggon: In Sea-language, Beams are thoſe great croſs Timbers which hold the Sides of the Ship from falling together, and withal bear up the Decks. The Main Beam is next the Main-maſt, and the great Beam of all is call'd the Midſhip-Beam.

Beam, is alſo a Ray of Light proceeding from the Sun, or other Luminous Body; alſo a kind of fiery Meteor in ſhape of a Pillar.

Beam or Beam-fiſh, a Sea-monſter like a Pike, a moſt dreadful Enemy to a Man, whom he ſeizes like a Blood-hound, and will never let him go, if he can once get faſt hold: His Teeth are ſo venomous, that the leaſt touch of them is Mortal, unleſs an Antidote be immediately apply'd.

Beam of an Anchor, is the longeſt part of it, otherwiſe call'd the Shank.

Beam-Antler. See Brow-Antler.

Beam-Compaſſes, an Inſtrument made of Wood or Braſs, with ſliding Sockets, to carry ſeveral ſhifting Points, in order to draw Circles with very long Radii: They are of good uſe in large Projections, for drawing the Furniture on Wall-Dials, &c.

Beam-Feathers, (in Falconry) the long Feathers of a Hawk's Wing.

Beans, a well known wholeſome ſort of Pulſe.

Bean-Caper, a kind of Fruit.

Bean-Treſoil, an Herb.

Bear, a Wild Beaſt. In Greenland and Spitſberg, there are Bears of a white Colour, and prodigious Size, ſome of them being ſix Foot high, and their Skins fourteen Foot long: Alſo the Name of two ſeveral Conſtellations, or Cluſters of Stars in the Heavens, call'd The greater and the leſſer Bear.

Bear's-Breech, or Brank-Urſin, an Herb much eſteem'd for its lively green Colour, and of good Uſe in Phyſick for Ruptures, as alſo for the Cramp and Gout.

Bears-Ears, a ſort of curious Flowers, of which there is a very great and admirable Variety.

Bear's-Foot, an Herb, by ſome call'd Setter-wort, but others take it for a baſtard kind of white Hellebore.

To Bear, to carry, to hold up, to yield, or bring forth: In Heraldry, a Perſon that has a Coat of Arms, is ſaid To bear in it the ſeveral Charges, or Ordinaries contained in his Eſcutcheon: Thus, if there be three Lions Rampant in it, he is ſaid To bear three Lions Rampant.

In Gunnery, a Piece of Ordinance comes to bear, when it lies right with the Mark.

The Word Bear is alſo uſ'd by Sea-men in ſeveral Senſes: Thus a Ship is ſaid To bear Ordinance, when ſhe carries any great Guns; and To bear a good Sail, when ſhe Sails upright in the Water, with her Sails abroad in a Gale of Wind. With reſpect to the Burden of a Ship, they ſay She bears, when having too lean or ſlender a Quarter, ſhe ſinks too deep into the Water, with an over-light Fraight, and conſequently can carry but a ſmall quantity of Goods.

To Bear in with the Harbour, is when a Ship Sails into a Harbour before the Wind, or with the Wind large; and To bear in with the Land, is when ſhe Sails towards the Shore. When a Ship that was to Windward, comes under another Ship's Stern, and ſo gives her Wind, ſhe is ſaid To bear under her Lee.

To Bear off from Land, is when a Ship keeps off from it; and when a Mariner would expreſs how one Cape or Place lies from another, he ſays It bears off ſo or ſo.

In Conding, or giving Directions to the Steers-man, they ſay, Bear up the Helm, i. e. let the Ship go more at large before the Wind; and Bear up round, that is, let the Ship go between her two Sheets, directly before the Wind.

To Beard. See To Bard.

Bearded-Creeper, a kind of Herb.

Bearded Huſk, (among Floriſts) is a Roſe-huſk, or other ſuch like Huſk that is hairy in the Edges.

Bearers, Perſons that bear, or carry any thing: In a Law-ſenſe, ſuch as bear down, or oppreſs others; Maintainers, or Abettors: In Heraldry, thoſe that have Coat-armours diſtinguiſh'd from others by Colour, or other Differences.

Bearing, (in Navigat.) the Point of the Compaſs that one Place bears, or ſtands off from another: Among Heralds, Bearing or Charge, is taken for that which fills an Eſcutcheon.

Bearing-Claws, (a Term uſ'd in Cock-fighting) the foremoſt Toes of a Cock on which he goes, ſo that if they be hurt, or gravelled, he cannot fight.

Beaſel. See Bezel.

Beaſt, a Creature void of Reaſon; a lewd Man, or Woman; alſo a Game at Cards like Loo.

Beaſts of Chace, (according to the Foreſt-law) are five in number, viz. The Buck, Doe, Roe, Fox, and Martern.

Beaſts of the Foreſt, otherwiſe call'd Beaſts of Venery, are alſo counted five, viz. The Hart, Hind, Hare, Boar, and Wolf.

Beaſts and Fowl of Warren, are the Hare, Coney, Pheaſant and Partridge.

Beats, (in a Watch or Clock) are the Strokes made by the Fangs, or Pallets of the Ballance-ſpindle, or of the Pads in a Royal Pendulum.

To Beat, to ſtrike, or knock; to bang, to get the better of, or overcome: Among Hunters, Hares, or Coneys, when they make a noiſe in Rutting-time, are ſaid To beat, or tap: Alſo a Stag that runs firſt one way, and then another, is ſaid To beat up and down.

To Beat an Alarm, (in the Art of War) is to give notice by beat of Drum of ſome ſudden Danger, that all may be in a readineſs. To Beat to Arms, is for Soldiers that are diſpers'd to repair to them: To Beat a Charge, a Signal to fall upon the Enemy.

To Beat the General, to give notice to the Forces that they are to March. To Beat a March, to command them actually to move. To Beat a Parley, a Signal to demand ſome Conference with the Enemy. To Beat a Retreat, to draw off from the Enemy. To Beat the Reveille, to give leave at break of Day, to come out of Quarters. To Beat the Tat-too, to order all to retire to their Quarters. To Beat the Troop, to order the Men to repair to their Colours.

Beaters, Printers Ink-balls, with which they beat the Ink on the Letters in the Chace or Form.

Beatifical or Beatifick, (Lat.) making happy, or bleſſed; belonging to the Bleſſed.

Beatification, an Act by which the Pope declares a Perſon to be bleſſed after his Death.

To Beatify, to make bleſſed, to inroll among the Bleſſed.

Beatilles, (Fr. in Cookery) certain Tid-bits; as Cocks-combs, Gooſe-gibblets, Ghizzards, Livers, and other Appurtenances of Fowls, to be put into Pies, Potages, &c.

Beatitude, (Lat.) Bleſſedneſs, Bliſs, Happineſs.

Beatrix, (i. e. one that makes happy) a proper Name of Women.

Beau, (Fr.) a Spruce Gentleman, a Spark, a Fop, a Finical Fellow.

Beaupleader, a Writ that lies where the Sheriff, or Bailiff, in his Court takes a Fine of a Party, either Plaintiff or Defendant, to the end that he may not Plead fairly, or aptly to the Purpoſe.

Beaver, a Creature like an Otter, living both on Land and in Water, with ſmall round Ears, very long Teeth, a Snout flat and hairy; but the Tail is without Hair, and Scaly like a Fiſh: This Creature is alſo call'd a Caſtor, and ſuch Hats as are chiefly made of its Hair, are thence nam'd Beavers and Caſtors.

Beavis, a Proper Name of ſeveral Men.

Beauteous or Beautiful, (Fr.) handſome, comely, fair, fine.

To Beautify, to make beautiful, to ſet off, or ſet out, to grace.

Beautify, Comelineſs, Fineneſs, Handſomneſs, Pleaſantneſs, Curiouſneſs, Delicacy, Excellency. According to the Rules of Architecture, Beauty is that agreeable Form, and pleaſing Appearance which it repreſents to the Eye of the Beholder.

A Beauty, a beautiful, very fair, or charming Woman.

Beavy. See Bevy.

Becabunga, (Lat.) the Herb Sea-purſlain, or Brook-lime.

To Becalm, to make calm, to appeaſe: Among Sailers, it is us'd, when any thing keeps off the Wind from a Ship, particularly when the Shore keeps the Wind away; and one Ship is ſaid To becalm another, when ſhe comes up with her on the Weather-ſide.

Beccafigo, a Bird like a Wheat-ear that eats Figs.

Bechicks or Bechical Medicines, Medicines that are good for the curing, or aſſwaging of a Cough; as Lozenges, Licorice, &c.

Beck, a little River, or Brook.

Bed, a Place to lie, or take reſt on: In Gunnery, that thick Plank which lies immediately under a Piece of Ordinance on the Carriage, being, as it were the main Body of the Carriage: A Bed of Snakes, is a knot of young ones. The neither Mill-ſtone is alſo call'd the Bed.

To Bed with one, to lie together in the ſame Bed: Among Hunters, a Roe is ſaid To bed, when ſhe lodges in a particular Place.

Bed-rid, that is ſo weak by Sickneſs, or old Age, as not to be able to riſe from one's Bed.

Bedd-ale or Bidd-ale, a Friendly Appointment for the Meeting of Neighbours, at the Houſe of New-marry'd Perſons, or other Poor People; where they us'd to drink together, and the Gueſts generally contributed to the Houſe-keepers.

Bedder or Bedetter, the Neither-ſtone of an Oil-mill.

Bede, the Name of a Learned Engliſh Monk, who liv'd near Newcaſtle upon Tine, and had the Title of Venerable, as well in his Life-time, as ſince his Death.

Bede-houſe, an Hoſpital, or Alms-houſe, for Bedes-men, or poor People, who pray'd for their Founders and Benefactors.

Bedel, a Cryer, a Beadle, from the Saxon Word Bydde, to Publiſh, or Declare; as To bid and forbid the Banes of Matrimony, Bidding of Prayers, &c. Hence came our Univerſity-beadles, Church-beadles now call'd Summoners, or Apparitors, Beadle of the Beggers, &c.

Bedelary, the Juriſdiction of, or Precinct belonging to a Bedel, or Beadle.

Bederepe or Bidrepe, a Service anciently performed by ſome Tenants, in Reaping their Landlord's Corn at Harveſt, and ſome, (more eſpecially in Wales) are ſtill bound to give one, two, or more Days-work for that purpoſe, when requir'd; which in ſome Places, are call'd Boon-days.

Bedlam, the Name of a ſtately Hoſpital in London, where mad People are kept, corruptly ſo call'd for Bethlem, which in Hebrew ſignifies an Houſe of Bread. See Bethlem, and Bethlem-Hoſpital.

A Bedlam or Bedlamite, a mad, or diſtracted Perſon.

Beech, a ſort of Tree.

Beef a la Mode, (Fr. in Cookery) is Beef well beaten, Larded, and Stew'd with Pepper, Salt, Lemmon, half a douzen of Muſhroons, a Glaſs of White-wine, &c.

Beer, a well known ſort of Drink. Alſo a Term us'd by Weavers, and ſignifying nineteen ends of Yarn, running all together out of the Trough, all the length of the Cloth;

Beeſom, a Broom to ſweep with: Alſo an Addition made to the Names of ſeveral Herbs, upon account of their reſembling a Broom; as Beeſom-moſs, Beeſom-weed, &c.

Beeſtings or Breſtings, the firſt Milk taken from a Cow, after Calving.

Beet, a Garden-herb, very good againſt Stoppages of the Liver and Spleen, as alſo for looſening the Belley, and provoking Urine.

White Beet, otherwiſe call'd Poiree, or Porree, a Plant, the Rib of which being boil'd, melts, and eats like Marrow.

Beet-Raves or Beet-Radiſhes, a ſort of red Beets that produce Roots for Sallets.

Beetle, an Inſect.

Beetle or Boytle, a Wooden Inſtrument us'd by Country-men for the driving of Piles, Stakes, Wedges, &c. Alſo a great Sledge, or Hammer to drive down Palloſadoes, or for other Uſes in Fortification.

Beglerbeg, (i. e. Lord of Lords) the chief Governour of a Province in Turkey; who Commands the Sanjacks, Baſſas, and other inferiour Offirs.

To Beguile, to Couzen, or Deceive.

Beguines, an Order of Religious Women, who without any Vow, or Obligatory Profeſſion, agreed to live together in Charity and Devotion.

Behemoh, a wonderful Creature deſcribed in the Book of Job, and taken by ſome for the River-horſe.

Behen or Behn, the Root of Red, or White Valerian; alſo a kind of Fruit. See Ben.

Beheſts, (old Word) Engagements, Promiſes.

Behiram, a Feſtival among the Turks, during which they uſe to forgive all Injuries.

Behight, (old Word) promiſed.

Belaccoile, a Word us'd by the Poet Spencer, for Friendly Salutation.

To Belage. See To Belay.

Belagged, left behind.

Belande or Belandre, (Fr.) a ſort of Sea-veſſel with Sails and Tackle like a Hoy, but broader and flatter. They are chiefly us'd to carry Merchants Goods, and are ſeldom above 24 Tun.

To Belay, (old Word) to Way-lay, to lay Wait for: Among Sea-men, To Belay, or Belage, is to faſten any running Rope, when it is haled, that it cannot run forth again: Thus they ſay, Belay the Sheat, or Tack, i. e. faſten it to the Kennel, &c.

To Belch, to break Wind upwards, to caſt forth with Violence.

† Beldame, a decrepit old Woman.

To Beleaguer, to Beſiege, to lay Siege before a Town; a Word which now begins to be out of Date.

Beleaguered, Beſieged, Oppreſſed, Afflicted; as Beleaguered with Sickneſs and Want.

Belemnites, (Gr.) a ſort of Stone of a whitiſh, and ſometimes Gold-colour, ſo call'd from its Shape, exactly reſembling the Point of an Arrow, as alſo in Engliſh Arrow-head, Finger-ſtone, and Thunder-bolt.

Belfrey, that part of a Steeple where the Bells hang.

Belgæ, the Inhabitants of Belgium, or the Low-Countries, containing the Seventeen Provinces of the Netherlands: Alſo the People Inhabiting part of England, now call'd Somerſet-ſhire, and Wilt-ſhire, were anciently call'd Belgæ, in regard they came thither originally out of Gallia Belgica.

Belgian or Belgick, belonging to the Low-Countries.

Beli Oculus, (Lat.) a kind of precions Stone that reſembles an Eye.

Bell, (more truly Baal) in the Chaldee Language, ſignifies the Sun; which was Worſhipped under that Name by the Chaldeans and Aſſyrians: Alſo a well known Muſical Inſtrument hung up in Church-Steeples.

Bell-Flowers or Blew Bells, a pleaſant Flower, of which there are ſeveral ſorts, and ſome not altogether unuſeful in Phyſick.

Bell-metal, a Mixture of Tin and Copper, proper for the Caſting of Bells.

Bell-pear or Gourd-pear, a ſort of Pear.

Belling, a Term among Hunters, who ſay a Roe belleth, when ſhe makes a noiſe in Rutting-time.

Bellis, (Lat.) the White Daiſy, and Herb, and Flower of great Virtue in healing Wounds, &c.

To Bellow, to cry as Oxen, Cows, or Bulls do; the Word is alſo apply'd by Foreſters to the Hart.

Bellum, (Lat.) War, the State of War: In a Law-Senſe, the old cuſtomary way of Tryal by Arms, Duel, or Combate.

Belly, that part of the Body which encloſes the Guts, Bladder, &c. It is alſo ſaid of things that have no Life, as The Belly of a Bottle, of a Lute, &c.

Belly-fretting, a great Pain in the Belly of a Horſe; alſo the Wounding, or Galling of that Part with the Fore-girths, when they are either knotty, or crumbled, or drawn too ſtraight.

To Belly or Belly out, to grow fat, to ſtrut, to jut forth.

Belone, (Gr.) a Needle; alſo a kind of Fiſh, ſhap'd like a Needle.

Belonoides, (in Anat.) the Proceſs, or Shooting forth of the Bone, call'd Aliformis, which is fixed in the Baſis of the Scull.

Belſwagger, a ſwaggering Fellow; a Bully, or hectoring Blade.

Belt, a Girt to hang a Sword by: Alſo a Diſeaſe in Sheep.

Belvedere, (Ital. i. e. pleaſant to behold) the Name of one of the Pope's Palaces in Rome; alſo an Herb, call'd in Engliſh, Broom-Toad-flax.

Belzebub or Baalzebub, (Heb. i. e. the God of Flies) a Word us'd in Holy Scripture for the Prince of Devils.

Bement, (old Word) lamented, bemoaned.

Bemes, (old Word) Trumpets.

Ben or Behn, the Fruit of a Tree like the Tamariſk, about the bigneſs of a Filberd, which the Perfumers bruiſe to get an Oil out of it, not ſo ſweet-ſmelling of it ſelf, but proper to receive any ſort of Scent.

Benaiah, (Heb. the Lord's Building) Jehoiada's Son, who at Solomon's Command kill'd Joab.

Bench of the King or Queen. See King's-Bench.

Bencher, a Lawyer of the firſt Rank in the Inns of Court.

Benches. See Wales.

Bend, a Word us'd by Chaucer, for a Muffler, Kercher, or Caul: In Heraldry, one of the eight Honourable Ordinaries, containing a fifth when uncharged, but when charged, a third part of the Eſcutcheon: It is made by two Lines drawn croſs-ways from the Dexter chief to the Siniſter Baſe-Point: Thus 'tis ſaid, He bears Or, a Bend Sable.

The Bend is ſubdivided into a Bendlet, Coſt, Garter and Ribbon; which ſee under thoſe Articles.

Bend Siniſter, is drawn from the Siniſter Chief Point, to the Dexter Baſe, being ſubdivided into a Scrape or Scarp, and a Battoon.

Bend Voided, is when two ſtraight Lines drawn within the Bend, run nearly parallel to the outward edges of it; as He bears Ermine, a Bend voided Gules.

To Bend, to ſtretch out, to bow or crook, to yield or ſtoop.

To Bend the Cable to the Anchor (in Sea-Language) is to ſeize, or make it faſt to the Ring of the Anchor with Ropes. To Bend two Cables, is to tie them together, and ſo to make their own ends faſt upon themſelves. To Bend a Main-ſail, is to make it faſt to the Yard in its proper Place.

Bendlet, (in Heraldry) a ſmall Bend, or Sub-diviſion of the Bend, which takes up the ſixth part of the Shield.

Bendwith, a ſort of Herb.

Bendy, a Term us'd in Heraldry, when an Eſcutcheon is divided Bend-ways into an even Number of Partitions; but when they are odd, the Field muſt be firſt named, and then the number of the Bends.

Beneaped, (among Seamen) a Ship is ſaid To be beneaped, when the Water does not flow high enough to bring her off the Ground, out of a Dock, or over a Bar.

Benedictines, an order of Monks, Founded by St. Benedict.

Benediction, (Lat.) a Bleſſing, particularly that which is given by Parents to their Children, or by Biſhops, or other Miniſters to the People.

Benefactor, a doer of good Turns; a Patron.

Benefice, any Church-living, whether a Dignity, or other ſort.

Beneficence, the doing of good Offices, Kindneſs, Liberality.

Beneficial, that yields Benefit, Advantageous, Profitable.

Beneficiarii, (among the Romans) a ſort of Soldiers, who for ſome eminent Service done, had Lands allow'd them for Term of Life, call'd Beneficia, or Benefices; which Word is now wholly apply'd to the Spiritual Livings that are enjoy'd by Clergy-men.

Beneficiary, one that has a Benefice.

Beneficio primo Eccleſiaſtico habendo, a Writ directed from the Queen to the Lord Chancellour, or Lord Keeper, to beſtow the Benefice that ſhall firſt fall into the Queen's Gift, above or under ſuch a Value, upon this, or that Parſon.

Benefit, Kindneſs, or Favour; Advantage, or Profit.

Benefit of the Clergy, a Privilege formerly peculiar to Clerks, but now common with them to Lay-men, when they ſtand Convicted of certain Crimes, particularly of Manſlaughter. By Virtue of this Privilege, the Priſoner is put to read a Verſe or two in a Latin Book of a Gothick black Character, commonly call'd a Neck-verſe; and if the Ordinary of Newgate, or his Deputy ſtanding by, ſays, Legit ut Clericus, i. e. he reads like a Clerk, or Scholar, he is only burnt on the Hand and ſet free, otherwiſe he ſuffers Death for his Crime.

Benerth, a Service which the Tenant heretofore render'd to his Lord, with his Plough and Cart.

Benevolence, good Will, Favour: Alſo a voluntary Gratuity, or Preſent given by Subjects to their Soveraign.

Benevolent, well-willing, bearing good Will, favourable, friendly, affectionate, kind.

Benevolent Planets, (among Aſtrologers) ſuch as afford a favourable Influence; which are Jupiter and Venus.

Benevolentia Regis habenda, the Form in ancient Fines and Submiſſions, to purchaſe the Queen's Pardon and Favour, in order to be reſtor'd to Eſtate, Title, or Place.

Bengale, a ſort of Linnen-cloth, ſo call'd, becauſe brought from Bengala, a Kingdom in the Eaſt-Indies.

Benhadad, (Heb. the Son of Noiſe) a King of Syria.

Benjamin, (i. e. the Son of the Right-Hand) the youngeſt of the Twelve Sons of Jacob, whom his Mother Rachel firſt nam'd Benoni, i. e. a Son of Sorrow.

Benjamin or Benzoin, a Drug much us'd in Sweet-bags, and other Perfumes; It is the Gum, or congeal'd Juice of the Herb Laſer-wort, growing in Africa: Others will have it to be the Product of a certain Tree in the Indies, like an Almond-tree, that bears a Cod, containing only a Juice, which being thicken'd, is what we call Benjamin.

Benign, (Lat.) courteous, good-natur'd, kind, favourable, more eſpecially apply'd to the Influence of the Stars.

Benign Diſeaſe, is a favourable one, that has no irregular, or dreadful Symptoms, but ſuch as are agreeable to its Nature.

Benignity, ſweetneſs of Diſpoſition, Goodneſs, Kindneſs, Courteſy.

To Benim, (old Word) to bereave.

Bennet, a proper Name of Men, from Benedict; alſo a kind of Herb.

To Bequeath, to give, or leave by laſt Will and Teſtament.

Bequeſt, a Law-word for a Legacy.

To Beray. See To Bewray.

Berberis, (Lat.) the Barberry-tree, a Shrub, the Berries of which provoke Appetite, and ſtrengthen the Stomach.

Bercaria or Bercria, (in ancient Writers) a Sheep-fold, Sheep-pen, or other Incloſure for the keeping of Sheep.

To Bereave, to deprive, or rob one of a thing, to take it away from him.

Bereft, bereaved, or deprived of.

Bergamot, a round Pear, whoſe Pulp is ſomewhat perfumed, and of a delicious Taſte, ſo call'd from Bergamo a City of Italy, whence they were firſt brought over: Alſo a ſort of Perfume.

Bergamot of Eaſter, call'd Bugy by the French, a Pear that is ripe in February and March, in colour and bigneſs, reſembling the Autumn-Bergamot; but it is not ſo flat towards the Crown, and a little longer towards the Stalk; its Colour is Greeeniſh, with little gray ſpecks that grow yellowiſh in ripening.

Bergander, a kind of Fowl.

Bergmayſter, (Dutch) the Bailiff, or chief Officer among the Derby-ſhire Miners, who alſo performs the Duty of a Coroner.

Berghmoth or Bergmote, a Court held to determine Matters relating to Mines.

Beria, (in old Latin Records) a flat, wide Plain, or Heath: Whence ſeveral large Meadows, and open Grounds are ſtill call'd Beries and Berifields, beſides the Terminations or endings of the Names of ſeveral Places ſituated in an open Champion Country, as Cornberie, Mixberie.

Berm, (Fr. in Fortif.) a little ſpace of Ground, three, four, or five Foot wide, left at the foot of the Rampart next the Field, to receive the Earth that rolls down from thence, and to prevent it from falling into the Moat, or Ditch: It is otherwiſe call'd Fore-land, Ralais, Retraite, and Pas de Souris.

Bern, (i. e. a Bear) one of the four Proteſtant Cantons of Switzerland, and the moſt powerful of all the Thirteen, with its chief City of the ſame Name.

Bernard, (i. e. Bear's-heart) a proper Name of Men, particularly of an eminent Divine, the laſt of the Latin Fathers of the Church.

Bernard-College, an ancient College in Oxford, Rebuilt by Sir Thomas White, Citizen of London, and afterwards call'd St. John Baptiſt's College.

Bernard's Inn. See Inns of Chancery.

Bernardines, certain Religious Perſons of the Order of one Bernard a Ciſtercian Monk.

Berra, (in ancient Latin Deeds) a plain, open Heath.

Berries, (among Herbaliſts) are Fruits cover'd with a thin Skin, containing a Pulp that grows ſoft and moiſt when ripe, and the Seed is alſo contain'd within its Subſtance, as the Berries of Bay, Ivy, Juniper, Elder, Bramble, &c.

Berrithatch, Litter for Horſes; a Word us'd in the Court-rolls of the Manour of Chaton in Somerſet-ſhire.

Berſa, (in old Latin Records) a Limit, Bound, or Compaſs.

Berſare, to ſhoot; as Berſare in Foreſta mea ad tres Arcus. Charta Ran. Com. Ceſtr. an 1218, i. e. To hunt or ſhoot in my Foreſt with three Arrows.

Berſatrix, a Rocker of young Children in a Cradle.

Berſeletta, a Hound, or Hunting-dog.

Berth or Birth, (among Mariners) convenient Sea-room for a Ship that rides at Anchor. See Birth.

Bertha, a proper Name of ſome Women, ſignifying in the German Tongue, bright or famous.

Berthinſeck or Birdinſeck, a Law in Scotland, whereby a Man is not to be hang'd for ſtealing a Sheep, or ſo much Meat, as he can carry upon his Back in a Sack, but only ſcourged.

Bertoh, a Farm-houſe.

Berton, a great Farm ſo call'd in Devon-ſhire See Barton.

Bertonarii, Tenants of Bertons, or Farmers.

Bertram, a proper Name of ſome Men; alſo an Herb otherwiſe call'd Pellitory of Spain.

Bertying a Ship, (Sea-Phraſe) the raiſing up of the Ship's Sides.

Berwica, a Word often found in Doomſday-Record, and ſignifying a Village.

Bery. See Bury.

Beryllus, (Gr.) a precious Stone of a faint Green Colour like the Water of the Sea.

Bes or Beſſis, (Lat.) the Weight of eight Ounces, among the ancient Romans, being two third parts of the As, or Pound. In Land-meaſure Bes is alſo the eighth part of an Acre divided into twelve equal Portions.

Beſaile, a Writ that lies for an Heir, where his great Grand-father (call'd Biſayoul in French) dying poſſeſſed of any Lands or Tenements in Fee Simple, a Stranger abates, or enters upon the Premiſes, to keep out the ſaid Heir.

Beſant or Byzantine, a very ancient Gold-coin, ſo call'd becauſe ſtampt at Byzantium or Conſtantinople: But the Value of it is unknown, and was quite forgot even in the time of K. Edward III.

In Heraldry, Beſants are taken for the Figure of certain Plates of Gold, containing 104 Pounds and 2 Ounces Troy-weight, each worth 3750 Pounds Sterling: They were made round and ſmooth without the Repreſentation of any Figure on them; and in Coats of Arms are always expreſs'd Or, or of the Gold-Colour.

Beſca (in old Latin Records) a Spade, or Shovel: Whence Una Beſcata terræ, i. e. a piece of Land turn'd up with a Spade.

To Beſeech, to pray, or entreat humbly.

Beſeſtein or Bezeſtan, a Burſe or Exchange for Merchants, among the Turks and Perſians.

To Beſhrew, (old Word) to curſe or uſe Imprecations: Whence the Expreſſion ſtill in Uſe, Beſhrew your Heart, i. e. ill luck attend ye.

Beſidery, a ſort of Baking-Pear about the Bigneſs of a Tennis-ball, of a yellowiſh and whitiſh green Colour; being an indifferent Fruit, ripe in October and November.

Beſidery Sandry. See Chaſſery.

To Beſiege, to lay Seige to, or to ſurround a Town with Military Forces, in order to be Maſter of it. In Aſtrology, a Planet is ſaid To be beſieged, when plac'd between the Bodies of the two malevolent or ill-boding Planets Saturn and Mars.

To Beſpatter, to daſh or dawb with Dirt, to defame or ſlander.

Beſtail, (Fr.) a Law-word, ſignifying all kind of Beaſts or Cattel.

Beſtial, (Lat.) belonging to a Beaſt, beaſtly, brutiſh.

Beſtial Signs of the Zodiack, are Aries, Taurus, Leo, Sagittarius and Capricornus, ſo call'd by Aſtrologers, upon Account of their Figure, on the Celeſtial Globe, repreſenting four-footed Beaſts.

To Beſtow, to give, to lay out.

To Bet, to lay Wagers when Gameſters are playing, in Favour of one Side againſt the other.

Beta, the ſecond Letter of the Greek Alphabet: Alſo an unſavoury Herb call'd Beet, the Juice of which drawn up the Noſtrils, diſcharges Phlegmatick Humours from the Brain, and cures obſtinate Head-aches.

Beet, (old Word) Boot, or Help.

To Beet, (old Word) to bid, or command.

Bethlem or Bethlehem, (Heb. the Houſe of Bread) a City of Judah, famous for the Birth of King David, and of our Bleſſed Saviour.

Bethlem-Hoſpital, a noted Hoſpital in the City of London, where about forty, fifty, or ſixty Lunaticks, or diſtracted Perſons are commonly cur'd in a Year.

Betle or Betre, a kind of Indian Plant call'd Water-Pepper.

Betonica, the Herb Betony of good Uſe in Phyſick, eſpecially againſt Diſeaſes of the Head and Breaſt.

Betraſſed, (old Word) deceived.

To Betray, to be falſe to, to deliver up treacherouſly; to diſcloſe, or diſcover.

Betreint, (old Word) ſprinkled.

To Betroth, (Dutch) to give one Party to another, by a Solemn Matrimonial Contract; to make ſure, or promiſe in Marriage.

Bettee, an Inſtrument made uſe of by Thieves, to break open a Door.

Betula, (Lat.) the Birch-tree, the Leaves of which being of a cleanſing and opening Quality, are of great Uſe in the Dropſy.

Bevel, an Inſtrument well known to Builders, as Carpenters, Maſons, Brick-layers, &c. and us'd for the adjuſting of Angles.

Bever, a ſmall Collation betwixt Dinner and Supper; alſo the Viſer, or Sight of a Head-piece.

Beverage, (Fr.) a ſort of mingled Drink.

To Pay Beverage, to lay out Money for Drink, to treat one's Friends or Companions, upon the firſt wearing of a new Suit of Cloaths, &c.

Bevile, a Term in Heraldry, ſignifying broken or open like a Bevel or Carpenter's Rule; as He bears Argent, a Chief Bevile vert.

Bevy of Roe-bucks, a Term us'd by Foreſters, for a Herd or Company of thoſe Beaſts: Among Falconers and Fowlers, a Bevy of Quails, is a Brood or Flock of young Quails: Whence the Word is figuratively taken for a Knot or Company of Perſons; as A Bevy of Ladies Goſſips, &c.

Bevy-Greaſe, the Fat of a Roe-buck.

Bewildered, that has a wild Look with him, ſcared or frighted.

Bewits, (in Falconry) pieces of Leather made ſomewhat broad, to which the Hawk's Bells are faſten'd and button'd to their Legs.

Bewpleader. See Beaupleader.

To Beway, to foul one's Hole, to dawb or fill with Ordure; to diſcover, or reveal a Secret.

Bewreck, (old Word) revenged.

Bewryen, (old Word) declared.

Bezaliel, (Heb. the Shadow of God) a famous inſpired Artiſt, among the ancient Jews, who was one of the Chief Workmen about the Tabernacle.

Bezant, See Beſant.

Bezantler, the ſecond Branch of a Stag's Horn, next above the Brow-antler.

Bezat-Tree, a kind of Tree, growing in Malabar, in the Eaſt-Indies.

Bezel or Bezil, the upper part of the Collet of a Ring, which faſtens and encompaſſes the Stone.

Bezestan. See Beſeſtein.

Bezoar or Bezoar-Stone, a precious Stone of great Virtue againſt Poiſon and the Plague, bred in the Stomach of a Creature like a wild Goat.

Bezoar-Animale, the Livers and Hearts of Vipers dry'd in the Sun and powder'd.

Bezoar Minerale, a Chymical Preparation of Butter of Antimony fixed by Spirit of Nitre, and reduc'd to a white Powder; which is endu'd with a Quality to procure Sweat, and call'd Bezoardicum Minerale by Mr. Boyle.

Bezoardick or Bezoartick Remedies, Cordial Medicines, or Antidotes againſt Poiſon or infectious Diſeaſes.

Bezoardicum Joviale, a Medicine made by melting three Ounces of Regulus of Antimony, with two Ounces of block Tin; which being powder'd, is mix'd with ſix Ounces of Sublimate Corroſive, and then diſtill'd off in a kind of Butter: Afterwards the Butter is diſſolv'd in Spirit of Nitre, and the Solution diſtilled three ſeveral times, till the Bezoar remain at the bottom.

Bezoardicum Lunale, is made by mingling eight Ounces of rectify'd Butter of Antimony, with an Ounce of fine Silver, and diſſolving the Maſs in Spirit of Nitre.

Bezoardicum Martiale, is a Solution of Crocus Martis, made by Reverberation in Butter of Antimony, and then Spirit of Nitre is pour'd on it, and the Artiſt proceeds as in other Bezoartick Preparations.

To Bezzle, to guzzle, tipple, or drink hard.

Bialacoil, (old Word) fair welcoming.

Bias, (Fr.) Inclination, Bent, or Ply.

Bias of a Bowl, that Place where it inclines on one Side more than another in running.

To Bias, to ſet a Bias upon; to incline one, to to prepoſſeſs him.

Biberot, (Fr. in Cookery) minced Meat made of the Breaſts of Partridges and fat Pullets.

Bibio, (Lat.) the Wine-fly, an Inſect that breeds in the Dregs of Wine.

Bibitory Muscle, (in Anat.) the Muſcle that draws down the Eye towards the Cup, when one drinks See Adductor Oculi.

Bible, the Holy Scriptures of the Old and New Teſtament, ſo call'd by way of Excellency, from the Greek Word Biblos, ſignifying a Book.

Bibliopola, (Gr.) a Book-ſeller, or Stationer.

Bibliotheca, a Library, a Place where Books are kept, a Study; alſo the Books themſelves.

Bicane, the Verjuice-Grape, a kind of wild Grape.

Bice, a ſort of Stuff us'd by Painters, to make Blew and Green Colours.

Biceps, (in Anat.) a Muſcle of the Cubitus or Elbow, ſo call'd becauſe it has two Heads or Beginnings; the firſt or outmoſt ariſing from the upper part of the Brink of the Acetabulum Scapulæ, and the latter at the end of the Proceſſus Coracoides Scapulæ: Afterwards both being joyn'd together make a large fleſhy Belly, and are inſerted to the Tubercle, or Knob, at the upper Head of the Bone call'd Radius.

Biceps or Biceps Femoris, a Muſcle of the Leg, having likewiſe two Heads, the upper and longeſt of which takes riſe from a Knob of the Os Iſchium, as the other does from the Linea Aſpera of the Os Femoris, immediately below the end of the Glutæus Maximus. Theſe Heads being thus united, march on to the outward Appendix of the Thigh-bone, and are implanted to the upper Epiphyſis of the Fibula.

Bickering, tilting, or skirmiſhing; wrangling, Quarrel, Diſpute.

Bicongius, (Lat.) a Meaſure containing twelve Sextaries, or about ſix Engliſh Quarts.

Bicorporal Signs, (in Aſtrol.) are thoſe Signs of the Zodiack that are double-bodied, or repreſent two Bodies as Gemini, Piſces, and Sagittarius.

To Bid a Boon, (old Word) to make a Requeſt.

Bid-ale or Bid-all, a bidding or inviting of Friends to drink at a poor Man's Houſe, to gain their charitable Aſſiſtance: This Cuſtom is ſtill us'd in the Weſtern Parts of England and elſewhere, being otherwiſe call'd Help-ale and Clerks-ale.

Bidding of the Beads, a Charge or Warning, that Pariſh-Prieſts formerly gave their Pariſhioners, at certain times, to ſay particular Prayers, or do other Acts of Devotion, in behalf of ſome deceaſed Friend's Soul.

Bidens, (Lat.) a young Sheep having two Teeth, a Tag or Hogrel of the ſecond Year.

Biennial, that is of two Years continuance.

Bier or Beer, a wooden Frame to carry a dead Body upon.

Bifolium, (Lat.) Bifoil or Tway-blade, an Herb growing in boggy Ground, with two Leaves one againſt another: It cures Wounds old and new, and is good to knit Ruptures or broken Bellies.

Biformed, double-ſhaped, having two Shapes.

Biga, (Lat.) a Cart or Chariot drawn by coupled Horſes: In our old Records, a Cart with two Wheels.

Bigamy, (Gr.) a double Marriage; the having of two Wives at once, or the marrying of two Wives ſucceſſively after each other's Death. In the Canon-Law, an Impediment that hinders a Man from being a Clerk, by reaſon he has been twice marry'd.

Bigarrade, (Fr.) a kind of great Orange.

Bigat, a Roman Coin ſtampt with the Figure of a Chariot drawn by two Horſes a-breaſt: It was equal in Value to the Denarius, or 7½ d English Money.

Bigge, a Country-word for a Pap, or Teat.

Biggin, a kind of Coif, or Linnen-Cap for a young Child.

Bight or Bite, (Sea-Term) any turn or part of a Cable, or Rope that lies compaſſing; as To hold by the Bight, i. e. to hold by that part of the Rope which is coiled or rolled up.

Bigot. (Fr.) a ſuperſtitious Perſon, one whoſe Devotion is over-ſtrained; an Hypocrite.

Bigotism or Bigotry, Superſtition, Hypocriſy.

Bigotted, grown a Bigot.

Bihouac. See Biovac.

Bison, (Fr.) a Juice or Roſin that runs in Summer-time, from the Pine, Fir and Larch-tree.

Bilanciis deferendis, a Writ directed to a Corporation for the carrying of Weights to a particular Haven, there to weigh the Wooll that ſuch a Man is licenſed to tranſport.

Bilander. See Belandre and Bylander.

Bilberries, otherwiſe call'd Whorts, or Whortle-berries, the Fruit of a ſmall creeping Buſh of the bigneſs of Juniper-berries, but of a Purple Colour, and ſweetiſh-ſharp Taſte: They bind the Belly, and ſtay Vomitings and Loathings.

Bilboes, a ſort of Puniſhment at Sea, when an Offender is laid in Irons, or ſet in a kind of Stocks.

Bildge or Billage, a Sea-word for the bottom of a Ship's Floor.

Bildge-Pump. See Burr-Pump.

Bildge-Water, that Water which by reaſon of the breadth of the Bildge, cannot come to the Well in the Ship's Hold.

Bilged or Bulged, (among Sea-men) a Ship is ſaid To be bilged, when ſhe has ſtruck off ſome of her Timber on a Rock, or Anchor, and ſprings a Leak.

Bile. See Bilis and Boil.

Biliarius Ductus. See Ductus Biliarius.

Bilinguis, (Lat.) that can ſpeak two Languages; alſo double-tongued, deceitful. In a Law-ſenſe, it is taken for a Jury that paſſes between an Engliſh-man and a Foreigner, of which part are Natives of England, and part Strangers.

Bilious, full of Bile or Choler, Cholerick.

Bilis, (Lat.) the Bile, Gall, or Choler; an Humour partly Suphureous, and partly Saline, which is ſeparated from the Bloud of Animals in the Liver, for the receiving and diſcharging of which, there are chiefly two Veſſels or Paſſages, viz. the Folliculus Fellis, or Gall-bladder, and the Porus Biliarius; which See.

Bilis atra, black Choler, or Melancholy.

To Bilk, to diſappoint, or deceive; to gull, or bubble.

Bill, an Edge-tool us'd by Husbandmen, to lop Trees, &c. if ſhort, 'tis call'd a Hand-bill, if long, a Hedging-bill.

Bill or Proceſs at Law, a Declaration in Writing, that expreſſes the Grievance, or Wrong the Plaintiff has ſuffer'd by the Defendant, or elſe ſome Fault the Party complain'd of has committed againſt ſome Law or Statute of the Realm.

Bill of Debt, is the ſame with a Bond or Writing Obligatory; only when drawn up in Engliſh, 'tis commonly call'd a Bill, and in Latin an Obligation. Or a Bill is a ſingle Bond, without any Condition annexed, whereas an Obligation is a Bond, with a Penalty and Condition.

Bill of Divorce. See Divorce.

Bill of Entry, (in Traffick) an Account of Goods enter'd at the Cuſtom-Houſe, both inward and outward, in which is expreſs'd the Merchant exporting or importing, the Quantity and Sorts, and whether tranſported, or from whence.

Bill of Exchange, a ſhort Note, ordering the Payment of a Summ of Money in one Place, to any Perſon appointed by the Remitter, in Conſideration of the like Value paid the Drawer in another Place.

Bill of Health. See Praiſque.

Bill of Lading, a Deed ſigned by the Maſter of a Ship, acknowledging the Receipt of the Merchant's Goods, and obliging himſelf to deliver the ſame in good Condition, at the Place to which they are conſign'd: Theſe Bills being uſually three in Number; the firſt is given to the Merchant to keep, the ſecond ſent to the Factor, and the third is kept by the Maſter of the Veſſel.

Bill of Parcels, a particular Account of the ſorts and prizes of Goods bought, given by the Seller to the Buyer.

Bill of Reviver. See Reviver.

Bill of Review in Chancery. See Review.

Bill of Sale, is when a Perſon wanting a Summ of Money, delivers Goods as a Security to the Lender, and alſo gives the ſaid Lender a Bill, impowering him to ſell the Goods for his own Uſe, in caſe the Summ borrowed be not repaid with Intereſt at the Time agreed upon.

Bill of Store, a Licence granted at the Cuſtom-Houſe, to Merchants, to carry ſuch Stores and Proviſions Cuſtom-free, as are neceſſary for their Voyage.

Bill of Sufferance, a Licence likewiſe granted at the Cuſtom-Houſe to a Merchant, ſuffering him to trade from one Engliſh Port to another, without paying Cuſtom.

Billa Vera, (Lat. i. e. a true Bill) a Term of Art in the Common Law, which ſignifies the indorſing, or writing on the back-ſide of a Preſentment by the Grand Jury, when they find the Matter probably true, and worthy of farther Conſideration.

Billage, (among Sea-men) the breadth of a Ship's Floor, when ſhe lies a-ground. See Bildge.

Billard, a Word us'd in ſome Places for an imperfect, or baſtard Capon.

Billet, a Stick or Log of Wood cut for Fuel; alſo a Letter or Note folded up; or a Ticket for the quartering of Soldiers: In Heraldry, it is a Common Bearing; as Argent billeté a Croſs engrailed Gules, where the Billets are ſuppos'd to be all over the Field; but ſometimes there are not above ſix, &c. and then they are numbred.

Billet doux, (Fr.) a ſhort Love-letter.

Billet or Billot, an Ingot or Wedge of Metal, eſpecially Gold.

To Billet Soldiers, is to quarter them in ſeveral Houſes, by way of Billet or Ticket.

Billiards, a ſort of Game play'd with two Sticks, an Ivory-ball, Port, &c. on a long ſquare Table cover'd with green Cloth.

Billiting (among Hunters) the Ordure, or Dung of a Fox.

Billow, a Surge of the Sea; a great rolling Wave.

Bind, a Country-Word for a Stalk of Hops.

Bind of Eels, a Quantity conſiſting of 250, or ten Strikes, each 25 Eels.

Bind-Days. See Precaria.

Bind-weed, a Plant that bears a blew Flower, and of which there are two ſorts, the greater and the leſs.

Binding, (in Falconry) ſignifies tiring, or when a Hawk ſeizes.

Binn, a ſort of Cup-board or Hutch, to lock up Bread and other Proviſions; a Bread-basket: Alſo a Place boarded up to put Corn in.

Binnarium, (in old Latin Records) a Stews or Pond, for the feeding and keeping of Fiſh.

Binocle, (Fr.) a kind of Dioptrick Teleſcope, or double Proſpect-glaſs, with two Tubes or Conveyances, and two Holes to ſee a diſtant Object with both Eyes together.

Binomial, (Gr.) a Term in Algebra, as A binomial Quantity or Root, i. e. a Quantity or Root that conſiſts of two Names or Parts joyn'd together by the Sign + as $a + b$, or 3 + 2.

Biolychnium, a Term us'd by ſome Writers in Phyſick for the Vital Flame, natural Heat or Life of Animals, particularly that which is communicated to a Child in the Womb. See Flame Vital.

Biouac or Bihovac, (Fr. in the Art of War) an extraordinary Guard perform'd by the whole Army, when either at a Siege or lying before an Enemy, it is drawn out every Evening from the Tents or Huts; and continues all Night under Arms, before its Lines or Camp, to prevent Surprize, &c.

To Raiſe the Bivouac, is to return the Army to their Tents, or Huts, ſome time after break of Day.

Bipartite, (Lat.) divided into two Parts.

Bipartient, that divides into two Parts: In Arithmetick, a Number which divides another equally into two Parts, without a Remainder, is ſaid To be a Bipartient, with Reſpect to that Number, as 2 to 4, 3 to 6, 4 to 8, &c.

Bipartition, the Act of dividing a thing into two equal Parts.

Bipinella, (Lat.) the Herb Pimpernel, or Burnet.

Biquadrate, (i. e. double Quadrate or Square) the fourth Power in Arithmetick and Algebra, which ariſes from the Multiplication of a Square Number or Quantity by it ſelf; ſo 4 the Square of 2 being multiply'd by it ſelf produces the Biquadrate 16. See Cube-ſquare.

Biquintile, (in Aſtron.) one of the New Aſpects invented by Kepler, and ſo call'd, becauſe it conſiſts of two fifth Parts of the whole Circle, viz. 144 Degrees.

Birch, a Tree more eſpecially peculiar to Great Britain. See Betula.

Birds-Eye, an Herb of a dry binding Quality, and of ſingular Virtue againſt the Palſey.

Birds-Foot, an Herb proper for Wounds, and more eſpecially good againſt Ruptures.

Birds-Neſt, a bitter Herb diſtaſtful to the Palate, and of little or no Uſe in Phyſick.

Birds-Tongue, an Herb otherwiſe call'd Stitchwort.

Biremis, (Lat.) a Ship, or Galley that has two Ranges of Oars, or two Oars in a Seat.

Birgander, a kind of wild Gooſe.

Birlet, (old Word) a Coif, or Hood.

Birretus, (in old Latin Writers) the Cap or Coif of a Judge, or Sergeant at Law.

Birt, a Fiſh of the Turbot-kind.

Birth, a being born, Extraction, Deſcent. In Sea-Language, the obſerving of a fit Diſtance for Ships, either at Anchor, or under Sail, to keep clear, ſo as not to be in Danger of falling foul one upon another: Alſo a convenient Place to Moor a Ship in. Alſo the proper Place a-board for a Meſs to put their Cheſts, &c. is call'd the Birth of that Meſs.

Birth-wort, an Herb. See Ariſtolochia.

Birthing, a Term us'd at Sea, when the Ship's Sides are rais'd, or brought up.

Biſcaw-woune, a Place near St. Burien's in Cornwall, where nineteen Stones are ſet in a Circle, as it is ſuppoſed, in Memory of ſome Victory, or for Funeral Monuments.

Biſcotin, (Fr.) a ſort of Confection made of fine Flower, the Whites of Eggs, Powder-Sugar, Marmalet, &c.

To Biſect, (Lat. in Geom.) to cut or divide any thing, as a Line, Angle, Arch, &c. into two equal Parts or Halves.

Biſection, the biſecting, or dividing of a Quantity after ſuch a manner; the ſame as Bipartition in Arithmetick.

Biſegment, one of the Parts ſo cut, or divided.

Biſet, (Fr.) a kind of Stock-dove, or Wood-pigeon.

Biſhop, a Chief Officer in the Church, who has the Charge of a Dioceſs, ſo call'd from the Saxon Word Biſcop, and that from the Greek Epiſcopos, i. e. an Overſeer, or Obſerver.

Suffragan Biſhop, or Titular Biſhop, one that has the Name, Title and Style of a Biſhop, and is Conſecrated by the Archbiſhop of the Province, to execute ſuch Power, Juriſdiction and Authority, and to receive ſuch Profits, as are limited in his Commiſſion by the Biſhop or Dioceſan: But at preſent there are no ſuch Suffragan Biſhops in England.

Biſhops-Leaves, a ſort of Herb.

Biſhops-wort, a Plant otherwiſe call'd St. Catharine's Flower.

Biſk or Biſque, (Fr.) odds at Tennis-Play, a Stroke allow'd as gain'd to the weaker Player, to equalize both Parties. In Cookery, a kind of rich Potage, made of Quails, Capons, fat Pullets, and eſpecially of Pigeons roaſted.

Biſmare, (old Word) Curioſity.

Biſmuth or Tin-Glaſs, a ſort of imperfect Metal, us'd by Pewterers to render their Work more beautiful, and make the Metal ring the better. See Tin-Glaſs.

Biſon, (Gr.) a kind of wild Ox, great-Ey'd, and broad-fac'd, commonly call'd a Buff, or Bugle.

Biſſa, (in ancient Latin Writers) the Hind, a Beaſt of the Foreſt.

To Biſſect. See To Biſect.

Biſſextile, Leap-year, ſo call'd becauſe among the ancient Romans, the ſixth of the Calends of March, or the 24th Day of February was twice counted, which happens every fourth Year: But now the odd Day is uſually added to the laſt of February, having commonly but 28 Days; which Addition was made, that the Year may equal the Courſe of the Sun.

Biſtort or Snake-weed, an Herb with a thick, ſhort, knobbed Root, wreathed or twiſted together, effectual againſt bleeding, or ſpitting of Blood, as alſo againſt all manner of Venom: It is otherwiſe call'd Adders-wort, Engliſh Serpentary, Oiſterich and Paſtions.

Biſus or Panis Biſſus, (in ancient Latin Deeds) brown Bread, a brown Loaf.

Bittacle, (Sea-Term) a Timber-frame in the Steerage of a Ship juſt before the Steers-man, where the Compaſs is plac'd to keep the Ship in her Courſe.

Bitter, any turn of a Cable about the Tibmers call'd Bitts, that ſo it may be veer'd, or let out by little and little; and when a Ship is thus ſtopt by a Cable, ſhe is ſaid To be brought up to a Bitter.

Bitter-end of a Cable, that part which is wound about the Bitts, when the Ship lies at Anchor.

Bitter-ſweet or Woody Night-ſhade, a Plant that grows in Hedges, with blewiſh Flowers, which afterwards turn into red Berries: It is alſo call'd Morral and Felon-wort.

Bittern or Bittour, a kind of Hern, a Bird that keeps about Lakes and Fens; making a hideous Noiſe.

Bitts, (Sea-Term) two main Pieces of Timber, which ſtand Pillar-wiſe, behind the Manger, in the Loof of the Ship, and ſerve to belay, or faſten the Cable, when ſhe rides at Anchor. There are alſo Fore Topſail Sheat-bitts, to faſten the Fore Topſail-ſheats, and Fore-jear Bitts that make faſt the Fore-jear.

Bitumen, (Lat.) a ſort of Slime, clammy like Pitch, and ſmelling ſomewhat like Brimſtone: It was us'd by the Ancients for Mortar, and in ſtead of Oil in Lamps.

Bitumen Judaicum. See Aſphaltos.

Bituminous, belonging to, or partaking of the Nature of Bitumen.

Biventer. See Digaſtricus.

Biventral, that has two Bellies; as A biventral Muſcle.

Bix-wort, a kind of Herb.

Black-bird, a well known Bird, better to be eaten than kept, being much ſweeter to the Palate, when dead, and well roſted, than to the Ear, when living.

Black-book, a certain Book kept in the Exchequer-court.

Black-mail, a Link of Mail, or ſmall pieces of Metal, or Money: Alſo Money, Corn, Cattel, or ſuch like Conſideration given by poor People in the Northern Parts of England, to the moſt powerful Perſons thereabouts, for a Protection againſt Thieves and Robbers.

Blackmoor Foreſt. See White-hart Silver.

Black-rod, the Uſher belonging to the Order of the Garter, ſo call'd from the black Rod, with a gilt Lion on the top, which he bears in his Hand: He alſo attends on the Queen's Chamber, and the Lord's Houſe in Parliament; and all Noble-men call'd in queſtion for any Crime, are firſt committed to his Charge.

Black-tail, a kind of Fiſh.

Black-vine, a ſort of Herb.

Bladarius, (in old Latin Records) a Corn-chandler, or Meal-monger.

Bladder, a skinny Subſtance which ſerves to receive the Urine of Living-Creatures, to keep it, and to diſcharge it from time to time.

Bladder-Nut, a Plant that bears Leaves like Elder-flowers, and after them greeniſh Bladders, containing one ſmall Nut, that ſends forth Suckers, by which it is encreas'd.

Blade, (among Herbaliſts) the firſt Sprout of a Plant that comes out of the Ground, and retains its Name, as long as it is eaſie to be cropped; as in Corn, Graſs, Onions, Leeks, &c.

Bladier, (old Law-word) an Ingroſſer of Corn, or Grain.

Blæſus, (Gr.) a bandy-legged Perſon, or one whoſe Back-bone is bended; alſo one that has an Impediment in his Speech, that ſtammers, or liſps.

Blain, an angry Puſh, ſomewhat like the Small-pox, but redder, and much more painful, being one of the Symptoms of the Plague: Alſo a Diſtemper in Cattel, a certain Bladder full of Wind and Water, which riſes out of the Root of the Tongue, and growing big will at laſt ſtop the Beaſt's Wind.

Blanch, a proper Name of Women.

To Blanch, to whiten, to take off the Skins of Almonds, Beans, Seeds, &c. Alſo to colour, or ſet off; as They Blanch'd their Anſwer in handſome Words.

Blanchers, (in the Mint) Work-men employ'd to anneal, boil, and cleanſe the Money.

Blanc-manger, (Fr. in Cookery) a kind of Jelly made of Calves-feet, and other Ingredients with pounded Almonds.

To Blandiſh, to flatter, or ſooth up with fair Speeches.

Blandiſhments, alluring Careſſes; Wheedles.

Blank, pale and won, that is out of Countenance.

A Blank, a void ſpace in Writing: Alſo a kind of Coin worth eight Pence, ſtampt by K. Henry V, in the Parts of France ſubject to England: Alſo a Term us'd in the Mint, for a Piece ready for Coining.

Blankets, the Coverlets of a Bed: Alſo Woollen Cloaths that Printers uſe at the Preſs, to make the Letters appear fair and even.

Blanquet, (Fr.) a Pear, of which there are three ſorts, viz. the great, leſſer, and long-tailed.

Blapſigonia, a Diſeaſe in Bees, when they do not breed, or their young ones miſcarry.

Blaptiſecula, the Cyanus, or Blew-bottle, a Flower, ſo call'd, becauſe it turns the edge of the Mower's Scith.

To Blare, to bellow like a Cow; alſo to ſweal, or melt away, as a Candle ſometimes does.

Blas, a Word apply'd by Van Helmont, to ſignifie the Motion of the Stars, &c.

Blaſe, a proper Name of Men.

To Blaſpheme, (Gr.) to curſe, to revile, to ſpeak evil of God, or Holy Things.

Blaſphemous or Blaſphematory, belonging to, or full of Blaſphemy.

Blaſphemy, an uttering of reproachful Words, that tend to the Diſhonour of God, &c. Vile Language.

Blaſt, a puff of Wind; alſo Dammage happening to Corn, Trees, &c.

To Blaſt, to ſpoil the Fruits of the Earth; to ſpoil, or marr any thing; to diſappoint a Deſign, or Undertaking; to wound, or ruine one's Reputation. Corn is ſaid To be blaſted, when poor and thin in the Ear, with little Flower in it.

Blaſtings, Winds and Froſts that immediately ſucceed Rain, and are moſt deſtructive to Fruits, &c.

Blatant, (old Word) barking, bawling, babbling; as a A blatant Writer.

Blatta, (Lat.) the Moth-fly, an Inſect produc'd out of the Meal-worm. Blatta Byzantia, a kind of Shell-fiſh of a ſweet Scent, and brown Colour.

Blattaria, the Herb Moth-mullein, ſo call'd, becauſe it breeds Moths.

Blay. See Bleak.

To Blaze or Blaze forth, to flaſh; 'tis ſaid of Fire, when it ſhoots out an extraordinary Flame: In a Figurative Senſe, to publiſh, to ſet or ſpread abroad a Report.

Blazon, the Diſplay of a Coat of Arms.

To Blazon, to Paint ſuch a Coat, to expreſs the ſeveral Parts of it in their proper Colours and Metals: Alſo to deſcribe, or ſet forth one's Vertues, or good Qualities.

Blazonry, the Art of Heraldry.

To Bleach, to whiten, to dry in the Sun.

Bleak, cold, pale, or wan.

A Bleak or Blay, a ſmall, eager, freſh-water Fiſh.

Blechnon, (Gr.) a kind of Fern, or Brake.

Blechon, wild Penny-royal; an Herb.

Blemiſh, a Stain, or Spot; a Fault, a Diſgrace, or Reproach: Alſo a Term in Hunting, when the Hounds, or Beagles finding where the Chace has been, only make a Proffer and return.

To Blemiſh, to ſtain, or ſpot; to wound one's Reputation, or good Name.

Blench, (Scotch Law-word) as To hold Lands in Blench, i. e. by payment of a Sugar-loaf, a Beaver-hat, a couple of Capons, a Roſe, or ſuch like, if demanded.

To Blend, to mix, or mingle together.

Blend-water, a Diſtemper that happens to black Cattel.

Blenna, (Gr.) thick Snot which comes from the Brain, and diſtills thro' the ſmall Holes of the Noſtrils, or Palate.

Blennus, a kind of Sea-fiſh, about the bigneſs of a Gudgeon, which may be call'd the Onion-fiſh.

Blent, (old Word) ſtayed, ceaſed, turned back.

Blepharo, (Gr.) one that has great Brows, or Eye-lids; Beetle-browed.

Blepharon, an Eye-lid.

Blepharoxyſtum, an Inſtrument made uſe of to pull Hairs out of the Eye-lids.

Bleta, (in old Latin Records) Pete, or Earth digged up and dried for Fuel.

Blew-bottle, a Weed that grows much in Corn-fields, and is counted very good for Wounds.

Blew-mantle, a Title peculiar to one of the Purſevants, or Marſhals at Arms.

Blica, (Lat.) the Blay, or Bleak, a River-fiſh.

Blight, an Accident happening to Corn and Fruit-trees, which makes them look, as if they were blaſted. See Mildew.

Blind Alembick. See Pelican.

Blinds, (Fr. in Fortif.) bundles of Oſiers bound at both ends, and ſet up between Stakes: Alſo pieces of Wood, or Branches of Trees laid a-croſs upon the Trenches, to bear the Bavins, or Hurdles laden with Earth, which ſerve to cover them: Alſo ſometimes Planks ſet up, or Canvas ſtretch'd to take away the ſight of the Enemy: Blinds are alſo the ſame with Orillons; which See.

Blind Cancer. See Cancer Primitive.

Blind-Nettle, a kind of Herb.

Blinkard, one that is blink-eyed, that winks, or twinkles with his Eyes.

Blinks, (a Term in Hunting) Boughs rent from Trees, and caſt over-thwart the Way where a Deer is likely to paſs, thereby to hinder his Courſe.

Bliss, Happineſs.

To Bliſſom or Tup, to leap as a Ram does upon the Ewe.

Blit or Blits, a kind of Beet, an Herb that ſcarce has any Taſte or Scent.

Blite, a ſort of Flower.

Blith, an old Britiſh Word, that ſignifies yielding Milk, profitable: But Blith, or Blithſome, is now taken for pleaſant, jocund, or merry.

Blitum, (Lat.) the Herb Blit that is of a cooling Quality.

Blive or Believe, (old Word) readily, faſt.

Block, the Stem, or Stump of a Tree: On Board a Ship, Blocks are a ſort of Wooden-pullies, having Shivers in them, i. e. little Wheels fixt with a Cock and a Pin, whereon go the Running-ropes.

Blockade or Blocus, (in the Art of War) a kind of Siege, when Armed Troops are poſted on all the Avenues, or Paſſages which lead to the Place, ſo that no Supplies, or Proviſions can be convey'd into it; the Deſign being to ſtarve it out, and not take it by regular Attacks.

To Blockade or Block up a Place, is to ſhut up all the Ways and Paſſages, as alſo to ſtop all Intelligence that may be ſent into, or out of the Town, or Fort, ſo that it can receive no Relief.

Blomary, the firſt Forge in an Iron-mill, thro' which the Metal paſſes after it is melted out of the Mine.

Blood. See Bloud.

Bloom, a Bloſſom, or Flower of a Tree, &c. Alſo a Term of Art us'd in the Iron-works, when the Metal is wrought to a four-ſquare Maſs two Foot long.

To Bloom, to put forth Bloſſoms, to be in Bloſſom, to flouriſh.

To Blote, to ſwell: Alſo to ſet a ſmoaking, or drying by the Fire; as Bloted Herrings, or other Fiſh, i. e. ſuch as are not thoroughly dry'd.

Bloud, one of the principal Humours of the Body, which paſſes thro' the Arteries and Veins for its Nouriſhment. Alſo a Diſeaſe in the Backs of Cattel, which will make a Beaſt go as if he drew his Head aſide, or after him.

Bloud-hounds, a ſort of Hunting-dogs, ſo call'd, by reaſon of their tranſcendently exquiſite Scent; for if thro' Caſualty their Game be dead, or if wounded, and eſcapes the Huntſman's Hands, or if kill'd, and never ſo clearly taken away, yet they'll diſcover and find means to come at it.

Bloud-running Itch, a Diſeaſe in a Horſes, proceeding from an Inflammation of the Bloud, overheated by hard Riding, or other great Labour; ſo that it gets between the Skin and the Fleſh, and makes the Beaſt ſcrub and bite himſelf; which if let alone too long, will turn to a grievous Mange, and is very infectious.

Bloud-ſpavin, a ſoft Swelling that grows thro' the Hoof of an Horſe, and is commonly full of Bloud: It is bigger on the in-ſide than on the out-ſide, being fed by the Maſter-vein, and runs down to the Paſtern.

Bloud-ſtone, a certain reddiſh Stone, very effectual for the ſtopping of Bloud.

Bloud-ſtrange, a ſort of Herb.

Bloud-wit, (in ancient Charters) an Amerciament, or Cuſtomary Fine, paid as a Compoſition and Atonement for the Shedding, or drawing of Bloud; ſo that whoever had it given him in his Charter, had the Penalty due for Bloud-ſhed granted him.

Bloud-wort, a Sallet-herb, pleaſant to the Taſte, and wholeſome.

Blooding, a Blood-pudding.

Bloudy, dawb'd, or beſmear'd with Bloud; Bloud-thirſty, cruel.

Bloudy-hand, (a Term in the Foreſt-law) the taking of a Treſpaſſer againſt Veniſon, with his Hands, or other Parts Bloudy, by which Circumſtance he is judg'd to have kill'd a Deer, tho' he be not found Chaſing or Hunting.

Blower, a ſort of Whale that ſpouts up a great deal of Water.

Blowing-ſnake, a kind of Viper in Virginia, ſo call'd, becauſe it blows and ſwells the Head very much before it gives a Bite, which is generally accompany'd with fatal Conſequences.

Blown, Boiling of Sugar, (among Confectioners) is when after having beat the ſides of the Copper-pan, in which Sugar has been boil'd for a conſiderable time, with the Skimmer, and having blown thro' the Holes of it from one Side to the other; certain Sparks, as it were, or ſmall Bubbles fly out, which ſhew that the Sugar is come to that degree of boiling.

Blowze, a fat, red-fac'd, bloted Wench.

Blubber, a kind of Sea-fiſh: Alſo Whale-oil, or Fat, commonly ſo call'd before it is boil'd.

To Bluff, to Blind-fold, or Hood-wink.

Bluff-headed, (among Sea-men) a Ship is ſaid To be Bluff-headed, when ſhe has but a ſmall Rake forward on, and is built with her Stern too ſtraight up.

Blunder, a Miſtake, Fault, or Over-ſight.

Blunderbuſs, a ſhort Braſs-gun of a large Bore, that will carry many Musket, or Piſtol-bullets, proper to do Execution in a Crowd, or to make good a narrow Paſſage.

Blunket, a ſort of light-blew Colour.

To Bluſter, to make a Noiſe as a boiſterous Wind does, to keep great a-doe, or heavy Noiſe; to Storm, or Rage.

To Blyn, (old Word) to deſiſt, to ceaſe, or leave off.

Boa. See Boas.

Boanerges, (Heb. Sons of Thunder) a Title given by our Bleſſed Lord and Saviour to the Apoſtles, James and John, the Sons of Zebedee.

Board, a Plank, a Table: Among Sea-men, it is variouſly us'd; as To go a-board, i. e. to go into a Ship. To be within the Ship, is ſaid To be within board, and to be without the Ship, is To be without board: When any thing is thrown into the Sea, they ſay, It is heaved over-board; and when it ſlips down by the Ship's Side, 'tis ſaid To ſlip by the board.

Board and Board, is when two Ships lye cloſe together, Side by Side.

To Make a Board, or To board it up to a Place, to turn the Ship up to the Windward, ſometimes on one Tack, and ſometimes on another: And when a Ship at one Tack, or Turning, has advanc'd much to the Windward, ſhe is ſaid To make a good Board.

To Board, to cover with Boards; alſo to entertain at Table, or to be a Boarder: In Sea-language, to draw cloſe to a Ship during a Fight, in order to enter Men on any part of her.

Boarder, one that Diets with another, or is entertained at his Table, at a certain Rate agreed upon.

Boas or Boa, (Gr.) a kind of Serpent that follows Herds of Cattel, and ſucks the Dugs of Cows; ſometimes ſo large, that in the Emperour Claudius's time, a young Child was found in its Belly: Alſo a Diſeaſe, wherein red Pimples ariſe in the Fleſh; the Meazles, or Small-pox.

Boat, a well known Veſſel, of which there are ſeveral ſorts belonging to a Ship, as the Long-boat, the Skiff, or Shallop, the Barge, &c. Which ſee in thoſe Words.

To Fend the Boat, (in Sea-language) is to keep her from beating againſt the Rocks, Shore, or Ship's Sides. To Free the Boat, is to caſt Water out of her. To Man the Boat, is to put Men into her, and theſe Men are call'd the Boat's Gang.

To Swift the Boat, to make faſt a Rope by the Gun-wale, round about the Boat, and to faſten the Boat-rope thereto; by which means the Boat is well ſtrengthen'd to endure her Tow. To Trim the Boat, to keep her ſtraight. To Wind the Boat, to turn the Boat's Head about.

Boat-rope or Gift-rope, that Rope by which the Ship tows her Boat at the Stern.

Boat-ſwain or Boſon, an Officer in a Ship, who takes into his Charge all the Ropes that belong to the Rigging, with the Cables, Anchors, Sails, &c. He alſo takes care of the Long-boat with its Furniture, and ſteers her either by himſelf, or his Mate: He calls up the Men to perform their ſeveral Watches, Works, and Duties, keeps them at Peace one with another, and ſees all Offenders puniſh'd according to their Sentence.

Bob-tail, (in Archery) the Steel of a Shaft, or Arrow that is ſmall-breaſted, and big towards the Head: It is otherwiſe call'd Capon-faſhion, and Ruſh-grown.

Bobbins, little round Inſtruments, us'd in the making of Bone-lace.

Bocardo, the fifth Mood of the third Figure in Logick, in which the middle-moſt Propoſition is an Univerſal Affirmative, the firſt and laſt particular Negatives.

Boccaſine, fine Buckram, a ſort of Cloth.

Bochia, (among ſome Chymiſts) a Glaſs-veſſel with a great Belly like a Cucurbite.

Bochord, (Sax. q. d. Book-hoard) a Place where Books, Writings, or Deeds are kept.

Bockerel or Bockeret, (in Falconry) one of the kinds of long-winged Hawks.

Bocland, (Sax. qu. Book-land) Land held by Charter, or Inſtrument in Writing, and not to be made over to others, either by Gift, or Sale, but left entire to the next Heir; an Hereditary Eſtate among the Saxon Thanes, or Noble-men.

To Bode or Bood, (old Word) to declare, or ſhew: It is now us'd for to foretel; as This bodes no Good.

Bodkin-work. See Purfle.

Bodleian Library, a Library founded at Oxford by Sir Thomas Bodley; and famous throughout Europe, for its prodigious Stock of Books, both Printed and Manuſcript.

Body, a Compound of Matter and Form, which among Naturaliſts is defined To be a Subſtance impenetrably extended, or that which is extended, ſolid and moveable. Alſo a principal part of certain things, as the Body of a Coach, Fort, &c. Alſo a Society, or Company of People, a whole Army, of a certain number of Soldiers: Among Chymiſts, that Veſſel which holds the Matter in Diſtilling the Spirit of Vegetables, and which is otherwiſe call'd a Cucurbite: In Gunnery, it is the Subſtance, or whole Maſs of Metal in a piece of Ordinance.

In Geometry, Body is a Magnitude that has three Dimenſions, viz. Length, Breadth, and Thickneſs, and is either Regular, or Irregular.

Regular Body, is that which has all the Angles and Sides, as alſo all the Planes that compoſe its Surface like an equal; of which there are only five ſorts, viz. The Dodecaedron, Hexaedron, Icoſaedron, Octaedron, and Tetraedron; which See in their proper Places.

Irregular Body, a Solid that is not bounded by equal, and like Surfaces.

In Chymiſtry, Mixt Bodies, are thoſe things that naturally grow and encreaſe; as Metals, Minerals, Plants and Living-creatures.

Bog, a Marſhy Ground full of Water, or Mud.

To Boggle, to waver, to be uncertain what to do; to Scruple, or make Scruples.

Bohemia, a large Country in Europe, which is part of Germany.

Bohemians, the Natives, or Inhabitants of Bohemia: Alſo a ſort of People there like our Gipſies, idle Vagabonds that ſtroll about the Country, and live by Filching, and pretended telling of Fortunes.

Boiæ, (Lat.) Gives, Bands about the Neck, made of Wood, or Iron like a Yoke: It is alſo taken in our old Records, for Chains, or Fetters.

Boiar, a great Officer of State among the Muſcovites and Perſians.

Boicininga, the Rattle-ſnake, a Serpent in America, whoſe Bite is deadly, unleſs ſpeedily remedy'd.

Boil or Bile, a kind of Swelling, or Sore.

Boillary or Bullary of Salt, a Salt-houſe, Salt-pit, or other Place where Salt is boil'd.

Boiſterous, ſtormy, vehement, fierce, unruly.

Boiſtous, (old Word) halting, lame, lowly.

Bolbonach, a Plant, otherwiſe call'd Satten-flower.

Bolbos. See Bulbus.

Bole or Boal, (Country-word) the main Body, or Stock of a Tree.

Bole Armoniack. See Bolus Armena.

Boletus, (Lat.) a Muſhroom, the richeſt, and beſt ſort.

Boling. See Bowling.

Bolis, (Gr.) a Javelin, or Dart; a Plummet of Lead, with a Line let down into the Water, to ſound the depth of it. Alſo a fiery Meteor appearing in the Air like a Dart.

Bolonia Sauſages. See Sauſages.

Bolonian Stone, a gray Stone of the bigneſs of a large Walnut, which being broken has a kind of Cryſtal, or Sparry Talk within it, and is found about Bolonia a City of Italy, whence it has its Name: This Stone, when calcin'd or burnt in a Chymical Reverberatory Furnace, will ſhine in the dark like a lighted Coal.

Boll, a round Stalk, or Stem, as A Boll of Flax; alſo the Seed-pods of Poppey.

Bollen, (old Word) ſwollen, or ſwelled.

Bollimong or Boll-mong, Buck-wheat, a kind of Grain: Alſo a Medley of ſeveral ſorts of Grain together, otherwiſe call'd Maſlin, or Mong-corn.

Bolt, an Iron-pin to faſten a Door. In ſome old Records, a long narrow piece of Stuff.

Bolt of Canvas, the quantity of 28 Ells.

Bolts, a ſort of Herb.

Bolts of a Carriage for great Guns, are Rings, to which the Breeches and Tackles of the Ordinance are faſten'd.

In Sea-affairs, Bolts are Iron-pins of ſeveral ſorts, which belong to the Rigging of a Ship; as Clench-bolts, Drive-bolts, Fender-bolts, Fore-bolts, Rag-bolts, Ring-bolts and Set-bolts; all which, See under thoſe Articles.

Bolt-boat, a Boat that can well endure a rough Sea.

Bolt-head. See Matraſs.

Bolt-ropes, (in a Ship) the Ropes wherein the Sails are ſow'd, or made faſt.

Bolt-ſprit or Bow-ſprit, that Maſt which ſtands foremoſt in the Head of a Ship, ſtooping and pointing forwards; being of the ſame thickneſs and length with the Fore-maſt.

Bolt-ſprit Ladders. See Ladders.

To Bolt, to faſten with a Bolt: In Husbandry, to ſift Meal, or Flower through a Bag to make it finer. Among Hunters, a Coney is ſaid To be bolted, when ſhe is firſt rais'd, or ſtarted.

Bolter, a Bolting-bag, to ſift Flower in.

Bolting, the barring of a Door; a ſifting of Meal, &c. Alſo a Term of Art us'd in Gray's-Inn, which ſignifies a kind of Exerciſe, or Arguing of Caſes among the Students.

Bolting-hutch or Bunting-hutch, a Cheſt to bolt, or ſift Meal in.

Bolus, (Gr.) a clod of Earth, a Maſs, or lump of Metal, &c. a Gobbet, a Mouthful, or Bit. In a Mineral Senſe, a kind of Earth, which Dr. Grew ſuppoſes to be a Bed, as it were the Materia Prima, or firſt Matter of Stones and Metals. Alſo a Medicine made up ſomewhat thicker than Honey, the quantity for one Doſe, being as much as may be conveniently taken as a Mouthful on the point of a Knife.

Bolus Armena or Bole Armoniack, a kind of Earth, or ſoft crumbling Stone, found in Armenia, and elſewhere, which Painters make uſe of for a pale, red Colour: It is alſo much us'd in Phyſick, with other Ingredients.

Bomb, a Shell, or hollow Ball of caſt Iron, charged with whole Powder, Nails, pieces of Iron, &c. And ſhot out of a Mortar-piece into Beſieged Towns, to do Execution, by Firing a Magazine, or any thing that is near it, or by the pieces of the Shell flying about. See Granadoe.

Bomb-cheſt, a Wooden Cheſt, fill'd with Gunpowder and ſeveral Bombs, which is ſet under Ground, to blow it up into the Air, with thoſe that ſtand on it. Theſe Bombs are often us'd to drive Enemies from a Poſt they lately ſeiz'd, or which they are about to take Poſſeſſion of. See Caiſſon.

Bombard, a kind of great Gun.

To Bombard or Bomb, to ſhoot Bombs into a Place, for annoying the Inhabitants, or Garriſon.

Bombaſine, a kind of Stuff.

Bombaſt, the Cotton-plant growing in Aſia, the Seed of which is like the Trettles, or Drug of a Rabbet, and of great uſe in Phyſick; alſo a ſort of Cotton, or Fuſtian: Whence it is Figuratively taken for affected Language, Trumpery, or Paltry Stuff.

To Bombaſt, to ſtuff with Bombaſt, to beat, or bang one ſoundly.

Bombaſtick, belonging to Bombaſt, high-flown, ſwelling, or ſwollen; as A Bombaſtick Style.

Bombus, (Gr.) the humming of Bees, a Buzz; the hoarſe Sound, or Blur of a Trumpet.

Bombylis, the Worm, or Grub of which comes the Silk-worm; alſo a kind of humming Bee.

Bombylius, the great Bee, commonly call'd the humble, or bumble Bee. Alſo a Pot with a narrow Mouth that bubbles whilſt one is drinking.

Bombyx, the Silk-worm, an Inſect, or the Silk-yarn ſpun by it; alſo the fineſt, or inmoſt part of Cotton.

Bon-Chretien,, (Fr. i. e. good Chriſtian) the Name of a large French Pear of a Pound-Weight, now grown common amongſt us, yet much eſteem'd for its pleaſant Taſte and Wholſomeneſs.

Bona, (Lat.) a proper Name of Women, ſignifying Good.

Bona fide, (i. e. with a good Faith) an Expreſſion us'd, when a thing is done really, without Fraud, or Deceit.

Bona Geſtura, (in old Records) good A-bearing, or good Behaviour.

Bona Notabilia, (Law-term) ſuch Goods as a Man dying has in another Dioceſs, at ſome diſtance from that wherein he dies, amounting at leaſt to the value of five Pounds; in which Caſe, his Will muſt be prov'd before, or the Adminiſtration is to be granted by the Archbiſhop of the Province.

Bona Patria or Aſſiſa bonæ Patriæ, (in Common Law) the chooſing of twelve, or more Men out of the Country to paſs upon an Aſſize, who are call'd Juratores, or Jurors.

Bonaght or Bonaghty, a Tax in Ireland, impoſed at the Will of the Lord of the Manour.

Bonana-tree, a Tree that grows in moſt of the Caribbee-Iſlands in America, five or ſix yards high, having Leaves a yard and half long, and half a yard broad: The Fruit of it is very good and Medicinal.

Bonaſus, (Gr.) a wild Beaſt like a Bull, with the Main of a Horſe, which when hunted ſaves himſelf by his Ordure, thrown out in that abundance, and ſo noiſome, that the Hunters are forc'd to leave off the Purſuit.

Bonaventure Miſſen, (Sea-term) a ſecond Miſſen-maſt, which is added in ſome great Ships, and ſtands next the Poop.

Bond-men, (in Common Law) thoſe that bound themſelves by Covenants to ſerve their Lord.

Bond-ſocome. See Socome.

Bona, is defined by Anatomiſts to be a Similar Part, dry, hard, inflexible and void of Senſe, which affords Support and Form to the whole Body.

Among Sea-men, a Ship is ſaid To carry a Bone in her Mouth, when ſhe makes the Water foam before her in Sailing.

Bone-breaker, a kind of Eagle. See Oſſifraga.

Bone-ſpavin, a Diſeaſe in Horſes, being a great Cruſt as hard as a Bone, that grows on the in-ſide of the Hoof, or on the Heels, and often cauſes Lameneſs.

Bongrace, (Fr.) a kind of Screen which Children wear on their Foreheads in the Summer-time, to keep them from being tanned by the Heat of the Sun. Alſo a Frame of old Ropes, or Junks of Cables, uſually laid out at the Bows, Stems, and Sides of Ships that Sail into cold Latitudes, to keep them from being dammaged by the great Flakes of Ice that float about in thoſe Seas.

Bonhommes, (i. e. good Men) an Order of Monks Founded by Francis de Paula, and otherwiſe call'd Friers Minims, or Minorites.

Boniface, (Lat. q. d. Well-doer) a proper Name of ſeveral Popes, and other eminent Men.

Bonis non amovendis, a Writ directed to the Sheriffs of London, &c. To charge them that one condemn'd by Judgment in a Nation, and proſecuting a Writ of Errour, be not ſuffer'd to remove his Goods, till the Errour be try'd.

Bonito, a kind of Fiſh.

Bonnet, (Fr.) a ſort of Cap. In Sea-language, a ſmall Sail ſet on upon the Courſes, or on the Fore-ſail and Main-ſail, when they are too narrow, or ſhallow to Cloath the Maſt; as The Ship has her Courſe and Bonnet abroad, i. e. ſhe has that piece of Sail added to her Courſe, which before ſhe had not: So that when the Sea-men are to faſten it on, they ſay, Lace on the Bonnet, and when it is to be taken away, Shake off the Bonnet.

In Fortification, Bonnet is a certain Work rais'd beyond the Counterſcarp, having two Faces that form a Saliant Angle, and as it were a ſmall Ravelin without a Trench: But it has a Parapet, or Breaſt-work three Foot high, and is encompaſs'd with a double Row of Palliſadoes.

Bonnet a Preſtre, or The Prieſt's Cap, is an Out-work, which at the Head has three Saliant Angles, and two Inwards: It differs from the double Tenaille only in this reſpect, that its Sides, inſtead of being parallel, are made like a Swallow's Tail, that is, narrowing, or drawing cloſe at the Gorge, or Neck, and opening at the Head.

Bonny, genteel, ſpruce, fine.

Bononienſis Lapis. See Bolonian Stone.

Bonus Henricus, (Lat. i. e. good Henry) an Herb call'd Engliſh Mercury, excellent for cleanſing and healing foul Ulcers.

Book of Rates, a ſmall Book eſtabliſh'd by Parliament, ſhewing at what Value Goods that pay Poundage, ſhall be reckon'd at the Cuſtom-Houſe.

Boolie, (old Word) beloved.

Boom, (Dutch) a Tree. Among Sea-men, a long Pole to ſpread out the Clew, or Corner of the Studding-ſail, or other Sails: Alſo the Bar of a Haven; or a Pole with Buſhes, or Baskets on the top, ſet out as a Mark, directing how to ſteer into a Channel.

Booming, A Ship is ſaid to come Booming, when ſhe makes all the Sail ſhe can. Boon, Favour, Requeſt, good Turn.

Boon-Days, See Bederepe.

Boops, (Gr.) the Ox-ey'd Cackerel; a Sea-Fiſh.

Boor, a Country-Clown.

Booriſh, clowniſh, homely, rude.

Booſe, a Word us'd in ſome Places for an Ox-ſtall, or Cow-ſtall.

Boot, (old Word) Succour, Help, Aid: It is now taken for Advantage or Profit; as You ſhall have this to boot, it is to no Boot, &c.

Boot of Bale, (old Expreſſion) eaſe of Sorrow.

Boots, a Plant otherwiſe call'd Marſh-Marygolds.

To Boot-hale, (North-Country Word) to go plundering about, to pillage, to rob.

Boot-haler, a free Booter, or Robber.

Boot-tree or Boot-laſt, two pieces of Wood, ſhap'd like a Leg, and driven into Boots to ſtretch, or widen them.

Bootes, (Gr. i. e. the Ox-driver) the Name of a Northern Conſtellation, that contains 34 fixed Stars: It is otherwiſe call'd Arctophylax, i. e. the Bear-keeper, and in Engliſh, Charles-Wain.

Booting, a ſort of Rack us'd in Scotland, by putting an Iron-bar on an Offender's Leg, and driving an Iron-peg upon his Shin-bone.

Booting-Corn or Boting-Corn, certain Rent-corn, anciently ſo call'd, perhaps becauſe the Tenants paid it by way of Bote, or Recompence to the Lord, for his making them Leaſes.

Bootleſs, unprofitable, vain.

Booty, (Fr.) Prey, Spoil, Pillage, Prize.

Booz, (Heb. in Strength) the Husband of Ruth, and great Grand-father of King David.

Borachio, (Span.) a Wine-Veſſel made of a Pig's Skin, the Hair inwards, or of Leather dreſs'd with Roſin and Pitch.

Borago, (Lat.) Borage, a common, but much eſteemed Garden-Herb; good to comfort the Heart, and drive away Melancholy.

Borax or Borace, a hard ſhining Mineral like green Earth, which Goldſmiths uſe in the melting and ſoldering of Gold.

Borborygmus, (Gr.) a rumbling, or croaking of the Guts.

Bord-halfpenny, a Duty paid in Fairs and Markets, for ſetting up Boards, Tables and Stalls, for the ſelling of Wares.

Borda, (in old Lat. Records) a Board, or Plank.

Bordagium, Bordage, the Tenure, or manner of holding Bordlands; which See.

Bordarii, Tenants that poſſeſs part of ſuch Lands.

Bordel, (Sax.) at firſt ſignify'd any ſmall Cottage, ſome of which growing infamous by being made common Ale-houſes and Harbours for Strumpets; the Word Bordel, and by Tranſpoſition Brodle, or Brothel, was afterwards taken for a Stews, or Bawdy-houſe, where lewd Women proſtitute their Bodies for Gain.

Border, the End, or Edge of a Garment, Country, &c. Alſo a kind of Ornament in Printing: Among Floriſts, Borders are taken for ſuch Leaves as ſtand about the middle thrum of a Flower.

To Border a Paſty, is to cut it up; a Term in the Art of Carving at Table.

Borderer, one that lives on the Borders, or utmoſt Bounds of a Country.

Bordlands, (Sax. Law-Term) the Demeans, or Eſtate, which the Lords of Manours keep in their Hands, for the Maintenance of their Board, or Table. See Table-Rents.

Bordlode, the quantity of Food, or Proviſion, which the Bordarii, or Bordmen paid for their Bordlands.

Bordure, (Fr.) Border, Edge; alſo a Frame for a Looking-glaſs, Picture, &c. In Heraldry, an ancient difference in a Coat of Arms, by which ſeveral Families of the ſame Name, or Perſons bearing the ſame Coat, are diſtinguiſh'd one from another: It is a Tract, or Compaſs of one Metal, Colour, or Furr, cut off from within the Eſcutcheon all round it, and taking up about a fifth part of the Field; as He bears Gules a Bordure Or.

Bordures, are ſometimes Checky, Counter-Compony, Engrailed, Gobonated, Indented, Invected, Varry, &c. which See, under thoſe Words.

Bore, (in Gunnery) the hollow on the in-ſide of a piece of Ordinance.

Bore-tree, a ſort of Shrub.

Boree, a kind of French Dance.

Boreal, (Gr.) belonging to the North, Northern.

Boreal Signs, the ſix Northern Signs of the Zodiack, viz. Aries, Taurus, Gemini, Cancer, Leo and Virgo ſo call'd, becauſe they are plac'd on the North Side of the Equator.

Boreas, the North Wind, a cold freezing Wind.

Borith, an Herb which Fullers make Uſe of for taking Spots out of Cloaths.

To Born, (old Word) to burniſh.

Borow or Borough, a Corporate Town that is not a City, a large Village, Such as ſend Burgeſſes to Parliament.

Borow-Maſter or Burgo-Maſter, the Mayor, Bailiff, or Chief Governour of ſuch a Town.

Borow-head, the chief Man of the Borough, who was anciently choſen by the reſt, to ſpeak and act in their behalf. See Head-borough.

Borow-holder, Borſholder or Borow-elder, the ſame Officer with the Borow-head, or Head-borough.

Borow-Engliſh, (Law-term) a cuſtomary deſcent of Lands, or Tenements in ſome Places to the youngeſt Son, or if the Owner have no Iſſue to the younger Brother; which Cuſtom is more eſpecially obſerv'd at Stamford in Lincoln-ſhire.

Borozail, a Diſeaſe in Ethiopia like the French Pox.

Borrel, (old word) clowniſh, rude; alſo an Attire, or Dreſs for the Head.

Borrow, (old Word) a Surety, or Pledge.

Boryptes, (Gr.) a Gem, or Jewel of a black Colour, with red and white Spots.

Bos, (Lat.) an Ox, Bull, or Cow; any ſort of Neat-cattel.

Boſcage, a Place ſet with Trees, a Grove, or Thicket: In the Art of Painting, a Picture that repreſents much Wood and Trees: In a Law-ſenſe, Maſt, or ſuch Suſtenance, as Woods and Trees yield to Cattel.

Boſcas, (Gr.) a Water-fowl like a Duck; the Whinder, Widgeon, or Pochard.

Boſcobel, (Ital. i. e. fair Wood) a Place noted for the Retreat of K. Charles II. after Worceſter-Fight.

Boſcus, and old Latin Law-word for all manner of Wood.

Boſon or Boſen. See Boat-ſwain.

Boſphorus or Boſporus, (Gr. q. d. Ox-paſſage) a Term in Geography, for a Straight or narrow Neck of the Sea that ſeparates two Continents; by which means a Gulph and a Sea, or two Seas have a Communication one with another; as the Thracian Boſphorus, now call'd the Straights of Conſtantinople, and another more Northward, call'd Boſphorus Cimmerius.

Boſs, a Stud, or Knob, a Bunch.

Boſtrychites, (Gr.) a Gem, or Jewel, like a lock or buſh of a Woman's Hair.

Bota, (in old Latin Records) a Boot, or Shooe, ſuch as is worn by Monks.

Botanical, (Gr.) belonging to Plants, or Herbs.

Botanicks or Botany, the Science of Simples, which ſhews how to diſtinguiſh the ſeveral kinds of Plants, as Trees, Shrubs, Herbs, &c. one from another, and which gives juſt Deſcriptions of them: It may alſo be taken for that part of the Art of Phyſick, which deſcribes and reckons up the ſeveral Virtues of Plants.

Botaniſt, an Herbaliſt, one well vers'd in the Knowledge of all ſorts of Plants, Herbs, &c.

Botargo, an Italian Sauſage made of Eggs, and the Blood of the Sea-mullet.

Botch, a piece of Stuff ſow'd to old Cloaths; alſo a pocky Ulcer, or Sore, or a Sore in the Groin of a Horſe.

Bote, (Sax.) Compenſation, Recompence, or Amends; whence the Terms Hedge-bote, Houſe-bote, Man-bote, &c. which See.

Boteſcarl, (Sax.) the ſame as Boat-ſwain.

Botha, (in ancient Latin Deeds) a Booth, or Tent ſet up in Fairs, or Markets.

Bothagium, Boothage, certain cuſtomary Duties, paid to the Lord of the Manour, for the pitching, or ſtanding of ſuch Booths.

Bothena, a Barony, Lordſhip, or Sheriffwick, Domini Bothenæ, Lords of the Barony, Manour, &c.

Bothor, (Arab.) certain Pimples in the Face which ſpread about, but ſoon come to run with Matter and diſappear: Alſo in general, any Pimples in the Face, Lungs, or other Parts; the Small-pox, or Meazles.

Bothrion, the Name of a kind of hollow, narrow and hard Ulcer in the Eyes.

Botiler or Butler of the King, an Officer that provides the King's Wines.

Botryo, (Gr.) a bunch of Grapes preſerved.

Botrys, a cluſter, or bunch of Grapes. Alſo the Herb call'd Oak of Jeruſalem, good for an Ulcer of the Lungs.

Bottom, the ground of any thing; alſo an old Word for a Bloſſom, or Bud.

Bottomry, Bottomary, or Bottomage, is when the Maſter of a Ship borrows Money upon the Bottom or Keel of it; So as to forfeit the Ship it ſelf to the Creditor, if the Money be not paid at the time appointed, with Intereſt of 40 or 50 Pounds per Cent. at the Ship's ſafe return; but in caſe the Ship miſcarry, the Lender loſes his Money.

Botts, Worms, or Grubs, that deſtroy the Graſs in Bowling-greens, &c. Alſo certain ſmall Worms that breed in the Straight Gut of a Horſe, near the Fundament.

Bovata Terræ, (in ancient Latin Deeds) an Ox-gate of Land, as much as an Ox can till, or 28 Acres.

Bouche of Court, a certain quantity of Proviſions allow'd to a Servant in a Prince's Palace, or Noble-man's Houſe: Alſo an allowance of Diet, or Victuals from the King, or great Lords, to their Knights, Eſquires, &c. that attended them in any warlike Expedition: It is otherwiſe call'd Bowge of Court, and commonly Budge of Court.

Bouchet, (Fr.) a round white Pear, about the bigneſs of a midling Bergamot, with a fine tender Pulp, and ſugar'd Juice; being ripe about the middle of Auguſt.

Boucons, (Fr. in Cookery) Veal-ſtakes rolled up with thin fat ſlices of Bacon and Gammon.

Bouds, Inſects breading in Malt, otherwiſe call'd Weevils and Popes.

Boveria, (in old Latin Writers) an Ox-houſe, or Ox-ſtall; a Cow-houſe, or Neat-houſe.

Bovettus, a young Steer, or cut Bullock.

Bovicula, an Heifer, or young Cow.

Bouillans, (Fr. in Cookery) little Pies made of the Breaſts of roaſted Capons, or Pullets, minc'd ſmall with Calves-Udder, Bacon, ſweet Herbs, &c.

Bouillon, Broth made of ſeveral ſorts of boiled Meat.

Bovina Fames. See Bulimus.

Boun, an old Word for ready.

Boungrace, a Sea-word. See Bongrace.

Boundary, that which ſerves to ſet out the Limits or Bounds of a Country.

Bounteous or Bountiful, liberal, generous, free.

Bounty, Generoſity, Liberality.

To Bourd, (old Word) to joke, or jeſt.

Bourgeoiſe, (Fr. in Cookery) as Veal dreſs'd à la Bourgeoiſe, i. e. after the City-faſhion;

Veal-Stakes larded, ſeaſon'd with Spice, and ſtew'd with thin Slices of Bacon.

† To Bourgeon, to bud, to ſhoot, or put forth Buds.

Bourn, (Dutch) the head of a Fountain, or Spring; a Rivulet, or Brook: Whence it is added to the Names of ſeveral Towns ſeated on Brooks; as Sittingbourn, &c.

To Bouſe. See To Bowſe.

Boute-feu, (Fr.) a wilful firer of Houſes, a Fire-brand of Sedition, a ſower of Diſſenſion and Strife.

Bouton, a Button for a Garment, a Button, or Bud of Plants; a Pimple, or riſing in the Skin: In Cookery, a Diſh of Bards, or thin ſlices of Bacon, cover'd with a Farce and Ragoo, and bak'd between two Fires.

Bow, an Inſtrument for ſhooting Arrows. Alſo a Mathematical Inſtrument, formerly us'd by Seamen to take the height of the Sun: Alſo a Beam of Wood or Braſs, with three long Screws that direct a Lath of Wood or Steel to any Arch; being commonly us'd to make Draughts of Ships, Projections of the Sphere, &c.

Bow or Ox-bow, (Country-word) a Yoke for Oxen, &c.

Bow of a Ship, is her broadeſt part before, beginning at the Loof and compaſſing ends of the Stem, and ending at the Sternmoſt, part of the Fore-caſtle: If a Ship has a broad Bow, it is call'd a bold Bow, and if its Bow be narrow and thin, 'tis termed a lean Bow.

Bow-anchors. See Bowers.

Bow-bearer, an under Officer in a Foreſt, ſworn to be true to the Maſter of the Foreſt, and to give notice of all Treſpaſſes done either to Vert, or Veniſon.

Bow-piece, (among Seamen) that piece of Ordinance which lies in the Bow of a Ship.

Bow-ſprit. See Bolt-ſprit.

Bowers or Bow-anchors, ſuch Anchors as are carry'd in the Ship's Bow; which are uſually two in Number, and call'd the Firſt and Second Bower.

Bowet or Boweſs, (in Falconry) a young Hawk ſo nam'd, when ſhe draws any thing out of her Neſt, and covets to clamber on the Boughs.

Bowge, (Sea-Term) a Rope faſten'd to the middle of the out-ſide of a Sail, which ſerves to make it ſtand cloſer by the Wind.

Bowge of Court. See Bouche of Court.

Bowke, (old Word) a Body, the Belly, or the Stomach.

Bowl, a round Ball of Wood, to play within a Bowling-green; alſo a kind of Veſſel, or Cup to drink out of: In a Ship, it is a round ſpace at the Head of a Maſt for the Men to ſtand in.

Bowling, or rather Bow-line, is a Rope made faſt to the Leetch, or middle part of the out-ſide of a Sail, by two, three, or four other Ropes like a Crow's-foot, which is termed the Bowling-bridle; the uſe of it being to make the Sails ſtand ſharp, or cloſe, or by a Wind.

Sharp the main Bowlings, Hale up or ſet taught the Bowling, are Sea-phraſes us'd, when the Bowling is to be pull'd up harder, or hal'd forwards on: And To eaſe, check, or run up the Bowling, is to let it out more ſlack.

Bowling-knot, a kind of Knot that will not ſlip, by which the Bowling-bridle is faſten'd to the Crengles.

To Bowſe, to drink ſtoutly: Among Sailers, to hale, or pull: Thus haling upon a Tack is call'd Bowſing upon the Tack; and when they would have the Men pull all together, they cry, Bowſe away.

Bowſer, the Purſer, or Treaſurer of a College in the Univerſity.

Bowſing (in Falconry) is when a Hawk drinks often, yet continually thirſts for more.

Bowyer, a Maker of, or Seller of Bows and Arrows.

Box, a Wooden Coffer, or Cheſt; alſo the Wood of the Box-tree Shrub, which ſerves for many Uſes.

Box is alſo taken for an uncertain quantity of ſome Commodities; as of Prunelloes, 14 Pounds; of Quick-ſilver, from one to two Hundred Weight; of Rings for Keys, two Groſs, &c.

Box and Needle, a ſmall Compaſs apply'd to a Theodolite, or other Mathematical Inſtrument, and us'd in Surveying, &c. To find out the Situation of any Place, by the pointing of one end of the Needle touch'd with the Load-ſtone towards the North.

Boyau, (Fr.) a Gut, or Bowel: In Fortification, a Ditch border'd with a Parapet, or Breaſt-work, and drawn from one Trench to another, for better Communication: Alſo a Line, or particular Cut, that runs from the Trenches to cover ſome ſpot of Ground, and is drawn parallel to the Works and Fences of the Place: It is otherwiſe termed a Branch of the Trenches.

To Brabble, to wrangle, or brawl.

Brabyla, (Gr.) Plums, Damſins, or Damask-prunes.

Bracco, (in old Latin Writers) a large fleet Hound, or Hunting-dog.

Brace, is commonly taken for a Couple, or Pair, and apply'd by Huntſmen to certain Beaſts of Game; as A Brace of Bucks, Hares, Foxes, &c. And a Brace of Gray-hounds is the proper Term for two.

Brace, is alſo a kind of Meaſure us'd in Italy, which at Leghorn is equal to 2 Engliſh Ells; at Milan, to 2. 37; and at Venice, to 1. 96.

In Architecture Brace, is an Iron that ſerves to faſten Beams, or a Cramp-iron to hold Stones together. In the Art of Printing, a particular Mark, to joyn ſeveral Words or Sentences.

Braces, (in a Ship) are Ropes belonging to all the Yards, except the Miſſen, two to each Yard, and their uſe is to ſquare the Yard, i. e. to ſet it ſquare, or even a-croſs the Ship.

Braces or Main Braces of a Coach, are thick Thongs of Leather, which ſerve to hang it up.

To Brace the Yard, (in Sea-language) is to bring the Yard to either Side.

Braced, faſten'd together, or joyn'd with a Brace; buckled: In Heraldry, a Term us'd for the intermingling of three Chevronels; as Azure, a chief Or, and three Chevronels braced in the Baſe of the Eſcutcheon.

Bracelet, (Fr.) an Ornament for Women's Wriſts; alſo a piece of defenſive Armour, anciently made uſe of to cover the Arm: In ſome old Records, Bracelets are taken for Hounds, or Beagles of the ſmaller and ſlower kind.

Bracenarius, (in ancient Latin Deeds) the Huntſman, or Maſter of the Hounds.

Bracetus or Brachetus, the Beagle, or ſmaller Hound.

Brach, a Bitch, or Female Dog.

Brachiæus Externus, (Lat. in Anat.) a Muſcle of the Cubitus, or Elbow, which ſeems to be the third beginning of the Gemellus, and is inſerted with it in the Cavity, or Hollow of the Shoulder-bone which receives the Olecranium.

Brachiæus Internus, is a Muſcle of the Cubit, which ariſes from the inner part of the Shoulder-bone at the Inſertion of the Doltoides, and Coracobrachialis Muſcles; and is implanted to the Upper, and Fore-part of the Bone, call'd Ulna.

Brachial, belonging to the Arm, as The brachial Muſcles, i. e. thoſe that ſerve to move the Arm.

Brachiale, (Lat.) the Wriſt; alſo a Bracelet, or Bracer; a Wriſt-band.

Brachiolum, a little Arm: Alſo a Member of a Mathematical Inſtrument us'd upon Aſtrolabes, &c. And commonly made of Braſs, with ſeveral Joynts, that the End, or Point may be ſet to any Degree of the Aſtrolabe; whence by Engliſh Writers, it is ſometimes call'd a Creeping Index.

Brachium, (in Anat.) a Member of the Body that conſiſts of the Arm, properly ſo call'd, the Cubit, or Elbow, and the Hand: Alſo an Arm, or Bough of a Tree; a Branch.

Brachycatalecton, (Gr.) a Greek, or Latin Verſe, that has a Syllable wanting in the end.

Brachygraphy, the Art of Writing Short-hand, or Characters.

Brachylogy, Brevity, or ſhortneſs of Speech; a conciſe, or ſhort Expreſſion.

Bracket, a kind of Stay in Timber-work. Among Shipwrights, Brackets are thoſe ſmall Knees, or pieces of Wood which ſerve to ſupport the Galleries; and the Timbers that bear up the Gratings in the Head of a Ship are likewiſe ſo call'd.

Brackiſh, ſomewhat ſalt; as Brackiſh Water.

Brackmans, Bramans or Bramines, a Sect of Philoſophers in India, who live only upon Herbs and Fruits; ſo skilful in Aſtrology, that they can foretel the Eclipſes to a Minute.

Bradypepſia, (Gr.) ſlow Digeſtion proceeding from an ill Diſpoſition of the Stomach.

Braggard or Braggadochio, a bragging, vain-glorious Fellow.

Bragget, a kind of Drink made of Honey and Spice, much us'd in Wales, Cheſhire and Lancaſhire.

Braid, a ſmall Lace, a Chain, or Edging; alſo a Lock, or Weft of Hair.

Brails, (Sea-term) ſmall Ropes put thro' Blocks, or Pulleys faſten'd on either ſide of the Ties, ſo that they come down before the Sails of a Ship; their uſe being when the Sail is furled acroſs, to hale up its Bunt that it may be the more readily taken up, or let fall.

Hale up the Brails or Brail up the Sails, an Expreſſion us'd by Sea-men, when they would have the Sails hal'd up in order to be furled, or bound cloſe to the Yard.

Brain, (in a general Senſe) ſignifies all the ſoft Subſtance contained within the whole Scull; which ſerves for breeding the Animal Spirits, &c. and diſcharges them into the Nerves, or Sinews: See Cerebrum, and Cerebellum: Brain is alſo Figuratively taken for Wit, or Judgment.

To Brain one, to daſh out his Brains.

Braiſe, (Fr.) live Coal, burning-coal: In Cookery, Braiſes or Meat dreſs'd à la Braiſe, is either Meat broil'd upon live Coals; or elſe bak'd in a Pot, Pan, or Campain-oven, between two Fires, one underneath, and the other on the top of the Lid.

Brait, a rough Diamond.

Brake, Female Fern, an Herb, or the Place where it grows; alſo a ſharp Bit, or Snaffle for Horſes: Alſo an Inſtrument with Teeth, us'd in dreſſing Flax, or Hemp; alſo a Baker's Kneeding-trough. Among Sea-men, it is taken for the Handle of a Ship's Pump.

Bramines. See Brackmans.

Brambles, prickly Shrubs, whoſe Fruit ſerve to feed the Birds.

Bramble-net, a kind of Net to catch Birds with, which is of ſeveral Sizes, and otherwiſe call'd a Hallier.

Brambling, a ſort of Bird.

Branca Urſina, (Lat.) the Herb Brank Urſin, or Bears-foot, ſo call'd, becauſe its Leaves in ſhape reſemble the Fore-feet of a Bear.

Branch, a Bough of a Tree, the Stock of a Pedigree; a branched Candle-ſtick, or the Stem of it; alſo the Horns of a Stag's-head.

Branch of the Trenches. See Boyau.

Branch-peaſe, a kind of Pulſe.

Branch-ſtand, a Term in Falconry, which ſignifies to make a Hawk take the Branch, or leap from Tree to Tree, till the Dog ſprings the Partridge.

To Branch or Branch out, to divide, or ſpread into Branches.

Branched, (in Heraldry) ſpread into Branches, as a Deer's Head is.

Branched Velvet, is Velvet wrought with Figures, reſembling Branches, or Leaves.

Branchet, a young Hawk, or other Bird that is newly come out of the Neſt, and begins to fly from one Branch, or Bough to another.

Branchus, (Gr.) a Hoarſeneſs in the Throat.

Brand, a piece of burning Wood, a Mark made with a red-hot Iron; a Note of Infamy, or Diſgrace.

Brand-gooſe or Brant-gooſe, a kind of wild Fowl, ſomewhat leſs than an ordinary Gooſe, ſo call'd from the dark Colour, like a burnt Coal, of its Breaſt and Wings.

Brand-iron, a hot Iron to brand, or ſet a Mark on a Malefactor: Alſo a Trevet, or other Iron to ſet a Veſſel on over the Fire.

To Brandiſh, (Fr.) to ſhake too and fro in the Hand; as To Brandiſh a Sword.

Brandling, the Dew-worm, a ſmall Worm to bait Fiſh with.

Brandrith, a Rail, or Fence about a Well, to prevent one's falling into it.

Brandy, a well known Strong-water, made of Wine, or its Lees Diſtilled.

To Brangle, to bicker or quarrel, to brawl.

Brank, a ſort of Grain that delights in a warm Land, and is otherwiſe call'd Buck-wheat, or French Wheat.

Brank-Urſin, an Herb: See Branca Urſina, and Bear's-breech.

Braſed, a Term in Heraldry; as Three Chevronels braſed, i. e. three Kids paſſing one another croſs-wiſe.

Braſſator, (in ancient Statutes,) is taken for a Brewer, and ſtill for a Maltſter.

Braſſatrix, a Brewing-Woman, or Female Brewer.

Braſil, one of the Provinces of Peruvian, or Southern America: Alſo a kind of red, heavy Wood brought from thence, which ſoon conſumes in the Fire, without ſmoaking, and is much us'd by Diers, for the dying of Red, or Violet Colours.

Braſina or Braſinaria, (in old Latin Deeds) a Brew-houſe.

Braſium, Malt, proper for the making of Drink.

Braſmatias, (Gr.) a kind of Earth-quake, when the Earth moves directly upwards.

Braſs, a mixt Metal made of Copper, by means of the Stone call'd Lapis Calaminaris.

Braſſets, (Fr.) a piece of Armour for the Arms.

Braſſica, (Lat.) Cole, Colewort, or Colliflower; a well known Plant. Braſſica Capitata, Cabbage.

To Braſt, (old Word) to break.

Brat, a beggerly ſhitten-arſe Child.

Bravado, (Span.) a vain-glorious, daring, boaſting, or vapouring.

Brave, (Fr.) Valiant, Couragious; Stout, Gallant; Skilful, Able, Excellent, Rare.

A Brave or Falſe-Brave, a Bully, a Hectoring Fellow, a Swaggerer.

To Brave, to act the Brave, to dare, to affront, to hector.

Bravery, Valour, Courage, Gallantry.

Bravia, an Iſland in America, under or near which Mariners report the Sea to be deepeſt.

Brawl, Diſpute or Squabble: Alſo a kind of Dance, in which ſeveral Perſons dance together in a Ring, holding one another by the Hand.

To Brawl, to chide, to wrangle, or ſcold.

Brawn, hard Fleſh; alſo a ſort of ſous'd Meat made of Boar's Fleſh; as A Collar of Brawn.

Brawny, full of Brawn or Sinews; fleſhy luſty, ſtrong.

Bray, (Fr.) Back-clouts for young Children.

Bray falſe, (in Fortif.) a falſe Trench made to hide the real one. See Falſe Bray.

To Bray, to bruiſe, or pound in a Mortar; to temper Ink, as Printers do; alſo to make a Noiſe, or cry like an Aſs.

Brayer, an Inſtrument for the braying or tempering of Ink.

Brayl, (in Falconry) a Pannel or Piece of Leather ſlit, to bind up a Hawk's Wing.

To Braze, to cover, or do over with Braſs.

Brazen, belonging to, or made of Braſs.

Brazier, one that makes, or ſells Braſs-ware.

Breach, a breaking of Peace or Friendſhip, a Falling-out: In a fortify'd Place, the Ruin of any Part of the Works beat down with Cannon, or blown up by Mines, in order to ſtorm the Place, or take it by Aſſault. To clear the Breach, is to take away the Rubbiſh of it: 'Tis alſo ſaid, Make good, or, Fortifie the Breach; Make a Lodgment on the Breach, &c.

Bread of Treat or Trite, is one of thoſe ſorts mentioned in the Statute of Aſſize 51 H. 3. and may anſwer to that which we now call Houſehold-Bread.

Bread-room, (in a Ship) the Place where the Bread and Bisket is kept.

To Break Bulk, (in Sea-Language) is to take Part of the Ship's Cargo or Lading out of the Hold.

To Break Ground, (in Fortif.) is to open the Trenches, or to begin the Works for carrying on a Siege about a Town or Fort.

Break that Deer, i. e. cut up that piece of Veniſon brought to the Table; a Phraſe us'd by expert Carvers: In the ſame Senſe they alſo ſay, Break that Sarcel or Teal.

Breaking of a Note, a Term in Muſick. See Tranſition.

Bream, a Fiſh, of which there are two ſorts, one found in freſh, aud the other in ſalt Water; yet not much diſtinguiſh'd in Shape, Nature, or Taſte: There is alſo a Sea-Bream, otherwiſe call'd Dorado; which See.

Breaming of a Ship. See Brooming.

Breaſt or Cheſt, one of the three Venters or hollow Spaces in an Animal Body, which contains the Heart and Lungs.

Breaſt-Caskets, (Sea-Term) the biggeſt and longeſt Caskets, which are a ſort of Strings plac'd in the middle of the Yard.

Breaſt-Faſt, a Rope faſten'd to ſome part of a Ship forward on, to hold her Head to a Warp, or the like.

Breaſt-Hooks, (in a Ship) are the Compaſſing-Timbers before, which help to ſtrengthen her Stem and all her Fore-part.

Breaſt-Pain, a Diſeaſe in Horſes, proceeding from Superfluity of Blood and other groſs Humours.

Breaſt-Plough, (in Husbandry) a kind of Plough driven with one's Breaſt, and commonly us'd to part the Turf in denſhiring or burn-beating of Land.

Breaſt-Ropes, (in a Ship) thoſe Ropes which faſten the Frames call'd Parrels to the Yards; and together with the Parrels hold the Yards faſt to the Maſts.

Breaſt-Work, (in Fortif.) the ſame with Parapet; which See.

Brecca, (in old Latin Deeds) a Breach; Decay, or any other Want of Repair.

Breck, (old Word) a Bruiſe.

Breck or Brack, a Gap in a Hedge.

Brede, (old Word) a Breadth; alſo abroad.

To Bredgen, (old Word) to abridge or ſhorten.

Bredwite, (Sax. Law-Term) an Impoſition of Amerciaments or Fines for Defaults in the Aſſize of Bread.

Breech, the Back-ſide or Fundament: In Gunnery, the hindermoſt part of a Piece of Ordinance.

Breechings, (among Sea-men) are Ropes by which they laſh faſt, or faſten the Guns to the Ship's Sides.

Breez, a freſh Gale of Wind, blowing from the Sea or Land, for ſome certain Hours of the Day or Night: Alſo the Gad-fly or Horſe-fly, an Inſect. See Brizes.

Bregma or Brechma, (Gr.) the Fore-part of the Head, or the Forehead-Bone, according to ſome Writers.

Brehone, a Term us'd in Ireland for a Judge; whence the Iriſh Law is call'd the Brehon-Law.

Breme, (old Word) furiouſly.

Brent, (old Word) burnt.

Bret, Brut, or Burt, a Fiſh of the Turbot-kind.

Bretoyſe or Bretois, the Law of the Marches heretofore in Uſe among the Britains or Welſhmen.

Breve, (Lat. Law-word) a Writ directed to the Chancellour, Judges, Sheriffs, or other Officers, and ſo call'd becauſe the Intention of it is expreſs'd in few Words. Alſo a Muſical Note, which in common Time, contains two Semi-breves, four Minims, eight Crotchets, &c.

Breve perquirere, to purchaſe a Writ or Licence of Tryal in the King's Court by the Plaintiff: Whence the preſent Cuſtom of paying ſix Shillings and eight Pence where the Debt is 40 Pounds, and ten Shillings where the Debt is 100 Pounds, and ſo upwards in Suits for Money due upon Bond.

Breve de Minis. See Supplicavit.

Breve de Recto, a Writ of Right, or Licence for a Perſon ejected, to ſue for the Poſſeſſion of an Eſtate detained from him.

Breve Vas, (in Anat.) a ſhort Veſſel or Vein which paſſes from the Stomach to the veiny Branch of the Spleen.

Breviary, a kind of Popiſh Maſs-book ſo call'd.

Breviate, an Extract or Copy of a Proceſs, Deed, or Writing, compriſed in few Words.

Brevibus et Rotulis liberandis, a Writ or Mandate to a Sheriff, requiring him to deliver to the new Sheriff choſen in his Room, the County, with the Appurtenances, Rolls, Briefs, and all other Things belonging to that Office.

Brevier or Breveer, a ſmall ſort of Printing-Letter.

Brevis Muſculus, (according to ſome Anatomical Writers) is a Muſcle of the Cubitus, which helps to ſtretch out the Arm forwards: Alſo one of the Muſcles of the Radins, ſerving to turn the Palm of the Hand upwards.

Brevity, Briefneſs, or ſhortneſs of Expreſſion.

Brewess or Brewis, (in Cookery) a meſs of thin ſlices of Bread ſoak'd in the Fat that ſwims on Potage.

To Bribe, to corrupt with Gifts.

Bribery, the Act of bribing, or tampering: According to the Law-Definition, it is an high Offence, when any Man belonging to a Court of Juſtice, or great Officer, takes any Fee, Penſion, Gift, or Reward, for doing his Office, of any Perſon, except the Queen only.

Bribors, (Law-Term) they that pilfer, filch, or embezzle other Mens Goods.

To Bricken, to hold in one's Chin proudly, to bridle it.

Bricole or Brickol (Fr.) the rebound of a Ball, after a ſide-ſtroke at Tennis-play. Bricols are alſo ſaid by ſome to be Engines formerly us'd to batter the Walls of Towns, or Caſtles.

To Bricole, to give a Bricole, to paſs a Ball, to toſs it ſide-ways.

Bridal, belonging to a Bride; as A Bridal Bed, a Bridal Song, &c.

Bride, a new-marry'd Woman.

Bride-well, a noted College and Hoſpital in Fleet-ſtreet London, in the Pariſh of St. Bridget alias Bride, founded by K. Edward VI. where neceſſitous and idle People ſtrolling about, are ſet to work, and maintain'd with cloathing and Diet; 'till they can be conveniently ſent with Paſſes to their Native Country. To this Hoſpital divers hopeful Lads are alſo put Apprentices, who prove afterwards honeſt and ſubſtantial Citizens: Here likewiſe ſaucy and incorrigible Servants, Night-walkers, Strumpets, &c. are put to hard Labour, and according to their Offences, receive daily a certain number of Stripes at the Governour's Diſcretion. Whence other Houſes of Correction are alſo generally call'd by that Name.

Bridge of Boats (in the Art of War) are Copper-boats joyn'd ſide by ſide, 'till they reach acroſs a River, and cover'd with Planks, to make all plain for the Men to march upon.

Bridge of Ruſhes, a Bridge made of great bundles of Ruſhes which being bound together, have Planks faſten'd on them, and are ſo laid over Marſhes, or boggy Places, for the Horſe and Foot to march over.

Draw-bridge, a Bridge made faſt only at one end with Hinges, ſo that the other end may be lifted up, and then the Bridge ſtands upright, to hinder the Paſſage of a Moat or Ditch.

Floating-bridge. See Ponton.

Flying-bridge, is made of two ſmall Bridges laid one over the other; ſo that the uppermoſt ſtretches, and runs out by means of certain Cords running thro' Pullies plac'd along the Sides of the under Bridge, which puſh it forwards, 'till the end of it joyn the Place it is deſign'd to be fixed in. Flying-bridges are alſo ſaid to be carry'd upon Rivers, but they are only great Boats with Planks and all things neceſſary, for joyning and making a Bridge in a very ſhort time as occaſion requires.

Bridge-bote. See Brigbote.

To Bridle, to keep in a Horſe with the Bridle, or Reins; to curb one's Paſſions. To Bridle it, to throw the Chin into the Neck, as Women are ſaid to do.

Brief, ſhort, rife, or common.

A Brief, (Law-Term) an Order iſſuing out of Chancery, or ſome other Court commanding the Sheriff to Summon, or Arreſt A, to anſwer the Suit of B. But it is more largely taken for any Proceſs of the Queen, in Writing under Seal, requiring any thing to be done for the furtherance of good Order; and more eſpecially Letters Patent, granted to poor Sufferers by Fire, or otherwiſe; for collecting the charitable Benevolence of well diſpoſed People.

In Muſick, a Brief is ſuch a Meaſure of Quantity as contains two Strokes down in beating Time, and as many up; and it is marked thus (II)

Briga, (in old Latin Records) Contention, Quarrel, Strife.

Brigade, a conſiderable Party, or Diviſion of a Body of Soldiers; which according to the French Way of reckoning, is of two ſorts, viz. either part of an Army, or elſe a Diviſion of a Troop of Horſe.

Brigade of an Army, is a Party of Horſe, or Foot, of no fixed number, or Force; for the Brigade of Horſe may conſiſt of eight, ten, or twelve Squadrons, and that of Foot of four, five, or ſix Battallions. After this manner, an Army is ſometimes divided into eight Brigades, four of Horſe, and as many of Foot.

Brigade of a Troop of Horſe, is the third part of it, when it does not exceed forty or fifty Men; but if the Troops be a hundred ſtrong, it is uſually divided into ſix Brigades.

Brigadeer, the Officer that commands a Brigade. Brigadeers of the Army, march at the Head of their reſpective Brigades, and are next in Command to the Majors General.

Brigand, a Robber, a Highway-man, a Vagabond.

Brigandine, an old-faſhion Coat of Mail; a kind of Armour, with many Plates and Joynts.

Brigantes, the ancient Name of a thoſe People that inhabited a great Part of the North of England; as York-ſhire, Richmond-ſhire, Lancaſhire, the Biſhoprick of Durham, Cumberland, and Weſtmorland.

Brigantine, a ſmall light Veſſel, or Pinnace, that can both Row and Sail well; proper either for fighting, or giving Chace: It has about ten, twelve, or fifteen Benches for the Rowers, and all the Hands a-board are Soldiers, ſo that every one has his Musket lying ready under his Oar.

Brigbote, Bruckbote, or Brugbote, (Sax.) a Contribution made toward the mending, or rebuilding of Bridges: Alſo an exemption from that Tribute by a Charter from the King.

To Bright. See To Brite.

Brigidians, an Order of Religious Perſons, founded by a Princeſs of Sweden, nam'd Brigidia, or Bridget.

Brigue, (old Word) Quarrel, Diſpute.

Brillant, (Fr.) glittering, ſparkling, ſhining, bright.

A Brillant, a Diamond artificially cut by the Lapidary.

Brim, the utmoſt edge of any thing, as of a Glaſs, Plate, Hat, &c. Brim of a Flower, is the outward edge of it, or that part which turns.

To Brim, A Sow is ſaid to Brim, and to go to Brim, that is ready to take Boar.

Brimmer, a Glaſs, or Cup, of any Liqnor filled up to the Brim.

Brimſtone, a Mineral conſiſting of a ſubtil oily Fat, harden'd by the heat of the Sun.

Brimſtone-wort, a kind of Herb.

Brine, Salt Liquor, or Pickle: Alſo a Poetical Word for the Sea; as The foaming Brine.

Brine-water, a Salt-water which being boiled turns into Salt.

Bringers up, (a Term in the Art of War) the whole laſt Rank of a Battallion drawn up; being the hindmoſt Men of every File.

Briniſh or Briny, belonging to, or partaking of the quality of Brine.

Briony. See Bryony.

Briſe, a kind of Ground, that has lain long untilled.

Briſk, vigorous, lively, ſprightly, jovial, merry.

Briſket, that part of the Breaſt, which lies next the Ribs; as A Briſket of Beef.

Briſtle-tails, a ſort of Flies, ſome of which have one Briſtle, others two, and others three, or four, in their Tail.

Briſtol or Briſtow, (Sax. a bright or ſhining Place) a pleaſant and well traded City, ſeated partly in Somerſet-ſhire, and partly in Glouceſter-ſhire.

Briſtow None-ſuch, a Flower ſo call'd.

Briſtow-Stones, a kind of ſoft Diamonds, abundance of which are found about the Rock near Briſtol, being lodged very artificially in a hollow ſort of Flint.

Briſure, a Term us'd by the French Heralds, for an Addition to a Coat of Arms, for the diſtinction of Younger Brothers, and Baſtards; as a Label, Half-moon, Mullet, &c. In Fortification, a Line drawn from four to five Fathom, which is allow'd to the Courtin and Orillon, to make the hollow Tower, or to cover the conceal'd Flanks.

A Britain, a Native of great Britain.

Britannia or Great Britain, the Name of this whole Iſland, containing England, Scotland and Wales: It is ſo call'd from the Britiſh Word Brith, i. e. Painted, and the old Greek Tania, a Country; becauſe the firſt Inhabitants us'd to Paint their bare Bodies, with variety of Pictures, repreſenting all manner of Living-Creatures, Flowers, &c. conceiting that this made them appear the more terrible to their Enemies.

Britannia, Bretagne, or Brittany, is alſo one of the Provinces of France, anciently nam'd Armorica, from whence our Iſland was firſt Peopled; as is evident from the Language, Laws, Cuſtoms, and Buildings of both Nations.

Britannica, great Water-dock, an Herb of ſingular Virtue againſt the Scurvy, bleeding of the Gums, &c.

To Brite or Bright, (a Term in Husbandry) Barley, Wheat, and other ſorts of Grain, as alſo Hops are ſaid To Bright, when they grow over-ripe, and ſhatter.

Britiſh, belonging to the Iſland of Great Britain.

Brittle, apt to break, frail, weak, fading.

Briza, (Gr.) a kind of Grain growing in Macedonia and Thrace; Dinckel-thorn.

Brizes, or rather Breezes, certain Winds which the motion of the Air raiſes in great Circles, cooling thoſe that live under the Equinoctial Line; which makes Peru and ſeveral other Parts of the Weſt-Indies, more tolerable in reſpect of Heat, than Barbary, and other Countries of Africa, &c.

Broach, (Fr.) a Spit to roaſt Meat on: Among Huntſmen, the Start that grows ſharp like the end of a Spit, on a young Stag's Head.

To Broach, to Spit, to Tap; to ſpread abroad, to be the firſt Publiſher of.

Broacher, the firſt Author, or Inventer of a Doctrine, Opinion, &c.

Broad-Piece, a Gold-coin, ſome of which are worth twenty three Shillings ſix Pence, and others, twenty five Shillings ſix Pence. See Carolus and Jacobus.

Broad-ſide, (Sea-word) as To give a Broad-ſide, i. e. to Diſcharge all the Guns on one ſide of a Ship: In the Art of Printing, it is a large Sheet of Paper, printed only on one Side.

Brocado or Broccado, (Span.) a kind of Cloath, wrought with Gold or Silver.

Broccarii (Lat.) a Scotch Law-Term ſignifying Mediators in any Tranſaction, Buſineſs, or Bargain.

Broccella, (in our old Records) a thicket or covert of Buſhes; whence brouſe of Wood, and brouſing of Cattel.

Broch or Brooch, a peeked Ornament of Gold, formerly much worn.

Brocha, an Awl, or a large Packing-needle, to mend Sacks, Saddles, and other Horſe-geer.

Brochette, (Fr.) a Skewer to ſtick in Meat. In Cookery, a particular manner of frying and ſtewing Chickens, &c.

Brochia, (in ancient Latin Deeds) a great Can, or Pitcher.

Brochity, (old Word) Crookedneſs, eſpecially of the Teeth.

Brock, a wild Beaſt, otherwiſe call'd a Badger. Among Hunters, a Hart of the third Year, is alſo termed a Brock, or Brocket, and a Hind of the ſame Year, a Brocket's Siſter.

Brodhalpeny or Broad Half-penny, (Law-Term) a being quit of a certain Toll or Cuſtom, for ſeting up Boards, or Tables, in a Market, or Fair: The Word in Saxon, ſignifies a Toll in behalf of, or for a Board.

Broderers, an old Word for Imbroiderers.

To Brogue or Broggle, to fiſh for Eels, after a particular manner, by troubling the Water.

Brogues, Iriſh, wooden Shooes.

Broil, Trouble, Diſturbance, Diſcontent; a Falling out, a Quarrel.

Brok, an old ſort of Sword, or Dagger.

Brokage or Brokerage, the Wages, or Hire of a Broker; alſo a Broker's Trade, or Buſineſs.

Broken Radiation, (in Catoptricks) is the breaking of Beams of Light, as ſeen thro' a Glaſs, cut into ſeveral Planes, or Faces.

Broken Ray or Ray of Refraction, (in Diotricks) is a Right-line, whereby the Ray of Incidence changes its Rectitude, or Straightneſs, or is broken in paſſing thro' the ſecond Medium, whether it be thicker, or thinner.

Broker, properly a kind of Factor employ'd by Merchants, to procure Cuſtomers for their Merchandizes: The Term is alſo commonly apply'd to thoſe that ſell old Cloaths, and Houſe-hold-ſtuff, or that let out Money to neceſſitous People upon Pawns.

Exchange Brokers, are thoſe that make it their Buſineſs to know the alteration of the courſe of Exchange, and to inform Merchants that have Money to receive, or pay beyond Sea, who are proper Perſons for exchanging or doing thereof.

Stock-Brokers, are ſuch as buy and ſell Shares in the joynt Stocks of a Company, or Corporation, for any Perſon that ſhall deſire them.

Bromos, (Gr.) a kind of Grain, wild Oats.

Bronchia, (in Anat.) certain hollow Pipes diſperſed thro' the Lungs, which are Branches of the Wind-pipe.

Bronchocele, a rupture of the Throat, a great round Swelling in the Throat made of thick Phlegm mixed with a little Bloud.

Bronchotomy, a cutting, or opening of the Wind-pipe, in a skinny Part, betwixt two of the Rings; which is ſometimes done to prevent choaking in Perſons troubled with a Quinſey.

Bronchus, the middle fiſtulous Part of the Wind-pipe, the fore-part of which is made up of ſo many little Rings.

Brond, (old Word) Fury, Rage.

Brontias, (Gr.) a kind of precious Stone, ſuppoſed to fall with the Thunder.

Brooch, a Painting all in one Colour: Alſo a Collar of Gold, which Ladies uſ'd to wear about their Necks.

Brook. See Rivulet.

To Brook an Affront, to bear it patiently, to put it up.

Brook-lime, an Herb good againſt the Dropſy, Scurvy and Stone; as alſo for Cleanſing the Blood.

Broom, a Shrub which affords good Improvement to barren Ground, and whoſe Buds pickled are a good Sallet.

Broom-rape or Choke-weed, a Plant that grows at the Root of Broom, and has a Root like a Turnep: It is effectual againſt the Stone in the Kidneys and Bladder, and to provoke Urine.

Brooming or Breaming of a Ship, is a burning off her Filth, with Broom, Reeds, Straw, or other Stuff, either on Ground in a dry Dock, or on a Careen.

Broſſus, (in ancient Latin Deeds) bruiſed, or hurt with Blows, Wounds, or other Caſualties.

Brotel, (old Word) brittle, frail.

Brothel or Brothel-houſe, a Stews, or Bawdy-houſe. The Brothel-houſes on the Bank-ſide in Southwark were ſuppreſs'd by K. Henry VIII. A. D. 1546. See Bordel.

+ Brothelry, Bawdry, Lewdneſs.

Brow-antler, (among Hunters) the firſt Start, that grows on the Head of a Stag, next to which is the Beam-antler.

To Brow-beat, to look upon haughtily, or diſdainfully, to ſnub, or keep under.

Brow-poſt, (among Carpenters) an over-thwart, or croſs-Beam.

Browded, (old Word) Imbroidered.

To Browk, (old Word) to enjoy.

Browniſts, a Sect maintaining Opinions, ſomewhat like thoſe of the Donatiſts, firſt ſet on foot in England by Robert Brown of Rutland-ſhire.

Browſe or Browſe-wood, tender Sprouts that ſhoot forth early in the Spring.

Browſe, Brouce, or Bruttle, the tops of the Branches of Trees in which Cattel uſually feed.

To Browſe, to feed as Beaſts do, by knapping, or nibbling off the tops of young Sprigs, Herbs, Graſs, &c.

Bruchus, (Gr.) the Field-cricket, a kind of Locuſt; alſo a Grub, or Caterpillar that eats up the Corn and Graſs.

Bruckbote. See Brigbote.

Brueria, (in old Latin Records) Bruſh, Heath, Briers, or Thorns.

Bruilletus, a ſmall Copſe, or Thicket, a little Wood.

Bruiſe-wort, a kind of Herb.

Bruit, (Fr.) Rumour, Report, Common Talk.

To Bruit a thing abroad, to ſpread it abroad, to diſperſe News about it.

Brumal, (Lat.) belonging to Winter; as The Brumal Solſtice. See Solſtice.

Brunion, (Fr.) a kind of Plum.

Brunt, Aſſault, Onſet, Bruſh, croſs-Accident.

Bruſcum, (Lat.) a bunch, or knob in a Maple-tree: Alſo an Arbour, or Hedge made of Thorns and Briers wound together.

Bruſcus, a Shrub, of whoſe Twigs Bruſhes were anciently made.

Bruſh or Drag, a Term uſ'd by Hunters for the Tail of a Fox.

Bruſh-wood, little looſe Sticks for Fuel.

Bruſhment, a Word uſ'd in the Charter of the Foreſt-law, for Bruſh, or ſmall Wood.

Bruſk, a kind of tawny Colour, otherwiſe call'd Tenne.

Bruſoles or Burſoles, (Fr. in Cookery) Stakes of Veal, or other Meat well ſeaſon'd, in order to be laid in a Stew-pan between thin ſlices of Bacon, and bak'd between two Fires; pouring a Ragoo, or Cullis upon them, before they are ſerv'd up to Table.

Brutality, (Lat.) the Act of a Brute, Brutiſhneſs, Beaſtlineſs.

Brute, a Beaſt that wants the uſe of Reaſon.

Brutiſh, Beaſt-like, Beaſtly.

Bruttle. See Browſe.

Brya, (Gr.) a little Shrub like Birch, with which Bruſhes, or Brooms were made.

Brya Sylveſtris, ſweet Broom, Heath, or Ling.

Bryke, (old Word) ſtraight, narrow.

Bryonia, (Gr.) Briony, an Herb, otherwiſe call'd White-vine, proper for Diſeaſes of the Spleen, Liver and Worms.

Bubalus, (Gr.) the Buff, or Buffle, a kind of wild-Ox.

Bubble, a Bladder in Water: Alſo a Cully, or ſilly Fellow, that may be eaſily put upon.

To Bubble, to cheat, chowſe, or gull.

Bubo, (Lat.) the Owl, a Bird: Alſo the Groin, or Place from the bending of the Thigh to the privy Parts: Alſo a kind of Boil, or Botch in the Glandulous, or Kernelly Parts of the Body, as in the Arm-pits, Groin, &c.

Peſtilential Bubo, a Plague-ſore, or Botch.

Venereal Bubo, a groſs Impoſtume, or Swelling that ariſes in the Groin, and is occaſion'd by the French Pox.

Bubonocele, (Gr.) a Rupture when the Entrails fall into the Groin, or the out-moſt Skin of the Scrotum, alſo a Swelling of the Glandules of that Part.

Bucanier. See Buckaneer.

Bucardia, (Gr.) a Stone like an Ox-heart, a kind of Turcois.

Bucca, (Lat.) the hollow inner part of the Cheek, that ſtands out by blowing; or the Cheek it ſelf.

Buccellana, a little Mouthful, or Morſel, a little Cake.

Buccellation, a Word uſ'd by ſome Chymiſts, to ſignify a dividing into little Gobbets.

Buccinator, (Lat.) a Trumpeter, one that ſounds a Trumpet, or Winds a Horn: In Anatomy, the round Circular Muſcle of the Cheeks, ſo nam'd from its forcing out the Breath of Trumpeters: It ariſes from the fore-part of the Proceſſus Coronæ of the lower Jaw, ſticks to the Gums of both the Jaws, and is inſerted to the corner of the Lips.

Buccinum, a Trumpet, or Horn to blow with; alſo the Trumpet, a kind of Shell-fiſh, ſo call'd from its Shape: Alſo a Flower that reſembles the Figure of a Horn.

Buccula, a little Cheek; alſo the fleſhy part under the Chin.

Bucentaurus, (Gr.) a kind of Carrack, or huge Ship, with the Sign of the Centaur.

Bucentoro, a ſtately Galley, or great Ship, in which the Duke of Venice and the Senate go Yearly in Triumph on Aſcenſion-day, to eſpouſe the Sea.

Bucephalus, the Name of Alexander the Great's Horſe, taken from the Mark of a Bull's-head on his Shoulder, alſo a kind of Thiſtle.

Buceras, the Herb Fenigreek.

Buck, a Male Deer; alſo the Male of ſome other wild Beaſts; as a Buck-goat, a Buck-rabbet, &c. Hares or Coneys, when they deſire Copulation, are ſaid To go to Buck.

Buck of the firſt Head, a Buck ſo call'd by Hunters, in the fifth Year of his Age, and in the ſixth Year he is termed a great Buck.

Buck-maſt, the Maſt, or Fruit of the Beach-tree.

Buck-ſtall, (in old Statutes) a Deer-hay, a Toil, or large Net to catch Deer in.

Buck-thorn, a Shrub, whoſe Berries are us'd in Phyſick for Purging Medicines, and to make a deep green Colour: A Whiting-fiſh dry'd in the Sun, is likewiſe ſo call'd.

Buck-weed, a kind of Herb.

Buck-wheat or French-wheat, a ſort of Grain much ſown in Surrey, being excellent Food for Swine, Poultry, &c.

Bucks-horn, a Sallet-herb with many ſmall jagged Leaves, good to ſtanch Bleeding, and to take off Warts.

Buckaneer, a Pirate in the Weſt-Indies, a Free-booter, or Rover.

Buckeldians, a Sect of Hereticks reckon'd among the Anabaptiſts.

Bucket, a kind of Pail made of Leather, and generally us'd to carry Water for the quenching of Fire in Houſes, &c.

Bucket-rope, (in a Ship) a Rope ty'd to the Bucket, by which Water is hal'd, and drawn up by the Ship's Side.

Buckle or Girth-buckle, (among Sadlers) a four-ſquare Hoop with a Tongue, which is made ſteady in going thro' a Hole of Leather, and faſten'd with narrow Thongs.

Buckler or Shield, a ſort of defenſive Armour: It is alſo Figuratively taken for Defence, or Protection.

Buckler of Beef, a piece of Beef cut off from the Surloin.

Buckler-thorn, the Name of a certain Herb.

Buckram, a ſort of ſtrong Linnen-cloth, ſtiffen'd with Gum, proper for making Stays, and ſeveral other Uſes.

Buckrams, a kind of Herb.

Buckſome, gameſome, jovial, merry, briſk.

Bucolicks, (Gr.) Paſtoral Songs, or Poems, in which Herdſmen and Country-Swains are repreſented diſcourſing together about their Love-intrigues, or other Concerns, ſuch as Virgil's Eclogues, and Theocritus's Idyls.

Bucranium, the Herb Calves-ſnout.

Bucula, (Lat.) a young Cow, or Heifer.

Bud, a Bloſſom, or young Sprout: Alſo a weaned Calf of the firſt Year, ſo call'd, becauſe the Horns are then in the bud.

Budge, the dreſs'd Skin, or Furr of Lambs.

A Budge, one that ſlips into a Houſe, or Shop, to ſteal Cloaks, &c.

To Budge, to ſtir, or move from a Place.

Budge of Court. See Bouche of Court.

Budge-Bachelors, a Company of poor old Men Cloath'd in long Gowns, lin'd with Lambs-furr, who attend upon the Lord Mayor of the City of London, during the Solemnity of the Publick Shew, on the Day that he firſt enters upon his Office.

Budge-barrel, a little Tin Barrel to hold Gunpowder, having a Purſe or Caſe of Leather made faſt over the Head to prevent the Powder taking Fire; and being generally us'd a-board a Ship.

Budget, a Pouch or Bag.

Buff, Buffle or Buffalo, a wild Beaſt like an Ox, very frequent in the Eaſt-Indies, and other Parts of Aſia.

Buffet, a Box or Blow on the Ear.

Buffoon, (Fr.) an abuſive Jeſter, a Droll, a Merry Andrew.

Buffoonry, ſaucy ſcoffing, or jeſting, Drollery.

Bufo, (Lat.) a Toad. Bufo gibboſus, the hunch-back'd Toad.

Bufonius Lapis, the Toad-ſtone, a kind of precious Stone, falſely ſaid to breed in the Head of a Toad.

Bug, a well known noiſome Inſect. See Wood-louſe.

Buggery, the Coupling of one Man with another, or of a Man or Woman with a brute Beaſt; a moſt deteſtable Sin againſt God, Nature and the Law, which is here made a Capital Crime, without Benefit of the Clergy.

Bugle, a ſort of wild Ox: Alſo an Herb excellent for Wounds, either taken in Drink, or outwardly apply'd; alſo a kind of Glaſs-beads.

Bugle-horn, a ſort of Hunting-horn.

Bugloſſus or Bugloſſum, (Gr.) Bugloſs, a Pot-herb growing in moſt Gardens, much of the ſame Nature with Borage; the Flowers of both being very Cordial and Reſtorative.

Bugula, a kind of Herb; Bugle, middle Comfrey.

Bulapathon, (Gr.) the Herb Patience, a great ſort of Dock.

Bulb or Bulbus, (among Herbaliſts) the round Root of a Plant, wrapt about with many Coats, Skins, or Pills, one over another like an Onion; or elſe ſet round thick with many ſmall Scales, and ſending out many Fibres, or Strings from the bottom of the Root: Bulbs is alſo taken for the round ſpired Beads of Flowers.

Bulbine, an Herb, having Leaves like Leaks, and a purple Flower; Dogs-leek.

Bulbocaſtanum, the Earth-cheſnut, or Pig-nut.

Bulbous, full of Bulbs; as Bulbous Plants, i. e. thoſe that have a round head in the Root; ſuch are Tulips, Onions, Leeks, Garlick, &c.

Bulchin, a Country-word for a Calf.

Bulfinch. See Bull-finch.

Bulga, (in old Latin Writers) a Budget, Mail, or Port-mantle.

Bulged. See Bilged.

Bulimia or Bulimus, (Gr.) an Ox-like Appetite, or inſatiable Hunger, often accompany'd with a loſs of Spirits, which proceeds from a too ſharp Ferment, or Working in the Stomach. It is otherwiſe call'd Bovina Fames, and is ſomewhat greater than Fames Canina, or Cynorexia; which See.

Bulk, Maſſineſs, Bigneſs: alſo a Stall before a Shop: In Sea-language, the whole Content of a Ship in her Hold, for the ſtowage of Goods.

To Break Bulk. See To Break.

Bulk-head, any Diviſion, or Partition made acroſs a Ship with Boards, or any thing elſe, ſo as one Room may be ſeparated from another. Bulk-head afore, the Partition between the Fore-caſtle and Grating in the Ship's Head.

Bulker, a Canting-word for a common Strumpet, or Jilt.

Bulky, big, groſs, maſſy, weighty.

Bull, a well known Beaſt: Alſo a Brief, Inſtrument, or Deed, ſet forth by the Pope, and ſeal'd with a Seal of Lead, containing his Decrees, Commands, and other Acts: Alſo an Impropriety of Speech, or Blunder in Diſcourſe.

The Golden Bull, an Ordinance made by the Emperour, Charles V. A. D. 1536. about the Form of Electing the Emperours of Germany, which is obſerved to this day, and ſo call'd from the Gold-ſeal hanging on it.

Bull-feaſt, a kind of Feſtival in Spain and Portugal, during which Men on Horſe-back, armed with Lances, &c. are ſet to encounter an enraged Bull.

Bull-finch, a ſort of Bird that has neither Song nor Whiſtle of its own, yet is very apt to learn, if taught by the Mouth.

Bull-fly or Bull-bee, an Inſect.

Bull-head or Millers-thumb, a Fiſh that has a broad Head, and wide Mouth, with two broad Fins near the Eyes, and as many under the Belley: Alſo a little black Water-Vermin.

Bull-weed, a kind of Herb.

Bullace, a wild Plum.

Bullary. See Boilary.

Bullen, (Country Word) Hemp-ſtalks pilled.

Bullenger, (in old Statutes) a ſort of ſmall Sea-veſſel, or Boat.

Bullet, Ball, or Shot, the Ball of Iron, or Lead that is fir'd out of a Cannon, Musket, Piſtol, &c.

Red-hot Bullets, are Bullets heated in a Forge, and thrown into the Pieces of Ordinance, wherein before a good ſtopple of Sod, or Turf has been ramm'd down, that the Ball may not touch the Powder. Theſe Bullets are ſhot in Sieges, to fire Houſes, and do the more miſchief in a Town, or Fort.

Bullimony or Bullimong, a mixture of ſeveral ſorts of Grain, as Oats, Peaſe and Vetches. See Bollimong.

Bullion, uncoined Gold, or Silver in the Maſs, or Billet; alſo the Place where ſuch Gold, or Silver is brought to be try'd and exchanged for the Queen.

Bullion of Copper, is Copper-plates ſet on the Breaſt-leathers, or Bridles of Horſes for Ornament.

Bully or Bully-rock, a boiſterous, hectoring Fellow, a Swaſh-buckler, a defender, or maintainer of Strumpets.

Bulruſh-bridge, (in the Art of War) a Bridge made of many bundles of Bull-ruſhes bound together, and cover'd with Planks, to ſecure a Paſſage over Bogs, Marſhes and Fenny Places.

Bultell, the branny part of Meal that has been dreſs'd; the Word is mention'd in a Statute for the Aſſize of Bread, An. 51. H. 3.

Bulwark, the old Name for a Baſtion; a Rampart, or Fort, for the Defence of a Place.

Bumaſtus, (Gr.) a great Grape like a Teat, or Pop; a large plump kind of Grape.

Bumelia, a kind of huge Aſh-tree.

Bumkin, a Country-clown.

Bunch, a Bump, a Knob: In Surgery, an outward Luxation, or disjoynting of the Vertebra's, or Turning-joynts of the Back.

Bunched Cods, (among Floriſts) are thoſe Cods that ſtand out in Knobs, and in which the Seed is lodg'd.

Bunched Roots, all ſuch round Roots as have Knobs, or Knots in them.

Bunches, Knobs, Warts, and Wens, are Diſeaſes in Horſes, occaſion'd by eating foul Meat, by Bruiſes, by hard Riding, and exceſſive Labour.

Bundle, a parcel of things bound together: Alſo an uncertain quantity of ſome Commodities: Thus a Bundle of Baſte-ropes, Harneſs-plates, or Glovers-Knives contains Ten in Number: Of Hamburgh-yarn, twenty Skeans.

In a Law-ſenſe, Bundles are a ſort of Records of Chancery, lying in the Office of the Rolls, as the Files of Bills and Anſwers in Chancery, all Writs of Certiorary, with their Certificates.

To Bungle, to do a thing awkwardly, to cobble, or botch.

Bunias, (Gr.) the Turnep-root.

Bunt, (Sea-term) the Bag, Pouch, or middle part of a Sail, which ſerves to catch and keep the Wind; as The Bunt holds much Leeward Wind, i. e. the Bunt hangs too much to the Leeward.

Bunt-lines, are ſmall Lines made faſt to the bottom of the Sails in the middle part of the Bolt-rope, and their Uſe is to hale the Bunt of the Sail, for the better furling it up.

Bunting, a ſort of Lark, a Bird.

Buoy, a Log of Wood, Barrel, or the like, laid to float directly over an Anchor, when caſt into the Sea, or River, to ſhew where it lies: Buoys are alſo ſometimes left out at Sea, to ſerve for Marks, to diſcover ſome dangerous Shelves, or Rocks.

To Stream the Buoy, is to let the Anchor fall, whilſt the Ship has Way.

To Buoy one up, to ſupport, or uphold him.

To Buoy up a Cable, (in Sea-language) to make faſt a piece of Wood thereto, ſomewhat near the Anchor, ſo as the Cable may not touch the Ground, when it is ſuſpected to be foul or rocky, to prevent the fretting and cutting of the Cable.

Buoy-rope, a Rope of which one end is ty'd to the Buoy, and the other to the Flook of the Anchor.

Buoyant, any thing that is floating, or apt to float.

Buphonon, (Gr.) an Herb, which if eat by Oxen, makes them die of the Quinſey.

Buphthalmus or Buphthalmum, the Herb Ox-eye, May-weed, or ſtinking Camomile.

Bupreſtis, the Burn-cow, Burſt-cow, or Blain-worm, a venomous Inſect which kills Cattel that eat it among Graſs.

Bur. See Burr.

Burcheta, a kind of Gun, mention'd in the Foreſt Records.

Burden or Burthen, a Load, or Weight of any thing, as much as a Man can well carry. A Ship is ſaid To be ſo many Tuns of Burden, when ſhe will ſtow, or carry ſo much in quantity of Goods.

Burden (of Gad-ſteel) is 180 Pounds.

Burdo, (Lat.) a Mule bred of a Horſe and a She-aſs.

Burgage, (Law-term) a Tenure whereby the Inhabitants of Cities, Boroughs and Towns hold their Lands, or Tenements of the Queen, or ſome Lord, for a certain Yearly Rent: In old times, ſome gave the Name of Burgage to a Dwelling-houſe in a Borough-Town.

Burganet, a kind of Helmet.

To Burgeon, to grow big about, or groſs; from the French Word Bourgeon, a Bud.

Burgeſs, an Inhabitant of a Burgh, or Borough; alſo one that ſerves in Parliament for a Borough.

Burgh, a Borough, a large Village, or Commonalty; anciently a Town having a Wall, or ſome kind of Cloſure about it.

Burghbote, (Sax. Law-Term) a Tribute paid towards the building of a Borough, or City, or towards the building of Caſtles, or Walls of Defence: It is alſo often taken for a being quit of ſuch Contributions.

Burghbrech, a Fine impoſed on the Community of a Town, for breach of the Peace, &c.

Burgher, a Towns-man.

Burghgrave, a Title of Honour in Germany; a Count, or chief Governour of a City, or Caſtle.

Burghmaſter or Burgomaſter, a chief Magiſtrate in the Towns of the Low Countries and other Places of Germany.

Burghmote, a Court of a Borough, or City.

Burghware, a Citizen, or Burgeſs, a Word us'd in the Charter of K. William the Conquerour to the Londoners.

Burglar, a Houſe-breaker.

Burglary, (in Common-Law) ſignifies the robbing of a Houſe; but it is generally taken in a ſtrict Senſe, for the ent'ring into a Houſe, or Church in the Night-time, with an intent to rob it, to kill ſome Perſon, or to do ſome other felonious Act.

Buried Battery. See Battery Sunk.

Burin, (Fr.) a Graver, or Engraving-tool.

To Burl, To dreſs Cloath as Fullers do.

Burled, (old Word) armed.

Burleſk or Burleſque, comical, merry, jocoſe; alſo Mock-Poetry, a merry way of Writing.

Burlesked, turn'd into Burlesk, as Virgil burlesked.

Burley, big, groſs, fat.

Burly-brand, a Word us'd by Chaucer for a huge Sword, or great Fury.

A Burn, (as Surgeons define it) is an impreſſion of Fire made upon a Part, in which there remains a great deal of Heat, with Bliſters, and ſometimes an Eſcar; accordingly as the Fire has taken more or leſs effect.

To Burn or Burn-beat Land. See To Denſhire.

Burnet, an Herb commonly us'd in Sallet Furniture, and put into Claret-Wine, to give it a pleaſing Reliſh: Alſo a Word us'd by Chaucer for Wollen.

Thorny Burnet, a kind of Shrub.

Burning-Well, a Well near Wiggin in Lancaſhire, which, if a Candle be put to it, will preſently take Fire, and burn like Brandy; and in a calm Seaſon, will continue for a whole Day together, even to that Degree, that by the Heat of it, one may boil Eggs, Meat, &c.

Burning-Zone. See Zone.

To Burniſh, to make bright; to poliſh, to thrive, or grow bigger as a Child does: Alſo a Term among Hunters, when Harts ſpread their Horns after they are fray'd, or new-rubbed.

Burniſher, one that burniſhes, or Poliſhes, alſo a Tool made uſe of in Engraving and Etching, to ſmooth and ſweeten the Work.

Burr, the round knob of Horn next a Deer's Head.

Burr or Burr-dock, an Herb whoſe broad Leaves, Roots and Seeds, are very uſeful in Phyſick.

Burr-pump or Bilge-pump, (in Sea-affairs) a ſort of Pump by the Ship's ſide, in which is a Staff ſeven or eight foot long, with a Burr of Wood at the end, whereto the Leather is nail'd, and this ſerves inſtead of a Box; ſo that the Staff being thruſt down, is hal'd up by a Rope faſten'd to the middle of it.

Burr-ſeed or Burr-flag, a kind of Herb.

Burras-pipe, an Inſtrument us'd by Goldſmiths, as alſo by Surgeons, to keep corroding Powders in as Vitriol, burnt Allum, Precipitate, &c.

Burrel, a ſort of Pear otherwiſe call'd the red Butter-Pear, from its ſmooth, delicious and ſoft Pulp; which is ripe the latter end of September.

Burrel-fly, a kind of Inſect.

Burrel-ſhot. See Caſe-ſhot.

Burrock, a ſmall Wear, or Dam, where Wheels are laid in a River for the taking of Fiſh.

Burrows, Holes in a Warren, that ſerve as a Covert for Hares, Rabbets, &c.

Burſa, (Lat.) a Purſe, or Pouch; alſo the Groin, or Cod of a Man.

Burſa Paſtoris, Shepherd's Purſe, an Herb of a binding Quality, good to ſtay bleeding at Noſe, the Bloudy-flux, &c.

Burſalis, (in Anat.) a Muſcle of the in-ſide of the Thigh, ſo nam'd from its Shape reſembling a Purſe.

Burſaria, (in ancient Deeds) the Burſery, or Treaſury of a Collegiate, or Conventual Church; the Place of receiving, paying, and accounting by the Burſers.

Burſarii, the Burſers of a Monaſtery, or College: Alſo certain Exhibitioners, or Scholars at Paris in France, ſo ſtyl'd, becauſe they liv'd on the Burſe, Fund, or Contribution of Benefactors. Among the Ciſtercian Monks, the Burſarii, were the Novices, or young Scholars, ſent to the Univerſity, and there maintain'd by the Religious out of their Burſe, or Publick Stock.

Burſe, an Exchange, where Merchants meet, and Shops are kept; ſo call'd, becauſe the Sign of the Purſe was anciently ſet over ſuch a Place: Whence the Royal Exchange was termed Britain's Burſe by K. James I.

Burſer, the Treaſurer of a College, or Monaſtery.

Burſholder or Borow-elder. See Head-borough.

Burſt-wort, an Herb.

Burt, a flat Fiſh of the Turbot-kind.

Burton, (on board a Ship) is a ſmall Tackle, to be faſten'd any where at Pleaſure, conſiſting of two ſingle Pulleys: Its uſe is to hoiſt ſmall things in and out, and it will purchaſe, or draw, more than a ſingle Tackle with two Blocks.

Bury or Bery, (Sax.) a Dwelling-place, or Court; which is ſtill found at the end of the Names of ſeveral Places, as Alderman-bury, St. Edmund's-bury, &c.

Buſca or Buſcus, (in old Latin Records) Under-wood, or Bruſh-wood.

Buſelinum, (Gr.) a kind of great Parſley.

Buſh, any ſort of Shrub, as a Currant-buſh, Gooſeberry-buſh, &c. Among Hunters, the Tail of a Fox.

Buſhel, a ſort of dry Meaſure, containing four Pecks, or eight Gallons Land-meaſure, and five Pecks Water-meaſure.

Buſkin, a kind of Boot, or Hoſe, coming up to the Calf of the Leg, eſpecially worn by the ancient Actors of Tragedies.

Buſs, a ſmall Sea-Veſſel, or Ship, us'd by the Hollanders, for the catching and carriage of Herrings and other Fiſh.

Buſt, (a Term in Carving) a Statue or Figure only repreſenting one half of a Humane Body, ſo that the Head, Shoulders and Breaſt appear, but no Arms; and it is made tapering from the Breaſt downwards.

Buſt-coat, (Country-word) ſoft Bread eaten hot with Butter.

Buſtard or Biſtard, a kind of great ſluggiſh Fowl.

Buſtle, Stir, Noiſe, Hurry.

Buſtrophe, (Gr. i. e. the turning of Oxen when they plow the Ground) a Term made uſe of to expreſs the manner of Writing among the ancient Romans, who at firſt wrote as it were in Furrows: For the firſt Line beginning at the left Hand went to the Right, and then the ſecond Line beginning at the Right Hand was returned back to the Left; ſo that the Whole look'd like the Furrows of ploughed Land.

Byſycon, (Gr.) a great unſavoury Fig.

Butchers-broom, a Shrub with Leaves ſomewhat like a Myrtle, but prickly at the end.

Butchery, a great Slaughter.

Buteo, (Lat.) the Buzzard, a kind of Hawk.

Butio, the Bittour, or Bittern.

Butler, an Officer in a Prince's Court, or Noble-man's Houſe, that keeps the Houſhold-Stores, &c. See Botiler.

Butlerage of Wines, a certain Impoſt upon Sale-wines brought into the Land, which the Queen's Butler may require out of every Ship.

Butſcarle or Buteſcarl, (Sax.) a Boat-ſwain, or Mariner.

Butt or Bound, a Mark to ſhoot at; alſo a kind of Veſſel to hold Liquors. A Butt or Pipe of Wine contains two Hogſheads, or 126 Gallons; and a Butt of Currans from 15 to 22 Hundred Weight.

In Sea-Language, a Butt is the end of any Plank that joyns to another, on the out-ſide of the Ship under Water.

To Spring a Butt, is when a Plank is looſe at one end, and therefore great Ships are bolted at the Butt-heads, i. e. at the Plank-ends.

Buttens, (a Term in Hunting) the Burrs, or Knobs of a Deer's Head; otherwiſe call'd Seals.

Butter of Antimony, (among Chymiſts) is a mixture of the Acid Spirits of Sublimate Corroſive, with the Regulus, or a fixed Matter of Antimony: This Compound which ſome call Icy Oil of Antimony is a great Cauſtick, being us'd to eat proud Fleſh and to cleanſe Ulcers.

Butter of Tin, is likewiſe a Compound made of one part of Tin reduc'd to Powder, and three parts of Sublimate Corroſive, and has this ſtrange Property, that it is continually ſending forth Fumes, or Smoaking.

Butter-bump, the Bittern, a Bird ſo call'd by Country-People, from its having ſmooth and ſoft Feathers.

Butter-burr, an Herb growing in moiſt Places, with very broad Leaves, the Root of which Strengthens the Heart, and chears the Vital Spirits; ſo that it reſiſts all infectious Diſeaſes, and is by ſome call'd Peſtilent-wort.

Butter-fly, a well known Inſect; alſo an Herb otherwiſe call'd Rag-wort.

Butter-Pear. See Burrel.

Butter-teeth, great broad Fore-teeth.

Butter-wort, an Herb ſo nam'd, becauſe it feels as if it were beſmeared with Butter: It is alſo call'd York-ſhire Sanicle, from its growing plentifully in that County, and its only known Property is to rot Sheep.

Buttes, the ends, or ſhort pieces of ploughed Lands that lie in Ridges and Furrows. See Abbuttals.

Buttock, the Breech, or Haunch: In a Ship, it is that part of her which makes her breadth right a-ſtern from the Tuck upwards; ſo that according as a Ship is built broad, or narrow, at the Tranſom, ſhe is ſaid To have a broad, or a narrow Buttock.

Buttreſs, (in Architect.) an Arch, or maſs of Stone, that ſerves to bear up the ſides of a Building, Wall, &c. They are chiefly us'd in ſuch Buildings as are rais'd after the Gothick manner.

Buttreſs or Buttrice, a Tool us'd by Farriers to pierce the Sole of a Horſe's Foot that is overgrown, to pare the Hoof, fit the Shooe to it, &c.

Butwin or Butwink, a kind of Bird.

Butyrum, (Gr.) Butter.

Butyrum Saturni, a Chymical Compoſition, call'd ſweet Liquor of Lead.

Buxome. See Buckſome.

Buxus, (Lat.) the Box-tree, a Shrub; alſo a Top, or any other thing made of Box-wood.

Buzo, (in old Records) the Shaft of an Arrow, before it is fledg'd, or feather'd.

To Buzz, to hum, or make a Noiſe, as Bees and other great Flies do; to whiſper into one's Ear.

Buzzar or Bazar, a Market-place among the Perſians.

Buzzard, a kind of great Hawk, or Kite; whence it is figuratively taken for an ignorant Fool, a ſenſeleſs Fellow.

By or Bye, (Daniſh) an Habitation, or place of Abode: The Word is ſtill retain'd in the end of the Names of many Towns and Villages, eſpecially in the Nothern Parts of England; as Appleby, Danby, Willoughby, &c.

To Bydde, (Sax.) to Publiſh. See Bedel.

By-Laws, certain Laws made in Courts Leet, or Courts Baron: Alſo ſuch as are made by particular Corporations or Companies, for the better regulating of Trade, &c.

By-work. See Landskip.

Byker, (old Word) a Fray, or Scuffle.

Byer, a Scotch Word for a Neat-houſe, or Cow-houſe; as in the Ballad of Chriſt-kirk on the Green. ——The Bolt flew over the Byer.

Bylander, a kind of little ſwift-Sailing Ship, which often carries ſmall Merchandize between Oſtend in Flanders and England, ſo call'd from its Coaſting as it were by the Land.

Byne, (Gr.) Malt, Barley ſteeped.

Byram, a Solemn Feſtival among the Turks, which may be termed their Carnival.

Byramlick, a preſent made at that time, of the nature of our New-years-gift.

Byrlaw or Burlaw, (in the Practick of Scotland) ſuch Laws as are eſtabliſh'd with Conſent of Neighbours unanimouſly choſen in the Courts call'd Burlaw-Courts, the ſame kind of Ordinances that in our Courts Leet and Courts Baron are call'd By-Laws.

Byſſus, (Gr.) a kind of fine Flax; alſo Linnen like Cambrick, or Lawn.

Bytrent, (old Word) catched about.

Bywopen, (old Word) made ſenſeleſs.

Byzantine. See Bezant.

CA

CAB, a Hebrew Meaſure containing three Pints, or the eighteenth part of an Epha.

Caback, a Ruſſian Word for an Inn, or Victualling-houſe.

Cabal or Cabala, (Heb. i. e. receiving) a Myſterious Doctrine among the ancient Jews, deliver'd down by Word of Mouth, as they ſay from Moſes to the Fathers, and at laſt gather'd into a Body in the Talmud: Alſo a ſecret Science in uſe among the more modern Jews, by which they pretend to unfold Divine Myſteries, with reſpect to the Letters of the Hebrew Alphabet; as that the World ſhall laſt ſix thouſand Years, becauſe the Letter Aleph which ſtands for a thouſand is found ſix times in the firſt Verſe of the Bible: Whence the Engliſh Word Cabal ſignifying a Junto, or private Council, a particular Party, Set, or Gang.

To Cabal, to make Parties, to plot privately.

Cabaliſt, one skill'd in the Jewiſh Cabala.

Caballine Aloes, a courſer ſort of Aloes generally us'd by Farriers to purge Horſes.

Caballus, (Lat.) a Palfry, or Pad-nag; a Mill-horſe.

Cabazick, an Herb otherwiſe call'd Harle-wort.

Cabbage, a well known Plant, of which there are ſeveral ſorts.

Cabbage of a Deer's-head, (among Hunters) the Burr that parts where the Horns take their Riſe.

Cabbage-worm, a kind of Inſect.

Cabbin, (Fr.) a Cottage, Hut, or Booth; alſo a little Room to lie in on board a Ship.

Cabinet, a Cloſet in the Queen's Palace, or in a Noble-man's Houſe: Alſo a Cheſt of Drawers, or little Trunk to put things of Value in.

Cabinet-organ, a little Organ, that may be eaſily carry'd, or remov'd from one Place to another.

Cable, a great Rope of three Strands, which being faſten'd to an Anchor, holds the Ship faſt when ſhe rides: The Sea-terms about this Rope are theſe, viz.

The Cable is well laid, i. e. it is well wrought, or made. To Bend the Cable, is to make it faſt to the Ring of the Anchor; and to Unbend it, is to take it away. To Keckle, Plat, or Serve the Cable, to bind it about with Ropes, or Clouts, in order to keep it from galling in the Hawſes. Pay more Cable, i. e. let it more out from the Ship, that the Boat which carries the Anchor may the more eaſily drop it into the Sea. Pay cheap the Cable, i. e. put, or hand it out a-pace. To Quoil the Cable, is to roll it up round in a Ring. To Splice a Cable, is to make two pieces faſt together, by working the ſeveral Strands of it one into another: Veer more Cable, i. e. put more out: When two Cables are ſpliced, or faſten'd together, 'tis call'd a Shot of a Cable.

Cable-tire, the ſeveral Rolls of a Cable, that are laid one upon another.

Cabliſh, a Foreſt-law Term, ſignifying Bruſh-wood, or Wind-fallen Wood.

Caboſed or Caboſhed, (Span. in Heraldry) a Term us'd to expreſs the Head of any Beaſt's being cut off juſt behind the Ears, by a Section parallel to the Face, or by a perpendicular, down-right Section; whereas Couping ſignifies an Horizontal one, and is never ſo cloſe to the Ears as Caboſing.

Caburns, (Sea-term) ſmall Lines made of Rope-yarn, or Spun-yarn, which ſerve to bind the Cables of a Ship, and to make up the Sails to the Yard-arms.

Cacafuego, (Span. i. e. Shite-fire) a bragging, or vapouring Fellow.

Cacalia, (Gr.) an Herb, whoſe Root being ſoak'd in Wine, is good for a Cough; ſtrange Colts-foot.

Cacao, an Indian Tree like an Orange-tree, with reſpect to its bigneſs, and the ſhape of its Leaves: The Fruit of it reſembles a Melon full of ſmall Nuts, properly call'd Cacao, and leſs than an Almond, of which the Drink call'd Chocolate is uſually made.

Cacatozia Febris, (Lat.) a kind of Intermitting Feaver, accompany'd with a violent Looſeneſs, which is ſometimes griping, and extremely weakens the Patient.

Cacemphaton or Cacephaton, (Gr. in Grammar) a harſh Sound of Words, as when after cum, n begins the next Word; as Numerum cum navibus aquet, Virg. Or when a Word following begins with the ſame Syllable that the former Word ended with; as Dorica Caſtra.

Cachectus or Cachecticus, one that has an ill Habit of Body.

Cachexy, an ill Conſtitution, Habit, or State of the Body, proceeding from a bad Diſpoſition of the Humours; which is often follow'd by ling'ring Feavers, Conſumptions, Dropſies, &c.

Cachrys, the Catlin that grows upon Nut-trees, Goſlings on Willows, &c. Maple-chats, or Aſh-keys.

Cackerel, a ſort of Fiſh, ſo call'd, becauſe it is of a looſening Quality, and Purges the Belly.

To Cackle, to cry out as a Hen does, when ſhe has laid her Egg.

Cacochylia, (Gr. in the Art of Phyſick) a bad Chylification, when the Humour call'd Chyle is not duly made.

Cacochymia, abundance of corrupt Humours in the Body, caus'd by bad Nouriſhment, or ill Digeſtion.

Cacodæmon, an evil Spirit, a Devil: Among Aſtrologers, the Twelfth Houſe of a Scheme, or Figure of the Heavens, ſo call'd by reaſon of its dreadful Significations, as ſecret Enemies, great Loſſes, Impriſonment, &c.

Cacoethes, an ill Habit, an evil Cuſtom, or Faſhion: Alſo a Boil, Botch, or Sore hard to be cur'd; a rebellious Ulcer, a malignant Diſeaſe.

Cacopathia, a ſuffering of Evil; a lying under a painful Diſeaſe, &c. Calamity.

Cacophaton. See Cacephaton.

Cacophonia, a bad Tone of the Voice, proceeding from an ill State of its Organs, or Inſtruments.

Cacopragia, an Indiſpoſition of Body, particularly a Diſtemper in thoſe Parts that convey the Nouriſhment.

Cacorhythmus, an unequal Pulſe.

Cacoſphyria, a bad Pulſe.

Cacoſtomachus, that has a bad Stomach.

Cacoſyntheton, (in Rhetor.) a faulty Compoſition, or joyning together of Words in a Sentence.

Cacotrophia, (in the Art of Phyſick) an ill Nouriſhment, proceeding from a Fault of the Blood.

Cacotyche, (i. e. evil Fortune) the ſixth Houſe of an Aſtrological Figure, ſometimes ſo call'd from its bad Signification; as Diſeaſes, &c.

Cacozelia, (in Rhetor.) perverſe Imitation, Affectedneſs.

Cacozelum, a Term us'd when an Oration, or Speech is faulty by Impropriety of Words, want of Coherence, Redundancy, Obſcurity, &c.

Cactos, a kind of Thiſtle. an Artichoak.

Cacubalum or Cucubalum, an Herb, whoſe Leaves are good to heal the biting of Serpents; Chick-weed.

Cadaverous, (Lat.) belonging to a dead Corps, or Carcaſs.

Caddow, a Bird otherwiſe call'd a Chough, or Jack-daw.

Cade, (Lat.) a Cag, Cask, or Barrel.

Cade of Herrings, a Veſſel, or Meaſure containing the quantity of 500 Red-herrings: Of Sprats 1000.

Cade-lamb, a young Lamb wean'd, and brought up by hand in a Houſe.

Cadee. See Cadet.

Cadee, Caddee or Cadi, (Arab. i. e. Lord, or Magiſtrate) a kind of Juſtice of Peace among the Turks, and other Eaſtern People.

Cadeleſcher or Cadileſcher, a great Governour, or chief Magiſtrate in Turkey, of which ſort there are only two, viz. One over Natolia, or the leſſer Aſia, and the other over Greece.

Cadence, (Lat.) the end, or fall of a Period, or Sentence: In Muſick, Cadence or Cloſe, is a kind of Concluſion of the Tune which is made of all the Parts together in ſeveral Places of any Key. See Cloſe.

Cadent, (i. e. falling) among Aſtrologers, a Planet is ſaid To be Cadent, or in its Fall, when 'tis in a Sign oppoſite to that of its Exaltation: And Cadent Houſes are the third, ſixth, ninth and twelfth Houſe of a Scheme, or Figure of the Heavens; being thoſe that are next from the Angles.

Cadet or Cadet, (Fr.) a younger Brother: But it is more eſpecially taken for a Volunteer that ſerves in the Wars, upon his own Charge, as young Gentlemen do; carrying Arms to learn Experience, and wait for Preferment.

Cadew, the Straw-worm, an Inſect.

Cadge, a round Frame of Wood upon which Falconers carry their Hawks when they bring them to ſell.

Cader Arthur, a high Mountain in Brecknockſhire; commonly call'd King Arthur's Chair.

Cadiz, a noted Sea-port Town of Andaluſia, a Province of Spain.

Cadmia, (Gr.) Braſs-ſtone, or Braſs-oar, a Stone out of which Braſs is tried: Alſo a kind of ſoft Stone, otherwiſe call'd Lapis Calaminaris, which being burnt ſends forth a yellow Smoak, and is us'd for the turning of Copper into Braſs.

Cadmites, a ſort of precious Stone, having blew Specks about it.

Cadmus, a King of the Phenicians, and firſt Inventer of the Letters of the Greek Alphabet.

Caduca Bona, (Lat. Civil-law Term) Eſcheats, Goods fallen, or forfeited to the Prince's Treaſury.

Caducus Morbus, the Falling-ſickneſs, a Diſeaſe ſo call'd, becauſe Perſons troubled with it, fall down ſuddenly upon the Ground.

Cadus, a Pipe, or Hogs-head, an ancient Meaſure that contain'd about eighteen Gallons.

Cæcias, (Gr.) the North-eaſt Wind which brings Clouds towards its own Point.

Cæcilla, (Lat.) the Blind-worm, or Sloe-worm; an Inſect.

Cæcum Inteſtinum, (in Anat.) the blind Gut, ſo nam'd, becauſe one end of it is ſhut up, inſomuch that the Ordure and the Humour call'd Chyle, both come in and go out at the ſame Orifice.

Cælibat. See Celibacy.

Cæpa or Cæpe, (Lat.) an Onion, a Plant of a hot and windy Quality.

Cæruleo, (Lat.) the Clot-bird, Smatch, or Stone-check.

Cæruleum, a kind of Sand found amidſt the Oar of Gold and Silver, and anciently us'd by Painters.

Cæſar, a Name uſually given to twelve Emperours of Rome that ſucceeded Julius Caſar, as alſo afterwards to the Heir Apparent of any Emperour: It was the Sir name of the Julian Family, either becauſe the firſt of them was cut out of his Mother's Belly, or upon account of his being born with much Hair.

Cæſarian Section or Operation, the cutting open of the Mother's Belly, or Womb, to make way for the Child to be taken out; and Caſarian Birth, is that of a Child brought into the World th way.

Cæſtus, (Lat.) a large Gauntlet, or Glove made of a raw Hide, and ſtrengthen'd with Lead, which the Wreſtlers among the ancient Romans made uſe of, when they fought at Fiſty-cuffs in the Publick Games, or Exerciſes.

Cæſtus or Cæ[illegible], a kind of Girdle which the Poets and Painters have given to the Heathen Goddeſſes, Venus and Juno.

Cæſura, a Cut, or Gaſh, a Notch; a piece of a Sentence, or Verſe: Alſo a Figure in Greek and Latin Poetry, when there remains an odd Syllable after a Foot, and that Syllable ends the Word: This Caſura is ſo neceſſary, that few Verſes can be made to run well without it, and it is fourfold, viz. Triemimeris, Penthemimeris, Hephthemimeris, and Enneemimeris; which See in their proper Places.

Cag or Keg of Sturgeon, a Barrel, or Veſſel that contains from four to five Gallons.

Cage-work, the uppermoſt carved Works of a Ship's Hull.

Cagia, (in old Latin Records) a Bird-cage, a Coop for Hens.

Cahier. See Cayer.

Caiaphas, (Syr. a Walker about) the Name of a High Prieſt among the Jews, in our Bleſſed Saviour's Time.

To Cajole, (Fr.) to flatter, ſooth up, or coaks; to inveigle, or beguile.

Cajolery, a courting, or fawning upon; Flattery, or vain Praiſe.

Caimacan, an Officer of great Dignity among the Turks; as The Caimacan of Conſtantinople, who is Governour of the City, in Power next to the Grand Viſier and Mufti.

Caiſſon, (Fr.) a cover'd Waggon, or Carriage for Proviſions, or Ammunition for an Army: Alſo a Caſe, or Cheſt fill'd with Powder, or Bombs, which the Beſieged bury under ſome Work, to blow up the Enemy when Maſter of it, ſetting Fire to the Cheſt by a Train convey'd in a Pipe: It is otherwiſe termed a Superficial Fourneau, or Mine.

Caitiff, a miſerable Slave, a lewd Wretch; a pittiful, ſorry Fellow.

Caitiſned, chained, or bound with Chains. Chaucer.

Calaber, the Skin, or Furr of a little Creature of the ſame Name, about the bigneſs of a Squirrel, which is of a gray Colour, and bred for the moſt part in High Germany.

Calaen, a ſort of Mineral, found not long ſince in the Eaſt-Indies.

Calamagroſtis, (Gr.) the Herb Sheer-graſs, or Reed-graſs.

Calamary, a kind of Fiſh.

Calaminaris Lapis, (Lat.) the Calamine-ſtone; which being mixt with Copper, turns it into yellow Braſs. There is alſo an artificial ſort made in Copper-forges and Furnaces.

Calamintha, (Gr.) the Herb Calamint, otherwiſe call'd Mountain-mint, good againſt Poiſons, Convulſions, Ruptures, Jaundice, &c.

Calamites or Calamita, a little green Frog, living amidſt Reeds and Shrubs; alſo a ſort of Gem like a Reed.

Calamitus, (in ancient D[illegible] Stick, or Gag put into the Mouth of Dogs to hinder their Barking.

Calamitous, (Lat.) miſerable, wretched, hard.

Calamity, Miſery, Trouble, Misfortune, Diſtreſs.

Calamochnus, (Gr.) a kind of Down, or woolly Subſtance that grows about Canes, or Reeds.

Calamus, a Reed or Cane, a Pipe; a Straw or Stalk, a Quill.

Calamus Aromaticus, a kind of ſweet Cane, or Reed us'd by Apothecaries in ſeveral Medicines.

Calamus Scriptorius, a Writing-pen: In Anatomy, a certain ſpace about the fourth Ventricle of the Brain, the lower part of which is let into the Medulla Oblongata, and there makes a Cavity, or hollow Pipe, ſhap'd like a Pen; whence it has its Name.

Calandra, the Bunting, a kind of Lark.

Calangium, (in ancient Writers) Challenge, Claim, or Diſpute.

Calata Comitia, (among the Romans) an Aſſembly of the People, who were call'd together for the Election and Conſecration of Prieſts, Probate of Wills, &c.

Calathiana, a ſort of Violet-flower without Smell, that Springs in Autumn.

Calatrava, a Place in Spain, which gives Name to an Order of Knights, call'd Knights of Calatrava.

Calcagium, (in old Records) a Tax, or Contribution anciently paid by the Neighbouring Inhabitants of a Country, for the making and repairing of common Roads.

Calcaneus or Os Calcis, (in Anat.) the Heel-bone, or bone of the Tarſus, which lies under the Aſtragali, and is united to them by the Joynting, call'd Ginglymus.

Calcanthum. See Chalcanthum.

Calcar, a Spur for a Horſe; alſo a Calcining-furnace us'd by Chymiſts.

Calcarium, Lime-ſtone, the Earth of which Lime is made.

Calcea, (in ancient Deeds) a Road, or High-way maintain'd with Stones and Rubbiſh.

Calceata or Calcetum, a Cauſey, or Cauſeway.

Calchoidea, (in Anat.) are three ſmall Bones, which with others make up that part of the Foot which ſucceeds the Ancle.

Calcination, (in Chymiſtry) the Act of Calcining, the reducing of a mixt Body into Powder by means of Fire, or of any thing that has a corroding, or eating Quality as Quick-ſilver, Aqua Fortis, &c.

Philoſophical or Spagirical Calcination, is when Horns, Bones, or Hoofs are hanged over boiling Water, or other Liquor, till having loſt all their Moiſture, they may be eaſily powder'd.

Calcination of Copper. See Æs uſtum.

Calcination of Flints or of Cryſtal, Pebbles, &c. is made by heating them red-hot, and then caſting them whilſt ſo into cold Water, or Vinegar; which being done four or five times, they'll become very brittle, and may be eaſily powder'd.

To Calcine, to burn to a Calx, or Cinder.

Calcifraga, (Lat.) a kind of Saxifrage, an Herb good againſt the Stone; Harts-tongue.

To Calculate, to caſt Accounts, to compute, or reckon; to model, or frame a Diſcourſe, &c.

Calculation, the Act of Calculating, or Computing; an Account, or Reckoning.

Calculus, a ſmall Pebble, or Gravel-ſtone; a Chack-ſtone, a Counter to caſt Account with, a Cheſs-man, or Table-man: Alſo a Stone in the Kidneys, or Bladder of a Humane Body.

Calculus Differentialis, (among Mathematicians) is the Arithmetick of the infinitely ſmall Differences between valuable Quantities; which in England is call'd the Arithmetick of Fluxions. See Fluxions.

Calculus Integralis, is the Method of finding the proper flowing Quantity of any given Fluxion; and is the Reverſe of the Calculus Differentialis, which finds the Fluxion from the flowing Quantity.

Caldaria, (in old Records) a Cauldron, or Copper.

Caldarium, a Cauldron, or Kettle; alſo a hot Bath, or dry Bath.

Caleb, (Heb. a Dog) one of thoſe Worthies that accompany'd Joſhua in the diſcovery of the Land of Canaan.

Caledonian Wood, a great Wood in Scotland, whence the whole Country was call'd Caledonia, or Calydonia.

Calefaction, (Lat.) a heating, or warming: In a Philoſophical Senſe, the producing, or ſtirring up of Heat in a mixt Body.

Calendar, an Account, or Diſtribution of Time fitted for Civil Uſe, and taken from the Motion of the Heavenly Bodies; an Almanack in which are ſet down the Days of the Weeks and Months, with the Feſtivals that happen during the Year; the Sun's Riſing and ſetting, the Changes of the Moon, and Tides, &c.

Calendar Aſtronomical. See Aſtronomical Calendar.

Calender, one whoſe Trade is to Calender, i. e. to Smooth, Trim, or ſet a Gloſs upon Linnen-cloth, Stuffs, &c. Or the Engine us'd for that purpoſe: Alſo a ſmall Inſect that eats Corn.

Calends, the firſt Day of every Month, ſo nam'd by the Romans, from the Greek Word Caleo to Call; becauſe anciently counting their Months by the Motion of the Moon, a Prieſt was appointed to obſerve the exact Time of the New Moon, and to give notice of it to the Preſident over the Sacrifices, who call'd the People together, and declar'd to them how the Days were to be reckon'd till the Nones; pronouncing the Word Caleo five times if the Nones happen'd on the fifth Day, or ſeven times, if they happen'd on the ſeventh Day of the Month.

Calendula, (Lat.) the Marigold, Plant and Flower.

Calenture, a burning Feaver.

Caleſh or Calaſh, a little open Chariot for two Perſons to ride in.

Calevile or Calvile, (Fr.) a ſort of ſweet red Apple. See Autumn-Calvile.

Calf, the Young of a Cow; among Hunters, a Male Hart, or a Hind of the firſt Year.

Sea-Calf, a great Fiſh with a Velvet black ſpotted Skin, the Fleſh of which is like that of a Sucking-pig.

Calfi, (among the Turks) the ſecond of the Nine Degrees of the Students of the Mahometan Law, or Religion.

Caliber or Caliper, (Fr. in Gunnery) the Bigneſs, or rather the Diameter of a piece of Ordinance, or any other Fire-arms at the Bore, or Mouth.

† Calidity, (Lat.) Heat.

Caliduct, a kind of Furnace, us'd by the ancient Romans, to convey Heat from one Room to another.

Calidum Innatum, (Lat.) a Term us'd by ſome Writers in Phyſick for the natural Heat of the Body.

Califactory, a Room in a Monaſtery, where the Religious Perſons warm themſelves.

Caliper. See Caliber and Callipers.

Caliph or Califf, a Perſian Word, ſignifying King, or Emperour.

Calipodium or Calopodium, (Gr.) a Wooden Shooe, or Patten: In ſome old Records, a ſort of Galloſhoos, or Caſes to wear over one's Shoes; a Slipper.

Caliver or Calliver, a ſmall Gun us'd at Sea.

To Calk or Caulk a Ship, is to drive Oakam, Spun-yarn, or the like into all the Seams, Rends, and wooden Pins to keep out the Water.

Calked, (old Word) caſt up.

Calking-irons, Iron-Chizzels well laid over with hot Pitch, to thruſt the Oakam into the Seams between the Planks.

Call, (in Hunting) a Leſſon blown upon the Horn to comfort the Hounds: Among Fowlers, Calls are artificial Pipes, made to catch Quails, Moor-powts, and other Birds, by imitating their Notes.

Callais, (Gr.) a kind of precious Stone, like a Sapphire of a bright Sea-green Colour.

Callarias, the Haddock, or Whiting, a Fiſh.

Calliblepharum, a Medicine with which Womens Eye-brows were made black, to render them more beautiful.

Callicoe, a ſort of Linnen-Cloth brought from Calicut, a Town of the Kingdom of Malabar in the Eaſt-Indies.

Callicreas, the Sweet-bread, the ſame as Pancreas; which See.

Calligonon, the Herb Way-graſs, or Knot-graſs.

Calligraphy, fair, or handſome Writing.

Callimancoe, a ſort of wollen Stuff.

Callion, (Gr.) a kind of Night-ſhade, an Herb.

Callionymus, a Fiſh whoſe Gall is good for the Eyes, and cures Bloud-ſhot in them; alſo the Liley of the Valleys, a Flower.

Calliope, the firſt of the nine Muſes, ſaid to preſide over Harmony, Heroick Poetry, and Hymns made in honour of the Gods.

Callipers, an Inſtrument made like a Sliding-Rule, to embrace the two Heads of a Cask, or Barrel, in order to find the length of it.

Callipers or Calliper-Compaſſes, a ſort of Compaſſes, with crooked, or bowing Legs, us'd by Gunners to meaſure the Bores and Cylinders of Guns, and the Diameters of Bullets.

Callippick Period, (in Chronol.) a Cycle, or Period of 76 Years, which Callippus a famous Grecian Aſtronomer invented to improve that of Meton; after the expiration of which time, he ſuppos'd the Lunations, or changes of the Moon would all happen on the ſame Day of the Month and Hour of the Day, as before.

Calliſtruthia, (Gr.) a Fig of an exquiſite Taſte, and cooling Quality.

Callithrix, a kind of Ape in Ethiopia, with a long Beard, and a ſpread Tail; alſo the Herb Maiden-hair.

Calloſity, (Lat.) callouſneſs, hardneſs, or thickneſs of the Skin, properly that which is occaſioned by much Labour.

Callous, having a thick Skin, hard, brawny. In Surgery, a Swelling, or Ulcer, is ſaid To grow callous when 'tis harden'd, which ſometimes happens to the Lips of a Wound.

Callow, unfledged, bare, or not covered with Feathers.

Callus, (Lat.) a kind of hard Fleſh; alſo Brawn, or hardneſs of the Skin, by much Labour. Among Surgeons, it is taken for a ſort of glewy Subſtance that grows about broken Bones, and ſerves to ſolder them.

Calm, (Fr.) ſtill, quiet.

A Calm or Stark Calm, a word us'd at Sea, when there is not a breath of Wind ſtirring.

Colomelas, (Gr.) Sweet Sublimate, a Chymical Preparation, the ſame as Mercurius dulcis; which See.

Calopodium. See Calipodium.

Calor Innatus. See Emphyton Thermon.

Caloyers, certain Greek Monks of the Order of St. Baſil.

Calſounds, a kind of Linnen-drawers, uſually worn among the Turks.

Caltha, (Lat.) the Marigold Plant and Flower. Caltha Paluſtris, Marſh-marigold.

Caltrops or Chauſſe-trapes, (Fr.) are Irons with four Spikes, two, three, or four Inches long, made after ſuch a manner, that which way ſoever they fall, one Point ſtill lies uppermoſt, like a Nail: They are generally made uſe of to throw on Bridges, Planks, Breaches, &c. To annoy the Enemies Horſe, that they may not approach without great difficulty: Alſo an Inſtrument with three Iron-points, us'd in hunting the Wolf; and an Herb of which there are ſeveral ſorts; as Land-Caltrops, Water-Caltrops, &c.

Calva, (Lat.) the hairy Scalp, or upper part of the Head, which grows bald firſt, either by Diſeaſe, or Old Age.

Calvaria, a Scull, alſo a Place of Sculls, a common Place of Burial.

Calvary, a Mountain without the City of Jeruſalem, ſo call'd from dead Mens Sculls found there, and Golgotha in Hebrew.

In Heraldry, a Croſs Calvary is a Croſs rais'd on the Steps of a Ladder.

Calves-ſnout, a ſort of Herb.

Calviniſm, the Doctrine and Principles of John Calvin, a famous Reformer of the Church at Geneva.

Calviniſt, one that follows that Doctrine.

Calvitium, (Lat.) Baldneſs.

To Calumniate, to accuſe, or charge falſly, to alledge againſt one maliciouſly, to Slander, or Cavil.

Calumniator, a Slanderer, or falſe Accuſer.

Calumny, falſe Imputation, malicious Aſperſion, Slander.

Calx, (Lat.) Chalk, Lime, Morter: In Anatomy, the Heel, or the ſecond Bone in that part of the Foot which ſucceeds the Ancle, being bigger and ſtronger than the reſt; ſo that a Man may ſtand more firmly upon it, and not fall ſo eaſily backwards.

In Chimiſtry, Calx, is that which is produced by the calcining, or burning of any Metal, or Mineral, in a Crucible, &c. Thus ſome Stones are burnt to a Calx, and the Aſhes of Vegetables, Horns and Bones are likewiſe ſo call'd.

Calx of Antimony. See Antimonium Diaphoreticum.

Calyx, (Gr. among Herbaliſts) the Cup of the Flower in any Plant, or the ſmall green Leaves on the top of the ſtalk in Herbs, with which, firſt the Bloſſom, and afterwards the Seed is cover'd and encloſ'd. 'Tis alſo ſometimes taken for the Flower it ſelf, when its Figure is like that of a Roſe-bud, and not yet having its Leaves ſpread out.

Camail, (Fr.) a Biſhop's Purple Ornament worn over the Rochet.

Camarade or Comrade, a Companion, or Chamber-fellow; an intimate Friend.

Camaroſis, (Gr.) a raiſing with an Arch, or Vault: In Surgery, a blow upon the Scull whereby ſome part of the Bone is left hanging up like an Arch.

Cambering, (among Sea-men) the Deck of a Ship is ſaid To lie cambering, when it does not lie level, but higher in the middle than at either end: Alſo if her Keel be bent from the middle upwards, they ſay She is Camber-keeled.

Cambium, (Lat.) the exchanging, or bartering of Commodities; alſo an Exchange, or Place where Merchants meet: In ſome old Authors that treat of Phyſick, it is taken for one of the three Humours that nouriſh the Body, the other two being call'd Gluten and Ros; which See.

Cambren, a Britiſh Word ſignifying a crooked Stick, with Notches in it, on which Butchers hang their Meat.

Cambria, the Country of Wales, ſaid to be ſo nam'd from Camber the Son of Brutus.

Cambrick, a ſort of fine Linnen-Cloth made at Cambray, a City of the Low Countries.

Camelus, (Gr.) the Camel, a Beaſt of Burden, common in the Eaſtern Countries, that can carry a thouſand Pounds Weight, and live ten or twelve Days without eating or drinking.

Camels-Hay, a kind of ſweet-ſmelling Ruſh brought out of thoſe Parts, which is very agreeable to Camels; as alſo effectual in Phyſick, for the Stomach, Liver, Reins, and againſt ſpitting of Bloud.

Cameleon, a Creature like a Lizard, but that its Head is bigger and broader: It has four Feet, three Toes upon each, and a long Tail, with which it faſtens upon Trees, as well as with its Feet: It frequents the Rocks, lays Eggs, and lives upon Flies, &c. The ordinary Colour of it is a whitiſh Gray, but being expos'd to the Sun, or ſet upon other Colours; ſome parts of the Skin change their Colour, after a pleaſant manner.

Camelina, Treacle, or Worm-ſeed.

Camelopardalis or Camelopardus, a Beaſt ſhap'd like a Camel, and ſpotted like a Panther.

Camelopodium, the Herb Hore-hound.

Camera, (Lat.) a vaulted or arched Building, an Upper Chamber, or Gallery: In ſome old Records, it is taken for any winding, or crooked plat of Ground.

Camera Obſcura. See Obſcura Camera.

Camery or Frounce, a Diſeaſe in Horſes, when ſmall Warts, or Pimples, ariſe in the midſt of the Palate of the Mouth; which are very ſoft and ſore, and ſometimes breed in the Lips and Tongue.

Camita, (in ancient Deeds) Camlet, or fine Stuff, made at firſt purely of Camel's Hair.

Camiſado, (Span.) a ſudden Aſſault, or Surprizal of an Enemy by Night; ſo call'd from a white Shirt which the Aſſailants put over their Arms, to diſtinguiſh one another.

Camlet, a ſort of Stuff made partly of Camel's Hair, and partly of Silk or Stuff.

Cammarus, (Gr.) a kind of Crevice, or Cray-fiſh. Cammarus Marinus, the Lobſter.

Cammock, an Herb that has a hard big Root, and is otherwiſe call'd Reſt-harrow.

Camomile, (Gr.) an Herb of a ſweet Smell, which grows and ſpreads more by being trampled upon.

Camoys, (old Word) crooked upwards.

Camp, the Place where an Army lodges, in Tents, or Huts, ſometimes intrenched, and ſometimes without any other Defence than the Advantage of the Ground.

Camp-Marſhal or Camp-Maſter. See Mareſchal and Maſter de Camp.

Camp-Volant, (Fr.) a Flying-Camp, or Army, a ſtrong Body of Horſe and Foot, uſually commanded by a Lieutenant General, which is always in Motion, to prevent the Inroads of the Enemy, to keep their Forces in continual Alarm, to hinder Convoys, to throw it ſelf upon occaſion into a Beſieged Place, &c.

Campaign or Campain, a Plain, a Champion, or open Country. In military Affairs, the ſpace of Time every Year that an Army continues in the Field during any War; a Field-Expedition, or a Summers-War: Thus a Man is ſaid To have made twenty Campaigns, when he has ſpent ſo many Years in warlike Services in the Field.

Campaign-Oven, (among Confectioners) a portable Oven made of red Copper, three or four Inches high, of a convenient length, and rais'd a little upon Feet, ſo as Fire may be kindled underneath: The Cover or Lid of it has Ledges to hold Fire likewiſe, when it is neceſſary to put ſome on the top, or on both Sides.

Campana, (Lat.) a Bell. Campana bajula, a ſmall portable Hand-bell, ſuch as were in uſe among other foppiſh Ceremonies in the Roman Church, and are ſtill retain'd by Pariſh-Beadles, Publick Criers, &c.

Campaniformis, a Term us'd by ſome Herbaliſts, for any Flower that is ſhap'd like a Bell.

Campanula, a little Bell; alſo the Herb Rope-weed, or Wood-bind.

Campauola Sylveſtris, the blew Bell-Flower, or Canterbury-Bells.

Campanulate Flower, the ſame as Campaniformis.

Campartum, (in old Latin Records) any part or portion of a larger Field or Ground: Alſo Champerty, a Diviſion or Share of what would be otherwiſe in groſs or common.

Campe, (Gr.) a Worm, or Grub with many Feet; a Palmer, or Caterpillar.

Campechio, a kind of Indian Wood. See Logwood.

Camphire, the Gum or Roſin of a Tree much like a Walnut-tree, that grows in the Eaſt-Indies upon Mountains near the Sea, and in the Iſland of Borneo, ſo large, that a hundred Men may ſtand under the Shade of it. This Gum flows in great abundance after Tempeſts and Earthquakes.

Camphorata, (Lat.) the Herb Lavender-cotton, or Garden-Cypreſs.

Campions, an Herb that bears a pretty Flower, as being a kind of Lychnis, or Bachelers-button. The Herb and Seed are uſeful againſt Bleeding, Gravel, venomous Bites, Ulcers, Cancers, Fiſtula's, &c.

Campus Martius, a Field near Rome, Dedicated to the God Mars, where the Roman Youth us'd to Exerciſe, and the People aſſembled to give their Votes for the Choice of Magiſtrates.

Campus Sceleratus, a Place where the Veſtal Nuns that broke their Vow of Virginity were bury'd alive.

Canaan, (Heb. a Merchant) the Son of Ham, of whom the Land of Canaan took its Name.

Canades, an American Bird moſt beautiful to behold, by reaſon of the admirable variety of its Feathers; its Eyes are red like a Ruby, and the Head adorn'd with a Cap of Vermilion-colour'd Feathers ſparkling like a live Coal. This Bird is about the bigneſs of a Pheaſant, and very kind to Friends, but ſevere to its Enemies.

Canaille, (Fr) the Mob or Rabble, the Dregs of the People.

Canal, (Lat.) an artificial River for the draining of fenny Grounds, a large Paſſage for Water, cut from one Place to another. In Anatomy, Canals are any Channels, or Paſſages, by which the Humours, or Juices of the Body are convey'd, as thoſe which ſerve for the Spittle, Gall, Pancreatick Juice, &c.

Canaliculus Arterioſus, a Veſſel between the Arterious Vein of the Lungs, and the great Artery, found in Fœtus's, or Children in the Womb, but worn out in Perſons grown up to riper Years.

Canaria, Hounds-graſs, an Herb with which Dogs provoke Vomit.

Canaries, certain Iſlands in the Atlantick Sea, anciently call'd the Fortunate Iſlands; from whence the Canary-Wines are brought.

Canary-bird, an admirable Singing-bird of a green Colour, formerly bred in the Canaries, and no where elſe; but of late Years we have them in abundance from Germany, and theſe are much better Birds than the other.

Canary-graſs, a kind of Herb.

Cancamum, (Gr.) a ſort of Gum brought out of Arabia, which is much like Myrrh.

To Cancel, (Lat.) to raze, croſs, or blot out; to deface, to make void; to ſtint, or ſet Bounds to.

Cancelier, a Term uſ'd in the Art of Falconry, when a light-flown Hawk in her Stooping, turns two or three times upon the Wing, to recover her ſelf before ſhe ſeizes the Prey.

Cancellarius, (Lat.) an Officer of ſmall repute in the Roman Empire, who ſat in a Place ſhut up with Grates or Bars, to write out the Sentence, of the Judges and other Judicial Acts, much like our Regiſters or Deputy-Regiſters; a Character very different from our Chancellours and Lord Chancellour.

Cancelli, Lattices, or Windows made with croſs-bars of Wood, Iron, &c. Balliſters, or Rails, to compaſs in the Bar of a Court for Law-Proceedings; the Chancel of a Church.

Cancellus, a Sea-fiſh call'd the Soldier-crab, becauſe it deſtroys other ſmall Fiſh, and gets into their Shells.

Cancer, the Crab, a ſort of Shell-fiſh. Alſo one of the twelves Signs of the Zodiack, which the Sun enters in the Month of June; being drawn on the Globes in form of a Crab, and commonly marked thus (♋) Thro' the beginning of this Sign paſſes a Circle parallel to the Equinoctial, and call'd the Tropick of Cancer, or the Northern Tropick. See Tropicks.

Cancer, is alſo a hard, painful and ulcerous Swelling, ſometimes full of puff'd up Veins that reſemble the Feet of a Crab; and it is of two ſorts, viz. either Primitive, or Degenerate.

Primitive Cancer, is that which comes of it ſelf, and appears at firſt about the bigneſs of a Pea or Bean, cauſing an inward continual and pricking Pain; during which time, it is call'd an Occult, Latent, or Blind Cancer; but when bigger and open'd, it bears the Name of an Ulcerated Cancer.

Degenerate Cancer, that which ſucceeds an Obſtinate or ill dreſs'd Impoſtume or Swelling, and which becomes an Ulcerated Cancer, without ever having been an Occult or Blind one.

Cancer of the Bone, a Diſeaſe in a Bone, cauſ'd by a ſharp Humour, and follow'd by an Ulcer of the Fleſh and Skin, incurable before the Bone be made Sound.

Cancrini Verſus, (in Grammar) Latin Verſes that are the ſame when read backwards or forwards; as Roma tibi ſubito motibus ibit amor.

Candelaria, the Herb Wooll-blade, Torch-herb, Long-wort, or Mullein.

Candid, ſincere, or upright; favourable, kind, courteous; frank, free, open.

Candidates, (among the Romans) thoſe that ſtood for any Place or Office of Dignity, and were cloath'd in White Robes; the Word is ſtill in Uſe in the Univerſities, &c.

Candiſation, the Cryſtallizing or Candying of Sugar, after it has been diſſolv'd in Water, and purify'd.

Candileers, (in Fortif.) Frames to lay Faggots and Bruſh-wood on, to cover the Workmen.

Candle. See Inch of Candle.

Candlemaſs-Day, the Feſtival of the Purification of the Bleſſed Virgin Mary, kept Feb. 2d. and ſo call'd becauſe Candles were formerly Conſecrated on that Day, and ſet a-part for Sacred Uſe for the whole Year; and a ſolemn Proceſſion was made with ſome of thoſe hallow'd Candles, in Memory of the Divine Light, with which Chriſt inlightned the Church, at his Preſentation in the Temple, when call'd by St. Simeon, a light to lighten the Gentiles, &c.

Candour, (Lat.) Sincerity, Uprightneſs, Frankneſs, Plain-dealing, Courteſy.

To Candy, to uſe a particular Method for preſerving ſome ſorts of Comfits: Alſo to curdle, or grow mouldy, as Stale Sweet-meats are apt to do.

Candy-Alexander, a kind of Herb.

Cane, an Indian Reed.

Canel-Bone, the Neck or Throat-bone, ſo call'd from its reſembling a Canal, or Gutter.

Canella, (Lat.) the Spice call'd Cinnamon.

Caneſtellus, a Word uſ'd in ſome old Records for a Basket.

Cania, the ſmall Stinging-Nettle, whoſe Stalk bites as much as the Leaf.

Canibals, Men-eaters, a People of the Weſt-Indies, that feed upon Man's Fleſh, by whom ſeveral of the Caribbee-Iſlands were anciently inhabited, and thence call'd Inſula Canibales.

Canicula, (Lat.) a little Dog or Bitch, the Dog-fiſh; alſo the leſſer Dog-ſtar, the ſame with Canis Minor.

Canicular, belonging to the Dog-Star; as Canicular Days, i. e. certain Days commonly call'd the Dog-days, in which that Star riſes and ſets, with the Sun; the Weather being then uſually exceſſive hot and ſultry: They begin about July 24. and end about Auguſt 28.

Canina Fames, Dog's Appetite, a Diſeaſe being an inordinate Hunger attended with a Vomiting and Looſeneſs which proceeds from a depraved Action of the Stomach.

Canine, belonging to a Dog, Dog-like; as A Canine or inſatiable Appetite; a greedy Worm.

Canini Dentes, (in Anat.) the Dog-teeth, two Teeth in each Jaw, one on each Side of the Incisivi: They are ſomewhat thick and round, and end in a ſharp Point; their proper Uſe being to pierce the Food.

Caninus, a Muſcle of the Lip, which ſerves to draw it upward.

Canis, (Lat.) a Dog or Bitch, a Hound, a Curr.

Canis Carcharias, the Shark, or Sea-hound; a ravenous Fiſh.

Canis Major & Minor, the Greater and Leſſer Dog, two Conſtellations drawn on the Globe in the Figure of that Creature: The greater of them has the leſſer in his Mouth, and is made up of eighteen Stars.

Canities, Hoarineſs, whiteneſs or grayneſs of Hairs.

Cankdore, (old Word) a woeful Caſe.

Canker, an eating ſpreading Sore; alſo the ruſt of Iron, Braſs, &c. Alſo a Diſeaſe that happens to Trees, and proceeds chiefly from the Nature of the Soil.

Canker in Horſes, is a loathſome Sore, which, if it continue long uncovered, will make way to the very Bone. If it comes on the Tongue, it eats it aſunder, if on the Noſe it pierces thro' the Griſtle, and if it lights on any fleſhy Part, it frets and gnaws it to a great Breadth.

Canker-worm or Glaſs-worm, an Inſect that deſtroys Herbs and Corn.

Cankered, eaten with the Canker, or with Ruſt.

Cann, a kind of Veſſel, or Cup to drink out of.

Cann-buoys, (Sea-word) a ſort of large Buoys, or Barrels thrown out upon Shoals, to give notice to Sailers of the Danger. See Buoys.

Cann-hooks, Iron-Hooks made faſt to the end of a Rope, with a Nooſe, whereby weighty Commodities are taken into a Ship, or Slung out.

Canna, (Lat.) a Cane, or Reed: In ſome old Records, a Rod in Meaſure of Ground, or Diſtance.

Canna Major, (in Anat.) the greater Bone of the Leg, otherwiſe call'd Focile Majus and Tibia.

Canna Minor, the leſſer Bone of the Leg, the ſame with Focile Minus, and Fibula.

Cannabis or Cannabum, Hemp, Canvas.

Canne, (Fr.) the Duck, a known Fowl; alſo a Cane or Reed, a Cane or Walking-ſtick: Alſo a long Meaſure in Languedoc and Provence, containing about an Ell and two thirds.

Cannevarola, (Ital.) the Titling, a little Bird.

Cannions, Boot-hoſe Tops; an old faſhion'd Ornament for the Legs.

Canniſter, an Inſtrument which Coopers uſe in Racking off Wines.

Canniſter of Tea, a Quantity from 75 to 100 Pounds-weight.

Cannon, a great Gun, or piece of Ordinance, of which there are different Degrees and Sizes, diſtinguiſhed by ſeveral Names; as Whole Cannon, Demi-cannon, Culverine, Saker, &c. Which See.

Cannon Royal or Cannon of Eight, a great Gun of 8000 Pounds-weight, 12 Foot long, the Diameter at the Bore 8 Inches, carrying a Charge of 32½ Pounds of Powder, with a Ball of 7½ Inches Diameter, and 48 Pounds-weight; its Point-blank Shot being 185 Paces.

Cannon-baskets. See Gabions.

Cannonade, Cannot-ſhot.

To Cannonade, to batter with Cannon.

Cannoneer, a Gunner, an Artillery-Officer that diſcharges the Cannon.

Canon, (Gr.) a Rule, eſpecially a Law, or Decree of the Church: Alſo a Prebendary that enjoys a Living in a Cathedral, or Collegiate Church. In old Records, a Preſtation, Penſion, or Cuſtomary Payment upon ſome Religious Account: Alſo a large ſort of Printing-Letter; alſo that part of a Horſe-bit which is let into the Mouth.

In Mathematicks, Cannon is an infallible Rule to reſolve all things of the ſame Nature with the preſent Inquiry: Thus in Algebraical Operations, at laſt ſuch a Canon is produc'd, which if turn'd into Words, is a Rule for ſolving all Problems, or Queſtions of the ſame Nature with that propoſed. The Tables of Logarithms, Artificial Sines, Tangents and Secants are alſo call'd Canons.

In Muſick, Canon is a ſhort Compoſition of one, or more Parts in which one Part leads, and the other follows: Canon is alſo a Surgeon's Inſtrument us'd in the ſowing up of Wounds.

Canon of the Scripture, is the Body of the Books of the Holy Scripture, that ſerve as a Rule of Faith.

Canon Religioſorum, a Book, containing the Inſtitution and Rules of an Order of Monks, &c.

Canon-law or Body of the Canon-law, a Collection of Eccleſiaſtical Rules, Definitions and Conſtitutions taken from the ancient Councils, the Writings of the Fathers of the Church, and the Ordinances of the Popes, &c. This Law is modelled according to the Form of the Civil, and contain'd in three particular Volumes, viz. The Decrees of Gratian, the Decretals, and the Sextum, which See.

Canonical, belonging, or agreeable to the Canons, or Church-laws.

Canonical hours, the Time ſet a-part by the Church-Canons, for the performing of Divine Service.

Canonicalneſs, Conformity, or Agreeableneſs to the Church-Canons.

Canoniſt, a Doctor, or Profeſſour of the Canon-Law.

Canonization, the Act of Canonizing, or Sainting.

To Canonize, to inroll among the Saints.

Canonſhip, the Title of a Benefice enjoy'd by a Canon.

Canoo or Canow, an Indian Boat made of the Trunk of a Tree.

Canopy, (Gr.) a Cloath of State ſet over the Thrones of Soveraign Princes, or carry'd over their Heads upon ſome great Solemnity: Alſo a ſort of Teſtern, or Curtain for a Bed.

† Canorous, (Lat.) ſhrill, loud-ſinging, high-ſounding.

Cant, Gibberiſh, Pedler's French.

To Cant, to talk darkly, after the manner of Rogues, Thieves, Beggers, &c. So as not to be underſtood by others; to uſe an affected kind of Speech.

Cantabrica, (Lat.) a Plant firſt found out by the Cantabri in Spain, the wild Gilliflower.

Cantæ, an ancient People of Scotland, who liv'd in that Part which is now call'd Roſs.

Cantar. See Centenar.

Cantel, a Law-word for a Lump, or Maſs; as when any Commodity is bought by the Lump.

Canterbury, the chief City, and in the time of the Saxon Government, the Royal Seat of the Kings of Kent.

Canterbury-bells, a Plant that is rough-leav'd like a Nettle, with ſquare Stalks, on which hang hollow Flowers like Bells.

Canterius, (Lat.) a Gelding, or cut Horſe; alſo an Aſs, or other Labouring-beaſt. See Cantherus.

Cantharias, (Gr.) a Stone, having the Figure of a Beetle on it.

Cantharides Spaniſh Flies, certain venomous green Flies, that breed on the tops of Aſh and Olive-trees, and are us'd in Plaiſters for the raiſing of Bliſters.

Cantharis, is alſo a ſort of Fly of the Beetle-kind, but leſs, which eats and conſumes Corn.

Cantharus, the black Beetle, an Inſect that breeds in Dung; alſo the Beetle-fiſh.

Cantherus, a Gelding, or Labouring-Beaſt: Alſo a Rafter, or Joiſt of a Houſe that comes down from the Ridge to the Eaves; a Spar, a Tranſom, a Leaver: Alſo a Treſſel, or Horſe to ſaw, or cut Timber on.

Canthus, the Iron with which the Rounding of a Cart-wheel is bound, the Strake of a Cart, the Felley of a Wheel: In Anatomy, the Angle, or Corner of the Eye; which is either the Greater or Inward, or the Leſſer or Outward.

Canticles, (Lat. i. e. Spiritual Songs) one of the Books of Holy Scripture, otherwiſe call'd Solomon's Song.

Canting-coins. See Coins in a Ship.

Cantle, a piece of any thing; as A Cantle of Bread, Cheeſe, &c.

To Cantle out, to divide into ſeveral Parts, or Parcels.

Canto, (Ital.) a kind of Diviſion in an Heroick Poem, of the ſame Nature that a Chapter is in Proſe.

Canton, a Diviſion, or Part of a Country in form of a Province; as The thirteen Cantons of Switzerland: Alſo a ſort of additional Curtain to a Bed.

In Heraldry, Canton, is an Ordinary made of two ſtraight Lines, one drawn perpendicularly from the Chief, and the other ſo from the Side of the Eſcutcheon: It is always leſs than the quarter of the Field, and if drawn from the left Corner of the Eſcutcheon, 'tis call'd a Canton Siniſter: Thus it is ſaid, He bears Ermin, a Canton Argent charged with a Chevron Gules.

To Canton, (in the Art of War) to retire into a Canton, or Quarter; to fortify one's ſelf in a Place.

To Cantonize, to divide into Cantons, or Quarters.

Cantred or Cantref, (Welſh) a particular Diviſion of a Country in Wales, the ſame as an Hundred in England, from the Britiſh Words Cant, i. e. an hundred and Tref, a Town, or Village. See Commote.

Canvas, a ſort of courſe Linnen-Cloth.

Canvas-bags or Earth-bags, (in Fortif.) or as the French call them Sacs à Terre, are Baggs fill'd with Earth, and uſ'd to raiſe a Parapet, or Breaſt-work in haſte, or to repair one that is broken down: Theſe Bags are ſometimes upon occaſion fill'd with Gun-powder, and hold about fifty Pounds each.

To Canvaſs, to ſearch diligently into; to ſcan, ſift, or thoroughly examine a Matter; alſo to put in, ſue, or ſtand for an Office.

Canum or Cana, (Scotch Law-term) a Duty paid to a Superiour, or Lord of the Land, eſpecially to Biſhops and Church-men.

Canzonet, (Ital.) one of the Diviſions of Italian Lyrick Poetry, in which every ſeveral Stanza anſwers, both as to the Number and Meaſure of the Verſes; tho' every Canzonet varies in both at pleaſure.

Cap, a ſort of Covering for the Head: In a Ship, it is a ſquare piece of Timber put over the Head, or uppermoſt end of any Maſt; having a round Hole to receive the Maſt, or Flag-ſtaff; ſo that by theſe Caps the Top-maſts and Top-gallant Maſts are kept ſteady and firm in the Treſſel-trees.

Cap of a Gun, a piece of Lead put over the Touch-hole of a great Gun, to keep the Prime from being waſted, or ſpilt.

Cap of Maintenance, one of the Regalia, or Ornaments of State, belonging to the King of England, before whom it is carry'd at the Coronation, and other great Solemnities. Caps of Maintenance alſo are carry'd before the Mayors of ſeveral Cities of England.

Cap-Merchant, the Purſer of a Ship, that has the Charge of all the Merchandize, or Cargo.

Cap-paper, a ſort of Brown, and thick Paper.

Capeſquares, (in Gunnery) are broad pieces of Iron on each ſide the Carriage of a great Gun, which cover the Trunnions, and are made faſt by a Pin with a Fore-lock: Their Uſe is to keep the Piece from flying out of the Carriage, when 'tis ſhot off with its Mouth lying very low, or under Metal, as it is uſually termed.

Capable, that is in a Condition, or qualify'd to do a thing; able, apt, fit.

Capacious, capable to receive, or hold; ſpacious, vaſt, large.

To Capacitate, to put one into a Capacity, to make him Capable.

Capacity, Capableneſs, Ability, Sufficiency, Skill, reach of Wit. In a Law-ſenſe, it is when a Man, or Body Politick is able, or has a Right to give, or take Lands, Tenements, &c. or to ſue Actions; as an Alien born has a ſufficient Capacity to Sue in any Perſonal Action, but not in a Real one.

In Geometry, Capacity is the Solid Contents of a Body: Alſo our hollow Meaſures for Wine, Beer, Corn, Salt, &c. are call'd Meaſures of Capacity.

Cap-a-pee, (Fr.) as Armed Cap-a-pee, i. e. from Head to Foot.

Caparison, a ſort of Trappings, or Furniture for a Horſe.

To Caparison, to cover, or ſet off with ſuch Trappings.

Cape, the Neck-piece of a Cloak, or Upper-coat: In Geography, a Head-land, any Mountain, Point, or Tract of Land running out into the Sea, which is otherwiſe termed a Promontory.

Cape, (Lat. i. e. Take) a Judicial Writ, touching Plea of Lands, or Tenements; and being of two ſorts, viz. Grand Cape, and Petit Cape, both which take hold of things immoveable, and differ chiefly in this reſpect, that the former lies before Appearance, and the other afterwards.

Cape Parvum, a Writ that lies in Caſe where the Tenant ſummon'd in Plea of Land, comes at the Summons, and his Appearance is of Record; but after he makes Default at the Day that is given him, then this Writ ſhall go for the Queen.

Cape ad Valentiam, a Writ of Execution, or a kind of Grand Cape which lies where one is impleaded of certain Lands, and he vouches to warrant another, but the Vouchee comes not at the Day given: Then if the Demandant recover againſt the Tenant, he ſhall have this Writ againſt the Vouchee, and ſhall recover ſo much in Value of the Vouchee's Land, &c.

Capeline, (Fr.) a Woman's Hat, or Cap, ſet out with Feathers: In Surgery, a kind of Bandage uſ'd in the Operation of cutting off the Leg.

Capella, (Lat.) a little young Goat, a Kid: Alſo a bright fixed Star in the left Shoulder of Auriga, whoſe Longitude is 77 deg. 16 min. Latitude 22 d. 50 m. and Right Aſcenſion, 73 d. 7 m.

Capella is alſo taken for a Chappel, or Place ſet apart for Divine Worſhip: In old Records, a Cheſt, or Cabinet for the keeping of precious Things, eſpecially Relicks.

Capella de Floribus, (in ancient Writers) a Chaplet, or Garland of Flowers for the Head. Capella Lineata, a lined Head-piece.

Capellus, a Cap, Bonnet, Hat, or other Covering for the Head. Capellus Militis, a Military Helmet, or Head-piece.

Caper, (Lat.) a gelded He-goat, a Buck; alſo the rank Smell of the Arm-holes.

A Caper, a ſort of Privateer, or Pirate-Ship.

Capers, a prickly Shrub, almoſt like Brambles, growing in Spain, and other hot Countries; the Flowers and Leaves of which are brought hither preſerved in Pickle.

Capi Aga, (among the Turks) the principal Groom of the Grand Seignior's Bed-chamber, and the chief Introducer of all private Addreſſes to him; as being the neareſt about his Perſon.

Capias, (Lat.) a Writ, of which there are two ſorts, viz. one before Judgment, call'd Capias ad reſpondendum, in a Perſonal Action, where the Sheriff upon the firſt Writ of Diſtreſs returns nihil habet in balliva noſtra; and the other is a Writ of Execution after Judgment which are of divers kinds, as theſe following, viz.

Capias Conductos ad proficiſcendum, is a Writ that lies for the taking up ſuch, as having receiv'd Preſt-money, to ſerve the Queen, ſlink away, and do not come in at the Time.

Capias pro fine, is where one being by Judgment fined to the Queen, upon ſome Offence committed againſt a Statute, does not diſcharge it according to the Judgment: For by this Writ his Body is taken and committed to Priſon, till he content the Queen for his Fine.

Capias ad Satiſfaciendum, a Writ of Execution after Judgment, lying where a Man recovers in an Action Perſonal, as Debt, or Dammages, &c. And he againſt whom the Debt is recover'd, has no Lands nor Tenements, nor ſufficient Goods whereof the Debt may be levy'd: In which Caſe, this Writ is directed to the Sheriff for taking the Body of him againſt whom the Debt is recover'd, and ſecuring him in Priſon, till Satisfaction be made.

Capias Utlagatum, a Writ which lies againſt one that is Out-lawed upon any Suit, ſo that the Sheriff upon the Receipt of it, apprehends the Party for not appearing upon the Exigent, keeps him in Cuſtody till the return of the Writ, and then brings him into Court, to be farther order'd there for his Contempt.

Capias Utlagatum & inquiras de bonis & Catallis, is a Writ all one with the former, but it gives a farther Power to the Sheriff, beſides the Apprehenſion of the Offender's Body, to enquire of his Goods and Chattels.

Capias in Withernam, de Averiis, is a Writ lying for Cattel in Withernam.

Capias in Withernamium de Homine, a Writ that lies for a Servant in Withernam. See Withernam.

Capillamentum, the Hair, or natural Buſh; a Periwig, or falſe Hair: Capillamenta, or Capillaments, are alſo the Strings, or Threads about the Roots of Herbs, or thoſe ſmall Threads, or Hairs, which grow up in the middle of a Flower, and are adorn'd with little Knobs at the top.

Capillary, belonging to, or like Hair.

Capillary Plants, (among Herbaliſts) are ſuch as have no main Stalk, or Stem, but grow to the Ground, as Hairs to one's Head, and which bear their Seed in little Tufts, Bunches, or Knobs on the back-ſide of their Leaves; whence by ſome they are call'd Dorſipara and Tergifœta.

Capillary Veſſels, (in Anat.) ſmall Veins and Arteries like Threads, or Hairs.

Capillatio, (Lat.) a being hairy, or growing like Hairs: In Surgery, a ſort of Fracture, or breaking of the Scull, which is ſo ſmall that it can ſcarce be found, but often occaſions Death.

Capillus, the Hair of the Head, a buſh of Hair. Capillus Veneris, the Herb Maiden-hair.

Capilotade, (Fr.) a Diſh made of ſeveral remnants of Meat.

Capiſtrum, (Lat.) a Collar, or Halter for a Horſe; a Head-ſtall: Alſo a Surgeon's Bandage, or Swathe for the Head.

Capitaine. See Captain.

Capital, principal, chief, or great; alſo hainous, worthy of Death.

Capital Line. See Line Capital.

A Capital, (in Fortif.) is a Line drawn from the Angle of the Polygon to the Point of the Baſtion, or from the Point of the Baſtion to the middle of the Gorge.

A Capital or Capitel, (in Architect.) the ſame with the Chapiter, or Ornament on the top of a Pillar, which is different according to the ſeveral Orders. See Chapiter.

Capitation, a Tribute paid by the Head, a Poll-tax.

Capite, (Law-Term) as A Tenure in Capite, or in Chief, when Lands were held immediately of the King, as of his Crown, by Knight-Service, or otherwiſe, and not of any Honour, Caſtle, or Manour belonging to it: This Tenure is now aboliſh'd, as being turn'd into free and common Soccage by Stat. 12. Car. 2.

Capitiluvium, a Medicinal Liquor to waſh the Head in.

Capito, one that has a great Head; a Jolthead, or Grout-head; alſo the Sea-chub, or Pollard, a Fiſh.

Capitol, an ancient Citadel of Rome, ſaid to have taken Name from the Head of one Tolus, found there upon digging to lay the Foundation.

Capitolade, (Fr. in Cookery) a particular way of dreſſing Capons, Patridges, and other ſorts of Fowl.

Capitula Agri, (in old Latin Writers) the Had-lands or Head-Lands, that lie at the upper end of the Grounds or Furrows.

Capitula Ruralia, Chapters, or Aſſemblies held by the Rural Dean and Pariſh-Clergy, within the Precincts, or Bounds, of every reſpective Deanry.

To Capitulate, to make Articles of Agreement; to parley or treat with a Beſieger, about the ſurrender of a Place upon Conditions.

Capitulation, the Act of Capitulating.

Capitulum, (Lat.) a little Head; the Chapiter, or top of a Pillar; a Chapter, or Aſſembly of a Dean and Prebends, belonging to a Cathedral, or Collegiate Church; a Chapter of a Book, a Summary, or ſhort Account.

Among Herbaliſts, Capitulum is taken for the Head or flow'ring top of any Plant, which is made up of many Flowers and Threads cloſely joyn'd together in a globous, circular, or diſcous Figure; as the Flowers of Blew-bottles, Scabious, Carduus, &c.

Capitzi or Capigi, certain Officers among the Turks that guard the Gate of the Grand Seignior's Palace.

Capnias, (Gr.) a kind of Jaſper, ſo call'd, becauſe it looks as if it were blacken'd with Smoak.

Capnitis, a ſort of Cadmia, or Braſs-Oar.

Capnomancy, Divination, or South-ſaying by Smoak.

Capnos or Capnion, Smoak; alſo the Herb Fumitory, which often grows amidſt Barley.

Capo, (Ital.) one of the three chief Officers among the Venetians, to whom and the Senate the Doge, or Duke is ſubject.

Capon, a Cock cut to brood, or cover, and lead Chickens, Ducklings, young Turkeys, &c. or elſe to be fatted for the Spit: Whence in deriſion, effeminate Fellows are call'd Capons.

Capon-faſhion, a Term in Archery. See Bob-tail.

Capons-tail, a kind of Herb.

Caponniere, (Fr. in Fortif.) a hollow Lodgment, or Trench, about four or five foot broad, border'd with a little Breaſt-work, about two Foot high, to hold Planks laden with Earth: This Lodgment is uſually plac'd on the end of the Counterſcarp, being wide enough to receive twenty, or thirty Musketeers, who Fire thro' Loop-holes made on the Sides.

Capot, a Term us'd at the Game of Picket, when all the Tricks of Cards are won.

Cappadine, a ſort of Silk, with which the Shag of ſome Rugs is made.

Capparis, (Gr.) the Shrub that bears the Fruit call'd Capers; or the Fruit it ſelf. See Capers.

Capra, (Lat.) a She-goat; alſo the Name of a Conſtellation, or cluſter of Stars.

Capræ Saltantes, (i. e. leaping Goats) a fiery Meteor, or Exhalation, which ſometimes appears in the Air, and is not fired in a ſtraight Line, but with bendings, or windings in and out.

Caprea, the Roe, Roe-buck, or Deer, a Beaſt of Chace; alſo the Branch of a Vine that puts forth Tendrels.

Capreolaria Vaſa, (in Anat.) thoſe Veſſels that twine about like the Capreoli, or Tendrels of Vines; as the Bloud-Veſſels in the Teſticles.

Capreolatæ Plantæ, are ſuch Plants as turn, wind, and climb along the ſurface of the Ground, by means of their Tendrels; as Gourds, Cucumbers, Melons, &c.

Capreolus, a young Buck, a Chevril: Among Herbaliſts the Tendrel, Claſp, or Shoot, by which Vines and ſuch like creeping Plants faſten themſelves to thoſe things which are deſign'd to ſupport them.

Caprichio or Caprice, (Ital.) a fooliſh Fancy, Whimſey, Freak or Maggot. Caprichio's are alſo pieces of Muſick, Poetry and Painting, in which the force of Imagination goes beyond the Rules of Art.

Capricious, fantaſtical, freakiſh, whimſical.

Capricorn, (Lat. i. e. the horned Goat) one of the twelve Signs of the Zodiack, thus marked (♑) which the Sun enters in the midſt of Winter. The Southern Tropick, or the Tropick of Capricorn, takes Name from, and paſſes thro' the firſt Degree of this Sign, and the Diſtance of 20 Deg. 30 Min. from the Equator. See Tropick of Capricorn.

Caprification, (in Husbandry) the dr[illegible]ing of wild Fig-trees, or Vines.

Caprificus, a wild Fig-tree.

Caprifolium, Caprifoil, Wood-bind, or Honey-ſuckle; a Shrub.

Caprimulgus, a milker of Goats, a Goat-herd, or ſome ſuch ſorry Fellow: Alſo a Bird like a Gull, that in the Night ſucks Goats, and cauſes their Udder to mortify; the Goat-ſucking Owl: Alſo the Goat-ſucking Water-ſnake.

Capriola, the Herb Dogs-tooth.

Capriole, (Fr.) a Caper, or Leap in Dancing; alſo the Goat-leap, in Horſe-manſhip.

Capriſcus, (Lat.) the Saw-fiſh.

Capſtan, Capſtand or Capſtern, a Draw-beam in a Ship, which is of two ſorts, viz. the Main Capſtan and the Jeer-Capſtan: The former is a piece of Timber fix'd behind the Main-maſt, the Foot of it ſtanding in a Step on the Lower Deck, and the Head betwixt the two Upper Decks. The Uſe of it is to weigh the Anchor, to hoiſe, or ſtrike down the Top-maſts, to heave any weighty thing into the Ship, &c.

The Jeer-Capſtan, is plac'd in the ſame manner between the Main-maſt and the Fore-maſt; and its Uſe is to heave upon the Jeer-rope, or upon the Viol, and to hold off by, when the Anchor is in weighing.

The Terms belonging to the Uſe of the Capſtans, are Come up Capſtan, or Launce out the Capſtan, when the Sea-men would have the Cable that they heave by Slacked; and Pawl the Capſtan, i. e. Stop it with the Pawl, to keep it from recoiling, or turning backwards.

Capſtan-Bars, are pieces of Wood thruſt thro' the Holes, for as many as can ſtand to heave and turn it about; which is call'd Manning the Capſtan.

Capſtan-Barrel, is the main Poſt of the whole Piece.

Capſula, (Lat.) a little Coffer or Cheſt, a Casket.

Capſula Communis of Dr. Gliſſon, is a Membrane, or Skin that comes from the Peritonæum, and encloſes both the Porus biliarius, and the Vena Portæ in the Liver.

Capſula Cordis, the Skin that encompaſſes the Heart, the ſame with Pericardium.

Capſula Seminalis, (among Herbaliſts) the little Cup, Caſe, or Husk that holds the Seed of any Plant.

Capſulæ Atrabiliariæ, (in Anat.) certain glandulous Bodies plac'd above the Reins, to receive the Juice call'd Lympha, with which the Blood returning thicker from the Reins, is temper'd and made more fluid. See Renal Glandules, and Renes Succenturiati.

Capſulæ Seminales, the outmoſt Cavities, or hollow Parts of the Veſſels that convey the Semen, or Seed in the Body of a Living-Creature: Theſe are widen'd like little Coffers, and by two ſmall Holes ſend forth the Semen receiv'd from the Teſticles into the little Seminary Bladders.

Capſulate-Pods, the little ſhort Seed-Veſſels of Plants, ſo call'd by Herbaliſts.

Captain, a Head-Officer, the Commander in chief of a Company of Foot, or Troop of Horſe, or Dragoons, or of a Ship of War at Sea.

Captain or Capitaine aux Gardes, (Fr. i. e. Captain to the Guards) the Captain of a Company in France, in the Regiment of Foot-Guards.

Captain des Gardes, (i. e. Captain of the Guards) a Commander of one of the four French Troops of Guards.

Captain en Pied, a Captain kept in Pay, that is not reform'd.

Captain en Second. See Second Captain.

Captain Reformed, one who upon the reducing of Forces, loſes his Company; yet is continu'd Captain, either as Second to another, or without Poſt. See Reformado.

Captain Lieutenant, the commanding Officer of the Colonel's, Troop, or Company, in every Regiment; who Commands as youngeſt Captain, tho' in reality; he is only a Lieutenant, the Colonel being himſelf Captain.

Caption, (Lat. i. e. taking), a Law-Term us'd for a Certificate, when a Commiſſion is executed; the Commiſſioners Names being ſubſcrib'd and return'd.

Captious, apt to take Exceptions, cenſorious, quarrelſome: Alſo cunning, deceitful, full of Craft, or Deceit; as A Captious Argument.

To Captivate, to take captive, to inſlave; a Word altogether apply'd to the Affections of the Mind.

A Captive, one that is taken by the Enemy, a Priſoner of War.

Captivity, the Condition of a Captive, Slavery, Thraldom, Bondage.

Capture, Catch, Prize, Prey, Booty: In a Law-Senſe, a Taking, an Arreſt, a Seizure.

Capuche, (Fr.) a Monk's Cowl, or Hood.

Capuchins, Friers of the Order of St. Francis, founded by Matthew Biſci of Ancona in Italy, and ſo nam'd from their wearing the Capuche or Cowl.

Capucin-Capers or Naſturces, a Plant, whoſe round Buds are good to pickle in Vinegar. See Naſturces.

Caput, (Lat.) the Head, a part of the Body, the Summ or principal Point of a Diſcourſe; an Article or Clauſe, a Character.

Caput Anni, (in old Records) New-years-day, being as it were the Head of the Year.

Caput Baroniæ, the chief Manſion-houſe of a Noble-man; which for want of a Male Heir, muſt deſcend to the eldeſt Daughter, and not be divided.

Caput Calendarum Maii, the Calends, or firſt day of the Month of May; May-Day.

Caput Gallinaginis, (in Surgery) a Carbuncle or fiery ſwelling in the Urethra, or Urinary Paſſage; ſo call'd from its Figure reſembling the Head of a Wood-cock, or Snipe.

Caput Jeſunii, (in ancient Deeds) Aſh-Wedneſday, which is the Head, or beginning of the Lent-faſt.

Caput Loci, the end of a Place; ad Caput Villa, at the end of the Town.

Caput Mortuum, (in Chymiſtry) that groſs or thick dry Matter, which remains after the Diſtillation of any Mixt Body; but more eſpecially of Metals: It is alſo often taken only for that which remains after the diſtilling of Vitriol, and which is termed Colcothar Vitrioli. See Earth and Terra Damnata.

Carabine or Carbine, (Fr.) a kind of ſhort Gun, between a Piſtol and a Musket, us'd by Horſe; or a Horſe-man ſo arm'd.

Carabineers, ſome Regiments of choice Horſe in France, call'd out of all the other Regiments.

Carabus, (Lat.) a Lobſter, or ſuch like Shell-fiſh; a Crab, a Cray-fiſh, or Crevice: Alſo a Caravel, a kind of Sea-Veſſel.

Carack, a great Portugueſe Ship.

Caracol, (Fr.) the Half-turn, which a Horſeman makes either to the Right, or Left; alſo a Winding Stair-caſe.

To Caracol, to wheel about, or caſt into a Ring; a Term in Military Diſcipline.

Caradoc, an old Britiſh proper Name of a Man, ſignifying dearly beloved.

Carage of Lime, the quantity of Sixty four Buſhels.

Caramel, (Fr.) Sugar well boil'd, and good for a Cold: In the Confectionary Art, it is us'd for the Sixth and laſt Degree of boiling Sugar, when a little of it being taken up with the tip of one's Finger, and put between the Teeth, it breaks and cracks, without ſticking in the leaſt: Alſo a curious Sugar-work made of Sugar ſo order'd.

Caramoſil, a Turkiſh Ship of Burden, having a very high Poop.

Caranna, a kind of Gum brought from the Weſt-Indies, and good for the Tooth-ach, if apply'd to the Temples.

Carapici, a ſort of Turkiſh Horſe-man.

Carat of Gold, is properly the weight of 24 Grains, or one Scruple, and 24 Carats make an Ounce. If an Ounce of Gold be ſo fine, that in the Purification It loſes little or nothing, then 'tis ſaid To be Gold of 24 Carats; if it loſes one Carat, then 'tis Gold of 23 Carats, and if it loſes two Carats in the refining, 'tis call'd Gold of 22 Carats.

Carat of Pearls, Diamonds and other precious Stones, is the weight of four Grains only.

Caravan, (in the Eaſtern Countries) an aſſembly, or meeting together of Merchants, Pilgrims, and other Travellers; to go in Company with a Guide and a Convoy, for more ſafety and Convenience: Alſo a Sea-Expedition made by the new Knights of Malta.

Caravanſera or Caravans-raw, an Inn, or Houſe of Entertainment, among the Turks and Perſians.

Caravel or Carvel, a kind of light round Ship with a ſquare Poop rigg'd and fitted out like a Galley, holding about ſix ſcore or ſeven ſcore Tun: Theſe are counted the beſt Sailers on the Sea, and much us'd by the Portugueſes.

Caraways, an Herb whoſe Leaves are ſomewhat like thoſe of a Carret; the Seeds of it are good to break Wind, provoke Urine, and help Digeſtion.

Carbine. See Carabine.

Carbo, (Lat.) a dead Coal, or a burning Coal; alſo the Carbuncle, a kind of Sore or Swelling.

Carbo aquaticus, the Sea-drake, or Cormorant, a Fowl.

Carbonado, Meat broil'd on the Coals.

Carbuncle, a great Ruby, a precious Stone in Colour like a burning Coal: Alſo a fiery Botch, or Plague-ſore, with a black Cruſt or Scab that falls off, and leaves a deep and dangerous Ulcer; both otherwiſe call'd Anthrax.

Carbunculation, the blaſting of the New-ſprouted Buds of Trees and Plants, either by exceſſive Heat, or the like exceſs of Cold.

Carbunculus, (Lat.) a Carbuncle.

Carcanet. See Carknet.

Carcaſs, a dead Body: Alſo an Iron-Caſe about the bigneſs of a Bomb ſometimes made all of Iron, with two or three Holes, thro' which the Fire is to blaze; and ſometimes conſiſting only of Iron-bars, or Hoops cover'd over with pitched Canvas-Cloth, and fill'd with Granadoes, Barrels of Piſtolets charg'd and wrapt up in Tow dipt in Oil, and other Materials for the firing of Houſes. They are ſhot out of Mortar-pieces like Bombs into beſieged Places, &c.

Carcellage, the Fees of a Priſon.

Carchedonius, (Gr.) a kind of Carbuncle or precious Stone ſo call'd, becauſe it was firſt brought from the Indies to Carthage in Africa.

Carcheſium, the Tunnel, on the top of a Ship's Maſt above the Sail-yards; alſo a ſort of Bandage us'd by Surgeons, conſiſting of two Reins that may be equally ſtretched out.

Carcinethron, the Herb Knot-graſs, good for ſtanching Blood.

Carcinodes, a kind of Swelling like a Cancer.

Carcinoma, the Cancer-ſwelling, ſo call'd by the Greeks, before it comes to an Ulcer; a Latent or blind Cancer.

Carcinus, the Crab-fiſh; alſo the Cancer-ſore.

Cardamine, a kind of Water-creſſes, Ladies-ſmock, an Herb good againſt a hot Scurvy.

Cardamomum, Cardamum, a ſpicy Seed brought from the Eaſt-Indies, of a pleaſant hot Taſte; one kind of which is call'd Grain of Paradiſe.

Cardamon or Cardamum, Garden-creſſes; an Herb.

Cardecue. See Quardecue.

Cardia, the Heart one of the principal Parts of an Animal Body appointed for the circulating of the Bloud. It was alſo anciently taken for the Mouth or Pit of the Stomach.

Cardiaca, a Suffocation or Stifling of the Heart by a a Polypus, or clotted Bloud: In Anatomy, the Median, or Liver-vein: Alſo the Herb Mother-wort good for Hypochondriacal Diſeaſes, to provoke Urine and the Courſes, &c.

Cardiacal or Cardiack, belonging to the Heart, alſo Cordial or good for the Heart.

Cardiack Line, (in Chiromancy) the Line of the Heart, which incircles the Mount of the Thumb, and is otherwiſe call'd the Line of Life.

Cardiacum, a Medicine which ſtrengthens or comforts the Heart; a Cordial.

Cardiacus Dolor, a pain at the mouth of the Stomach, which makes one think the very Heart it ſelf akes; the Heart-burning.

Cardiacus Plexus, (in Anat.) a Branch of the Par vagum, or eighth pair of Nerves, which about the firſt or ſecond Rib, is ſent from its deſcending Trunk, and beſtow'd upon the Heart, with its Appendage.

Cardialagia or Cardiogmus, a gnawing at the Stomach, ſo that the Heart being ſtraighten'd by conſent with that Part, ſometimes occaſions a ſwooning away; a Pain at the Heart or Stomach; the Heart-burning.

Cardinal, (Lat.) principal, chief.

Cardinal Numbers, a Term in Grammer. See Numerals.

Cardinal Points, (in Aſtrol.) the firſt, fourth, ſeventh and tenth Angles, or Houſes in a Scheme or Figure of the Heavens.

Cardinal Points of the Compaſs or Cardinal Winds, are the Eaſt, Weſt, North and South: The Equinoctial and Solſtitial Points of the Ecliptick, are alſo ſtyl'd the four Cardinal Points.

Cardinal Signs of the Zodiack, are Aries, Libra, Cancer and Capricorn.

Cardinal Vertues, (in Divinity) are Prudence, Temperance, Juſtice and Fortitude.

A Cardinal, a chief Dignitary in the Church of Rome, firſt ſet up by Pope Paſchal I. of whom there are ſeventy in Number, viz. ſix Cardinal Biſhops, fifty Cardinal Prieſts, and fourteen Cardinal Deacons.

Cardinals-Flower, a Flower ſo call'd becauſe it is very red like a Cardinal's Robe; a kind of Throat-wort, or Bell-flower, brought out of America, and not to be Seen but in the Gardens of curious Floriſts.

Cardiogmus. See Cardialgia.

Cardiognoſtick, that knows the Heart, an Attribute or Property only belonging to God.

Cardiſce, a Precious Stone in the ſhape of a Heart.

Cardo, (Lat.) the hinge of a Gate or Door: In Anatomy, the ſecond Vertebra of the Neck, the ſame as Epiſtropheus; which See.

Cardoon, (Fr.) a Plant ſomewhat like an Artichoke, the Leaves of which whited ſerve for a Sallet.

Cardoon or Cardoon-thiſtle, an Herb whoſe Stalk is good to eat.

Carduelis, (Lat.) a Bird that feeds amidſt Thiſtles, &c. the Gold-finch, Carduus, the Thiſtle, or Fuller's Thiſtle.

Carduus Benedictus, (i. e. Bleſſed or Holy Thiſtle) a kind of Plant that grows commonly in Gardens, and bears ſmall yellow Flowers ſurrounded with red Prickles.

Carebaria, (Gr.) heavineſs of the Head, a Diſtemper.

Carecta or Carectata (in old Latin Records) a Cart, or Cart-load.

Carectata Plumbi, a Pig or Maſs of Lead, weighing 128 Stone, or 2100 Pounds.

Careeks, (old Word) Marks.

To Careen, (Sea-term) to refit, or trim a Ship, which is done when ſhe is made ſo light, that by means of another lower Veſſel laid near her, ſhe may be brought down on one Side, to the third, fourth, or fifth Strake, in order to be Calk'd, or Trimm'd, or have any thing mended on the other Side. Whence if a Ship lye much on the one Side in her bearing Sail, ſhe is ſaid To Sail on the Careen.

Career, (Fr.) a Courſe, a Race, a running full ſpeed.

To Careſs, to make much of, to treat very obligingly, to fawn upon, to court.

Careſſes, great Expreſſions of Friendſhip and Indearment, extraordinary Compliments.

Careum, (Lat.) the Herb Caraways.

Carex, Burr-reed, Sedge, or Sheer-graſs.

Carfax, a Place where four ſeveral Streets, or Ways meet together, particularly the Name of the Market-place in Oxford.

Carſe, (in Husbandry) Ground unbroken, or untilled.

Cargaiſon, (Fr.) an old Word for Cargo.

Cargo, (Ital.) the Fraight, whole Lading, or Burden of a Ship; alſo the Loading of a Horſe of 300 or 400 Pounds.

Cariatides. See Caryatides.

Caribbe-Iſlands or Canibal-Iſlands, ſeveral Iſlands in the Weſt-Indies, ſo nam'd from certain People feeding on a Man's-fleſh, by whom they were formerly inhabited: The chief of them are now in the Poſſeſſion of the Engliſh; as Barbadoes, St. Chriſtophers, Nevis, &c.

Carica, (Lat.) a kind of dry Fig, a lenten Fig.

Carica or Caruca, a Sea-veſſel, a Ship call'd a Carick.

Carides, Prawns, or Shrimps; a ſort of Fiſh.

Caries, rottenneſs in Wood that is Worm-eaten: In Surgery, a Rottenneſs, Gangreen, or Ulcer of the Bones, when their Subſtance is putrify'd.

Carina, the Keel, or Bottom of a Ship; or the whole Ship: Alſo an Anatomical Term for the beginning of the entire Vertebræ, or Turning-joynts, as they appear in a young Chicken in the Shell, from its being crooked like a Ship's Keel: And Herbaliſts for the ſame reaſon uſe the Word Carina to expreſs the lower Petalum, or Leaf of a Papillionaceous Flower: The Leaves of the Aſphodelus are alſo ſaid To be Carinated.

Cark, a certain quantity of Wooll, the thirtieth part of a Sarplar; which See.

Carking, Perplexing, or Diſtracting, as Carking Cares.

Carknet, (Fr.) a Chain of Jewels for the Neck.

Carl, a Clown, from the Saxon Word Ceorle of the ſame Signification.

Carleton, a Town in Norfolk, held by a pleaſant Tenure, viz. That 100 Herrings bak'd in 24 Pies ſhould be preſented to the King, in what part of England ſoever he was, when they firſt came into Seaſon. The Cuſtom is ſtill obſerv'd, and the Herrings duly convey'd to the Queen by the Lord of the Manour.

Carlina or Carolina, the Carline-thiſtle, a Plant ſo call'd from the Emperour Charles the Great; whoſe Army was preſerv'd from the Plague by the Uſe of its Root.

Carlings (among Shipwrights) are Timbers in a Ship that lie along fore and aft from one Beam to another, and bear up the Ledges, on which the Planks of the Deck are made faſt.

Carling-knees, Timbers lying a-croſs from the Ship, from her Sides to the Hatch-way between the two Maſts, and bearing up the Deck on both Sides.

Carmel, a Military Order of Knights, appointed by the Emperour, Henry IV. under the Title of our Lady of Mount Carmel.

Carmelites, an Order of Monks, founded at Mount Carmel in Syria, by Almericus, Biſhop of Antioch, A. D. 1122.

Carminantia or Carminativa, Carminative Medicines, i. e. ſuch as ſerve to diſperſe and drive out Wind.

Carmouſal, a Turkiſh Merchant-man. See Caramoſil.

Carnadoe, a Spaniſh Coin, of which ſix make a Marveid, and 54 Marveids a Ryal, which is equal to ſix Pence Engliſh Money.

Carnage, (Lat.) a Maſſacre, or great Slaughter: Among Hunters, the Fleſh that is given to Dogs after the Chace.

Carnal, belonging to the Fleſh, Fleſhly, or Senſual.

Carnality, Fleſhlineſs, a being given to fleſhly Luſts.

Carnarium, (Lat.) a Butcher's Shambles, a Butchery, or Fleſh-market; a Larder, or Room where where Fleſh is hung up, or kept: In old Records, a Charnel-houſe, or Place where the Bones of the Dead are laid up.

Carnation, a reddiſh-white Colour, reſembling that of Fleſh: Alſo a kind of Gilliflower, or double Pink, ſo call'd from its being of that Colour. In Painting, it is taken for ſuch Parts of a Humane Body as are drawn naked without any Drapery: So that when the bare Fleſh is ſo expreſs'd to the Life well-coloured, bold and ſtrong, the Painter's Carnation is ſaid to be very good.

Carnaval or Carnival, Shrove-tide, a Time of Feaſting and Merriment among Roman Catholicks, from the Feſtival of Twelfth Day till Lent, when more than ordinary Liberty is allow'd, as it were to make amends for the Abſtinence, or Penance which is to be undergone afterwards: Whence it is Figuratively taken for any time of Riot ing, or Licentiouſneſs.

Carnel, a little Ship that goes with Miſſen-Sails inſtead of Main-Sails, and is much in uſe about Spain.

Carnel-work, a Term us'd when Ships are built firſt with their Timbers and Beams, and afterwards have their Planks brought on; in which reſpect, it is diſtinguiſhed from Clinch-work.

Carneol, a kind of Herb; alſo a precious Stone. See Sardius Lapis.

Carney, a Diſeaſe in Horſes, whereby their Mouths become ſo furr'd and clammy that they cannot eat.

Carnivorous, devouring Fleſh, that lives upon eating Fleſh; as Carnivorous Animals, i. e. ſuch Living-creatures as feed on Fleſh wholly, or chiefly.

Carnogan, (old Britiſh Word) a kind of wooden Diſh, or Piggen.

Carnoſity, (Lat.) an abounding in Fleſh, a more than ordinary Fleſhineſs in any part of the Body; any thing that grows out in the Fleſh, eſpecially in the Yard, ſo as to ſtop the Paſſage of the Urine.

Carnous, full of Fleſh, Fleſhy, as A Carnous Membrane.

Carnouſe, the Baſe-ring, or greateſt Circle about the Breech of a great Gun.

Caro, (Lat.) the Fleſh of Living-creatures, defin'd by Anatomiſts to be a ſimilar, fibrous, bloody, ſoft and thick Part, which with the Bones is the main Prop of the Body: Among Herbaliſts, the Subſtance under the Pill, or Rind of Trees; the Pulp, or ſoft Subſtance contain'd within any Plant, or its Fruit; as the Pulp of Caſſia, Prunes, Tamarinds, &c.

Carob, a ſort of ſmall Weight us'd by Goldſmiths, being the 24th part of a Grain.

Carob or Carob-bean, a Fruit that taſtes ſomewhat like Cheſnuts.

Carol, (Fr.) a kind of Dance: Alſo an Hymn, or Song ſung at Chriſtmas, in honour of our Bleſſed Saviour's Birth.

Carola, (in old Latin Records) a little Pew, or Cloſet. See Carrel.

Carolina-hat, a ſort of Felt, or Cloath-hat.

Carolus, a broad piece of Gold, made by K. Charles I. for 20 Shillings, which in proportion to Guinea's paſſing at 21 s. 6 d. is worth 23 s. Alſo an old French Coin of Ten Deniers Value, or three Farthings Engliſh.

Caros, (Gr.) Surfeiting; alſo a Lethargy, or deep Sleep. See Carus.

Caros or Caron, the Herb Caraways.

Carota, (Lat.) the wild Carret.

Caroteel, a particular quantity of ſome Merchandizes; as Of Cloves, from four to five Hundred Weight: Of Currans, from 5 to 9 C. Of Mace, about 3 C. Of Nutmegs, from 6 to 7 $\frac{1}{2}$ C.

Carotides, (Gr. in Anat.) the Carotid Arteries which ſpring from the aſcending Trunk of the Aorta, or great Artery, and march up to the Brain; being ſo call'd, becauſe when tyed, or ſtopt, they immediately incline the Perſon to ſleep, or cauſe a Lethargy.

Carouſe, (Fr.) hard Drinking, an extraordinary Drinking-bout.

To Carouſe, to drink hand to fiſt; to quaff, or take large Draughts.

Carp, an excellent Freſh-water Fiſh.

To Carp, to cenſure, or blame; to cavil, to find fault with.

Carp-ſtone, a Stone of a triangular Figure, found in the Palate of a Carp.

Carpenter's-rule, an Inſtrument made of Box, a Foot or 18 Inches long, to ſhut with a Joynt, for the Meaſuring of Timber and Boards.

Carpentry, the Carpenter's Art, or Trade.

Carpentum, (Lat.) a Chariot, a Coach or Waggon. In Aſtrology, the Throne, or Seat of a Planet, when poſited, or ſet in a Place where it has moſt Dignities.

Carpeſium, (Gr.) Cubebs, a kind of Plant.

Carphos, the Herb Fenegreek.

Carpia, (Lat.) a Tent put into a Wound, or Ulcer to cleanſe it.

Carpinus, a kind of Oak, Plane-tree, or Maple, Hedge-beach, or Horn-beam.

Carpio, the Carp-fiſh.

Carpmeals, a kind of courſe Cloath made in the Northern Parts of England.

Carpobalſamum, the Fruit of the Balſam-tree.

Carpocratians, a Sect of Hereticks that had Carpocrates for their Ring-leader, A.C. 120. They deny'd the Divinity of Chriſt, and the Creation of the World.

Carpophyllon, a Shrub, call'd Laurel of Alexandria.

Carpus, the Wriſt, conſiſting of eight ſmall Bones, with which the Cubit, or Elbow is joyn'd to the Hand.

Carrack or Carrick, a great Ship, from the Italian Word Carico, or Carco, ſignifying a Burden.

Carrat or Carect, was formerly us'd for any Weight, or Burden; but is now only apply'd to the Weight of Gold, or precious Stones. See Carat.

Carre, (Country-word) woody, moiſt and boggy Ground.

Carrel, a Cloſet, or Pew in a Monaſtery, for Privacy and Retirement. In old Times, every Monk had his ſeveral Carrel to himſelf, and us'd to reſort thither after Dinner to Study.

Carreta or Carrecta, (in ancient Latin Deeds) a Carriage, a Cart-load, or Waggon-load; as Carreta fœni, a Load of Hay.

Carriage, the carrying of Goods, or Merchandizes; alſo a kind of cover'd, or cloſe Waggon; alſo one's Meen, or Behaviour: In Husbandry, Carriage is taken for a ſort of Furrow cut on purpoſe for the conveying of Water to over-flow, or drown the Ground.

Carriages for Pieces of Ordinance, a kind of long, narrow Carts, each made to the proportion of the Gun it is to carry: When they ſtand upon Batteries they have only two Wheels, but when drawn, two other leſs Wheels are added beyond the Breech of the Piece.

Carriers-ſauce. See Poor-man's Sauce.

Carrion, the ſtinking Carcaſs, or Fleſh of a dead Beaſt.

Carrouſel, (Fr.) a magnificent Feſtival made by Princes, or Noble-men, upon ſome Occaſion of Publick Rejoycing, which conſiſts in a Cavalcade, or Solemn Riding on Horſe-back of great Perſonages richly clad, Courſes of Chariots and Horſes, Publick Shews, Games, &c.

Carruca, (Lat.) a Caroach, a Chariot, a Cart.

Carry, (in Falconry) ſignifies a Hawk's flying away with the Quarry.

To Carry a Bone, a Sea-phraſe. See Bone.

Carrying, is alſo a Term in Hunting: For when an Hare runs on rotten Ground, or ſometimes on Froſt, and it ſticks to her Feet, the Huntſmen ſay She carries.

Cartel, (Fr.) a Challenge to a Duel, a Letter of Defiance: Alſo a Regulation, or Agreement betwixt Parties at War, for the Exchanging and Redeeming of Priſoners.

Carteſian, belonging to, or one that follows the Opinions of the famous French Philoſopher Carteſius, or Des Cartes.

Carthamus, (Lat.) wild, or baſtard Saffron, whoſe Flowers are of a Saffron-colour, but the Leaves reſemble Carduus Benedictus: It is ſometimes us'd in Phyſick, and Purges very ſtrongly.

Carthiſmandua, a famous Britiſh Lady, Queen of the Brigantes, who caſting off her Husband Venuſius, Marry'd his Armour-bearer, and Crown'd him King.

Carthuſians or Chartreux, an order of Monks, Founded A. D. 1101. by one Bruno a Native of Colen, and Canon of Rheims in France, who retir'd from the Converſe of the World 1084, to a Place call'd La Chartreuſe, in the Mountains of Dauphiné.

Cartilage, (Lat. in Anat.) a Griſtle, or Tendrel, as of the Ear, Noſe, &c. A Similar white Part, which is more hard and dry than a Ligament, but ſofter than a Bone: It renders the Articulation, or joynting of Bones more eaſy, and defends ſeveral Parts from outward Injuries.

Cartilaginous, belonging to, or full of Griſtles griſtly.

Cartoon, (in Painting) a Deſign, or Draught made upon Paper, to be afterwards drawn in freſco upon a Wall.

Cartridge, Cartouch, or Cartooſe, a Charge of Powder for a great, or ſmall Gun, put in a Caſe made of thick Paper, Paſte-board, Parchment, or Tin, and exactly fitted to the Bore of the Piece. Cartridge is alſo a kind of Ornament in Carving, or Painting.

Caruca, (in ancient Latin Deeds) a Plough, from the French Word Charrue, which ſignifies the ſame thing.

Carucage or Caruage, a Term ſometimes us'd in Husbandry; the Ploughing of Ground, either ordinary for Grain, Hemp and Line, or extraordinary for Woad, Dyers-weed, Rape, Panick, &c. In a Law-ſenſe, a Tax heretofore laid on a Carue of Land; alſo an Exemption from, or a being quit of that Tribute.

Carucata, a Carue, or Plough-land, or as much Land as may be Till'd in a Year with one Plough: It is alſo ſometimes taken for a Cart-load; as Carucata ligni, a Cart-load of Wood.

Carucata Boum, a Team of Oxen for Drawing, or Ploughing.

Carucatarius, one that held Lands in Carue, or Plough-Tenure.

Carve or Carue of Land, the ſame with Carucata; which See.

Carvel. See Caravel.

Carvist, (among Falconers) a Hawk is ſo call'd in the beginning of the Year, from its being carry'd on the Fiſt.

Caruncula, (Lat.) a Caruncle, or little piece of Fleſh, a Fleſh-kernel.

Carunculæ Lachrymales, or Carunculæ Oculi, (in Anat) the Caruncles of the Eye, certain Glandules or Kernels plac'd at each Corner of the Eye, which ſeparate Matter for the moiſtening of it, the ſame with Tears.

Carunculæ Myrtiformes, the Wrinklings of the Orifice of the Vagina or Womb-Paſſage, which in Women with Child, and after Child-birth, are ſo defac'd, that they cannot be perceiv'd.

Carunculæ Papillares, are ten ſmall Bodies in the Reins or Kidneys, which receive the Humour call'd Serum, from the little Channels, and convey it into the Pelvis.

Carus or Caros, (Gr.) a Sleep, in which the Perſon affected, being pull'd, pinch'd, and call'd, ſcarce ſhews any Sign either of Feeling or Hearing: This Diſtemper is without a Feaver, being in Degree greater than a Lethargy, but leſs than an Apoplexy.

Caryatides, (in Architect.) an Order of Pillars ſhap'd like the Bodies of Women, with their Arms cut off, and cloath'd in a Robe reaching down to their Feet. Theſe Figures ſupport the Entablature, and were at firſt made to repreſent the Women of Carya in Peloponneſus, who were made captive by the Greeks, and carry'd in Triumph, after all the Male Inhabitants were put to the Sword, and their City burnt, for treacherouſly joyning with the Perſians agaiſt their own Country.

Carpitis, a kind of Spurge; an Herb.

Caryocoſtinum, an Electuary, ſo call'd from its Ingredients, which are Cloves and Coſtos; it is chiefly us'd for the Gout and Pains in the Limbs.

Caryocatactes, the Nut-breaker, or Nut-jobber; a ſort of Bird.

Caryon, any kind of Nut, more eſpecially the Walnut. Caryon myriſticon, a Nutmeg.

Caryophyllata, Avens, an Herb of a ſomewhat binding Quality, chiefly us'd inwardly to cure Rheums, and for quickening the Bloud.

Caryophylleus Flos, a Pink-flower.

Caryophyllum, the Clove-Gilliflower.

Caryophyllum aromaticum, the Clove, an Indian Spice.

Caryota, a kind of Date as big as a Walnut.

Caſcabel, the Pummel, or hindermoſt round Knob at the Breech of a great Gun, by ſome call'd the Caſcabel-deck.

Caſcade, (Ital.) a Fall of Waters from a Rock into a low Place, or an artificial Water-fall, ſuch as is made in ſome Gentlemens Gardens.

Caſcan, (Fr. in Fortif.) a Hole, or hollow Place in Form of a Well, from whence a Gallery digged in like manner under Ground, is convey'd to give Air to the Enemies Mine.

Caſcarilla, (Lat.) the Bark of an Indian Tree.

Caſe, Thing, Matter, Queſtion, Occaſion, Condition: Among Printers, a Frame divided into little Boxes, wherein the caſt Letters of the Alphabet are put, in order to be pick'd out for the compoſing of Words, &c.

Caſe of Conſcience, a Scruple or Queſtion about ſome Matter of Religion, which the diſſatisfy'd Party is deſirous to have reſolved.

Caſe of Normandy-Glaſs, a Quantity conſiſting of 120 Foot.

Caſes, (in Grammar) are choſe Accidents of a Noun, which ſhew how it is vary'd in its Conſtruction: Theſe are ſix in Number; viz. the Nominative, Genitive, Dative, Accuſative, Vocative, and Ablative; which See in their proper Places.

Caſe-ſhot or Burrel-ſhot, (in Gunnery) ſmall Bullets, Nails, Pieces of old Iron, Stones, &c. put into Caſes, to be ſhot out of the Ordinance or Murdering-Pieces.

Caſemate, (in Fortif.) a Well with its ſeveral Branches under Ground digged in the Paſſage of the Baſtion till the Miner is heard at Work, and Air given to the Mine: Alſo a Vault made of Maſons-Work, in that Part of the Flank of a Baſtion, which is next the Courtin, on purpoſe to fire upon the Enemy, and to defend the Face of the oppoſite Baſtion with the Moat: Alſo a Loop-hole in a Wall to ſhoot through.

Caſement, part of a Window that opens to let in the Air, &c. Alſo a Term in Architecture, the ſame as Trochilus; which See.

Caſern, (Fr. in Fortificat.) a little Building, Room, or Lodgment rais'd between the Rampart and the Houſes of a fortify'd Town, to ſerve as an Apartment or Lodging for the Soldiers of the Garriſon.

Caſh, a Term us'd by Merchants for ready Money.

Caſhier, a Caſh-keeper.

To Caſhire, to disband or break up a Regiment or Company; to turn a Soldier with Diſgrace out of a Company.

Caſhou, the Juice or Gum of a Tree in the Eaſt-Indies.

Caſings or Cow-blakes, (Country-Word) dry'd Cow-Dung for Fewel.

Caſk, a kind of Veſſel; alſo an Head-piece.

Caſk of Almonds, a Barrel containing about three hundred Weight: Of Sugar, from 8 to 11 C.

Caſket, a little Coffer, or Cabinet.

Caſkets, (in a Ship) are ſmall Strings made of Sinnet, and fix'd to the upper part of the Yards in little Rings call'd Grommets, to make faſt the Sails to the Yards, when they are to be furl'd up. The biggeſt and longeſt of theſe, termed the Breaſt-Caſket, is in the middle of the Yard, juſt between the Ties.

Caſs-weed, a kind of Herb.

Caſſatum or Caſſata, (in old Latin Records) a Houſe with Land ſufficient to maintain one Family.

Caſſade, a Root very common in America, the Juice of which is rank Poiſon, but the dry Subſtance, after the Juice is ſqueez'd out, is the general Bread of that Country.

Caſſawary or Emeu, a large Fowl, about the Bigneſs of an Oſtridge, with Feathers reſembling Camels-Hair.

Caſſerole, (Fr.) a Copper-Pan: In Cookery, a Loaf ſtuff'd with a Haſh of roaſted Pullets, Chickens, &c. and dreſs'd in a Stew-Pan of the ſame Bigneſs with the Loaf: Alſo a kind of Soop or Potage of Rice, &c. with a Ragoo.

Caſſia Fiſtula, (Lat.) Caſſia in the Pipe or Cane, a kind of Reed or Shrub that grows in India and Africa, bearing black, round and long Cods, in which is contain'd a ſoft black Subſtance, ſweet like Honey, and of a purging Quality.

Caſſia Lignea, the ſweet Wood of a Tree, very much like Cinnamon.

Caſſidony, an Herb, otherwiſe call'd Caſt-me-down, and French Lavender.

Caſſine, a ſort of Country Farm-Houſe in Italy, ſuch as are often fortify'd by the Parties engag'd in the preſent War, to maintain a particular Poſt, or upon ſome other Occaſion.

Caſſiopea or Caſſiopeia, a Northern Conſtellation, conſiſting of 25 fixed Stars, and plac'd oppoſite to the Great Bear on the other Side of the Pole-Star.

Caſſique, a Soveraign Lord, King, or chief Governour in ſome Parts of the Weſt-Indies.

Caſſiteron, (Gr.) Tin, white Lead.

Caſſitias, a kind of Gum growing on the Larch or Firr-tree.

Caſſock, a ſort of Gown, eſpecially ſuch as are worn by Clergy-men.

Caſſonade or Caſtonade, Cask-Sugar, Sugar put up into Casks or Cheſts, after the firſt Purification.

Caſſuta, (Lat.) the Weed Dodder, or Woodbind, winding about other Herbs.

Caſt, a Throw: In Falconry, a ſet or Couple of Hawks.

To Caſt a Hawk to the Pearch, is to put her upon it.

To Caſt a Point of Traverſe, (in Navigat.) to prick down on a Chart the Point of the Compaſs any Land bears from you, or to find on what Point the Ship bears at any inſtant, or what Way the Ship has made. See Traverſe.

Caſtaldick or Caſtaldy, (old Word) a Stewardſhip.

Caſtanea, (Lat.) the Cheſtnut-tree, and Fruit which is of a binding Quality.

Caſtanets, (Fr.) a ſort of Snappers which Dancers of Sarabands tie about their Fingers, to keep time with as they Dance.

Caſtellaine, a Keeper, Captain, or Conſtable of a Caſtle.

Caſtellany, the Manour, or Lordſhip belonging to a Caſtle, the extent of its Land and Juriſdiction.

Caſtellorum Operatio, (Lat.) Caſtle-work, a Service, or Labour formerly perform'd by Inferiour Tenants, for the Building and Upholding of Caſtles and other Publick Places of Defence.

Caſtigation, Chaſtiſement, Puniſhment, Correction.

Caſtigatory, that ſerves to Chaſtiſe.

Caſting, (in Falconry) any thing given to a Hawk to cleanſe and purge her Gorge, or Maw; as a Pellet of Hemp, Cotton, Feathers, &c.

Caſting-net, a Fiſhing-net, of which there are two ſorts, but much alike in uſe and manner of throwing out.

Caſtle, a Place ſtrong either by Nature or Art, in a City, or in the Country, to keep the People in Obedience.

To Caſtle, a Term us'd at Cheſs-play.

Caſtle-guard Rents, Rents paid by thoſe that dwell within the Precincts, or Bounds of a Caſtle, for maintaining Watch and Ward there.

Caſtle-ſteed, a Word anciently us'd for any Caſtle, Fort, or Bulwark.

Caſtleward, an Impoſition, or Tax upon ſuch as dwell within a certain Compaſs of any Caſtle towards the maintenance of thoſe that watch and ward the ſame: It is alſo taken for the Circuit it ſelf, inhabited by ſuch as are ſubject to this Service.

Caſtling, the Young of any Beaſt untimely brought forth.

Caſtonade. See Caſſonade.

Caſtor, (Gr.) the Beaver, a wild Beaſt: Alſo a fine ſort of Hat made of the Beaver's Furr. See Beaver.

Caſtor, a fixed Star of the Second Magnitude, or Light in Gemini, whoſe Longitude is 105 Deg. 41 Min. Latitude 10 Deg. 2 Min.

Caſtor and Pollux, the Sons of Jupiter and Leda, whoſe Embraces that Heathen God is feign'd to have enjoy'd under the Form of a Swan. In Aſtronomy, they are taken for a Conſtellation, or Company of fixed Stars, the ſame with Gemini, being one of the twelve Signs of the Zodiack:

Alſo certain fiery Meteors which in great Tempeſts at Sea uſually appear ſometimes in ſwift Motion, and ſometimes ſettling on the Maſts, or other parts of the Ship, in the ſhape of Balls of Fire: Theſe Fires if double ſignify an approaching Calm, if ſingle the continuance of the Storm, and the latter is call'd Helena.

Caſtoreum, a Medicine againſt Convulſions, made of the Liquor contain'd in the little Bags that are next the Beaver's Groin, which is oily and of a ſtrong Scent.

Caſtrametation, the Art of encamping, or pitching a Camp, wherein to lodge an Army.

Caſtrata, a kind of red Wheat.

To Caſtrate, to Geld, or cut out the Stones of a Living-creature; alſo to take away, or leave out ſome part of an Author's Works in the publiſhing of them.

Caſtration, the Act of Caſtrating, or gelding; an Operation ſometimes perform'd by Surgeons, when there is a Mortification, or a fleſhy Rupture of the Teſticles.

Caſtrel or Keſtrel, a ſort of Hawk, which in Shape much reſembles the Lanner, but for ſize is like the Hobby: Her Game is the Growſe, a Fowl common in the North of England and elſewhere.

Caſtrenſian Crown. See Corona Caſtrenſis.

Caſual, (Lat.) accidental, happening by Chance.

Caſualty, an Accident that falls out meerly by Fortune, or Chance, neither foreſeen nor expected.

Caſu Conſimili, a Writ of Entry granted where a Tenant in Courteſy, or Tenant for Term of Life, or for the Life of another, alienates, or makes over Land in Fee, or in Tail, or for the Term of another's Life.

Caſu Proviſo, a Writ of Entry given by the Statute of Glouceſter, where a Tenant in Dower, aliens in Fee, or for Term of Life, or in Tail; and it lies for the Party in Reverſion againſt the Alienee.

Caſuiſt, one skill'd in reſolving Caſes of Conſcience.

Caſula or Caſule, a Maſs-Prieſt's Veſtment. See Chaſuble.

Cat, a well known Creature, bred in almoſt all Countries in the World; alſo a Sea-Term. See Catt.

Cat-barnt Pear, a ſort of Pear ripe in October and November.

Cat-fiſh, a kind of Fiſh in the Weſt-Indies, ſo call'd from its round Head and large glaring Eyes, by which they are diſcover'd in hollow Rocks.

Cat-mint or Cats-mint, an Herb which Cats much delight to eat, good for Stoppages of the Womb, Barrenneſs, &c.

Cat-pear, a kind of Pear ſhap'd like an Hen's Egg, and ripe in October.

Cats-foot, an Herb otherwiſe call'd Ale-hoof; which See.

Cats-tail or Red-plum, a long round Subſtance that grows in the Winter upon Nut-trees, Pines, &c. Alſo a kind of Reed bearing a Spike like a Cats-tail; ſome call it Reed-mace.

Catabaptiſt, (Gr.) one that is averſe from, or abuſes the Sacrament of Baptiſm.

Catabibazon, (i. e. deſcending) the South Node, or Dragon's Tail, ſometimes ſo call'd by Aſtronomers, becauſe it goes down exactly againſt the Dragon's Head.

Catacatharticks, Medicines that purge downwards.

Catacauſtick Curve or Cauſtick by Reflection, (in Catoptricks) is a curve or crooked Line, form'd by joyning the Points of Concourſe of ſeveral Reflected Rays.

Catachreſis, (i. e. Abuſe) a Rhetorical Figure, when one Word is abuſively put for another, an improper Expreſſion, when for want of a proper Word to explain a Thought, we take one that is near it, or even of a quite contrary Signification; as when we call a Man a Parricide that kills the King, or his Maſter, whereas a Parricide is ſtrictly one that kills his Father: Or when we ſay a Silver Ink-horn, &c.

Catacliva, (in Anat.) the Rib call'd the Subclavian.

Cataclyſmus, a general Floud, a Deluge a great Rain, or overflowing with Water.

Catacombs, the Tombs of the Martys ſo call'd in Italy, which the People go to viſit out of a Principle of Devotion. Theſe are certain Grottos, or Caves under Ground, about three Leagues from Rome, where the Primitive Chriſtians hid themſelves in times of Perſecution, and bury'd thoſe that ſuffer'd Martyrdom.

Catacouſticks or Cataphonicks, a Science which treats of reflected Sounds, or that explains the Nature and Properties of Echoes.

Catadioptrical Teleſcope, the ſame as the Reflecting Teleſcope. See Teleſcope.

Catadrome, an Engine like a Crane anciently us'd by Builders in heaving up, or letting down any great Weight: Alſo a Tilt-yard, or place where Horſes run for Prizes.

Catadupa or Catadupi, Places where the Waters of a River fall with a great Noiſe.

Catægis, a Stormy, or hollow Wind.

Catagma, a breaking, or Burſting: In Surgery, the breaking of Bones, or a ſeparation of Continuity in the hard Parts of the Body done by means of ſome hard Inſtrument.

Catagmaticks or Catagmatick Medicines, ſuch Remedies as are proper for the conſolidating, or kniting together of broken Bones.

Catagraphe, the firſt Draught or Deſign of a Picture.

Catalectick Verſe, a Greek or Latin Verſe, in which one Syllable is wanting, as Mea renidet in domo Hor. lacunar. Which Verſe only wants one Syllable to make it a perfect Jambick.

Catalepſis or Catochus, a Diſeaſe almoſt like an Apoplexy, by which all the Animal Functions are aboliſh'd, yet ſo as the Reſpiration, or Faculty of breathing remains entire, and the Patient keeps the ſame Habit of Body that he did before he was ſeiz'd with the Diſtemper.

Catalla, (Lat. Law-word) Catals, or Chattels.

Catallis captis nomine Diſtrictionis, a Writ that lies for Rent due in a Borough or Houſe, and warrants a Man to take the Gates, Doors, or Windows, by way of Diſtreſs.

Catallis reddendis, a Writ granted where Goods being deliver'd to any Perſon, to keep for ſome time, they are not deliver'd upon Demand at the Day appointed.

Catalogue, a Roll, or Liſt of Names, Titles of Books, &c.

Cataloticks, Medicines that bring an Eſcar upon Ulcers, or Sores.

Catamenia, Womens Monthly Courſes, or Terms.

Catamite, an Ingle, or Boy kept for Sodomy.

Catampo or Catambo, a kind of Play between two Perſons, toſſing ſomething one to another, as Shittle-cock, &c.

Catapaſma, a ſweet Powder to be ſtrew'd amidſt Clothes; alſo ſuch as are ſometimes apply'd to the Heart-pit to ſtrengthen the Stomach.

Cataphonicks. See Catacouſticks.

Cataphora, a Diſeaſe in the Head, which cauſes Heavineſs and deep Sleep: A general Name for all ſorts of drowſy Diſtempers that are not attended with a Feaver.

Cataphracta, a Breaſt-plate, or Coat of Mail; a Cuiraſs.

Cataphractarius, a Horſeman in compleat Armour, a Cuiraſſier.

Cataphrygians, a Sect of Hereticks, who baptiz'd their Dead, forbid ſecond Marriages, and held other extravagant Opinions broach'd by Montanus and Apelles, who were of the Country of Phrygia, A. C. 181.

Cataplaſm, a Medicine of the Conſiſtence of a Poultiſs made of proper Herbs, Roots, Seeds, Flowers, &c. either boil'd or otherwiſe, and apply'd to the diſeaſed Part.

Catapotium, a Medicine to be ſwallow'd without chewing, a purging Pill.

Cataptoſis, a Falling, a Fall, Ruin: Among ſome Writers in Phyſick, it is taken for a Symptom of the Falling-Sickneſs, when the Patient falls ſuddenly upon the Ground.

Catapulta, a warlike Engine, with which the Ancients us'd to caſt the larger ſort of Darts and Spears, ſome of which were 12 or 15 Foot long: In ſome old Records, it is taken for a Croſs-bow.

Cataputia, a ſort of Spurge; an Herb.

Cataract, a ſteep Place in the Channel of a River, caus'd by Rocks or other Obſtacles, ſtopping the Courſe of its Stream, ſo that the Water falls with great Force and Noiſe; as the Cataracts of the Danube, Nile, Rhine, &c. Alſo a Floud-Gate, a Sluce or Lock in a River: Alſo a Diſeaſe in the Eyes caus'd by a clotting of Phlegm between the Uveous Coat and the Cryſtalline Humour, which is of two ſorts, viz. either Incipient, or Confirmed.

The Incipient or beginning Cataract, is only a Suffuſion, when little Clouds, Motes and Flies ſeem to hover before the Eyes; but the Confirmed Cataract is, when the Apple of the Eye is either wholly or in part cover'd and over-ſpread with a little thin Skin, ſo that the Rays of Light cannot have due Admittance to the Eye.

Cataract, is alſo a Diſtemper in the Eyes of a Hawk, which proceeds from groſs Humours in the Head, that often not only dim, but quite extinguiſh and take away the Sight.

Catarracta or Cataracta, a Cataract, or great Fall of Water from an high Place: Alſo the Plungeon, a kind of Cormorant, ſo call'd, becauſe it violently flies down from on high to ſeize its Prey.

Catarrh, a Defluxion or Falling-down of Humours from the Head towards the lower Parts, as the Noſtrils, Mouth, Throat, Lungs, &c. Some diſtinguiſh it by the Name of Coryza when it falls on the Noſtrils, by that of Bronchus when on the Jaws, and by the Word Rheum when it lights on the Breaſt.

Catarrh of the Spinal Marrow, a Falling-out of the Marrow of the Spine or Back-Bone, which happens when certain Lymphatick Veſſels, which ſurround that Bone, are broken.

Catarrhus, (Gr.) a Catarrh, or falling Rheum.

Catarrhus Suffocatorius, a ſmothering Rheum, when the Glandules or Kernels about the Throat are ſwell'd, whereupon enſues a Difficulty of Breathing, and Danger of being ſtifled.

Cataſarca, a kind of Dropſy, the ſame as Anaſarca; which See.

Cataſta, (among the Romans) a Stage or Stall where they ſet Slaves to Sale, and on which Chriſtians us'd to be tormented.

Cataſtaſis, the third Act in a Comedy or Tragedy, in which Things are brought to full Perfection and Ripeneſs. In a Phyſical Senſe, the Diſpoſition of the Body, or of Time.

Cataſtema, State or Condition, particularly of the Air.

Cataſtrophe, the laſt Change, or chief Event in a Stage-Play; the End, or Iſſue of a Buſineſs; the fatal or tragical Concluſion of any Action, or of a Man's Life.

Catataſis, a Word us'd by ſome Authors that treat of Phyſick, for an Extenſion or Stretching out of an Animal Body towards the lower Parts.

Catatonium, a Term us'd in ancient Architecture, when the Chapiter of a Pillar is not of a Height proportionable to its Breadth.

Catch, Prize, or Booty; alſo a ſhort and witty Song: Alſo a kind of ſwift-ſailing Sea-Veſſel, leſſer than a Hoy, and ſo built that it will endure any Sea whatſoever.

Catches, are alſo thoſe Parts of a Clock that hold, by hooking and catching hold of.

Catch and Hold, a Term us'd by Wreſtlers for a Running-catching one of another.

To Catch, to lay hold of, to ſnatch, to overtake, to ſurprize or come upon unawares.

Catch-Fly, a pretty Flower, the Stalks of which are ſo clammy, that they ſometimes become a Trap to the Flies.

Catch-Land, ſome Grounds in Norfolk ſo call'd, where it is not certainly known to what Pariſh they belong; ſo that the Parſon, who firſt gets the Tithes, enjoys them for that Year.

Catch-Pole, a Sergeant of the Mace, or Bailiff appointed to arreſt Perſons for Debt, or upon any other Account: The Word, tho' now us'd in Contempt, was anciently without Reproach.

Catechetical, (Gr.) that belongs to Catechizing.

Catechiſm, an Inſtruction by Word of Mouth in the Principles and chief Points of the Chriſtian Religion.

Catechiſt, one that is employ'd in Catechizing.

To Catechize, to inſtruct Youth in the fundamental Articles of the Chriſtian Faith.

Catechu, a Juice preſs'd out of ſeveral ſorts of Fruits that are of a binding Quality, which is brought from the Eaſt-Indies, and otherwiſe call'd Terra Japonica.

Catechumens, (in the Primitive Church) Perſons inſtructed, for ſome conſiderable Time, in the Principles of the Chriſtian Religion, before they were admitted to Baptiſm; Novices in Chriſtianity.

Categorema or Categoria, the ſame as Prædicamentum in Logick. See Predicament.

Categorematical, belonging to Logical Predicaments, as A Categorematical Word, i. e. a Word that ſignifies ſomething of it ſelf; as a Man, a Living-Creature.

Categorical, the ſame; alſo affirmative, poſitive, formal; ſaid in due Form, or to the Purpoſe, as A Categorical Anſwer.

Categorical Syllogiſm. See Syllogiſm Categorical.

Category, the ſame as Predicament; a Term in Logick, for Order or Rank.

Catenaria or Funicularis, (in Mechanical Geometry) is the Curve or crooked Line, which a Rope, hanging freely between two Points of Suſpenſion, forms it ſelf into.

To Cater, to provide Victuals, &c.

Caterer, a Purveyor, or Provider of Victuals and other Neceſſaries in a Nobleman's Houſe.

Caterpiller, a venomous Inſect, one of thoſe ſorts of Worms that eat up the Leaves, Buds and Bloſſoms of Trees and other Plants, and then change into Butter-flies. Whence envious Perſons, that do Miſchief without any Provocation, are call'd Caterpillers.

Caterpiller, is alſo a kind of Plant, only eſteem'd for its Seed-Veſſels, that are like green Worms or Caterpillers; ſome bigger, ſome leſſer.

Catharians, (Gr.) a Sect of Hereticks, who held themſelves altogether pure, or free from Sin, rejected Baptiſm, and deny'd Original Sin.

Catharine, a proper Name of Women, ſignifying in Greek, pure or chaſte.

St. Catharine's Flower, by ſome call'd Biſhops-wort, an Herb of great Virtue againſt the Phthiſick, Shortneſs of Breath, Rheums, &c.

Cathariſts, a Sort of Hereticks that were counted a Branch of the Manichees.

Catharpings, (in a Ship) are ſmall Ropes that run into little Blocks or Pullies from one Side of the Shrowds to the other near the Deck; their Uſe being to ſet the Shrowds taught or ſtiff, for the Eaſe and Safety of the Maſts when the Ship rolls.

Catharticks, a general Name for all purging Medicines.

Cathedral, a Church that is the Seat of a Biſhop or Archbiſhop.

Cathedratick, (Law-Word) the Summ of two Shillings paid to the Biſhop by the inferiour Clergy, in token of Subjection and Reſpect.

Cathemerina Febris, a Feaver or Ague that comes every Day.

Cathereticks, Medicines that take away Superfluities.

Catherplugs. See Catharpings.

Catheter, (Gr.) a kind of Probe, or hollow Inſtrument us'd by Surgeons to thruſt up the Yard, to provoke Urine when it is ſtopt by the Stone, or by Gravel lying in the Paſſage; or elſe for conveying another Inſtrument, call'd Itinerarium, to find out the Stone in the Bladder.

Catheteriſmus, the Operation of injecting or ſquirting any Medicinal Liquor into the Bladder by a Catheter or a Syringe.

Catheti, (in a Right-angled Triangle) are the Sides including the Right Angle.

Cathetus, (in Geom.) a Line that falls perpendicularly or downright upon another; more eſpecially the Perpendicular in a Triangle; the other Leg being call'd the Hypothenuſal, and the Bottom the Baſe.

In Architecture, Cathetus is taken for a Line ſuppoſed directly to traverſe the middle of a Cylindrical Body; as of a Balliſter or Pillar. In the Ionick Chapiter, it is alſo a Line falling perpendicularly, and paſſing through the Center or Eye of the Voluta or Scroll.

In Catoptricks, Cathetus ſignifies a Line drawn from the Point of Reflection, perpendicular to the Plane of the Glaſs or poliſhed Body.

Cathetus of Incidence, is a Right Line drawn from a Point of the Object, perpendicular to the Reflecting Line.

Cathetus of Reflection or Cathetus of the Eye, is a Right Line drawn from the Eye, perpendicular to the Reflecting Line.

Catholiciſm, the Roman-Catholick Profeſſion; a Mock-Word.

Catholick, Univerſal, General; as The Catholick Church: But the Church of Rome, which is only a Part of it, prepoſterouſly aſſumes the Title of Catholick, and the Papiſts are commonly call'd Roman-Catholicks: The Title of Moſt Catholick Majeſty is alſo attributed to the King of Spain. See Church.

Catholick Furnace, (in Chymiſtry) a little Furnace ſo diſpos'd as to be fit for all Operations, but thoſe that are perform'd with a violent Fire.

Catholicon, (in the Art of Phyſick) a purging Electuary, proper to diſperſe all ill Humours; an Univerſal Remedy, a Plaiſter for all Sores.

Cathozius, (in the Practick of Scotland) the Value of nine Kine; a Penalty or Fine ſet upon him that breaks the King's Peace.

Cathypnia, (Gr.) a profound or deep Sleep, ſuch as Men are in by taking Opiates, or by a Lethargy, &c.

Catini, an ancient People who liv'd about Cathneſt in Scotland.

Catkins or Ragged Catkins, a kind of Subſtance that grows on Nut-trees, Birch-trees, Pine-trees, &c. in the Winter-time, and falls off when the Trees begin to put forth their Leaves.

Catling, a ſort of Diſmembring-Knife, us'd in cutting off any corrupted Member or Part of the Body. Catlings are alſo the Down or Moſs that grows about Walnut-trees, reſembling a Cat's Hair. Catlings or Catlins are alſo a ſort of ſmall Cat-gut Strings for Muſical Inſtruments.

Catoblepas, (Gr.) a Beaſt with a great Head, which always hangs down, and kills at Sight, or rather with its venomous Breath.

Catocatharticks or Catoreticks, Medicines that work downwards, and purge by Stool only.

Catoche or Catochus, a Diſeaſe. See Catalepſis.

Ctochites, a precious Stone in Corſica, which is very clammy, like Gum; alſo a kind of Fig.

Catopſis, a Dimneſs of Sight, the ſame with Myopia.

Catoptricks, that Part of the Science of Opticks which ſhews after what manner Objects may be ſeen by Reflection; and alſo explains the Cauſes, Laws, and Properties of it.

Catoreticks. See Catharticks.

Catt or Catt-head, (Sea-Term) a large piece of Timber that is faſten'd aloft over the Hawſe, having two Shivers at one End, in which is put thro' a Rope with a Block or Pulley, and thereto is fix'd a great Iron-Hook, call'd the Catt-hook: Its Uſe is to triſe or hoiſe up the Anchor from the Hawſe to the Top of the Fore-caſtle.

Catt-holes, certain Holes above the Gun-room Port, through which upon Occaſion a Ship is heaved a-ſtern by means of a Stern-faſt, to which a Cable or Hawſer is brought for that Purpoſe.

Catt-rope, a Rope us'd in haling up the Catt.

Cattaria, the Herb Cat-mint, or Nep.

To Catterwawl, to cry and range about, as Cats do in the Night.

Cattieuchlani, (Lat.) an ancient People of great Britain, who liv'd in thoſe Parts which are now call'd Buckingham-ſhire, Bedford-ſhire, and Hartford-ſhire.

Catulus, a little Dog, a Whelp, or Puppey; the Young of all Beaſts; a Cub, a Kitling.

Catus, a Male, or Boar Cat.

Catzurus, (in old Records) a Hunting-horſe.

Cavalcade, (Fr.) a pompous riding on Horſeback of Courtiers and Perſons of Quality, upon ſome ſolemn Occaſion, to accompany and Honour their Prince.

Cavalier or Cavaleer, a Sword-Gentleman, a brave Warriour: The Word in French properly ſignifies a Horſe-man, or Trooper: In the Time of the Civil Wars under K. Charl. I. it was a Name by which the King's Party was diſtinguiſh'd.

In Fortification, Cavalier is a great Maſs, or heap of Earth, ſometimes round, and ſometimes a long Square, on the top of which is a Platform, with a Parapet, or Breaſt-work, to cover the Cannon planted on it: 'Tis rais'd in ſeveral Places, to oppoſe the Enemies commanding Works, to ſcour their Trenches, or the Field, &c.

Cavalry, Soldiers that ſerve and fight on Horſeback, a Body of Horſe in an Army.

Cava Vena. Se Vena Cava.

Cavazion, (in Architect.) the hollowing, or under-digging of the Earth for Cellerage, allow'd to be the ſixth part of the height of the whole Building.

Caucalis, (Gr.) an Herb like Fennel, with a white Flower, baſtard Parſley, Hedge-parſley.

Caucon, the Herb Horſe-tail.

Cauda, (Lat.) the Tail of a Beaſt, a Rump.

Cauda lucida, the Lion's Tail, a fixed Star of the firſt Magnitude, whoſe Longitude is 157 d. 53 m. Latitude 12 d. 16 m.

Cauda terræ, (in ancient Deeds) a Land's end; the bottom, or outmoſt part of a Ridge, or Furrow in Plough'd Lands.

Caudebec, (Fr.) a ſort of light Hat, firſt made at Caudebec, a Town of Normandy in France.

Cauder, (Lat.) the Stem, Trunk, or Body of a Tree.

Cave, a Den, or dark hollow Place under Ground.

To Cave or Chave, (Country-word) to ſeparate the larger Chaff from the Corn, or ſmall Chaff; alſo great Coals from leſſer, with a Rake, or ſome ſuch Iuſtrument.

Cavea, (Lat.) a Cave, or Pit. In Chiromancy, a hollow Place in the middle of the Palm of the Hand, in which three principal Lines, nam'd the Cardiack, Hepatick and Cephalick make a Triangle.

Caveat, a Caution, or Warning: Among Civilians, a Bill enter'd in the Eccleſiaſtical Court, to ſtop the Proceedings of thoſe who would prove a Will, to the Prejudice of another Party.

Cavern, a natural Cave, or hollow Place in a Rock, or Mountain, a Den, or Hole under Ground.

Cavernous, belonging to, or full of Caverns, Dens, or Holes.

Cavers, a Term us'd among the Miners, for Thieves that ſteal Oar out of the Mines.

Caveſon, a kind of falſe Rein, to hold, or lead a Horſe by.

Cauf, a Cheſt with Holes on the top, to keep Fiſh alive in the Water.

Caviary, (Ital.) a dainty Diſh made of the Roes of ſeveral Sorts of Fiſh Pickled, and eſpecially the Spawn of Sturgeon, catch'd in the River Volga in Muſcovy; which much reſembles green Soap, both in Colour and Subſtance.

Cavil, (Lat.) a captious Argument, a Quirk, a Shift.

To Cavil, to argue Captiouſly, to play the Sophiſter, to wrangle, to find fault with.

Cavillation, the Act of Cavilling, or Wrangling; a School-term for a Sophiſtical and falſe Argument, a particular manner of diſputing, grounded only upon Quirks and contentious Niceties.

Cavin, (Fr.) a hollow Way: In the Art of War, a hollow Place, proper to cover Troops, and favour their Approaches to a Fortreſs, ſo that they may advance therein under Shelter towards the Enemies, as it were in a Trench.

Cavity, (Lat.) Hollowneſs. Among Anatomiſts, Cavities are great hollow Spaces in the Body, which ſerve to contain one, or more principal Parts: as the Head for the Brain, the Cheſt for the Lungs, &c. The lower Belly for the Liver, Spleen, and other Bowels: The leſſer Cavities are the Ventricles of the Heart and Brain: Cavities are alſo taken for the hollow parts of Bones.

Cauldron, (Fr.) a kind of great Kettle.

Cauledon, (Gr. in Surgery) a Fracture, or breaking of a Bone a-croſs, when the Parts of it are ſo ſeparated that they will not lye ſtraight.

Cauliferous Plants, (among Herbaliſts) are ſuch as have a true Caulis, or Stalk, which a great many have not.

Caulis, (Lat.) the Stalk of any Herb; the Stem, or Trunk of a Tree: It is alſo put for any kind of Pot-herb, eſpecially Coleworts, Colliflowers, &c.

To Caulk. See To Calk.

Caulodes, (Gr.) a kind of broad-leav'd Colewort.

Caupes or Calpes, (Scotch Law-term) any Gift that a Man gives in his own Life-time to his Patrons; eſpecially to the Head of the Clan, or Tribe, for his Maintenance and Protection.

Caurſins, certain Italian Merchants, ſo call'd from Caorſi a Town in Lombardy, where they firſt practis'd their Arts of Uſury and Extortion; whence ſpreading themſelves and their vile Trade thro' moſt parts of Europe, they were a common Plague to every Nation where they got footing, and were baniſh'd from England by K. Henry III. A. D. 1240.

Caurus or Corus, (Lat.) the Weſtern, or North-weſt Wind, which commonly blows out of the Britiſh Sea.

Cauſa Matrimonii prælocuti, a Writ which lies where a Woman gives Lands to a Man in Fee Simple, to the Intent he ſhould Marry her, and he refuſes ſo to do in reaſonable time, being requir'd thereto by the Woman.

Cauſal Propoſitions, are thoſe that contain two Propoſitions joyned together by a Conjunction of the Cauſe [becauſe, or to the end that] as Woe to the Rich, becauſe they have their Felicity in this World.

Cauſality, the Action, or Power of a Cauſe in producing its Effect; a being the Cauſe, or Original of a thing.

Cauſam nobis ſignifices, a Writ that lies to a Mayor of a Town, or City, who being formerly commanded by the Queen's Writ, to give the Queen's Grantee Poſſeſſion of any Lands or Tenements, forbears to do it, requiring him to ſhew Cauſe, why he ſo delays the Performance of his Charge.

Cauſative, (in Grammar) as Cauſative Particles, i. e. thoſe that expreſs a Cauſe, or Reaſon; as for, becauſe, ſeeing that, &c.

Cauſe, Principle, Occaſion, Motive, Reaſon, Subject. In a Law-ſenſe, any Tryal, or Action brought before a Judge to be Diſputed, Pleaded, or Examined.

In Logick, Cauſe is that which produces an Effect, and it is fourfold, viz. The Efficient Cauſe, i. e. That from which any thing proceeds; the Material, that of which any thing is made; the Formal, that by which any thing is what it is; and the Final, that for the ſake of which any thing is done.

Cauſey or Cauſe-way, (Fr.) a High-way, a Bank rais'd in Marſhy Ground for Foot-paſſage.

Cauſodes, (Gr.) a continual burning Feaver.

Cauſon or Cauſus, a Burning, or Scorching, an exceſſive Heat: Alſo a burning Feaver that is attended with a greater Heat than other continu'd Feavers, an intolerable Thirſt, and other extraordinary Symptoms.

Cauſtick, (in Surgery) that is of a burning Quality, fit to burn the Skin, or Fleſh, or to bring an Eſcar, or Cruſt over a Sore, &c. As Cauſtick Medicines.

Cauſtick Curves, a Term in Geometry. See Catacauſtick.

A Cauſtick or Cauſtick Stone, a Compoſition made of ſeveral Ingredients, in order to burn, or eat Holes in the Part to which it is apply'd. See Cautery.

Cauſticks or Eſcharoticks, are thoſe things which burn the Skin and Fleſh into an Eſcar, or hard Cruſt; as a hot Iron, burnt Braſs, unſlacked Lime, ſublimated Mercury, &c.

Cautelous, (Lat.) circumſpect, wary, heedful.

Cauterization, (Gr.) the Act of Cauterizing, an artificial Burning made by a Cautery.

To Cauterize, to apply a Cautery, to burn with a Searing-iron.

Cautery, a Term uſually diſtinguiſh'd by Surgeons into Actual and Potential.

Actual Cautery, is Fire, or an Inſtrument made of Gold, Silver, Copper, or Iron, which being heated, has an actual Power of burning into any thing, and has an immediate Operation.

Potential Cautery, is a Cauſtick Stone, or Compoſition made of quick Lime, Soap, calcin'd Tartar, Chimney-ſoot, &c. which produces the ſame Effect, but in a longer ſpace of Time.

Silver-Cautery, otherwiſe call'd the Infernal Stone, is the beſt ſort of Cautery, made of Silver, diſſolved with three times as much Spirit of Nitre, and prepared according to Art. This Cauſtick will continue for ever, if it be not expos'd to the Air, and may alſo be made of Copper, but it will not keep ſo well.

Cauting-iron, an Iron which Farriers make uſe of to Cauterize, or Sear thoſe Parts of an Horſe that require Burning.

Caution, (Lat.) Heed, Heedfulneſs, or Warineſs; Warning, or Notice before-hand.

Cautionary, given in Pledge, or Pawn, as Cautionary Towns, i. e. Towns deliver'd up as Security for Money Lent, or for Performance of Articles.

Cautione admittenda, a Writ that lies againſt a Biſhop, holding an Excommunicate Perſon in Priſon for Contempt, notwithſtanding that he offers ſufficient Caution, or Pledges to obey the Commands and Orders of the Church for the future.

Cautious, provident, heedful, wary, well adviſed.

Cawking-time, a Term us'd by Falconers for the Hawks Treading-time.

Caya, (in old Latin Records) a Key, or Water-lock. See Kay.

Cayagium, a Toll, or Duty paid to the King for Landing Goods at ſome Key, or Wharf.

Cayer or Cahier, (Fr.) ſeveral Sheets of Paper ſlightly tack'd together, to be carry'd at pleaſure.

Cayman, a kind of Crocodile.

Cazemate. See Caſemate.

Cazern. See Caſern.

Cazimi, (Arab.) the Center of the Sun. Among Aſtrologers, a Planet is ſaid To be in Cazimi, when it is not above 17 Degrees diſtant from the Sun's Body: So when Saturn is in 3 Degrees 14 Min. of Taurus, and the Sun in 3 deg. 31 min. of the ſame Sign, Saturn is in Cazimi.

To Ceaſe, (Lat.) to leave off, or give over, to forbear, or diſcontinue; to be at an end.

Cebratane, (Fr.) a Trunk to ſhoot at Birds with Clay-pellets.

Ceca, a certain Religious Houſe at Corduba in Spain, of which it is ſaid Proverbially, To go from Ceca to Meca, i.e. To turn Turk, or Mahometan.

Cedar, a large Tree that bears Berries like Juniper, and whoſe Wood is almoſt incorruptible, by reaſon of its Bitterneſs, which renders it diſtaſtful to Worms: This Tree is always green, and delights in cold and Mountainous Countries; but if the top of it be cut off it dies.

Cedmata, (Gr.) Humours falling down upon the Joynts, eſpecially about the Hips.

Cedre, (Fr.) a kind of Citron, or Lemmon.

Cedrelate, (Gr.) the great ſort of Cedar as big as a Firr-tree, and yielding Pitch as that does.

Cedria, the Pitch, or Roſin that runs out of the great Cedar.

Cedrium, a Liquor, or Oil iſſuing from the Cedar-tree, with which Books, and other things were anciently anointed, to keep them from Moths, Worms and Rottenneſs: It was alſo us'd in Egypt, for the Embalming of Dead Bodies.

Cedroſtis, the white Vine growing in Hedges; Bryony.

Cedrus, the Cedar-tree.

Ceginus, a fixed Star of the third Magnitude in the left Shoulder of Bootes, whoſe Longitude is 194 Deg. 5 Min. Latitude 49 Deg. 33 Min. Right Aſcenſion 215 Deg. 29 Min. Declination 39 Deg. 27 Min.

Celandine, an Herb, otherwiſe call'd Swallow-wort, from a Tradition that Swallows make uſe of it as a Medicine for the Eye-ſight.

Celaſtrus, (Gr.) a kind of Tree that always has Leaves, but bears Fruit very late.

Cele, a Tumour, or Swelling in any part of the Body, eſpecially the Groin.

To Celebrate, (Lat.) to commend, or praiſe greatly, to ſet forth, to ſpread abroad one's Fame, to Solemnize.

Celebrated, Solemnized, highly Honoured; alſo Famous, or Renowned.

Celebration, the Act of Celebrating, the doing a thing with Ceremony and Solemnity.

Celebrious, famous, eminent, noted.

Celebrity, Famouſneſs, Publick Repute, Magnificence, Pomp.

Celerity, Swiftneſs, Expedition, Speed.

Celerrimi Deſcenſus Linea, (Lat. in Mathem.) the Curve of the ſwifteſt Deſcent of any Natural Body, or that crooked Line in which an heavy Body deſcending by its own Gravity, or Weight, ſhould move from one given Point to another in the ſhorteſt time.

Celery, an Herb much us'd in Winter-ſallets.

Celeſtial, Heavenly, Divine, Excellent.

Celeſtial Globe. See Globe.

Celeſtines, an Order of Monks founded, A. D. 1244, by one Peter a Samnite, who was afterwards choſen Pope under the Name of Celeſtine V.

Celibacy or Celibate, the State, or Condition of unmarried Perſons; ſingle Life.

Cell, the Habitation, or Hut of a Hermit; the Partitions in Monaſteries where the Monks lie, are alſo call'd Cells: Alſo a Name given by Herbaliſts to the Partitions, or hollow Places in the Husks, or Pods of Plants wherein the Seed is contain'd.

Cellar, an Apartment in the loweſt part of a Building under the Ground.

Cellarage, Cellar-room, Conveniencies in a Cellar for the ſtowing of Goods; alſo a Duty paid for laying Wine in a Cellar.

Cellariſt, one that keeps the Cellar, or Buttery in a Religious Houſe; the Butler in a Monaſtery.

Cellula, (Lat.) a little Cellar, Cell, or Buttery.

Cellulæ Inteſtini Coli, (in Anat.) the Cavities, or hollow Spaces in the Gut Colon, where the Excrements lodge for ſome time, that they may cheriſh the Neighbouring Parts with their Heat, and digeſt any Crudities.

Celſitude, Highneſs, Nobility, Excellency; a Title of Honour ſometimes given to a Prince.

Cement, a ſtrong and cleaving ſort of Morter, or Sodder: In Chymiſtry, any Lute, or Loam by which Veſſels in Diſtillation are joyn'd, or as we commonly ſay, Cemented together: Alſo a particular manner of purifying Gold, by laying Beds over it with hard Paſte made of one part Sal Armoniack, two of common Salt, and four of Potters Earth, or Bricks powder'd, the whole moiſten'd with a ſufficient quantity of Urine; which Compoſition is call'd Royal Cement.

Cement, commonly pronounced Simmon, a Compound made of Pitch, Brick-duſt, Plaiſter of Paris, &c. us'd by Chacers, Repairers, and other Artificers, to put under their Work, that it may lie ſolid and firm, for the better receiving of the Impreſſion made by the Punches and other Tools.

To Cement, to Sodder, to joyn, or faſten together; to fill with Cement, or Simmon.

Cementation, a Cementing, or cloſe joyning with Cement: In Chymiſtry, the purifying of Gold made up into thin Plates with Layers, or Beds of Royal Cement.

Cenchrias, (Gr.) a ſort of ſpreading Inflammation that takes Name from its Figure reſembling the Seed of Millet, or Hirſe, being the ſame with Herpes Miliaris: In Engliſh, it is commonly call'd the Shingles, or Wild-fire.

Cenchris, a green venomous Serpent, ſo nam'd, becauſe it is mark'd with ſmall white Spots on the Belly; the various-colour'd Aſp: Alſo a kind of ſpeckled Hawk, the Keſtrel, or Stannel, the Wind-ſucker.

Cenchritis, a precious Stone all ſpeckled, as it were with Millet-ſeed.

Cenchros, Millet, or Hirſe; a kind of ſmall Grain.

Cendulæ, (in old Latin Records) Shendles, or Shingles, ſmall pieces of Wood to cover the Roof of a Houſe inſtead of Tiles.

Ceneangia, (Gr.) an emptying of the Veſſels, by opening a Vein; a letting Blood.

Cenellæ, (in ancient Latin Writers) Acorns; and Peſſona Cenellarum, the Pannage of Hogs, or running of Swine to feed on Acorns.

Cenoſis, (Gr.) an emptying, or voiding: In a Medicinal Senſe, a diſcharging of Humours out of the whole Body, or ſome part of it.

Cenotaphium, an empty Tomb ſet up in Honour of the Dead, eſpecially when [illegible] is bury'd in another Country.

Cenſaria, (in old Latin Records) a Farm, or Houſe let ad Cenſum, i. e. at a ſtanding Rent.

Cenſarii, (in Doomſday-book) ſuch Perſons as might be Aſſeſſed, or Taxed.

To Cenſe, to Perfume with Incence.

Cenſe-Money. See Cenſure.

Cenſer, a Veſſel in which the Jewiſh Prieſts us'd to burn Incenſe at any Sacrifice, or Religious Rites; a Perfuming-pan.

Cenſers. See Cenſure.

Cenſor, (among the Romans) a Magiſtrate, whoſe Office it was to take an exact View of the People of Rome, to Ceſs, and Value the Eſtate of every Citizen, and to reform Manners.

Cenſorious, apt to cenſure, find fault with, or reprove; critical, nice.

Cenſural, belonging to Valuations, or Aſſeſſments; as A Cenſural Book, or Roll, i. e. a Regiſter of Taxations.

Cenſure, Reproof, Correction, Reflection, Criticiſm, Judgment: Alſo a Cuſtom in ſeveral Manours in Cornwall and Devon-ſhire, where all the Inhabitants, above the Age of ſixteen Years, were ſummon'd to ſwear Fealty to the Lord, to pay eleven Pence per Poll, and one Penny per An. ever after as Cenſe-Money, or common Fine; and the Perſons thus ſworn were call'd Cenſers.

Eccleſiaſtical Cenſures, Puniſhments inflicted on Offenders according to the Church-laws.

To Cenſure, to Criticize, or Judge, to find fault with; to reprove, or Check.

Centaur, (Gr.) half a Man and half a Horſe, or half a Woman and half a Mare, a fabulous Monſter feign'd by the Poets, who have generally apply'd that Shape to the firſt Inventers of Riding, or the Art of Horſemanſhip: Alſo the Name of a Southern Conſtellation conſiſting of forty Stars.

Centaury or Centory, an Herb of wonderful Virtue againſt many Diſeaſes, eſpecially for thoſe of the Spleen and Liver.

Centenar or Centar, a Foreign Weight of 100, 112, 125, 128, 132, and 140 Pounds.

Centenary belonging to the Number one Hundred.

Center, the middle Point of any thing, eſpecially of a Circle, or Sphere; from whence all Lines drawn to the Circumference are equal. In Maſonry, a Wooden Mould to turn an Arch.

Center of the Body, is taken by ſome Writers in Phyſick for the Heart, from which, as it were a middle Point, the Blood continually circulates round all the other Parts.

Center of Magnitude of a Body, (in Geom.) a Point which is as equally diſtant as poſſible, from its Extremities, or Ends.

Center of Motion of a Body, (in Mechanicks) a Point about which a Body being faſten'd, or any ways joyn'd to it, may, or does move; as the middle of a Ballance hanged up, &c.

Center of a Dial, is that Point where the Axis of the World interſects, or cuts the Plane of the Dial, and from whence in thoſe Dials that have Centers, all the Hour-lines are drawn; for if the Dial-plane be parallel to the Axis of the World, it can have no Center at all, and all the Hour-lines will be parallel to the Style.

Center of the Equant, (in Aſtron.) is a Point in the Line of the Aphelion, exactly diſtant ſo far from the Center of the Eccentrick towards the Aphilion, as the Sun is from the Center of the Eccentrick towards the Perihelion.

Center of an Ellipſis or Oval, (in Geom.) a Point in that Figure where the two Diameters call'd the Tranſverſe and the Conjugate, interſect, or mutually one another.

Center of an Hyperbola, a Point in the middle of the Tranſverſe Axis, which is without the Figure, and common to the oppoſite Section.

Center of Gravity, (in Mechan.) a Point on which a Body being ſupported, or hung up from it, all its Parts will be in an equal Ballance one to another.

Center, (common) of the Gravity of two Bodies, is a Point in a Right-Line joyning their Centers together, and ſo plac'd in that Line, that their Diſtances from it ſhall be reciprocally as the Weight of thoſe Bodies: And if another Body be ſet in the ſame Right-Line, ſo that its Diſtance from any Point in it, be reciprocally as the Weight of both the former Bodies taken together; that Point ſhall be the common Center of Gravity of all three, &c.

Center of heavy Bodies, (in our Globe) is the ſame as the Center of the Earth, towards which all ſuch Bodies naturally endeavour to deſcend.

Center of Oſcillation. See Oſcillation.

Center of a regular Polygon or regular Body, is the ſame with the Center of a Circle, or Sphere drawn within ſuch a Body, ſo as to touch all its Sides.

To Center, to meet, as it were, in a Point; to terminate, or end in.

Center-fiſh, a kind of Sea-fiſh.

Centeſm, (in Arithm.) the hundredth Part of an Integer, or whole Number; a Term commonly made uſe of in the Decimal Diviſions of Degrees, Feet, &c.

Centinel. See Sentinel.

Centinody, an Herb having as it were a hundred Knots, Knot-graſs.

Cento, (Lat.) a patch'd Garment made up of divers Shreds; a Poem compos'd of ſeveral Pieces pick'd up and down from the Works of ſome other Poet.

Centonarii, (among the Romans) ſuch Officers as provided Tents and other Warlike Furniture call'd Centones; or elſe thoſe whoſe Buſineſs it was, to quench the Fires that the Enemies Engines kindled in the Camp.

Centory. See Centaury.

Central, belonging to, or ſeated in the Center or middle; as Central Fire, i. e. that Fire which Chymiſts believe to be in the Center of the Earth, the Fumes and Vapours of which make the Metals and Minerals; ſerving alſo to ripen and bring them to Perfection.

Central Eclipſe. See Eclipſe.

Central Rule, a Rule invented and eſtabliſh'd by Mr. Tho. Baker, to find the Center of a Circle deſign'd to cut the Parabola in as many Points as an Equation to be conſtructed has real Roots.

Centrifugal Force, (in Philoſ.) is that Force by which all Natural Bodies that move round any other Body in a Circle or an Oval, do endeavour to fly off from the Axis of their Motion in a Tangent to a Circumference of it.

Centrina, the prickly Hound-fiſh, a kind of Sea-fiſh.

Centripetal Force, (in Philoſ.) is that force by which any Body moving round another is drawn down, or tends towards the Center of its Orbit; and it is much the ſame with Gravity. See Vis Centripeta.

Centrobarycal, that relates to the Center of Gravity.

Centry, a Word Contracted from Sanctuary, a Place of Refuge for Malefactors: Alſo a Sentinel, or private Soldier: In Architecture, a Mould for an Arch.

Centumviri, (Lat.) the Court of a hundred Judges, certain Roman Magiſtrates anciently choſen out of the 35 Tribes, three out of each, to decide Differences among the People: They were at firſt 105 in Number, which was afterwards encreas'd to 180, and yet always kept the ſame Name.

Centunculus, a patch'd Coverlet, or Quilt for a Bed; alſo the Herb Cud-weed, or Chaff-weed, Periwinkle, Cotton-wood.

Centuple, a hundred fold.

Centuriata Comitia, thoſe ancient Comitia, or Aſſemblies of the People of Rome, by Centuries, where every one gave his Vote in his proper Century.

Centuriators, four eminent Proteſtant Divines of Magdeburgh in Germany; ſo call'd, becauſe they compil'd and divided the Univerſal Church-Hiſtory, by Centuries of Years.

Centurion, a Captain, or Military Officer among the Romans, who commanded a hundred Men.

Century, a part of a thing divided, or rank'd by Hundreds, particularly the ſpace of a Hundred Years.

Centuſſis (Lat.) a Roman Coin containing 100 Aſſes, and equal in Value, to 6 s. 3 d. Sterling.

Cepa or Cepe, (Lat.) the Onion, a well known Plant.

Cepea, a kind of Herb, as ſome ſay, Sea-purſlane; according to others, Brook-lime.

Cephalalgia, (Gr.) any pain in the Head; but it is more eſpecially taken for a new Head-ach; or one that proceeds from Intemperance, or an ill diſpoſition of the Parts.

Cephalarticks, Medicines that purge the Head.

Cephale, the Head, one of the principal parts of the Body.

Cephalea, an obſtinate Head-ach, a laſting Pain that ſeizes on the whole Head.

Cephalica, (in Anat.) the Cephalick Vein, the outermoſt Vein which creeps along the Arm, between the Skin and the Muſcles; and 'tis divided into two Branches, being ſo call'd, becauſe the Ancients us'd to open it in Diſeaſes of the Head, rather than any other; but ſince the knowledge of the Circulation of the Bloud, there is no difference whether one be blouded in the Cephalica Mediana or Baſilica.

Cephalick, belonging to the Head.

Cephalick Line, (in Palmeſtry) the Line of the Head, or Brain.

Cephalick Medicines, properly thoſe that are apply'd to Fractures of the Head, or Scull; but generally taken for all Medicines peculiar to that Part.

Cephalick Vein. See Cephalica.

Cephalicks, Spirituous Medicines us'd in Diſtempers of the Head.

Cephalon, the Date-tree.

Cephalopharyngæi, (in Anat.) the firſt pair of Muſcles of the upper part of the Gullet, which proceed from beſide the Head and Neck; and are beſtow'd more largely upon the Coat of the Gullet.

Cephalopharyngæum, a Muſcle which ariſes from that part, where the Head is joyn'd to the firſt Vertebra of the Neck, from whence matching down, it is ſpread about the Pharynx, with a large Plexus, or fold of Fibres, and ſeems to make its Membrane.

Cephalophonia, a Pain, or heavineſs in the Head.

Cephalus, a kind of Fiſh having a great Head, or Poll; a Pollard.

Cepheus, a Conſtellation in the Northern Hemiſphere, containing ſeventeen Stars.

Cepi Corpus, (Lat. Law-Term) a Return made by the Sheriff, that upon an Exigent, or other Proceſs, he has taken the Body of the Party ſued.

Cepionides, certain precious Stones as clear as Cryſtal, in which one may ſee his Face.

Cepites, a precious Stone of the Agate-kind.

Cepphus, (Gr.) the Puet, a Bird ſo light that it is carry'd away with every puff of Wind.

Cerachates, an Agate-Stone, of a Wax-colour.

Ceragium. See Wax-ſhot.

Ceramites, a precious Stone of the Colour of a Tile.

Ceraſtes, a Serpent in Africa, which has two Horns like a Snail; the horend Serpent.

Ceraſus, the Cherry-tree.

Ceratachates, a kind of Agate-Stone, the Veins of which reſemble the Shape of a Horn.

Ceratamalgama, a ſoftening Compoſition made of Wax and other Ingredients.

Cerate, a Medicine to be apply'd outwardly, made of Wax, Turpentine, Oil, &c. thicker than an Ointment, and ſofter than a Plaiſter; a Cere-cloth.

Ceratia, (Gr.) an Herb having but one Leaf, and a great Root full of Knots, Capers, or Cappers.

Ceratias, a horned Comet; ſometimes appearing bearded, and ſometimes with a Tail, or Train.

Ceratine Arguments, (in Logick) are ſophiſtical, Subtil, or intricate Arguments; as What thou haſt not loſt thou ſtill haſt, thou haſt not loſt Horns, therefore thou haſt Horns.

Ceration, (in Chymiſtry) the making of a Subſtance fit to be melted, or diſſolved.

Ceratitis, horned, Poppey, an Herb.

Ceratium, an Husk, or Shale; alſo the Fruit of the Carob-tree: Alſo a Carat, a kind of Weight, of which there are eighteen in a Dram.

Ceratodes, (in Anat.) the ſame with Cornea Tunica, or the horny Coat of the Eye.

Ceratogloſſum, the proper pair of Muſcles belonging to the Tongue, which proceed from the horns of the Bone call'd Hyoides, and are joyn'd to the Sides of the Tongue.

Ceratonia, the Carob-tree, or Bean-tree.

Ceratium, a Roman Silver-coin of two ſorts, the Single worth 5*d.* Engliſh, and the greater 7½*d.*

Ceratum, a Cerate, or Cere-cloth.

Ceraunias, the Thunder-ſtone.

Ceraunium, a kind of Puff, or Muſhroom, ſo call'd becauſe it grows plentifully after Thunder.

Ceraunochryſos, a ſort of Chymical Powder. See Chryſoceraunius Pulvis.

Cerchnos, a roughneſs in the Throat, which is felt as if there were Berries ſticking in it, and occaſions a little dry Cough.

Cercio, a ſort of Indian Mock-bird.

Cercis, (in Anat.) the Second Bone of the Elbow, otherwiſe call'd Radius, and both from its Shape reſembling, the Spoke of a Weaver's Shittle, or a Wheel.

Cercopithecus, the Monkey, or Marmoſet.

Cercoſis, a piece of Fleſh that grows out of the mouth of the Womb, and looks like a Tail.

Cerdoniſts, a Sect of Hereticks, whoſe Ringleader was one Cerdo, A. C. 150. They held that there were two contrary Principles in the Cauſe of every thing, i. e. a good God and a bad one.

Cerea, (Lat.) a kind of itching Scab, the ſame as Achor: Alſo the Horns of the Womb in Brutes, in which the Fœtus, or Young, is uſually formed.

Cereales. See Frumentaceous Plants.

Cerealia or Cereales Ludi, certain ſolemn Feaſts and Plays among the old Romans, appointed in honour of Ceres the Goddeſs of Corn.

Cerebellum, (in Anat.) the leſſer Brain, or the hinder part of the Brain, conſiſting as the Brain it ſelf of an Aſh-colour'd barky Subſtance, and a white Marrowy one; wherein the Animal Spirits that perform involuntary and meer natural Actions are ſuppos'd to be bred in a Humane Body, but not ſo in brute Beaſts.

Cerebrum, (Lat.) the Brain properly ſo call'd, which takes up the fore-part of the Cavity, or hollow of the Scull, and is divided by the Skins call'd Meninges, into the Right and Left Parts: Its Subſtance is of a ſort peculiar to it ſelf, wrought with many Turnings and Windings; and in it thoſe Animal Spirits are thought to breed, on which voluntary Actions do chiefly depend: It is alſo the Seat of Imagination, Judgment, Memory and Reminiſcence, and Sleep is likewiſe there managed.

Cerebrum Jovis, a Term us'd by ſome Chymiſts for burnt Tartar.

Cerelæum, an Ointment made of Honey and Wax.

Ceremonial, belonging to, or conſiſting of Ceremonies; as The Ceremonial Law among the Jews.

A Ceremonial, a Book containing the Ceremonies us'd in the Roman Church.

Ceremonious, full of Ceremonies, Formal, Complimental.

Ceremony, the outward part of Religion, a Sacred Rite, or Ordinance of the Church: Alſo Pomp, or State; Formality, or formal Compliment.

Cereviſia or Cerviſia, (Lat.) Drink made of Corn, or Malt; Ale, or Beer.

Cereviſia Medicata, Phyſick-drink, in which Medicines proper for any Diſeaſes have been ſteept for ſome time.

Cereus, a Taper, or Wax-light; alſo a ſort of Houſe-leek, an Herb.

Ceria, Drink made of Corn, Barley-water: Alſo a kind of cruſted Scab on the Head, the ſame with Favus and Achor; which See.

Cerilla, (in the Art of Printing) a Mark ſet under the Letter ç in French and Spaniſh, to ſhew that it is to be pronounc'd as an s.

Cerigon, a kind of wild Beaſt in America, having a Skin under the Belly like a Sack, which ſerves to carry its Young Ones, 'till they are able to travel.

Cerinthe, (Gr.) an Honey-Suckle that has the taſte of Honey and Wax; alſo an Herb whoſe Flowers are much coveted by Bees, Honeywort.

Cerinthians, a Sect of Hereticks that had their Riſe from one Cerinthus, A. C. 97. and held, That Chriſt at his ſecond Coming ſhould entertain his People, with all manner of Senſual Pleaſures.

Cerion, (Gr.) an Ulcer, or Botch like an Honey-comb, with yellow Matter in it.

Cerites, a precious Stone of a Wax-Colour.

Cernua, (Lat.) the Ruff, a River-fiſh.

Ceroma, (Gr.) a mixture of Oil and Wax, with which Wreſtlers anciently anointed themſelves, to make their Limbs more Sleek, pliable and fit for Exerciſe.

Ceroſtratum, a kind of Inlaying with Horn, Ivory, Wood, &c. in uſe among the Ancients.

Cerotum, a Plaiſter made moſt of Wax; a Cere-cloth. See Cerate.

Cerrus, (Lat.) a kind of Tree that bears Maſt like a Cheſnut; the Holm-tree.

Cert-Money, the Head-penny, Tribute, or Fine paid yearly by the Inhabitants and Tenants of ſeveral Manours to the Lords of them. Pro certo Letæ, i. e. for the certain keeping of the Court Leet. See Common Fine.

Certain, (Lat.) ſure, undoubted, confident, or aſſured; fixed, or ſettled, regular.

Certainty, full Aſſurance, Sureneſs.

Certhia, (Lat.) the Ox-eye Creeper, a little Bird ſomewhat leſs than a Wren.

Certificando de recognitione Stapulæ, a Writ directed to the Mayor of the Staple, &c. requiring him to certify the Chancellour, of a Statute of the Staple taken before him, between ſuch and ſuch, in caſe where the Party himſelf detains it and refuſes to bring it in.

Certificate, a Teſtimony given in Writing of the truth of a thing: In a Law-ſenſe, a Writing made in one Court, to give notice to another Court of the Proceedings therein.

Certification of Aſſize of novel Diſſeiſin, a Writ granted for the re-examining, or review of a Mat-a Matter paſs'd by Aſſize, before any Juſtices, and in Latin is termed Certificatio novæ Diſſeiſinæ.

To Certify, to aſcertain, declare for certain, or aſſure, to acquaint with a thing.

Certiorari, a Writ iſſuing out of the Chancery, to an inferiour Court, to call up the Records of a Cauſe depending there, upon Complaint made by Bill, That the Party ſeeking the ſaid Writ has received hard Uſage in the ſaid Court.

Certitude, Certainty, Aſſurance.

Certoe, a ſort of French Pear.

Cerva, (Lat.) the Hind, or Deer, a Beaſt of Chace.

Cervelas, (Fr.) a large kind of Sauſage, well ſeaſon'd, and eaten cold in Slices.

Cervicaria, (Lat.) the Herb Throat-wort.

Cervical, belonging to the Neck, as the Cervical, or Vertebral Veſſels, a Term us'd by Anatomiſts for the Arteries and Veins that paſs thro' the Vertebræ, or Turning-Joints and Muſcles of the Neck up to the Scull.

Cervicalis. See Vertebralis.

Cervix, the hinder part of the Neck.

Cerumen, the filth or Wax of the Ear, which ſerves to hinder Duſt, Motes, or any little Creatures from getting into it.

Cerura, (in ancient Deeds) a Mound, Fence, or Incloſure.

Ceruſs, white Lead, or Spaniſh White, which is made of thin Plates of Black Lead, hung for ſome time over the Steam of boiling-hot Vinegar.

Cervus, (Lat.) the Hart or Stag, a wild Beaſt. Cervus Volans, the horned Beetle, or Stag-fly; an Inſect.

To Ceſs, to Aſſeſs, or Tax.

The Tenant Ceſſes, i. e. ceaſes, or neglects to do what he ought; a Law-Expreſſion.

Ceſſation, (Lat.) a ceaſing, or giving over, a leaving off.

Ceſſavit, a Writ lying againſt one that has neglected to perform ſuch Service, or to pay ſuch Rent as he is bound to by his Tenure, and has not ſufficient Goods or Chattels to be diſtrained.

Ceſſe or Ceaſſe, (Iriſh Law-Term) an exacting of Victuals, or Proviſions, at a certain rate for the Deputy's Family and the Garriſon-Soldiers.

Ceſſus, a Word us'd in ſome old Statutes for Aſſeſſments or Taxes.

Ceſſion, a yielding, reſigning, or giving up: In a Law-ſenſe, 'tis when a Clergy-man is made a Biſhop, or when a Parſon takes another Benefice without Diſpenſation, or otherwiſe not qualify'd; in both which Caſes, their firſt Benefices are ſaid To become void by Ceſſion.

Ceſſionary Bankrupt, one that has reſign'd, or yielded up his Eſtate, to be divided amongſt his Creditors.

Ceſſor, an Aſſeſſor, or Impoſer of Taxes: In a Law-Senſe, one that ceaſes, or neglects ſo long to perform a Duty, that by his Ceſs, or Ceaſing, he is become liable to a Suit, and may have the Writ Ceſſavit brought againſt him.

Ceſſure or Ceſſer, (Law-Term) a giving over, or a giving of Place.

Ceſtron, (Gr.) the Herb Betony.

Ceſtroſphendone, a kind of Sling, or Warlike Engine anciently made uſe of to caſt Darts.

Ceſtus, a Marriage-girdle, that in old times, a Bride us'd to wear, and which was looſed by the Bride-groom the firſt Night.

Ceſtui qui truſt, (Fr. in Common Law) a Perſon that has a Truſt in Lands, or Tenements, committed to him for the Benefit of another.

Ceſtui qui vie, one for whoſe Life any Land, or Tenement is granted.

Ceſtui qui uſe, he to whoſe Uſe another Man is infeoffed in, or admitted to the Poſſeſſion of any Lands, or Tenements.

Cetaceous, (Lat.) belonging to a Whale, that is of the Whale-kind.

Ceterach, an Herb ſomewhat like Fern, or Milt-wort, running up Walls and Rocks, very good for the Spleen.

Cetorum Dux, (Lat.) the Whale's Guide, a ſort of Fiſh.

Cetus, (Lat.) the Whale, or any other monſtrous Sea-fiſh: Alſo a Southern Conſtellation conſiſting of 23 Stars.

Ceyx, a ſort of Bird, a King-fiſher.

Cha, the Leaf of a Tree in China, which being ſteept in Water, ſerves for the Ordinary Drink of the Inhabitants.

Chace, a Station for wild Beaſts of the Foreſt, from which it differs only, that it may be in the poſſeſſion of a Subject, which a Foreſt cannot, and from a Park, for that it is of a larger Compaſs; having a greater variety of Game, and more Overſeers, or Keepers.

At Tennis-play, Chace, is a fall of the Ball in a certain part of the Court, beyond which the oppoſite Party muſt ſtrike the Ball next time, to gain the Stroke: In Gunnery, the whole Bore, or length of a piece of Ordinance, on the in-ſide, alſo the Gutter of a Croſs-bow.

In Sea-Language, it ſignifies a Purſuit; as To give a Ship the Chace, i. e. to follow and fetch her up, to come up with her, alſo the Ship it ſelf ſo chaſed. A Ship is likewiſe ſaid To have a good Chace, when ſhe is ſo built forwards on, or a-ſtern, as to carry many Guns, to ſhoot right forward, or backward. To lye with a Ship's fore-foot in Chace, is to Sail the neareſt Courſe to meet her, and to croſs her in her Way.

Chace-Guns or Chace-Pieces, are thoſe Guns that lie either in the Head of the Ship, and then they are us'd in the chaſing of others, or elſe in the Stern, which are only uſeful when ſhe is chas'd or purſued by another Ship, &c.

Chackſhirs or Shackſhirs, a kind of Breeches in Uſe among the Turks, that reach from the Waſte to the Heel.

Chaconne or Chacoon, (Fr. in Muſick) a kind of Saraband-Dance, whoſe Meaſure is always triple Time.

Chad, a ſort of Fiſh.

Chærephyllum, (Gr.) the Herb Chervil, or ſweet Cicely, good againſt the Stone, alſo to provoke Urine, and the Courſes.

To Chafe, (Fr.) to heat, or warm, to rub with one's Hand; to grow hot or angry, to fly into a Paſſion, to fret or fume. Among Seamen, a Rope is ſaid To Chafe, when it galls or frets by rubbing againſt any rough and hard Thing: Thus they ſay, The Cable is chafed in the Hawſe, when it is fretted, or begins to wear out there.

Chafe-Wax, an Officer in Chancery, that prepares the Wax for the ſealing of Writs, and ſuch other Inſtruments as are to be ſent out.

Chafer, a ſort of Beetle, an Inſect.

Chafery, a Forge in an Iron-Mill, where the Iron is wrought into compleat Bars, and brought to Perfection.

Chaff, the Refuſe, or Duſt in winnowing Corn.

Chaff-Weed, a kind of Herb.

Chaffers, (old Law-Word) Wares, or Merchandize.

To Chaffer, to buy and ſell, to trade, or traffick.

Chaffern, a Veſſel to heat Water in.

Chaffinch, a Bird ſo call'd, becauſe it delights in Chaff, and by ſome much admir'd for its Song.

Chagrin. See Shagreen.

Chain, a long piece of Iron, conſiſting of ſeveral Rings, or Links one within another, ſuch as ſerve for the barring up of Doors, Bridges, Rivers, Harbours, &c. Alſo the Irons put about the Legs or Arms of Malefactors and Galley-ſlaves: Alſo an Inſtrument conſiſting of Links of good hard Wire, and generally us'd in Surveying, to meaſure Land with: In Fortification, certain Wire-links of an equal Length, contriv'd for ſetting out Works on the Ground. Chains are alſo figuratively us'd for Bonds, Bondage, or Slavery.

In Sea-Affairs, Chains, are ſtrong Iron-Plates, bolted into the Ship's Sides by the Timbers call'd Chain-Wales, to which the Shrowds of the Maſts are faſten'd.

Chain-Pumps, a ſort of Ship-Pumps, ſo nam'd from their Chain of Burrs, or Spunges going in a Wheel: Theſe Pumps deliver moſt Water with the greateſt Eaſe, and are the ſooneſt mended.

Chain-Shot, two Bullets, or rather half Bullets, with a Chain between them, commonly us'd in a cloſe Fight at Sea, to ſhoot down Yards, or Maſts, to cut the Shrowds, or other Rigging.

Chain-Wales, broad Timbers jutting out of a Ship's Sides, which ſerve to ſpread out the Shrowds, that they may the better hold up the Maſts; being ſo call'd becauſe the Shrowds are made faſt to them by Chains.

Chair, a Seat to ſit in, a Sedan. To ſit in the Chair of a Biſhop, is to ſucceed him in his See; ſo the Pope is ſaid To ſit in St. Peter's Chair.

Chair-man, the Preſident, or Head of a Committee, Society, or Club; alſo one that carries People in a Chair, or Sedan; alſo one that mends Matted Chairs about the Streets.

Chalaſticks or Chalaſtick Medicines, (Gr.) ſuch Medicines as are of a looſening, or ſoftening Quality.

Chalaza, the Meteor call'd Hail; alſo a kind of ſmall tranſparent Swellings, ſpread about the Skin like Hail: Alſo the Treadle of an Egg, that in Shape and Colour reſembles a Hail-ſtone; alſo a Diſeaſe that happens to Swine.

Chalazias, a kind of Stone like Hail, ſaid to be ſo cold, that no Fire can heat it.

Chalazion, a Stithe, a ſmall Pimple, or Wart on the Eye-lid.

Chalbot or Chabot, (in Heraldry) a Fiſh having a great Head, commonly call'd a Bull-head, or Miller's-Thumb.

Chalcanthum, (Gr.) Vitriol, or Copperas, Shoomakers-Black, the Water of Copper, or Braſs.

Chalcanthum rubefactum, (among Chymiſts) is only Vitriol calcined till it takes a red Colour.

Chalcedon, a City of Bithynia in the leſſer Aſia, now call'd Scutari, where the fourth General Council was held againſt the Neſtorian Hereſy. A. C. 453.

Chalcedony, a kind of Agate of a colour between Yellow and Blew, proper for engraving; alſo a ſort of Onyx-ſtone, ſo call'd from the City of Chalcedon: Among Jewellers, it is alſo taken for a defect, or flaw in precious Stones, when in turning to the Light, they find white Spots in them.

Chalcis, a Newt, or Evet, a venomous Serpent ſo call'd from the braſs-colour'd Streaks on its Back: Alſo a certain Fiſh of the Turbot-kind; alſo a Night-hawk, an Enemy to the Eagle.

Chalcites, a precious Stone of the Colour of Braſs.

Chalcitis, Braſs-oar, the Stone out of which Braſs is tried; alſo red Vitriol.

Chalcographus, an Engraver upon Braſs, or Copper.

Chalcolibanum, a ſort of fine Braſs.

Chalcophonos, a black Stone that ſounds like Braſs.

Chalcoſmaragdus, the Baſtard Emerald.

Chalcus, the thirty ſixth part of a Dram, among the Athenians: Alſo a Coin of ſeven Mites, or a Holland-Penny in Value.

Chaldæa, a Country of the leſſer Aſia, the People of which have been ever famous for Aſtrology and Magick.

Chaldæans, the Inhabitants of Chaldæa, commonly taken for Sooth-ſayers, Fortune-tellers, or Gypſies.

Chaldern or Chaldron, a Meaſure of Coals, &c. containing 4 Quarters, or 36 Buſhels heap'd up according to the Seal'd Buſhel kept at Guild-Hall, London. Alſo part of the Entrails of a Calf, commonly call'd a Calve's Chaldron.

Chalice, (Lat.) a Communion-Cup, us'd at the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper.

Challenge, a Summons to fight a Duel, a Defiance; a Pretenſion, or Claim. In Common Law, an Exception againſt Perſons, or Things; as a Priſoner at the Bar may except againſt the partial Impannelling of a Jury, or againſt the Inſufficiency of the Jurors.

To Challenge, to make a Challenge, or Defiance; to except againſt, to accuſe, to claim. Among Hunters, when Hounds, or Beagles, at firſt finding the Scent of their Game, preſently open, or cry, they are ſaid To Challenge.

Challenged Cock-fight, is generally to meet with ten Staves of Cocks, and to make out of them twenty one Battels, more or leſs, the odd Battel to have Maſtery.

Chaloup. See Shallop.

Chalybeate, (Gr.) that is of the Temper, or Quality of Steel, belonging to Steel; as Chalybeate Water, i. e. Water in which a hot Iron, or Steel has been quench'd.

Chalybeate Cryſtals of Tartar. See Cream of Tartar.

Chalybeates or Chalybeate Medicines, are Medicines prepar'd with Steel, or Iron, or in which Steel is the principal Ingredient.

Chalybs, a kind of moſt hard and fine Iron, ſo call'd from the Chalybes, a People of Pontus in in the leſſer Aſia, whoſe Country affords great ſtore of that Metal.

Cham or Chan, the Title of the Monarch, or Soveraign Prince among the Tartars, which anſwers to the King, or Emperour with us: For he is uſually ſtyl'd The Great Cham, or Chan of Tartary.

Chamade, (Fr. in the Art of War) a Signal made by the Enemy, by beat of Drum, or ſound of Trumpet, when they have any Matter to propoſe, which is otherwiſe call'd a Parley; as The Beſieged beat the Chamade and Capitulated.

Chamæ, (Gr.) Cockles, or Shell-fiſh, of which there are are ſeveral ſorts.

Chamæacte, a kind of low Elder-tree; alſo the Herb Wall-wort, or Dane-wort.

Chamæbalanus, Peaſe, or Earth-nut.

Chamæbatos, a low Buſh, the Heath-bramble, the Fruit, of which are Dew-berries.

Chamæcedrys, Female Southern-wood; an Herb.

Chamæceraſus, a dwarf Cherry-tree.

Chamæciſtus, the Herb Ground-ivy, or as ſome ſay, Hares-foot, or as others, Periwinkle.

Chamæcypariſſus, dwarf Cypreſs-tree, or Heath-cypreſs, or the Herb Lavender-cotton.

Chamædaphne, a ſort of Laurel, or Lowry; alſo the Herb Periwinkle.

Chamædrys, the Herb Germander, or Engliſh Treacle.

Chamælæa, Spurge-Olive, a kind of Shrub with ſlender Twigs about a Cubit long, and Leaves like the Olive-tree, but leſſer: Alſo an Herb call'd Five-finger'd Graſs.

Chamæleon, the Cameleon, a little Beaſt like a Lizard, that lives by the Air for the moſt part, or Flies, &c. Alſo a ſort of Thiſtle which changes Colour with the Earth it grows in, like the Living-Creature of the ſame Name. See Cameleon.

Chamæleuce, the Herb Colts-foot, or Aſſes-foot, growing in Corn-fields, and elſewhere.

Chamæmelon, (i. e. Ground-apple) the Herb Camomile, which is of a looſening and ſoftening Quality, eaſes Pain, provokes Urine, &c.

Chamæmyrſine, the Ruſh of which Bruſhes are made, Butchers-Broom, Holly, Holm, wild Meurt.

Chamæpeuce, an Herb good againſt the Pain in the Back.

Chamæpitys, the Herb Ground-pine, which ſtrengthens the Sinews, provokes Urine and the Courſes, &c. Alſo Field-cypreſs to be ſet in Pots, or the Herb St. John's-Wort.

Chamæplatanus, the dwarf Plane-tree, or Water-alder.

Chamærops, an Herb, which drunk in Wine is good to cure the Pain in the Sides, or Reins and Ruptures; Germander.

Chamæſyce, a dwarf Fig-tree.

Chamætrachea, a kind of Sea-crab, a Fiſh.

Chamæzelon, an Herb, with the Leaves of which Bed-ticks, &c. were ſtuff'd; ſome take it for Cinque-foil.

Chamber, an Apartment, or Room in a Houſe. In Gunnery, part of a Piece of Ordinance, as far as the Powder and Shot reach when it is loaded: Alſo a Charge made of Braſs, or Iron, to be put in at the Breech of a Sling, or Murdering-piece.

Chamber of a Mine. See Mine.

To Chamber a Gun, is to make a Chamber in her.

Chambers of the King, the Ports, or Havens of England, ſo call'd in ancient Records.

Chamberer, a Word us'd in ſome old Statutes for a Chamber-maid.

Chambering, (a Scripture-word) Debauchery, Riotouſneſs, Luxury.

Chamberdekins or Chaumberdakins, (q. d. Chamber-deacons) certain Iriſh Beggars, who being cloath'd in the Habit of poor Scholars in the Univerſity of Oxford, often committed Robberies and Murders in the Night, and were baniſh'd by Stat. 1 Henry 5.

Chamberlain, the Name of ſeveral Officers mentioned in our Chronicles, Laws and Statutes; as,

The Lord Great Chamberlain of England, an high Officer, to whom belongs the Government of the whole Palace of Weſtminſter; as alſo the Care of providing all Things in the Houſe of Lords in the Time of Parliament, with Livery and Lodging in the Queen's-Court.

Lord Chamberlain of the Queen's Houſhold, whoſe Office is to look to the Queen's Chambers and Wardrobe, and to govern the Under-Officers thereto belonging: He has alſo the Overſight of the Sergeants at Arms, Chaplains, Phyſicians, Surgeons, Apothecaries, &c.

Chamberlains of the Exchequer, two Officers that us'd to have the Controlment of the Pells of Receipts and Payments, and kept certain Keys of the Treaſury and Records.

Chamberlain of London, the Keeper of the Publick Treaſury laid up in that Place, which is call'd The Chamber of London. The like Officer is at Cheſter, who is impower'd to receive and return all Writs brought thither out of any of the King's or Queen's Courts, when there is no Prince of Wales, and Earl of Cheſter.

Chamberlaria or Chamberlangeria, (in old Latin Records) Chamberlainſhip, or the Office of Chamberlain.

Chambranle, (Fr.) an Ornament in Maſonry and Joyners-Work, which borders the three Sides of Doors, Windows, and Chimneys. It is different according to the ſeveral Orders of Architecture, and is made up of three Parts, viz. the Top call'd the Traverſe, and the two Sides the Aſcendants.

Chamelot or Chamblot, a kind of water'd Stuff mixed with Camels-hair.

Chamfer or Chamfret, (in Architect.) a ſmall Gutter, or Furrow upon a Pillar, &c.

To Chamfer, to channel, or make hollow after ſuch a Manner: Among Herbaliſts, the Stalks of certain Plants are alſo ſaid To be Chamfer'd, when they have Impreſſions upon them like ſuch Furrows.

Chamois. See Shamoy.

To Champ, to chew; as a Horſe that champs the Bit.

Champain or Champagne, (Fr.) a large Plain, open Downs, or Fields, without any Incloſure, Woods, or Hedges.

A Point Champain, (in Heraldry) an Abatement, or Mark of Diſhonour in the Coat of one that inhumanly kills a Priſoner of War in the Field, after he has cry'd Quarter.

Champarty or Champerty, (in Common Law) the Maintenance of a Perſon in a Suit depending, upon Condition to have part of the Lands, or Goods, when they are recover'd.

Champertors, thoſe that move Law-ſuits at their proper Coſts, to have part of the Things ſued for, or part of the Gain.

Champian or Champion, open, plain, even, not encloſed; as A Champian Country.

Champian-Lychnis, a ſort of Roſe, of a red, or white Colour.

Champion, (Fr.) one that fights a Duel for another, as it were in Camp-fight: In a Law-ſenſe, it ſignifies as well one that tries the Combat in his own Caſe, as one that engages in another's Quarrel, or Place.

Champion of the Queen, one whoſe Office is to ride armed at the Queen's Coronation-day into Weſtminſter-hall, and by a Herald to challenge any that ſhall deny Her Majeſty's Title to the Crown; whereupon the Queen drinks to him, and ſends him a gilded Cup with a Cover full of Wine, which he has for his Fee. This Office ever ſince the Coronation of K. Richard II. has continu'd in the Family of the Dymocks, who hold the Manour of Scrivelsby in Lincoln-ſhire by the ſame Tenure.

Chan. See Cham.

Chance, Hazard, or Fortnne.

Chance-medley, (Law-term) the accidental killing of a Man, not altogether without the Killer's fault, but without an evil Intent: It is alſo call'd Man-ſlaughter by Miſadventure, for which the Offender ſhall have his Pardon of Courſe, in caſe he was doing a Lawful Act, but if the Act were unlawful it is Felony.

Chancel, (Lat.) properly an encloſed, or ſeparated Place ſurrounded with Bars, to defend Judges and other Officers from the Preſs, or Crowd uf the People.

Chancel of a Church, that part which is next the Altar, or Communion-table, uſually encompaſs'd with Balliſters, or Rails.

Chancellour, an Officer of great Dignity and Power; as

The Lord High Chancellour of England, the chief Perſon next to the Soveraign for Matter of Juſtice in Civil Affairs, having abſolute Power to moderate and temper the written Law according to Equity: He is made by the King's or Queen's delivering of the Great Seal to him, and by his taking an Oath.

Chancellour of the Exchequer, an high Officer appointed to qualify Extremities, and order Matters in that Court, he has alſo Power with others, to Compound for Forfeitures upon Penal Statutes, Bonds and Recognizances acknowledged to the Queen.

Chancellour of the Dutchy of Lancaſter, the chief Officer in that Court, appointed to Judge and Determine all Controverſies between the Queen and the Tenants of the Dutchy-land, and otherwiſe to direct all the Queen's Affairs belonging thereto.

There is alſo the Chancellour, if the Order of the Garter, a Chancellour of the Univerſities, a Chancellour of the firſt Fruits, a Chancellour of Courts, a Chancellour of the Dioceſs, &c.

Chancery or Chancery-court, the Court of Equity and Conſcience, which moderates the Severity of other Courts that are more ſtrictly ty'd to the Rigour of the Law: The Officers belonging to this Court are the Lord Chancellour of England, who is the chief Judge, or elſe the Lord Keeper of the Great Seal; twelve Maſters of Chancery, of whom the Maſter of the Rolls is Chief; the Clerk of the Crown, the ſix Clerks, and many others.

Chandelier, (Fr.) a Chandler, a Tallow-chandler; alſo a Candleſtick: In Fortification, Chandeliers are wooden Frames, conſiſting of two upright Stakes ſix Foot high, which ſupport ſeveral Planks laid a-croſs one another, or Bavins fill'd with Earth: Theſe are generally made uſe of in Approaches, Mines and Galleries, to cover the Work-men, and hinder the Beſieged from forcing them to quit their Labour.

Chandler, a Seller of neceſſary Wares; as Candles, Soap, Butter, Cheeſe, &c.

Chandry, an Apartment in a Prince's, or Noble-man's Houſe, where the Candles, &c. are kept; as The Yeoman of the Chandry.

Change, Alteration, Variety, Turning: Among Hunters, it is when a Stag met by Chance, is taken for that which was diſlodged and purſu'd ſome time before.

Changeable, apt to change, or alter; uncertain, inconſtant, fickle.

Changeling, a Child chang'd, or put in the place of another; alſo a Fool, Sot, or ſilly Fellow.

Changer, an Officer in the Royal Mint, whoſe Buſineſs is to exchange Coin for Bullion, brought in by Merchants, or others.

Changer or Money-changer, a Banker, one that deals in the Receipt and Payment of Money.

Channe, (Gr.) a Sea-fiſh like a Pearch breeding of it ſelf; the Gaper, or Gin-fiſh.

Channel, (Lat.) the middle, or deepeſt part of any Sea, Harbour, or River; alſo a Straight between two Lands, eſpecially the narrow Seas between England and France, and that of St. George between England and Ireland: Alſo a Gutter, or Furrow in a Pillar.

In the Ionick Chapiter, the Channel is a Part that lies ſomewhat hollow under the Abacus, and open upon the Echinus; having its Contours, or Turnings on each Side, to make the Voluta's, or Scrolls.

To Chant, (Fr.) to Sing.

Chanter, the chief Singer in a Cathedral Church, or Chappel, the Maſter of the Quire.

Chanticleer, a Name ſometimes given to a Cock, upon account of its clear Voice.

Chantry, a Chappel formerly joyn'd to ſome Cathedral, or Pariſh-church, and endow'd with Yearly Revenues, for the Maintenance of one, or more Prieſts daily to ſing Maſs for the Souls of the Founders, and others: Of theſe Chantries there were no leſs than forty ſeven within St. Paul's Church, London.

Chaos, (Gr.) a Gap: Among the Heathen Philoſophers, a dark and rude Maſs of Matter, or an irregular Syſtem of the Elements and all ſorts of Particles mingled together, out of which they ſuppos'd the World to be at firſt formed; a confuſed and diſorderly heap of things.

To Chap, to gape, or open as the Ground does in a great Drought; to chink, crack, or flaw.

Chape, the Steel, or Silver-caſe that ſtrengthens the end of a Sword-ſcabbard: Among Hunters, the tip at the end of a Fox's Tail.

Chapeau, (Fr.) a Hat, a Cardinal's Cap: In Heraldry, a Cap of State us'd to be worn by Dukes; being of a ſcarlet colour lined with Ermines: On this Cap as on a Wreath, the Creſt of Noblemen's Coats of Arms is born, and parted by it from the Helmet, which no Creſt muſt touch immediately.

Chaperon, (Fr.) a Word formerly us'd for a Hood, or Cap, eſpecially that worn by the Knights of the Garter, being part of the Habit of that Noble Order: In Heraldry, a little Eſcutcheon fixt on the Fore-heads of the Horſes that draw the Hearſe at a Funeral.

Chapin, (Span.) a high Cork-heal'd Shooe.

Chapiter, (in Architect.) the Head, Crown, or upper part of a Pillar: Thoſe that have no Ornaments are call'd Chapiters with Mouldings, as the Tuſcan and Dorick; but thoſe that are ſet off with Leaves and carved Works, are termed Chapiters with Sculptures, and the fineſt of them is the Corinthian.

In Common Law, Chapiters, are certain Articles, containing a Summary, or ſhort Account of ſuch Matters as are to be enquir'd of, or preſented before Juſtices in Eyre, Juſtices of Aſſize, or of the Peace in their Seſſions.

Chaplain or Chapellaine, one that performs Divine Service in a Chappel, eſpecially in a Law-ſenſe, one that attends upon the Queen, or other Perſon of Quality for the Inſtruction of him and his Family in Matters of Religion.

Chaplet, a Wreath, or Garland, or the Tuft of Feathers on a Peacock's Head: Alſo a certain number of Beads threaded like a Bracelet, by which the Papiſts count their daily Pater-noſters and Ave-maria's: Alſo a Fillet, a kind of Ornament in Architecture.

Chapman, a Buyer, or Cuſtomer.

Chapournet, (Fr.) a little Hood, the Figure of which is taken by Heralds for a Bearing in a Coat of Arms; as A Chief Or, charged with a Chapournet Ermin.

Chappe, a Term in Heraldry for a kind of Partition of an Eſcutcheon; as A Chappe Or and Vert.

Chappel, a Building which either adjoyns to a Church, and is a part thereof, or elſe ſtands ſeparate from it where the Pariſh is of a large Extent: The latter is commonly call'd a Chappel of Eaſe, becauſe it is built for the Eaſe of the Pariſhioners that live at a great diſtance from the Mother-church, and is ſerv'd by a Curate at their Charge.

Free Chappel; that which is endow'd with perpetual Revenues and Maintenance for a Curate, without the Charge of the Rector, or Pariſh.

Chappel, is alſo a Term us'd among Printers for the Body, or whole Company of Work-men in a particular Houſe; ſo call'd, becauſe the firſt Printing-houſe was ſet up in a Chappel.

Chappelonians, the Members of a Printer's Chappel.

Chappelry, the Precinct, Bounds, or Juriſdiction of a Chappel.

Chapter, a Diviſion, or part of a Book: In the Common and Canon Law, it ſignifies the whole Body of Clergy-men belonging to a Cathedral, Conventual, or Collegiate Church; or the Place where they are Aſſembled.

Chapter-houſe, a Building adjoyning to, or near a Cathedral, or Collegiate Church, where the Chapter is held.

Character, (Gr.) a Mark, Sign, Seal, or Print, a Deſcription of a Thing, a Letter, or Figure; a particular Way or Humour, Title or Quality: Characters are alſo taken for certain Marks, or Signs of things invented by Artiſts, and peculiar to ſeveral Sciences; as Algebra, Geometry, Chymiſtry, &c. By which the knowledge of the things themſelves is more expeditiouſly and clearly convey'd to the Learner.

Characteriſm, the Deſcription, or ſetting out of a Perſon by a Character.

Characteriſtick, belonging to a Character.

Characteriſtick Letter, (in Grammar) is that Conſonant in a Greek Verb which immediately precedes the varying Termination.

Characteriſtick of a Logarithm. See Index, or Exponent.

To Characterize, to give a Character of, to deſcribe.

Charadrius, (Gr.) a Bird ſo call'd, becauſe it keeps about the Channels and gaping Banks of Rivers, the ſeeing of which is ſaid to cure thoſe that have the Jaundice.

Charcoal, a ſort of Coal made of the Wood of Oak, Alder, Lime-tree, &c. cut into convenient Lengths, and pil'd up like a Pyramid in a deep Pit made for that purpoſe under Ground, having a little Hole to put in the Fire, which is to be ſtopt up when the Wood is half conſum'd.

Chards of Artichokes, (among Gardiners) the Leaves of fair Artichoke-plants, ty'd and wrapt up in Straw in Autumn and Winter; which being cover'd all over, but at the very top grow white, and by that means loſe a little of their Bitterneſs: They are otherwiſe call'd Coſtons, and when boil'd are ſerv'd up like Spaniſh Cardoons.

Chards of Beets, Plants of white Beets tranſplanted in a well prepar'd Bed, where they produce great Tops, having in the middle a large, white, thick, and downy, or Cotton-like main Shoot, much us'd in Cookery for Potages and Intermeſſes.

Chare, a kind of Fiſh. See Charr; alſo a Job, or ſmall piece of Work.

Chare-woman, a Woman hired by the Day, to do the Drudgery of a Houſe.

To Chare or Care, (in Husbandry) to ſeparate the larger Chaff from the Corn, or ſmaller Chaff, with a large Rake, or ſuch like Inſtrument.

Charea, (in old Latin Records) a Charr, Carr, or Cart.

Charge, (Fr.) Burden or Load, Management or Care; Office, Employ, or Truſt; Expence, or Coſt: Alſo an Accuſation, or Impeachment for any Offence; an Engagement, Fight, or Onſet: In Gunnery, a certain Meaſure of Powder, proportionable to the ſize of the Fire-arms, for which it is allotted.

Among Farriers, Charge is taken for an outward Remedy apply'd to the Body of a Horſe, or other Beaſt, and theſe are prepared ſeveral ways, according to the nature of the reſpective Diſtempers; as To make a Charge for a Wrench, or Slip.

In Heraldry, Charge ſignifies whatever is born in the Field of an Eſcutcheon, whether it be a Living-creature, Plant, or any other Repreſentation, or Figure: But ſome call thoſe Charges that ſerve to expreſs certain Rewards, or Additions of Honour, in a Coat of Arms; as Cantons, Quarters, Gyrons, Flasks, &c.

Among Sailers, a Veſſel is call'd a Ship of Charge, when ſhe draws much Water, or ſwims deep in the Sea, and ſometimes it is us'd for an unwieldy Ship that will not ware, or Steer; for ſuch a one, they ſay likewiſe is a Ship of Charge.

To Charge, to Load or Burden, to Command or give Orders; to lay to one's Charge, or Accuſe. To Charge the Subject with Impoſitions, is to lay heavy Taxes upon them. To Charge an Enemy, to Encounter, Attack, or fall upon him.

Chargeable, Burdenſome, Coſtly.

Charged Cylinder, (in Gunnery) that part of a Cannon, or Piece of Ordinance which contains the Powder and Shot; the ſame as the Chamber.

Charger, a kind of great Diſh.

Charientiſmus, (Gr.) Gracefulneſs, or good Grace in Speaking, Pleaſantneſs of Speech: Alſo a Rhetorical Figure, in which a taunting Expreſſion is ſoften'd with a Jeſt, or pleaſant piece of Raillery.

Charily, with a great deal of Regard and Care; as To keep a thing Charily.

Charlock, a kind of Herb.

Chariot, a light ſort of Coach.

Charioteer, a Chariot-driver.

Chariſtolochia, (Gr.) the Herb Mugwort.

Charitable, (Lat.) loving, kind, bountiful, liberal.

Charity, Love, natural Affection, Kindneſs; In Divinity, the Love of God and one's Neighbour; alſo Alms, or Bounty to the Poor.

To Chark or Charr, to burn Wood for the making of Charcoal.

Charks, a Word us'd in Worceſter-ſhire for Pit-coal chark'd, or charr'd, which about Newcaſtle and elſewhere is call'd Coke.

Charlatan, (Fr.) a Mountebank, or Quack; a coakſing Cheat.

Charlatanerie, wheedling, cheating, or cogging; Quirks, Tricks, fair Words.

Charles, a proper Name of Men, ſignifying all noble, or being of a Maſculine Spirit.

Charles-wain, a cluſter of ſeven Stars in the Urſa Major, or greater Bear; ſo call'd from its ſuppoſed Figure reſembling a Chariot.

Charlock, a Weed growing amidſt Corn, with a yellow Flower: Some call its Seed Rump-ſeed, and Clown's Muſtard-ſeed, becauſe ſome ignorant People make a kind of Muſtard of it.

Charm, (Fr.) Inchantment, Spell, Allurement, Bait: Charms are alſo certain Verſes, or Expreſſions which are thought to have a bewitching Power; alſo certain particular Graces, or Elegances in Writing, &c. as Charms of Poetry, or Eloquence.

To Charm, to bewitch, to pleaſe, or delight extremely, to tickle the Ear; to appeaſe, or allay Pain.

Charmer, one that charms, or bewitches; one that pretends to conjure by Spells, and muttering ſtrange Words.

Charnel-houſe, a Place where the Sculls and Bones of the Dead are laid.

To Charr. See to Chark.

Charre or Chare, a kind of Fiſh like a Trout that breeds only in Winnander-mere Lake in Weſtmoreland and ſome few other Places of the North: They are uſually bak'd in Pots and ſent up to London and other Parts, where they are receiv'd as an acceptable Preſent.

Charre of Lead, a Quantity that conſiſts of 30 Pigs, each Pig containing ſix Stone wanting two Pounds, and every Stone being 12 Pounds.

Charts, (Lat. i. e. Papers) Deſcriptions, or Draughts of any Place; which are of ſeveral ſorts, viz.

Chorographick Charts, a Deſcription of a particular Country.

Geographick Chart, a general Draught of the whole Globe of the Earth, upon a Plane, which is thence ſometimes call'd a Planiſphere, but commonly a Map of the World.

Heliographick Charts, Deſcriptions of the Sun's Body, and of its Maculæ, or Spots.

Hydrographick, Marine, or Sea-Charts, large Sheets of Paper on which ſeveral parts of the Land and Sea are deſcribed, with their reſpective Coaſts, Harbours, Soundings, Flats, Shelves, Lands, Rocks, &c. as alſo the Longitude and Latitude of each Place, and the Points of the Compaſs Chart, is alſo ſometimes taken for the Mariner's Compaſs.

Selenographick Charts, particular Deſcriptions of the Parts, Appearances and Spots of the Moon.

Topographick Charts, are Draughts of ſome ſmall parts of the Earth, or of ſome particular Place, without regard to its relative Situation; as of London, Paris, Amſterdam, &c.

Charta, (Lat.) Paper, or any Material fit to write upon: In old Records, a Charter, or Deed in Writing; alſo any Signal, or Token by which an Eſtate was held.

Charta Emporetica or Bibula, a ſort of Paper made without Glue, which is very full of Pores, and ſerves for the ſtraining of Liquors, &c. Cap-paper, Brown-Paper, Blotting-Paper.

Charta Pardonationis ſe defendendo, is the Form of a Pardon for killing another Man in his own Defence.

Charta Pardonationis Utlagariæ, the Form of a Pardon for a Man that is out-law'd.

Charta Simplex, a Deed-poll, a ſingle Deed, or Inſtrument.

Chartel, a Letter of Defiance, or Challenge to a Duel, in Uſe heretofore, when Combats were allow'd for the determining of difficult Controverſies in Law. See Cartel.

Charter, (in Common Law) an Inſtrument, or written Evidence of things done between one Party and another; eſpecially a Writing whereby the Queen paſſes any Grant, or Privilege to one, or more Perſons, or to a Corporation, Town, &c.

Charter of the Foreſt, an Inſtrument in which the Foreſt-Laws are compris'd and particularly expreſs'd.

Charter of Pardon, a Deed by which one is forgiven a Felony, or other Offence, committed againſt the Queen's Crown and Dignity.

Charter-houſe, anciently the Chartreuſe, or Convent of Carthuſian Monks, now a famous College, a little without the Walls of London, founded and richly endow'd by Thomas Sutton Eſq; who dy'd there Decemb. 12. 1611. This Hoſpital conſiſts of a Maſter, or Governour, a Chaplain and ſeveral other Officers; alſo a School-maſter and Uſher to teach 44 Scholars; beſides 80 decay'd Gentlemen, who have all a plentiful Maintenance of Diet, Lodging, Cloaths, &c.

Charter-land, (Law-Term) ſuch Land as a Man holds by Charter, i. e. evidence in Writing, otherwiſe call'd Free-hold.

Charter-party, an Indenture, or Writing between Merchants and Sea-faring Men touching their Affairs, or between Owners of Ships and the Maſters, or Commanders, containing the ſeveral Articles, or Particulars of their reſpective Covenants and Agreements.

Charterer, a Word us'd in Cheſhire for a Freeholder.

Chartis Reddendis, a Writ lying againſt one that is intruſted with the keeping of Charters of Feoffment, and refuſes to deliver them.

Chartreux, an Order of Monks that live very auſterely in cloſe and Solitary Confinement. See Carthuſians.

Chartulary, a Keeper of a Regiſter-Roll, or Reckoning-Book.

Charvil. See Chervil.

Charybdis, a dangerous Gulph in the Bay of Sicily, full of Whirl-pools, over againſt which is the Rock Scylla. See Scylla.

Chaſe, (of a Gun) is its whole length. See Chace.

To Chaſe, (Fr.) to hunt, to purſue, to drive or fright away; alſo to work Plate, as Goldſmiths, Repairers, and other Artificers do: In a Law-ſenſe, to drive Cattel to or from a Place: Among Mariners, To Chaſe, or give Chace, is to purſue a Ship at Sea.

Chaſm, (Gr.) a wide Gap, or opening of the Earth, or Firmament; an empty ſpace.

Chaſſery or Beſidery Sandry, a kind of Pear, that ripens in November and December, and ſometimes in January.

Chaſte, (Lat.) continent, uncorrupted, undefiled, pure.

Chaſte Plant. See Senſible Plant.

Chaſte-wood, a kind of Herb.

Chaſtelet, the Name of the Seſſions-houſe and common Goal of the City of Paris in France.

Chaſtelyn, a Word us'd by Chaucer for a Gentle-man, or Gentle-woman of a Noble Family.

To Chaſten, the ſame as To Chaſtiſe; a Scripture-Word.

To Chaſtiſe, to correct, or puniſh thoſe that have committed a Fault, &c.

Chaſtiſement, Puniſhment inflicted upon Offenders.

Chaſtity or Chaſtneſs, (Lat.) a being chaſte and pure; a Chriſtian and Moral Vertue, in abſtaining from the unlawful Pleaſures of the Fleſh, and uſing thoſe that are lawful with Moderation.

Chaſuble, (Fr.) a kind of Cope, or ſhort Veſtment without Sleeves, which a Popiſh Prieſt wears at Maſs; the ſame as Caſule.

Chat, prating, or idle Talk.

Chat-wood, little Sticks fit for Fuel.

Chattels, (Fr. in Common Law) all Goods moveable and immoveable, but ſuch as are in the nature of a Free-hold or parcel thereof; and theſe are either Perſonal, or Real.

Chattels Perſonal, are thoſe Goods which being wrongfully with-held, cannot be recover'd but by Perſonal Action, or ſuch as belong immediately to a Man's Perſon; as a Horſe, a Bow, &c.

Chattels Real, ſuch Goods as do not appertain to the Perſon, but depend upon ſome other thing; as a Box with Charters of Land, Apples upon a Tree, &c. Or elſe ſuch as iſſue out of ſome immoveable thing to a Perſon; as a Leaſe, or Rent for Term of Years.

To Chatter, to make a Noiſe as Birds do; to prate, or pratle.

Chatter-pie, a kind of Bird.

Chaud-mille, (in the Practick of Scotland) an Offence committed in a ſudden Tumult, or Uproar.

Chaude-piſſe, (Fr.) the running of the Reins, a Venereal Diſeaſe, the Signs of which are a painfull ſtretching out of the Yard, and a ſcalding Pain in making Water; the Urine being Pale, whitiſh, and full of Filaments, or little Threads.

To Chave. See To Cave.

Chavender or Chevin, a Fiſh otherwiſe call'd a Chub.

Chaumond, the name of an ancient and noble Family in Cornwall.

Chauſſe or a res de Chauſſe, (Fr.) a Term in Fortification, for the level of the Field, the plain Ground.

Chauſſe-trapes. See Caltrops.

Chaworths, a noble Family of Aylesbury in Buckingham-ſhire.

Cheap-gild, (old Law-word) a reſtitution made by the Hundred, or County, for any Wrong done by one that was in plegio; or for whoſe good Behaviour Sureties were put in.

To Cheapen, to ask, or to beat down the Price of a Commodity.

Chear, Gladneſs, Joy, Courage, Heart.

Chearful, brisk, lively, pleaſant.

Cheary, ſomewhat chearful.

Cheat, Deceit, Sham, Knavery; alſo a deceitful Perſon that makes it his Buſineſs to cheat, chowſe, or cozen.

Chechinquamins, an Indian Fruit that reſembles a Cheſnut.

Check, Loſs, fatal Blow, Misfortune; Cenſure, or Reproof, remorſe of Conſcience; alſo a Term at Cheſs-play: In Falconry Check, is when Rooks, Pies, or other Birds come within view of the Hawk, and ſhe forſakes her natural Flight to follow them.

Clerk of the Check, an Officer at Court ſo call'd, becauſe he has the check and controlment of the Yeomen of the Guard, and all Uſhers belonging to the King, Queen, or Prince.

To Check, to reſtrain or curb, to interrupt; to chide, or taunt.

Check-mate, a Term us'd at Cheſs-play, when the King is ſo cloſe ſhut up, that there is no Way left for his Eſcape, by which means an end is put to the Game.

Check-roll or Checker-roll, a Roll, or Book containing the Names of ſuch as are Attendants, and in Pay to the Queen or other great Perſonages, as their Houſehold-Servants.

Checker-work, Work that is checker'd, or ſet out with divers Colours.

Checkerelli Panni, (in old Latin Records) Cloath checker'd or diverſify'd in the Weaving.

Checky, a Term in Heraldry for a Bordure, or Ordinary that has more than two Rows of Checkers; for if it have only two, 'tis call'd Counter-componed.

Checui, a Major-domo, or Steward of an Houſehold among the Turks and Perſians.

Chedder-Cheeſe, a ſort of Cheeſe ſo call'd from a Place near the City of Wells in Somerſet-ſhire: They are ſo large as ſometimes to require more than one Man to ſet them on the Table.

Cheek, a part of the Face, the Side-beam of a Preſs, the handle of a Ballance or pair of Scales, &c.

Cheeks, (in a Ship) are two pieces of Timber on each ſide of the Maſt, which ſerve to ſtrengthen it at the top: Alſo the uppermoſt Rail, or piece of Timber in the Beak, and thoſe on each ſide the Trail-board, are call'd the upper and lower Cheek. The Knees or crooked pieces of Wood that faſten the Beak-head to the Bows of a Ship, as alſo termed Cheeks; the Sides of every Block or Pulley have likewiſe the ſame Name, and the Sides of a Ship-Carriage for a piece of Ordinance.

Cheer, Entertainment, good Fare.

Cheeſe-bowls, a kind of Flower.

Cheeſlip or Cheeſely-bag, (Country-word) the Bag in which Houſewives prepare and keep their Rennet for Cheeſe; the Stomach-bag of a Young ſucking Calf, that never taſtes any other Food than Milk, where the Curd lies undigeſted.

Cheeſe-running, an Herb otherwiſe call'd Ladies Bed-ſtraw.

Cheeſlip, the ſame as the Sow, or Hog-louſe; an Inſect.

Cheilocace. See Chilocace.

Chekelaton, a ſort of motley Stuff. Chaucer.

Chelandri, a Word likewiſe us'd by that Poet for a Gold-finch.

Chelidon, (Gr.) the Swallow, a well known Bird; alſo the hollow of a Horſe's Hoof.

Chelidonia, Celandine or Swallow-wort, an Herb that clears the Sight and purges Choler.

Chelidonias, the Weſt-wind, ſo call'd towards the latter end of February, as coming in with the Swallow.

Chelidonius, the Swallow-ſtone; a kind of little Stone ſaid to be found in the Stomach of that Bird.

Chelone, the Tortoiſe, of which there are ſeveral ſorts. See Terrapine.

Chelonitis, a precious Stone like the Eye of an Indian Tortoiſe, which Magicians anciently made uſe of to appeaſe Storms and Tempeſts.

Chelonophagi, a certain People living on the Borders of Carmania, who feed only upon Tortoiſes, and cover their Houſes with the Shells of them, which are ſaid to be ſo large, that one of them will ſerve to make a Ship, or Boat.

Chelſey-College, a Royal Hoſpital at Chelſey, one Mile diſtant from London, founded by K. Charles II. carry'd on by James II. and compleated by William III. for the maintenance of maimed and diſabled Soldiers. The number of Penſioners is 476, who have all red Coats lin'd with blew, with all other Cloaths, plentiful Diet, neat Lodging, Waſhing, Fireing, and one Day's Pay in every Week for Spending-money.

Chelydrus, (Gr.) a Water-ſnake like a Tortoiſe.

Chema or Cheme, a Meaſure among the Ancients, containing two ſmall Spoonfulls: Alſo a Weight of two Drams, one Scruple, four Grains, and four fifth Parts of a Grain.

Chemia, the ſame with Chymia, the Art of Chymiſtry.

Chemin, (Fr.) Way, or Road.

Chemin des Rondes, (in Fortif.) the Way of the Rounds, a ſpace between the Rampart and the low Parapet, or Breaſt-work under it, for the Rounds to go about; being the ſame as the Falſe Bray.

Chemiſe, (Fr.) a Shirt, or Shift; a lining, or caſing with Stone: In Fortification, a Wall with which a Baſtion, or any other Work of Earth is fac'd or lin'd for its greater Support and Strength: Alſo the ſolidity of the Wall from the Talus, or Slope to the Stone-row.

Chemoſis, (Gr.) a ſwelling of the Albuginea Tunica, or White Coat of the Eye, which makes the Black of it appear hollow; being a very great Inflammation, with vehement Pain, ſo that the Eye-lids are turn'd the inſide out, and the Eyes can ſcarce be cover'd with them.

Chenalopex, a Fowl of the Gooſe-kind call'd a Birgander, or Barnacle.

Chenopus, the Herb Gooſe-foot, a ſort of Orrach.

Cheriff, a Title of Dignity among the Saracens and Moors; one that was to ſucceed the Califf, or Soveraign Prince; as a Coadjutor does a Biſhop in Germany.

Cheriſaunie, an old Word for Comfort.

To Cheriſh, to make much of, to maintain, to nouriſh, to keep warm.

Chermes, a kind of Berry. See Kermes.

Chernites, (Gr.) a Stone like Ivory anciently us'd to preſerve dead Bodies in.

Cherſet. See Churcheſſet.

Cherſetum, (in old Latin Records) any cuſtomary Offering made to the Pariſh-Prieſt, or to the Appropriators of the Benefice.

Cherſina, (Gr.) the Land-ſnail; an Inſect.

Cherſoneſus or Cherſoneſe, (in Geogr.) a Peninſula, a Tract of Land almoſt encompaſs'd with the Sea; as The Taurick Cherſoneſe.

Cherſydros, a kind of Serpent that lives both on Land, and in the Water.

Chert or Cheort, (old Word) Love, Jealouſy.

Chertes, merry People. Chaucer.

Cherub or Cherubin, (Heb. i. e. Fulneſs of Knowledge) the ſecond of the nine Orders of Angels.

Chervil, an Herb proper for many Uſes, eſpecially Sallet-furniture.

Cheſlip, a kind of ſmall Vermin that lies under Stones and Tiles.

Cheſnut, the Fruit of a large Tree, cover'd with a prickly Burr, and under that a Skin with a Husk, which being taken off, the white Pulp appears good to eat.

Cheſs, a ſort of Game.

Cheſs-trees, (Sea-Term) two ſmall pieces of Timber on each Side of a Ship, a little before her Loof; having a Hole in them, thro' which the Main Tack runs, and whereto it is haled down.

Cheſt, the Breaſt, that hollow Part of a Humane Body, which contains the Heart and Lungs: Alſo a kind of Coffer, Box, or Trunk.

Cheſt, is alſo taken for an uncertain Quantity of ſome Merchandizes; as of Sugar, from 10 to 15 Hundred Weight: Of Caſtle-ſoap, from 2½ to 3 C. Of Indigo, from 1½ to 2 C. five Score to the Hundred: Of Glaſs, from 200 to 300 Foot.

Cheſt-found'ring. See Found'ring.

Cheſt-rope, (among Sea-men) a Rope added to the Breaſt-rope, when the Boat is tow'd at the Ship's Stern, to keep her from ſhearing, or ſwinging to and again.

Cheſt-traps, a kind of Boxes, or Traps, us'd to take Pole-cats, Fitchets, Marterns, and the like Vermin that are hurtful to Warrens, Dove-Houſes, or Hen-rooſts.

Chevage, Chivage, or Chieſage, (Fr. q. d. the Service of the Head) a Law-Term, ſignifying a Sum of Money paid by Villains to their Lords, as an Acknowledgment of their Villenage, or Subjection.

Chevantia, (in ancient Latin Deeds) a Loan, or Advance of Money upon Credit.

Chevaux de Friſe, (Fr. i. e. Friſeland-Horſes) are large Joiſts, or pieces of Timber, ten, or twelve Foot in Length, with ſix Sides, into which are driven a great Number of wooden Pins about ſix Foot long, croſſing one another, and having their Ends arm'd with Iron-Points. Their chief Uſe is to ſtop up Breaches, or to ſecure the Paſſages of a Camp from the Inroads both of Horſe and Foot; They are ſo call'd becauſe firſt made Uſe of at Groeningen, a City of Friſeland, and are much the ſame with Turn-pikes.

To Cheve, (old Word) to thrive.

Cheveril-Leather, a kind of ſoft tender Leather made of the Skin of wild Goats.

Cheverillus, (in old Latin Records) a Cockling, or young Cock.

Cheveſal, the Cargo, or Fraight of a Ship. Chaucer.

To Chevice, (old Word) to redeem.

Chevils, ſmall pieces of Timber nail'd to the In-ſide of a Ship, to belay, or faſten the Ropes call'd Sheats and Tacks.

Chevin or Chub-fiſh, a Freſh-water Fiſh, having a great Head.

Cheviſance, (Fr.) a Law-word for a Contract, or Bargain: Alſo an unlawful Contract in point of Uſury, or a Compoſition between Debtor and Creditor.

Chevitiæ or Cheviſæ, (in old Latin Records) Heads of plough'd Lands.

Chevron or Cheveron, (Fr. in Architect.) a ſtrong Rafter and Chief; ſuch as thoſe that meet at the Top of an Houſe, and hold up the Roof. In Heraldry, one of the Honourable Ordinaries, which repreſents two Rafters ſet up after that manner, and was anciently the Form of a Prieſteſs's Head-attire: Thus He bears Gules, a Chevron Argent.

Chevronel, is the Moiety, or half of a Chevron.

Chewing-balls, (among Farriers) little Balls made of ſeveral ſorts of Druggs, to be chew'd by Horſes, in order to recover their Appetite.

Chiaus, an Officer in the Ottoman Port, that performs the Duty of an Uſher; out of the Number of whom the Grand Seignior chooſes his Ambaſſadours to foreign Princes and States.

Chibbol, a kind of ſmall Onion.

Chicane or Chicanerie, (Fr.) a Quirk, Cavil, Trick, Shift, or Fetch at Law, the perplexing, or ſplitting of a Cauſe; pettifogging, a tricking and deceitful Practice of the Law.

Chichar or Kichar, a Sum of Money among the Hebrews, commonly tranſlated Talent, and valuable in Gold at 4500 Pounds Sterling; in Silver at 375 Pounds.

Chichlings, Pulſe, otherwiſe call'd everlaſting Peaſe.

Chick-weed, an Herb very good for all Impoſtumes, Redneſs of the Face, Wheals, Puſhes, Itch, Scab, &c.

Chickling, a ſort of Herb.

To Chide, to rebuke, or taunt at, to brawl, or brangle.

Chief, Firſt, Principal, Soveraign.

A Chief, (in warlike Affairs) a Commander in Chief, or General: Alſo a Common-Law Term, as Lands held in chief. See Capite.

In Heraldry, a Chief, is one of the eight Honourable Ordinaries, which takes up a third part of the Field, and is bounded by a Line, either ſtraight, or crooked, i. e. Invected, Engrailed, &c. Drawn thro' the Chief, or upper part of the Eſcutcheon: Thus, the Field is Gules a Chief Argent; or He bears Gules a Chief Crenele, or embatteled Argent.

Chief Point, the uppermoſt part of an Eſcutcheon, which is threefold, viz. The Dexter Middle, and Siniſter Chief Points.

Chief Pledge, the ſame with Headborough; which See.

Chiego, a ſmall Creature that gets into the Feet of thoſe that live in the Iſland of Barbadoes, and makes them very uneaſy.

Chieves. See Chives.

Chilblain, a kind of Swelling in the Hands, Heels, or Feet, occaſioned by Cold. See Kibe.

Childermas-day. See Innocents-Day.

Childing, Child-bearing, or bringing forth Children: Alſo a Term apply'd to ſeveral Plants, when their Off-ſpring exceeds the Number of the ordinary Kind; as Childing Daiſies, Childing Mercury, &c.

Childwit, (Sax. Law-Term) a Power to take a Fine of one's Bond-woman, gotten with Child without his Conſent. Within the Manour of Writtle in Eſſex, every reputed Father of a Baſtard begot there, pays to the Lord for a Fine three Shillings and four Pence; and the Cuſtom is alſo call'd Childwit.

Chiliad, (Gr.) the Number of a Thouſand, whence the Tables of Logarithms are often call'd Chiliads.

Chiliarchus or Chiliarcha, a Commander of a thouſand Men; a Colonel.

Chiliaſts, a Sect otherwiſe call'd Millenaries, who hold, That Chriſt ſhall come and reign perſonally upon Earth with his Saints a thouſand Years.

Chiliodyname, an Herb that has a thouſand Virtues; a kind of Gentian.

Chiliogon, (in Geom.) a regular plain Figure, conſiſting of a thouſand Sides and Angles; of which tho' the Eye can have no diſtinct View, yet a clear Idea of it may be form'd in the Mind, and the Summ of all its Angles may be eaſily demonſtrated to be equal to 1996 Right ones.

Chiliophyllon, the Herb Milfoil, or Yarrow.

Chilo, one that has great Lips, blubber-lipped.

Chilocace, a Canker of the Mouth, a Diſeaſe which often happens to young Children, and is otherwiſe call'd Labroſulcium.

Chill or Chilly, cold, ſenſible of Cold.

Chilonian or Chilonick, compendious, brief, either in Speaking, or Writing; as A Chilonick Style, ſo call'd from Chilo, a Lacedemonian Philoſopher, and one of the ſeven Wiſe-Men of Greece, whoſe Sentences were very ſhort and pithy.

Chiltern, the hilly part of Buckingham-ſhire, ſo nam'd upon Account of its Coldneſs, with reſpect to the neighbouring Valleys.

Chimbe, the outermoſt part of a Barrel. Chaucer.

Chime, a Tune ſet upon Bells, or in a Clock.

Chimæra or Chimera, (Gr.) a Fire-belching Monſter, feign'd by the Poets to have the Head of a Lion, the Belly of a Goat, and the Tail of a Serpent: Whence the Word is commonly us'd for a Caſtle in the Air, a meer Whimſey, or idle Fancy.

Chimerical, belonging to ſuch a Chimera, that has no Ground of Truth; imaginary.

Chimethlum, a Kibe, or Chilblain.

Chimin, (Fr.) a Law-word for a Way, and it is either the Queen's High-way, through which all her Subjects have a free Paſſage; tho' the Property of the Soil on each Side may belong to a private Perſon: Or elſe, a Private Way, by which one Man, or more, have Liberty to paſs by Preſcription, or by Charter thro' another Man's Ground.

Chiminage, a Toll for Way-faring, or Paſſage thro' a Foreſt.

Chimmar or Simar, a black Sleeveleſs Veſtment, worn by Biſhops between their Rochet and Gown.

Chimney-money or Hearth-money, a Tax of two Shillings per annum, laid by Stat. 14 Car. 2. upon every Fire-hearth, Stove, &c. and formerly payable to the King, but now quite taken away.

Chin-ſcab, a ſcabby Diſeaſe in Sheep, that runs on the Skin, and is commonly call'd the Dartars among Shepherds.

China, the moſt Eaſtern Part of Aſia, a vaſt Kingdom, or Empire, containing 600 Cities, 2000 walled Towns, and 4000 unwalled.

China or China-ware, a fine ſort of earthen Ware made in thoſe Parts.

China-root, a kind of Medicinal Root of a ſpungy light Subſtance, and reddiſh Colour, brought from the Eaſt and Weſt-Indies: It is good for the Gout, French Pox, and other obſtinate Diſeaſes.

Chincery, Niggardlineſs, Stingineſs; a Word us'd by Chaucer.

Chinch, a kind of Inſect, otherwiſe call'd a Bug, Wood-louſe, or Wall-louſe.

Chine, the Back-bone.

To Chine one, to cut him quite through the Back.

Chine-cough vulgò Chin-cough, a violent ſort of Cough that often ſeizes on young Children.

Chink, a Cleft in a Wall, or in the Earth, occaſion'd by Drought: Alſo a kind of Indian painted Callico-cloth.

To Chink, to gape, or chap like the parched Earth; to ſound, or ring as Money does.

Chique, a ſort of Weight us'd at Smyrna, for the weighing of Goats-wooll, which contains 2 Okes of 400 Drams each, or 5 Pounds, 7 Ounces, and 10 Drams each.

Chiragra, (Gr.) the Hand-gout; a ſort of Gout in the Hands, or Fingers.

Chirgemote, Circgemot or Chirchgemot, a Saxon Term, ſignifying an Eccleſiaſtical Court.

Chirking, (old Word) a chattering Noiſe.

Chirographer, (Gr.) an Officer belonging to the common Pleas, who engroſſes Fines acknowledged in that Court into a perpetual Record, writes and delivers the Indentures, one for the Buyer, and another for the Seller, and cauſes all the Fines to be proclaimed in the Court every Term.

Chirographum, a Hand-writing, a Bond, or Bill under one's Hand: Alſo a Term us'd by our Engliſh Saxons for a Publick Deed of Gift, or Conveyance made authentick by the Subſcription and Croſſes of the Witneſſes that were preſent.

Chirology, a talking by Signs made with the Hands.

Chiromancer, one skill'd in the Art of Chiromancy.

Chiromancy, otherwiſe call'd Palmeſtry, a kind of Divination, or pretended Art of diſcovering the Conſtitutions and Tempers of Perſons, and telling their Fortunes, by looking on the Lines and Marks of the Hand, or obſerving the Wrinkles and Strokes of the Skin.

Chiromantical, belonging to Chiromancy, or Palmeſtry.

Chiron, one of the Centaurs, who was Tutor to Achilles, and famous for his Skill in Phyſick and Surgery.

Chirones, a ſort of Wheals that ariſe in the Palms of the Hands. See Sirones.

Chironia Vitis, the wild, or black Vine, Briony; a Plant ſo nam'd from Chiron, its Inventer.

Chironion, the Herb Centaury, good for Wounds; both which Names took riſe from Chiron the Centaur, who firſt found out that Plant.

Chironium Ulcus, a Boil, or Sore which comes eſpecially to the Thighs and Feet, ſo call'd becauſe it has need of ſuch a one, as Chiron was, to heal it.

To Chirp, to ſing, warble, or peep, as a Bird does.

To take a chirping Cup, is to cheer up one's Spirits with a Draught of ſtrong Liquor.

Chirrichote, a Spaniſh Word, us'd in Deriſion of the French-men that pronounce Chirry for Kyry.

Chirurgery. See Surgery.

Chirurgical, (Gr.) belonging to the Art of Surgery.

Chirurgion. See Surgeon.

Chiſel or Chizzel, a Tool us'd by Carpenters, Joyners, Carvers, and other Artificers.

Chit, a ſnotty, ſnivelling little Boy, or Girl; a Kitling, or young Cat; alſo a Freckle in the Face.

To Chit, (among Husbandmen) any Seed is ſaid To chit, when it firſt ſhoots its ſmall Root into the Earth.

Chit-lark, a ſort of Bird.

Chitte, (old Word) a Shift, Shirt, or Shrowd.

Chitterlings, Hogs-guts well cleans'd and boil'd; alſo a kind of Pudding, or Sauſage.

Chitty-face, a puny Child with a little Face, one that has a pitiful, ſneaking Look.

Chivage. See Chevage.

Chivalry, (Fr.) Knighthood, Horſe-manſhip, Valour; as Deeds of Chivalry, i. e. mighty Feats at Arms, notable Exploits. In a Law-ſenſe, it is a particular manner of holding Lands, whereby the Tenant is bound to perform ſome Noble, or Military Office to his Lord; a Tenure by Knight Service.

Chives or Chieves, (among Herbaliſts) the fine Threads in Flowers; or according to ſome, the ſmall Knobs that grow on the top of thoſe Threads.

Chives tipt with Pendants, is when the Horn, or Thread of a Flower has a Seed hanging and ſhaking at the point of it, as in Tulips, &c.

Chives or Cives, a ſmall ſort of Onion.

Chiurts, a ſort of People among the Turks, very expert in Horſemanſhip, and ſuppos'd to be the Off-ſpring of the ancient Gordii.

Chleuaſmus, (Gr.) a laughing to Scorn, a mocking, ſcoffing or jeering; alſo a Figure in Rhetorick us'd to that purpoſe.

Chlorion or Chlorio, a green or yellow Bird of the bigneſs of a Turtle, never ſeen but in Summer, the Witwal or Loriot; the Yellow-hamber.

Chloris, the green Finch or the Canary-bird.

Chlorites, a precious Stone green like Graſs.

Chloropus, the Moor-hen, a Water-fowl.

Chloroſis, the Green-Sickneſs, a Diſeaſe in young Virgins, which ſeems to be a kind of Phlegmatick Dropſy, proceeding from a Stoppage of the Courſes, Want of Fermentation in the Blood, &c. It is otherwiſe call'd Icterus Albus & Morbus Virgineus.

Choanæ, a Tunnel or Funnel for pouring of Liquor out of one Veſſel into another: Among Anatomical Writers, a kind of Tunnel in the Baſis of the Brain, by which the ſerous Excrements are brought down from the Ventricles to the Pituitary Glandule: Alſo the Pelvis or Baſon of the Reins. See Pelvis.

Choaſpites, a precious Stone of a green Colour, glittering like Gold.

Chocolate, a ſort of Compound and a nouriſhing Liquor made of it, whoſe chief Ingredient is the Indian Cacao-Nut.

Chœnix, (Gr.) a Meaſure in uſe among the Ancients, containing two Sextaries, or three Engliſh Pints: Some take it for the Meaſure of a Servant's Food for one Day.

Chœras, a little Sow, a young Pig: Alſo the King's-evil Swelling; a hard Kernel under the Arm-pits, Throat, &c. a Wen.

Chœrogryllus, an Hedge-hog.

Choir, the Quire of a Church, that part of it where Divine Service is ſaid, or ſung.

To Choke, to ſtrangle or ſtifle, to ſtop up.

Choke-pear, a rough ſort of Pear; whence it is figuratively taken for a ſhock, or rub in one's Way.

Choke-vetch or Choke-weed, a kind of Herb.

Cholagoga or Cholagogues, (Gr.) Medicines that diſcharge, or purge Choler and ſulphureous Humours; as Rhubarb, Senna, &c.

Choledochus Ductus, (in Anat.) is the uniting of the Ductus or Porus Biliaricus, with the Ductus Cyſticus into one Paſſage, thence termed the Ductus Communis Choledochus: This Paſſage goes obliquely to the lower end of the Gut Duodenum, or the beginning of the Jejunum, and conveys the Gall to thoſe Parts.

Choler, a hot and dry yellow Humour, contain'd in the Gall-bladder, which is of great uſe for the Fermentation of the Juice nam'd Chyle, and bringing it to Perfection: In a Figurative Senſe, it is taken for Paſſion, Anger, or Wrath.

Cholera, (Gr.) the Choler, or Bile: Alſo a Diſeaſe in the Stomach and Guts, whereby the Dregs of that Humour are voided in great abundance, both upwards and downwards; a Vomiting and Looſeneſs.

Cholerick, abounding with, or full of Choler; alſo paſſionate, haſty, apt to be angry, peeviſh.

Choliambi, a kind of Iambick Verſes that have a Spondee in the ſixth, or laſt Place.

Cholmondley, a Town in Cheſhire, which gave Name and Place of Abode to the Noble Family of the Cholmondleys, or Chomleys.

Chondrilla, (Gr.) an Herb like Succory, Ruſh-ſuccory, or Gum-ſuccory, wild Endive.

Chondris, an Herb call'd falſe Dittany.

Chondros, a Grain as of Salt, Maſtich, Frankinſcence, &c. Alſo a kind of Italian Wheat. In Anatomy, a Cartilage, or Griſtle, the moſt earthy and ſolid part of the Body next to a Bone.

Chondroſyndeſmus, a Cartilaginous Ligament; or the joyning of Bones together by means of a Cartilage, or Griſtle.

Choner or Corus, an Hebrew Meaſure, containin 75 Wine-Gallons.

To Chop, to cut, to mince, or cut ſmall; to truck, or make an Exchange.

Chop-church, (old Law-word) an Exchanging of Churches, as when two Parſons of ſeveral Churches change their Benefices, and reſign them to the Ordinary for that Purpoſe.

Choragium, (Gr, among the Ancients) the Tiring, or Dreſſing-room in Play-houſes; alſo the Actors Apparel and Furniture of the Stage; and in general, all kind of Furniture, Equipage, Train, or Dreſs.

Choragus, the Maſter, or Setter forth of Plays; the Leader of the Dance, the Maſter of the Revels who was to look to the Muſick, or to furniſh the Attire.

Choral, belonging to the Choir of Church; as a Vicar Choral, i. e. one that by virtue of any of the Orders of the Clergy, was admitted to ſit and ſerve God in the Quire; of theſe there were formerly ſix belonging to St. Paul's Cathedral.

Chord, (in Geom.) a Right-line that joins the two ends of any Arch, or Portion of a Circle, and is otherwiſe call'd a Subtenſe; Alſo a Term in Muſick. See Cord.

Chorda, (Gr.) a Bowel, a Gut, the String of a Muſical Inſtrument made of a Gut; a Tendon or Nerve: Alſo a painful Stretching out of the Penis or Yard towards the Perinæum.

Chorda Membranæ Tympani, a certain Nerve that comes from the third Branch of the fifth Pair, and is extended above the Membrane of the Tympanum or Drum of the Ear.

Chordapſus, the wringing or griping Pains of the Small Guts, when they are twiſted, or when their Periſtaltick, or Worm-like Motion is inverted, ſo that the Ordure is thrown up at the Mouth only: This Diſeaſe is otherwiſe call'd Ileus Iliaca Paſſio, Miſerere mei & Volvulus.

Chordata Gonorrhœa. See Gonorrhœa Cordata.

Chorea, a Dance where many People dance together; a Ball.

Chorea Sancti Viti, a ſort of Madneſs which was formerly very common among ſome People, wherein the Perſons affected ran up and down dancing Night and Day to the laſt Gaſp, if they were not forcibly hinder'd: This Frenzy was ſo call'd, becauſe it often ſeiz'd on thoſe that us'd to pay a yearly Viſit to the Chappel of St Vitus, near the City of Ulm in Sweden.

Chorepiſcopus, a Suffragan or Rural Biſhop formerly appointed by the chief Biſhop of the Dioceſs, to ſupply his Place in Country-Towns and Villages.

Choreus, a Foot in Greek or Latin Verſe, conſiſting of three ſhort Syllables, the ſame with Tribrachus; or elſe of two Syllables, the firſt long, and the other ſhort, the ſame as the Trochee.

Choriambus, a Foot compounded of a Choreus and an Iambus, which conſiſts of four Syllables, two long ones at each end, and two ſhort ones in the middle; as Ebrietas.

Chorion, (in Anat.) the outmoſt Membrane or Skin that covers the Fœtus or Child in the Womb, being pretty thick and ſmooth within, but rough on the out-ſide where the Placenta ſticks.

Choriſter. See Quiriſter.

Chorobates, a Meaſure 20 Foot long, anciently made uſe of to meaſure the Height of Walls or Turrets, or the depth of Waters.

Chorographer, one skill'd in Chorography.

Chorographick Charts. See Charts Chorographick.

Chorography, a Part of Geography, which delivers the Deſcription of particular Countries; as of England, France, &c. or of any County, Shire, or Province in them.

Choroides, (in Anat.) the Folding of the Carotidal Artery in the Brain, in which is the Glandula Pinealis: Alſo the Uvea Tunica, or Grape-like Coat that makes the Apple of the Eye.

Chorus, the Company of Singers and Dancers in a Stage-play, or of Perſons Singing together in Conſort; a Choir, or Quire.

Choſe, (Fr.) a Law-word for a Thing: Ex. Choſe local, i. e. ſuch a thing as is fixt to a Place; as a Mill, &c. Choſe Tranſitory, a thing that is moveable, or may be carry'd from one Place to another. Choſe in Action, a Thing without a Body, and only a Right; as an Annuity, a Covenant, a Bond, &c.

Chough, a ſort of Bird.

A Chowſe, a Cheat, Trick, or Sham: Alſo a fooliſh Fellow that may be eaſily put upon; a Nizy, a Bubble.

To Chowſe, to Cozen, or Cheat.

To Chowter, to mutter and mumble, as froward Children are apt to do.

Chriſm, (Gr. i. e. Ointment) a mixture of Oil and Balſam, conſecrated by a Popiſh Biſhop, to be us'd in the Ceremonies of Baptiſm, Confirmation, extreme Unction, Coronation of Kings, &c.

Chriſmale, (in old Records) a Chryſmal, or Chriſom-cloath laid over a Child's Face at Baptiſm; which of old was a cuſtomary due to the Pariſh-Prieſt.

Chriſmatis Denarii, Chriſom-pence, Money formerly paid to the Biſhop of the Dioceſs, or his Suffragan, by the Pariſh-clergy for their Chriſm, Conſecrated about Eaſter for the Uſes of the enſuing Year. This Cuſtomary Payment being made in Lent, near Eaſter, was therefore in ſome Places call'd Quadrageſimals, in others Paſchals and Eaſter-pence.

Chriſmatory, the Veſſel in which the Chriſm, or hallow'd Oil is kept.

Chriſom or Chriſom-cloth, the Face-cloth, or piece of Linnen put upon the Head of a Child newly Baptiz'd.

Chriſoms or Criſoms, Infants that die within the Month of Birth, or at the time of their wearing the Chriſom-cloath.

Chriſom-calf, a Word us'd in ſome Parts of England, for a Calf kill'd before it is a Month old.

CHRIST, (Gr. i. e. Anointed) the proper Name of the Ever-bleſſed Redeemer of the World.

Chriſt's Hoſpital in London, formerly a Monaſtery of Gray Friers, which was diſſolv'd by K. Henry VIII. and chang'd by Edward VI into an Hoſpital for poor Children: It is call'd by ſome Blew-coat Hoſpital, in regard that all the Boys and Girls are there Cloath'd in Blew Coats, and provided with all other ſuitable Neceſſaries.

Chriſt-thorn, the Name of a certain Shrub.

Chriſt-wort, a kind of Herb.

To Chriſten, to admit into the Communion of the Chriſtian Church, to Baptize.

Chriſtendom, a Word us'd to denote all the Countries throughout the World, where the Chriſtian Religion is profeſs'd.

Chriſtian, belonging to Chriſt, or his Doctrine; alſo a proper Name of ſeveral Men and Women.

Chriſtian Name, that Name which is given to a Perſon at Baptiſm.

A Chriſtian, a Profeſſour of Chriſtianity.

Chriſtianitatis Curia, (Latin old Law-term) the Court Chriſtian, or Eccleſiaſtical Judicature, oppoſed to the Civil Court, or Lay-Tribunal, call'd Curia Domini Regis: Theſe Courts were not only held by Biſhops in Synods, and their Arch-deacons and Chancellours in Conſiſtories; but alſo in the Rural Chapters, where the Rural Dean, or Decanus Chriſtianitatis preſided, and the Pariſh-Prieſts were Aſſeſſours, or Aſſiſtants.

Chriſtianity, the Chriſtian Principles, Doctrine, or Religion.

Chriſti Manus. See Manus Chriſti.

Chriſtmas, a Feſtival kept December 25, in Remembrance and Honour of Chriſt's Birth.

Chriſtopher, (i. e. Chriſt-carrier) a proper Name of Men, particularly of a famous Saint in the Roman Calendar; It was alſo the Chriſtian Name of the renowned Columbus, or Colon the Genoeſe, who firſt diſcover'd the New World, call'd America.

Chriſtophoriana, the Herb St. Chriſtopher.

Chroma, (Gr.) Colour: In Rhetorick, a Colour, Set-off, or fair Pretence: In Muſick, the graceful Way of Singing with Quavers and Trilloes.

Chromaticks, a pleaſant and delightful ſort of Muſick, which conſiſts in keeping the Intervals cloſe, by an ingenious Artifice ſo as to make the Melody ſweeter and ſofter. See Diatonick and Enharmoniack.

Chromatiſmus, (Phyſical-Term) the natural Tincture or Colour, as of Urine, Spittle, Bloud, &c.

Chromis, the Grunter, a Sea-fiſh.

Chronical, belonging To time, or that is of a Long Continuance.

Chronical Diſeaſes, are Diſtempers that do not come preſently to a Height; but in which the Patient lingers out, and lives many Years, or at leaſt for ſome conſiderable time; as the Gout, Stone, Dropſy, &c. and in this reſpect they are oppoſed to Acute Diſeaſes; which See.

Chronicle, an Hiſtory according to the Order of Times, or of things done from time to time.

Chronicled, recorded, or ſet down in a Chronicle or Hiſtory.

Chronicler, a Writer of Chronicles.

Chronodix, a kind of Dial or Inſtrument, to ſhew how the time paſſes away.

Chronogram, a Verſe in which the Figurative Letters being joyn'd together, make the Year of our Lord.

Chronologer or Chronologiſt, one skill'd in Chronology.

Chronological, belonging to that Science.

Chronology, the Art of reckoning Time, from the Creation of the World, for Hiſtorical Uſes and keeping an Account of remarkable things and Tranſactions; ſo as truly to Date the Beginnings and Ends of Princes Reigns, the Revolutions of Empires and Kingdoms, Signal Battels, Sieges, &c.

Chronometrum or Chronoſcopium Perpendiculum, the ſame as a Pendulum to meaſure Time with. See Pendulum.

Chryſalis, a Worm, or Grub that turns to the Butter-fly.

Chryſanthemum, a Name given to ſeveral Herbs that have yellow ſhining Flowers; as Crow-foot, or Gold-knaps, yellow Camomile, &c.

Chryſelectrum, Amber of a golden, or yellow Colour.

Chryſeus, a kind of Comet of a Gold-Colour. See Diſcens.

Chryſitis, Gold-foam; the Foam that ariſes from refined Lead, being of a yellow Colour like Gold: Alſo the Herb Milfoil, or Yarrow.

Chryſoberyllus, a ſort of Cryſtal-ſtone that ſhines like Gold.

Chryſocarpum, a kind of Ivy, ſo call'd from the golden Colour of its Berries.

Chryſoceraunius Pulvis, a Chymical Powder made of Gold, the ſame with Aurum Fulminans; which See.

Chryſocolla, Gold-Sodder, a Mineral like a Pumice-Stone, found in Mines of Copper, and ſometimes in thoſe of Gold, Silver, and Lead; one kind of it is call'd Borax, and us'd by Gold-ſmiths for the ſoddering of Gold.

Chryſocome, the Herb Milfoil, or Yarrow, with golden Locks.

Chryſolachanum, a kind of Orrach.

Chryſolampis, a precious Stone that ſhines like Fire by Night, and looks pale by Day; whence it may be call'd the Glow-worm Stone.

Chryſolithos, the Chryſolite, a precious Stone of a tranſparent Gold-colour mixt with Green; ſome will have it to be a kind of Jaſper.

Chryſomelum, an Apple of a golden Colour, a yellow Quince.

Chryſomitris, the Gold-finch, a Singing-bird.

Chryſopaſtus, a precious Stone ſprinkled as it were with Gold-Sand.

Chryſophrys, a Fiſh ſo call'd for the Gold-colour it has over the Eyes.

Cryſopis, a precious Stone like Gold.

Chryſopœia, (among Alchymiſts) the Art of making Gold.

Chryſopraſus, a precious Stone found in Aſia, of a greeniſh Colour, yielding a Golden Luſtre.

Chryſopterus, a kind of Topaz.

Chryſos, Gold the moſt valuable of all Metals; alſo the Gilt-head, a Sea-fiſh.

Chryſoſtom, (i. e. having a golden Mouth) the Name of an ancient Biſhop of Conſtantinople, famous for his Eloquence.

Chryſothales, the leſſer ſort of Wall Penny-wort; an Herb.

Chryſtal. See Cryſtal.

Chryſulca, the Water with which Refiners waſh Gold off, when mixt with other Metals: Alſo a Chymical Liquor that diſſolves Gold. See Aqua Regalis.

Chub, a kind of Fiſh having a great Head; alſo a Jolt-head, or clowniſh Fellow.

Chub-checked, that has full Cheeks.

To Chuck, to ſtroke under the Chin; alſo to cry as a Patridge does.

To Chuckle, to break out now and then into Laughter, to laugh by fits.

Chuff, a Country-clown.

Chuffy, clowniſh, rough, rude.

Chump, a thick and ſhort Log, or Block of Wood.

Church, a Place ſet a-part for Divine Worſhip: Alſo a particular Congregation, or Aſſembly of Chriſtian People, govern'd by a lawful Miniſter.

The Catholick or Univerſal Church, the whole Body of the Faithful, throughout all the Parts of the habitable Earth of which Chriſt is the Head.

Church-Reve, (Sax.) the Guardian, or Overſeer of the Church; as Shire-reve, or Sheriff, is of the County; a Church-Warden.

Church-Wardens, Officers yearly choſen by Conſent of the Miniſter and Veſtry, to look to the Church, Church-yard, Pariſh-Accounts, &c. as alſo to obſerve the Behaviour of the Pariſhioners, and to preſent thoſe that commit ſuch Offences as belong to the Juriſdiction and Cenſure of the Eccleſiaſtical Court.

Churcheſſet, (Sax. q. d. Churches Seed) a certain Meaſure of Wheat, which in old Times every Man us'd to give to the Church on St. Martin's Day. It is otherwiſe expreſs'd Chirſet, Curcſet, and Ciricſceat.

Churl or Carl, a Clown, a Country-bumpkin; a covetous Hunks: The Word was us'd among our Saxon Anceſtours, for a free Tenant at Will, that held Lands of the Thane, or Earl, upon account of certain Rents and Services.

Churliſh, clowniſh, ſurly, ill-natur'd.

Churr-worm, an Inſect, otherwiſe call'd a Fen-cricket.

Churſcot, (Sax.) Church-ſcot, i. e. certain cuſtomary Duties, anciently paid to the Pariſh-Prieſt; from which thoſe that liv'd in a Monaſtery, or Religious Houſe, ſometimes purchas'd an Exemption for themſelves and their Tenants.

Chus, (Gr.) the ſame Meaſure among the Grecians, as Congius with the Romans, containing ſix of our Pints.

Chyle, a white Juice in the Stomach and Bowels, proceeding from a light diſſolution and fermentation of the Victuals; which Juice mingling and fermenting with the Gall and Pancreatick Juice, paſſes the Lacteal Veins, &c. and at laſt is imbodied with the Bloud.

Chyliferus Ductus. See Ductus Chyliferus.

Chylification, the natural Act or Faculty of changing the Nouriſhment, or Food, into Chyle.

Chyli Receptaculum. See Receptaculum Chyli.

Chyloſis, the ſame as Chilification.

Chymere, a kind of Coat, or Jacket; alſo a Herald's Coat of Arms.

Chymica, or Chymicalia, ſuch Medicines as are prepar'd by Chymiſts.

Chymical, belongiig to Chymiſtry.

Chymical Digeſtion. See Digeſtion.

Chymiſt, one that practiſes, or is ſkill'd in that Art.

Chymiſtry, an Art which teaches how to ſeparate the different Subſtances that are found in Mixt Bodies, as Metals, Minerals, Plants and Living-Creatures, and to reduce them to their firſt Principles; from the Greek Word Chymos, a Juice, or Cheein to melt: It is otherwiſe call'd Alchymy, as alſo the Hermetick, Pyrotechnick and Spagirick Art; the Reaſons of which Names are accounted for under thoſe Articles.

Chymoſis or Chemoſis, a diſtortion, or drawing awry of the Eye-lids, occaſion'd by an Inflammation: Alſo an Inflammation in the Tunica Cornea, or horny Coat of the Eye. See Chemoſis.

Chymus, any kind of Juice, eſpecially that of Meat after the ſecond Digeſtion, which is mixt with the Bloud, and running thro' the Veins, repairs the waſte of every Part.

Ciboire, (Fr.) the Box, or Cup in which the Hoſt, or conſecrated Bread at the Communion is kept in Popiſh Countries.

Cibol, Ciboule, or Chibbol, a kind of ſmall degenerate Onion.

Ciboulet, a young Chibbol.

Cicada, (Lat.) the Cigal, an Inſect that makes a great din thro' Italy and Greece in the Summer-time, and is falſely taken for the Graſs-hopper.

Cicatrice, (in Surgery) a Scar, Seam, or Mark left after a great Wound or Ulcer is heal'd. Some are Simple, others accompany'd with Cavities, or Dents, and loſs of Subſtance in the Part affected.

Cicatricula, a little Scar: Among Naturaliſts, it is taken for that ſmall whitiſh Speck in the Coat of the Yolk of an Egg, where the firſt Changes towards the formation of the Chick appear in a hatched Egg; and which is commonly call'd the Treddle.

Cicatrizantia, cicatrizing Medicines that fill up Sores with Fleſh, and cover them with a Skin.

To Cicatrize, to cloſe up a Wound, to bring it to a Scar.

Cicatrix, (Lat.) a Cicatrice, Scar, or Seam of a Wound.

Ciceley, a proper Name of Women.

Ciceley or Sweet Ciceley, a ſort of Herb.

Cicer, (Lat.) a ſmall ſort of Pulſe leſs than Peaſe; Chiches, or Vetches.

Cicera, a kind of Pulſe like Chichlings, good for Fodder.

Cicera Tartari, Pills made of Turpentine and Cream of Tartar.

Cicerbita, a ſort of Sow-thiſtle, an Herb.

Cicercula, little Chiches, Chichlings.

Cicero, the Name of a famous Orator and Philoſopher among the Romans. Whence Ciceronian Style, a Rhetorical, eloquent and pure ſtyle, or manner of Expreſſion.

Cich or Cich-peaſe, a kind of Pulſe.

Cichlings, petty Ciches.

Cichorium, (Gr.) Cichory, or Succory, an Herb good againſt Stoppages of the Liver and Spleen, Feavers, &c.

Cicindela, (Lat.) an Inſect that ſhines by Night; the Glow-bird, or Glow-worm.

Ciconia, the Stork, a Water-fowl.

Cicuta, an Herb much like our Hemlock, the Juice of which through extreme Cold, is Poiſon; and therefore the Athenians made uſe of it to put Malefactors to Death.

Cicutaria, common Hemlock, Ciceley, or Cow-weed; the Leaves of which are like the former, but broader, and of a pale green Colour.

Cid, a Word us'd by the Spaniards, for a valiant Man, or great Captain.

Cidaris, a Cap of State among the ancient Perſians, ſaid to be worn by their Kings and Prieſts, and probably not much different from the Turbant now in Uſe.

Cider, an excellent Drink made of Apples.

Cideriſt, one that deals in Cider.

Ciderkin or Purre, a Liquor made of the Murk or groſs Matter left after the Cider is preſs'd out and a convenient quantity of boil'd Water added to it; the whole infuſing for about 48 Hours: This Liquor may ſupply the place of ſmall Beer in a Family, and to many is more agreeable.

Cierge, (Fr.) a Wax-taper, Wax-candle, or Lamp; a Word us'd by Chaucer.

Cignet. See Cygnet.

Cilery, (in Architect.) the Drapery, Foliage, or branched Work on the heads of Pillars.

Cilia, the Eye-brows, or Eye-lids. See Cilium and Supercilium.

Ciliare Ligamentum or Proceſſus Ciliaris, (in Anat.) is a Collection of ſmall ſlender Filaments or Threads which take riſe from the inner part of the Tunica Uvea in the Eye, and thence run towards the bunching out part of the Cryſtalline Humour, which they compaſs in and joyn to the Uvea.

Cilium, the Eye-lid, or the Cover of the Eye; properly the utmoſt edge of the Eye-lid, out of which the Hairs grow.

Cilo, one that has a Head, with a Sharp Crown like a Sugar-loaf, or that has a great Fore-head.

Cimeliarches or Cimeliarcha, (Gr.) a chief Keeper of the Plate, Veſtments, and other rich things belonging to a Church; a Church-Warden: Alſo the Maſter of a Treaſury, or Jewel-houſe.

Cimeter, a kind of broad Back-ſword much us'd in Turkey and Perſia.

Cimex, (Lat.) a ſort of Fly, or Worm, breeding in Wood, Paper, or Chaff; a Wall-louſe, Bug, or Chinch.

Cimex Sylveſtris, the Knolſter, or flying Puneez.

Cimicaria, the Herb Flea-bane.

Cimmerians, a certain People of Scythia, whoſe Country was compaſs'd about with Woods, and always cover'd with thick Clouds: Whence Cimmerian Darkneſs is Proverbially taken for a very great Obſcurity.

Cina Cinæ, the ſame as Quinquina, or the Jeſuits Bark; which See.

Cinara or Cynara, (Gr.) the Artichoke; a well known Plant.

Cincater or Cincanter, as An old Cincater, i. e. a Man aged fifty Years.

Cinclus, (Lat.) a Bird call'd the long-bill'd Wag-tail, or Half-ſnipe, and by ſome the Water-ſwallow.

Cincon, an admirable Bird in the Kingdom of Mexico in the Weſt-Indies, no bigger than a Beetle, yet beautify'd with delicate Feathers: It lives upon the Dew and the ſmell of Flowers, and Sleeps in the hollow of a Tree 'till the Month of April.

Cincture, (Lat.) a girding: In Architecture, that part which makes the middle of a Pillar.

Cinefaction or Cineration, (among ſome Chymiſts) is taken for Calcination, or the burning of any thing to Aſhes.

Cineres, Cinders, Aſhes, Embers.

Cineres Clavellati, gravelled Aſhes, a Chymical Term for the Aſhes that are made of Tartar, or the Lees of Wine Burnt.

Cineritia, the outward, ſoft; glandulous Subſtance of the Brain, ſo call'd from its Aſh Colour; and Subſtantia Corticalis. See Cortical part of the Brain.

Cingle, a Girth for a Horſe.

Cingulum, (Lat.) a Girdle, Girth, or Band; alſo an Herb in the Sea growing like a Girdle; Sea-belt.

Cingulum Veneris, (in Palmeſtry) the Girdle of Venus, the Figure of a Semicircle drawn from a Space betwixt the Fore-finger and Middle-finger to the Space between the Ring-finger and Little-finger.

Ciniphes, certain little Flies, but cruelly ſtinging, which made one of the Plagues of Egypt.

Cinnabar or Cinoper, red Lead, a kind of Mineral conſiſting of Sulphur and Mercury; and it is either Natural, termed Native Cinnabar, or elſe Artificial, which is a Mixture of Brimſtone and Quick-ſilver ſublimed together: This Mineral is browniſh when in the Lump, but being reduc'd to a fine Powder, it is of a very high red Colour, and call'd Vermilion.

Cinnabar of Antimony, a mixture of equal Parts of powder'd Antimony, and ſublimate Corroſive Chymically prepar'd, which is counted a good Medicine for the Falling-ſickneſs and Diſtempers of the Head.

Cinnamon, a ſort of Spice, being the ſecond Bark of a Tree, as large as the Olive; its Leaves like thoſe of a Lemmon-tree, but much greener; the Flowers White, and very ſweet ſcented; the Fruit round, black, and of the bigneſs of a Nut.

Cinoper. See Cinnabar.

Cinquain, (Fr. in the Art of War) an ancient Order of Battel, to draw up five Battallions, ſo as to make three Lines, i. e. Van, Main-Body and Rear: Thus the ſecond and fourth Battallions advancing make the Van; the firſt and fifth form the Main-Body; and the third falls back for the Rear-guard, or Body of Reſerve.

Cinquanteniere, a Captain, or Commander of the Militia, or Trained Bands of a Town in France: Alſo a particular Officer in the City of Paris.

Cinque-foil or Five-leav'd Graſs, an Herb that takes Name from the Number of Leaves that grow together in a Tuft.

Cinque-port, a ſort of Fiſhing-net, ſo call'd from the five Entrances into it; being of excellent Uſe for any River, or Pond of ſwift or ſtanding Water.

Cinque-Ports, five remarkable Havens, which lie towards France on the Eaſt Part of England, viz. Haſtings, Dover, Hithe, Romney and Sandwich; to which Rye and Winchelſea are added as Appendants: They are under the Juriſdiction of the Conſtable of Dover-Caſtle, and were firſt eſtabliſh'd by K. William the Conquerour, for the better ſecurity of the Coaſt. The Inhabitants of theſe Ports have many Privileges and Immunities above others; they pay no Subſidies; Suits at Law are commenc'd and anſwer'd within their own Liberties; their Mayors and Barons carry the Canopy over the King and Queen at the Coronation; and for their greater Dignity, they are plac'd at a Table on the King's Right Hand.

Lord Warden of the Cinque-Ports, an eſpecial Governour of thoſe noted Havens, who has the Authority of an Admiral among them, and ſends out Writs in his own Name.

Cion, a young Shoot, Sprig, or Sucker of a Tree: In Anatomy, the ſame with the Uvula; which See.

Ciperous, a kind of Bulruſh.

Cipher, (in Arithm.) a Note or Character, which ſignifies nothing of it ſelf, yet being ſet after any of the other Figures, it encreaſes their Value by Tens; which it alſo does in Decimal Fractions, when ſet before any Figure: A Cypher is alſo a flouriſh of Letters compriſing the Name of a Perſon, or ſome ſhort Sentence: Alſo a ſecret Character agreed on between two Parties, for the writing of Letters, Intelligence, &c.

To Cipher, to caſt Accounts.

Cipreſs. See Cypreſs.

Cippus, (Lat.) a Pillar with an Inſcription, a Grave-ſtone: In old Records, a pair of Stocks, or Pillory.

Circenſian Games, the Plays of the Circus much us'd at Rome in imitation of the Olympick Games in Greece, and dedicated to Conſus the God of Counſels.

Circius, (Lat.) a boiſt'rous South-wind, or Hurricane, which blows out of France thro' Italy.

Circle, a Compaſs, a Ring; as A Circle of fine Ladies. In Geometry, a plain Figure, comprehended only under one Curve, or crooked Line, and having a Point in the middle of it call'd the Center, from which all the Right-lines that can be drawn to the Circumference are equal one to another.

Circle of the Equant, (in the Ptolemaick Aſtronomy) is a Circle deſcribed on the Center of the Equant, and its chief Uſe is to find the Variation of the firſt Inequality.

Circle of Inclination, a great Circle about the Sun in the Sphere of the fixed Stars; falling right upon the Ecliptick.

Circle of perpetual Apparition, is one of the leſſer Circles parallel to the Equator, ſo nam'd in regard that all the Stars which are included in it, never ſet, but are always viſible above the Horizon.

Circle of perpetual Occultation, is another Circle at a like diſtance from the Equator, which contains all thoſe Stars that never appear in our Hemiſphere: But the Stars Situated between theſe Circles, continually riſe and ſet at certain times.

Circles of Altitude. See Almicanters.

Circles of Declination, (on the Globe) ſo ſome Writers call the Meridians, on which the Declination, or Diſtance from the Equator of any Planet, or Star is counted.

Circles of Longitude, are great Circles, that paſs thro' the Star and the Pole of the Ecliptick, where they determine the Star's Longitude, reckon'd from the beginning of Aries: The Meridians are likewiſe ſo call'd, becauſe they ſerve to mark out the Longitude of Places.

Circles of Poſition, are Circles that paſs by the Common Points, where the Horizon and Meridian mutually cut one another, and thro' any Degree of the Ecliptick, or Point in the Heavens, or the Center of any Star; their Uſe being to find out how ſuch a Star is Situated with reſpect to the Globe of the Earth. The Twelve Aſtrological Houſes are alſo diſtinguiſh'd by Semicircles of Poſition.

Circles of the Empire, are certain large Provinces, or Countries into which the Empire of Germany is divided; being Ten in Number, viz. The Circles of the Upper and Lower Saxony, Weſtphalia, the Upper and Lower Rhine, Franconia, Suabia, Bavaria, Auſtria and Burgundy; which laſt is now known by the Name of The Seventeen Provinces of the Netherlands.

Circlet, a Roll made of Pewter, or other Metal to ſet and turn a Diſh on at Table.

Circocele, (Gr.) a Swelling of the Seed-veſſels in the Scrotum.

Circuit, (Lat.) a going about, a Compaſs: Alſo the travelling of the Judges twice a Year, to adminiſter Juſtice in ſeveral Counties.

Circuition, a fetching a Compaſs, or going about.

Circuitus, (Lat.) a Circuit, or Compaſs: Alſo the Courſe of a Feaver, or Ague; the ſame with Periodus and Typus; which See.

Circuity of Action, (Law-Term) a longer Courſe of Proceeding than is needful to recover the thing ſued for.

Circular, that is in form of a Circle, round.

Circular or Spherical Numbers, (in Arithm.) are ſuch whoſe Powers end in the Roots themſelves: As for Inſtance, 5 and 6, all the Powers of which do end in 5 and 6; as the Square of 5 is 25, the Cube 125; the Sqare of 6 is 36, the Gube 216, &c.

To Circulate, to go, or move round.

Circulation, the Motion of that which Circulates: In Chymiſtry, a Motion given to Liquors contain'd in a Double Veſſel, that is, when the Necks of two Veſſels are very well luted together; which Motion is ſtirr'd up by Fire, and cauſes the Vapours to riſe and fall to and fro: This Operation ſerves either to make the Liquors more ſubtil, or to open ſome hard Body that is mixed with them.

Circulation of the Blood, a continual Motion of that Humour paſſing from the Heart thro' the Arteries, and returning back to the Heart through the Veins.

Circulatory, that circulates, or goes round.

Circulatory Letters, are Letters ſent into all Parts of a Kingdom by general Commiſſioners, or by an Arbhbiſhop into the Several Parts of his Province, upon particular Occaſions.

Ciculatory Veſſels, (in Chymiſtry) ſuch as ſerve to diſtill by Circulation.

A Circulatory, a Glaſs-Veſſel in which the Steam of the diſtilled Liquor, by its riſing and falling rolls about as it were in a Circle: There are ſeveral ſorts of theſe Veſſels, but two are chiefly us'd, and call'd the Pelican, or Blind Alembick, and the Diota.

Circulatum Minus, a Term us'd by ſome Chymiſts for Spirit of Wine.

Circulus, (Lat.) a Circle or Compaſs, a Ring, a Hoop: Among Chymiſts, a round Inſtrument made of Iron, for cutting off the Necks of Retorts, Cucurbits, or other Glaſs-Veſſels; which is done by applying the Inſtrument heated to the Glaſs-Veſſel, and holding it there 'till it grow hot, then with ſome drops of cold Water, or a cold Blaſt, it flies in pieces.

Circulus Decennovennalis. See Cycle of the Moon.

Circumagentes Muſculi, (in Anat.) are certain oblique Muſcles of the Eyes, ſo nam'd from their helping to Wind, and turn the Eyes round about.

Circumaggeration, a heaping round about.

Circumambient, encompaſſing, or flowing about; an Epithet proper for the Air and apply'd to other natural Bodies.

Circumambulation, a walking about.

Circumcellio, a Vagabond, or Wanderer, one that goes up and down, having no certain Abode; a haunter of Ale-houſes, Coffee-houſes, &c. a begging Frier.

Circumcelliones, were alſo certain abominable Hereticks that ſtroll'd about from one Place to another, and to get repute laid violent Hands upon themſelves.

Circumciſion, (i. e. a cutting about) a Ceremony heretofore us'd among the Jews, and now among the Turks, viz. a cutting off the Foreskin from their Male Children, as ſoon as they are eight Days old.

Circumduction, a leading about.

Circumference, Circuit, or Compaſs: In Geometry, that Line which goes about, and encloſes the Area, or Content of a Circle; it is alſo ſometimes taken for the outermoſt bounding Line of any other Plain Figure.

Circumferentor, a Mathematical Inſtrument us'd by Geometricians and Surveyors, and made of Wood 8 Inches in length and 4 in breadth: About the middle of the Upper Side is a round Hole $3\frac{1}{2}$ Inches about, and half an Inch deep, in which is fixed a Card divided into 120 equal Parts, a Dial being drawn on the Card to know the Hour of the Day, &c.

Circumflex, (in Grammar) a ſort of Accent ſet over a long or contracted Syllable, which is marked (^) and in Greek (˜)

Circumfluous or Circumfluent, flowing about.

Circumforaneous, that is carry'd about the Market, or Court.

Circumfuſion, a pouring about.

Circumgyration, a fetching a great Circuit about, a whirling, or turning about; the wheeling Motion of any Natural Body round a Center.

Circumjacent, lying round about.

Circuminceſſion, a Word us'd by Divines to expreſs the reciprocal Exiſtence of the three Perſons of the Holy Trinity in each other.

Circumligation, a binding, or tying about.

Circumlocution, a Fetch, or Compaſs of Words, made uſe of when a proper Word cannot be found to expreſs a thing.

Circumplication, a folding, rolling, or winding about.

Circum-Polar Stars, (in Aſtron.) are ſuch Stars as being pretty near the North-Pole, move round it; and in our Latitude, never ſet or go below the Horizon.

Circumpoſition, a putting, or laying about: In the Art of Gardening, a kind of Laying, when the Mould is born up to the Bough; which is to be taken off by an old Hat, Boot, or ſtrong piece of old courſe Cloth.

Circumpulſion, (in Philoſ.) the thruſting forward of Bodies, which are mov'd by thoſe that lye round about them.

Circumrotation, a wheeling about.

To Circumſcribe, to limit, bound, or ſtint. In Geometry, a Figure is ſaid To be circumſcribed, when either the Angles, Sides, or Planes of the outward Figure, touch all the Angles of the Figure that is inſcribed or drawn within it.

Circumſcription, the Act of Circumſcribing. In Philoſophy, the Termination, certain Limits, or Bounds of any Natural Body; and it is External, or Internal.

Circumſcription External, is otherwiſe termed Local, upon Account of its being referr'd to the Place within which any Body is confin'd: Thus a Body is ſaid To be circumſcribed locally, or To be in a Place circumſcriptively, when it has a certain and determinate Ubi, or Place with reſpect to the circum-ambient, or encompaſſing Bodies.

Circumſcription Internal, is that which belongs to the Eſſence and Quality of every Body, whereby it has a certain determinate Extenſion, Bounds and Figure.

Circumſpect, wary, wiſe, conſiderate, prudent.

Circumſpection, Warineſs, Diſcretion.

Circumſtance, (i. e. ſtanding about) a Quality that accompanies any thing; as Time, Place, &c.

Circumſtanced, that is under, or attended with Circumſtances.

Circumſtantial, relating, or belonging to Circumſtances.

To Circumſtantiate, to deſcribe a Thing with its Circumſtances.

De Circumſtantibus, (i. e. of the Byſtanders) a Law-Term, us'd for the Number of Jurors ſupply'd or made up out of thoſe that are preſent, or ſtanding by, when any impannell'd do not appear, or appearing are challenged by either Party.

Circumvallation, or The Line of Circumvallation, (in Fortif.) is a Line, or Trench cut by the Beſiegers, and bordered with a Parapet, or Breaſt-work, encompaſſing all their Camp, to defend it againſt any Army that may attempt to relieve the Place, and to ſtop Deſerters. This Line is uſually about ſeven Foot deep, and twelve broad. See Contravallation.

Circumvection, a carrying about.

To Circumvent, (i. e. as it were to come about one) to over-reach, to cozen, or deceive.

Circumvention, Over-reaching, Cheating; Cozenage, Deceit.

Circumvolution, a Rolling, Wheeling, or Turning about.

Circus, (Lat.) a Circle, or Rundle, a Ring: Alſo a ſort of large Building of a round, or oval Figure, rais'd by the ancient Romans, for Shews, Games, and Publick Exerciſes; ſome Ruins of which are ſtill to be ſeen at Rome, Niſmes, and elſewhere: Alſo a kind of Hawk, or Bird of Prey call'd a Cryer; the Falcon-gentle.

Ciris, a ſort of creſted Lark, or a Bird which the French call Une Egrette.

Cirrus, a Tuft, or Lock of Hair curled, a Curl, or Frizzle; the Creſt of Feathers on the Head of certain Birds, as the Lark, Crane, &c. Among Herbaliſts, Cirri are taken for thoſe fine Strings, or Hairs, by which ſome Plants faſten themſelves, in order to their Support in creeping along; as Ivy, &c.

Cirſocele, (Gr. in Surgery) a ſwelling of the Veſſels about the Teſticles, that prepare the Semen; ſo that it ſometimes appears like a third Teſticle.

Cirſos, a crooked ſwoln Vein, a kind of Swelling, when a Vein, by reaſon of the Softneſs of its Coat is ſtretch'd out with much thick Bloud, and looks as if it would burſt. It is otherwiſe call'd Varix.

Cis, a kind of Worm breeding in Corn; a Weevil.

Ciſalpine Countries, thoſe Countries that are ſituated on the hither Side of the Mountains call'd Alps.

Ciſſanthemus, a ſort of Withwind, or Sowbread, the Herb Briony, or Wild Vine.

Ciſſites, a white and ſhining precious Stone, that has the Figure of Ivy-leaves all over it.

Ciſſoid, (in Geom.) the Name of a certain Curve, or crooked Line invented by Diocles.

Ciſſos, the Herb Ivy, eſpecially that which grows alone without a Stay.

Ciſtercian Monks, an Order of Friers founded by Robert, Abbot of Ciſteaux in France, A. D. 1098.

Ciſtern, (Lat.) a Place under Ground, for the keeping of Rain-water; or a Veſſel made of Lead to hold a Stock of Water for Houſehold-Uſes; alſo one made of Silver, Copper, or other Metal, to put Bottles, or Glaſſes in. The Confectioners Ciſtern, is a portable Inſtrument in form of a Box, into which Jellies, Creams, and other Liquors are put, in order to be iced.

Ciſtophorus, an ancient Coin in Value ſomewhat more than half of the Denarius, and as much as three Oboli and a half, or two Pence Farthing.

Ciſtus, a ſhrubby Plant, of which there are two Sorts, one call'd the Dog-roſe, and the other having on its Leaves about Midſummer a kind of clammy ſweet Dew, that ſerves to make the Gum call'd Ladanum.

Citadel, (Ital.) a Fort with four, five, or ſix Baſtions, rais'd on the moſt advantageous Ground about a City, the better to defend it, or to command it in caſe of a Rebellion.

Citation, (Lat.) a Citing, or Quoting.

To Cite, to alledge, or quote an Authority, or Paſſage in a Book; alſo to ſummon to appear before an Eccleſiaſtical Judge.

Cithara, (Gr.) a Harp, a Cittern, or Guittar: Alſo the Dab, a Sea-fiſh, ſo call'd by Reaſon of certain Lines, which reach from the Top of the Head to the Tail, and reſemble the Strings of a Muſical Inſtrument.

Citizen, a Free-man, or Inhabitant of a City.

Citrago, (Lat.) the Herb Balm, or Balm-gentle.

Citreum, a Citron, or Lemmon: Alſo Citron-wood, or Oil of Citron, put among Cloaths to kill the Moths, or to perfume them.

Citriale, a Word us'd by Chaucer, for a Cittern, or Guittar.

Citrine or Citron-Colour, the Colour of a Pomecitron, or golden Colour; which the Chymiſts undertake to give to ſome Metals, to make them look like Gold, and call it the Grand Mineral Tincture.

Citrinella, the Yellow-hamber; a Bird.

Citron, a kind of great Lemmon.

Citrull, a ſort of Cucumber, or Pumpkin of a Citron-Colour.

Citrus, (Gr.) the Citron-tree, a kind of Tree growing in Africa, the Wood of which was curiouſly grain'd, and highly valu'd by the Romans, who made Tables, and inlaid their Doors and Beds with it: Alſo another ſort that bears the Citron, or great Lemmon.

City, a great walled Town; but it is more eſpecially apply'd to a Town Corporate, that has a Biſhop's-See, and a Cathedral Church.

Citta, (Gr.) a Fault in the Appetite, as when Women long for things that are not fit to be eaten; as Lime, Coals, Shells, Sand, &c. the Green Sickneſs: Alſo the Longing of Women with Child; the ſame as Pica.

Cittadel. See Citadel.

Cittern, a kind of Muſical Inſtrument.

Cittoſis, (Gr.) a Fault in Vines, when Grapes fall from the Cluſters, and periſh.

Cives, a ſort of wild Leaks, whoſe Leaves are us'd for Sallet-furniture.

Civet, a Perfume like Musk made of the Excrement of the Civet-Cat, alſo a kind of Sallet-herb. In French Cookery, Civet, is a particular Way of dreſſing Chickens, Hares, and other ſorts of Veniſon, firſt frying them brown in Lard, and afterwards ſtewing them in Broth.

Civick Crown, (among the Romans) a Garland made of Oak-branches, with Acorns, or of Ground-oak, and given as a Reward to ſuch as had ſav'd a Citizen's Life in Battel, having defended him, and kill'd his Enemy.

Civil, (Lat.) courteous, kind, well-bred; honeſt, chaſte: Alſo Political, belonging to the Citizens, City, or State; alſo a Term oppos'd to Criminal and Eccleſiaſtical.

Civil Days, (in Aſtron.) contain juſt twenty four Hours a-piece, reckon'd from twelve a Clock at Noon, or Night on one Day, to the ſame time the next Day; in which ſpace of Time the Equinoctial makes one Daily Revolution on the Poles of the World. See Days.

Civil Death, when a Perſon is cut off from Civil Society, by being ſentenc'd to perpetual Baniſhment, to working in the Mines, or to the Galleys, &c.

Civil Law, is properly the peculiar Law of any State, Country, or City: But it is generally taken for a Body of Laws compos'd out of the beſt of the Roman and Grecian Laws, which in the Main was receiv'd throughout all the Roman Dominions for above 1200 Years, and is ſtill obſerv'd in ſeveral Parts of Europe. This Body of the Civil Law is divided into three Volumes; viz. the Pandects or Digeſts, the Code, and the Inſtitutes; and to theſe are added the Authenticks, or Conſtitutions of the Emperour Juſtinian, otherwiſe call'd Novellæ; all which See in their proper Places.

Civil Year, the Legal Year, appointed by every State to be us'd within its own Dominions; and ſo call'd in Contradiſtinction to the Natural Year, which is exactly meaſur'd by the Revolution of the Heavenly Bodies: Thus the Year with us begins March 25, and always contains 365 Civil Days, except in Leap-year, when it has 366. See Year.

Civilian, a Doctour, Profeſſour, or Student in the Civil Law.

Civility, Courteſy, Obligingneſs, good Breeding.

To Civilize, to make civil, courteous, or tractable; to ſoften, or poliſh Manners.

To Clack, to ſnap, rattle, or make a kind of ſhrill Noiſe.

To Clack Wooll, is to cut off the Sheep's Mark, which makes it weigh leſs, and yield leſs Cuſtom.

Clack-gooſes. See Barnacle.

Cladus, (in old Latin Records) a Wattle, or Hurdle.

Claim, Challenge, or Demand: In a Law-ſenſe, a Challenge of Intereſt in any thing that is out of one's Poſſeſſion; as Claim by Charter, or Deſcent, &c.

To Claim, to lay Claim to, to challenge.

Clam or Clamp, a ſort of Shell-fiſh in ſome Part of the Weſt-Indies, which much reſembles our Muſcle, but is of a white Colour.

To Clamber, to climb, or get up.

Clamea admittenda in itinere Attornatum, a Writ whereby the Queen commands the Juſtices Eyre, to admit of one's Claim by Attorney, that is employ'd in the Queen's Service, and cannot come in his own Perſon.

Clammed, (old Word) ſtarved with Hunger.

Clammy, gluiſh, ſticking.

Clamorous, (Lat.) full of Clamour, noiſy.

Clamour, Noiſe, Out-cry, a loud and tumultuous Cry.

To Clamour, to make a Noiſe, to cry out againſt.

Clamp, (in Joyner's-Work) a particular manner of letting Boards one into another. Clamps in a Ship are thoſe thick Timbers which lye under the Beams of the firſt Orlope, or uppermoſt Deck, and bear them up at each End.

Clan, a Tribe, or Family in Scotland; as Clan Mackduff, i. e. the Family of Mackduff.

Clancular, (Lat.) privy, ſecret.

Clandeſtine, done in private, or hugger-mugger, without the Knowledge of Parents, Tutours, or Superiours, or contrary to the Prohibitions of the Law.

To Clang, to ſound as a Trumpet does.

Clap, a Crack, a Blow; alſo a Venereous, or pocky Diſeaſe. In Falconry, the neither part of a Hawk's Beak is call'd the Clap.

Clap-net and Looking-glaſs, a Device to catch Larks with, which is otherwiſe call'd Daring, or Doring.

Clapboard, a Board cut in order to make Caſks or Veſſels.

Clapper of Coneys, a Place under Ground, where Rabbets, or Coneys are bred.

Clara, a proper Name of Women, ſignifying in Latin, clear, or bright.

Clare, a Town of Suffolk, which gave Name to the ancient Family of the Clares.

Clarencieux, the Title of the ſecond King at Arms, appointed by K. Edward IV, upon the Death of his Brother George, Duke of Clarence: His Office is to marſhal and diſpoſe the Funerals of all Knights and Eſquires throughout the Realm, on the South-ſide of the River Trent.

Claret, a Name generally given to the red Wines of France.

Claret-wine Apple, a ſort of fair white Apple, that yields a pleaſant ſharp Juice, whence it has its Name, and of which a rich vinous Liquour is made, excelling moſt other Ciders, eſpecially when mixt with ſweet Apples.

Claretum, (in old Lat. Writers) a Liquor made of Wine and Honey, clarify'd by boiling; Wine, in which Spice, Sugar, and other Ingredients have been infus'd for ſome time; Hippocras.

Claricords, a kind of Muſical Inſtrument.

Clarification, the Act of clarifying, as when Juices, or thick Liquors are made clearer, or finer, which is done by letting the Dregs ſink of themſelves, or by Fermentation, or by putting in Vinegar, the white of an Egg, or Milk, &c. either to force down the Dregs to the Bottom, or to gather them in a Scum on the Top.

To Clarify, to make, or to grow clear, with reſpect to Juices, Syrups, or others Liquors.

Clarigatio, (Lat. in the Roman Law) a Demand of Satisfaction for an Injury done, as by Out-cry, and a proclaiming of War thereupon; a Reprizal, or Letter of Mart, an Arreſt, or Seizure of Perſons, or Goods.

Clarion, a kind of ſhrill Trumpet: Alſo a Bearing in Heraldry, which repreſents the Figure of ſuch an old-faſhion'd Trumpet; or as ſome ſay, the Rudder of a Ship; or according to others, the Reſt for a Lance: Thus Ruby, three Clarions Topaz are the Arms of the Earl of Bath, by the Name of Greenvile.

Clark. See Clerk.

Clarmarthen, (in the Practick of Scotland) the warranting of ſtoln Cattel, or Goods.

Clary, a Plant ſaid to be a Friend to the Eyes, and a Strengthener of the Back: Alſo a ſort of ſtrong-Water made of that Herb.

To Claſh, to make a confuſed Noiſe, to beat againſt; to wrangle, to diſagree.

Claſp, a ſort of Buckle; alſo a kind of Tendrel, young Shoot, or Sprig of a Tree.

To Claſp, to buckle, to embrace.

Claſpers, (among Herbaliſts) the twiſted Ligaments, or Threads, with which certain Shrubs and Herbs, as Vines, Briony, Cucumbers, Ivy, &c. take hold of Trees, or Plants that grow about them.

Claſs or Claſſis, (Lat.) a Form in a School; alſo Rank, or Order.

Claſſical or Claſſick, as A Claſſical Author, i. e. an approved Writer, one of good Credit and Authority in the Schools.

To Clatter, to make a Noiſe, to chatter, or prattle; to diſpute, or brangle.

Claud, an old Britiſh Word for a Ditch.

Claudent, (Lat.) ſhutting, or cloſing; as the Claudent Muſcles, i. e. certain Muſcles that ſhut the Eye-lids, being plac'd between the inner Membrane of that Part and the Fleſhy Membrane, and otherwiſe call'd Semi-circular.

Claudere, to ſhut, or incloſe; to finiſh, or conclude: In ſome ancient Deeds, to turn open Fields into Cloſes, or Incloſures.

Clavecymbal or Clavicymbal, a kind of Muſical Inſtrument with Wire-ſtrings, which ſome take for the Harpſichord, or Virginals.

Claver or Clover-graſs, a ſort of three-leav'd Graſs.

Claves Inſulæ, (Lat. i. e. the Keys of the Iſland) a Term of Art us'd in the Iſle of Man, for thoſe twelve Perſons, to whom all doubtful and weighty Caſes are reſerv'd.

Clavia, (in old Records) a Mace, or Club; as Serjantia Clavia, i. e. the Sergeancy, or Service of the Clovery, or Mace.

Clavicula, a little Key, or ſmall Club: Alſo the Tendrel, or young Shoot of a Vine, with which it takes hold of every thing, and climbs up by it.

Claviculæ, (in Anat.) the Clavicles, or Channel-bones, two ſmall Bones which faſten the Shoulder-bones, and Breaſt-bone, as it were a Key, being ſituated at the Baſis, or bottom of the Neck above the Breaſt, on each Side one.

Clavis, a Key, a Lock, or Bolt: The Word is commonly us'd in Engliſh, for the Expoſition of a Cipher, or any ſecret Writing.

Clavola, a ſlip of a Tree, a Graff, a Cion, or young Set.

Clauſe, an Article, or Concluſion, a particular Proviſoe, or Condition made in a Contract, or put into any Inſtrument, or Deed.

Clauſe-Rolls, certain Rolls preſerv'd in the Tower of London, and containing ſuch Records as were committed to cloſe Writs.

Clauſick or Clauſike, (old Word) the Claw-ſickneſs, or Foot-rot in Sheep.

Clauſtral, (Lat.) belonging to a Cloiſter.

Clauſtura, (in ancient Deeds) Bruſh-wood for Hedges, or Fences.

Clauſum fregit, a Law-term, ſignifying as much as an Action of Treſpaſs, and ſo call'd; becauſe in the Writ, ſuch a one is ſummon'd to anſwer, Quare Clauſum fregit, that is, why he did ſuch a Treſpaſs?

Clauſum Paſchæ, (in old Statutes) the Utas, or eighth Day after Eaſter, ſo termed, becauſe it cloſes that Feſtival.

Clauſura Heyæ, the Incloſure of a Hedge.

Clavus, a Nail or Spike, a Pin or Wedge; alſo a Wart, or Corn in the Finger, or Toe; a little hard Swelling in the corner of the Eye: Alſo a brawny Swelling of the Foot, like the Head of a Nail, the ſame with Helos: Alſo a Pain in the Eye-brow, which ſeems as if that part of the Head were bor'd thro' with an Awger, or Wimble: Dr. Sydenham calls ſuch a Pain on the top of the Head of Perſons troubled with Fits of the Mother, Clavus Hyſtericus.

Clawa, (in old Records) a Cloſe, or ſmall Incloſure.

Claye, (Fr.) a Hurdle of Rods wattled together: In Fortification, Clayes are Wattles made of ſtrong Stakes interwoven with Oſiers, or other ſmall Twigs to cover Lodgments, with Earth heap'd on them: They are alſo laid in Ditches that have been drain'd, and upon Marſhy Grounds, to make them firm and paſſable.

Clear, fair, fine, ſound, pure: In Architecture, the Inſide-work; as A Cloſet in the Clear.

To Clear, to make clear: In the Art of War, To clear the Trenches, is to beat out thoſe that guard them, with a vigorous Salley from the Place Beſieged.

Clear-ſighted, that has a quick Sight; alſo that is of a ſharp, ready Wit, or of a piercing Judgment and Fore-ſight.

Clear Viſion, a Term in Opticks. See Viſion.

Clear Walk, a Term that relates to Game-cocks, and ſignifies the Place that the Fighting-cock is in.

Cleat, (among Sea-men) a ſmall Wedge, or piece of Wood faſten'd on the Yard-arms of a Ship, to keep the Ropes from ſlipping off the Yard.

Cleaver, a ſort of Chopping-knife us'd by Butchers, &c.

Cleavers, a kind of Herb.

Cleche, (in Heraldry) a Term us'd when any Ordinary is pierced through with the ſame Figure, as He bears Gules a Saltier Cleche, i. e. one pierc'd thro' with another.

Cleides, (Gr.) Keys: In Anatomy, the Clavicles, or Channel-bones, joyn'd on each Side to the top of the Breaſt, and to the Shoulder-blade; the Neck-bone, or Throat-bone.

Clema or Clematis, a Twig, or Spray of a Tree; a Shoot, or young Branch: Among Herbaliſts, it is more eſpecially apply'd to ſeveral Plants that are full of Twigs, as the Vine, &c.

Clematis Daphnoides, the Herb Periwinkle, good for Wounds, Bleeding at Noſe, Looſeneſs, Bloody-flux, &c.

Clematis Paſſiflora, the Paſſion-Flower.

Clematitis, a ſort of Birth-wort, an Herb whoſe Leaves are like Ivy, growing in the Fields, Vine-yards, Woods and hot Places.

Clemency, (Lat.) Gentleneſs, Graciouſneſs, Mercifulneſs.

Clement, Mild, Gentle, Courteous; alſo a proper Name of Men.

Clements-Inn. See Inns of Chancery.

Clementines, a part of the Body of the Canon-law, being certain Decretals, or Conſtitutions of Pope Clement V. Enacted in the Council of Vienna, and added to the end of the third Volume, call'd Sextum.

Clench-bolts, (in a Ship) a ſort of Iron-pins, clenched, or made faſt at the ends where they come through.

Clep, (Scotch Law-word) a Form of Claim, Libel, or Petition.

Clep'd, (old Word) called, or named.

Clepſydra, (Gr.) an Inſtrument anciently made uſe of to meaſure Time, by the gentle running of Water thro' a narrow Paſſage out of one Veſſel into another; an Hour-glaſs Clergion, a Word us'd by Chaucer for a Clerk, or Clergy-man.

Clergy, the whole Body of Church-men, that take upon them the Miniſterial Functions: Alſo a Clerk's Appeal, or Plea to an Indictment; for in old Times a Clergy-man being Convicted of Felony before a Secular Judge, had liberty to pray his Clergy, i. e. to pray that he might be deliver'd to his Ordinary to clear himſelf: But now all Men are allow'd the ſame Privilege, when found guilty of ſuch Felony, as this Benefit is granted for. See Benefit of the Clergy.

Clerical, belonging to the Clergy.

Clerico admittendo, a Writ directed to the Biſhop, for the admitting of a Clerk to a Benefice, upon a Re-admittas try'd and found for the Party that procur'd the Writ.

Clerico capto per Statutum Mercatorum, &c. A Writ directed to the Biſhop, for the Delivery of a Clerk out of Priſon, that is in Cuſtody, upon the Breach of a Statute-Merchant.

Clerico Convicto Commiſſo Gaolæ in defectu Ordinarii deliberando, &c. A Writ for the Delivering of a Clerk to his Ordinary, that formerly was convicted of Felony, by reaſon his Ordinary did not challenge him according to the Privileges of Clerks.

Clerico infra Sacros Ordines conſtituto non eligendo in Officium, is a Writ directed to the Bailiffs, &c. That have thruſt a Bailiwick, or Beadleſhip upon one in Holy Orders, charging them to releaſe him again.

Clericus, a Clerk, or a Clergy-man: The Word was alſo ſome time us'd for a Secular Prieſt, as diſtinguiſh'd from a Religious, or Regular one.

Clericus Sacerdotis, a Pariſh-Clerk, or inferiour Aſſiſtant to the Prieſt, who formerly us'd to take an Oath of Fidelity from ſuch a Servant.

Clerk, a Title appropriated, 1. To Clergymen, or Miniſters of the Church; and, 2. To ſuch as by their Function, or Courſe of Life, uſe their Pen in any Courts, or elſewhere; as Clerk of the Crown, Clerk of the Rolls of Parliament, Clerks of Chancery, and many others; which See under thoſe reſpective Articles.

Clerk Attaint, (Law-term) is a Clerk who has his Clergy allow'd him, having pray'd it after Judgment: And Clerk Convict, is one that prays his Clergy before Judgment.

Cleromancy, (Gr.) a Sooth-ſaying, or Fortune-telling by Lots, or the throwing of Dice.

Clever, that has the knack of doing, or deviſing a thing, skilful, ingenious, neat-handed.

Clew, a bottom of Thread, Silk, &c.

Clew of a Sail, (in Sea-language) is the lower Corner of it which reaches down to that part, where the Tackles and Sheat-ropes are made faſt: Thus a Sail is ſaid To have a great Clew, when it comes goaring, or ſloping off by degrees, and is broader at the Clew than the Earing, which is the end of the Bolt-rope in which the Sail is ſow'd. And a Ship ſpredds a great Clew when ſhe has a very long Yard, and ſo takes up much Canvas in her Sails.

Clew-Garnet, a Rope that is made faſt to the Clew of the Sail, and from thence runs in a Block, or Pulley faſten'd to the middle of the Main and Fore-yard; its uſe being to hale up the Clew of the Sail cloſe to the middle of the Yard, in order to its being furled.

Clew-line, is the ſame to the Top-ſails, Top-gallant Sails and Sprit-ſails, that the Clew-garnet is to the Main and Fore-ſail, and of the very ſame Uſe.

Cley, (Country-word) a Hurdle for Penning, or Folding Sheep.

To Click or To go Click-clack, a Word commonly made uſe of to expreſs the Noiſe of a Watch, &c.

Clicket, the Knocker of a Door; but Chaucer uſes it for a Key; alſo a Lizard's Clapper.

Clicketting, (among Hunters) a Fox, when deſirous of Copulation, is ſaid To go to his Clicketting.

Client, (Lat. among the Romans) was a Citizen that put himſelf under the Protection of ſome great Man, who upon that account was ſtyl'd a Patron. The Word is now alſo us'd for a Perſon that retains a Lawyer, or Proctor to Plead his Cauſe.

Cliff or Clift, the Side, or Pitch of a Hill; a cragged Mountain, or broken Rock on the Sea-coaſts.

Cliff or Cleave, (in Muſick) is a certain Character, or Mark from the Seat of which the proper Places of all the other Notes in any Song, or Leſſon, are diſcover'd by proving the ſaid Notes from thence, according to the Scale of the Gam-ut, in which are contain'd three Septenaries of Letters, viz. G. A. B. C. D. E. F. which ſeven Letters of the Alphabet ſet at the beginning of every Rule and Space, ſerve to expreſs as many Cliffs, or Keys: But of theſe four are only us'd, and generally plac'd at the beginning of the Staves of every Leſſon, either Vocal or Inſtrumental, viz.

The firſt call'd F-fa-ut, being only proper for the Baſs, or loweſt Part, and marked thus 𝄢 The ſecond is C-ſol-fa-ut, peculiar to the inner, or middle Parts, as the Tenor and Counter-tenor, and known by this Mark 𝄡 The third is G-ſol-re-ut, which belongs only to the Treble, or higheſt Part, and is thus mark'd on the lowermoſt Line but one 𝄞 The fourth is nam'd the B-cliff, or B-fa-be-mi Cliff, and apply'd to all Parts indifferently; its Property being only to ſhew, when Notes are to be ſung, or play'd Flat, and when Sharp. The B-fa, or B-flat is diſtinguiſhed by this Character (b) and the B-mi, or B Sharp is thus expreſs'd ♯

Clifford's-inn. See Inns of Chancery.

Climacterical, (Gr.) belonging to the Steps, or Rounds of a Ladder: As Climacterical Years, i. e. certain remarkable Years, whereby Man's Life gets up as it were to its appointed Period, and which are thought to be attended with ſome great Change of Life, or Fortune: Thus every Seventh and Ninth Year is ſaid To be Climacterical, wherein if any Sickneſs, or Diſaſter happen, it is counted very dangerous, eſpecially the 63 d, and 81 ſt, which are held moſt hazardous of all, and termed Grand Climactericks.

Climate or Clime, (in Geog.) a Portion of the Earth contain'd between two Circles parallel to the Equator; in which Space counted from the beginning of one Climate, to that of another next to it, there is half an Hour's difference in the length of the Day: And for the diſtinction of Places, and different Temperature of Air, according to their Situation, the whole Globe is divided into 24 Northern, and as many Southern Climates; according to the ſaid Increaſe of half an Hour in the longeſt Summer-day.

Climatias, a kind of Earthquake that moves ſide-long, and lays flat what is before it.

Climax, a Ladder, the Step of a Ladder, a Stile: In Rhetorick, a Figure call'd Gradatio in Latin; a proceeding by degrees from one thing to another; as Mars videt hanc, viſamque cupit, potiturque cupita. Ovid.

Climers or Climbers, a ſort of Herb.

Climer of Virginia or Virginia-Ivy, a Shrub.

Clinch, a ſmart and witty Expreſſion.

Clinch of a Cable, (in Sea-affairs) that part of a Cable which is ſeized, or made faſt to the Ring of the Anchor.

Clincher, a witty, or ingenious Perſon that makes ſmart Repartees: Alſo a ſmall Ship, Bark, or Boat, whoſe Planks are laid one over another.

Clinching, (Sea-word) the ſlight Calking of a Veſſel when foul Weather is expected about the Harbour; which is done by driving a little Oakam into the Seams to keep out the Water.

To Cling, to ſtick cloſe to.

Clingy, apt to cling, clammy.

Clinice, (Gr.) that part of Phyſick, which orders the Diet, and looks after the Cure of bed-rid People.

Clinicus, a Phyſician that attends ſuch Patients; alſo a Bearer that carries the Dead to the Grave.

To Clink, to ring, or ſound, as Metal does.

Clinket, (old Word) a Key-hole.

Clinoides Apophyſes, (Gr. in Anat.) are four Proceſſes in the inſide of the Os Sphenoides, or Wedge-like Bone, forming a Cavity, or hollow Space call'd Sella Turcica, in the middle of that Bone in which the Glandula Pituitaria is ſeated.

Clinopodion, the Herb Puliol-mountain, Horſe-time, or wild Baſil.

Clio, one of the Nine Muſes, ſaid to be the firſt Inventreſs of Hiſtory and Heroick Poetry, for ſetting forth the Praiſe of renowned Men.

Clitoris, (in Anat.) a Part in the Pudendum Muliebre, about the bigneſs of the Uvula, which is ſeated before, and whoſe Subſtance conſiſts of two Spungy Bodies like thoſe of the Penis; the end of it being likewiſe call'd its Præputium.

Clivers, a kind of Herb.

Cloaca, (Lat.) the Kennel, Sink, or Common-ſhore of a Town, by which all filthy things paſs; a Wy-draught a Jakes: In old Records, the cloſeſt Ward, or naſtieſt part of a Priſon.

Cloacarius, the Keeper of a Jakes, an Office in ſome Religious Houſes impos'd on an offending Brother, or voluntarily choſen by him, for an exerciſe of Humility and Mortification; and in ſome of our Engliſh Convents beyond the Seas, this ſweet Officer is call'd Count of Holt.

To Cloath, to furniſh, or cover with Cloaths, to dreſs. Among Sea-men, a Maſt is ſaid To be cloathed, when the Sail is ſo long as to reach down to the Gratings of the Hatches, ſo that no Wind can blow below the Sail; and they ſay, A Ship ſpreads much Cloth, when She has broad Sails.

Clock, a well known Inſtrument, or Device to meaſure Time with; alſo a ſort of Beetle, an Inſect. See Dores.

Clod-Salt, a Term us'd in the Boilaries at Nantwich, Droitwich, &c. Signifying a Cake which ſticks to the bottom of the Pan, and is taken out once in 24 Hours, otherwiſe it would cauſe the Salt to melt.

Cloere, (old Word) a Priſon, or Dungeon.

Cloggs, a ſort of Pattens without Rings: Alſo pieces of Wood, or the like faſten'd about the Necks, or Legs of Beaſts, to keep them from running away: Whence Clog, is figuratively taken for any Load, Let, or Hind'rance.

Cloiſter, a Place in a Monaſtery with Piazza's round it, or the Monaſtery it ſelf.

To Cloiſter up, to ſhut, or pen up; to confine in a Place.

Cloff, that wherein any Goods are put, for the convenience of Carriage; as Pepper into a Bag; Butter, Soap, Pitch, &c. in Barrels. See Tare.

Cloke, a well known Garment; in a Figurative Senſe, a Blind, Colour, or Pretence.

Cloſe, thick, near as Houſes are; dark, hidden, reſerved: Among Heralds, when any Bird is born in a Coat of Arms, with its Wings ſtraight down about it, and in a ſtanding Poſture, it is expreſs'd by the Word Cloſe; but if it be flying, or have its Wings ſpread out, 'tis call'd Volant.

A Cloſe, a Concluſion, End, or Iſſue; alſo a piece of Ground hedged, or fenced about.

In Muſick, a Cloſe, is either the end of a Strain, or that place in a Compoſition, where all the Parts meet before they end, which is mark'd with a Single Bar, and call'd an Imperfect Cloſe: Or elſe the end of a Tune or Leſſon, mark'd thus 𝄐 or thus 𝄑 and termed a Perfect Cloſe.

To Cloſe, to ſhut up, to conclude, or end, to agree with; alſo to heal up, or tend to healing, as a Wound does.

To Cloſe an Account, is to make an end of, or ſhut it up, by drawing a Line, &c. when no more is to be added.

Cloſet, a little Apartment in a Room: In Heraldry, the half of a Bar, or ſmaller Feſſe, which Bar ought to contain one fifth part of the Eſcutcheon, as the Feſſe does the Third.

Cloſetting, private Conſultations, or Intrigues of the Cabinet-Council of a Prince.

Cloſh, a Game forbidden by ſeveral Statutes, and now commonly call'd Nine-pins.

Cloſh or Founder, a Diſtemper in the Feet of Cattel, which is occaſion'd by ſome Cold after a great Heat, or vehement Travel, and will ſuddenly fret or gall the Hoofs, &c.

Clot-burr, a ſort of Plant.

To Clotter, to curdle, or grow thick as Cream does, or Bloud when it is cold.

To Clouds, a Maſs of Watery Particles, which are drawn or ſent out of the Earth in Vapours, into the middle Region of the Air, and fall down again in Rain: It is alſo ſaid of any darkening of the Air occaſion'd by Smoke or Duſt, rais'd by the trampling of vaſt Numbers of Men or Beaſts.

Cloudsberry, a Plant that grows on Pendle-hill in Lancaſhire, and is ſo call'd, as if it came out of the Clouds.

Cloves, the Fruit of a Tree, as big as the Laurel-tree, growing wild in the Molucca-Iſlands in the Eaſt-Indies: The Bark of it is very much like Cinnamon, but taſtes like the Clove it ſelf.

Clove, is alſo a Term us'd in Weights, and with reſpect to Wooll 7 Pounds make a Clove; but in Eſſex eight Pounds of Cheeſe and Butter go the Clove, and 31 Cloves, or 256 Pounds to the Weight. In Suffolk, 42 of thoſe Cloves, or 336 Pounds are allow'd to the Weight.

Clove-tongue, a kind of Herb.

Clover-graſs, the beſt ſort of Graſs, both for its great Increaſe, and upon account of its excellency for food of Cattel.

Clough, a Word us'd in Doomſday-book for a Valley: Alſo the Draught or Allowance of two Pounds at every three Hundred Weight, for the turn of the Scale, that the Commodity may hold out when ſold by Retail.

Clown, a Country-Fellow.

Clowniſh, Clown-like, ungenteel, courſe, rude.

Clowns-muſtard. See Charlock.

To Cloy, to fill, to give one his fill; to ſatisfy, to glut.

Cloyed, (in Gunnery) a Piece of Ordinance is ſaid To be Cloy'd or Poiſon'd, when any thing is got into the Touch-hole; ſo that the Priming-iron cannot make way for the Powder, in order to give Fire. See To Nail Cannon.

Cloyed or Accloyed, (among Farriers) a Term us'd when a Horſe is pricked with a Nail in Shooing.

To Cluck, to cry as a Hen does in calling together her Chickens.

Clumperton, an old Word for a Clown.

Clumſey, thick and ſhort, aukward, unhandy.

Clunch or Blew Clunch, a kind of Subſtance found next the Coal upon ſinking the Coal-pits at Wedneſbury in Stafford-ſhire.

Clung, Stuck cloſe together, withered as Fruits may be.

To Clung, to dry as Wood does, when laid up after it is cut.

Cluniack Monks, an Order of Friers firſt founded by Berno Abbot of Cluny in Burgundy a Province of France about A. C. 900; and re-eſtabliſh'd by Odo Abbot of the ſame Monaſtery.

Clunis, (Lat.) a Buttock or Haunch, a Crupper.

Clupea, the Shad, a ſort of Fiſh.

Cluſh and ſwollen Neck, a Diſtemper in Cattel, when the Neck is ſwell'd and raw.

Cluſter, a bunch of Grapes, Figs, &c. a heap of ſeveral things.

Cluſtery, full of Cluſters.

Cluta, (in old Latin Records) clouted Shoes, Horſe-ſhoes, or Stakes of Iron, with which Cart-wheels are ſhod.

Clutarium, a Smithy, or Forge, where ſuch Iron-ſhoes are made.

To Clutch, to clinch the Fiſt, to hold a thing faſt.

Clutter, Throng or Crowd, Buſtle or Stir, great Noiſe.

Clydon, (Gr.) a Surge, Billow, or Wave of the Sea: In a Medicinal Senſe, a floating in the Stomach.

Clymenos or Clymenon, an Herb with a Stalk like a Bean, Water-betony; alſo Sope-wort, Tutſan, or Park-leaves.

Clypeal Cartilage. See Thyroides.

Clypeiformis, (Lat.) a ſort of Comet reſembling the Figure of a Shield, the ſame as Diſcus; which See.

Clyſma or Clyſmus, (Gr.) a Purgation, or Waſhing; a Gliſter.

Clyſſus, (among Chymiſts) a long digeſting and uniting of oily Spirits, eſpecially Mineral ones, in order to make a Compound or exact Mixture of them: Sometimes it is alſo taken for a Quinteſſence, or an extraction of the more Subtil Parts of any Plant; ſometimes for a Medicine made of the moſt active and effectual Parts of any Ingredients.

Clyſter, a Gliſter, or fluid Medicine convey'd into the Bowels, by the Fundament.

Clyto, a Title of Honour, anciently given in England, to the King's Sons, in the ſame Senſe as the Saxon Word Ætheling was us'd.

Cnicus, (Gr.) an Herb call'd Saffron of the Garden, Baſtard Saffron, or mock Saffron.

Cnide, the ſtinging Nettle.

Cnipulus or Knipulus, a Word us'd for a Knife, in ſome old Latin Records.

Cniſmus, (Gr.) an itching, or tickling; an Itch.

Cniſſoregmia, the Heart-burning; a Pain in the Stomach.

Cnouts-Delf, otherwiſe call'd Steeds-dike, a certain Ditch which Canute the Dane caus'd to be made between Ramſey and Whittleſey, to abate the Fury of the Sea in thoſe Parts, where in a great Storm, his Sons and Servants had like to have been caſt away: It was alſo call'd Swerdeſdelf, becauſe it was marked out with their Swords.

To Coacervate, (Lat. in Philoſ.) to heap up together, to gather, or raiſe on Heaps.

Coacervate Vacuum. See Vacuum.

Coach, a well known ſort of Carriage; alſo the Council-Chamber on board a Flag-ſhip.

† Coaction, Compulſion, Conſtraint, Force.

Coadjutor, a Fellow-helper, an Aſſiſtant: In Germany, a dignify'd Clergy-man, who is joyn'd to a Biſhop, to aſſiſt him in his Epiſcopal Functions, and ſucceeds him by virtue of that Title.

† Coadunation, a gathering, or joyning together into one.

Coagmentation, a cementing, joyning, or gluing together. Among Chymiſts, a melting of any Matter by caſting in diſſolving Powders, and afterwards making it Concrete or Solid, by laying it in a Cold Place, or cauſing its Moiſture to fly out in Vapours.

To Coagulate, to congeal, to thicken, to curdle, or turn into Curds: In Chymiſtry, to give a Conſiſtence to Liquids, by drawing out ſome part of them into Vapours, over the Fire; or elſe by mingling Liquors together that are of a different Nature.

Coagulation, a coagulating, thickening, or curdling together; the coming of Cheeſe, or Butter: In a Chymical Senſe, the reducing of any Liquor to a thicker Subſtance.

Coagulum, (Lat.) a Curd, Rennet that turns Milk; whatever ſerves to joyn things together: In Surgery, a kind of curdled Subſtance that grows in the cavity, or hollow of a disjoynted Bone, and hinders the ſetting of it in its proper Place.

To Coaks, to ſooth up, to flatter, or fawn upon.

Coal-fire, (in Huſbandry) a parcel of Fire-wood, ſet up for Sale, or Uſe, containing when it is burnt, the quantity of a Load of Coals.

Coal-mouſe, a ſort of Bird.

Coaleſcence or Coaleſcency, (in Philoſ.) the gathering together and uniting into ſenſible Maſſes the fine ſmall Parts that compoſe any Concrete, or Natural Body: In Surgery, the re-union, or growing together again of Parts before ſeparated, the cloſing of a Wound, &c.

Coalition, the ſame as Coale Scence, a joyning together; as It was debated how to make a Coalition of Counſels between them and Scotland.

Coamings or Comings of the Hatches, (in a Ship) are thoſe Planks, or that Frame which raiſes up the Hatches above Decks, and keeps the Water from running down there: In theſe Coamings, Loop-holes are uſually made for Muſkets to Shoot out at, in order to clear the Deck of the Enemy, when the Ship is boarded.

Coarctation, (Lat.) a ſtraightening, or preſſing together.

Coarticulation, a joynting of Bones.

Coaſt, (Fr.) the Sea-ſhore, a Country lying on the Sea.

To Coaſt along, to Sail along the Sea-coaſt.

In Huſbandry, Coaſting, upon the tranſplanting of a Tree, is when the ſame ſide of the Tree is plac'd to the South-Eaſt, &c. as formerly grew that Way, where it ſtood before.

Coat, a Garment; alſo a Cottage, or Hut: Among Anatomiſts, it is taken for a Membranous, or skinny Cover of any part of the Body; as the Coats of the Eyes, Arteries, Veins, Nerves, &c.

Coats, (in a Ship) are pieces of tarred Canvas put about the Maſts at the Partners; as alſo about the Pumps at the Decks, that no Water may go down there; and they are likewiſe us'd at the Rudders-head.

Coat of Mail, (among the Ancients) was a piece of Armour, made in form of a Shirt, and wrought over with many Iron-rings.

Cob, a rich and covetous Wretch; alſo a Foreign Coin, the ſame with Piaſter; which See.

Cob or Sea-Cob, a kind of Bird.

Cobs, are alſo round Balls, or Pellets, with which Fowls are uſually crammed.

Cob-iron, an Iron on which a Spit turns.

Cobaltum, (Gr.) a ſort of Mineral of a blackiſh Colour and cauſtick Quality.

Cobion, a kind of Spurge; an Herb.

Cobites, the Groundel, a River-fiſh.

Coca or Coquia, (in ancient Writers) a Cogge, or little Boat. See Coggle.

Cocao-Nut or Cacao-Nut, an Indian Nut like an Almond; which is the principal Ingredient in the making of Chocolate. See Cacao.

Coccigria, (Gr.) a Mountain-Shrub, the Roots of which ſerve to Dye Wooll of a Purple Colour.

Coccimelea, a ſort of Plum-tree.

Coccothrauſtes, the Groſs-beak; a Bird.

Coccus or Coccus baphica, the Berry with which Scarlet-cloth is dy'd in Grain.

Coccygis Os, (in Anat) a kind of griſtly Bone joyn'd to the Os Sacrum, and ſo nam'd, becauſe its Shape is ſomewhat like a Cuckoe's Bill: It conſiſts of three or four Bones, of which the lower is ſtill leſſer than the upper, 'till the laſt ends in a ſmall Cartilage, or Griſtle; and it reſembles a little Tail turn'd inwards.

Coccyx, the Cuckoe, a known Bird; alſo the Gurnard, a Fiſh; alſo the Rump, or utmoſt end of the Back-bone, the ſame with Os Coccygis.

Cocheneal or Cutcheneal, a coſtly Grain, much us'd in the dying of Scarlet, which ſome hold to be the Head, or Berry of an Indian Tree, that reſembles the Holm-tree; others ſay, 'tis made of certain little Worms, breeding in the Fruit of that Tree.

Cocherings, a kind of Tribute, or Tax, in Ireland. See Bonaght.

Cochlea, (Lat.) the Cockle, a Shell-fiſh; the Sea-ſnail, or Periwinkle: Alſo a Screw, one of the Six Mechanick Powers, or Principles; alſo a winding Stair-caſe: In Anatomy, the Cavity, or Hollow of the inner part of the Ear, ſo call'd from its Windings and Turnings.

Cochleare, a Spoon; alſo the leaſt Meaſure of Liquid things; a Spoonful.

Cochlearia, the Herb Spoon-wort, or Scurvy-graſs.

Cock, a well known Fowl, the moſt manly and ſtately of all others: Alſo the Pin of a Sun-dial, or Gun, the needle of a Ballance, the Peg of a Water-pipe, &c. In a Clock or Watch, the Cock is the wrought Piece that covers the Ballance, and in which the upper Pevet of the Ballance plays.

Among Sea-men, Cocks, are little ſquare pieces of Braſs, with Holes in them, put into the middle of great Wooden Shivers, to keep them from ſplitting and galling by the Pin of the Block, or Pulley on which they turn.

Cock-a-hoop, that is all upon the Spur, ſtanding upon high Terms; alſo tranſported with Mirth and Jollity.

Cock-brained, hair-brained, giddy-brained, raſh, heady.

Cock-feather, (in Archery) that Feather of the Shaft, which ſtands upright in due Nocking, and if it be not obſerv'd, the other Feathers running on the Bow, will ſpoil the Shot.

Cock-pit, a Place made for Cocks to fight in, being uſually a Houſe, or Hovel cover'd and built of a round Form, about which there are Seats for the Spectators of three Heights, or more, one above another.

In a Man of War, the Cock-pit, is a Place on the lower Floor or Deck behind the Main Capſtan, lying between the Platform, or Orlope, and the Stewards Room, where are Subdiviſions or Partitions, for the Purſer, the Surgeon and his Mates.

Cock-roads, a ſort of Net contriv'd chiefly for the taking of Wood-Cocks.

Cock-roches, a kind of Inſect.

Cock-ſwain or Cockſon, an Officer in a Ship, whoſe Buſineſs it is to take care of the Cock-boat, Barge, or Shallop, with all its Furniture, and to be ready with his Gang, or Crew, to man the Boat upon all Occaſions.

Cock-weed, a kind of Herb.

Cocks-comb, an Herb otherwiſe call'd Yellow Rattle-graſs.

Cocks-walk, is the Place where a Cock is bred, and to which uſually no other Cock comes.

Cockal, a ſort of Play.

Cockatrice, a Serpent otherwiſe call'd a Baſilisk, bred as ſome ſay, from a Cock's Egg.

To Cocker, to dandle, to make much, or be over fond of.

Cocket or Coket, a Seal belonging to the Queen's Cuſtom-houſe: Alſo a Scroll of Parchment ſeal'd and deliver'd by the Officers of the Cuſtom-houſe, to the Merchants, upon the entry of their Goods, as a Warrant that they are cuſtomed.

Cocket-bread, the fineſt ſort of Wheaten Bread; one of the Terms us'd in the Statute of Bread and Ale, made 51 H. 3. the others being Waſtel-bread, Bread of Treet, and Bread of Common Wheat.

Cockettata Lana, (in old Latin Records) Wooll duly enter'd at the Cuſtom-houſe, and Cocketted, or allow'd to be tranſported.

Cockettum or Coketum, the Cuſtom-houſe, or Office, where Goods to be exported were enter'd, and having paid Cuſtom, had a Cocket, or Certificate of Diſcharge.

Cocking-cloth, (among Fowlers) a Device, or Frame made of courſe Canvas tanned, and two Sticks ſet croſs-wiſe to keep it out, with a Hole to look out of, and to put the Nozzle of a ſhort Gun thro', for the Shooting of Pheaſants, &c.

Cockle, a kind of Shell-fiſh; alſo a Weed otherwiſe call'd Corn-roſe, Darnel, and Field-nigella.

To Cockle, to pucker, wrinkle, or ſhrink, as ſome Cloth does.

Cockle-ſtairs, (in Architect.) winding-Stairs.

Cockney, a Nick-name commonly given to one born and bred in the City of London: Alſo a fondling Child tenderly brought up and cocker'd.

Cockrel, a young Cock bred for fighting.

Coco, a Tree in the Indies much reſembling a Date-tree, but the Trunk and Branches are a great deal larger: Out of the Trunk iſſues forth a Sheath, as big as a Man's Arm, which being open'd ſhews a Cluſter of 80 or 100 Nuts, but above 13 or 14 ſeldom come to Perfection: When the Nut is green, it contains a Glaſs-full of Liquor fit to drink, the Conſiſtence of which afterwards becomes like ſweet Milk, or Cream; the Pulp of it when ripe is pleaſing to the Taſte, but hard of Digeſtion. The outward Rind being black and ſtringy, is a Material for large Cables for Ships, ſtronger than thoſe of Hemp, and the inner Rind may be eaten like Artichokes.

Cocquet, (Fr.) a Beau, a Gallant, a general Lover; alſo a wanton Girl that ſpeaks fair to ſeveral Lovers at once.

Coctanum or Cottanum, (Gr.) a ſort of ſmall Figs that were brought from Syria.

Coction, (Lat.) a ſeething, or boiling; alſo a Digeſtion of Meat in the Stomach.

Cocula or Coculum, (in ancient Writers) a little Drinking-cup in ſhape of a Boat; whence a Cogue of Brandy, or other Strong-waters.

Coculus Indæ, an Indian Fruit, for bigneſs and ſhape like a Laurel-berry, the Powder of which is made uſe of to deſtroy Lice.

Cod, a Husk or Shale; alſo a ſort of Sea-fiſh: Cods, are alſo the Teſticles of a Man.

Cod-ware, (in Husbandry) Seed or Grain, contain'd in Cods; as Peaſe, Beans, &c.

Codatremula, (Lat.) the Wag-tail, a Bird.

Code, the Second Volume of the Civil-Law, containing the Ordinances and Determinations of 56 Emperours and their Councils, with the Pleas and Anſwers of the ancient Lawyers, all which the Emperour Juſtinian collected together, and reduc'd into one Code or Volume, divided into Twelve Books.

There is alſo another Volume call'd the Theodoſian Code, from the Emperour of that Name, which is of great uſe for explaining the former Code, and was heretofore of ſuch Authority, that it was us'd for ſeveral hundred Years in the Weſtern Parts of Europe.

Codebecs, a ſort of French Hats. See Caudebec.

Codex, (Lat.) the Trunk, Stock, or Body of a Tree; alſo a Volume, or Book, ſo call'd, becauſe Books were anciently made of Wood, or Bark, and the Leaves were almoſt like thoſe of our preſent Table-books; whence one of the Volumes of the Civil-Law is call'd the Code, by way of Eminence.

Codia, (Gr.) the tops of Poppies, the chief Ingredient of the famous Syrup call'd Diacodium.

Codicil, (Lat. in the Civil-Law) a Supplement to a Will or other Writing; eſpecially an Addition to a Teſtament, when any thing is omitted, which the Teſtator would add, explain, alter, or recall.

Codiniac, (Fr.) Quiddeny, or Marmalate made of Quinces.

Codlin, a kind of Apple that is proper to be codled, or Stewed, and makes good Summer-Cider.

Coe, a Word us'd among Miners, for the little Lodgment they make for themſelves, under Ground, as they work lower and lower.

Coefficient, (Lat.) that makes, cauſes, or brings to paſs, together with another.

Coefficient of any generating Term, (in Geometrical Fluctions) is the Quantity which ariſes by dividing that Term, by the generated Quantity.

In Algebra, Coefficients are ſuch Numbers as are ſet before any Species or Letters, into which Letters they are ſuppos'd to be Multiplied; and therefore with thoſe Letters, or the Quantities repreſented by them, do make a Rectangle, or Product: Thus cab implies that the Quantity expreſs'd, by ac is multiplied into the Coefficient c, and that out of thoſe two the Product cab is formed.

Cœlia, (Gr.) the Belly, or Paunch: In Anatomy, a great Cavity, or hollow Space in the Body; as thoſe of the Head, Breaſt, and lower Belly.

Cœliack Artery, that which ariſes from the Trunk of the Aorta, or great Artery, after it enters the Abdomen or lower Belly, and ſpreads into two Branches, viz. the firſt on the Right-hand, nam'd Gaſtrica Dextra, and the other on the Left-hand by ſome call'd Splenica, becauſe it goes towards the Spleen.

Cœliack Paſſion or Affection, is a kind of Flux, or Looſeneſs, when the Meat either wholly chang'd, or only in part, is voided by Stool, without making any Juice call'd Chyle: And this Diſtemper is alſo call'd Lienteria.

Cœliack Vein, a Vein that runs into the Inteſtinum Cæcum, or Blind-gut.

Cœloma, a hollow round Ulcer in the Tunica Cornea, or horny Coat of the Eye.

Cœlophthalmus, hollow-eyed.

Cœlum, (Lat.) Heaven, the Firmament, the Weather; alſo a Graving-tool: In Anatomy, the Cavity, or Hollow of the Eye towards the Corners; ſome take it for the Palate or Roof of the Mouth.

Coemption, (Lat.) a buying up of things: Alſo a Solemnity of the Roman Law, whereby the Husband and Wife ſeem'd to buy one another; by which means they had a Right to one another's Goods.

Coequal, equal one to another, as Fellows and Partners are.

Coercion, Reſtraint, a keeping in Subjection and good Order.

Coercive, that is capable of reſtraining, or withholding.

Cœruleum, a Word us'd by ſome Chymiſts for the blew Ruſt of Silver.

Coeſſential, that is of the ſame Eſſence.

Coetaneous, being of the ſame Age; that live together at the ſame Time, though of different Years.

Coeternal, that is from all Eternity with another.

Coexiſtent, having a Being together at the ſame time.

Cofra, (in old Latin Records) a Coffer, Cheſt, or Trunk.

Coffee, a well known Drink made of a Berry, or Bean of the ſame Name; which grows only in Arabia.

Coffer, (Fr.) a Trunk, or Cheſt: In Fortification, a hollow Lodgment, or Trench cut in the bottom of a dry Ditch, the upper part being made of Joiſts rais'd two Foot above the Level of the Moat, and having Hurdles laden with Earth for its Covering, ſo that it ſerves inſtead of a Breaſt-work: The Breadth of the Coffer is about 15 or 18 Foot, and the Depth 6 or 7; its Uſe being to Fire on the Beſiegers, when they attempt to croſs the Ditch.

The Coffer is only diſtinguiſh'd by its length from a Caponniere, which is likewiſe ſomewhat leſs in Breadth; and it is alſo taken for the ſame as Cabon, or Bom-cheſt: In Architecture, Coffer is the lowermoſt part of the Cornice.

Cofferer of the Queen's Houſehold, a Principal Officer at Court, next under the Controller, who in the Counting-houſe, or elſewhere, has a ſpecial Charge over the other Officers of the Houſehold for their good Demeanour, &c. and pays them their Wages.

To Cog, to Sooth up or Flatter, to cheat at Dice-play.

Cogs, the Teeth of a Mill-wheel; alſo a kind of Boats us'd on the Rivers Ouſe and Humber.

Cog-ware, certain courſe Cloaths, anciently made in the North of England.

Cogent, (Lat.) preſſing, enforcing, forcible.

Cogga or Coggo, (in ancient Writers) a kind of Ship, or Sea-veſſel.

Coggle or Cobble, a Word us'd in ſome of the Coaſts of York-ſhire and elſewhere for a ſmall Fiſhing-boat.

Coggygria, (Gr.) a Tree having the property to loſe its Fruit in the ſoft Down, or Cotton which it bears; Venice-Sumach, or Silk-Sumach.

Cogitation, the Act of Thinking, or Thought, the Reflection of the Mind: But the Carteſians take it for whatever a Man experiences in himſelf, and of which he is Conſcious; as all the Operations of the Underſtanding, Will, Imagination and Senſes.

Cognation, Kindred, Affinity, Alliance: In the Civil Law, the Line of Parentage between Males and Females, both deſcended from the ſame Father.

Cognatione, the Name of a Writ, the ſame as Coſenage; which See.

Cogniſance, a Badge of Arms on a Serving-man's, or Waterman's Sleeve, ſhewing that he belongs to a particular Maſter, or Society: In Heraldry, it is the ſame with the Creſt, which in any Atchievment helps to marſhal and ſet off a Coat of Arms. In a Law-ſenſe, an Acknowledgment of a Fine, or Confeſſion of a thing done; alſo an Audience, or hearing of a Matter Judicially.

Cogniſance of a Plea, a Privilege that a City, or Town Corporate has by the Queen's Grant, to hold a Plea of all Contracts, and of Land within the Bounds of the Franchiſe; ſo that when any Man is impleaded upon ſuch an Account at the Queen's Court, the Mayors, or Bailiffs of ſuch Franchiſes may ask Cogniſance of the Plea, i. e. that the Matter be determined before them.

Cogniſee or Connuſee, the Perſon to whom a Fine is acknowledged.

Cogniſor or Connuſor, he that acknowledges, or paſſes a Fine of Lands, or Tenements to another.

Cognitio Præjudicialis. See Enterpleader, and to Interplead.

Cognitionibus admittendis, a Writ to a Juſtice, or other Perſon, who has Power to take a Fine, and having actually taken acknowledgment thereof, defers to certify it into the Court of Common-Pleas, requiring him to do it.

Cognomen, a Sir name: Among the Romans, it was properly the Name that diſtinguiſh'd the Lines of a Pedigree in the ſame Race: So when 'tis ſaid, The Family of the Cæſar*'s was of the* Julian Race, Julian is the general Name of the Race, and Cæſar is that of the Family.

Cognoſcence, a Philoſophical Word for Knowledge.

Cognoſcitive, belonging to Knowledge; as The Cognoſcitive Faculty.

Cogrital Line. See Line Cogrital.

To Cohabit, to dwell, or live together, eſpecially as a Man and his Wife does.

Cohabitation, ſuch a Cohabiting, or Dwelling.

Coheir, a joynt Heir with another.

Coheireſs, a Woman that ſhares an Inheritance with another.

To Cohere, to hang well together, to agree, to be all of a piece.

Coherence or Coherency, a ſticking, or cleaving together, an agreeing, or hanging together; ſaid of Propoſitions, or Diſcourſes that have ſome Relation, or Agreement one with another.

Coheſion of the Parts of Matter, (in Philoſ.) is that Quality, from whence ſoever ariſing, by which the Parts of all Solid Bodies adhere, or ſtick cloſe to one another.

Cohibition, a reſtraining, or keeping back.

To Cohobate, (in Chymiſtry) is to repeat the Diſtillation of the ſame Liquor, after having pour'd it again upon the Dregs, or Matter that remains in the Veſſel.

Cohobation, the Act of Cohobating, a repeated Diſtillation, which is uſually perform'd to open Mixt Bodies, or to make Spirits Volatile.

Cohort, (among the Romans) was the tenth Part of a Legion, or Regiment, and contain'd five Hundred Foot-Soldiers.

Cohortation, an Exhorting, or Encouraging.

Coif, (Fr.) a kind of Hood, or Cap for the Head.

Sergeants of the Coif, a Title given to Sergeants at Law, from the Lawn-Coif they wear on their Heads under their Cap, when they are firſt Created, and always after.

Coil, Noiſe, Clutter, Buſtle; alſo the Breech of a great Gun.

To Coil a Cable, (Sea-Phraſe) to wind it about in form of a Ring; the ſeveral Circles lying one upon another.

Coiling of the Stud, (among Husband-men) is the firſt making choice of a Colt, or young Horſe for any Service.

Coin, (Fr.) any ſort of ſtamped Money.

Coinage, the Coining, or Minting of Money: Alſo the Weighing and Stamping of Tin after it is Caſt and Wrought; which is otherwiſe written Cunage.

Coincidence, (Lat.) a falling, or meeting together; as The Coincidence of two Lines.

Coincident, falling out together, happening at the ſame time.

Coindications, (in the Art of Phyſick) are Signs which do not indicate, or diſcover by themſelves alone, but together with other Things, Circumſtances, &c. Help the Phyſician to form a Judgment about the Diſeaſe.

Coins or Quines, (in Architect.) the Corners of Walls.

Ruſtick Coins, Stones that ſtick out of a Wall, for new Buildings to be joyn'd to it.

Coins or Quoins, (in Gunnery) great wooden Wedges with a little Handle at the end, for the levelling, raiſing, or lowering of a Piece of Ordinance at pleaſure. Alſo certain ſmall Wedges, or Pins us'd by Printers to faſten the whole Compoſure of Letters in the Chace, or Frame.

Coins or Canting-coins, (in a Ship) are little ſhort pieces of Wood, cut with a ſharp Ridge, to lie between the Casks, and keep them from rolling one againſt another.

Standing Coins, Billets, or Pipe-ſtaves to make the Casks faſt, and keep them from jogging, or giving way.

Coint, (old Word) ſtrange.

Coiſt or Queeſt, a kind of Bird.

Coiſtrel, (old Word) a Young Lad.

Coition, properly an Aſſembling or Meeting together; Carnal Copulation, or Company with a Woman: It is alſo ſometimes taken for that mutual drawing Faculty, or Tendency towards each other, which is found between Iron and the Load-ſtone.

Coition of the Moon, (in Aſtrol.) a Term us'd when the Moon is in the ſame Sign and Degree of the Zodiack with the Sun.

Coits or Quoits, a ſort of Play.

Coke, (Country-word) Pit-coal, or Sea-coal burnt or changed into the Nature of Char-coal.

Coker, a Boat-man, or Waterman: Cokers, are alſo a ſort of Fiſher-mens Boots.

Cokes, a meer Fool, or Ninny.

Coket. See Cocket.

Coketratio, (in old Latin Records) the Cocketting, or taking an account of Goods to be tranſported; in order to receive the due Cuſtom, and give the Ticket of Diſcharge.

Colation, a ſtraining through a Strainer, or Sieve: In Chymiſtry, a putting of things into any convenient Liquor, and afterwards paſſing them thro' a Strainer of Linnen.

Colatorium, a Strainer. See Cribrum Benedictum.

Colature, that Liquor which after the boiling or infuſing of any Ingredients is ſtrain'd thro' a Sieve, Cloth, or woollen Bag call'd Hippocrates's Sleeve.

Colcotal, (in Chymiſtry) the dry red Lees, or Dregs that remain in the Retort after the Diſtillation of Vitriol.

Colcothar, Vitriol calcin'd, or burnt a good while over a ſtrong Fire; which is effectual for ſtanching Bloud, when apply'd to a Wound, &c.

Cold, one of the Qualities of Natural Bodies call'd Primary, which happens when the ſmall and inſenſible parts of a Body are come to ſuch a State, as that they are more ſlowly or faintly ſtirr'd about than thoſe of our Fingers or other Organs of Feeling.

Coldneſs Potential. See Potential Coldneſs.

Cole or Cale, a Country-word for Coleworts; a known Plant.

Cole-flower. See Colly-flower.

Colen or Cologne, one of the chief Cities of Germany, on the River Rhine.

Colens-Earth, a ſort of Colour us'd in Painting.

Colias, (Gr.) the baſtard Tunney, a kind of Fiſh.

Coliberts or Colliberts, (Law-Term) a middle ſort of Tenants between Servile and Free, or ſuch as held their freedom of Tenure, upon condition of performing certain cuſtomary Services for the Lord of the Manour: In the Civil Law, they who were made free together, by their Patron or Lord at the ſame time.

Colibus, the Humming-bird, a Bird in the Weſt-Indies, ſo call'd, becauſe in its Flight it makes a Noiſe like a Whirl-wind, tho' 'tis no bigger than a large Fly: It feeds on Dew, the Colours of its Feathers are admirable, and the Smell as ſweet-ſcented as Musk, or Amber-greece.

Colica or Colice, (Gr.) the Colick, a Diſeaſe.

Colick, a violent Pain in the Abdomen or Lower Belly, that takes its Name from the Part chiefly affected, viz. the Gut Colon, which is ſtretch'd, prick'd and gall'd by Winds or excrementitious Humours, either remaining within its Cavity, or elſe ſticking to its very Coat.

Coliſeum, (Lat.) a Name peculiar to a famous Amphitheater built by the Emperour Veſpaſian, the Remains of which are ſtill to be ſeen at Rome.

To Coll, to embrace about the Neck.

Collapſed, fallen to decay, ruined; as A Callapſed Eſtate.

Collar, the upper part of a Doublet or Band: Alſo a kind of Harneſs made of Canvas and Leather ſtuff'd with Straw or Wooll, for a Draught or Cart-horſe: Alſo a Ring made of any Metal, to be put about the Neck of a Slave, Dog, &c.

In a Ship, the Collar, is a Rope made faſt about her Beak-head, whereto a Block or Pulley nam'd a Dead-man's Eye is fixt, into which the Main-ſtay is faſten'd: Alſo another Rope about the Main-maſt Head, call'd the Collar or Garland, which is wound about there to ſave the Shrowds from galling.

Collar of S S, an Ornament for the Neck, belonging to the Knights of the Garter.

To Collar, (in Wreſtling) is to fix or hold on the Adverſary's Collar.

Collar-days, certain Feſtival-Days, on which the Companions of the moſt noble Order of the Garter, appear with their Collars.

Collarage, a Fine or Tax impos'd for the Collars worn by Wine-drawing Horſes.

To Collate, to beſtow a Spiritual Living, to compare or examine.

To Collate or Collation a Book, (among Book-ſellers and Printers) is to examine the Signatures, or Letters of Direction at the bottom of the Pages, ſo as to find out, whether any Sheets or Leaves be wanting or not: Alſo to compare the Copy of a Book with the Original.

Collateral, that hangs and depends on the Sides, or comes Side-ways; as The Cardinal and Collateral Winds.

Collateral Diſcent. See Diſcent.

Collateral Relations, are Brothers or Siſters Children, and thoſe that deſcend from them.

Collateral Security, (Law-Term) that which is given over and above the Deed it ſelf: Thus if a Man covenants with another, and enters into a Bond for the performance of his Covenants, the Bond is termed Collateral Aſſurance.

Collation, a Collating, or Comparing: In a Logical Senſe, a comparing of one thing well with another: It is alſo commonly taken for an Entertainment or Banquet between Meals; a handſome Treat.

Collation of a Benefice, the beſtowing of a Church-Living by a Biſhop, who has it in his own Gift or Patronage; whereas Inſtitution into a Benefice, is perform'd by the Biſhop at the Motion, or Preſentation of another, who is Patron of the Place, or has the Patron's Right for the time.

Collation of Seals, (in ancient Deeds) when one Seal was ſet on the Reverſe, or Back of another upon the ſame Ribbon, or Label.

To Collation. See To Collate.

Collatione facta uni poſt mortem alterius, a Writ directed to the Juſtices of the Common-Pleas, enjoyning them to ſend out their Writ to a Biſhop, for the admitting a Clerk in the Place of another, preſented by the King, who dy'd during the Suit between the King and the Biſhop's Clerk.

Collatione Heremitagii, a Writ by which the King us'd to confer the keeping of an Hermitage upon a Clerk.

Collativum, (among the Romans) a Sacrifice made from the Offerings of ſeveral Perſons, or an unanimous Contribution of the People towards the carrying on of any Publick Work: Alſo a Subſidy, or Royal Aid.

Colleague, a Fellow, Companion, or Copartner in an Office; a Joynt-Commiſſioner, a Partner in any Charge, or Buſineſs.

Collect, a ſhort Prayer, particularly ſuch as thoſe that are appointed with the Epiſtles and Goſpels, for certain Days in the Publick Service of the Church of England.

To Collect, to gather, to pick up; to levy, or raiſe Taxes.

Collectaneous, gathered and ſcraped up together, pickt up out of divers Works.

Collection, the Act of Collecting, or Gathering, a Compiling. In Logick, a Concluſion, or Inference.

Collection of Light, (in Aſtrol.) is when two principal Significators do not behold each other, but both caſt their ſeveral Aſpects to a more weighty Planet than themſelves, whom they both receive in ſome of their Eſſential Dignities: So that the Planet which thus collects both their Lights, ſignifies the accompliſhing of a Buſineſs in Hand between two Perſons by the Mediation of a third.

Collectitious, gathered up of all Sorts, pickt up and down.

Collective, that relates to gathering, apt to gather, comprehenſive: In Grammar, a Collective Noun, is a Word that comprehends many Perſons, or Things in the Singular Number; as A Multitude, a Company, a Troop, &c.

College, a Name anciently given to certain Societies, Corporations, or Companies of Workmen, Trades-men, and other Callings, which were firſt founded by Numa Pompilius, the Second King of Rome; and had their reſpective Patrons and Governours: The Word is ſtill us'd for a Company, or Society of thoſe that are of the ſame Profeſſion, eſpecially Students in an Univerſity; the Places, or Publick Buildings where they live together, are alſo call'd Colleges.

College of Heralds. See Heralds College.

College of Phyſicians, a noted Corporation of Phyſicians, who by Virtue of ſeveral Charters and Acts of Parliament, have certain Privileges, as to ſurvey and govern all thoſe that practiſe Phyſick in London, or within ſeven Miles round about; alſo to fine and impriſon any Offenders at Diſcretion, to make By-laws, to purchaſe Lands, &c. This College conſiſts of a Preſident, 4 Cenſors, 12 Electors, and 80 Fellows.

Colleger or Collegiate, a Member, Fellow, or Student of a College.

Collegiate Church, a Church built and endow'd for a Society, or Body Corporate of a Dean, or other Preſident, and ſeveral Canons, or Prebendaries; as thoſe of Weſtminſter, Windſor, Rippon, &c.

Collery, a Store-houſe of Coals.

Collet or Bezil, that part of a Ring in which the Stone is ſet.

Colleticks, (Gr.) Medicines that are of a gluing, or cloſing Faculty, which ſerve to faſten the Parts, and make them firm.

Colliciæ, (Lat.) Gutter-tiles, Water-furrows, Gutters, or Drains in Fields; Pipes, or Troughs to convey Water: In Anatomy, the joyning of the Puncta Lachrymalia into one Paſſage on both Sides, for conveying the Moiſture of the Eye into the Cavity, or Hollow of the Noſtrils.

Collier, one that works, or deals in Coals.

Colliquans Febris, a burning Feaver, which by its exceſſive Heat is ſaid ſuddenly to melt the Fat, Fleſh, and Subſtance of the ſolid Parts of the Patient's Body; nay it ſometimes diſſolves the very Bloud in the Veins, as ſome ſay, and diſcharges it by Sweat, Urine, or Stool, &c.

Colliquated, a Chymical Word for melted: Thus 'tis ſaid, Silver and Lead being colliquated over a ſtrong Fire, will mingle per minima, i. e. unite thoroughly together.

Colliquation, a diſſolving, or melting of Metals, &c. alſo a kind of dangerous Flux, or Scouring.

Colliſion, (in Philoſ.) a knocking, daſhing, or rubbing together of two Bodies with Violence.

Colliſtrigium or Colliſtridium, (in the Practick of Scotland) a Pillory, or a pair of Stocks.

Collocation, a placing, ſetting, or diſpoſing in Order.

Collock, an old Word for a Pail.

To Collogue, to decoy with fair Words, to flatter or ſooth up, to fawn upon.

Collop, a Cut, or Slice of Meat.

Colloquy, (Lat.) a feigned Conference, Diſcourſe, or Talking together of ſeveral Perſons, as Eraſmus's Colloquies.

Colluctation, a Wreſtling, or Struggling together.

Collum, (Lat.) the Neck, the Crag.

Collum Uteri, the Neck of the Womb.

Collurio, the little Lanar, a kind of Hawk; but ſome take it for a Field-fare.

Colluſion, a juggling, or playing Booty; a hunting with the Hound, and running with the Hair: In Common Law, a deceitful Compact, or Agreement between ſeveral Parties, for one to bring an Action againſt the other, for ſome evil Purpoſe, as to defraud a third Perſon of his Right, &c.

Collutio, (Lat.) a waſhing of the Mouth, to clean or faſten bad or looſe Teeth; to free the Gums from Ulcers, &c.

Colly, the Black that ſticks on the out-ſide of a Pot, or Kettle.

To Colly, to dawb with Colly, to ſmut: Among Falconers, a Hawk is ſaid To colly, when ſhe ſtretches out her Neck ſtraight forward.

Colly-Flower, the fineſt ſort of Cabbage-Plant that well deſerves a Place in the Kitchen-Garden.

Collybiſta or Collybiſtes, (Gr.) a Banker, or Money-changer; one that pays Bills of Exchange.

Collyrium, any liquid Medicine deſigned to cure Diſeaſes in the Eyes: It was alſo anciently taken for a Tent to dreſs Fiſtula's with; a Peſſary, or Suppoſitory.

Colobium, a kind of ſhort Coat reaching to the Knees, a Jacket, or Jerkin without Sleeves; us'd by the ancient Romans, as alſo by Monks and Hermits.

Coloboma, a growing together of the Lips, Eyelids, or Noſtrils, or a preternatural ſticking of the Ears to the Head, &c.

Colocaſia, the Egyptian Bean, which us'd to bear ſuch great Leaves, that Pots and Cups were often made of them.

Colocynthis, a kind of wild Gourd purging Phlegm, the Apple, or Fruit of which is call'd Coloquintida.

Coloiers. See Coloyers.

Colomeſtrum, the Herb Dog-bane, or Wolfbane.

Colon, a Member of the Body, eſpecially the Foot, or Arm: In Grammar, the middle Point of Diſtinction, between a Comma, or the leaſt Reſt in a Sentence, and a Period, or full Stop; which is generally marked thus (:)

In Anatomy, Colon, is one of the thick Guts, and the largeſt of all; being about eight or nine Hands-breadths long, and full of little Cells, which are ſometimes ſtuff'd with Wind and other Matters that cauſe the Pains of the Colick.

Colonel, the Commander in chief of a Regiment of Horſe, Dragoons, or Foot, in England; but in France and Spain, the Colonels of Horſe are call'd Maſters de Camp.

Colony, (Lat.) a Plantation, a Company of People removed from one Country or City to another, with an Allowance of Land for Tillage, &c. Alſo the Place where they are ſo ſettled and thrive.

Colophonia, the Herb Scammony, ſo call'd from Colophon a City of Ionia. Among Chymiſts, the Caput mortuum, or groſs Subſtance of Turpentine, the more liquid part being diſtilled into Oil; which is of good Uſe in making Salves and drying Plaiſters.

Colophonia Reſina, a kind of Roſin that iſſues out of the Pine-tree.

Coloquintida, the Fruit of a wild Gourd of a very bitter Taſte.

Coloration, (Lat.) a Colouring: In Chymiſtry, the bright'ning of Gold, or Silver, when it is ſully'd by any Sulphureous Vapour.

Coloſs or Coloſſus, (Gr.) a Statue of a prodigious Size, as that of Apollo, or the Sun in the Harbour of Rhodes, counted one of the ſeven Wonders of the World, as being 70 Cubits, or 105 Foot high; ſo that Ships paſs'd with full Sails between its Legs. This vaſt Statue was overthrown by an Earthquake 56 Years after it was ſet up, having taken up 12 in the building; and 900 Camels were loaded with the Braſs of which it was made.

Coloſtratio, (Lat.) a Diſeaſe that happens to young Ones ſucking the Dam's Milk, within two Days after the Birth.

Colour, a Quality belonging to Natural Bodies that are ſaid to be ſo and ſo coloured; or an Accident that happens to them by the reflection of Light: Alſo Complexion or Looks, Pretence or Shew. In a Law-ſenſe, a probable Plea, but really falſe put in with an intent to draw the tryal of the Cauſe from the Jury to the Judges.

Colours, the Standard, Enſign, or Banner of a Company of Soldiers: In Sea-affairs, the Enſigns plac'd on the Sterns or Poops of Ships, to ſhew of what Part and Country they are.

Colours Emphatical. See Emphatical.

Colour of Office, (Law-Phraſe) an evil or unjuſt Act done by the countenance of an Office.

To Colour, to give a Colour, to cloke or excuſe, to bluſh.

To Colour Strangers Goods, is when a Freeman or Deniſon permits a Foreigner to enter Goods at the Cuſtom-houſe in his Name, by which means the latter pays but ſingle Duty, when he ought to pay double.

Colourable, plauſible, fair; as A colourable Pretence.

Colpare arbores, (in old Latin Records) to lop, or top Trees.

Colpatura or Culpatura, the cutting or lopping of Trees; a Treſpaſs within the Foreſt.

Colpicia, Samplars, or young Poles in a Wood, which being cut down make Leavers, or Lifters, ſuch as in Warwick-ſhire are call'd Colpices to this Day.

Colpindach or Cowdach, (in the Practick of Scotland) a young Cow, or Heifer.

Colpos, (Gr.) that part of the Paps which has the Milk in it; the Boſom.

Colt, a young Horſe, Mare, or Aſs.

Colt-evil, a Diſeaſe in Horſes or Geldings; being a preternatural Swelling of the Pizzle and Cods.

Colts-foot, an Herb good for Diſtempers of the Lungs, &c.

Coluber, (Lat.) the Snake, or Adder; a Serpent.

Calubrina, the Herb Briony, or white Vine.

Columba, a Dove, or Pigeon.

† Columbary, a Dove-houſe, or Pigeon-houſe.

Columbina, (Lat.) an Herb call'd baſe, or flat Vervein.

Columbine, a Plant which bears a pretty Flower of ſeveral Colours; as blew, white, purple and red.

Columella, (Lat.) a little Pillar: In Anatomy, a ſmall piece of Fleſh in the Roof of the Mouth otherwiſe call'd Uvula, or the ſwelling of it.

Column, (in Architect.) a round Pillar to bear up, or beautify a Building, or elſe rais'd by it ſelf to ſerve for a Monument to Poſterity, or for ſome other Ornamental Uſe: In a proper and ſtrict Senſe, 'tis that long round Cylinder or part of a Pillar, which is call'd the Shaft or Trunk, and contains the Body of it from the Spire to the Baſe, or from the Aſtragal of the Baſe to the Chapiter.

In the Art of War, it is the long File, or row of Troops, or of the Baggage of an Army on its March: Thus to march in a Column, is to march a great Depth, or in a long File, inſtead of making a large Front: An Army Marches in one, two, three, or more Columns, according as the Ground will allow, and the General ſees it moſt expedient.

Among Printers, Column, is taken for half a Page, when divided into two equal Parts, by a Rule or Line paſſing through the middle, from the top to the bottom.

Columna, (Lat.) a Column, a round Pillar, or Poſt.

Columna Naſi, (in Anat.) the fleſhy part of the Noſe, jutting out in the middle near the upper Lip.

Columna Oris, the Uvula, or little piece of red Fleſh in the Palate of the Mouth.

Columnæ Cordis, the Muſcles and Tendons by which the Ventricles and Auricles of the Heart are ſtraighten'd and widen'd.

Columnæ Herculis or Hercules's Pillars, two Mountains oppoſite one to another, at the Mouth of the Straight of Gibraltar, one anciently call'd Calpe, near Cadiz, and the other Abyla, near Ceuta: Theſe Pillars are ſaid to have been ſet up by Hercules, to ſerve for Limits of his Exploits, and the Boundaries of the Weſtern World.

Colures, (Gr. in Aſtron.) are two great Circles, which paſſing thro' the Poles of the World, and the four principal Points of the Zodiack, mutually cut one another, and divide the Globe into equal Parts; ſo as to ſhew the four Chief Points of the Zodiack, to which the Sun coming diſtinguiſhes each Quarter of the Year: Thus,

The Colure of the Equinoxes, paſſing thro' the North and South-Poles, with the firſt Degrees of Aries and Libra, makes the Seaſons of Spring and Autumn, and is ſo call'd, becauſe it marks the Equinoctial Points on the Ecliptick.

The Colure of the Solſtices, likewiſe ſhewing the Solſtitial Points, cuts the beginning of Cancer and Capricorn, in order to make Summer and Winter: Theſe Circles take Name from their being as it were maimed in the Tail, becauſe they appear imperfect to all thoſe Inhabitants of the World that do not live under the Equinoctial Line.

Colus, (Lat.) a Diſtaff or Rock, a Whorl; Alſo a Beaſt of a whitiſh Colour, that has a Head like a Hog, and drinks in Water thro' the Noſtrils.

Colus ruſtica, wild baſtard Saffron, an Herb.

Colutea, (Gr.) a kind of Tree that grows much in France; Hather, or Trifoly-tree; alſo a Tree that bears Bladder-nuts, baſtard Senna.

Colymbades, pickled Olives ſo light that they ſwim in the Pickle.

Colymbus major, the great Arſe-foot, Didapper, or Douker; a Water-fowl: Colymbus minor, the Dab-chick, call'd in Cornwall, the diving Killegrew.

Coma or Coma Somnolentum, a deep Sleep leſs than a Lethargy and without a Feaver, wherein the Patient being awaken'd, anſwers to any Queſtions that are ask'd, but falls into a profound Sleep again, with his Mouth open and his under Jaw fallen.

Coma Vigil, waking Drowſineſs, a Diſeaſe in which the Patient is continually inclin'd to Sleep, but can ſcarce do ſo; being troubled with a great drowſineſs in the Head, a Stupidity in all the Senſes and Faculties, and often with a Delirium, or Frenzy.

Comarus, the Wilding, or Crab-tree.

Comb, a well known Inſtrument to cleanſe Hair: In a Ship, a ſmall Piece of Timber ſet under the Lower part of the Beak-head, and near the middle, with two Holes in it, to bring the Ropes call'd Fore-tacks aboard: Alſo a certain Meaſure containing four Buſhels.

Comb or Combe, (Sax.) a Valley, or low Plain between two Hills, or a Hill between Valleys: The Word is ſtill uſ'd in Devon-ſhire and Cornwall; and many Places in ſeveral Parts of England, have taken Name from their Situation in ſuch a Comb; as Compton, Combwell, Swancomb, &c.

Comba or Cumba terræ, (in old Charters) a low piece of Ground.

Combarones, (old Law-Term) the Fellow-Barons, or Commonalty of the Cinque-Ports: But Combaron is now taken for a Fellow-Member, as The Baron and his Combaron.

Combatant, (Fr.) a Champion, or Fighting Man: In Heraldry, a Figure drawn like a Sword-player ſtanding upon his Guard; it is alſo apply'd to that of two Lions born in a Coat of Arms, rampant, or in a fighting Poſture, with their Faces towards each other. See Endorſed.

Combate, a Fight, or Battel: In our Ancient Law, it was a formal Tryal of a Doubtful Caſe, by the Swords, or Battoons of two Champions.

To Combate, to fight, to oppoſe; to withſtand, or reſiſt.

Combination, (Lat.) a Combining, or coupling together. In Rhetorick, a Figure, when the ſame Word is immediately repeated; as Me me adſum, &c. Virg. In a Law-Senſe, it is the ent'ring of ſeveral Perſons into a Conſpiracy, to perform any unlawful Deſign: In Arithmetick, Combination, is the Art of finding how many different Ways a certain given Number of things may be vary'd, or taken by one and one, two and two, three and three, &c.

To Combine, to joyn or be joyned together, to plot together.

Comburgeſs, a Fellow-Citizen.

Combuſt, (Lat. i. e. burnt or Scorch'd) Among Aſtrologers, when a Planet is not above 8 Degrees and 30 Minutes diſtant from the Sun, either before or after it, 'tis ſaid To be Combuſt, or in Combuſtion; which ſhews that the Party ſignify'd thereby is in great Fear, and much overpower'd by ſome great Perſon.

Combuſt Way, the Space in the ſecond half of Libra, and thro' the whole Sign of Scorpio, being about 45 Degr. in Longitude; ſo call'd, by reaſon of ſeveral violent and ill-boding fixed Stars there plac'd: So that it is counted unfortunate, and to weaken any Planet that happens to be in it.

Combuſtion, a burning; an Uproar, or Hurly-burly: In Aſtrology, a Planet's being under the Sun, which continues 'till it be fully remov'd ſeventeen Degrees. See Combuſt.

Combuſtion of Money, the old way of trying mixt and baſe Money by melting it down, upon Payments into the Exchequer.

Come, a Word us'd by Husband-men, for the ſmall ſtings or tails of Malt, upon its firſt ſhooting forth.

Come, (Lat.) an Herb call'd Goats-beard.

Comedian, (Gr.) a Writer, or Actor of Comedies; a Stage-player.

Comedy, a ſort of Play artificially compoſ'd, either in Proſe, or Verſe, to make an agreeable Repreſentation of the Actions of Humane Life; ſo call'd from the Greek Words Come, i. e. a Village, and Ode, a Song; becauſe it was firſt acted in ſome Country-Villages.

Comes, (Lat.) a Title at firſt given to Perſons who waited on the Magiſtrates in Provinces, as Treaſurers, Lieutenants, Secretaries, Regiſters, &c. but in the Emperours Time, it was apply'd to thoſe that were of the Prince's Family, or Attendance; a Count, or Earl.

Comes Caſtrenſis Palatii, the Lord High Steward of the Prince's Houſhold, who took care of his Table, and commanded all the Officers and waiting Gentlemen of the Houſe.

Comes Conſiſtorianus, a Councellour of State.

Comes Domeſticorum Equitum & Peditum, a Colonel of the Archers of the Emperour's Guards, eſtabliſhed by the Younger Gordian.

Comes Orientis, the Governour of the Eaſt, who had fifteen Provinces under his Juriſdiction; and the Overſight of the particular Governours.

Comes Patrimonii, the Treaſurer of the Demeans, who receiv'd the Revenues for the Prince's Maintenance.

Comes privatarum rerum Domus Divinæ, the Treaſurer of the Caſual Forfeitures, whoſe Buſineſs was to gather the Money that fell to the Prince by Chance; as Fines, Eſcheats, Goods of Mortmain, &c.

Comes rei militaris, an Officer who Commanded the Soldiers in the Armies, and had an equal Authority with the Captains of the Provinces.

Comes Sacrarum Largitionum, the Treaſurer of the Gifts, Bounty-money, and Alms of the Prince, which he diſtributed among the Soldiers and the People.

Comes Scholarum, an Officer who was employ'd about the Prince's Affairs in the Provinces and the Armies, and had check over all the Subaltern Officers of the Empire.

Comes Stabuli, the great Maſter of the Horſe, who was to take care that the Horſes ſhould be deliver'd which were charged on the Provinces every Year, for the Emperour's Uſe: This Officer was very much reſpected in the Roman Empire, as the Great Conſtable was formerly in France, or the Maſter of the Horſe is now in England.

Comet, (Gr.) a Blazing-ſtar, an imperfect Subſtance, conſiſting of a thick fat Vapour, ſuppoſ'd to be ſet on Fire in the upper Region of the Air, and generally fore-boding ſome Publick Calamity.

Cometographia, a Deſcription or Diſcourſe of Comets.

Comfits, (Fr.) Sweet-meats, Fruits and other things preſerv'd dry.

Comfrey, an Herb uſeful both for Diet and Phyſick; being very good to knit broken Bones, cloſe up Fleſh, ſtop Fluxes, &c.

Comical, belonging to, or fit for Comedy, pleaſant, merry, jocoſe.

Comings of the Hatches. See Coamings.

Comitatu & Caſtro Commiſſo, (Lat.) a Writ by which the charge of a County, together with the keeping of a Caſtle is committed to the Sheriff.

Comitatu Commiſſo, a Writ, or Commiſſion, by virtue of which the Sheriff is authoriz'd to take upon him the Command of the County.

Comitatus, a retinue, or Train of Attendants, or Followers; a Prince's Court: In Common Law, a County or Shire; alſo a Roll or Liſt of Dead Farms and Deſperate Debts formerly made every Year and read upon the Account of Sheriffs in their reſpective Counties.

Comitia, a Name anciently given to the Aſſemblies of the People of Rome, for the chuſing of Magiſtrates, making Laws, and diſpatching other Publick Buſineſs.

Comitialis Morbus, the Falling-ſickneſs, ſo call'd, becauſe if any Man was ſeiz'd with it in the midſt of the Publick Aſſemblies, the Council was thereupon broke up for that time.

Comma, (Gr.) a cutting, a little piece or paring cut off from any thing: In Grammar, the ſhorteſt Point of Diſtinction, ſet on part of a Sentence, which only implies a ſmall Reſt, or little Pauſe, and is thus marked (,)

In Muſick, Comma, is the ninth part of a Tone or the Interval whereby a Semi-tone, or a Perfect Tone exceeds the Imperfect: This Term is us'd only in Theorical Muſick, to ſhew the exact Proportion between Concords.

Command. See Word of Command.

To Command, to order, charge, or bid; to have the Management, Government, or Rule of.

Commander, one that has Command, a General, or Chief Officer; alſo the Governour of a Commandry, or Order of Religious Knights: Alſo a kind of Rammer, or Paving-beetle.

Commanding-Ground, (in Fortif.) is a Riſing-ground that overlooks any Poſt, or Strong Place, and of which there are three ſorts. 1. A Front Commanding-ground, i. e. a Height which is oppoſite to the Face of the Poſt, and plays upon its Front. 2. A Reverſe Commanding-ground, an high Place that can play upon the back of any Poſt. 3. An Enfilade Commanding-ground, or Courtin Commanding-ground, a Height which with its Shot Scours, or Sweeps all the length of a Straight Line.

Commanding Signs, the firſt Six Signs of the Zodiack, viz. Aries, Taurus, Gemini, Cancer, Leo and Virgo; ſo counted and call'd by Aſtrologers.

Commandment, a Divine Precept, Ordinance, or Law; as The Ten Commandments, i. e. the Ten chief Precepts of Revealed Religion.

In Common Law, Commandment, is when the Queen or the Juſtices commit a Man to Priſon, upon their own Authority: It is alſo taken for the Offence of him that induces another to tranſgreſs the Law; as to commit Murder, Theft, &c. In Fortification, it is a Height of nine Foot, which one Place has above another.

Commandry, was a Manour, or chief Meſſuage, with Lands and Tenements belonging to the Priory of St. John of Jeruſalem, near London, and he that had the Government of any ſuch Manour, or Houſe, was ſtyl'd a Commander, tho' he could not diſpoſe of it but to the uſe of the ſaid Priory: Thus New Eagle in Lincoln-ſhire is ſtill call'd The Commandry of New Eagle, as anciently depending on that Priory.

Commaterial, (Lat.) that is made of the ſame Matter or Subſtance with another.

Commeatura, (in ancient Writers) a Commandry or Portion of Houſe and Lands, ſet apart for the Uſe of ſome Religious Order, eſpecially the Knights Templar.

To Commemorate, to celebrate the Memory and Acts of a worthy Perſon, &c.

Commemoration, the Act of Commemorating, a Solemn remembrance of ſome remarkable Actions.

To Commence, (Fr.) To begin, or enter upon: In a Law-Senſe, to proceed in an Action, or Suit againſt one; alſo to take a Degree in the Univerſities.

Commencement, the Time when Degrees are taken in the Univerſity of Cambridge, anſwering to the Act at Oxford. See Act.

To Commend, (Lat.) to praiſe or ſet forth, to ſet off with advantage; to commit or give in charge, to commit to one's Favour, Protection, or Care. Commend me to ſuch a Friend, i. e. let him know I am his humble Servant.

Commendable, that is to be Commended, praiſe-worthy.

Commendadore, (Span.) a Conſul or Preſident in the Indies, or any foreign Place of Traffick. The Deputy-Governours under the King of Spain, who is Soveraign Maſter of the Knights of Calatrava and other Orders; are alſo call'd Commendadores; and the Places appointed for their Maintenance and Revenue, are termed Commendatures; to which our Commandries were anſwerable, but only that they were ſolely appropriated to the Knights of St. John of Jeruſalem.

Commendam, Law-Term us'd when a void Benefice is Commended to the Care of ſome able Clerk, to be ſupply'd 'till it may be conveniently provided of a Miniſter: Alſo when a Parſon is made a Biſhop, his Benefice is reſign'd by the Promotion, but if the Queen impowers him to retain his Benefice, he ſtill continues Parſon, and is ſaid To hold it in Commendam.

Commendati or Commendati Homines, (in old Latin Records) Perſons who by voluntary Homage, put themſelves under the Protection of any Superiour Lord.

Commendati Dimidii, Perſons who depended on two ſeveral Lords, and were to pay one half of their Homage to each.

Commendation, Commending, Praiſe: Commendations, is alſo taken for Reſpects, or Service convey'd to one.

Commendatory, that ſerves to recommend; as Commendatory Letters, i. e. Letters of Recommendation.

A Commendatory, a Clerk that has a Benefice in Commendam.

Commendature. See Commendadore and Commandry.

Commenſalis, (Lat.) a Companion at the Table, a Boarder, or Tabler; a Fellow-Commoner.

Commenſurable Magnitudes or Quantities, (in Geom.) are ſuch as may be meaſur'd by one and the ſame common Meaſure.

Commenſurable Numbers, (in Arithm.) are any whole Numbers, or Fractions that have ſome other Number which will meaſure, or divide them without a Remainder: Thus 6 and 8, $1\frac{1}{2}$ and $\frac{4}{6}$ are reſpectively Commenſurable Numbers.

Commenſurable in Power, Among Geometricians, Right-lines are ſaid To be Commenſurable in Power, when their Squares may be meaſur'd by one and the ſame Space, or Superficies.

Commenſurable Surds, (in Algebra) ſuch Surds as being reduc'd to their leaſt Terms, become true Figurative Quantities of their Kind, and are therefore as a Rational Quantity to a Rational.

Commenſurate, proportionable.

Commenſuration, a meaſuring one thing with another.

Comment, an Expoſition of an Author's Text, an Interpretation, or Gloſs.

To Comment, to write Notes upon, to expound, or gloſs; to criticize, or find fault with.

Commentary, a continued Interpretation, or Gloſs upon the obſcure and difficult Paſſages of an Author, to render them more intelligible: It is alſo apply'd to ſome Hiſtories written by thoſe who had the greateſt Share in the Actions therein particularly related.

Commentator, a Maker of Commentaries.

Commentitious, deviſed at Pleaſure, feigned, forged, counterfeit.

Commerce, Trade, or Traffick in buying and ſelling: Alſo Intercourſe of Society, Converſe, or Correſpondence.

Commigration, a removing of Quarters from one Place to another.

Commination, a ſevere and vehement Threat'ning.

Comminution, a breaking, or bruiſing to pieces; the dividing of a thing into very ſmall Parts, or Particles: Alſo a Term us'd in Surgery, when a Bone is broken into many ſmall Parts.

To Commiſerate, to take Pity of.

Commiſeration, Compaſſion, Pity.

Commiſſary, (in the Civil Law) an Officer that ſupplies the Biſhop's Place in the Exerciſe of Eccleſiaſtical Juriſdiction, in the Out-parts of his Dioceſs; or elſe in ſuch Pariſhes as are peculiar to the Biſhop, and exempted from the Arch-Deacon's Viſitation. In an Army, there are two ſorts of Commiſſaries, viz.

Commiſſary General of the Muſters, otherwiſe call'd Muſter-Maſter General, who takes a particular Account of the Strength of every Regiment, and reviews them; obſerving that the Horſe be well mounted, and all the Men well armed and accoutred.

Commiſſary General of Proviſions, an Officer that has the Charge of furniſhing and diſtributing all ſorts of Proviſions belonging to the Army and Garriſons.

Commiſſion, a Warrant for an Office, or Place; a Charge to buy, or do any other Act for another: In a Law-ſenſe, a Delegation, or Warrant by Letters Patent, for the hearing, or determining of any Cauſe, or Action: In Military Affairs, the Authority by which every Officer acts in his Poſt, ſign'd by the Queen, or her General. Alſo Wages, or Allowance made to a Factor.

Commiſſion of Anticipation, was a Commiſſion under the great Seal, to collect a Subſidy, or Tax before the time appointed.

Commiſſion of Aſſociation, a Commiſſion likewiſe under the Broad Seal, to aſſociate, or joyn two, or more Learned Perſons with the Juſtices, in the ſeveral Circuits and Counties in Wales.

Commiſſion of Bankrupt, a Commiſſionu nder the Great Seal of England, directed to five, or more Commiſſioners, to enquire into the particular Circumſtances of a Bankrupt, or Trader that is fail'd, or broke: Theſe Commiſſioners are appointed to act for the Benefit of the Creditors, and to proceed according to ſeveral Statutes made for that Purpoſe.

Commiſſion of Rebellion, a Writ ſent out againſt a Man that has not appear'd after Proclamation made by the Sheriff, upon an Order of Chancery, to preſent himſelf to the Court at a certain Day; to cauſe the Party to be apprehended as a Rebel and Deſpiſer of the Queen's Laws, wherever he be found.

Commiſſion to a Factor, (in Traffick) the Conditions, or Orders given him for Buying, or Selling any Commodity, according to which he is oblig'd to act.

Commiſſion or Commiſſion-Money, the Wages of a Factor. See Factorage.

Commiſſion-Officers. See Officers.

To Commiſſion or Commiſſionate, to give a Commiſſion; to appoint, or impower one to act for another.

Commiſſioner, one that has receiv'd a Commiſſion, or acts by Virtue of it. In a Legal Senſe, one that has Commiſſion, as Letters Patent, or any other Lawful Warrant, to execute any Publick Office; as Commiſſioners of the Office of Fines and Licences, Commiſſioners in Eyre, &c.

The Queen's High Commiſſioner in Scotland, a Title given to a Nobleman, who repreſents the Perſon of the Queen of England, in the Kingdom of Scotland, and preſides in the Parliament in her Behalf.

Commiſſioners of Sewers. See Sewers.

Commiſſure, a joyning cloſe, or couching of Things together; a Cloſure, or Seam: In Anatomy, the Mould of the Head, where the Parts of the Scull are united: In Architecture, a cloſe joyning of Planks, Stones, or any other Materials.

Commiſſures, is alſo a Term often us'd by Writers that treat of Natural Philoſophy, for the ſmall Pores of a Body, or the little Cavities, Spaces, or Clefts that are between the Particles of any Body, eſpecially when thoſe Particles are broadiſh, or flattiſh, and lye cloſe one to another, like very thin Plates.

To Commit, to act or do, to put; to refer, or leave a Buſineſs to.

Committee, one, or more Perſons to whom the Conſideration, Examination, or Ordering of any Matter is referr'd by ſome Court, or Conſent of Parties to whom it belongs.

Committee of the King, the Widow of the King's Tenant, formerly ſo call'd, as being committed by the ancient Law of the Land, to the King's Care and Protection.

Commixtion or Commixture, a mingling together.

Commode, a ſort of ſet Head-dreſs for Women.

Commodious, fit, convenient, uſeful.

Commodity, Conveniency, Profit, Advantage; alſo Merchandize, or Ware.

Commodore, a kind of Admiral, or Commander in Chief of a Squadron of Ships at Sea.

Commoigne, (old Law-word) a Brother-Monk reſiding in the ſame Convent.

Common, Ordinary, Uſeful, Publick.

A Common, Common Paſture-ground: According to the Law-definition, that Soil of Water, the uſe of which is common to a particular Town, or Lordſhip, as Common of Paſture for the feeding of Cattel, Common of Fiſhing, for the taking of Fiſh, and Common of Turbary, i. e. a Liberty of digging Turf. See Turbary.

Common Axis, a Term in Opticks. See Axis Common, or Mean.

Common Bench, the Court of Common-Pleas, ſometimes ſo call'd from the Pleas, or Controverſies try'd there between Common Perſons.

Common Council. See Council.

Common Diviſor, (in Arithm.) is that Number which exactly divides any two other Numbers, without leaving any Remainder.

Common Fine, a certain Summ of Money which the Inhabitants of a Manour are oblig'd to pay to the Lord, towards the Charge in maintaining a Court-Leet.

Common-Hunt, the chief Huntſman to the Lord Mayor and City of London.

Common Intendment, a Law-phraſe for common Meaning; ſo a Bar to Common Intendment, is an ordinary, or general Bar, which commonly diſables the Plaintiff's Declaration. Of Common Intendment, a Will ſhall not be ſuppos'd to be made by Colluſion.

Common Law is taken in a three-fold Senſe, viz. 1. For the Laws of England, ſimply conſider'd, without the addition of any other Law or Cuſtomary whatever; as when 'tis diſputed what ought of Right to be determin'd by the Common Law, and what by the Civil Law or Admiralty-court, &c. 2. It is taken for the Queen's Courts, as the Queen's Bench or Common Pleas, to diſtinguiſh them from Baſe Courts, as Courts Baron, County-courts, Piepowders, &c. 3. And moſt uſually, by the Common Law, is underſtood ſuch Laws as were generally receiv'd as the Laws of the Realm, before any Statute was made to alter them.

Common Pleas, one of the Courts held in Weſtminſter-hall, but in ancient Time moveable: It was appointed by K. Henry III. for the Trying of all Civil Cauſes, both Real and Perſonal; the Principal Judge of which is ſtyl'd Lord Chief Juſtice ſtice of the Common Pleas, and aſſiſted by three or four Aſſociates: The reſt of the Officers are the Cuſtos Brevium, three Protonotaries, a Chirographer, four Exigenters, fourteen Filacers, ſeveral ſorts of Clerks, &c.

Common Ray, in Opticks. See Ray.

Common Receptacle, (in Anat.) is a certain Veſſel ſo termed, becauſe it receives the Juices Chyle and Lympha, promiſcuouſly, tho' ſome falſly call it the Receptacle of the Chyle in particular.

Common Recovery. See Recovery feigned.

Common Senſory, the Common Perception of all Senſations; or that Faculty which receives the Images of ſenſible Things, or the Impreſſion made by the Objects upon the Nerves; ſo that according to theſe Impulſes, it determines the Will, and performs other Animal Actions.

Common Signs, (in Aſtrol.) are Gemini, Virgo, Sagittarius and Piſces, ſo call'd, becauſe that being at the end of each Quarter of the Year, they partake more or leſs of both Quarters; as the Sun in Piſces not only ends the Winter, but alſo begins the Spring.

Common-wealth, any State, or Government in General, eſpecially as it is diſtinguiſh'd from a Monarchy; the chief of which in Europe, are thoſe of Venice, Genoa, Holland, Switzerland, &c.

Common-wealths-man, a Member of a Common-wealth; alſo a Stickler for the Government by way of a Common-wealth.

Commonalty, the Common People: In a Law-ſenſe, the middle ſort of the Queen's Subjects, ſuch of the Commons, as being rais'd above the ordinary Peaſants, come to have the managing of Offices, and are one Degree under Burgeſſes.

Commoner, a Member of the Houſe of Commons in Parliament, or of a College in an Univerſity.

Commons, a certain Proportion of Victuals, eſpecially the regular Diet of a College or Society.

The Commons of England, one of the three Eſtates of the Realm.

Houſe of Commons, the lower Houſe of Parliament, ſo call'd, becauſe the Commons of the Realm, i. e. the Knights of Shires, Citizens and Burgeſſes ſit there.

Commoſis, (Gr.) the firſt Ground-work of Bees in their making Honey, which is of a Gummy Subſtance.

Commote or Commoith, (in Wales) ſignifies a part of a Shire, a Cantred or Hundred, containing fifty Villages: For the whole Country was anciently divided into three Provinces, North-Wales, South-Wales and Weſt-Wales; each of theſe again were ſubdivided into Cantreds, and every Cantred into Commotes: The Word is alſo taken for a great Seigniory, or Lordſhip, which may include one, or ſeveral Manours.

Commotion, (Lat.) Tumult, Uproar, Hurly-burly.

Communa or Communia Paſturæ, (Law-word) the Common of Paſture.

Communance or Commaunce, a Title formerly given to the Commoners, or Tenants and Inhabitants that had the Right of Common, or Commoning in open Fields, or Woods.

Communare, (old Latin Law-term) to enjoy the Right of Common.

Commune, the ſame as Commonalty. Which See.

To Commune, to talk, or diſcourſe together.

Commune Concilium Regni Angliæ, the Common Council of the King or Queen and People of England Aſſembled in Parliament. See Parliament.

Communia Placita non tenenda in Scaccario, a Writ directed to the Treaſurer and Barons of the Exchequer, forbidding them to hold Plea between two common Perſons in that Court, where neither of them belong to it.

Communicable, that may be communicated, or imparted.

Communicant, one that receives the Communion, or the Lord's Supper.

To Communicate, to partake of that Holy Sacrament, to be of the ſame Communion: Alſo to impart to, to tell or ſhew, to diſcover or reveal.

Communication, the Act of Communicating; Intercourſe, Converſe, Conference. In a Law-ſenſe, a Diſcourſe between two, or more Parties, without coming to any perfect Agreement, upon which no Action can be grounded.

Communicative, ready to Communicate, ſociable, free and open to diſcloſe one's Heart.

Communi Cuſtodia, was a Writ which lay for a Lord, whoſe Tenant holding by Knight-Service, happen'd to die and leave his eldeſt Son under Age, againſt a Stranger that ſhould enter the Land and obtain the Ward of the Body: But this Writ is now become of no Uſe, ſince Wardſhips with their Dependances are taken away by Stat. 12 Car. 2.

Communion, the Union of ſeveral Perſons in the ſame Faith, Fellowſhip; alſo the Bleſſed Sacrament of the Lord's Supper.

Communitas Regni, (in our ancient Hiſtorians and Records) the Community of the Kingdom; that is to ſay, the Barons and Tenants in Capite, or Military Men, who in old Times were ſolely comprehended under that Title.

Community, the having things in Common; Partnerſhip: Alſo a Body of Men united in Civil Society for their mutual Advantage; as a Corporation, the Inhabitants of a Town, the Companies of Tradeſmen, &c.

Commutation, a bartering, or changing one thing for another: Alſo a Figure in Rhetorick; as We muſt eat to live, not live to eat.

Commutative, belonging to the Way of Exchange; as Commutative Juſtice, i.e. That Juſtice which ought to be done in Buying and Selling, Borrowing and Lending, performing Covenants, &c.

To Commute a Puniſhment, to change it for a Mulct, or Fine paid in Money; as it is practis'd in the Spiritual Court.

Comorth, (in old Statutes) a Contribution, or Collection of Money, formerly made at Marriages, and when young Prieſts ſaid their firſt Maſſes; alſo ſometimes to make Satiſfaction for Murders, or Felonies.

Compact, (Lat.) cloſe, well ſet, or joyn'd; alſo brief and pithy; as A compact Diſcourſe.

A Compact, a Covenant, a Bargain or Agreement.

To Compact, to clap cloſe together.

Compaction, a compacting, or joyning cloſe: In Philoſophy, the contracting, drawing together, or ſtraight'ning of a Subſtance, or Body, by its having leſs Parts, or by the more cloſe ſticking together of the Parts; and it is uſually oppos'd to Diffuſion.

Companage, (in old Records) any Meat, or other Victuals that is eaten with Bread.

Companion, (Fr.) Fellow, Mate, Partner.

Companion or Knight Companion of the Garter, a Member of that moſt Honourable Order of Knighthood.

Company, an Aſſembly, or Meeting, a Society, or Corporate Body: In the Art of War, a ſmall Body of Foot Commanded by a Captain.

Independent Company or Troop, a Company of Foot-Soldiers, or a Troop of Horſe that is not imbody'd in a Regiment.

Companies of Merchants, are either, 1. Societies in Joynt-ſtocks; as the Morea-Company, Eaſt-India Company, and Greenland-Company: Or 2 regulated Companies; as thoſe of Hamburgh, Turkey, Eaſtland and Muſcovy.

Comparable, that may be compared; like.

Comparates, (in Logick) things compar'd one with another; as Man is like a Bubble.

Comparative, capable of, or that implies Compariſon.

Comparative Degree, (in Grammar.) is the middle Degree of Compariſon, being that which exceeds the Poſitive, but comes ſhort of the Superlative, which is often expreſs'd in Engliſh, by adding the Word More to the Adjective in its natural, or ordinary Signification; as Pulchrior, fairer or more fair, Sapientior wiſer, or more wiſe, &c.

To Compare, to examine one thing by another, to liken.

Compariſon, a Comparing; alſo Proportion, Reſemblance, Agreeableneſs: In Grammar, a varying the Senſe of an Adjective, with reſpect to Degree; thus, good, better, beſt, are the three Degrees of Compariſon of that Word.

Compartment or Compartiment, (Ital.) an equal, or proportionable Diviſion in Building, a particular Square, or ſome Device mark'd out in ſome ornamental Part of a Building: Alſo a regular, orderly Diſpoſition of agreeable Figures about any Picture, Map, Draught, &c. for its better Ornament: Alſo a Bed, Border, or Knot in a Garden.

Compaſs, the extent of a thing round about, or on all Sides.

Compaſs or Mariners-Compaſs, a moveable Inſtrument of vaſt Uſe in Navigation, Surveying, Dialling, and many other Parts of the Mathematicks: It is a Circle drawn on a round piece of Paſte-board, call'd the Fly, and divided into four Quadrants repreſenting the four Cardinal Winds, or principal Points, viz. Eaſt, Weſt, North, and South, and each Quarter ſubdivided into eight other equal Parts, making in all 32 Rhumbs, or Points: This Card hangs Horizontally on a Pin ſet upright, and under it is fix'd a Needle, or Iron-wire touch'd with a Load-ſtone, which keeps the Lilly, or Northern Point always towards the North, and thereby directs the Steers-man how to keep the Ship in her Courſe.

Of theſe Inſtruments there are three ſorts in Uſe at Sea, viz. 1. The Meridional Compaſs, which is the common one, 2. The Dark Compaſs, which is us'd in ſteering by Candle-light, becauſe its Fly has the Points mark'd in Black and White, without any other Colours. 3. The Variation-Compaſs, which ſhews how much the Common Compaſs varies from the exact Points of North and South.

To Compaſs, to ſurround, to go about; to gain, or bring about, to contrive.

Compaſs-Callipers, an Inſtrument us'd by Gunners, which reſembles two Semi-circles, having a Handle and Joynt like a pair of Compaſſes; but the Points are blunt, and may be open'd at Pleaſure, for the diſparting of a piece of Ordinance: Alſo an Inſtrument made Uſe of by Gagers. See Callipers.

Compaſs-Dial, a kind of ſmall Dial fitted in a Box for the Pocket, which ſhews the Hour of the Day by the Direction of a touch'd Needle; the Dial being turn'd about, till the Style, or Cock ſtand directly over the Needle, and point up to the Northward; but theſe can never be very exact by reaſon of the Variation of the Needle it ſelf.

Compaſſes or Pair of Compaſſes, a Mathematical Inſtrument, commonly made Uſe of in the drawing of Figures, eſpecially Circles.

Compaſſes of Proportion, an Inſtrument that ſerves to divide Lines and Circles into proportional Parts at one opening, and is very uſeful for the reducing, or inlarging of Maps, or Draughts. The French ſometimes call a Sector by this Name, the Compaſs of Proportion.

Beam-Compaſſes, and Draught-Compaſſes. See Beam and Draught.

Compaſſion, (Lat.) Fellow-feeling, Pity, Mercy.

Compaſſionate, apt to be mov'd with Compaſſion.

Compatibility, (Fr.) Agreeableneſs.

Compatible, that can agree, or ſubſiſt with another thing.

Compatriot, (Lat.) one of the ſame Country, a Fellow-Citizen.

Compeer, (Fr.) a Companion, or Fellow, a Goſſip, or Godfather. In ſome Parts of England, young Men invited together to Weddings, are alſo call'd Compeers.

To Compel, (Lat.) to conſtrain, or force.

Compellation, a calling by Name, a friendly Salutation.

Compendious, abridged, ſhort or brief.

Compendium, an Abridgment, or ſhort Abſtract.

To Compenſate, to recompence, or make Amends for.

Compenſation, Recompence, Satisfaction, or Requital.

Comperendination, a deferring, or putting off from Day to Day: In the Roman Law, a Delay of the Action, or Pleading, till the third Day following: An Adjournment, or putting off till further time.

Compertorium, (Lat.) a Judicial Inqueſt in the Civil Law made by Delegates, or Commiſſioners, to find out, or relate the Truth of a Cauſe.

Competence or Competency, a ſufficient Eſtate, Stock of Learning, &c. In a Law-ſenſe, the Power, or Capacity of a Judge, for the taking Cogniſance of a Matter.

Competent, convenient, ſufficient, proper for the Purpoſe, duly qualified.

Competible, ſuitable, fit, or agreeable to.

Competition, canvaſſing, or ſuing for an Office, &c. Rivalſhip.

Competitour, a Rival, one who ſues for the ſame thing that another does.

Compilation or Compilement, Compiling, Collection.

To Compile, to collect or gather from ſeveral Authors, to amaſs or heap together; as To compile a Dictionary.

Compitalia, (Lat.) certain Feaſts kept by the old Romans in the Months of January and May; during which they offer'd Sacrifices in all the Croſs-ways, both of the City and Country, to the Lares, or Houſehold-Gods, the Protectors of their Families.

Complacency, a being well pleas'd with, or taking Delight in a thing.

Complainant, one that prefers a Complaint, a Plaintiff at Law.

Complaiſance, (Fr.) a pleaſing Behaviour, or obliging Carriage; a courteous Compliance, or Submiſſion to the Judgment, or Will of another.

Complaiſant, that is of an obliging Humour, civil, courteous.

Complement, (Lat.) a filling up, or perfecting that which wants; a Supply, an Accompliſhment, the Number which a whole Summ amounts to.

Complement of any Arch of a Circle or of any Angle, (in Geom.) is ſo much as that Arch, or Angle wants of 90 Degrees, to make it a Quadrant.

Complement of the Courſe, (in Navigat.) is the Number of Points the Courſe wants of 90 Degrees, or eight Points, viz. of a Quarter of the Compaſs.

Complement of the Courtin, (in Fortif.) is that part of the Courtin, which, being wanting, is the Demi-gorge, or the Remainder of the Courtin, after its Flank is taken away, to the Angle of the Gorge.

Complement of the Line of Defence, is the Remainder of the Line of Defence, after you have taken away the Angle of the Flank.

Complements in a Parallelogram, the two leſſer Parallelograms, which are made by drawing two Right-lines parallel to each Side of the Figure, through a given Point in the Diagonal.

Complete or Compleat, perfect, full, accompliſhed; alſo fine, neat, ſpruce.

To Complete, to make complete, or perfect.

Completion, an Accompliſhing, Fulfilling, or Finiſhing; Performance.

Complex, compound, gathered or joyned together; as A Complex Body of Laws: In Logick, it is the uniting of ſeveral Notions; and the Truth or Falſehood of thoſe Notions ſo united is ſaid To be complex.

Complex Diſeaſes, are Diſtempers that cannot be ſeparated, as the Pleuriſy and Feaver.

Complex Terms, (in Logick) ſuch as are compounded of ſimple, or ſingle ones, which are call'd Incomplex Terms.

Complexio, or Complicatio, (Lat.) a Rhetorical Figure, the ſame as Symploce; which See.

Complexion, the Colour of the Face, the Natural Conſtitution, or Temperature of the Body.

Complexional, belonging to the Complexion.

Complexioned, tempered; as A Body well complexioned.

Complexure, a joyning, or gathering together.

Complexus, (Lat. in Anat.) a Muſcle of the Head, which ſerves to move it backwards, and is alſo call'd Trigeminus, becauſe it apparently has a threefold Beginning. See Trigeminus.

Complicated, wrapt up together, intermingled or joyned with.

Complicated Wound. See Wound.

Complication, a Mixture, Collection, or Maſs of Things joyned together; as A Complication of Crimes, Miſeries, Figures, &c.

Complication of Diſeaſes, a Collection of ſeveral Diſtempers that ſeize on the Body at the ſame time, eſpecially if they depend one upon another.

Complice or Accomplice, a Partner in an ill Action, a Fellow-Rogue.

Compliments, (Fr.) kind obliging Words and Expreſſions, with other Civilities in Behaviour.

Complines, the laſt of the Canonical Hours among the Romaniſts, the cloſing Prayers of their Evening-Service.

To Complot, to plot together, to combine, or conſpire.

To Comply, to yield, or ſubmit to.

Componed, a Term in Heraldry, for Compounded. See Counter-componed.

To Comport, to agree, to demean or behave one's ſelf.

Comportment, Carriage, or Behaviour.

To Compoſe, (Lat.) to put together, to make or frame, to appeaſe or quiet; to repoſe or refreſh, to adjuſt or ſettle, to Compound or make up: In the Art of Printing, to ſet the Letters or Characters in order, according to the Original Copy: In Muſick, to make or ſet Tunes, Airs, &c.

Compoſed Baſtion. See Baſtion.

Compoſita, (Lat. in Phyſick), Medicines Compounded, or made up of ſeveral Simple Ones; as Electuaries, Ointments, Opiates, Plaiſters, Syrups, Waters, &c.

Compoſite, a Term in Grammar; as A Compoſite, or Compounded Word.

Compoſite or Compound Order, the fifth Order of Architecture, ſo nam'd, becauſe it is Compoſed or made up of the four other Orders, viz. Tuſcan, Dorick, Ionick and Corinthian: It is alſo call'd Italick and Roman, as being the Invention of the ancient Romans.

Compoſite Number. See Number.

Compoſitio, (Lat.) a Gramatical Figure, the ſame as Syntheſis; which See.

Compoſition, a Work compoſed in any Art or Science; the Compounding of Words in Grammar, a School-boy's Exerciſe: Alſo an Accommodation or Agreement, a coming to capitulate in War; alſo a mixture of ſeveral things, eſpecially of Drugs in a Medicine.

In the way of Trade, Compoſition, is when a Debtor, not being able to diſcharge his whole Debt, Compounds or Agrees with the Creditor, to pay him a certain Sum of Money to be taken inſtead of all that is due; for which part he obtains a Receipt in full, as for the whole Debt.

Compoſition Mathematical, or The Synthetical Method, is that which proceeds by certain Degrees or Steps, from known Quantities in the ſearch of unknown, and then Demonſtrates, That the Quantity ſo found will ſatisfy the Propoſition. See Syntheſis and Synthetical Method.

In Painting, Compoſition, is us'd in the ſame Senſe with Invention and Deſign. See Deſign.

Compoſition of Motion, (in Mechanicks) is the Compoſition of the ſeveral Directions or Declivities of Motion, whether equable or unequable.

Compoſition of Proportion, (in Mathem.) is the comparing the Sum of the Antecedent and Conſequent; with the Conſequent in two equal Ratio's; as ſuppoſe 4 . 8 : : 3 . 6 which is expreſs'd by Compoſition of Proportion, 12 . 8 : : as 9 to 6.

Compoſitor, a Printer's Compoſer; he that Compoſes the Characters and Matter, and makes all ready for the Preſs.

Compoſſible, an old barbarous Word taken to ſignify things that are capable of exiſting or being together; whereas ſuch as cannot exiſt together, are termed Incompoſſible things.

Compoſt or Compas, (in Huſbandry) Soil, or Dung for improving Land, Trees, &c.

Compoſure, any thing that is compoſed, or made up; alſo Compoſedneſs, or Calmneſs of Mind.

Compotation a Carouſing, or Drinking one with another.

Compote, (Fr. among Confectioners) Stewed Fruit; eſpecially Apples, Pears, Plums, &c. In Cookery, it is likewiſe a particular Way of Stewing Meat; as A Compote of Pigeons, &c.

Compound, (in Grammar) a Compounded Word.

Compound Addition. See Addition.

Compound Intereſt. See Intereſt.

Compound Number, (in Arithm.) is that which ſome Number, or Numbers may Meaſure beſides Unity; as 15 which is meaſur'd by 5 and 3; or 18 by 9 and 6 &c.

Compound Parts. See Diſſimilar Parts.

Compound Quantities, (in Algebra) ſuch as are joyn'd together by the Signs + and — and are expreſs'd either by more Letters than one, or elſe by the ſame Letters unequally repeated: Thus $a+b-c$ and $bd-b$ are Compound Quantities.

To Compound, to gather, or make up of ſeveral things or Ingredients; to come to an Agreement, eſpecially with Creditors for Debt.

Compounded, Compoſite, or Aggregated Flower of a Plant, is by the Herbaliſts counted ſuch a one as conſiſts of many little Flowers meeting together to make up one whole one; each of which has its Stylus, Stamina, and Sticking Seed, all contain'd within one and the ſame Calyx, or Cup.

To Comprehend, (Lat.) to contain, or include; to underſtand, perceive, or have the Knowledge of.

Comprehenſible, that may be comprehended.

Comprehenſion, the Comprehending, or Underſtanding of a thing: Alſo Compriſal, Compaſs; as An Act of Comprehenſion, i. e. an Act of Parliament that takes in all Parties.

Comprehenſive, containing much, large, very Significant, full.

Compreſs, (in Surgery) a kind of Bolſter made of folded Linnen, to be laid on a Wound, or the Orifice of a Vein, &c.

Compreſſion, a preſſing, ſqueezing, or thruſting cloſe.

To Comprint, (Law-Term) the Word properly ſignifies to print together; but is commonly taken for the Deceitful Printing of another's Copy, or Book, by Stealth, to the Prejudice of the rightful Proprietor.

To Compriſe, to contain, include, compaſs, or take in.

Comprobation, (Lat.) a mutual allowing, or approving.

Compromiſe, (Law-word) a mutual Promiſe of ſeveral Parties, to refer the ending of their Controverſy, to the Judgment of Arbitrators; a Bond, or Engagement to ſtand to the Arbitration, or Award of the Umpire.

To Compromiſe, to conſent to a Reference: In a Figurative Senſe, to put to the hazard of being cenſur'd; as It behov'd him not to compromiſe his Honour and Reputation.

Compt, (Lat.) polite, fine, neat; as A compt Diſcourſe.

To Comptroll. See To Controll.

Compulſion, Conſtraint, or Force.

Compunction, Pricking, Remorſe or trouble of Mind, for an Offence or Fault committed.

Compurgator, (Law-word) one that by Oath juſtifies another's Innocency.

Computation, a computing, or reckoning; an Account: In Common Law, it is us'd for the true and indifferent Conſtruction of Time; ſo that neither Party ſhall do wrong to each other, nor the Determination of Times referred at large, be taken one way or other, but be Computed according to the juſt Cenſure of the Law.

To Compute, to reckon, or caſt up.

Computiſt, an Accountant.

Computo reddendo, a Writ forcing a Bailiff, Chamberlain, or Receiver, to give up his Accounts: It alſo lies for the Executors of Executors, and againſt the Guardian in Socage, for Waſte made during the Heir's Nonage.

Comrade. See Camarade.

Conabel, and old Law-word for convenient, or fit.

Conarium or Glandula Pinealis, (in Anat.) a part of the Brain that hangs in the ſmall Cavity call'd the Anus, in the hinder part of the third Ventricle, and takes Name from its Shape reſembling a Pine-cone.

Conatus recedendi ab axe motus, (in Philoſ. and Mechan.) is the endeavour which any Natural Body moved circularly has to recede or fly off from the Center, or Axis of its Motion.

Concani, a People that anciently inhabited the Province of Conaught in Ireland.

Concatenation, a chaining, or linking together; as A Concatenation of Cauſes, a Term us'd in Philoſophy, to expreſs that an Effect is the reſult of a long Chain of Cauſes linked to, or depending one upon another.

Concave, hollow on the in-ſide, or vaulted like an Oven: It is alſo ſometimes taken for Hollowneſs; and in Gunnery, for the Bore of a piece of Ordinance.

Concave Cylinder. See Cylinder.

Concave Glaſſes, ſuch as are ground hollow, and are uſually of a Spherical or Round Figure, tho' they may be of any other; as Parabolical, &c.

Concavity, the in-ſide Hollowneſs of a round Body.

To Conceal, to keep cloſe, or ſecret.

Concealers, a Law-Term, ſignifying by Antiphraſis, or contrary ſpeaking, Men that find out conceal'd Lands, which are privily kept from the Queen, or State, by Common Perſons, who have nothing to ſhew for them.

Concealment, the Act of Concealing.

To Concede, to yield, grant, or allow.

Conceit, Opinion, or Fancy.

Conceited, affected, fantaſtical, proud, puffed up.

Conceivable, that may be conceived.

To Conceive, to be with Child or to breed, to imagine or apprehend, to Comprehend or Underſtand, to frame an Idea.

Concent, a Conſort of Voices, an Accord, or Agreement of Parts in Muſick; a Singing in Tune.

To Concenter, to meet in the ſame Center.

Concentration, (according to Dr. Grew) is the higheſt Degree of Mixture, as when two or more Atoms or Particles of the Mixture, do touch by the receiving and thruſting of one into the other.

Concentrick, that has one and the ſame Common Center; as Concentrick Circles, or other Figures.

Concentrick Orbs. See Orbs Concentrick.

Concept, a ſet Form; a Term us'd in Publick Acts.

Conceptio, (Lat.) a Grammatical Figure otherwiſe call'd Syllepſis; which See.

Conception, the Product of the Mind, as a Thought, Notion, or Principle; the Simple Idea or apprehenſion that a Man has of any Thing, without proceeding to affirm or deny any Point relating thereto; alſo a Conceiving with Child, or breeding.

Falſe Conception. See Falſe.

Concern, Affair or Buſineſs, a matter of Importance; alſo a being concerned and affected.

To Concern, to regard or belong to, to intereſt or trouble one's ſelf with.

Concerned, intereſted, troubled, affected with.

Concernment, the ſame as Concern.

To Concert, to Contrive, or Debate together about a Buſineſs, to lay Deſigns in order to bring it to paſs.

Conceſſio, a Rhetorical Figure. See Synchoreſis.

Conceſſion, a granting, or yielding; a Grant, Permiſſion, or Allowance.

Concha, (Gr.) a Shell-fiſh with two Shells; as an Oiſter, a Scallop, &c. Alſo a little Meaſure containing two Spoonfuls, or ſix Drams. In Anatomy, the winding of the Cavity, or Hollow of the inner part of the Ear.

Conchites, a Stone reſembling a Shell-fiſh.

Conchoid, (in Geom.) the Name of a certain Curve, or crooked Line, firſt Invented by Nicomedes.

Conchyle or Conchylium, all ſorts of Shell-fiſh.

To Conciliate, to get, to procure, to gain, or win; as This ſingle Action conciliated to him the Love of all good Men.

Conciliatio, (Lat.) a Figure in Rhetorick. See Synœceoſis.

Conciliatory, apt to conciliate.

Concionator, a Preacher, or Publick Diſcourſer: In our ancient Writers, a Common Council-man, a Mot-worthy, a Freeman call'd to the Hall or Aſſembly.

Conciſe, ſhort, brief.

Conciſion, a Scripture-Word us'd Sarcaſtically, or by way of Scoffing for Circumciſion. Phil. 3. 2.

Conclave, originally ſignifies an inner Chamber or Cloſet, and is more eſpecially taken for that Room in the Vatican, where the Roman Cardinals meet to chuſe a Pope; or the whole Aſſembly of Cardinals ſhut up there for that purpoſe.

Conclaviſt, one that attends a Cardinal, during his abode in the Conclave.

To Conclude, to finiſh, make an end of, or cloſe; to infer, gather by Reaſon, or draw a Conſequence, to reſolve upon, or Determine.

Concluſion, the end, cloſe, or Iſſue of a thing; a Conſequence or Inference: In Logick, the laſt of the three Propoſitions of a Syllogiſm: Alſo a Term us'd in Law, when a Man by his own Act upon Record, has concluded, or charg'd himſelf with a Duty, or other thing: It is alſo taken for the end or latter part of any Declaration, Bar, Replication, &c.

Concluſive, that ſerves to conclude.

Concomitant, accompanying, going along with.

A Concomitant, a Companion, Attendant, or Follower.

Concord, Agreement, Union, good Underſtanding: In Common Law, an Agreement between Parties that intend the levying of a Fine of Lands one to another, in what manner the Land ſhall paſs: Alſo an Agreement made upon any Treſpaſs committed between ſeveral Parties.

In Muſick, Concords, are certain Intervals, or Diſtances between Sounds, which delight the Ear, when heard at the ſame time: Theſe Concords are the Third, Fifth, Sixth and Eighth, together with their Octaves, as the Tenth, Thirteenth, Fifteenth, &c. They are alſo of two ſorts, viz. Perfect and Imperfect.

Perfect Concords, are the Fifth and Eighth with all their Octaves. Imperfect Concords, are the Third and Sixth with their Octaves: The Imperfect ones are likewiſe diſtinguiſh'd into the greater and leſſer Third; as alſo the greater and leſſer Sixth.

To Concord, to agree together.

Concordance, a general Index, or Table, in Alphabetical Order, of all the Words contain'd in the Holy Bible.

Concordant, agreeing together.

Concordat, an Agreement made in all manner of Eccleſiaſtical Matters, eſpecially upon the Reſignation or Exchange of Benefices.

To Concorporate, to mix or mingle together in one Body, to incorporate, or imbody.

Concourſe, a running, or reſort of People to a Place; a meeting, or coming together.

Concrete Numbers, (in Arithm.) are thoſe that are apply'd to expreſs any particular Subject; as 3 Men, 4 Pounds $\frac{2}{3}$ of a Shilling, &c. whereas if nothing be joyn'd with the Number, 'tis taken abſtractedly or univerſally: Thus 4 Signifies an Aggregate, or Summ of four Unites, let thoſe Unites be Men, Pounds, Horſes, or what you pleaſe.

A Concrete, a thing grown together, or made up of ſeveral Ingredients: In Logick, any Quality conſider'd with its Subject; as Album a white thing: Thus if we ſay Snow is white, then we ſpeak of Whiteneſs in the Concrete: And in this reſpect it is contradiſtinguiſh'd from Abſtract, when the Quality is taken into Conſideration ſeparately; as Albedo, Whiteneſs, which may be in Paper, in Ivory, and in other things, as well as in Snow.

In Natural Philoſophy and Chimiſtry, Concrete, implies a Body made up of different Principles and is therefore much of the ſame Signification as the Word Mix'd: Thus Antimony is a Natural Concrete, or a Mix'd Body Compounded in the Bowels of the Earth; and Soap is a Factitious Concrete, or a Body mix'd together by Art.

Concreted, congealed, or clotted.

Concretion, a growing, or gathering together; a congealing or thickning, a growing hard: In a Philoſophical Senſe, the Uniting together of ſeveral very ſmall Parts of a Natural Body into Concrete or ſenſible Maſſes, by which means it becomes ſo and ſo figured and determined, and is endued with ſuch and ſuch Properties: In Pharmacy, or the Apothecaries Art, Concretion, is a thick'ning of any boil'd Liquor or Juice into a more Solid Maſs.

Concubaria, (in old Latin Records) a Fold, a Penn, or Place where Cattel lie together.

Concubinage, the keeping of a Concubine, or Miſs; Fornication, Whoredom. In a Legal Senſe, an Exception againſt a Woman that Sues for her Dower, whereby it is alledg'd, That She is not a Wife lawfully marry'd to the Party, in whoſe Lands She ſeeks to be endow'd but his Concubine.

Concubine, a Woman that lies and lives with a Man, as if ſhe were his lawful Wife; an Harlot, or Strumpet.

† Conculcation, a ſtamping upon, a treading, or trampling under Foot.

Concupiſcence, an over-eager, or earneſt Deſire, a coveting; eſpecially an inordinate Deſire of the Fleſh.

Concupiſcible, as The Concupiſcible Appetite or Faculty, i. e. that affection of the Mind, which ſtirs up to covet or deſire any thing.

To Concur, (properly to run with others) to conſpire, to help, to agree with one in ſomething, to give one's Conſent.

Concurrence, Meeting, Aſſiſtance, Approbation.

Concurrent, joyntly conſenting, or agreeing to.

A Concurrent, a Competitour, or Rival, one that ſtands for a thing with another,

Concurring or Congruent Figures, (in Geom.) are ſuch as being laid one upon another, will exactly meet and cover one another. Thus it is a received Axiom, with reſpect to Plain, or Superficial Figures, Quod quæ ſibi mutuo congruunt ſunt æqualia, i. e. thoſe Figures which will exactly cover one another are equal.

Concuſſion, a ſhaking, or jumbling together: Alſo Publick Extortion, when an Officer, or Magiſtrate pillages the People, by Threats, or Pretence of Authority.

Concuſſionary, an Extortioner, one that practiſes ſuch kind of Extortion, or Violence.

To Cond or Conn, (Sea-term) to conduct, or guide a Ship in the right Courſe; for he that Conns ſtands a-loft with a Compaſs before him, and gives the Word of Direction to the Man at the Helm how to Steer.

If the Ship go before the Wind, or betwixt two Sheats, the Words of Art are, Port the Helm, i. e. put the Helm on the Left-hand, or Left-ſide of the Ship; or Starboard the Helm, i. e. put it to the Right; and then the Ship will always go the contrary Way. If the Conder ſay, Helm a Mid-ſhip, he would have the Ship go right before the Wind, or directly between her two Sheats. If the Ship Sail by a Wind, or on a Quarter-wind, the Word is a-loof! keep your Loof! fall not off! veer no more! keep her too! touch the Wind! have a care of the Lee-latch! All which Expreſſions are of the ſame Signification, only imply that the Steers-man ſhould keep the Ship near the Wind: On the contrary, to make her go more large, or more before the Wind, the uſual Phraſes are, Eaſe the Helm! No near! Bear up! But if the Conder ſay Steady, his meaning is that the Ship ſhould he kept from making Yaws, or going in and out; and when he would have her go juſt as ſhe does, he cries Keep her thus, thus! &c.

To Condemn, (Lat.) to Sentence one to Death; to blame, diſapprove, or diſlike.

Condemnable, that deſerves to be Condemned.

Condemnation, Condemning, Sentence.

Condenſantia, (Lat.) Medicines that are of a thickening Quality.

Condenſation, the Act of Condenſing, thickening, or hardening: In a Philoſophical Senſe, it is, when a Natural Body takes up leſs Space, or is confined within leſs Dimenſions than it was before.

To Condenſate or Condenſe, to thicken, to make thick, or to grow thick: In Philoſophy, to bring the Parts of a Body into a narrower Compaſs; the oppoſite Term being to Rarify.

Conder, one that Conds, or gives Directions to the Stears-man for the Guiding, or Governing of a Ship. Conders are alſo thoſe that ſtand upon high Places near the Sea-coaſt, to make Signs to the Fiſhers, with Boughs, &c. in their Hands, ſhewing which way the Shole of Herrings paſſes; which they can more eaſily diſcern from thence, by a kind of Blew Colour the Fiſh make in the Water, than thoſe that are in the Ships and Boats: They are otherwiſe call'd Hewers and Balkers.

To Condeſcend, (Lat.) to comply, ſubmit, or yield to, to vouchſafe.

Condeſcendency, the Act of Condeſcending, or Complying; Complaiſance, or Compliance.

Condign, that is according to Merit, Worthy, Suitable, Befitting.

Condiſciple, a School-fellow, or Fellow-ſtudent.

Condited, ſeaſoned.

Conditement, a Compoſition of Conſerves, Powders and Spice, made up in form of an Electuary, with a convenient quantity of Syrup.

Condition, the Nature, State, or Circumſtances of a Perſon, or Thing; Quality, or Degree; alſo an Article, Clauſe, or Proviſo of a Covenant, Treaty, &c. According to the Law-Definition, it is a Bridle, or Reſtraint joyn'd to a thing; ſo that by the Non-performance of it, the Party ſhall receive Prejudice and Loſs, but by the Performance, Benefit and Advantage.

To Condition with one, to make a Bargain, or Agreement with him.

Conditional, belonging to, or implying certain Conditions, or Terms.

Conditional Propoſitions, (in Logick) are ſuch as conſiſt of two Parts joyn'd together by the Particle if, of which the firſt, including the Condition, is call'd the Antecedent, and the other the Conſequent: Thus, If the Soul be Spiritual, it is Immortal, is a Conditional Propoſition, in which the Clauſe, If the Soul be Spiritual, is the Antecedent, and the other It is Immortal, is the Conſequent.

Conditioned, endued with certain Conditions, or Qualities.

To Condole, to expreſs one's Sorrow to another, for ſome Loſs of his.

Condolency, the Act of Condoling, or taking ſhare in another's Grief.

Condonation, a Pardoning, or Forgiving.

Condrillæ or Condrillon, (Gr.) an Herb in Stalk and Flower like wild Endive; wild Succory, Dandelion.

To Conduce, (Lat.) to avail, to help, to contribute to.

Conducible or Conducive, that conduces, profitable, advantageous.

Conduct, Manage, or Management, the Command of an Army; Fore-caſt or Diſcretion, Deportment, or Behaviour.

To Conduct, to guide, lead, bring along, or carry.

Conductor or Conductreſs, he, or ſhe that Conducts, a Leader, or Guide; a Manager.

Conductor, (Lat.) a Tenant that Rents a Houſe, or Land; an Undertaker of Work for Hire: Alſo a hollow Inſtrument which Surgeons thruſt into the Bladder, to direct another Inſtrument into it, for drawing out the Stone.

Conduit, (Fr.) a Water-courſe, a Paſſage, or Pipe, for conveying Water to ſeveral Places.

Condyloma, (Gr. in Anat.) the knitting, or joyning of the Joints of an Animal Body: Alſo a kind of hard brawny Swelling in the Fundament, which proceeds from black Humours ſettling in that Part, and is ſometimes accompany'd with an Inflammation.

Condylus, a Knuckle, a Joynt in the Elbow, Knee, Ancle, &c. Condyli are alſo the ſmall Riſings, or Knobs of Bones, otherwiſe call'd Productions.

Cone, (in Geom.) a Solid Figure, conſiſting of ſtraight Lines that ariſe from a Circular Baſe, and grow narrow by Degrees, till they end in a Point at the top, directly over the Center of the Baſe. This Figure is produc'd by the turning of the Plane of a Right-angled Triangle, round the Perpendicular Axis, or Leg: So that if the Leg be equal to the Baſe, the Solid produced is a Right-Cone; if it be leſs, it is an Acute-angled Cone; and when greater, an Obtuſe-angled Cone.

A Cone is alſo ſaid to be Right, with reſpect to the Poſition of its Axis, i. e. when it is Perpendicular to the Horizon; but if the Axis be not ſo, 'tis call'd an Oblique Cone: And a Cone is termed ed Scalenous, when one Side of it is longer than the other.

Cone of Rays, (in Opticks) the Rays of Light that fall from a certain Point in any Object on the whole Surface of a Glaſs, and have the Glaſs for its Baſe.

Cone or Coine, (Sax.) an Account, or Reckoning: Whence a young Woman at Fourteen, or Fifteen Years, is judg'd by the Law, to be of a competent Age, to keep Cone and Key of the Houſe, i. e. to take upon her the Management of Houſhold-affairs.

To Confabulate, to talk together, to tell Stories.

Confabulation, Confabulating, familiar Diſcourſing, or Talking together.

Confarreatio, (Lat.) a Ceremony in Eating together a Cake of Wheat, anciently us'd among the Romans at Marriages.

Confecta, Confits, as Seeds, Almonds, Cinnamon, &c. Cruſted over with Powder-ſugar.

Confection, a Phyſical Compoſition of Powders, Gums, Sugar, Honey, Syrups, &c. made up into one Subſtance; either dry as Lozenges, or wet, as Opiated Conſerves, Antidotes, &c.

Confectioner, a Comfit-maker, a Maker or Seller of Sweet-meats.

Confederacy or Confederation, the ent'ring into an Alliance, or League, or the League it ſelf. In a Law-ſenſe, it is when two, or more Perſons joyn together, to do any Hurt, or Dammage to another, or to do any Unlawful Act.

To Confederate, to Unite into a Confederacy, to Combine, or Plot together.

Confederates or Allies, Princes, or States enter'd into a ſtrict Union one with another for their mutual Defence.

To Confer, to Diſcourſe, Talk, or Adviſe together, to Communicate; to Collate, Give, or Beſtow, to Compare.

Conference, a Diſcourſe between ſeveral Perſons, about any Affair, a Talking together, a Parley.

To Confeſs, to acknowledge, own, or allow; to hear the Confeſſion of a Penitent, to declare one's Sins in Order to Abſolution.

Confeſſion, Confeſſing, Acknowledgment, Declaration: Auricular Confeſſion, a Confeſſion of Sins made to a Prieſt.

Confeſſion of Offence, (in Common Law) is when a Priſoner Arraign'd at the Bar for Treaſon, or Felony, owns the Indictment to be true, and pleads Guilty. There is alſo another kind of Confeſſion made by a Felon before a Coroner in a Church, or other Privileged Place; upon which the Offender by the ancient Law was to abjure the Realm.

Confeſſionary, the Confeſſion-chair, or Seat, in which a Prieſt ſits to hear Confeſſion.

Confeſſour, (among the Primitive Chriſtians) a Perſon that conſtantly made Confeſſion of the Faith, even in the midſt of the moſt cruel Perſecutions.

Confeſſour or Father-Confeſſour, a Popiſh Prieſt that has Power to hear the Confeſſions of Penitents, and to give them Abſolution.

To Confide, to Truſt, or put Truſt in; to Rely, or Depend upon.

Confidence, Boldneſs, Aſſurance, Sturdineſs, Preſumption.

Confident, Bold, Daring, Preſumptuous.

A Confident, a truſty Boſom-friend that may be confided in, and entruſted with the greateſt Secrets.

Configuration, a forming, faſhioning, or making of a like Figure. In Aſtrology, the Conjunction, or Mutual Aſpects of Stars.

To Confine, to tie to a certain Place, to Impriſon, to Reſtrain or Curb; to border upon, to abut to.

Confinement, Impriſonment, Slavery, Reſtraint.

Confines, the Limits, Marches, Frontiers, or Borders of a Country, &c.

To Confirm, to ſtrengthen, or eſtabliſh, to aſcertain, or make good, to back with new Proofs, or Reaſons; alſo to Adminiſter the Church-Rite of Confirmation.

Confirmation, the Act of Confirming, Strengthning, making good, &c. Alſo a Holy Rite, or Ceremony of the Church, by which Baptized Perſons are Confirmed in the State of Grace. In a Law-ſenſe, a Conveyance of an Eſtate, or Right, by which a voidable Eſtate is made ſure, or unavoidable, or whereby a particular Eſtate is encreas'd.

Confirmed Cataract. See Cataract.

Confiſcate, a Law-word, ſignifying forfeited to the Publick Fiſque, or Royal Treaſury; for among the Romans, the Emperour's Treaſure was kept in Hampers, or Baskets, which in Latin are call'd Fiſci.

To Confiſcate, to ſeize upon, or take away Goods, as forfeited to the Queen's Exchequer, or Publick Treaſury.

Confiſcation, the Act of Confiſcating.

Confits. See Comfits.

Conflagration, a great Fire, or burning of Houſes.

Conflict, Fight, Skirmiſh, Bickering, Diſpute.

Confluence, Concourſe, or Reſort of People: Alſo the meeting of two Rivers, or the Place where they meet and mingle their Waters.

Conflux, a flowing together of the Humours of the Body, &c.

Conform, conformably, agreeably; as Conform to that.

To Conform, to make like to, to frame, faſhion, or ſuit; to comply with.

Conformable, that is of the like Form, or Faſhion, agreeable, ſuitable.

Conformatio Membrorum, (Lat.) a Rhetorical Figure, when a Perſon abſent, or dead, or any thing to which Nature has deny'd Speech is brought in ſpeaking.

Conformation, properly the ſhaping, faſhioning, framing, or ordering of a thing. In Anatomy, it is taken for the Figure, or Diſpoſition of the Parts of a Humane Body; and by ſome Writers in the Art of Phyſick, for an Eſſential Property of Health, or Sickneſs.

Conformiſt, one that conforms, more eſpecially to the Government and Diſcipline of the Church of England.

Conformity, Conformableneſs, Agreeableneſs, Reſemblance; alſo Compliance, chiefly with the Diſcipline and Ceremonies of the Eſtabliſhed Church.

Confortativa, (Lat.) Medicines that comfort and ſtrengthen the Heart.

To Confound, to mingle, jumble, or huddle together; to diſorder, to confute, puzzle, or perplex; to abaſh, or put out of Countenance; to diſmay, or make aſhamed; to deſtroy, or waſte.

Confoundedly, horribly, after a terrible manner.

Confratry, (Fr.) a Fraternity, Brotherhood, or Society, united together, eſpecially upon a Religious Account.

Confreres, (in old Statutes) Brothers in a Religious Houſe, Fellows of one Society.

To Confront, to bring Face to Face, to oppoſe, to compare.

Confuſed, mixed together, Perplexed, put out of Order.

Confuſed Viſion. See Viſion.

Confuſion, a Jumbling together, Diſorder, Hurly-burly, or Diſturbance, a being Abaſhed, or out of Countenance; Ruin, or Deſtruction: In a Chymical Senſe, a mixture of Liquors, or fluid Things.

Confutation, a Confuting, or Diſproving of what was ſpoken.

To Confute, to Convince in Reaſoning; to Diſprove, to Anſwer Objections, to Overthrow, or Baffle.

Conge, (Fr.) Licenſe, Permiſſion, Leave: In Architecture, Conges, are the Rings, or Ferrels heretofore us'd about the Ends of Wooden Pillars, to keep them from ſplitting, and afterwards imitated in Stone-work. See Apophyge.

Conge d' accorder, leave to Accord, or Agree; an Expreſſion us'd in the Statute of Fines. 18 E. 3.

Conge d' eſlire, (in Common Law) is the King's Royal Permiſſion to a Dean and Chapter, in time of Vacation, to chooſe a Biſhop; or to an Abbey, or Priory of his own Foundation, to chooſe the Abbot, or Prior.

Congeable, Lawful, Lawfully done, or done with Leave; as The Entry of the Diſſeiſee is Congeable.

To Congeal, to Freez or be Frozen, to thicken, or to grow thick as Ice does. In Chymiſtry, to let ſome Matter that is melted fix, or grow into a Conſiſtence; as when Metal is ſuffer'd to cool, after it has been melted in a Crucible: Or elſe when Wax, Fat, Butter, &c. are taken from the Fire, and ſet by to cool.

Congealable, that may be Congealed.

Congee, a low Bow, or Reverence.

Congelation, a Congealing, or Freezing; a Thickening, or Settling.

Congenial, that is of the ſame Stock, or Kind.

Congeniality, a likeneſs of Genius, Inſtinct, or natural Diſpoſition.

† Congeon, a Dwarf, a Perſon of low Stature.

Conger or Congrus, (Gr.) the Conger, a great kind of Sea-eel, which is of a hard Subſtance and Digeſtion.

Congers. See Congreſs.

Congeries, (Lat.) a Heap, a Pile, a Hoard: In Natural Philoſophy, a Collection, or joyning together of many Bodies, or Particles in one Maſs, or Lump.

Congeſtion, (Lat.) a heaping, or gathering together: In Surgery, a ſettling of Humours in any part of the Body, which produces a Tumour, or Swelling by little and little, and almoſt inſenſibly, by reaſon of the ſlow Progreſs and Thickneſs of the Matter.

Congiarium, (Lat.) a certain Summ of Money which the Roman Emperours us'd to diſtribute from time to time, among the People by way of Largeſs.

Congius, an ancient Meaſure, containing about nine Pints, a Gallon.

Congius Romanus. See Metretes Syrius.

Conglobate or Conglobated, heaped, or gathered round together; a Term apply'd by Anatomiſts to ſuch Glands, or Kernels in an Animal Body, as are ſmooth in their Surface, and ſeem to be made up of one continued Subſtance; as thoſe of the Meſentery, and all others that ſerve to ſeparate the Juice, call'd Lympha from the Arterious Blood, and to return it by proper Veſſels.

Conglobation, a gathering round, or coming together in a Maſs, or Lump.

Conglomerate or Conglomerated, heaped, or wound up together: In Anatomy, Conglomerate Glands are thoſe that are uneven in their Surface, and made up as it were of many leſſer Kernels: Their Uſe is to ſeparate ſeveral ſorts of Juices from the Blood, as alſo to work and alter them, and to convey them by proper Channels to their peculiar Receptacles, or Apartments; as the Parotides, and Maxillary Glands which ſeparate the Saliva, or Spittle, and bring it into the Mouth.

Conglomeration, a rolling up into a Heap, a winding upon a Bottom.

To Conglutinate, to glue, knit, or joyn together.

Conglutination, a Conglutinating or Gluing, a Knitting, &c. In a Phyſical Senſe, a joyning of Bodies, by means of their oily, ſticky, and clammy Parts.

To Congratulate, to rejoyce with one for his good Fortune, to bid him Joy.

Congratulation, the Act of Congratulating.

Congregation, an Aſſembly, or Meeting together of People, more eſpecially for the performing of Divine Service: It is alſo apply'd to an Aſſembly of Cardinals appointed by the Pope, for the Management of any Affair: Alſo a Term made uſe of by Dr. Grew, to expreſs the leaſt Degree of Mixture, in which the Parts of the Mixt Body are inconſiſtent, and touch each other but in a Point; which Property, as he ſays, is peculiar to the Particles of Water, and all other Fluids.

Congregational, belonging to a Congregation.

Congreſs, a coming together, Meeting, or Rencounter; an Encount'ring: It is now generally taken for the Aſſembly, or Meeting together of the Deputies, or Plenipotentiaries of ſeveral Princes, to Treat about a Peace, or any other important Affair.

Congreſs or Congers, a particular Society of Book-ſellers, who put in Joynt Stocks for the Buying and Printing of Copies, and Trading for their common Advantage.

Congruence or Congruity, Conformity, Suitableneſs, Agreeableneſs; 'tis properly ſaid of a Theme, or Diſcourſe, in which there is no Fault committed contrary to Grammar-Rules.

Congruent, agreeable, ſuitable.

Congruity, (among Naturaliſts) is taken for a Relative Property of a Fluid Body, whereby any part of it is readily united with any other part, either of it ſelf, or of any other Similar Fluid, or Solid Body: And Incongruity is a Property by which it is hinder'd from uniting with any Solid, or Fluid Body that is Diſſimilar to it.

Congruity of Geometrical Figures. See Concurring.

Congruous, convenient, proper, meet, or fit.

Conical, (Gr. in Geom.) belonging to the Figure of a Cone; as Conick Sections, i. e. the three Sections, or Diviſions of a Cone, call'd Ellipſis, Hyperbola and Parabola; which ſee under thoſe Articles.

Conjectural, (Lat.) belonging to, or made up of Conjectures; that is only grounded upon Appearances, or upon probable Arguments.

Conjecture, Gueſs, probable Opinion, or Suppoſition.

To Conjecture, to judge, or gueſs at random, without any Demonſtration.

Coniferous, bearing Cones, or Clogs, a Term apply'd by Herbaliſts, to ſuch Trees, Shrubs, or Plants as bear a ſcaly Fruit of a Woody Subſtance, and of a kind of Conical Figure, containing many Seeds, which being ripe drop out of the ſeveral Cells, or Partitions of the Cone that then gape, or open for that purpoſe: Such are the Scotch,

Scotch Firr, the Pine, the common Alder, the Beech-tree, &c.

Coningeria, (in old Latin Records) a Coney-borough or Warren for Rabbets.

Coniſterium, (Gr. among the Ancients) a Place where Wreſtlers, after they were anointed with Oil, were beſprinkled with Duſt, that they might take the ſurer hold one of another.

To Conjoyn, (Lat.) to joyn or put together.

Coniſance. See Cognizance.

Conjugal, belonging to a marry'd Couple.

Conjugate Diameter, (in Geom.) is the ſhorteſt Axis or Diameter in an Ellipſis or Oval Figure.

Conjugate of the Hyperbola, is a Line drawn parallel to the Ordinates and thro' the Center or middle Point of the Tranſverſe Axis; which is ſometimes call'd the Second Axis, or Diameter.

To Conjugate, a Grammatical Term; as To Conjugate a Verb, i. e. to form or vary it according to its ſeveral Moods, Tenſes and Perſons; the Word properly ſignifies to Yoke, or Couple together.

Conjugates, (in Rhetorick) thoſe things that are derived from the ſame Original; as Juſtice, Juſt, Juſtly: Alſo a Logical Term, when from one Word, we argue to another of the ſame Origination; as if Laughter be Joy, then to laugh is to rejoice.

Conjugation, a Yoking or Coupling together in Pairs, a Term us'd in Aſtronomy: Among Grammarians, the Method of Conjugating Verbs, or a Derivation of Words being of one kind.

Conjunction, a joyning or meeting together, Union. In Grammar, a Particle or little Word that ſerves to joyn other Words or Sentences together; as and, but, if, &c.

Conjunction of Planets, (in Aſtron.) is when two Planets or Stars meet in the ſame Degree of the Zodiack, paſſing one under the other ſo as to make one Right-line, with reſpect to ſome part of the Earth; and this Conjunction may be either Apparent or True.

Apparent Conjunction, is when the Right-line that is ſuppoſed to be drawn thro' the Centers of the two Planets does not paſs thro' the Center of the Earth: And Real or True Conjunction, is when that Right-line being prolonged or lengthen'd paſſes alſo thro' the Earth's Center.

Conjunctiva Tunica, (Lat in Anat.) a Coat of the Eye, ſo call'd from its ſticking cloſe to it; the ſame with the Adnata Tunica; which See.

Conjunctive, that ſerves to conjoyn.

Conjunctive Mood. See Subjunctive Mood.

Conjuncture, the State or Circumſtances of Affairs.

Conjuration, a Conſpiracy, Plot, ſecret League or Cabal to do any publick Harm; as to attempt the Life of a Prince, to ſubvert the Government, &c. In Common Law, it is more eſpecially taken for a Perſonal Conference with the Devil or evil Spirits, to know any Secret, or to compaſs any Deſign.

To Conjure, to charge upon the Sacredneſs of an Oath; to deſire earneſtly, or to entreat with the moſt ardent Importunity; alſo to conſpire, or plot together.

Conjure or Conjer, to practiſe Conjuration, to raiſe or lay Spirits.

To Conn, to learn or get without Book; alſo a Sea-term. See To Cond.

Connatural, (Lat.) that is natural to ſeveral things with others.

Connected, joyned, tied, or faſten'd together.

Connex, (i. e. knit together) In Logick, thoſe things are ſaid To be Connex which are joyn'd one to another, without any Dependance or Sequence.

Connexion, a hanging or being linked together.

Connexity, that by which one thing is joyn'd to another.

To Connive, to wink at, to take no notice of.

Connivence, a Feigning not to ſee, a Winking at a Fault.

Conniventes Glandulæ, (in Anat.) thoſe Wrinkles which are found in the in-ſide of the Inteſtinum Ileum & Jejunum: For the inner Coat of thoſe Guts being longer than the middle or outward, it wrinkles or bags out in many places; by which means the Paſſages for the Matter contained therein become ſtraighten'd, and the Lacteal Veſſels have the more time to ſoak in the Chyle.

Connubial, belonging to Wedlock or Marriage.

Conoid, (Gr. in Geom.) a Solid which is produc'd by the Circumvolution or Turning of any Section of the Cone about its Axis, and conſequently is of three ſorts, viz. Hyperbolical, Parabolical and Elliptical, which laſt is alſo call'd a Spheroid.

Conoides, (in Anat.) a particular Gland or Kernel in the Brain; the ſame as Conarium and Glandula Pinealis.

Conquaſſatio, (Lat.) properly a Shaking as with an Earthquake, a Daſhing or Breaking in pieces: In Pharmacy, or the Apothecaries-Art, the Beating of Herbs or Fruits with a Peſtle, to get their Juice.

To Conquer, (Fr.) to bring under, to gain or get by Force of Arms; to maſter; to gain or win Peoples Hearts or Affections.

Conquerour, one that has conquer'd, a Subduer.

Conqueſt, the Act of Conquering or the thing conquer'd: Alſo a Term in the Practick of Scotland, which differs from Heritage in this reſpect, that the latter ſignifies Lands and Goods belonging to any Perſon, as Succeſſour to his Father or any other Predeceſſour, whereas Conqueſt is taken for thoſe which a Man poſſeſſes by his own private Title or by Gift, or by any other ſimple Contract.

Conrad, (Germ. i. e. able Counſel) a proper Name of Men.

Conreata Pellis, (in old Latin Records) a Hide or Skin dreſs'd, a Conreatore, i. e. by the Currier.

Conſanguinity, (Lat.) Kindred by Blood, or Birth.

Conſcience, the Teſtimony or Witneſs of one's own Mind, the inward Knowledge of a thing; a Scruple.

Conſcientious, that has a good Conſcience, juſt and upright in dealing.

Conſcionable, the ſame as conſcientious; alſo equitable, reaſonable.

Conſcious, that knows one's ſelf to be guilty of, or privy to.

Conſcribed, a Term in Geometry, the ſame as Circumſcribed. See To Circumſcribe.

Conſcript, an Addition or Title anciently given to the Senatours of Rome, who were ſtyl'd Patres Conſcripti or Conſcript Fathers, becauſe their Names were inroll'd in the Regiſter of the Senate.

To Conſecrate, to hallow, to appoint or ſet apart to an Holy Uſe, to dedicate or devote, to immortalize, or give everlaſting Continuance to one's Memory.

Conſecration, the Act of Conſecrating.

Conſectary, that which follows upon the Demonſtration of an Argument, a Conſequence drawn from a fore-going Propoſition; an additional Inference or Deduction, being the ſame with Corollary.

Conſecutive, immediately following one after another.

Conſent, Approbation, Accord or Agreement: In a Medicinal Senſe, it ſignifies 1 the depending of one Diſtemper upon another; thus a Difficulty of Breathing is ſaid To proceed by Conſent from a Pleuriſy, and in that caſe ceaſes as ſoon as the Diſeaſe on which it depends is removed: Or 2 the mutual Sympathy or Correſpondence between the ſeveral Parts of the Body; as when one Nerve is affected with the hurt of another, or when the Inflammation of the Membrane or Skin call'd Pleura is communicated to the Lungs, &c.

To Conſent, to agree or accord, to approve or allow of.

Conſentaneous, agreeable.

Conſentient, conſenting, willing.

Conſequence, an orderly Following, Concluſion, Inference; the Reſult of any Action or Thing; alſo Importance, Moment, or Weight.

Conſequence or Conſequentia, a Term in Aſtronomy. See Antecedence and Succeſſion of the Signs.

Conſequent, following, ſucceeding, enſuing.

A Conſequent, that which follows upon ſomething. In Logick, the laſt Part of an Argument, oppoſed to the Antecedent. See Conditional Propoſitions.

Conſequent of a Ratio or Reaſon, (in Mathem.) is the latter of two Terms of Proportion, or the Term between which and the Antecedent, a Compariſon is made; as in the Reaſon or Proportion of the Number 2 to 3; 3 is the Conſequent with which the Antecedent 2 is compared. Again if the Proportion were of the Magnitude or Quantity A to B; B is ſaid To be the Conſequent. See Antecedent.

Conſervation, a preſerving, keeping, or maintaining.

Conſervator, (Lat.) a Protector or Defender; a Keeper or Maintainer; a Preſerver: In ſome of our ancient Writers, an Umpire choſen or appointed to compoſe Differences between two other Parties.

Conſervator of the Peace, one that has ſpecial Charge by virtue of his Office, to ſee the King's Peace kept; ſuch were the Wardens of the Peace before the eſtabliſhing of Juſtices under King Edward III. and Petty Conſtables are ſo counted by the Common Law. The Corporation of the great Level of the Fens conſiſts of a Governour, ſix Bailiffs, twenty Conſervators, and Commonalty.

Conſervator of the Truce and ſafe Conducts, an Officer formerly appointed in every Sea-port, to enquire of all Offences done againſt the King's Truce and ſafe Conducts upon the main Sea; out of the Liberties of the Cinque Ports: He was authoriz'd by the King's Letters Patent, and had a Salary of forty Pounds per annum.

Conſervatory, a Place to lay up ſafe, or keep any thing in, eſpecially a Store-houſe for Plants, Fruits, &c. a Green-houſe.

Conſerve, a ſort of Compoſition made of Sugar and the Paſte of Flowers, or Herbs, ſo that it may be kept ſeveral Years: Alſo a Term in Fortification. See Counter-guard and Envelope.

To Conſerve, to defend or maintain, to preſerve or keep.

To Conſider, to mind, to think of, to meditate upon, to regard, to have a reſpect for.

Conſiderable, that deſerves to be conſider'd, remarkable.

Conſiderate, circumſpect, wiſe, adviſed, diſcreet.

Conſideration, a bethinking one's ſelf, a Motive or forcible Reaſon, Reſpect, or Regard, Requital: In a Law-Senſe, it is the material Cauſe of a Contract or Bargain, without which it would not be effectual or binding, being either expreſs'd, as when a Man bargains to give a certain Summ of Money for any thing; or elſe imply'd as when the Law enforces a Conſideration.

To Conſign, to appoint, to make over, to deliver.

In the way of Trade, Goods are ſaid To be conſigned to a Factor, when they are ſent him by his Employer to be ſold, &c. Again when a Factor returns Goods to his Employer, they are ſaid To be conſigned to that Employer.

Conſignation, the Act of Conſigning, making over, &c. In a Law-ſenſe, the putting of a Summ of Money, or of Bills and Bonds into ſure Hands 'till the Deciſion of ſome Controverſy that hinders the delivery of the ſaid Truſts.

Conſiligo, (Lat.) an Herb ſo call'd, becauſe often found growing amidſt Rie, Bears-foot, or Setter-wort.

To Conſiſt, to be made up of, to hang, or agree together.

Conſiſtence, Eſſence, the way or manner of Being; Relation or Agreement; alſo the thickneſs of Liquid things.

Conſiſtent, ſuitable, or agreeable to, that has a Conſiſtence, or is not fluid.

Conſiſtent Bodies, a Term us'd by Mr. Boyle, for ſolid or firm ones, i. e. ſuch whoſe Parts are cloſely united together, ſo that they cannot ſlide over one another's Surfaces as eaſily as the parts of fluid Bodies do.

Conſiſtorial, belonging to a Conſiſtory; as A Conſiſtorial Decree.

Conſiſtory, a ſolemn Meeting of the Pope and Cardinals; alſo an Aſſembly of the Miniſters and Elders of the Reformed Church, eſpecially among the French Proteſtants: In a Law-ſenſe, the Tribunal or Place of Juſtice in the Spiritual Courts, belonging to the Archbiſhops, or Biſhops.

† To Conſociate, to unite or joyn together in mutual Society or Fellowſhip: See To Aſſociate.

Conſolation, Comfort, an eaſing of Grief.

Conſolatory, that gives or affords Comfort, comfortable.

Conſole, (Fr. in Maſonry) a kind of Bracket or Shouldering-piece that juts out, and ſerves to ſupport a Cornice, or to bear up Figures, Butts, Veſſels and other Ornaments of the like Nature.

Conſolida, (Lat.) the Herb Conſound, or Comfrey, of great Virtue for curing Wounds; looſeneſs of the Belly, Sharpneſs of Humours, Conſumptions, &c.

Conſolidantia, conſolidating Remedies, i. e. ſuch as cleanſe and cloſe up Wounds.

To Conſolidate, to make whole, or to cloſe; to be ſtrongly united, or joyn'd together; a Term us'd by Surgeons in ſpeaking of Wounds or broken Bones: Thus they ſay, The Parts begin to conſolidate, i. e. to joyn together in one Piece, as they were before the Fracture, or the Solution of Continuity.

Conſolidation, the Act of Conſolidating: Among the Civilians, it is an uniting of the Poſſeſſion and Profits with the Property; as if a Man have the Profits of certain Lands by Legacy, and afterwards buys the Property or Fee Simple of the Heir; See Unity of Poſſeſſion. In Common Law, Conſolidation is a joyning of two Benefices or Spiritual Livings into one; and in Surgery, an uniting of broken or disjoynted Bones, or a cloſing the Lips of a Wound, when it begins to come to a Scar.

Conſonance, Conformity, Agreeableneſs, or Suitableneſs: In Muſick, the Agreement of Grave and Acute Sounds, ſo proportionably order'd as to make a pleaſing Harmony.

Conſonance of Words, is when two Words ſound much alike at the end, rhiming, or chiming.

Conſonant, conformable, agreeable.

A Conſonant, (in Grammar) a Letter that has no Sound of it ſelf, unleſs it be joyn'd to ſome Vowel.

Conſort, a partaker of the ſame Condition; a Companion, or Mate; the Wife of a Soveraign Prince, or other great Perſon: Alſo the Harmony made by ſeveral Voices or Muſical Inſtruments; a Muſick-meeting.

To Conſort, to keep Company, or Society with.

Conſound or Comfrey, an Herb by ſome call'd Back-wort, for its great efficacy in ſtrength'ning the Back. See Conſolida and Comfrey.

† Conſperſion, a ſtrewing, or ſprinkling about.

Conſpicuous, eaſy to be ſeen, clear, manifeſt; eminent, famous, remarkable.

Conſpiracy, a Combination or Plot, properly an Agreement of Parties to do any thing either good or bad: But in Common-Law, it is always taken in the worſt Senſe, and ſignifies an Agreement of ſuch as bind themſelves by Covenant, Oath, or otherwiſe, that every one of them ſhall aſſiſt the other maliciouſly to indict, or cauſe ſome Perſon to be indicted of Felony, or falſely to move and maintain Pleas, &c.

Conſpiratione, a Writ that lies againſt Conſpirators.

Conſpirator, one that has conſpir'd for ſome ill Deſign, or that has had a hand in a Plot, a Plotter.

To Conſpire, to ſuit or agree together, to complot or bandy together.

Conſtable, qu. Comes Stabuli, i. e. Maſter of the Horſe, or as others will have it deriv'd from the Saxon Words Koning and Stable, i. e. the Stay or Prop of the King: a Term diverſly us'd in our Common Law, viz.

The Conſtable or Lord High Conſtable of England, an Officer anciently of ſuch Power, that it was thought too great for any Subject, having the ſame Juriſdiction, as the Earl Marſhal, and taking Place of him, as a chief Judge in the Marſhal's Court: So that a Lord High Conſtable has only been made for a long time, at ſolemn Tryals by Combate, or upon a Coronation, as that of K. Charles II.

It was alſo heretofore a Title belonging to the Lords of certain Manours, and at laſt others were appointed of an inferiour Rank, as Conſtables of Hundreds or Franchiſes, commonly call'd High Conſtables, and under thoſe the Petty Conſtables of every Town or Pariſh. There are alſo other Officers of particular Places ſo ſtyl'd; as the Conſtable of the Tower, of Dover-Caſtle, &c.

Conſtable of the Tower, a Nobleman who had the Government of that Fort, ſometimes for Life, and ſometimes during the King's Pleaſure: He uſually reſided in the Royal Palace, and ſometimes had the keeping of the Armories, Stores, and Victuals. William Lord Allington was the laſt Conſtable that enjoy'd this Dignity and Office, A. D. 1679.

Conſtancy, (Lat.) Firmneſs, Reſolution, Perſeverance, Stedfaſtneſs.

Conſtant, ſteady, reſolute, continuing in one's Purpoſe; durable or laſting; certain or ſure.

Conſtat, (Law-Term) a Certificate taken out of the Exchequer-Court of what is there upon Record, relating to any Matter in Queſtion: Alſo an Exemplification or Copy of the Inrolment of Letters Patent.

Conſtellation, a company or cluſter of fixed Stars imagin'd to repreſent ſome Figure or Creature, and commonly call'd by the Name of it: Of theſe there are 21 Northern and 12 Southern. See Aſteriſm.

Conſternation, great Fright, Amazement or Aſtoniſhment, upon ſome ſudden Affliction, or Publick Calamity.

To Conſtipate, to bind or make coſtive; properly to thwack together, to cram or ram cloſe.

Conſtipation, the Act of Conſtipating: Alſo a Term us'd in Philoſophy, when the Parts of a Natural Body acquire a cloſer Texture than what they had before.

Conſtituent, that conſtitutes, or makes up.

To Conſtitute, to ordain, appoint, or aſſign; to eſtabliſh or make.

Conſtitution, Ordinance, Decree, Law, Statute; a Regulation or Settlement made by Order of a Prince: Alſo the temper of the Body, or a Natural Diſpoſition.

Conſtitutions Baſilick. See Baſilick Conſtitutions.

Conſtitutive, that is proper, or fit to Conſtitute.

To Conſtrain, (Fr.) to force or oblige by force, to reſtrain or keep in.

Conſtraint, Compulſion, Force, Violence.

Conſtriction, a binding faſt, or tying hard: In a Philoſophical Senſe, a crowding the Parts of any Natural Body, in order to Condenſation or making it more thick.

Conſtrictor Labiorum Sphincter & Orbicularis Labiorum, (in Anat.) a Muſcle that encompaſſes the Lips with orbicular or round Fibres; which when it acts, purſes or draws them up, and is therefore termed by ſome Oſculatorius.

Conſtrictores alarum naſi, ac Depreſſores labii ſuperioris, are Muſcles that ariſe from the fourth Bone of the Upper Jaw, and are inſerted to the Roots of the Alæ naſi and ſuperiour parts of the Upper Lip; ſo that they ſerve to draw the Upper Lip and Alæ downwards.

Conſtruction, a building, framing, or making: In Grammar, the regular and due joyning of Words together in a Sentence or Diſcourſe; alſo Interpretation, Senſe, or Meaning: In Geometry, the drawing of ſuch Lines as are neceſſary before hand, for the making any Demonſtration appear the more plain and undeniable.

Conſtruction of Equations, (in Algebra) is the contriving ſuch Figures and Lines as may demonſtrate the Equation, Canon, or Theorem to be true, according to the Principles of Geometry.

Conſtructive, that tends to Conſtruction, that may be framed or made.

To Conſtrue or Conſter, to interpret, or expound.

Conſtupration, a debauching, raviſhing, or deflow'ring of Women or Maids.

Conſualia, (Lat.) certain Feaſts and Games appointed by Romulus the Founder of the City of Rome, when he Stole the Sabine Virgins, in honour of Conſus the God of Counſels.

Conſubſtantial, (a Term in Divinity) that is of the ſame Subſtance.

Conſubſtantiation, (i. e. the mixture or union of two Subſtances) a Doctrine maintain'd by the Lutherans, who believe the Body and Bloud of Chriſt to be ſubſtantially in the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper, together with the Subſtance of Bread and Wine.

Conſuetudinibus & Servitiis, (Lat.) a Writ of Right cloſe that lies againſt a Tenant, who with-holds from his Lord the Rent or Service due to him.

Conſuetudo, Cuſtom, Uſage, Uſe: In ſome ancient Writers, a Day's Work to be done for the Lord of a Manour by his Tenant, as a Cuſtomary Service.

Conſul, (among the old Romans) a Soveraign Magiſtrate, of whom two were choſen every Year by the People, after they had ſhaken off the Royal Authority; ſo call'd becauſe they took care of the Common-wealth, and gave Counſel to their Country-men: The Title is at preſent given to the chief Governours of ſeveral Cities, and more eſpecially to the principal Managers of Trade, or Reſidents for Merchants in foreign Parts: There are alſo fifty Conſuls at Paris in France, yearly choſen to determine matters of Debt.

Conſular, belonging to a Conſul; as The Conſular Dignity.

Conſularis, a Roman Gold-coin. See Amient.

A Conſult, the ſame as a Conſultation, but commonly taken in an ill Senſe, for the ſecret Cabals of Plotters againſt the State; as The King's Evidence was produc'd againſt him for Conſults in ſeveral Places, againſt his Majeſty's Life.

To Conſult, to adviſe with, or take Advice of; to deliberate upon a thing, or debate it; to take care of, or provide for.

Conſultation, a conſulting or deliberating about any Matter, eſpecially of Phyſicians for the benefit of their Patients: Alſo the Name of a Writ, by virtue of which a Cauſe removed by Prohibition from the Eccleſiaſtical Court, or Court Chriſtian to the Queen's Court, is return'd back to the former again.

To Conſume, to deſtroy, waſte, or devour; to ſpend, or ſquander away; alſo to waſte or pine away, to wear out, decay, or diminiſh.

Conſummate, compleat, perfect, abſolute, accompliſhed.

To Conſummate, to make perfect, accompliſh, or finiſh; to compleat, or make an end of.

Conſummation, conſummating, fulfilling, or accompliſhing; Perfection.

Conſummatum, (Lat.) a Word us'd by ſome Writers in Phyſick, for the Juice or Moiſture of a Hen cut into ſmall Pieces, drawn out by diſtillation in Balneo Mariæ; ſtrong Broth.

Conſumption, a conſuming or waſting, eſpecially of Proviſions, Commodities, &c. Alſo a defect of Nouriſhment, or the waſting or decaying of the Body, and particularly of the Muſcular Fleſh; a Diſeaſe often attended with a Hectick Feaver, and diſtinguiſh'd into ſeveral kinds, according to the variety of its Cauſe, and the Parts it chiefly ſeizes on; as A Scorbutick Conſumption, a Conſumption of the Lungs, &c.

Conſumptive, that is inclin'd to, or that is actually in a Conſumption.

Contabulation, (in Architect,) a joyning of Boards together, a boarding or planking; a Floor, a Timber-Frame.

Contact, a Philoſophical Term for Touching, or Touch: In Mathematicks, it is when one Line, Plane, or Body, is made to touch another; and the Parts that do thus touch are call'd the Points or Places of Contact.

Contagion, Infection, the ſpreading or catching of a Diſeaſe, as when it is communicated or tranſlated from one Body to another, by certain Effluvia, or Steams ſent forth from the Body of the Sick Perſon.

Contagious, infectious, apt to infect. The Air is ſaid To be contagious, when it is full of infectious Particles, that cauſe the Plague and other Peſtilential Diſtempers.

To Contain, to hold, to comprehend, to keep in; to refrain or keep back, to keep within Bounds; to bridle, rule, or curb.

To Contaminate, to pollute, or defile.

Contamination, Pollution or Defilement, properly that of the Marriage-Bed.

Conteke, (old Word) Contention, or Strife.

To Contemn, to deſpiſe, ſcorn, or Slight; to ſet at nought, to make no account of.

To Contemplate, to behold or view, to take a full View of, to conſider ſeriouſly, to muſe or meditate upon.

Contemplation, Contemplating, Meditation, Study: In Metaphyſicks, it is Defin'd to be the preſerving of an Idea or Conception, which is brought into the Mind, for ſome time actually in View.

Contemplative, given to Contemplation.

Contemplatives, certain Friers of the Order of St. Mary Magdalen, who wore black upper Garments and White underneath.

Contemplator, one that contemplates.

Contemporary or Cotemporary, that lives in one time, that is of the ſame Age or ſtanding with another.

Contempt, Diſpite, Scorn, Diſdain.

Contemptible, that is to be contemned, ſcorned, or ſlighted; vile, baſe, or mean.

Contemptuous, ſcornful, reproachful, ſlighting.

To Contend, to ſtrive, or quarrel, to diſpute.

Contenement, an old Law-word, that ſeems to ſignify the Freehold-Land which lies to a Man's Tenement, or Dwelling-houſe.

Contenſion, great Effort, united Endeavour; as A joynt Contenſion of Strength.

Content, contented, willing, ſatisfy'd, well pleaſed with what one has.

Content, (Subſt.) Contentedneſs, or Satisfaction: alſo the Extent, or Compaſs of a Thing: In Geometry, the Meaſure of any Solid Figure, viz. in Cubick Inches, or Feet.

To Content, to give Content, to Pleaſe, or Humour; to Pacify, or Appeaſe; to Satisfy, Pay, or Recompence one for his Pains.

Contentation or Contentment, Contentedneſs, Satisfaction of Mind, a being Content with one's Condition.

Contention, Strife, Debate, Diſpute, or Quarrel; Vehemency, Heat, Eagerneſs.

Contentious, apt to Contend, Quarrelſome.

Contentment. See Contentation.

Contents, the Matters contained in a Book, Chapter, Letter, &c.

Conteſt, Debate, or Diſpute.

To Conteſt, to Contend, Quarrel for, or Wrangle.

Conteſtation, Conteſting, Contention, Strife.

Context, (a Term in Divinity) a Portion of Scripture which preceeds the Text, or ſome other particular Paſſage.

Contexture, an interweaving, or joyning together, the ordering, or framing of a Diſcourſe, the Compoſure, or Style of a Proceſs, &c.

Contiguity or Contiguouſneſs, Nearneſs, or Cloſeneſs, as when the Surface of one Body touches that of another.

Contiguous, that touches, or is next to, cloſe adjoyning, very near.

Contiguous Angles, (in Geom.) are ſuch as have one Leg common to each Angle, and are otherwiſe call'd Adjacent, or Adjoyning Angles.

Continence or Continency, Chaſtity, Temperance, Abſtinence from Unlawful Pleaſures.

Continens Cauſa. See Continent Cauſe.

Continent, containing one's ſelf within the Bounds of Moderation; Temperate, Chaſte, Sober.

Continent Cauſe of a Diſtemper, is that on which the Diſeaſe depends ſo immediately, that it continues ſo long as that remains, and ceaſes when the ſaid Cauſe is remov'd: Thus a Stone ſticking in the Ureters is the Continent Cauſe of a Stoppage of Urine.

Continent Feaver, is that which performs its Courſe without any Intermiſſion, or Abatement.

A Continent, (in Geogr.) a great Extent of main firm Land, which comprehends ſeveral Countries, Kingdoms, Provinces, &c. and is not interrupted, or ſeparated by Seas.

Contingency, a Caſualty, Accident, or uncertain Event that comes by Chance.

Contingent, that may, or may not happen to come to paſs; Caſual, Accidental. In Mathematicks, it is alſo ſometimes us'd for the Word Tangent.

Contingent Line, (in Dialling) is a ſtraight Line, ſuppoſed to ariſe from the Interſection of the Dial-plane with the Plane of the Equinoctial; ſo that in this Line; the Hour-lines of the Dial, and the Hour-circles mutually cut each other.

Contingent Uſe, (Law-Term) ſuch a Uſe, as by the Limitation may, or may not happen to Veſt, or put in Poſſeſſion of the Lands, or Tenements, Continual, that is without Intermiſſion, conſtant.

Continual Claim, (in Common Law) is a Claim made from time to time within every Year and Day, to Land, or any other thing, which at preſent cannot be attain'd by the Party that has a Right to it, without apparent Danger, as of being kill'd, or beaten.

Continual Feaver, is that which ſometimes remits, or abates, but never perfectly intermits; that is to ſay, the Patient is ſometimes better, but never abſolutely free from the Diſtemper.

Continual Means. See Means.

Continual Proportion, Arithmetical and Geometrical. See Progreſſion.

Continuance, Laſtingneſs: In Common Law, 'tis the ſame as Prorogation in the Civil; as Continuance till the next Aſſizes, i. e. a putting off the Tryal, which is ſometimes done when it happens that ſome Record relating to the Caſe cannot be found, &c.

Continuando, a Term us'd when the Plaintiff would recover Dammages for ſeveral Treſpaſſes in one and the ſame Action: For in one Action of Treſpaſs, Dammages may be recover'd for divers Treſpaſſes, by laying the firſt with a Continuando to the whole Time.

Continuation, the Act of Continuing.

Continuator, one that continues a Work begun by another.

To Continue, to purſue, or carry on; to prolong, to perſevere, or hold on; to abide, or laſt.

Continued Baſs, a Term in Muſick, the ſame as Thorough-baſs; ſo call'd, becauſe it goes quite thro' the Compoſition.

Continued Proportionals. See Diſcrete Proportion.

Continued Quantity or a Continuum, is that whoſe Parts are inſeparably joyn'd, or united together; ſo that it cannot be diſtinguiſh'd where one begins, and another ends. See Diſcrete Quantity.

Continued Zocle. See Zocle.

Continuity, the Connexion, or Joyning together of the ſeveral Parts of a Thing; as The Continuity of Scenes in a Stage-play. In Surgery, it is when the Parts of the Body are all whole and entire, without being divided.

Continuous or Continued Body, a Body whoſe Parts are no way divided.

Continuum. See Continued Quantity.

Contorſion, a wreſting, wrenching, or pulling awry: Alſo a Term us'd by Surgeons, when a Bone is ſomewhat disjoynted, tho' not entirely; a Sprain.

Contour, (Fr.) Circumference, or Compaſs: In Painting and Carving, Contours are the outward Lines of a Picture, or Figure.

Contra-Antiſcion, (in Aſtrol.) is the Degree and Minute in the Ecliptick, oppoſite to the Antiſcion.

Contraband or Contrabanded Goods, ſuch Goods as are forbidden by Act of Parliament, or Proclamation, to be brought into, or convey'd out of this into other Nations; as Bone-lace, Buttons, thrown Silk, Sword-blades, &c.

Contract, (Lat.) a Covenant, Bargain, or Agreement; a Deed, Inſtrument, or Articles in Writing: In Common Law, it is defined to be a Covenant, or Agreement, with a Lawful Conſideration, or Cauſe; as when a Summ of Money is given for the Leaſe of a Manour, &c.

To Contract, to make a Contract, to Covenant, to Article; to abridge, or ſhorten, to draw together; to get, or catch an ill Habit, or Diſeaſe.

Contracation-houſe, a Place where Contracts, or Agreements are made for the promoting of Trade.

Contractile, a Term made uſe of by ſome Phyſicians, to expreſs ſuch Muſcles, and other Parts of the Body as are contracted.

Contraction, drawing together, making ſhort, ſhrinking; as A Contraction of Syllables, of the Nerves, &c. In Logick, a Method by which the thing reducing abridges that which is reduced; as The Arguments of Poems, or the Contents of Chapters.

Contracture, (in Architect.) the making ſmall of Pillars about the top: In Surgery, a Contraction that is made by degrees, of any part of the Back, Hand, Foot, &c. by which the bending of it is hinder'd, or at leaſt, cannot be performed without ſome Pain, or Force.

To Contradict, to oppoſe another's Aſſertion, to gainſay.

Contradiction, a Contrariety of Terms, Gainſaying.

Contradictious, full of Contradiction.

Contradictory, that contradicts it ſelf, or implies a Contradiction.

Contradictory Oppoſition, (in Logick) the Contrariety of two Propoſitions, both in Quality and Quantity; ſo that if one of them be Affirmative, the other ſhall be Negative; if one Univerſal, the other Particular; as Every Man is Rational, Some Man is not Rational: Or elſe both the Propoſitions are Singular and Particular; one affirming, and the other denying the ſame thing; as The Circle is ſquarable, The Circle is not ſquarable.

Contradiſtinction, the Act of Contradiſtinguiſhing.

To Contradiſtinguiſh, to diſtinguiſh on the other Side.

Contrafactio, (Lat.) an old Law-word for Counterfeiting; as Contrafactio Sigilli Regis, i. e. a Counterfeiting of the King's Seal.

Contrafiſſure, a Counter-cleft: In Surgery, a kind of Fracture of the Scull-bone, when the Part ſtruck remains whole, and the oppoſite Part is cleft.

Contra formam Collationis, is a Writ that lies where a Man has given Lands in perpetual Alms to any Religious Houſe, Hoſpital, &c. For if they Alien the Lands, then the Donor, or his Heirs may recover them by Virtue of this Writ.

Contra formam Feoffamenti, a Writ that lies for the Heir of a Tenant infeoffed of certain Lands, or Tenements, by Charter of Feoffment of a Lord, to make certain Services and Suits to his Court; and afterwards diſtrained for more than is contain'd in the ſaid Charter.

Contraindications, are divers Symptoms, or Signs in a Diſeaſe, the Conſideration of which diſſwades a Phyſician from uſing ſuch a particular Remedy, when other things induce him to it.

Contramandatio Placiti, (Lat.) a Term us'd in Leg. Hen. 1 Cap. 59, which ſeems to ſignify a reſpiting, or giving the Defendant further Time to Anſwer; an Imparlance, or Countermanding what was formerly order'd.

Contramure, (in Fortif.) a little Out-wall built before another Partition-wall, or about the main Wall of a City, or Town, to ſtrengthen it, ſo that it may receive no Dammage from the Adjacent Buildings, &c.

Contrapoſition, a putting againſt: In Logick, a changing of the whole Subject into the whole Predicate, and the contrary; keeping both the ſame Quantity and Quality, but altering the Terms from Finite to Infinite; as Every Man is a Living-creature; therefore every thing that is a Living-creature is not a Man.

Contraried, an old Word for Contradicted.

Contrarients, a Name heretofore given to the Barons that took part with Thomas Earl of Lancaſter, againſt K. Edward. II.

Contrariety, Oppoſition, Diſagreement.

Contrary, oppoſite: Things are ſaid To be contrary, whoſe Nature, or Qualities are abſolutely different, and which deſtroy one another.

Contraries, (a Term in Logick) when one thing is oppos'd to another; as Light and Darkneſs, Sight and Blindneſs, &c.

Contraſt, (Fr.) a ſmall Diſpute, or Difference: In Painting, a different Diſpoſition of the Objects and Parts of the Figures.

Contrate-wheel, is that Wheel in Pocket-Watches and others, which is next to the Crown-wheel, whoſe Teeth and Hoop lie contrary to thoſe of other Wheels; whence it has its Name.

Contravallation or The Line of Contravallation, (in Fortif.) is a Trench guarded with a Parapet, or Breaſt-work, which the Beſiegers uſually cut round about a Place, without Musket-ſhot of it, to ſecure themſelves on that Side, and to ſtop the Sallies of the Garriſon; ſo that the whole Army which carries on a Siege, lies between the Lines of Circumvallation and Contravallation.

To Contravene, to act contrary to an Agreement; to infringe, or break a Law.

Contravention, the Act of Contravening.

Contrayerva, a Weſt-Indian Plant, much us'd by the Spaniards and others in Counter-poiſons, and of which our Diſtillers make a kind of Strong Water.

† Contrectation, a touching, or handling.

Contre-queue d'Hironde, (Fr. in Fortif.) the Counter-ſwallows-tail, an Out-work in form of a ſingle Tenaille, wider at the Gorge, or next the Place, than at the Head, or towards the Campain; in which reſpect it is contrary to the Queue d' Hironde, or Swallows-tail, the latter being wideſt at the Head.

Contributary, (Lat.) that pays Contribution.

To Contribute, to give ſomething with others; to conduce, to avail, to help.

Contribution, a Contributing, a Joynt giving of Money, or Supplies towards any Buſineſs of Importance: In Military Affairs, an Impoſition, or Tax paid by Frontier-Countries, to ſave themſelves from being plunder'd and deſtroy'd by the Enemy.

Contributione facienda, a Writ that lies where ſeveral Perſons are bound to one thing, yet the whole Burden is put upon one; to oblige all to bear an equal ſhare of the Charge: Thus if Joynt-Tenants hold a Mill pro indiviſo, and are equally to take the Profits of it, the Mill falling to decay, and one, or more of them refuſing to contribute towards the Reparation, the reſt ſhall have this Writ to compel them.

Contrite, (a Term in Divinity) that is very penitent, or ſorrowful for his Sins, and Tranſgreſſions of the Divine Law.

Contrition, a true ſincere Sorrow which a Penitent feels for having offended God, thro' the ſole Conſideration of his Goodneſs, without reflecting on the Fear of Puniſhment, which his Sins have deſerv'd.

Contrivance, Device, Ingenuity in Contriving.

To Contrive, to Deſign, to Plot, to Manage.

Controll, (Fr.) Contradiction, Cenſure, Check; properly a Book, or Regiſter, in which a Roll is kept of other Regiſters.

To Controll, to examine Accounts, to Overſee, to Diſprove; to Cenſure, or find fault with.

Controller, an Officer that keeps a Roll of other Inferiour Officers Accounts; a Reformer of Manners, an Overſeer.

Controller or Clerk Controller of the Queen's Houſe, an Officer at Court, who has Power to allow, or diſallow the Charges of Purſuivants, Meſſengers, Purveyors, &c. As alſo the Controlling of all Defaults and Miſcarriages of the Inferiour Officers.

Controller of the Hamper, an Officer in Chancery, who in Term-time daily attends on the Lord Chancellour, or Lord Keeper, takes all things Seal'd from the Clerk of the Hamper incloſ'd in Leather-bags, notes down the number and effect of things ſo received, and enters them all in a Book, with the Duties belonging to the Queen, &c.

Controller of the Mint, an Officer who is to ſee, That the Money be paid to the juſt Aſſize, to Overlook and Controll the Officers, in caſe of any Defaults, &c. His Salary being 300 Pounds per Annum.

Controller of the Navy, an Officer, whoſe Buſineſs is to Attend and Controll all Payments of Wages, to know the Market-rates of all Stores belonging to Shipping, to examine and audit all Treaſurers, Victuallers and Store-keepers Accounts; for which he has a Yearly Salary of 500 Pounds.

Controller of the Pell, an Officer belonging to the Exchequer, who keeps a Contra-rolment of the Pell of Receipts, and goings out. See Pells.

Controller of the Pipe, another Officer of the Exchequer, who Writes Summons to the Sheriff, to gather the Farms and Debts of the Pipe, and alſo keeps a Controlment of the ſame.

Controller General, an Officer belonging to the Artillery.

To Controve, (old Word) to deviſe.

Controverſial, (Lat.) belonging to Controverſy.

Controverſy, Debate, Diſpute, Variance.

To Controvert, to Diſpute of, to Argue, pro and con.

Controvor, (Fr. Law-word) he that of his own accord, invents and ſpreads abroad feigned Tales; a forger of falſe News.

Contumacious, (Lat.) ſtubborn, ſelf-willed, obſtinate, rebellious.

Contumacy, Stubbornneſs, Rebellion, particularly in refuſing to appear in a Court of Juſtice, when ſummoned thereto.

Contumelious, Reproachful, Spiteful, Outragious, Affrontive.

Contumely, Reproach or Taunt, Affront or Abuſe, ſcurrilous Language.

Contuſion, properly a beating, battering, or bruiſing: Among Chymiſts, a reducing to Powder, by Pounding in a Mortar. In Surgery, a Bruiſe, dividing the Continuity of Parts in the Fleſh, or Bones, either by a Fall, or Blow; ſo that the Fleſh is broken, tho' the Skin be whole.

Contuſion of the Scull, a kind Fracture, when by a hard and blunt Inſtrument, the Scull-bone is ſo hurt, that it appears ſound from without, but yet is ſeparated from the Whole on the inſide.

Convaleſcence or Convaleſcency, a Recovery of Health, Strength, or Vigour.

Convenable, (old Law-word) convenient, fitting, agreeable.

To Convene, to call together, to aſſemble; to come together, or meet.

Convenience or Conveniency, Advantage, Eaſe; Fitneſs, Agreeableneſs, Suitableneſs: In Architecture, Convenience conſiſts in ſo ordering and diſpoſing the ſeveral Parts of a Building, that they may not hinder, or Shock one another.

Convenient, fit, ſuitable, agreeable, ſeaſonable.

Convent, a Monaſtery, or Religious Houſe.

To Convent, (old Word) to ſummon to appear.

Conventicle, a little private Aſſembly for Religious Exerciſes, a Name firſt given to the Meetings of Wickliff, above 200 Years ago, and ſince to thoſe of the Non-conformiſts.

Conventio, (Lat.) [illegible]vention, a Meeting of People. It is alſo oft[illegible]d in ancient and Modern Pleadings at Law, for a Covenant, or Agreement.

Convention, a Writ that lies for any Covenant in Writing not performed: Alſo a general Meeting of the Eſtates of the Realm; as that which was call'd upon the Abdication of King James II. and afterwards turn'd into a Parliament.

Conventional, belonging to a Convention, or Aſſembly; done by Agreement, or under certain Articles.

Conventioner, a Member of a Convention.

Conventual, belonging to a Convent, or Company of Religious Perſons; as A Conventual Church.

Conventuals, Monks, Friers, or Nuns, that actually live in a Convent.

Convergent or Converging, bowing together, a Term in Opticks; as Convergent Rays, i. e. Thoſe Rays which going from divers Points of the Object, incline towards one another, till at laſt they meet and croſs, and then diverge or run off from each other. See Divergent Rays.

Converſant, that keeps Company with; alſo well verſed or skilled in, Converſant about, that treats of a thing; as Mathematicks are Converſant about Greatneſs.

Converſation, familiar Diſcourſe among ſeveral Perſons; Intercourſe, Society; Demeanour, Behaviour.

Converſe, turned, or tranſlated: In Mathematicks, one Propoſition is call'd the Converſe of another, when after a Concluſion is drawn from ſomething ſuppoſed in the firſt Propoſition, that Concluſion is likewiſe ſuppoſed, and then that which in the other was ſuppoſed, is now drawn as a Concluſion from it. Thus when two Right-lines are ſuppoſed to be parallel, and another croſſes them, it may be demonſtrated that the alternate Angles are equal; ſo 'tis equally true Converſely, that if the alternate Angles be equal, the Lines which are croſſed muſt be parallel.

Converſe Direction, a Term us'd by Aſtrologers, when a Significator is brought to the Place of the Promittors, by the Motion of the higheſt Sphere call'd Primum Mobile, contrary to the Succeſſion of the Signs.

Converſe, (Subſt.) familiar Intercourſe, or Correſpondence.

To Converſe, to keep Company, and be familiar with.

Converſion, Turning, Alteration, Change, eſpecially of Manners: In Divinity, a turning to God, a remarkable Change of Mind, Heart and Life, wrought in every true Penitent: Alſo a Rhetorical Figure, the ſame as Apoſtrophe.

Converſion of Equations, (in Algebra) a particular manner of changing an Equation, when the Quantity ſought, or any Member or Degree of it is a Fraction; which is done by multiplying the Whole by the Denominator of the Fractional Part; and this Method is call'd Iſomeria by Vieta.

Converſion of Propoſitions, (in Logick) is the changing of the Subject into the place of the Predicate, and the Predicate into the place of the Subject, yet always retaining the ſame Quantity of both Propoſitions; as Every Right-lined Triangle has the Summ of its Angles equal to two Right ones; Every Right-lined Figure that has the Summ of its Angles equal to two Right ones, is a Triangle.

Converſion of Reaſon, (in Arithm.) is the Compariſon of the Antecedent with the Difference of the Antecedent and Conſequent, in two equal Reaſons or Proportions: As if there be the ſame Reaſon of 2 to 3, as of 8 to 12; we conclude there is alſo the ſame Reaſon of 2 to 1, as of 8 to 4.

A Convert, (in Divinity) a Perſon turn'd to the true Religion.

To Convert, to turn, or change; to turn to, or apply to one's Profit, or Uſe.

Convertible, that may be turned, changeable; as Convertible Terms.

Convex, bending down on every Side, like the Heavens or the out-ſide of a Globe or round Body: Thus Glaſſes are ſaid To be Convex, when they are thicker in the middle than at the edges, or rather when their Surface riſes up regularly above the Plane of the Baſe; as they are Concave, when the Surface ſinks down regularly, or with a regular Crookedneſs below it; ſo that the ſame thing may be, and often is Convex without, and Concave on the in-ſide.

Convexity, the crookedneſs and bending or bowing of a thing downward on the out-ſide, contradiſtinguiſh'd from Concavity, which is on the in-ſide.

To Convey, to carry, to ſend into another Place or Country, to make over an Eſtate, &c.

Conveyance, carrying: In a Law-ſenſe, an Inſtrument or Deed, by which Lands or Tenements are convey'd or made over from one to another.

Conveyancer, a Maker of, or a Perſon well ſkill'd in making ſuch Writings.

Convict, one that is found guilty of an Offence.

Convict Recuſant, one that has been legally preſented, indicted and convicted, for refuſing to come to Church to hear the Common Prayer, according to ſeveral Statues; a Term generally apply'd to Papiſts, &c.

To Convict, to prove one guilty, as To convict one of High-Treaſon or Felony, &c.

Conviction, Convicting, full Proof: In Divinity, the firſt Degree of Repentance, by which a Penitent is convinced or made apprehenſive of the evil Nature of Sin, and of his own Guiltineſs: In Common Law, the proving of a Perſon guilty of an Offence by the Verdict of a Jury; or when a Man is out-lawed, or appears and confeſſes the Fact.

Convictive, that tends to convict.

To Convince, to make one ſenſible of the Truth of any thing, or Matter of Fact, by evident Reaſons or Proofs, to perſwade thoroughly.

Convocation, a Calling, or Aſſembling together: It is commonly taken for a general Meeting of the Clergy, to conſult about Church-affairs in time of Parliament.

Convocation-Houſe, the Place where the Clergy meet for that purpoſe, divided as the Parliament is, into two diſtinct Houſes, viz. the Upper Convocation-Houſe, where the Archbiſhops and Biſhops ſit, and the Lower, where all the reſt of the Clergy have their reſpective Seats. This Convocation or Synod, as it now ſtands for the Province of Canterbury, conſiſts of a Preſident, who is the Lord Archbiſhop, 21 Biſhops, 22 Deans, 53 Archdeacons, 24 Proctors of Chapters, 44 Proctors for the Dioceſan Clergy, 2 for each Dioceſs, and one Pracentor.

To Convoke, to call together, or aſſemble.

Convolution, a rolling, wrapping, or winding about: Among the Herbaliſts, a winding or turning Motion which is peculiar to the Trunks or Stems of ſome Plants; as the Convolvuli or Bindweeds, and to the Claſpers of Vines and of Briony.

Convolvulus, (Lat.) a little hairy Worm with many Feet that eats Vine-leaves, when they firſt ſhoot out; a Vine-grub: Alſo the Herb Withiwind, or Bind-weed; alſo the twiſting of the Small Guts, a Diſeaſe.

Convoy, (Fr.) a Conduct, or Guard; a Supply of Men, Money, Ammunition and Proviſions, convey'd into a Town, or to an Army; or the Body of Men that marches to ſecure any thing from an Enemy: Alſo one or more Men of War that accompany Merchants-Ships, to defend them from Pirates; or a Company of Merchant-men with their Guard.

To Convoy, to convey, or guard after ſuch a manner.

Conus, (Gr.) a Pine-apple, the Fruit of the Cypreſs-tree, a Top or Gig: Alſo a Cone, a ſolid Geometrical Figure, broad and round at bottom, with a ſharp top like a Sugar-loaf.

Conus fuſorius, a ſort of Crucible, or Chymical Veſſel, made to melt Iron, or any other Metal.

Conuſance. See Cognizance.

Conuſant, (Fr. Law-term) knowing, underſtanding, or being privy to; as if the Son be Conuſant and agrees to the Feoffment.

Convulſio, (Lat.) a plucking, or ſhrinking up; the Convulſion or Cramp, a pricking or ſhooting Ach or Pain. Convulſio Canina, a Diſeaſe in the Jaws, when the Mouth and one ſide of the Face is turn'd awry.

Convulſion, a Diſtemper by which the Nerves, Muſcles and Members are drawn together, or looſen'd againſt or without the Will; as in the Falling-ſickneſs, Cramp, &c.

Convulſive, belonging to Convulſions, as Convulſive Motions, which are ſudden and ſwift Convulſions or Shakings that ceaſe and return alternately or by turns.

Conyza, (Gr.) Flea-bane, an Herb; the Leaves of which ſtrew'd or burnt, kill Gnats or Fleas.

To Coo, to make a Noiſe, as Turtles and Pigeons do.

Cook, a Man or Woman that dreſſes Meat, &c. Proverbially, a bad Cook is call'd The Cook of Heſdin, who poiſon'd the Devil.

Cook-room, a particular Room in a Ship, where the Cook with his Mate, dreſſes and delivers out the Victuals, according to the number of Meſſes.

Cookery, a Cook's Trade, the Art of Dreſſing Meat.

Cooler, a kind of Veſſel, or great Tub us'd by Brewers.

Coom, the Soot that gathers over an Oven's Mouth.

Coomb or Comb, a Meaſure of Corn, containing four Buſhels, or half a Quarter.

Coupee, (Fr.) a ſort of Step in Dancing: Alſo a Term in Heraldry. See Couped.

To Co-operate, (Lat.) to work together, to act with another, in the producing of ſome Effect.

Co-operation, co-operating, joynt working.

Co-operator, one that co-operates, a Fellow-worker.

Coopertio Arborum, (Lat.) a Word us'd in ſome ancient Writers, for the Bark of Trees. Quercus diſcooperta, an Oak debarked.

Coopertorium, a Caſſock or Upper Garment, a Cover for any thing, Coopertorium ad lectum, a Blanket, or Coverlet for a Bed.

Co-ordinate, that is of equal Degree, Order, or Rank.

Coot, a Water-fowl, otherwiſe call'd a Moor-hen.

Cop, the top of any thing, a Tuft on the Head of Birds.

Copal, a ſort of hard Roſin of a white or yellowiſh Colour, brought from the Weſt-Indies, which the Inhabitants uſe for a Perfume; and it is alſo burnt here againſt cold Diſeaſes of the Brain.

Coparceners or Par[illegible]ers, (in Common Law) are ſuch as have an eq[illegible]ortion in the Inheritance of their Anceſtou[illegible] See Parceners.

Coparceny or Coparſeny, ſuch an equal Diviſion, or Share; as To hold an Eſtate in Coparceny.

Copartner, one that is joyn'd in Partnerſhip with another.

Coparubas, a kind of American Plant, the Juice of which is a Balſam of admirable Virtue; inſomuch that the brute Beaſts bitten by Serpents, or wounded in Hunting, reſort to it for Cure, by inſtinct of Nature; it being a Soveraign Medicine for all Wounds, and a ſingular Antidote againſt Poiſon.

Copayvæ Balſamum, a ſort of Gum that diſtils like Turpentine, from a Tree growing in Braſil.

Cope, a kind of Prieſts-Veſtment, faſten'd with a Claſp before, and hanging down from the Shoulders to the Heels: Alſo a Tribute or Cuſtom paid to the Queen, or to the Lord of the Manour out of the Lead-mines in the Wapentake of Wickſworth in Derby-ſhire. In Doomſday-Record, Cope is taken for a Hill; and in Chaucer, for a Cloak.

To Cope, to jut out as a Wall does; alſo an old Word for to barter or truck: In Falconry, to pare a Hawk's Beak or Talons. To Cope with one, to oppoſe one, or to make Head againſt him.

Copernican Syſtem, (in Aſtron.) is that Hypotheſis or repreſentation of the Univerſe; which places the Sun in the Center or middle of it, and ſuppoſes the Planets with the Earth, to move round about the Sun: This Syſtem is ſo call'd from Nicholas Copernicus the Inventer, or rather Reviver of it. See Syſtem of the World.

Copes-mate, a Partner in Merchandizing.

Cophoſis, (Gr.) a deaf'ning, or making deaf; alſo Deafneſs, a Diſeaſe by which the Senſe of Hearing is wholly loſt, or much impair'd.

Copia libelli deliberanda, a Writ that lies in Caſe, where a Man cannot get the Copy of a Libel, at the Hands of an Eccleſiaſtical Judge.

Copiades or Cupiades, (Gr.) a kind of dainty Eels.

Coping, (in Architect.) the top of a Building, or the brow of a Wall made ſloping.

Coping-irons, (among Falconers) Inſtruments us'd for the coping or paring of a Hawk's Beak; Pounces, or Talons, when overgrown.

Copious, (Lat.) plentiful, abounding.

Copland, (Sax. qu. Head-land) a piece of Ground into which the reſt of the Lands in a Furlong do ſhoot.

Copos. See Copus.

Coppa, (in old Latin Writers) a Cock of Graſs, Hay, or Corn, divided into Portions fit to be tithed.

Copped, ſharp-topped.

Coppel or Cuppel, (Fr.) the Pot in which Goldſmiths melt, or fine their Metal. Among Chymiſts, Coppels are certain Veſſels made of Aſhes well waſh'd, or burnt Bones in ſhape of a Cup, to be us'd in the trying and purifying of Gold and Silver.

Copper, a Metal that abounds in Vitriol and Sulphur, and may more eaſily be hammer'd out than Gold or Silver.

Roſe-Copper, a Copper melted ſeveral times, and ſeparated from its groſs and earthy Parts.

Copper-bridge. See Bridge.

Copperas, a ſort of Mineral. See Vitriol.

Coppice or Copſe, a little Wood conſiſting of Under-woods, which may be cut at the growth of Twelve or Fifteen Years.

Coprocritica, (Gr.) Medicines that purge away the Excrements or Ordure in the Guts.

Coprophoria, a Purgation, or purging.

Coproſtacia, Coſtiveneſs, or binding of the Belly.

Copula, (Lat.) a coupling or joyning together, a Fetter or Shackle, a Band or Tie: In Logick, the Verb that joyns together any two Terms in an Affirmative or Negative Propoſition; as God is good, where (is) is the Copula, Riches alone make not a Man happy, where (make) is the Copula.

Copulation, (Lat.) a coupling, or joyning together; carnal coupling between Male and Female.

Copulative, (in Grammar) that ſerves to couple, or joyn; as A Conjunction Copulative.

Copulative Propoſitions, (in Logick) are thoſe that include ſeveral Subjects, or ſeveral Attributes joyn'd together, by an Affirmative or Negative Conjunction, viz. and, not, or neither; As if one ſhould ſay, That Knowledge and Riches do not make a Man happy; here Knowledge and Riches are united, and 'tis affirmed of both, that they do not make a Man happy.

Copus or Copos, (Gr.) Labour, Trouble, wearineſs occaſion'd by Labour: Alſo a wearineſs of the Limbs, when the Muſcles or their Fibres are loaded and clogged with ſuch clammy Humours, that they are render'd unfit for Motion.

Copy, (Fr.) the Original of a Book, a printed Book, a Pattern to write after: In a Law-ſenſe, the Duplicate, Example, or Tranſcript of an Original Writing; as The Copy of a Charter, of a Court-roll, &c.

Copy-hold, (in Common Law) a Tenure for which the Tenant has nothing to ſhew, but the Copy of the Rolls made by the Steward of the Lord's Court, who among other things enrolls and keeps a Regiſter of ſuch Tenants as he admits to any parcel of Lands or Tenements belonging to the Manour. This Tenure is call'd a Baſe Tenure, becauſe it holds at the Will of the Lord, and formerly Tenure in Villenage.

Copy-money, a Summ of Money paid by a Bookſeller to an Author, for his Manuſcript Copy: Alſo a Conſideration allow'd by a Maſter-Printer to every Work-man, inſtead of ſo many Printed Copies which they claim when the Book is finiſh'd.

To Copy out, to write after an Original; as To Copy o[illegible] Will, &c.

Coqueluch[illegible], (Ital.) a kind of violent Cough.

Coquetry, (Fr.) skill in carrying on amorous Intrigues, Effeminacy, Wantonneſs. See Cocquet.

Cor, (Lat.) the Heart, a principal Member of the Body, whoſe Office is to receive and diſtribute the Bloud to all the Parts: Its Subſtance is fleſhy and fibrous, made up of ſeveral Muſcles and Tendons. Among Herbaliſts, Cor is taken to ſignify, the inward ſoft, pithy and ſpungy part of any Tree or Plant, which they alſo call Medulla and Matrix Arboris.

Cor Caroli, a ſingle Star in the Northern Hemiſphere, ſeated between the Coma Berenices and Urſa Major; ſo call'd in honour of King Charles II.

Cor Hydræ, a fixed Star of the firſt Magnitude or Light, in the Conſtellation of Hydra; its Longitude is 142 Deg. 49 Min. Latitude 22 Deg. 23 Min.

Cor Leonis, a fixed Star otherwiſe nam'd Baſilicus and Regulus. See Baſilicus.

Cora, (Gr.) the apple, ſight, or black of the Eye.

Coracia, the Corniſh Chough or Killegrew, a ſort of Bird.

Coracinus, a black Fiſh, peculiar to the River Nile; the Crow-fiſh.

Coracle, a ſmall Boat us'd by Fiſher-men on the River Severn, and made of ſplit Sally-twigs, cover'd with Leather, or Horſe-hides; ſo that one Man ſeating himſelf in it, rows with one Hand very ſwiftly, and with the other can manage his Net, Angle, or other Fiſhing-tackle.

Coracobotane, (Gr.) a Shrub call'd Butchers-broom.

Coracobrachialis or Coracobrachiæus, (in Anat.) a Muſcle which ariſes from the end of the Proceſſus Coracoides of the Shoulder-blade, and is inſerted to the middle of the inner part of the Os Humeri or Shoulder-bone: When this Muſcle acts, the Arm is moved upwards and turned ſomewhat obliquely outwards.

Coracohyoides, are Muſcles which take riſe from the Proceſs of the Shoulder-blade nam'd Coracoides, and go as far as the Bone Hyoides; their Uſe being to move obliquely downward.

Coracoides, a Proceſs of the Shoulder-blade, which takes Name from its Figure reſembling that of a Crow's Bill.

Coral, a Plant turn'd to Stone, or rather a Shoot from a Rock that has receiv'd the form of a Plant: It grows under deep hollow Rocks in many Places of the Mediterranean Sea, and elſewhere, where, being of ſeveral Colours; as White, Red, Black and Skie-blew; ſome are alſo found of two Colours, Red and Black.

Coral-wort, an Herb growing near Mayfield in Suſſex, good for the Stone, and to eaſe Pains in the Sides and Belly: It is alſo call'd Tooth-wort, from the reſemblance its Root bears to Teeth.

Corallachates, (Gr.) a kind of Agate-ſtone, the Spots of which are like Coral.

Coralline, a ſort of Moſs that ſticks to Rocks, and is otherwiſe call'd Coral-moſs, or Sea-moſs.

Corallis, (Gr.) a precious Stone like Sinoper or red Lead.

Corallium or Coralium, Coral that grows on Rocks in the Sea.

Coram non Judice, (Lat. i. e. before no Judge) a Law-Expreſſion us'd when a Cauſe is brought in a Court, of which the Judges have not any Juriſdiction.

Corax, (Gr.) the Raven or Crow, a Bird; alſo the Crow, or Raven-fiſh.

Corban, a Hebrew Word us'd in Scripture for a Gift, or Offering made on the Altar; properly the Treaſure that was kept for the Uſe of the Temple, or Prieſts at Jeruſalem.

Corbeil, (Fr.) a Baſket, a wide Baſket: In Fortification, Corbeils are little Baſkets about a Foot and a half high, eight Inches broad at the bottom, and twelve at the top, which being fill'd with Earth are often ſet one againſt another on Breaſt-works or elſewhere, leaving certain Port-holes, from whence to fire upon the Enemy under Covert; without being diſcover'd by them.

Corbel, Corbil, or Corbet, (in Maſonry) a Shouldering-piece, or jutting out in Walls, to bear up a Poſt, Summer, or other Weight.

Corbel or Corbetel, a Nich in the Wall of a Church, or other Building, in which an Image was plac'd for Ornament or Superſtition.

Corbel-ſtones, certain ſmooth poliſhed Stones that were laid in the Front and out-ſide of the Corbels or Niches.

Corchorus, (Gr.) the Herb Pimpernel, or Chick-weed.

Corciouſneſs, (old Word) Corpulency, or groſneſs of Body.

Corculus, (Lat.) a little Heart; alſo the Water-bettle, an Inſect ſhap'd like a Heart.

Cord, a Rope, or Line: Alſo a ſtraight Sinew in the Fore-legs of an Horſe, which comes from the Shackle-Vein to the griſtle of his Noſe; or a couple of Strings that lie above the Knee, and run like ſmall Cords through the Body to the Noſtrils, which cauſes a Horſe to ſtumble and ſometimes fall. For Cord in Geometry, See Chord.

Cords or Chords, (in Muſick) properly ſignify the Strings of a Harp, Viol, Violin, Lute, or any other Muſical Inſtrument: But the Term is alſo apply'd to denote the Sounds that proceed from ſuch Inſtruments, even from thoſe that have no Strings.

Cord of Wood, a parcel of Fire-wood containing in Meaſure four Foot in Breadth, as many in Height, and eight Foot in Length.

Cordage, the Rigging or Tackle of a Ship; alſo all kind of Stuff for the making of Ropes.

Cordeau, (Fr.) a Cord, or Line: In Fortification, a Line divided into Fathoms, Feet, &c. for the marking of Out-works on the Ground.

Cordelier, a Gray Frier of the Order of St. Francis, ſo call'd becauſe he wears a Cord full of Knots about his middle.

Cordial, (Lat.) good for the Heart, hearty, ſincere, free, open.

A Cordial, a ſort of Phyſical Drink, to comfort the Heart.

Cordon, (Fr.) the twiſt of a Rope, a String: In Architecture, a Plinth, or edge of Stone on the out-ſide of a Building: In Fortification, a row of Stones made round on the out-ſide, and ſet between the Wall of the Fortreſs that lies a-ſlope and the Parapet which ſtands upright; ſerving for an Ornament in Defences made of Maſons-work, and ranging round about the Place.

Cordovan-Leather, a ſort of Leather made of Goat-skins, in Corduba or Cordoua, a City of the Province of Andaluſia in Spain.

Cordwainer or Cordiner, a Shooe-maker, ſo call'd from the Skins of Cordovan-Leather, which were formerly brought over hither for Boots and Shoes, as now chiefly for Gloves.

Cordyla, (Gr.) the fry, or ſpawn of the Tunny-fiſh.

Coriago, (Lat.) a being clung, or hide-bound; a Diſeaſe in Cattel, when the Skin ſticks ſo cloſe to their Sides, that it cannot be ſtirr'd.

Coriandrum, (Gr.) the Herb Coriander ſomewhat like Parſley, but of a very ſtrong Scent, the Seed of which is uſeful in Phyſick.

Corinth, a very famous but now ruined City of Peloponneſus or the Morea, whoſe ancient Glory and Riches drew Envy, and was the Cauſe of its utter Deſtruction by the Romans.

Corinthian Braſs, a certain Compound of Gold, Silver and Copper, caſually mixt together upon the burning of that City, when many fine Statues and Veſſels of thoſe three Metals were melted down and ſo imbodied.

Corinthian Order, one of the five Orders of Architecture, in which the height of the Pillars contains nine of their Diameters; ſo nam'd becauſe Columns were firſt made of that Proportion at Corinth: It is much the ſame with the Ionick, except in the Capital, and the Flouriſhing is alſo ſomewhat different.

Corion or Coris, (Gr.) the Herb St. John's-wort, or Ground-pine; alſo the Chinch, a kind of Inſect.

Coritani, (Lat.) a People who inhabited that part of Great Britain which contains Northampton-ſhire, Leiceſter-ſhire, Rutland-ſhire, Lincoln-ſhire, Nottingham-ſhire and Derby-ſhire.

Cork-tree, a Tree of divers ſorts; but two are chiefly remarkable, viz. one bearing a narrower leſs jagged Leaf and perpetual, the other a broader and falling in Winter, the former is to be ſeen in the Phyſick-Garden at Chelſea.

Cormorant, a Water-fowl reſembling a Raven, with a Beak as long as the Tail, and flat Feet; figuratively taken for a Glutton, by reaſon of its greedy devouring of Fiſh.

Corn. See Grain.

Corn-flag, a Plant fit for By, or Out-borders in Gardens, by reaſon of its rambling with broad, long and ſtiff Leaves; its Flower being of ſeveral Colours, viz. red, white, and Aſh-colour'd.

Corn-flower or Blew-bottle, a Flower of which there are many ſorts raiſed from Seeds, and differing in Colour.

Corn-roſe or Wild-Poppey, a kind of Flower.

Corn-Sallet, a looſening and refreſhing Herb, the Top-leaves of which are a Sallet of themſelves ſeaſonably eaten with other Salletting, the whole Winter, and early in the Spring.

Cornachine Powder, a purging Powder ſometimes call'd the Earl of Warwick's Powder, and by foreign Writers Pulvis de tribus; as being made of equal parts of Antimonium diaphoreticum, Diagridium and Cream of Tartar.

Cornage, (in Common Law) a kind of Grand Serjeanty or Tenure, whereby ſome Lands in the Northern Parts of England were formerly held; which was to blow a Horn, to give notice of any Invaſion by the Northern Enemy: Alſo a certain Impoſition, or Tax upon Corn.

Cornalin, a kind of precious Stone, which ſome take to be the ſame as Corneol.

Cornavii, (Lat.) People who in old times poſſeſs'd part of this Iſland, comprehending thoſe Counties which are now call'd Warwick-ſhire, Worceſter-ſhire, Stafford-ſhire, Shrop-ſhire and Cheſhire.

Cornea Luna, a Chymical Term. See Luna Cornea.

Cornea Oculi Tunica, (in Anat.) the Second Coat of the Eye, otherwiſe nam'd Tunica dura and Sclerotes; proceeding from a Membrane, or Skin in the Brain call'd Dura Meninx: It is tranſparent forward, in order to ſend forth the Viſible Species, and contains the Aqueous Humour.

Cornel or Cornel-berry, a ſort of Fruit of a red Colour, and ſharp Taſte.

Cornel-tree. See Cornus.

Cornelian, a precious Stone of a red Colour, like that of Water in which raw Fleſh has been waſh'd.

Cornelian Law, a Law made by Cornelius Sylla the Roman Dictator, That any Perſon who would follow him in his Warlike Expeditions, ſhould be capable of bearing Offices, before they had attain'd to the Age appointed.

Cornelius, (Lat.) a proper Name of Men, taken from the Horn of War.

Cornemuſe, (Fr.) a kind of Bag-pipe, a Muſical Inſtrument.

Corneol, the ſame with the Cornelian-ſtone, which is very fit to be engraven, and much us'd for the making of Seals.

Corneous, belonging to, or like Horn, horny.

Cornet, a Shell-fiſh ſo call'd from its Figure reſembling a Horn: Alſo a kind of Shawm, a Muſical Inſtrument formerly us'd in Cathedrals, being the Treble to the Sackbut: Alſo a Farrier's Inſtrument to let a Horſe Bloud; or a ſort of Linnen Head-dreſs for Women: Alſo ſuch a piece of Paper as Grocers and other retailing Traders wrap up ſmall quantities of Wares in, wound about in ſhape of a Horn and commonly call'd A Cornet of Paper.

Cornet, is alſo a kind of black Taffety, which Doctors of Phyſick, or Law, us'd to wear on the Collar of their Robes, as a Badge of their Degree: Alſo the Standard or Colours of a Troop of Horſe, ſo termed becauſe it was uſually made of that Stuff; or the Commiſſion-Officer that bears ſuch a Standard, and is of equal Poſt with the Enſign among the Foot.

Cornice or Corniſh, (in Architect.) the third and higheſt part of the Entablature, and commonly us'd to ſignify the uppermoſt Ornament of any Wainſcot, &c. the Creſt, or flouriſhing Work at the upper end of a Pillar, which is different according to the ſeveral Orders: Alſo an Ornament in Joyners-work ſet round the top of a Room or Bed, or for the roof of a Coach, &c.

Cornice-ring of a piece of Ordnance, (in Gunnery) is that which lies next the Trunnion-ring, or next from the Muzzle-ring backwards.

Cornicula, (Lat.) a little Crow, a Chough, Daw, or Jack-daw.

Cornicularis Proceſſus, (in Anat.) the Proceſs or Knob of the Shoulder-bone, reſembling the Figure of a Crow's Beak; the ſame as Ancyroides.

Corniculate Plants, (among Herbaliſts) are ſuch as after each Flower produce many diſtinct and horned Seed-pods, or Siliquæ, whence they are alſo termed Multiſiliquous; as Columbines, Houſe-leek, Lark-ſpur, &c.

Cornix, (Lat.) a Crow, a Rook, a Chough.

Cornoceraſum, a wild hard Cherry, growing in Italy.

Cornu, the Horn of a Beaſt, a Cornet, Horn, or Trumpet to blow with.

Cornu Cervi, Harts-horn: Among Chymiſts, the Mouth of an Alembic or Still; alſo the Herb Bucks-horn.

Cornu-Copia, the Horn of Plenty, which according to the Fable, afforded good ſtore of all things that could be wiſh'd for, by a peculiar Privilege that Jupiter gave his Nurſe Amalthœa: Whence it is figuratively taken for great Plenty, or abundance of all things.

Cornua Uteri, (in Anat.) two Side-parts of the Matrix in ſome brute Beaſts, as Cows, Harts, Sheep, Goats, &c. which Parts are likewiſe attributed by ſome Authors to the Womb in Women, from ſomething that reſembles them there, but a Woman's Womb is rarely bipartite, as it is in Brutes.

Cornus, the Cornel-tree of both Sexes; the Female call'd Dog-tree, or the wild Cherry-tree. The Wood of this Tree is commendable for its durableneſs and uſe in Wheel-work, Pins, Wedges, &c. in which it laſts like the hardeſt Iron.

Cornuta, a Sea-fiſh call'd a Gurnard.

Cornute, horned, or having Horns; a Cuckold: Alſo a kind of Chymical Still, or luted Mattraſs cover'd with Earth or Loam an Inch thick, having a crooked Neck, to which the Receiver ſet in Water is joyn'd; and ſerving to draw Spirits or Oils out of Woods, Minerals, and other things that require a ſtrong Heat.

To Cornute one, to make him a Cuckold.

Cornutum Argumentum, (among Logicians) a Sophiſtical or ſubtil Argument, as it were horned.

Corocotta, a kind of mungrel Beaſt in the Indies, bred of a Lion and a Panther, or of a Dog and a She-wolf.

Corodio habendo, a Writ for exacting a Corody, out of any Abbey or Religious Houſe.

Corody, (in Common Law) a Summ of Money, or an Allowance of Meat, Drink, and Cloathing, heretofore due to the King, from an Abbey, or Monaſtery of which he was the Founder, towards the Maintenance of any one of his Servants on whom he thought fit to beſtow ſuch a Gratuity. Corodies alſo ſometimes belong'd to Biſhops from certain Monaſteries.

Corollaria, (Lat.) the Coronets, or Rewards which the old Romans uſually gave to Stage-players, Champions, or Fencers, above their due: But the Word Corollary, is now taken to ſignify a conſequent Propoſition, or Inference.

In Mathematicks, Corollary, is an uſeful Conſequence drawn from ſomething that has been already advanced, or demonſtrated; as if from ſuch a Propoſition, viz. That a Triangle which has two equal Sides, has alſo two Angles equal, This Conſequence ſhould be inferr'd, That a Triangle which has the three Sides equal, has alſo its three Angles equal.

Corona, (Lat.) a Crown, a Coronet, a Garland: Alſo a clear Circle appearing in a Cloud about the Sun, Moon, or any other bright Star: In Architecture, the flat and moſt advanced part of the Cornice, which among the French is call'd

Larmier, and by us the Eaves or Drip, becauſe it defends the reſt of the Work from Wind and Weather; but it is often taken by Vitruvius for the whole Cornice.

Corona or The flat Crown, is alſo a particular Member in the Dorick Gate, made by ſo extraordinary an Enlargement of the Larmier, or Drip, that it has ſix times more Breadth than Projecture.

Corona Borealis or The Northern Garland, a Conſtellation in the Northern Hemiſphere, conſiſting of about 20 Stars.

Corona Caſtrenſis & Vallaris, (among the Romans) a Crown made of Gold and Silver, with Pales round about like ſo many Rays; which was granted to thoſe that forc'd the Palliſadoes, or Camp of the Enemy, and beat them out of their Trenches.

Corona Meridionalis, a Southern Conſtellation made up of 13 Stars.

Coronale, (in Anat.) the Coronal Bone, or the Bone of the Forehead, the ſame as Frontis Os; which See.

Coronalis Sutura, a Seam, or Cleft in the upper part of the Scull, ſhap'd like a Crown, or Comb; which joyns as if the Teeth of two Saws were cloſely faſten'd one into another, and reaches from one Bone of the Temples to the other.

Coronare Filios, a Phraſe us'd in ſome ancient Writers: Thus Tenants in Villenage were heretofore forbid Coronare Filios, i. e. to cauſe their Sons to receive the firſt Tonſure, or Shaving, which was in form of a Crown of Thorns, in order to make them Prieſts; becauſe Ordination chang'd their Condition, and gave them Freedom, to the Prejudice of their Lord, who could before claim them as his Natives, or born Servants.

Coronaria Vaſa, (in Anat.) are the Veins and Arteries which encompaſs the Baſis of the Heart like a Garland, and ſerve to nouriſh it.

Coronation, the Crowning of a Soveraign Prince; as The Coronation of the Queen of England.

Coronatore eligendo, a Writ, which after the Death, or Diſcharge of any Coroner, is directed to the Sheriff, to call together the Free-holders of the County, for the Choice of a new Coroner, and to certify into the Chancery, both the Election and Name of the Party Elected, and to give him his Oath.

Corone, (Gr.) a Crow, Chough, or Daw; a Bird: In Anatomy, an acute Proceſs of the lower Jaw-bone, which takes Name from its reſembling a Crow's Beak, and is therefore otherwiſe call'd Roſtriformis.

Coroneola, the Muſk-roſe, or rather the Canker-roſe, a Roſe that grows in Autumn.

Coroner, an ancient Officer of the Realm, ſo call'd, becauſe he acts altogether for the Queen and Crown, and his Office chiefly concerns Pleas of the Crown: He is uſually aſſiſted by a Jury of Twelve Men, and ſits upon the Bodies of ſuch as are found dead, to enquire whether they dy'd a Violent, or a Natural Death, &c. There are four of theſe Officers in every County, and they are choſen by the Freeholders of the ſame.

Coroner of the Verge or of the Queen's Houſe, an Officer that has Juriſdiction within the Verge, or Compaſs of the Queen's Court.

Coronet, a little Crown, or Chaplet.

Coronis, (Gr.) the peak, or top of a Hill, the Concluſion of a Book, or a Mark ſet at the end of it: In Architecture, the Cornice, or Top-ornament of a Pillar, or other Member of Building.

Coronopus, the Herb Buck's-horn, or Dog's-tooth, Swine-creſſes.

Corpora Cavernoſa Penis, (Lat. in Anat.) are two Capſulæ or little long Bags in the Yard, fenc'd every where on the out-ſide with a thick Skin: They ſpring with two diſtinct Originals from the lower Side of the Os Pubis, or Share-bone, and are joyn'd to each other by a Septum intermedium, which the nearer it comes to the Glans is the more diminiſhed.

Corpora Glanduloſa. See Proſtatæ.

Corpora Pyramidalia, are certain Protuberances, or bunching out Knobs of the under part of the Brain, which are about an Inch in length.

Corpora Striata, are Protuberances on the Crura Medullæ Oblongatæ. See Crura.

Corporal, belonging to the Body, Bodily.

Corporal Oath, is ſo call'd, becauſe the Party that takes an Oath, is oblig'd to touch with his Hand, the Bible, or ſome part of the Holy Scriptures.

A Corporal, an inferiour Officer of Foot-Soldiers, who has the Charge of one of the Diviſions of a Company, places and relieves Sentinels, and keeps good Order in the Corps de Garde.

A Corporal, (at Sea) an Officer who is oblig'd to look to all the ſmall Shot and Arms, to keep them fixed and clean, with due Proportions of Match, &c. and to exerciſe the Muſketeers on Board the Ship.

A Corporal, is alſo a Communion-cloth us'd in the Church of Rome, being a ſquare piece of fine Linnen, on which the Chalice and Hoſt are plac'd by the Prieſt Officiating at Maſs.

Corporate, united into one Body, in a Political Senſe; as A Corporate Body, i. e. a Community of the Inhabitants of a Town, or Village; a Company of Tradeſmen, &c.

Corporation, (in Common Law) a Company of Men united and joyn'd together into one Fellowſhip, of which one is Head, and the reſt are the Body; being impower'd by the Queen's Charter to have a Common Seal, and able by their common Conſent, to grant, or receive in Law, any thing within the Compaſs of their Charter: Theſe are conſtituted either by Preſcription, by Letters Patent, or by Act of Parliament; and are either Spiritual, or Temporal.

Corporation Spiritual, and of dead Perſons in the Law, a Coporation conſiſting of an Abbot and Convent, heretofore Eſtabliſhed by the King and Pope. Corporation Spiritual, and of able Perſons in Law, is where it conſiſts of a Dean and Chapter, a Maſter of a College, or Hoſpital; and this had beginning from the King only.

Corporation Temporal by the Queen, is where there is a Mayor and Commonalty. Corporation Temporal by the Common-Law, is the Parliament which conſiſts of the Queen the Head, with the Lords Spiritual and Temporal, and the Commons, the Body.

Corporature, the Form, Bulk, or Conſtitution of the Body.

Corporeal, belonging to a Bodily Subſtance.

Corporeity, the School-term for the Nature of a Body; a being of ſuch, or ſuch a Subſtance.

Corporification, a making into a Body: In Chymiſtry, it is a giving a Spirit the ſame Body, or one very like to that it had before Spiritualization.

Corps, a dead Body, or Carcaſs.

Corps de Battaile, (Fr. in the Art of War) the main Body of an Army drawn up for Battel.

Corps de Garde, a Poſt in an Army ſometimes under Covert, and ſometimes in the open Air, to receive a Number of Men ſet to Watch in their Turns, for the Security of ſome more conſiderable Poſt; it is alſo often taken for the Men themſelves that are plac'd in ſuch a Poſt.

Corps de Reſerve. See Line of Battel, and Rear-guard.

Corps Politick or Bodies Politick, are Biſhops, Deans, Parſons of Churches, and ſuch ſuch like, who have Succeſſion in one Perſon only.

Corpulency, bigneſs, bulkineſs, or groſsneſs of Body.

Corpulent, big-bodied, groſs, fat, bulky.

Corpus, (Lat.) a Body, all manner of Subſtance.

Corpus cum cauſa, a Writ iſſuing out of the Chancery, to remove both the Body and the Record, relating to the Cauſe of any Man lying in Execution upon a Judgment for Debt into the Queen's Bench, &c. there to continue till he have ſatisfy'd the Debt.

Corpus Calloſum, (in Anat.) is the upper Part, or Covering of a Space made by the joyning together of the right and left Side of the inward Subſtance of the Brain. This Space forms the three Diviſions, call'd, Ventricles, and the Foramen Ovale.

Corpus Chriſti, a College in Oxford, built by Richard Fox, Biſhop of Wincheſter, A. D. 1516. There is alſo in Cambridge a College of the ſame Name, Founded by John of Gaunt, Duke of Lancaſter, in 1344.

Corpus Chriſti Day, a Feſtival appointed in honour of the Holy Sacrament of the Lord's Supper: It is mention'd, 32 H. 8. c. 21. According to which Statute, Trinity-Term is always to begin the Friday next after this Feaſt.

Corpus Varicoſum or Pampineforme, a Term in Anatomy. See Varicoſum Corpus, & Pampineforme Corpus.

Corpuſcles, (in Natural Philoſophy) ſignifie the Particles, ſmalleſt Parts, or Phyſical Atoms of a Body.

Corpuſcular, belonging to ſuch Atoms; as The Corpuſcular Philoſophy, i. e. is the moſt ancient Method of Philoſophizing, which endeavours to explain things, and to give an account of the Phænomena, or Appearances of Nature by the Figure, Situation, Motion, Reſt, &c. of Corpuſcles, or very ſmall Parts of Matter, according to the Principles of Leucippus, Epicurus, Democritus, and others.

Corr, a certain Meaſure containing two Quarts.

Corrago, (Lat.) the Herb Corage, or Bugloſs.

To Correct, to amend, or mend the Faults, to reclaim or reform, to reprove or check, to chaſtiſe or puniſh, to temper or allay.

Correctio, (Lat.) a Figure in Rhetorick, when one unſays what he has ſaid, and ſays ſomewhat inſtead of it more fit. It is otherwiſe call'd Epanorthoſis, which See.

Correction, the Act of Correcting, or Mending; Amendment, Puniſhment, Reproof. In Pharmacy, or the Apothecaries Art, 'tis when Salt, or ſome other thing is added to a Medicine, to quicken it; or when it is mended, or made better, that ſome of the Ingredients may not prove hurtful.

Corrective, that ſerves to Correct, Temper, or Allay; as A Corrective Medicine.

A Corrective, ſuch a ſort of Remedy.

Corrector, one that Corrects, or Amends.

Corrector of a Printing-houſe, a Man of Letters, who takes care that all literal Faults, and others in the Compoſing of every Sheet be duly mended, before it is wrought off at the Preſs.

Corrector of the Staple, a Clerk belonging to the Staple, that Records the Bargains of Merchants made there.

Correctorium, (in the Art of Phyſick) any thing that ſerves to correct, or improve Medicines.

Correlative, that has mutual Relation one to another: Thus the Terms, Father and Son, Husband and Wife, Maſter and Servant, among Logicians, are ſaid To be Correlatives. There are alſo other Correlatives, which are conſider'd with reſpect to their contrary Effects; as To gain and to loſe, to bind and to ſet free, to gather and to ſcatter abroad, &c.

Correptio, (Lat.) a Correcting in Words, a Rebuking, or Checking; Reproof, Puniſhment: Alſo a Grammatical Figure, otherwiſe call'd Syllepſis; which See.

To Correſpond, to anſwer, or agree; to make ſuitable Returns to one's Friendſhip, or good Offices.

Correſpondence, holding Intelligence, Intercourſe; Mutual Commerce, or Familiarity.

Correſpondency, Agreement, Anſwerableneſs, or Proportion of one thing to another.

Correſpondent, Correſponding, ſuitable, or agreeable.

A Correſpondent, one that holds Correſpondence, or with whom it is kept. In the way of Trade, when two Men hold a mutual Familiarity, or Intercourſe by Letters, Invoices, &c. They are ſaid To be Correſpondents.

Corridor, (Fr.) a kind of Gallery that ſurrounds a Building: In Fortfication, the Covert-way above the Counterſcarp, lying round about the Compaſs of the Place, between the Moat and the Palliſadoes.

Corrigible, (Lat.) that may be corrected, or amended.

Corrigidor, (Span.) a chief Governour, or Mayor of a City, or Town Corporate among the Spaniards.

Corrival, (properly one that drinks of the ſame Stream with another) a Competitour, one that makes Suit in the ſame Buſineſs, or Courts the ſame Miſtreſs.

Corroborantia, (Lat.) Medicines that ſtrengthen, and comfort the Parts.

To Corroborate, to ſtrengthen a feeble, or diſeaſed Part, to confirm, or make good an Evidence, or Argument.

Corroboration, the Act of Corroborating, Strengthning, or making Firm.

Corroborative, that ſerves to Corroborate, or Strengthen.

To Corrode, to eat through, to gnaw; to fret, or gall.

Corrodentia, (Lat.) Medicines that eat away, or conſume proud Fleſh.

Corrodible, that may be corroded.

Corroſibility, (among Chymiſts) is the Power, or Faculty of being corroded, eaten, or diſſolved by any Corroſive Menſtruum, or Liquor.

Corroſio, (Lat.) a Corroding, or Gnawing. Corroſio Chymica, a diſſolving of Mixt Bodies by Corroſive Menſtruums.

Corroſion, a Gnawing, or Fretting.

Corroſive, that has a gnawing, or fretting Quality.

A Corroſive, a Corroding Medicine.

Corroſiveneſs, a being Corroſive, the Quality that ſome Liquors which are call'd Menſtruums, have of corroding, or diſſolving Bodies.

Corruda, (Lat.) an Herb, call'd Wild Speerage.

Corrugant Muſcles, (according to ſome Anatomiſts) are thoſe that help to knit the Brows when one frowns; but they ſeem to be only a part of the Frontal Muſcles, which have their Fibres in this Place, running ſomewhat obliquely.

† Corrugation, a Wrinkling, or drawing into Wrinkles.

Corrugator Supercilii, a Muſcle of the Eye-brow. See Corrugant Muſcles.

Corrupt, ſtark nought, rotten, tainted, vicious, bribed.

To Corrupt, to marr or ſpoil, to deſtroy or waſte, to debauch or defile, to infect or taint, to pervert or bribe; alſo to become corrupt, to putrify.

Corruptibility, the State of that which is Corruptible, Aptneſs, or Proneneſs to be Corrupted.

Corruptible, that may be Corrupted, or Subject to Corruption.

Corruption, a Corrupting, Marring, Tanting, &c. a ſpoiling of Morals, or Manners; the Falſification of a Paſſage in a Book: Alſo Rottenneſs, the Corrupt, or Rotten Matter of a Sore: In Philoſophy, it is defined to be the Deſtruction, Extinction, or at leaſt the Ceſſation for a Time of the proper Mode of Exiſtence, or Being of any Natural Body.

Corruption of Blood, (in a Law-Senſe) is an Infection that happens to the Blood, Iſſue and Eſtate of a Man Attainted of Treaſon, or Felony, whereby he forfeits all to the Queen, or other Lord of the Fee, and both he and his Children are made Ignoble; beſides that his Iſſue cannot be Heirs to him, or to any other Anceſtour, of whom they might have claim'd by him.

Corruptive, apt to Corrupt.

Corſair, (Fr.) a Courſer, Pirate, or Robber by Sea, ſuch as Scour the Seas with armed Veſſels, to plunder and rob Merchants Ships.

Corſe-preſent, (Law-Term) an Offering of the beſt Beaſt belonging to a deceaſed Perſon, anciently made to the Pariſh-Prieſt, and ſo call'd, becauſe the Beaſt was preſented with the Body at the Funeral.

Corſelet or Corſlet, a kind of Armour for a Pike-man, or a Pike-man ſo Armed; alſo a ſort of broad Girdle.

Corſned, (Sax.) Ordeal-bread, or imprecated Bread; a Superſtitious Way of Purgation among our Saxon Anceſtours, when the Party accuſed of any Crime, eat a piece of Bread, Conſecrated to that Uſe by a Prieſt, with Solemn Oaths and Wiſhing of Curſes, That it might prove Poiſon to him, or his laſt Morſel, if what he then aſſerted, or deny'd, were not punctually true.

Corſoides, (Gr.) a certain Stone, in Colour like the hoary whiteneſs of an old Man's Hair.

Cortex, (Lat.) the Bark, or Rind of a Tree, &c. a Shell, or Pill.

Cortex Peruvianus, the Jeſuit's Bark. See Quinquina.

Cortex Winteranus, a kind of Cinnamon, brought firſt from the Indies by one Captain Winter.

Corticalis Subſtantia Cerebri, (in Anat.) the Cortical, or outward Barky Subſtance of the Brain; full of Turnings and Windings on the out-ſide. It is cover'd with a thin Skin, and is of an Aſh, griſly Colour: Its Uſe is thought by ſome to be the breeding of Animal Spirits; and the Seat of the Memory and Sleep, is plac'd there by many Anatomiſts.

Cortin. See Courtin.

Cortularium or Cortarium, (in old Latin Records) a Court, or Yard adjoyning to a Country-farm.

Corvet. See Curvet.

Corus, an Hebrew Meaſure of thirty Buſhels, as much as a Camel can carry. See Choner.

Corus or Caurus, (Gr.) the North-Weſt Wind.

† Coruſcant, (Lat.) ſhining, bright.

Coruſcation, a Lightening, Flaſhing, or Glittering: According to the Carteſians, it is an Exhalation, or Vapour ſpread under a Cloud, which ruſhing downwards, is ſet on Fire, and Flaſhes.

Corvulus, (Lat.) the Crow-fiſh.

Corvus, the Raven, or Crow, a Bird; alſo a Fiſh, call'd a Cabot: Alſo a Southern Conſtellation in the Heavens, conſiſting of ſeven Stars.

Corvus Everſor, the Demoliſh-crow, an Engine us'd by the ancient Romans to beat down Walls, &c.

Corydalus, (Gr.) the Lark, a Singing-bird.

Corylus, the Haſel-tree, or Filberd-tree.

Corymbia or Corymbe, climbing Ivy, an Herb, often us'd outwardly upon Iſſues, and for Pains in the Ears.

Corymbiferous Plants, (among Herbaliſts) are ſuch as have a Compound diſcous Flower, but their Seeds have no Down ſticking to them: Of this kind is the Daiſy, Camomile, Tanſy, Yarrow, &c.

Corymbites, a kind of Spurge with broad Leaves.

Corymbus, a Bunch, or Cluſter of Ivy-berries; the Head, tuft, or round top of an Artichoke, Thiſtle, Leak, Onion, &c. Some confound the Word with Umbella, i. e. the Flowery Top of ſuch Plants as have their Branches and Flowers ſpread round in form of what our Women now call an Umbrella: But among Modern Herbaliſts, it is us'd for a compounded diſcous Flower, whoſe Seeds are not Pappous, or do not fly away in Down.

Coryphe, the Crown of the Head; alſo the inner end of the Fingers near the Nails.

Coryza, the Poſe, the falling down of a ſharp, ſalt and thick Humour out of the Head upon the Noſtrils, Mouth, Lungs, &c. the Snick, a Stuffing in the Head, a Rheum, or Running at the Noſe.

Cos, (Lat.) a Whet-ſtone, a Hone, a Grind-ſtone.

Cos Vinum, a ſort of Wine, excellent for Colour, Smell and Taſte.

Coſcinomancy, (Gr.) a kind of Divination, or Sooth-ſaying by a Sieve.

Co-Secant, (Lat. in Mathem.) is the Secant of an Arch, which is the Complement of another to 90 Degrees.

To Coſen. See To Cozen.

Coſenage or Cognatione, a Writ that lies where the Treſayle, or Father of the great Grandfather, holds Lands and Tenements to him and his Heirs for ever, and at his Death a Stranger enters and abates, or intrudes; in which Caſe, his Heir ſhall have this Writ of Coſenage. See Beſayle.

Coſh or Cotterel, (old Word) a Cottage, or Hut.

Coſhacks, a ſort of Girdles worn by Turkiſh Women.

Coſhering, (in the Feudal Laws) a Prerogative that ſome Lords of Manours had to lie and feaſt themſelves with their Followers at their Tenants Houſes.

Coſier, (old Word) a Botcher, otherwiſe call'd a Sowter.

Co-Sine, (in Geom.) the Right Sine which is the Complement of another to a Quadrant, or 90 Degrees.

Coſmeticks, (Gr.) Medicines that whiten and ſoften the Skin, or in general any thing that helps to promote the Comelineſs, or good Appearance of the Perſon that uſes it; particularly Womens Ornaments, or Waſhes, as Waters, Pomatums, Paſtes, &c. Which ſerve to Beautify the Skin, and keep the Complexion freſh.

Coſmical, (in Aſtron.) belonging to, or according to the Courſe of the World: Thus a Star is ſaid To riſe Coſmically, when it riſes together with the Sun, or with that Degree of the Ecliptick in which the Sun then abides; and the Coſmical Setting, is when a Star ſets, or goes down in the Weſt, at the ſame Inſtant that the Sun riſes in the Eaſt.

Coſmographer, a Perſon skill'd in Coſmography.

Coſmographical, belonging to that Science.

Coſmography, a Deſcription of the viſible World; a Science which ſhews the Frame of the Univerſe, or whole World, examining its Figure, Bigneſs and Diſpoſition of all its Parts, with their reſpective Diſtances, Motions, and other Properties: The two Branches of this Science are Aſtronomy and Geography.

Coſmometry, a Meaſuring of the World by Degrees and Minutes, being a part of Coſmography, or Geography.

Coſſacks, a certain Militia, or Body of Soldiers ſet up in Poland by King Stephen Bathorius: They were formerly Volunteers of Ruſſia, Volhinia and Podolia, that made it their Buſineſs to Exerciſe Piracy upon the Black Sea.

Coſſe and Coſſick, the old Word for Algebra; to which the Italians gave the Latin Name of Regula Rei & Cenſûs, i.e. the Rule of the Root and the Square, calling the Root Res, and the Square Cenſus; ſo that the Term Coſſick is deriv'd from Coſa, the Italian Word for Res, or the Root; and ſome Writers call the Powers of Numbers, as the Root, the Square, the Cube, &c. Coſſick Numbers.

Coſſet, a Lamb, Colt, Calf, &c. fallen and brought up by hand without the Dam.

Coſſick, belonging to Algebra, as Coſſick Quantities, Numbers, or Powers. See Coſſe.

Coſſis, (Lat.) an Inſect that breeds in Wood, a Timber-worm.

Coſt, Charge, Price: In Heraldry, the fourth part of a Bend, or the half of a Gartier, which in the Plural Number is expreſs'd Cottiſes.

Coſt-mary or Coſt-weed, a Garden-herb, otherwiſe call'd Ale-coſt, or Maudlin.

Coſtæ, (Lat. in Anat.) the Ribs, or thoſe Bones, which with other Parts make the Thorax, or Cheſt; being joyn'd backward with the Vertebra's of the Back, and forward with the Cartilages, or Griſtles of the Sternum, or Breaſt-bone: They are twelve in number on each Side; of theſe the ſeven upper are call'd Coſtæ veræ, or True Ribs, becauſe their griſtly ends are receiv'd into the Sinus, or hollow of the Sternum; and the five lower bear the Name of Spurious, or Baſtard ones, upon account of their being ſhorter and ſofter.

Coſtard, a kind of Apple.

Coſtard-monger, a Seller of Apples, a Fruiterer.

Coſteta, (in old Latin Records) a Coaſt, or Sea-coaſt.

Coſtive, ſubject to be bound in Body.

Coſtons. See Chards of Artichokes.

Coſtrel, (old Word) a Wine-pot, or a kind of Bottle.

Coſtus, (Gr.) a Shrub that grows in Syria and Arabia, having a Root of a moſt pleaſant ſpicy Smell: Alſo a Drug brought from the Indies, of which there is the ſweet and the bitter ſort; alſo an Herb, commonly call'd Coſt-mary.

Cot, an old Word for a Cottage.

Cot or Cot-gare, a kind of refuſe Wooll, ſo clung, or clotted together, that it cannot be pull'd aſunder.

Co-Tangent, (in Geom.) is the Tangent of an Arch of a Circle, which is the Complement of another to 90 Degrees.

Cotarius. See Coterellus.

Contemporary. See Contemporary.

Coterelli, (in ancient Latin Deeds) a ſort of ſtraggling Thieves and Plunderers, who ſeem at firſt to have been Cottagers and Country-fellows, like the Moſs-troopers on the Borders of Scotland.

Coterellus, was alſo a kind of Servile Tenant that held Lands in meer Villenage, having his Perſon, Iſſue and Goods diſpoſed of at the Pleaſure of his Lord; in which reſpect ſuch a Tenant was diſtinguiſh'd from Cotarius, who had a free Soccage-Tenure, and paid a ſtated Rent in Proviſions, or Money, with ſome occaſional cuſtomary Services.

Coteria, a Cottage, Cot, Houſe, or Homeſtall.

Coteswold, (old Word) a ſet of Sheep-coats, or a Flock of Sheep feeding on Hills; whence a part of Gloceſter-ſhire took its Name.

Cotinus, (Gr.) a kind of wild Olive; alſo Curriers, or Venice-Sumach, a Shrub.

Cotland or Cotſethland, (Sax.) Land held by a Cottager.

Cotonea or Cydonia Malus, (Lat.) the Quince-tree, the Fruit of which is of a binding Quality, and very agreeable to the Stomach.

Cotquean, a Man that is too buſy in meddling with Womens Affairs.

Cotſethla, (in old Latin Records) a Cotſettle, little Manſion, or Seat belonging to a ſmall Farm.

Cotſethus, a Cottager, or Cottage-holder, who by Servile Tenure was bound to work for his Lord.

Cotta, the Coot, a kind of Water-fowl. See Cottum.

Cottage, a little Houſe in the Country, properly ſuch a one as is without any Land; or that has but four Acres belonging to it.

Cottager, one that lives in a Cottage.

Cottanum. See Coctanum.

Cotterel, a Word us'd for a Cottage, in Doomſday-book, and other ancient Records.

Cottiſes, (in Heraldry) certain Subdiviſions from the Bend, of which they make but two third Parts, and take up no more than a fourth, or fifth Part of the Eſcutcheon.

Cotton, a ſort of Stuff contained in the Fruit of the Tree of the ſame Name, a Shrub that grows in India, Arabia and Egypt: Alſo the woolly Down, or Moſſineſs of ſome Fruits.

To Cotton, to Frize, or wear Nappy, as ſome Stuffs do; to ſucceed, to hit, to agree.

Cotton-weed or Cud-weed, a ſort of Herb.

Cottum, (in ancient Latin Deeds) Cot or Dag-wooll, of which Cotta, or courſe Blankets were anciently made: Hence in making Hats, To Cotton well, is when the Wooll, and other Materials work well and imbody together.

Cotuchan, a Word us'd in Doomſday-book for Boars, or Husband-men.

Cotula, (Lat.) a little Whet-ſtone: Cotula fœtida, the Herb ſtinking May-weed; a ſort of Camomile.

Coturnix, the Quail; a Bird.

Cotyla, (Gr.) a Saucer, a Diſh; alſo a ſort of Herb, or Weed, Mother-wort, Cover-few, May-weed, Dog-fennel. Alſo a kind of ancient Meaſure for Liquids, the ſame as the Roman Hemina, much about an Engliſh Pint.

Cotyla Attica, a dry Meaſure among the Athenians, containing nine Ounces.

Cotyle, the ſame as Cotyla: In Anatomy, the Cavity, or Hollow of the Huckle-bone, which receives the Head of the Thigh-bone; alſo the hollow part of the Hand.

Cotyledon, the ſame with Cotyle; alſo an Herb, call'd great Penny-wort, Wall Penny-wort, Venus-navel, or Navel-wort.

Cotelydones or Acetabula Uterina, certain Glandules, which take Name from the Reſemblance they bear to the Leaves of the Herb Penny-wort; and are diſperſed up and down the Chorion, or outermoſt Membrane that covers the Fœtus; their uſe being to ſeparate the Nutritious Juice from the Womb to nouriſh the Fœtus, or Young: But theſe Glands are only found in ſome Creatures, and the Placenta in the Womb ſupplies their Place in Women. The gaping Meetings of the Veins in the Womb are alſo call'd Cotelydones and Acetabula.

To Couch, to comprehend, or compriſe, to lie down; to take off the Web of an Eye, as Oculiſts do; to ſet a Lance on the reſt.

Couch-weed, Couch-graſs, or Quitch-graſs, a kind of Herb.

Couchant, (Fr.) lying, or ſquating cloſe to the Ground; a Term more eſpecially us'd in Heraldry for a Lion, repreſented in a Coat of Arms lying on his Belly, but with his Head upright.

Coucher, an old Word for a Factor reſiding in ſome Foreign Country for Traffick, as formerly in Gaſcoigne to buy Wines; alſo a Setter, or Setting-dog. In ſome old Statutes, it is taken for a Book, in which a Corporation, &c. Regiſter their particular Acts.

Couching, the Huntſman's Term for a Boar's Lodging, as the diſlodging of that wild Beaſt is call'd Rearing the Boar.

Coudee, (Fr.) a Cubit, or Elbow; alſo a Term in Fortification. See Traverſes.

Covenable or Convenable, (old Law-word) convenient, ſuitable, or fit; as Convenably endowed, i. e. endowed as is fitting.

Covenant, a Bargain, or Agreement: In Divinity, a particular Diſpenſation whereby Almighty God deals with Mankind; as The Covenant of Works under the Levitical Law, and that of Grace under the Goſpel.

In Common Law, Covenant is the Conſent of ſeveral Parties to one thing, as to do, or give ſomewhat; being either Real, or Perſonal: The former, is that by which a Man ties himſelf to paſs a real Thing, as Lands or Tenements, to levy a Fine, &c. and a Covenant meerly Perſonal, is where a Man agrees with another to build him a Houſe, or to do him any Service, &c.

Covenant in Law, is that which the Law intends to be made, tho' it be not expreſs'd in Words; and Covenant in Fact, is that which is expreſly agreed upon between the Parties.

Covenant, is alſo the Name of a Writ that lies for the Breach of Covenants.

The Covenant or The Solemn League and Covenant, a particular Aſſociation, or Agreement of the People of England, made in the time of K. Charles I. which was Voted Illegal and Irreligious by Parliament, A. D. 1661. and ſuppreſs'd by Stat. 14. Car. 2.

To Covenant, to make a Covenant, or Agreement.

Covenanter, one that took the Presbyterian Covenant during the Civil Wars.

Covent or Convent, a Monaſtery, or Religious Houſe: In a Law-ſenſe, it is alſo taken for the Society, or Members of an Abby, or Priory.

Coventry, a noted City in Warwick-ſhire, ſo call'd from a Convent of Monks, anciently there ſettled: The firſt Lord of it is ſaid to be one Leofrick, who laying heavy Taxes upon the Inhabitants, remitted them at laſt at the earneſt Interceſſion of his Wife Godiva, upon Condition ſhe would ride naked thro' the chief Street of the City; which ſhe perform'd, but had her Body ſo cover'd with her long Hair, that it could not be eaſily diſcern'd.

Coventry-Bells, a kind of Flower.

Covercle or Coverkil, (old Word) a Cover, or Lid.

Coverlet, a Covering for a Bed.

Co-verſed Sine, (in Geom.) is the remaining part of the Diameter of a Circle, after the Verſed Sine is taken from it.

Covert, (Fr. Law-term) covered by, or under the Power of an Husband; as Femme Covert, i. e. a Marry'd Woman.

A Covert, a Thicket, or ſhady Place for Deer, or other Beaſts; a Hiding-place, or Shelter.

Covert-way, (in Fortif.) a Space of Ground level with the Field on the edge of the Ditch, which is three or four Fathom broad, and has a Parapet, or Breaſt-work with its Banquets and Glacis ranging quite round the Half-moons, and other Works towards the Country. This Covert-way is uſually Palliſado'd in the middle, and ſometimes call'd the Counterſcarp, from its being Situated on the Edge of it.

Coverture, (Fr.) a Cover, Covering, or Coverlet, any thing that covers; as Apparel, &c. In a Law-ſenſe, it is particularly apply'd to the State, or Condition of a Marry'd Woman, who by the Laws of England is under Covert Baron, i. e. under the Power, or Protection of her Husband, and therefore is diſabled to act, or make any Bargain without his Conſent and Privity.

To Covet, to deſire eagerly, to luſt after.

Covetable, that is to be coveted, or deſired.

Covetous, very deſirous; alſo ſtingy, griping, cloſe-fiſted, niggardly.

Covin or Covine, (Law-word) a deceitful Agreement between two or more Perſons, to the prejudice of another.

Coul, a kind of Tub, or Veſſel with two Ears, to be carry'd between two Perſons with a Coul-ſtaff.

To Coul, (in Archery) to ſhear, or cut the Feather of a Shaft high or low.

Couldray, (old Wold) a Grove of Haſel-trees.

Coulter, (Lat.) a Plough-ſhare.

Council, a general Aſſembly of the Clergy of a Nation, or particular Province, to determine matters of Religion: Alſo an Aſſembly of Counſellours to deliberate upon weighty Affairs of State, &c.

Common Council, a Meeting of a Select Number of the principal Citizens of London, choſen out of every Ward, to manage Publick Affairs within their ſeveral Precincts, and to act in concert with the Lord Mayor and Court of Aldermen.

Common-Council Man, a Member of that venerable Aſſembly.

Council or Counſel, a Counſellour or Advocate, one that pleads for his Client at the Bar of a Court of Juſtice.

Counſel, Advice.

To Counſel, to give Counſel, or Advice.

Counſellour, an Adviſer, eſpecially a Perſon well ſkill'd in the Law, who is conſulted in weighty Matters, or takes upon him to plead his Client's Cauſe.

Privy Counſellour, a Counſellour of State, one of the Queen's moſt Honourable Privy Council.

Count, a foreign Earl; as A Count of the Empire of Germany: Alſo a Law-Term ſignifying the original Declaration in a Proceſs chiefly in Real Actions; as Declaration is more frequently apply'd to Perſonal ones.

Count of Holt. See Cloacarius.

To Count, to reckon, to account or eſteem.

Count-Wheel, a Wheel in the ſtriking part of a Clock that moves round in 12 or 14 Hours, and is by ſome call'd the Locking-Wheel; becauſe it has commonly 2 Notches in it ſet at unequal Diſtances one from another, in order to make the Clock ſtrike 1, 2, 3, 4, &c.

Countee, an old Law-word for a Count or Earl, which before the Conqueſt was the higheſt Title of Dignity next to a Duke: The Countee had alſo the Charge and Cuſtody of the County, and is now ſucceeded in that Authority, by the Sheriff.

Countenance, (Fr.) Viſage, Face, Looks; Encouragement, Protection, Support. In a Law-ſenſe, Eſtimation or Credit.

To Countenance, to favour, to encourage, to abet.

Counter, a Counting-board in a Shop; alſo a piece of Braſs, or other Metal, to count withal: Alſo the Name of two Priſons in the City of London. In a Ship, there are two ſorts of Counters, viz. the Upper and the Lower; the latter being that hollow part of the Ship's Stem which reſembles an Arch, and lies between the Tranſom and the lower part of the Gallery: And the Upper Counter reaches from the Gallery to the lower part of the ſtraight Piece of the Stern.

Counters or Countors, ſuch Sergeants at Law as were retain'd to defend their Clients Cauſe as Advocates, and were anciently call'd Sergeant-Countors. Theſe were diſtinguiſh'd from Plaideurs, who being of the nature of Attorneys, us'd to ſpeak in behalf of thoſe that were preſent themſelves.

Counter, is alſo a Particle ſignifying Oppoſition or Contrariety, often made uſe of in the compounding of Engliſh Words, and ſometimes by it ſelf; as To write Counter, to run Counter.

Counter-Approaches, (in the Art of War) are certain Lines or Trenches carry'd on by the Beſieged, when they come out to hinder the Approaches of the Enemy, and to attack them in form.

To Counter-ballance, to weigh one thing againſt another, to make of an even Weight, to make an equal amends for.

Counterband. See Contraband.

Counter-battery, (in Fortif.) a Battery rais'd to play againſt another.

Counter-bond, a Bond or Security to ſave one harmleſs, that has enter'd into a Bond or Obligation for another.

Counter-Breaſt-work. See Falſe Bray.

Counter-change, a mutual Exchange made between two Parties by Compact or Agreement.

Counter-changed, a Term us'd by Heralds, when there is a mutual Changing of the Colours of the Field, and Charge in an Eſcutcheon, by means of one or more Lines of Partition; as He bears Party per Pale Argent and Gules a Bend Counter-changed.

Counter-charge, a Charge brought againſt an Accuſer.

Counter-charm, a contrary Charm, a Charm made uſe of to ſpoil the force of another.

Counter-check, a Cenſure made upon a Reprover.

Counter-componed, (in Heraldry) a Term apply'd to a Bordure, or any Ordinary that has only two Rows of Checkers of two different Colours ſet contrariwiſe; but if there be three, or more, 'tis call'd Checky.

Counter-cunning, Subtilty us'd by the adverſe Party.

Counter-diſtinction or Contradiſtinction, a diſtinguiſhing with reſpect to the oppoſite Side.

Counterfeit, (Fr.) imitated, falſe, feigned, diſſembled.

A Counterfeit, a deceitful Perſon, a Cheat.

To Counterfeit, to imitate, to forge, to feign or diſſemble, to diſguiſe.

Counter-foil or Counter-ſtock, that part of a Tally ſtruck in the Exchequer, which is kept by the Officers of the Court; the other Part call'd the Stock, being deliver'd to the Party that has paid or lent the Queen any Money upon ſuch Account.

Counter-forts, (in Fortif.) are certain Pillars and Parts of the Walls of a Place, diſtant from 15 to 20 Foot one from another, which advance as much as is poſſible in the Ground, and are joyn'd by Vaults to the height of the Cordon: They ſerve to ſupport the Way of the Rounds, and part of the Rampart, as alſo to fortify the Wall, and ſtrengthen the Ground; nevertheleſs they are not much us'd at preſent, except in large Fortifications.

Counter-fugue, (in Muſick.) is when the Fugues proceed contrary one to another.

Counter-guard, (in Fortif.) a large Heap of Earth in form of a Parapet raiſed above the Moat, before the Faces and the Point of the Baſtion, to preſerve them, or to cover ſome other part of the Body of the Place: It is otherwiſe call'd Conſerve and Envelope.

Counter-lath, (in Building) a Lath that is laid in length between the Rafters.

Counter-line. See Contravallation.

Countermand, a recalling a former Command: In a Law-ſenſe, it is where a thing formerly executed, is afterwards by ſome Act or Ceremony, made void by the Party that firſt did it: As if a Man having made his laſt Will deviſes his Land to A. B. and afterwards enfeoffs or makes over the ſame Land to another; there this Feoffment is a Countermand to the Will, and the Will as to the diſpoſal of the Land is void.

Counter-march, (in Military Diſcipline) a particular manner of drawing up Soldiers, ſo as to change the Face, or the Wings of the Battallion: Thus the Files Counter-march, to bring thoſe that are in the Front to the Rear; which is proper, when a Battallion is charg'd in the Rear, and the Commander would have the File-leaders take the Place of the Bringers-up: And Counter-march by Ranks, is when 'tis requir'd, That one Wing, or Flank of the Battallion ſhould change Ground with the other.

Counter-mine, (in Fortif.) is a Well, or Paſſage under ground, which the beſieged make in ſearch of the Enemies Mine, to give Air to it, to take away the Powder, or by any other means to hinder the Effect of it.

To Counter-mine, to ſink ſuch Mines; alſo in general, to prevent, or hinder another's Deſign from taking Effect.

Counter-mure, a Wall, or Bank raiſed oppoſite to the Town-Wall.

Counter-pain or Counter-point, a Coverlet for a Bed.

Counter-part, the Duplicate, or Copy of any Inſtrument, Indenture, or Deed, ſo that one Copy may be kept by one Party, and the other by the other: Alſo a Term in Muſick, only importing one Part to be oppoſite to another; as the Baſs is ſaid To be the Counter-part of the Treble.

Counter-paſſant, (in Heraldry) is when two Lions are born in a Coat of Arms, and one appears to be paſſing, or walking quite the contrary Way to the other.

Counter-plea, (in Common Law) a croſs, or contrary Plea, particularly that which the Demandant alledges againſt a Tenant in Courteſy, or in Dower, who prays in Aid of the Queen, or him that has the Reverſion, for his better Defence; a Replication, to Aide prier.

Counter-plot, a Plot contriv'd to overthrow another; a Sham-plot, a Fetch, or Wile againſt another.

Counter-point, a Quilt, or Coverlet for a Bed: Alſo a Term in Needle-work, the ſame with Back-ſtitch, or Quilt-ſtitch: In Muſick, it is the old Method of compoſing Parts by ſetting Points or Pricks one againſt another to expreſs the ſeveral Concords, the length or meaſure of which was according to the Words or Syllables to which they were apply'd; the different Notes now in Uſe, not being then found out: And becauſe at this Day, in Plain-ſong Muſick, we ſet Note againſt Note, as the Ancients did Point againſt Point, thence it is that this kind of Compoſition ſtill retains the Name of Counter-point.

Counter-poiſe, an equal Ballance; as when one thing is weigh'd againſt another.

To Counter-poiſe, to weigh one againſt another

Counter-poiſon, an Antidote, to hinder the effect of Poiſon.

Counter-rail, a row of Rails, or Balliſters, ſet oppoſite to another Row.

Counter-roll, (Law-word) a Counter-part, or Copy of the Rolls, relating to Appeals, Inqueſts, &c. which is kept by the Sheriffs and Coroners.

Counter-round, (in the Art of War) a certain number of Officers, going to viſit the Rounds, or the Sentinels.

Counter-ſalient, a Term us'd by Heralds, when two Beaſts are born in a Coat of Arms, in a poſture of leaping from each other, directly the contrary Way.

Counterſcarp, (in Fortif.) is properly that outward Side, or Slope of the Moat which is next the Campaign, and faces the Body of the Place; altho' by this Term the Covert-Way with its Glacis, or Slope and Parapet is generally underſtood: In this Senſe 'tis ſaid, The Enemy attack'd the Counterſcarp, or lodg'd themſelves on the Counterſcarp.

Counterſcarp-Ditch. See Avant-foſſe.

Counter-ſecurity, ſecurity given to a Party, that has enter'd into Bonds, or other Obligations for another.

To Counter-ſign, to Sign a Patent, or Order of a Superiour, in quality of a Secretary, to render it more authentick: So the Queen's Orders are ſign'd by the Secretary of State, the Orders of Council, by the Clerk of the Council, &c.

Counter-Sophiſter, a Diſputant in an Univerſity, that holds an Argument againſt another Sophiſter.

Counter-Swallows-tail, a Term in Fortification. See Contre-queue d' Hironde.

Counter-tally, one of the two Tallies, or pieces of Wood on which any thing is ſcor'd; ſo that one Party keeps one Piece, and the other the other Piece.

Counter-Tenor, one of the mean, or middle parts of Muſick, ſo call'd as it were oppoſite to the Tenor.

Counter-tripping, (in Heraldry) when two Stags, or other Beaſts are repreſented in a Coat of Arms tripping, i. e. in a walking Poſture, and the Head of one is to the Tail of another, they are ſaid To be Counter-tripping.

To Countervail, to be of equal Value, or amount to as much in Compariſon of another thing; to be a ſufficient Recompence for.

Counter-vallation. See Contra-vallation.

To Counter-work, (in the Art of War) is to raiſe Works, in order to oppoſe and ruin thoſe of the Enemy.

Counteſs, the Wife of a Count, or Earl.

Counting-houſe of the Queen's Houſe-hold, commonly call'd the Court of the Green-cloth, becauſe the Table always ſtands cover'd with a green Cloth: Here ſit the Lord Steward, Treaſurer of the Queen's Houſe, Controller, Maſter of the Houſehold, Cofferer and other Officers, to take the Accounts of all Expences of the Houſehold, to order Matters relating to the good Government of the Queen's Servants, and to pay the Wages of thoſe below Stairs.

County or Shire, one of the Circuits, or Parts, into which the whole Kingdom is divided, for the better Government of it, and the more eaſy adminiſtration of Juſtice. Theſe Counties in England and Wales are 52 in Number, and every one of them is govern'd by an Officer yearly appointed, whom we call a Sheriff. County, is alſo ſometimes taken in a Law-ſenſe, for the County-Court; which See: Alſo a foreign Earldom; as The County of Burgundy, the Franche County, &c.

Counties Corporate, are ſeveral Cities, or ancient Boroughs, upon which the Engliſh Monarchs have thought fit to beſtow extraordinary Liberties and Privileges, annexing to them a particular Territory, Land, or Juriſdiction. The chief of theſe is the famous City of London, York, Canterbury, Cheſter, Briſtol, &c.

Counties Palatine, are four in Number, viz. Cheſter, Durham, Lancaſter, and Ely, whoſe Juriſdiction was heretofore very great; ſo that the chief Governours of them ſent out Writs in their own Name, and acted in all things relating to Juſtice, as abſolutely as the Prince himſelf in other Counties; but their Power is much abridg'd by Stat. 27. H. 8. Pembroke and Hexam were alſo anciently Counties Palatine, which laſt belonging to the Archbiſhop of York, was ſtript of its Privileges in the time of Queen Elizabeth, and made a part of the County of Northumberland.

County-Court, is divided into two ſorts, viz. one retaining the general Name; as the County-Court kept every Month by the Sheriff; or his Deputy the Under-Sheriff, and the other call'd the Turn, held twice every Year; which See in its proper Place.

Couped or Coupee, a Term apply'd by Heralds to Trees cut from the Trunk, or to any part of a Member, or to any other thing in an Eſcutcheon that is born cut clear and evenly off, in oppoſition to its being torn off; which they call Eraſed; as alſo to another manner of cutting diſtinguiſh'd by the Term Caboſed; which See.

Couple, two things of the ſame kind ſet together; a Pair: Thus A Couple of Conies, or Rabbets is the proper Term for two of them; ſo it is alſo taken by Hunters for two Hounds, and A Couple and a Half for three. Couple is alſo a ſort of Band to tie Dogs with.

To Couple, to joyn together, to do the Act of Generation.

Couple-cloſe, (in Heraldry) a Term that ſignifies the fourth part of a Cheveron, and theſe are generally born in Pairs.

Courage, (Fr.) Valour, Stoutneſs, Boldneſs, Mettle.

Couragious, full of Courage, Stout, Reſolute.

Courant, (Fr.) a ſort of Dance; alſo the Title of ſome News-papers. See Curranto.

Courap, a kind of Indian Itch, a Diſeaſe like a Tetter, or Ring-worm.

Courſine, (old Word) fine Heart.

Courier, a Meſſenger that rides Poſt to bring Expreſſes.

Courracier, (Fr.) an old Law-word for a Horſe-courſer.

Courſe, thick, rough, homely; clowniſh, rude, ſorry, mean.

Courſe, (Subſt.) Running, Race, Order, Turn, Cuſtom; Way, or Means; alſo a Service of Meat to be ſet on the Table: Alſo a Term in Husbandry, ſignifying every fleece or turn of Hay laid on the Cart: In Navigation, it is a Ship's Way, i. e. that point of the Compaſs, or Coaſt of the Horizon, on which the Ship is to be Steer'd from Place to Place.

Clerks of the Courſe. See Curſiters.

Courſer, a Diſputant in Schools, alſo a Horſe of Service.

Courſes, the Monthly Terms, or Flowers in Women: Among Sailers, the Main-ſail and Fore-ſail of a Ship; ſo that when the Ship Sails under them only, without lacing on any Bonnets, or Tops, they ſay, She goes under a pair of Courſes.

Courſey, (Fr.) a Space, or paſſage in a Galley, about a Foot and a half broad, on both Sides of which the Slaves are plac'd.

Court, a Yard belonging to a Houſe, a ſpace of Ground before a Church-gate, a narrow Street: Alſo the Queen's Palace, or Manſion; the Prince with his Retinue of Courtiers; or the Attendance that is paid to a Prince, or great Man: Alſo the Hall, or Place where Juſtice is adminiſter'd, or the Judges themſelves that ſit there.

Court of the Admiralty, a Court firſt eſtabliſh'd by K. Edward III. for the deciding of Cauſes relating to Sea-affairs. See Admiralty-Court.

Court-Baron, a Court that every Lord of a Manour, anciently call'd a Baron, holds within his own Precinct for the Cuſtomary Tenants, in which Admittances and Grants of Land are made to the Copy-holders, Surrenders are accepted, &c. There is alſo a Court of Free-holders call'd the Court-Baron, wherein the Suitors, i. e. the Free-holders are Judges; whereas in the other, the Lord or his Steward is Judge.

Court of Chancery. See Chancery.

Court of Chivalry, or The Marſhal's Court, a Court which is the Fountain of Martial Law, where the Lord High Conſtable of England, and the Earl Marſhal ſit as Judges; the latter being alſo oblig'd to ſee Execution done.

Courts Chriſtian, Spiritual Courts in which Matters relating to Chriſtianity are more eſpecially handled, and ſuch as cannot well be determin'd without good skill in Divinity, and therefore the Judges are Divines; as Archbiſhops, Biſhops, Arch-Deacons, &c.

Court of Common Pleas. See Common Pleas.

Court of Delegates. See Delegates.

Court of Faculties. See Faculty-Court.

Court of the Green Cloth. See Counting-houſe of the Queen's Houſehold.

Court-Leet. See Leet.

Court of the Legate, a Court obtained of Pope Leo X. by Cardinal Wolſey, to prove Wills, and diſpenſe with Offences againſt the Spiritual Laws; but it was of ſhort Continuance, and fell with that haughty Prelate.

Court of Peculiars, a Spiritual Court, held in ſuch Pariſhes as are free from the Juriſdiction of the Biſhops, and peculiarly belong to the Archbiſhop of Canterbury, in whoſe Province there are 57 ſuch Peculiars.

Court of Pie-powders. See Pie-powder Court.

Court of Requeſts, a Court of Equity, of the ſame nature with the Chancery, but inferiour to it; chiefly appointed for the help of ſuch Petitioners, as in conſcionable Caſes ſhould deal with the King by Supplication: But this Court growing burdenſom and grievous, was taken away with ſome others by Stat. 16 and 17 Car. 1.

Court of Wards and Liveries. See Ward.

To Court, to woe, or to make Love to, to importune, or deſire earneſtly; to ſue, or ſtand for.

Court Bouillon, (Fr. i. e. ſhort boiling) a Term in Cookery; a particular way of boiling Fiſh in Wine, Verjuice and Vinegar, with all ſorts of Spice.

Court-Days, thoſe Days when the Courts of Judicature are open and Pleas held.

Court-lands, Demeans, or Lands which the Lord of the Manour keeps in his own Hands, to ſerve his Family, and for Hoſpitality.

Court-roll, a Roll containing an Account of the Number and Nature of the ſeveral Lands that depend on the Juriſdiction of the Lord of the Manour, with the Names of the Tenants, or Copy-holders that are admitted to any parcel of Land, &c.

Courtaud, (Fr.) a ſhort, thick-ſet Man, a Durgen, a Short-arſe; alſo a Crop, or cropped Horſe, a Bob-tail: Alſo a ſhort Baſſoon, a Muſical Inſtrument, or a kind of ſhort piece of Ordinance us'd at Sea.

Courteous, civil, affable, gentle, kind.

Courteſan or Courtezan, a Court-Lady, a Lady of Pleaſure, a fine Miſs, a topping Strumpet.

Courteſy, Civility, Kindneſs, a good Turn; a Curſy, or Reverence done by a Woman.

Courteſy of England, (Law-Term) a Tenure whereby a Man marrying an Heireſs poſſeſs'd of Lands in Fee-Simple, or Fee-tail General, &c. if he have a Child by her which comes alive into the World, though the Mother and the Child die immediately; yet if ſhe were in Poſſeſſion, he ſhall hold the Land during his Life, under the Title of Tenant per Legem Angliæ, or Tenant by the Courteſy of England; becauſe this Privilege is not allow'd in any other Country, except Scotland, where 'tis call'd Curialitas Scotiæ.

Courtilage. See Ceurtilage.

Courtin or Courtain, (Fr. in Fortif.) the front of the Wall, or Rampart, lying between two Baſtions: Or it is the longeſt ſtraight Line that runs about the Rampart, drawn from one Flank to the other, and border'd with a Parapet, or Breaſt-work five Foot high; behind which the Men may fire upon the Covert-way and into the Moat.

Courtlaſs, a Hanger, a kind of ſhort Sword, that only cuts on one Side.

Courtly, gallant, airy, ſpruce, nice.

Courtſhip, Courteſy, Civility, fine amorous Speech, or Carriage.

Couthe, (Sax.) known.

Couthutlaughe, (old Law-word) one that knowingly entertains, cheriſhes, or hides an Out-lawed Perſon ; in which Caſe, he was in ancient Time ſubject to the ſame Puniſhment that the Out-law himſelf was.

Covy of Partridges, a Flock of thoſe Birds.

Cow, a well known Beaſt, the Emblem of a cowardly faint-hearted Fellow, and of a droniſh beaſtly Wench.

To Cow one, to put one out of Heart, to keep him in awe.

Cow-blakes. See Caſings.

Cow-quake, a ſort of Herb.

Cow-wheat, a ſmall flowering Weed that grows amidſt Corn.

Coward, one that has no Heart, or Courage: In Heraldry, when a Lion is born in any Coat of Arms with the Tail doubled, or turn'd in between the Legs, 'tis call'd A Lion Coward.

Cowde, (old Word) a Gobbet.

Cowl, a kind of Hood, ſuch as Monks wear: Alſo a Word us'd in Eſſex for a Tub ; whence Cowler, a kind of Brewing-Veſſel now pronounc'd Cooler.

Cowneer, the hollow, or arched part in a Ship's Stern.

To Cowr, to kneel, to fall, or ſquat down.

Cowring, (in Falconry) the quivering of young Hawks that ſhake their Wings, in token of Obedience to the old ones.

Cowſel Baſhaw, the ſame with the Perſians, as Spahis among the Turks, i. e. a ſort of compleat armed Horſemen, that attend the Shawbander, or chief Governour of a Town or Port, at the reception of an Ambaſſadour, or any other great Solemnity.

Cowſlip, a Flower, of which there are ſeveral kinds ; as that Hoſe in Hoſe, the double Cowſlip, double and ſingle green one, the tufted, the red, the Orange-colour'd, &c.

Cowſlip-wine, a ſort of Wine made of Cowſlip Flowers bruiſed, Syrup of Citron, Sugar, ſliced Lemmons, with White or Rheniſh Wine, and ſome other Ingredients.

Coxa, (Lat.) the Hip, or Haunch, the Joynt of the Hip, the Huckle-bone.

Coxæ Os, (in Anat.) the Hip-bone, otherwiſe call'd Innominatum, i. e. the Nameleſs Bone, and Ilium Coxendicis, becauſe it contains the Gut Ilium ; and it is joyn'd to the Sides of the Os Sacrum : In Infants it conſiſts of three Bones, viz. Ilium, Iſchium, and Os Pubis, which are is united together by Cartilages, or Griſtles, 'till ſeven Years of Age, and then it is diſtinguiſh'd by a Triple Line ; ſo that it grows into one continued Bone in Adult Perſons.

Coxendix, the ſame with Coxa and Os Iſchium, is the third and lower of the Oſſa Innominata, or Nameleſs Bones, having a large Cavity, or Hollow nam'd Acetabulum Coxendicis, which receives the Head of the Thigh-bone ; and the Circumference of this Cavity is tipt with a Griſtle call'd its Supercilium.

Coxcomb, a ſilly Fellow, a conceited Fool, a Block-head, or Fop.

Coy, that pretends to much Modeſty, ſhy, finical.

Coy or Coyen, (old Word) nice, dainty ; alſo to quiet, to flatter.

To Cozen, to bubble, cheat, chouſe, or gull.

Cozenage, Cozening, or cheating.

Crab, a kind of Sea-fiſh ; alſo a Wilding, or wild Apple: Alſo a wooden Engine with three Claws plac'd on the Ground, for the lanching of Ships, or heaving them into the Dock.

Crabs-eyes, a Stone found in a Crab-fiſh, which reſembles an Ey e.

Crabro, (Lat.) a kind of great Waſp, a Hornet.

Crabbat, (old Word) handſome, comely.

Crabbed, ſow'r as unripe Fruit ; rough, uneven, ſurly.

Crabbing, a Term in the Art of Falconry, which ſignifies Hawks ſtanding too near, and fighting one with another.

Crack-berry, a ſort of Herb.

Cracker, a Squib, a kind of Fire-work: Alſo Paper rolled up to buckle up Hair, or keep it in the Curl ; a Term in uſe among Periwig-makers.

Cracknels, a ſort of Cakes made in ſhape of a Diſh, and bak'd hard, ſo as to crackle under the Teeth.

Crackt Boiling of Sugar, (in the Confectionary Art) to know whether the Sugar has attain'd to this Degree, dip the tip of your Finger into cold Water and having dext'rouſly run it into the boiling Sugar, dip it again immediately into the Water: Thus keeping your Finger in the Water, rub off the Sugar with the other two ; and if it break making a kind of crackling Noiſe, 'tis come to the point of Boiling call'd Crackt.

Cradle, a kind of Bed for a young Child: Among Ship-wrights, a Timber-frame rais'd along the out-ſide of a Ship or Galley by her Bildge, or Flooring, for the more Eaſe and Safety in Lanching: In Husbandry, a Wooden Frame fixt to ſome ſort of Scithes for the mowing of Corn, and the better laying it in order ; and then 'tis call'd a Cradle-Scithe: A Surgeon's Cradle is a kind of Engine made of Wood, to lay a broken Leg in, that is newly ſet, ſo as to keep the Bed-clothes &c. from preſſing it.

Craft, Craftineſs, Subtilty, Cunning, Slineſs ; Wile or Trick: Alſo a Sea-word ſignifying all manner of Lines, Nets, Hooks, and other Tackle that ſerve for Fiſhing ; whence Hoys, Ketches, Smacks, and ſuch like little Veſſels, us'd in the Fiſhing Trade, are commonly call'd Small-Craft.

Craft or Handy-craft, any Mechanical Art or Trade.

Crafts-Maſter, one that is skilful in Handy-Crafts, or in his Trade ; an Artiſt.

Crafty, ſubtil, cunning, ſly, ſharp.

Crag, the Nape of the Neck, or the Top of a Rock.

Cragged or Craggy, rough, uneven, high, ſteep.

Craiera, (in old Latin Records) a Veſſel of Burden ; a Hoy, or Smack.

To Cram, to thruſt cloſe, to ſtuff.

Crama, (Gr.) a mixture of things, as of Elements, Medicines, &c.

Crambe, a kind of Colewort-plant.

Crambe or Crambo, a Term us'd among School-boys, when in Rhiming, he is to forfeit, who repeats a Word that was ſaid before.

Crambling-rocket, a kind of Herb.

Cramp, a Diſtemper caus'd by a violent wreſting or ſtretching of the Nerves, Muſcles, &c. Alſo a Diſeaſe that happens to Hawks in their Soarage, by taking Cold, and lies in the Wing.

Cramp-fiſh. See Torpedo.

Crampern or Cramp-iron, an Iron that faſtens Stones in a Building ; alſo a Grapple, or Grappling-iron, to lay hold of an Enemy's Ship.

Crampoons, pieces of Iron hooked at the ends, which are faſten'd to great pieces of Timber, Stones, &c. to pull them up, or draw them along.

Cranage, (Law-Term) Liberty to uſe a Crane for the drawing up of Wares at a Creek or Wharf, and to make Profit of it; alſo the Money taken and paid for the ſame.

Crane, a known ſort of Fowl; alſo an Engine that ſerves to draw up any Weight or Burden: Alſo a kind of crooked Pipe made of Metal, for drawing up Liquors out of a Veſſel. See Siphon.

Crane-fowl, a Bird in America, about the bigneſs of a large Duck, cover'd with Feathers, very hideous to the Eye, and having under the Neck, a Bag capable of holding two Gallons of Water: They live by Fiſhing, and can diſcern a Fiſh above a Fathom under Water.

Crane-lines, (in a Ship) certain Lines that go from the upper end of the Sprit-ſail Top-maſt to the middle of the Fore-ſtays: They ſerve to keep the Sprit-ſail Top-maſt upright and ſteady in its place, and ſtrengthen it; ſo that it may bear its Yard and Sail the better.

Cranes-bill, an Herb ſo call'd from the ſhape of its Seed, reſembling the Beak or Bill of a Crane: Alſo a ſort of Forceps or pair of Pincers us'd by Surgeons, which likewiſe takes Name from its Figure.

Cranium, (Gr. in Anat.) the Scull comprehending all the Bones of the Head, which, as it were a Helmet, defends it from outward Injuries; its upper Part is double, and ſome call it Calva, or Calvaria: The particular Bones of the Cranium are properly ſix in number, viz. the Os Frontis, making the front or fore-part of the Scull; the Os Occipitis, which makes the hinder part; the Oſſa parietalia & Temporum, that conſtitute the Sides; and two Common Bones; as the Os Sphenoides, and the Os Ethmoides, or Cribriforme; all which See under thoſe Words.

Crank, luſty, briſk, jolly; alſo the Draw-beam of a Well.

Among Sea-men, a Ship is ſaid To be Crank by the Ground, when her Floor is ſo narrow, that ſhe cannot be brought on Ground, without danger of being overthrown, or at leaſt of wringing her Sides.

Crank-ſided, a Term apply'd to a Ship that cannot bear her Sails, or is capable of bearing but ſmall Sail, for fear of over-ſetting.

To Crankle, to go in and out, to go winding about.

Crannock or Cennock, an old Meaſure of Corn.

Cranny, a little Chink, Rift, or Cleft.

Crap, a Country-word us'd in ſome Places for Darnel, and in others, for Buck-wheat.

Crape, a ſort of Stuff.

Crapula, (Lat.) a Surfeit by too much eating or drinking; an Head-ache, Dizzineſs, or Surcharge of Stomach, proceeding from Intemperance, Crop-ſickneſs, Drunkenneſs.

Craſh, a great Noiſe, a Quarrel or Scuffle.

Craſis, (Gr.) a Mixture, eſpecially of Wine and Water: In Grammar, the ſame as Synæreſis, a Contraction or Drawing together of two Syllables into one, as Vement, for Vehement; In a Phyſical-Senſe, a proper Conſtitution, Temperature, or Mixture of Humours in an Animal Body: Alſo a convenient Mixture of Qualities, either Simple, or Compound; Simple, when one Quality exceeds the reſt: as hot, cold, moiſt, dry, &c. Compound, when more Qualities exceed, as hot and dry, hot and bitter, ſalt and ſharp, &c.

† Craſs, (Lat.) fat, groſs.

Craſſitude, a Philoſophical Word for Thickneſs.

Craſſula or Craſſula major, the Herb Orpine, Lib-long, or Love-long. Craſſula minor, the Herb Prick-Madame, Worm-graſs, or Stone-crop.

Cratægonon, (Gr.) Arſe-ſmart, Cule-rage, or wild Cow-wheat.

Cratæonum, Stitch-wort, an Herb good for the Eyes.

Cratch, a Rack for Hay or Straw.

Cratches or Rats-Tails, a ſtinking Sore that riſes in a Horſe's Heels.

Crater, (Gr.) properly a Veſſel in which Wine is mingled, a great Cup or Bowl made of Plate; a Gobblet: Alſo the Name of a Southern Conſtellation, conſiſting of 11 Stars. In Falconry, the Line on which Hawks are faſten'd, when reclaimed, of what ſort ſoever they be.

Craterites, a precious Stone, very hard, of Colour between the Chryſolite and Amber.

Craticula, (Lat.) a little Grate, a Grid-iron, a Roaſter; alſo a kind of Grate us'd in Chymiſts Furnaces to keep up the Coals.

Cravat, a kind of Neck-cloth, ſaid to be firſt us'd by the Croats, a ſort of Troopers in the German Wars.

To Crave, to deſire earneſtly, to beſeech, to demand.

Craven or Cravent, an old Word for a Coward: It was anciently us'd as a Term of Diſgrace, when the Party, that was overcome in a Tryal by ſingle Combat, yielded and cry'd Cravant, &c.

Cray, a Diſeaſe in Hawks that hinders their muting, and is almoſt the ſame with the Pantas, proceeding from ill Diet, and long Feeding with cold ſtale Meat.

Cray-fiſh or Crevice, a ſort of River-fiſh.

Crayer, a kind of ſmall Sea-Veſſel or Ship mention'd in Stat. 14. Car. 2.

Crayon, (Fr.) a ſmall Pencil of any ſort of colouring Stuff, made up into Paſte and dry'd, to be us'd for drawing in dry Colours, upon Paper or Parchment.

Crazy, diſtempered, ſickly, weak.

Cream, the thicker and more ſubſtantial Part of Milk, of which Butter or Cheeſe is made; whence it is figuratively taken for the Prime, or Beſt of a thing.

Cream of Tartar, is made of Tartar, or dry Wine-lees boil'd in a great deal of Water, to diſſolve it as much as is poſſible, and then the Liquor is paſs'd hot thro' a Woollen Bag; ſo that about half of it being ſteam'd out in Vapours, the Remainder is ſet in a cool Place; where the Tartar will ſhoot into Cryſtals; and ſome of it be like a Cream on the top of the Liquor.

† Creance, (Fr.) Confidence, Truſt, Credit; alſo a Term in Falconry. See Criance.

Creanſour, (old Law-word) he that truſts another with any Debt, whether it be Money or Wares; a Creditour.

Creaſe, a Pleat, or Fold.

Creaſt. See Creſt.

To Create, (Lat.) to make out of nothing; to form, frame, or faſhion; to ordain, or appoint; to procure, or cauſe.

Creation, the making or being made out of nothing; alſo the appointing of a Magiſtrate.

Creatour, a Perſon that creates; as God is the Creatour of all things.

Creature, a created Being: Alſo one that owes his Riſe and Fortune to the Favour of a great Man.

Credence, Credit or Belief; Name or Reputation.

Credentials, Letters of Credence or Recommendation, eſpecially for the authorizing, or giving Power to an Ambaſſadour, Plenipotentiary, &c.

Credibility, Credibleneſs, Probableneſs, Likelyhood.

Credible, that is to be believed, worthy of Belief.

Credit, Belief, Truſt; Name, Eſteem, or Reputation; Authority, Power, or Intereſt.

To Credit, to give Credit, to truſt; to grace, or ſet off.

Creditable, that is of fair Credit; alſo that brings Credit, or Honour.

Creditor, one that gives Credit, one that lends or truſts another with Money or Goods.

Credulity, readineſs, or aptneſs to believe.

Credulous, that is eaſy, light, or raſh of Belief.

Creed, a Summary or ſhort Account of the chief Articles of the Chriſtian Faith, ſo call'd from the firſt Word of it in Latin, Credo, i. e. I believe: Of this Form of wholeſome Words, there are three ſorts generally receiv'd in the Church of England, viz. 1. The Apoſtles Creed, which was either compos'd by the Apoſtles themſelves, or by Apoſtolical Men. 2. The Athanaſian Creed made by St. Athanaſius, one of the ancient Fathers of the Church. 3. The Nicene Creed ſet forth by the Biſhops and other Clergy aſſembled in the Council of Nice, under the Emperour Conſtantine the Great A. C. 314.

Creek, a little Bay, a Nook in a Harbour, where Wares are unloaded.

To Creek, to make a Noiſe as a Door does, when its Hinges are ruſty.

Creeper, one that creeps or crawls, a creeping Creature; alſo a kind of low Andiron: Alſo an Apple ſo call'd from the Tree that grows low, trailing its Branches near the Ground.

Creeping-Index. See Brachiolum.

Creeze, a broad, ſharp, and waved Indian Weapon, about two Foot long, ſharp-pointed, and deſperately poiſon'd; the Hilt being of Wood, Horn, or Metal, according to the Quality of the Owner, and carv'd in the Figure of ſome deformed Idol.

Creiance. See Criance.

Cremaſter, (Gr.) a Hook to hang Fleſh on in a Cook's Shop, or a Larder; a Pot-hook, or Pothanger. In Anatomy, a Muſcle otherwiſe call'd Suſpenſor Teſticuli, both Names being taken from its Uſe, which is to keep the Teſticles from hanging down too much, and alſo to raiſe them up in Coitu.

Crementum Comitatus, (Lat. Law-Term) the Improvement of the King's Rents, above the ancient Vicontiel Rents, for which Improvements the Sheriff anſwer'd under the Title of Crementum Comitatus, or Firma de cremento Comitatus.

Cremium, ſmall dry Sticks, or a Bruſh-wood for Fuel; ſuch as Bavins, Chat-wood, Spray-wood, &c.

Cremona, a rich and ſtrong Town in the Dutchy of Milan in Italy, noted for the Violins made there, which are counted the beſt Muſical Inſtruments of that kind, in the World.

Crena, the Notch of an Arrow, the Nib or Slit of a Pen; a Notch, or Score in a Tally: Alſo a Dent, Jag, or Nock in the ſide of a Leaf.

Crenated Leaves, (among Herbaliſts) ſuch Leaves of Plants as are jagged or notched.

Crenelle, (Fr. in Heraldry) embatteled, or indented like the Battlements of a Wall.

Crengles, (in a Ship) ſmall Ropes ſpliced, or let into the Bolt-ropes of the Sails that belong to the Main and Fore-Maſt: They are faſten'd to the Bowling-Bridles, and are alſo to hold by, when the Bonnet-Sail is ſhaken off.

Crepatura, (Lat.) a Term us'd by Apothecaries, for the boiling of Barley or any other thing 'till it crack.

Crepida, a kind of Shooe made uſe of among the old Romans, like Slippers without a Heel; a Sandal, a Shoemaker's Laſt.

Crepine, (Fr.) Fringe. In Cookery, a ſort of Farce or Stuff Meat wrapped up in a Veal-caul.

† Crepitation, (Lat.) a rattling, or crackling.

Crepitus, a Bounce, a Din, or Noiſe; a rattling, craſhing, or creeking: Alſo a Fart, a Deity worſhipped by the Egyptians under an obſcene Figure, which is to be ſeen in ſome curious Collections of Antiquity.

Crepitus Lupi, (i. e. Wolfs-fart) a kind of ſpungy Muſhroom, or Puff, which when dry, are us'd by Surgeons to ſtanch Blood.

† Crepuſculum, the Twilight, in the Evening, after Sun-ſet; or in the Morning, before Sun-riſing.

Creſſent, (i. e. encreaſing, or growing) a Term us'd in Heraldry, for the Figure of a Half-moon, which is uſually the diſtinguiſhing Mark of the Second Brother, or Family, and is ſometimes born in Coat-armour; more eſpecially in that of the Grand Seignior, or Emperour of the Turks.

Creſpina, the Barberry-tree, a Shrub.

Creſſan or Bergamot-Creſſan, (Fr.) a Fruit of the Nature and Colour of the Butter-pear, but different in Shape, which grows ripe in November.

Creſſes, an Herb commonly call'd Noſe-ſmart, of which one kind grows generally in Gardens, and bears a fine yellow Flower.

Creſſet or Creſſet-light, a great Lanthorn hanged on a Pole, or a burning Beacon.

Creſt, anciently ſignify'd any Imagery, or carved Ornament on the top of Wainſcot-work, &c. like our modern Cornice: But it is now commonly taken for a Cop, Tuft, or Comb on the Head of a Bird, the Main of a Horſe, or the top of an Helmet: In Heraldry, 'tis a Device repreſenting a Living-creature, Plant, or other artificial thing ſet over a Coat of Arms, on the Wreath in the uppermoſt part of the Eſcutcheon.

Creſt-fallen, diſpirited, caſt down, put out of Heart: A Horſe is ſaid To be Creſt-fallen, when the Creſt, or upper part of the Neck which the Main grows on, hangs either to one Side or other, not ſtanding upright, as it ought to do.

Creſt-marine, an Herb otherwiſe call'd Rock-ſamphire.

Creſt-tile, a Roof-tile to be laid on the ridge of a Houſe.

Creſted, (in Heraldry) that has a Creſt; as Pallas had a Head-piece creſted with the Head of a Horſe.

Creta, (Lat.) Chalk, Fullers-clay; alſo a ſort of white Paint us'd by Women.

Crete or Candia, an Iſland of the Mediterranea-Sea, much celebrated by the Poets, as the Place where Jupiter was brought up.

Cretinos or Crethmos, (Gr.) a kind of Herb with Leaves like Purſlain.

Cretinus or Cretena, (in ſome ancient Writers) a ſudden Torrent, Land-flood, or Stream of Water.

Cretiſm or Creticiſm, a forging of Lies, Perfidiouſneſs, Falſehood, in imitation of the Inhabitants of Crete, who were noted for thoſe ill Qualities; as St. Paul obſerv'd out of Epimenides, one of their own Poets.

Crevet or Cruſet, a Gold-ſmith's melting-Pot.

Crevice, a Cray-fiſh; alſo a Chink, or Cleft.

Crew, Company, Gang; as A Crew of Rogues, a Ship's Crew, &c.

Crewel, a ſort of Worſted.

Crewet or Crevet, a little Vial, or narrow-mouth'd Glaſs, to hold Oil, Vinegar, &c.

Crex, (Gr.) the Daker-hen, a ſort of Bird.

Criance or Criants, (Fr. in Falconry) a fine long Line of ſtrong even wound Pack-thread, faſten'd to a Hawk's Leaſh, when ſhe is firſt Lured: It is alſo written Creance and Creiance.

Crib, a Cratch, or Manger for Cattel.

Cribbage, a ſort of Game at Cards.

Cribble, a kind of Sieve to purge Corn.

Cribration, (Lat.) a Term us'd by Chymiſts for paſſing any Powder thro' a fine Sieve, or Hair-cloth.

Cribroſum Os. See Ethmoides.

Cribrum. a Sieve, or Sierce. Cribrum farinarium, a bolting, or ranging Sieve.

Cribrum Benedictum, (in Anat.) a certain Membrane, or thin Skin full of little Holes like a Sieve, which the Ancients fancy'd to be in the Reins, and thro' which they would have the Humour call'd Serum ſtrain'd into the Ureters, the good Bloud ſtaying behind for the Nouriſhment of the Reins: Whence they termed it Colatorium, i. e. a Strainer, aud Cribrum Benedictum, a bleſſed Sieve.

Crick, a kind of Cramp, or pain in the Neck: Alſo a Diſeaſe in a Horſe, that cannot turn his Neck any manner of Ways, but holds it foreright, neither can he take Meat from the Ground, but with great Trouble and Pain.

Cricket, an Inſect like a Graſs-hopper: Alſo a low Stool ſuch as Children uſually ſit on; alſo a ſort of Play with a Ball.

Cricoarytænoides, (Gr. in Anat.) certain Muſcles that ariſe from the Cartilage, or Griſtle call'd Cricoides, and are inſerted into the Arytænoides, which whilſt they draw ſide-ways and outwardly, the Rimula, or Chink of the Larynx is widen'd.

Cricoides, the Griſtle of the Larynx, or top of the Wind-pipe ſhap'd like a Ring.

Cricothyroides, a pair of Muſcles which take riſe from the fore-part of the Cricoides, or Ring-like Griſtle, and end in that which is call'd Scutiformis.

Crime, (Lat.) foul Deed, Offence, or Fault; great Sin.

Criminal, guilty of ſome Crime, or high Miſdemeanour; condemnable, contrary to the Laws; alſo that relates to the Tryal of ſuch Offences.

A Criminal, a Malefactor, or Offender.

Criminalty, criminal Caſe.

Crimnoides or Crimnodes, (Gr.) Urine with a thick Settlement at the bottom, like courſe Flower, or Bran.

Crimſon, a ſort of fine red Colour.

Crined, (Lat.) having Hairs; a Term in Heraldry.

Crinets or Crinites, (among Falconers) are ſmall black Feathers in Hawks, like Hair about the Sere.

To Cringe, to make low Congees, or Bows; to ſhew great Submiſſion, to fawn upon.

Crinis, (Lat.) Hair of the Head, a Buſh of Hair.

Crinita Stella, a Comet, or Blazing Star.

Crinites. See Crinets.

To Crinkle, to go in and out; to run in Wrinkles, or Folds.

Crinon, (Gr.) the Lilly, a Flower.

Cripple, a helpleſs lame Man, or Woman that has loſt the uſe of his or her Limbs.

Cripplings, (in Architect.) ſhort Spars, or wooden Piles on the ſide of an Houſe.

Criſima, (Gr.) Signs by which one may diſcern and judge, with reſpect to a Diſeaſe.

Criſis, the Act of Judging, a Sentence, or Verdict; Judgment in diſcerning any thing. In the Art of Phyſick, it is taken for Judgment paſs'd upon a Diſtemper: Alſo the Conflict between Nature and the Diſeaſe, or its ſudden Change, tending either to Recovery, or Death: Alſo a ſudden ſettling of Humours, which happens in Diſeaſes, and whereby they are uſually brought to an End. Criſis, is alſo diſtinguiſh'd by Phyſicians into Perfect and Imperfect.

A Perfect Criſis, is that which abſolutely frees the Patient from the Diſtemper, and is either Healthful, or Deadly.

An Imperfect Criſis, is that whith does not clearly determine the tendency of the Diſeaſe, but leaves room for another Criſis; and this likewiſe is twofold, either for the better, or for the worſe: The former is that which does not quite take away the Diſeaſe, but enables the Patient to bear it better; and the latter is when the Diſeaſe becomes more violent and dangerous,

Criſp, turned brown, by frying, or roaſting.

To Criſp, to frizzle, or curl.

St. Criſpin's Lance, an Awl ſo call'd from Criſpin, the famous Patron of the Shooemakers.

Criſpina, (Lat.) the Raſpis-tree.

Criſta, a Creſt, a Tuft, a Plume; a Cop, or Comb on the Head of a Bird: Alſo an Herb ſo call'd, becauſe it has Leaves like a Cock's Comb; yellow Rattle-graſs. Criſtæ, are alſo certain knobs of Fleſh that grow about the Fundament, and proceed from the filthy Act of Sodomy; the Roots of them being often chapt and cleft.

Criſta Galli, a Cock's Comb; alſo the Herb Cock's-comb, or Yellow Rattle: In Anatomy, the inner Proceſs of the Ethmoides, or Sieve-like Bone in the Noſe, ſo nam'd from its Figure. It ariſes between the Olfactory Nerves, and has the end of the third Cavity of the hard Skin of the Brain call'd Dura Meninx implanted in it.

Criterium or Criterion, (Gr.) a Judgment made of the truth, or falſehood of a Propoſition, or about the nature or qualities of any Effect, &c.

Crithe, Barley, a ſort of Grain: Alſo a ſmall Puſh, or Swelling that grows above the Hair, on the Eye-brows, and is ſo call'd from its reſembling a Barley-corn.

Crithmum, Crithmus, or Crithamum, Sea-fennel, or Samphire, an Herb which being pickled, is very agreeable to the Stomach, and ſtirs up the Appetite.

Critical, that judges, or gives Signs to judge by, that is of a nice Judgment, cenſorious, or apt to find fault with.

Critical Days, thoſe Days wherein a Diſeaſe comes to its Criſis; during which Phyſicians obſerve Signs of Life, or Death, and Judge of the Iſſue of a Diſtemper.

Critical Signs, ſuch Signs as are taken from a Criſis, either towards Death, or a Recovery.

Critical Tumours. See Tumours.

Criticiſm, nice Judgment, critical Diſcourſe, or Reflection.

To Criticize upon, to play the Critick, to examine nicely, to cenſure.

A Critick, a profound Scholar, a Perſon of an extraordinary Judgment and Learning; alſo an over-nice Cenſurer, a Fault-finder.

Criticks or Critique, the Art of Criticizing, a Skill that conſiſts in the curious and nice examining of Authors.

Cro. See Croy.

Croats, properly the People of Croatia; but in France there is a Regiment of Horſe ſo call'd, becauſe at firſt they were of that Nation: Theſe Croats are commanded upon all deſperate Service, and therefore in Battel are poſted on the Wings, a little advanc'd before the other Squadrons.

Crocards, a ſort of Money which with Pollards, Staldings, Eagles, Leonines, and Steepings, were ſome time current in England, but long ſince diſus'd.

Croce, (old Word) a Shepherd's Staff, or Crook.

Croches, (among Hunters) the little Buds that grow about the top of a Deer's or Hart's Horns.

Croci, (Lat.) a Word ſometimes us'd by Herbaliſts for the Apices, or ſmall Knobs on the tops of Flowers. See Apices.

Crocia, (in old Records) the Croſier, or Paſtoral Staff which Biſhops and Abbots had the Privilege to bear, as the common Enſign of their Religious Office, and were uſually inveſted in their Prelacies by the Delivery of it: Whence Crocium and Crocia, was ſometimes taken to ſignifie the collation, or diſpoſal of Biſhopricks and Abbeys, by the giving of ſuch a Staff.

Crociarius, the Crociary, or Croſs-bearer, that us'd to carry the Croſs, or Croſier-ſtaff before a Biſhop.

Crock, (Scotch) a kind of Earthen Pot; as A Crock of Butter, or of Veniſon.

Crocodile, (Gr.) a ravenous Beaſt ſhap'd like a Lizard that lives both on Land and Water; eſpecially in Africa, about the River Nile and elſewhere, growing to a prodigious bigneſs, even ſometimes to the length of 20 or 30 Foot. See Alligator.

Crocomagma, Dregs of the Oil of Saffron and other Spices, which were anciently made up into Balls and ſo kept; a Phyſical Compoſition, the chief Ingredient of which is Saffron.

Crocotta, a kind of mungrel Beaſt in Ethiopia. See Corocotta.

Crocus, Saffron, a Plant bearing a very yellow Flower, whoſe Flame-coloured Threads are the Saffron ſold in the Shops, and of ſo great Uſe in Phyſick: Among Chymiſts, a Powder of the Colour of Saffron; as Crocus Martis, Crocus Veneris, Crocus Metallorum.

Crocus Martis, Saffron of Steel, a Chymical Medicine ſo call'd from its red Colour; of which there are ſeveral kinds, and divers ways prepared.

Crocus Martis aperiens, opening Saffron of Mars, among other Proceſſes, is made, by waſhing Iron-plates, and then expoſing them to the Dew, 'till they have gather'd a Ruſt; which Ruſt being the Crocus, may be ſcraped off, and the Plates waſhed again, and expoſed for more.

Crocus Martis Aſtringens, Binding Saffron of Steel, is the filings of Iron deprived of their more Saline or Salt Parts, by waſhing them five or ſix times in ſtrong Vinegar, and then calcining them for five or ſix Hours with a ſtrong Fire, in a Pot, or upon a Tile.

Crocus Metallorum, is a kind of impure and dark Glaſs of Antimony, of a Liver-colour, and thence often call'd Hepar, or Liver of Antimony: It is made by firing equal Parts of Powder of Antimony and Salt-peter well mixt in an Iron-mortar cover'd with a Tile; 'tis kindled by dropping in a Coal of Fire, whereupon a great Detonation, or crackling Noiſe enſues, which when over, ſtrike the Mortar to make the Matter Sink to the bottom: The ſhining Part is the Crocus, or Liver, which muſt be ſeparated from the Droſs, waſh'd and kept for Uſe.

Croe or Cronie, an Iron-bar, or Leaver, with a flat End: Alſo a notch in the Side-boards of a Cask, or Tub, where the Head-pieces come in.

Croft, a little Cloſe adjoyning to a Houſe, either for Paſture, or Tillage.

Croiſado or Cruſade, the Expedition of Chriſtian Princes for the Conqueſt of the Holy Land; a Holy War formerly undertaken againſt the Infidels out of Devotion, upon encouragement of the Pope's Bulls promiſing immediate entrance into Heaven, to all that dy'd in the Service; ſo that thoſe Warriours were diſtinguiſh'd by wearing the Figure of the Croſs of ſeveral Colours.

Croiſes, Pilgrims; alſo Knights of the Order of St. John of Jeruſalem, created for the defence of Pilgrims; both ſo call'd from the badge of the Croſs, which they us'd to wear on their upper Garments.

Crok, (old Word) the turning up of the Hair into Curls; whence, crook, crooked, &c.

To Croke, to make a Noiſe like a Frog, or Raven; to rumble with Wind, as the Guts do.

Crome. See Croe.

Crommyon, (Gr.) the Onion, a known Plant.

Crone, (Country-Word) an old Ewe, or Female Sheep.

Crony, an intimate Companion, or Boſom-friend.

To Croo or Crookel, to make a Noiſe like a Dove, or Pigeon.

To Crool, (old Word) to mutter, or growl.

Crop, the gathering of Corn, or Hay, or the whole Stock that the Ground affords; the Craw of a Bird, the Handle of a Coach-man's Whip. In Suſſex, Darnel is call'd Crop, and in Worceſterſhire, Buck-wheat goes by the ſame Name.

To Crop, to cut off, to gather.

Croppa or Croppus, (in old Latin Records) a crop of Corn, or the Product in Harveſt.

Croquet, (Fr.) a thin and hard piece of Ginger-bread that crunches in one's Teeth: In Cookery Croquets, are a certain Compound made of delicious Stuff'd Meat, ſome of the bigneſs of an Egg, and others of a Walnut; the former ſerving for a Side-diſh, and the others for Garniſhing.

Croſier, (among Roman Catholicks) a Biſhop's Staff one of the Badges of his Dignity, made in ſhape of a Shepherd's Hook, becauſe Biſhops are Spiritual Paſtors, or Shepherds.

Croſiers, four Stars reſembling the Figure of a Croſs, which ſhew the Antarctick Pole, to thoſe that Sail in the Southern Hemiſphere.

Croſlet, a Frontlet, or Forehead-cloth.

Croſs, a Gibbet of ſeveral Figures, on which the Ancients us'd to hang their Slaves and Malefactors, who were ty'd thereto with Ropes or Nails, and always dy'd upon it, after having their Bones broke to diſpatch them the ſooner; but ſince our Lord's Crucifixion, the Emperours ordain'd, That no Criminal ſhould be put to Death on the Croſs. The Word is figuratively taken to ſignify, Affliction, Trouble, Miſfortune.

In Heraldry, Croſs is one of the Honourable Ordinaries, of which there is great Variety in its Form, according to the Lines that compoſe it: Thus for a plain Croſs 'tis ſaid, He bears Argent, a Croſs Sable.

Croſs Avellane, a Croſs whoſe ends ſhoot forth like the Huſk of a Filberd.

Croſs Fitched or Fitchee, a Croſs pointed at bottom, ſo call'd from its being as it were fixed in the Coat, with a ſharp end.

Croſs Fleury, a Croſs with a Flower-de-luce at each end.

Croſs Fourchet, a forked Croſs:

Croſs Milrine, a Croſs whoſe ends are clamp'd and turn'd again like the Milrine that carries the Mill-ſtone.

Croſs Patee and Croſs Potence. See Patee and Potent.

Croſs Voided, is when there are Lines drawn parallel to the Out-lines of the Croſs, and the Field is ſuppoſed to appear through; as He bears Argent, a plain Croſs voided.

Croſs-bar Shot, (in Gunnery) a round Shot, having a long Iron-ſpike caſt with it, as if it were let quite thro' the middle.

Croſs-Battery. See Battery.

Croſs-bill, a ſort of Bird.

Croſs-bite, Diſappointment.

Croſs-caper, a kind of Leap; an unlucky Accident, or Miſfortune.

Croſs-grained, that goes againſt the Grain, ſtubborn, peeviſh, humourſome.

Croſs-Jack-Yard, (in a Ship) a ſmall Yard ſlung at the upper end of the Miſſen-maſt under the top. It is otherwiſe call'd the Croſs-tree-yard, and its Uſe is to ſpread and hale out the Miſſen Top-ſail Sheats.

Croſs-matches or Croſs-marriages, are when a Brother and Siſter inter-marry with two Perſons that have the ſame relation one to another: Or when a Widower and a Widow having Children, unite themſelves and their Children in the Bond of Matrimony.

Croſs-piece or Croſs-beam, a Beam laid a-croſs another: In a Ship, it is a great piece of Timber that goes a-croſs two other pieces call'd Bitts, and to which the Cable is faſten'd when the Ship rides at Anchor.

Croſs-purpoſes, contrary Devices, or Deſigns; alſo a kind of Sport.

Croſs-ſtaff, a Mathematical Inſtrument made of Box or Pear-tree, and us'd by Sea-men to take the Meridian Altitude of the Sun or Stars, in order to find the Latitude; as alſo ſometimes in Surveying, to take Angles. It is commonly call'd the Fore-ſtaff, from taking forward Obſervations, and may alſo be made a Back-ſtaff, by adding a fourth Vane and Sight.

Croſs-trees, (in a Ship) are four pieces of Timber bolted and let one into another at the Head of the Maſts; ſo that they ſerve to keep and bear the Top-maſts up; but ſome that are more nice only give this Name to thoſe two of theſe Timbers which go a-croſs the Ship, and call the other Treſſel-trees.

Croſs-tree-yard. See Croſs-Jack-Yard.

Croſs-trip, a Term us'd in Wreſtling, when the Legs are croſſed one within the another.

Coſs-wort, an Herb whoſe Leaves and Flowers both grow in the ſhape of Croſſes.

Croſlet or Crollet, (in Heraldry) a little plain Croſs, whoſe ends alſo have the form of a plain Croſs; and theſe are often born Fitchee, i. e. pointed at bottom.

Crotaphick Artery, a Name that ſome falſely give to the Tendon of the Muſcle nam'd Crotaphites or Temporalis.

Crotaphites, a Muſcle of the Temples. See Temporalis.

Crotaphium, a Pain in that Part of the Head.

Crotch, the forked part of a Tree, which ſerves for ſeveral Uſes in Husbandry.

Crotchet, a Fancy, or Whim; a Trick or Device: Alſo a kind of Muſical Note, which is half the Meaſure of a Minim; alſo a Mark in Printing thus expreſs'd, [ ]

Crotels or Croteying, (among Hunters) the Ordure, or Dung of a Hare.

Croton, (Gr.) the Tike or Teek, an Inſect: Alſo a kind of Herb call'd Jonas's Gourd, the Seed of which is like that Vermin.

Crouch, (old Word) a Croſs.

Crouchmas or Crouchmas-day, a Feſtival kept by Roman Catholicks in Honour of the Holy Croſs.

To Crouch, to bow down, to ſquat, or lie ſquat.

Croutade, (Fr. in Cookery) a particular manner of dreſſing a Loin of Mutton.

Crow, a well-known Bird; alſo the Name of a Southern Conſtellation, or Company of Stars.

Crow-foot, a Flower being a kind of Anemone. See Ranunculus.

Crow-net, a ſort of Net for the taking of wild Fowl in Winter

Crow-toes, a kind of Flower.

Crows-bill, an Inſtrument us'd by Surgeons to draw Bullets, broken Bones, &c. out of the Body.

Crows-feet, (in a Ship) ſmall Lines or Ropes which are divided by the hole of a little Block or Pulley call'd a Dead Man's Eye, into ſix, ten, or more Parts, and are left hanging, to make a ſhew of ſmall Rigging: They are plac'd at the bottom of the Back-ſtays of the Fore-top-maſt, Miſſen-top-maſt and Top-gallant-maſt, and there alſo goes a Rope divided into two or four Partitions from the upper end of the Sprit-ſail Top-maſt to the Fore-top-maſt Stay which is termed the Sprit-ſail Top-ſail Crow-foot.

Crows-feet or Caltrops, (in Fortif) are Irons ſo made with four Points, of two, three, or four Inches long, that which way ſoever they fall, one Point may be uppermoſt: The ſhorter are uſually ſtrew'd on Bridges, and the longer on the Ground, to gall the Feet of a Body of Horſe.

Crowd, Throng, or Preſs; alſo an old Word for a Fiddler.

Crowling, a Diſtemper in Cattel call'd by ſome, the crying and fretting of the Guts; the Signs of which are the Flux of the Belly and great abundance of Phlegm.

Crown, a Cap of State which Kings and Soveraign Princes ſometimes wear on their Heads, in token of their abſolute Power: Whence it is figuratively taken for Kingdom, Empire, or Dominion; as the Northern Crowns, i. e. the Kingdoms of Sweden, Denmark, Norway, &c. The ancient Romans made uſe of ſeveral ſorts of Crowns to honour Vertue, and reward great Actions; as the Civick, Mural, Naval, Obſidional, Oval, Triumphal, which See under thoſe Articles.

Crown is alſo a Coin, or Piece of Money of five Shillings Value. A Crown current at Florence in Italy, is worth 5 Shillings 3 Pence Sterling: The French Crown 4 s. 6 d; their Gold-Crown 8 s. 6 d. The Gold-Crown at Genoa and Milan, 5*s.* 5 d.

In Geometry, Crown ſignifies a plain Ring included between two Concentrick Perimeters, and is generated, or made, by the motion of ſome part of a Right-line, round a Center; the ſaid moving Part not being contiguous to the Center.

To Crown, to ſet a Crown on one's Head, to reward, to finiſh honourably, to make perfect.

Clerk of the Crown in Chancery, an Officer, that attends the Lord Chancellour, or Lord Keeper, for ſpecial Matters of State, viz. Commiſſions of Lieutenancy, of Juſtices of Aſſize, of Goal-delivery, of the Peace, &c. Alſo all General Pardons granted at the King's or Queen's Coronation, or in Parliament, and other Special Pardons, with the Writs of Parliament, are return'd into his Office.

Clerk of the Crown-Office in the Queen's Bench, one that draws up, reads, and records all Indictments againſt Traytors, Felons, and all other Offenders that are Arraign'd.

Crown-glaſs, the fineſt ſort of Glaſs for Windows, &c.

Crown Imperial, the largeſt and moſt beautiful kind of Daffodil, having long, ſtained green Leaves, with a Tuft of ſmall ones at the top, and under them eight, or ten Flowers of an Orange, or yellow Colour; the in-ſide of them being fill'd with ſweet-taſted, and Pearl-like Drops of clear Water.

Crown-ſcab, a white, or meally Scurf that grows on Horſes Legs, and if not timely prevented, runs almoſt from the Knee to the Hoof. It is caus'd by a yellow and malignant Matter that breaks forth at the Roots of the Hair where it ſticks to the Skin; makes it frizzle, and at laſt ſcalds it quite off.

Crown-thiſtle or Friers Crown-thiſtle, a ſort of Herb.

Crown-wheel of a Watch, is the upper part next the Ballance, which by its Motion drives it; and this in Royal Pendulums, is call'd the Swing-Wheel.

Crown-work, (in Fortif.) an Out-work, conſiſting of a ſpacious Gorge, and two Wings, or Sides, made to cover a large ſpot of Ground, to ſecure ſome Hill, or Riſing-ground, or to defend the Head of the Camp, when it is Intrench'd Crowned Horn-work, is a Horn-work with a Crown-work before it.

Crowned Top, the firſt Head of a Deer, ſo call'd by Hunters, becauſe the Croches, or Buds are rais'd in the form of a Crown.

Crowner. See Coroner.

Croy or Cro, (Scotch Law-term) a Satisfaction which the Judge is to pay to the neareſt of Kin to a Man that is kill'd, in caſe he do not Adminiſter Juſtice as he ought.

To Croyn, to cry as fallow Deer do at Rutting-time.

Crucial Inciſion. See Inciſion.

Cruciata, (Lat.) Croſs-wort, one of the chief Wound-herbs, either inwardly taken, or outwardly apply'd to the Diſeaſed Part.

Cruciatus, (in Anat.) a Muſcle of the Thigh that lies under the Vaſti, ſo call'd by ſome Writers.

Crucible, a Gold-ſmith's Melting-pot: Alſo a Chymical Veſſel, made of Earth, ſo temper'd and bak'd as to endure the ſtrongeſt Fire: They have a flat bottom, and a large top, either round, or triangular, and are us'd for the Melting of Metals, Minerals, Oars, &c.

Cruciferi, (Lat. i. e. Croſs-bearers) the ſame as Crouched Friers, an Order of Monks that came into England, A. D. 1244, and had a Monaſtery at Colcheſter.

Crucifix, an Image or Figure, that repreſents our Saviour hanging on the Croſs.

Crucifixion, the Act of Crucifying.

To Crucify, to nail, or faſten to a Croſs.

Crude, raw, indigeſted.

Crudity, Rawneſs: In Diſeaſes, it is when the Blood is not duly Fermented, and brought to a right Conſiſtence; as it happens in Continued Feavers.

Crudity of the Stomach, an ill Digeſtion, when the Meat, for want of Nouriſhment, or ſome other Cauſe is not brought to a right Ferment, and turn'd into the Juice, call'd Chyle; and it is threefold, viz. Apepſia, Bradypepſia and Dyſpepſia; which See in their proper Places.

Cruel, fierce, hard-hearted, barbarous; grievous, hard, painful.

Cruelty, Barbarouſneſs, Fierceneſs, ill Uſage, Rigour, Inflexible Temper.

Cruet. See Crewet.

Cruiſe, a Word us'd in the Practick of Scotland for a Hog-ſty; it is alſo call'd Cruffera.

Cruiſe or Cruiſing, (Fr.) the Courſe of a Ship.

To Cruiſe, (Sea-word) is when a Fleet, or Squadron of Men of War are Sailing up and down for the Guard of the Seas, with a Deſign to Fight and take the Enemies Ships.

Cruiſer, a Ship that is appointed to Cruiſe.

To Crumple, to put out of the Folds, to ruffle, or towſe.

To Crunk, to cry like a Crane.

Cruor, (Lat.) Blood dropping out of a Wound, Gore. Van Helmont makes a diſtinction between Cruor and Sanguis, taking the former for the Blood in the Veins, and the latter for that in the Arteries.

Crupper, (Fr.) the Buttocks of a Horſe, the Rump: Alſo a Roll of Leather put under a Horſe's Tail, and drawn up by Thongs to the Buckle behind the Saddle, ſo as to keep the Horſe from caſting the Saddle forwards, or on his Neck.

Crupper-buckles, are large ſquare Buckles fixt to the Saddle-tree behind, to faſten the Crupper; each Buckle having a Roller or two on, to make it draw eaſily.

Crura Medullæ Oblongatæ, (Lat. in Anat.) are the two Heads, or Beginnings of the Marrowy Subſtance of the Brain, gather'd together, as it were into two Bundles.

Crural, belonging to the Leg.

Crural Artery, the Artery of the Thigh, that ſpreads it ſelf among the Muſcles: It is a Continuation of the Iliack Artery, which paſſes out of the lower Belly, and enters into the Thighs; where it loſes its former Name, and is call'd Cruralis.

Crural Vein, a Vein, whoſe Trunk receiving the greater and ſmaller Iſchia, the Muſcula, the Poplitæa and the Saphæna goes up to the Groin, and ends in the Iliaca.

Crureus or Femoreus, a Muſcle of the Leg, ſo call'd from its Situation on the Bone of the Thigh, like the Brachiæus on that of the Arm: It is continued from between the greater and leſſer Trochanter, forwards to its lower Part, and is inſerted to a Prominence, or Knob at the upper and fore-part of the Bone, call'd Tibia; which it helps to ſtretch out.

Crus the Shank, the Leg, from the Knee to the Ankle. Crus, or Magnus Pes, is alſo taken by Anatomiſts, for all that Part of the Body, which reaches from the Buttocks, down to the end of the Toes; comprehending the Thigh, Leg and Foot.

Cruſade. See Croiſade.

Cruſe, a little Vial to hold Oil, &c. Alſo a kind of Water-pot, as 1 Sam. 26. 16.

To Cruſh, to break, or ſqueez to pieces, to Oppreſs, or Ruin.

Cruſſel, an old Word for a Griſtle.

Cruſt-clung or Soil-bound, is an hard, ſticking together of the Earth, ſo as that nothing will grow on it.

Cruſta, (Lat.) a piece of Ice frozen; alſo a piece of Wood, or Stone, finely engraven and inlaid in Walls, Floors, Veſſels, &c. Alſo the Shell of a Lobſter, Cray-fiſh, &c. In Surgery, an Eſcar of an Ulcer, after the Cautery is taken off, the Scurf and Scab of a Sore.

Cruſta Lactea, a Scurf, or cruſty Scab that ſpreads over the Head, Face, and other Parts of an Infant at the time of its firſt Sucking: It differs from an Achor, which only infects the Head, and alſo in this reſpect, that it turns white, whereas Achors have only one Colour.

Cruſta Vermicularis, (in Anat.) the Velvet-covering, or Skin of the Guts, the ſame as Velamentum Bombycinum.

Cruſtaceous, covered with, or hard like a Cruſt, Cruſty.

Cruſtaceous Shell-fiſhes, are ſuch as Lobſters, Crabs, Cray-fiſh, &c. cover'd with Shells, conſiſting of ſeveral Pieces and Joynts, being alſo generally ſofter than thoſe of the Teſtaceous Shell-fiſhes, which are all entirely of one Piece, much harder, thicker and ſtronger than the former; as the Cockle, Oiſter, Scallop, &c.

Cruſtula, (Lat.) a little Cruſt, an inlaid piece of Marble in a Wall, alſo a ſmall Scab, or Scar of a Sore: Alſo a Blood-ſhot in the Eye, occaſioned by a Blow, Wound, or otherwiſe; the ſame with Ecchymoma.

Crutchet-Friers, the ſame as Crouched, or Croſſed Friers.

Cruzade. See Croiſade.

Cruzado or Cruzate, a Portugueſe Gold-coin, worth four Shillings Sterling.

Crymodes, (Gr.) a cold, ſhivering Feaver, or Ague, often accompany'd with an Inflammation of the Inner Parts.

Cryptæ, Grotto's, Caves, or hollow Places under Ground; Vaults ſet a-part for the Burial of particular Families: The Graves of the Martyrs were more eſpecially ſo call'd, where the Primitive Chriſtians us'd to meet for the performing of Divine Service: Whence Crypta came alſo to ſignify a Church under Ground, like that of St. Faith's under St. Paul's.

Cryptography, the Act of ſecret Writing; as by particular Characters, or Ciphers.

Cryptology, a Speaking, or Diſcourſing in Secret; a whiſpering privily.

Cryptorchis, (in Anat.) is when the Teſticles lie hid in the Belly.

Cryſtal, a very bright and tranſparent Stone, which looks like Ice, or the cleareſt ſort of Glaſs: In Chymiſtry, that part of a Lixivium, or Lie made of any Metal, or Mineral, which remains congealed after ſome part of the Moiſture is evaporated, or flown off in Vapours.

Cryſtal Mineral. See Mineral Cryſtal and Sal Prunella.

Cryſtals of Copper. See Vitriol of Venus, or Copper.

Cryſtals of Silver or Vitriol of the Moon, a Chymical Operation, by which the Body of Silver is open'd and reduc'd into the Form of a Salt by the ſharp Points of Spirit of Nitre: Theſe Cryſtals are us'd by Surgeons to make an Eſchar, by touching any Part with them; and being given inwardly in Dropſies, ſerve as a gentle Purge.

Cryſtals of Tartar. See Cream of Tartar.

Cryſtals of Venus made by Vinegar. See Verdegreaſe.

Cryſtalline, belonging to Cryſtal, bright, or clear as Cryſtal.

Cryſtalline Heavens, two Spheres, ſuppos'd by the ancient Aſtronomers, that receiv'd the Ptolemaick Syſtem, one of which ſerv'd to explain the ſlow Motion of the fixed Stars, cauſing them (as they thought) to move one Degree Eaſtwards in about 70 Years: And the other help'd to ſolve a Motion, which they call'd the Motion of Trepidation, or Libration, by which they imagin'd the Sphere to ſwag from Pole to Pole.

Cryſtalline or Icy Humour, a white, ſhining Humour of the Eye, which is thicker than the reſt, and the firſt Inſtrument of Sight.

Cryſtalloides, the Cryſtalline Tunick. See Arachnoida and Aranea Tunica.

Cryſtallization, (in Chymiſtry) is an Operation by which the Salts of Metals, or other Mix'd Bodies diſſolved in any Liquor, are made to ſhoot into little prettily figured Lumps, or Pieces, call'd Cryſtals, from their being tranſparent, or clear, like the Stone of that Name.

To Cryſtallize, to reduce to, or to grow into ſuch Cryſtals.

Cryſtallus or Cryſtallum, Cryſtal, a kind of Glaſs, or precious Stone. Cryſtalli are alſo taken for certain Puſhes, or Wheals ſpread all over the Body, of the bigneſs of a Lupine, or Kidney-bean, which are white and tranſparent like Cryſtal.

Cub, a young Bear, or Bear's Whelp: Among Hunters, a Fox and Martern of the firſt Year are alſo call'd Cubs.

Cubature, (in Geom.) is a finding exactly the Solid Content of any propoſed Body; as The Quadrature of a Surface, is finding the Area, or Content of that Surface.

Cubbridge-head, (Sea-term) a Partition made of Boards, &c. a-croſs the Fore-caſtle and half Deck of a Ship, one being termed the Cubbridge-head before, and the other the Cubbridge-head behind; but in other Places, ſuch Partitions are call'd Bulk-heads.

Cube, (Gr. in Geom.) a Solid Regular Figure, bounded by ſix equal Sides, which are all Squares, like a Die: In Algebra, the third Power in a Series, or Rank of Geometrical Proportionals continued, is call'd a Cube; as a is the Root, aa the Square, and aaa the Cube.

Cube or Cubick Number, (in Arithm.) is that which ariſes from the Multiplication of any Number firſt by it ſelf, and then by the Product: So 125 is a Cube-number, produced by 5, firſt Multiply'd by it ſelf, and then by 25 the Product.

Cube-Root, is the ſide of a Cube Number; ſo 3 is the Root, or Side of the Cube 27, and 5 is the Root of the Cube 125.

Cube-Square, is the Biquadrate, or fourth Power, which proceeds from the Root, or Side thrice multiply'd by it ſelf: Thus taking 2 for the Side, 4 is the Square, 8 the Cube, and 16 the Biquadrate, or Cube-Square.

Cubebs, a kind of Indian Fruit, that grows and taſtes like Pepper, claſping about the Tree like Ivy; they hang in cluſters, and the Flowers are very ſweet-ſcented.

Cubical or Cubick, belonging to, or having the Figure of a Cube.

Cubical Artery, (in Anat.) is taken by ſome Writers for a Branch of the Axillary Artery.

Cubical Foot, a Meaſure of Solid Bodies which are a Foot every Way.

Cubick Equations, (in Algebra) are ſuch whoſe higheſt Power conſiſts of three Dimenſions, or is a Cubical Quantity, as $aaa - 3bba = 2ccc$; where the higheſt Power of a the unknown Quantity is a Cube.

Cubick Number. See Cube Number.

Cubiforme Os. See Cuboides.

Cubit, (Lat.) a Meaſure properly counted from the Elbow to the end of the Middle-finger, of which there were anciently three kinds, viz. the great one which was nine Foot long, the middle one of two Foot, and the ſmall one of a Foot and a half.

The Cubit or The Ulna, (in Anat.) is a long hard Bone with a Hollow in its middle, which lies in the in-ſide of the Arm, and reaches from the Elbow to the Wriſt: But ſome make it to conſiſt of two Bones, one call'd Vlna, and the other Radius.

Cubitæus Externus, a Muſcle that ſerves to extend, or ſtretch out the Wriſt: It ariſes from the outward Knob of the Os Humeri, or Shoulder-bone, and is inſerted to the upper and outward part of the Os Metacarpi of the little Finger.

Cubitæus Internus, is a Muſcle which helps to bend the Wriſt, and ſprings from the inner Knob of the Shoulder-bone; whence paſſing along the Vlna, it comes to its Implantion in the fourth Bone of the Carpus, and the Os Metacarpi of the little Finger.

Cubital Muſcle. See Anconæus.

Cubo-Cube or Cubed Cube, (in Mathem.) the ſixth Power of any Number or Quantity; ſo 64 is a Cubed-Cube, rais'd from the Root 2 five times multiply'd into it ſelf.

Cuboides, (Gr. in Anat.) the ſeventh Bone of the Tarſus of the Foot; which is joyn'd behind to the Os Calcis, before to the two outer Bones of the Metatarſus, and on its in-ſide to the Os Cuneiforme: It is alſo call'd Os Cubiforme and Grandinoſum.

Cucheneal. See Cocheneal.

Cuchetus, (in old Latin Records) a Coucher, Setter, or Setting-dog.

Cucking-ſtool, or Tumbrel, an Engine now us'd for the puniſhment of Scolds and brawling Women; as in former times, for that of Brewers and Bakers tranſgreſſing the Laws; who being ſet in ſuch a Stool, were plung'd over Head and Ears in Stercore, or ſtinking Water.

Cuckold, one whoſe Wife's lew'd Pranks are ſaid to have grafted Horns on his Head.

Cuckoo, a well known Bird.

Cuckoo-flower. See Ladies-ſmock.

Cuckoo's-pintle, an Herb otherwiſe call'd Wake-Robin, which purges tough Humours out of the Breaſt and Lungs.

Cucquean, a Wench, or Whore.

Cucujus, the Indian Glow-fly. See Cucuyos.

Cucullaris, (in Anat.) a Muſcle of the Scapula, or Shoulder-blade ſo nam'd, becauſe in Covering the Back with its Fellow, it reſembles a Monk's Cowl, or Hood: It ariſes from the Os Occipitis, the Ligamentum Colli, and the top of the Spine of the laſt Vertebra of the Neck, as alſo from the eight upper ones of the Cheſt; and is inſerted to the Clavicula, and to the Spina Scapulæ: It is alſo call'd Trapezius.

Cucullate Flowers, (among Herbaliſts) are ſuch as reſemble the Figure of an Helmet, or Monk's Hood; being otherwiſe termed Galeate and Galericulate Flowers.

Cucullus, (Lat.) a Hood that Men or Women uſe, to cover their Heads with when it rains, a Frier's Cowl; a Cornet of Paper that Apothecaries and Grocers make uſe of to put their Drugs or Spice in.

Cuculus, the Cuckoo, a Bird; alſo the Gournet, or gray Gournet, a Sea-fiſh; alſo the Herb Night-ſhade.

Cucumer or Cucumis, the Cucumber-Plant, whoſe Seed is one of the greater cold Seeds.

Cucupha, a Cover for the Head, made of ſweet-ſcented Cephalick Spices beat to Powder, and ſtitch'd between two pieces of Silk, or quilted in a Cap, againſt Rheums and other Diſeaſes of the Head.

Cucurbita, a Gourd, a Cupping-glaſs.

Cucurbite or Body, a Chymical pointed Veſſel, made of Earth, Glaſs, or Copper; ſo call'd becauſe its ſhape ſomewhat reſembles a Gourd, and moſt commonly us'd in Diſtillations, or for the rectifying of Spirits, &c.

Cucurbitini Lumbrici, broad Worms that breed in the Entrails, like the Seed of a Gourd.

Cucurbitula or Cucurbita, a Cupping-glaſs; a hollow Veſſel made of Glaſs, or Tin, which is apply'd to the Body, either with Scarification, or without it, to divert, or drive the Blood into ſome other Part, or to let it out when Corrupt: If it be us'd without Scarification, 'tis call'd Cucurbita Cæca, or Ventoſa, and is generally ſet on the moſt fleſhy Parts, where the large Veſſels and Nerves cannot be hurt.

Cucuyos, a kind of Fly in America, which gives ſuch a Luſtre in the Night, that one may not only Travel, but alſo write and read by the Light of it: The Native Indians go a hunting at Mid-night by the help of theſe Inſects, faſtening them to their Hands and Feet.

Cud, the inner part of the Throat in Beaſts.

To Chew the Cud, to chew again, as a Cow does; to reflect, to think, or muſe upon.

Cud-weed or Cud-wort, an Herb whoſe Leaves are ſo ſoft, that they are ſometimes us'd for Cotton; whence it is alſo call'd Cotton-weed.

Cudden or Cuddy, a Changeling, a Nizy, or ſilly Fellow.

Cuddy, (in a Firſt rate Man of War) is a Place lying between the Quarter-deck and the Captain Lieutenant's Cabbin under the Poop; which is divided into Partitions for the Maſter and the Secretary's Officers.

Cude or Cude-cloth, (old Word) a Face-cloth for a young Child, which heretofore us'd to be the Prieſt's Fee, at the baptizing of it.

Cue, an Item given to Stage-players, what, or when to ſpeak; alſo a Mood, or Humour; as A merry Cue.

Cuerpo, (Span.) a Body: Whence the Phraſe To walk in Cuerpo, i. e. to go without a Cloak.

Cui ante divortium, (Lat.) a Writ that a Woman divorced from her Husband, may have to recover Lands or Tenements, from him to whom her Husband alienated them, during the Marriage.

Cui in Vita, a Writ of Entry that a Widow has againſt him to whom her Husband alienated, or made over Lands, &c. in his Life-time; which muſt contain this Clauſe, That during his Life-time She could not withſtand it.

Cuiſnage. See Cuynage.

Cuiraſs, (Fr.) a defenſive Armour, made of Steel, or Iron-plates beat thin; ſo as to cover the Body, from the Neck down to the Waſte, both behind and before.

Cuiraſſier, a Horſe-man armed with a Cuiraſs.

Cuiſſes, an Armour for the Thighs.

Culage, (in ancient Deeds) the laying up of a Ship in the Dock to be repaired.

Culdeys, a ſort of Religious People that were anciently in Scotland and Ireland.

Culeus, (Lat.) a Meaſure containing near two Hogſheads, being the biggeſt Meaſure for Liquors among the Romans, and made of Leather, or bak'd Earth: Alſo a Sack into which ſuch as murder'd their Parents were put, with a Dog, Ape, Cock and Viper, and thrown into the Sea.

Culex, the Gnat, or Midge, a little Fly.

Culinary, belonging to the Kitchen.

To Cull, to pick and chuſe, to pick out.

Cull-fiſh, a ſort of Fiſh.

Cullander, a Kitchen-Veſſel to drain off Liquor from any thing that is boil'd.

Cullers, Sheep that are pick'd, or drawn out of a Flock, as not being good for Meat.

Cullions, the Teſticles, or Stones; alſo an Herb of the nature of Dog-ſtones: Among Gardiners, Cullions or Stone-roots, are the round Roots of Plants, whether ſingle, double, or treble.

Cullion-head, the ſame as a Baſtion, Sconce, or Block-houſe.

Cullis, (in Cookery) a ſtrained Liquor made of any ſort of dreſs'd Meat, or other things pounded in a Mortar, and paſs'd thro' a Hair-ſieve: Theſe Culliſes are uſually pour'd upon Meſſes, and into hot Pies, a little before they are ſerv'd up to Table.

Cullot, a Cuſhion to ride Poſt with.

Cully, a Milk-ſop, one that may be eaſily lead by the Noſe, or put upon.

To Cully one, to make a Fool of him.

Culm, (old Word) Smoak, or Soot.

Culmen, (Lat.) the top, peak, or height of a thing, the ridge of an Houſe, Hill, &c.

Culmen Cœli, (in Aſtrol.) the higheſt point of Heaven, that a Star can riſe to in any Latitude; commonly taken for the Tenth Houſe.

Culmiferous Plants, (among Herbaliſts) ſuch as have a ſmooth, joynted, hollow Stalk, which is wrapt about at each Joynt, with a ſingle, long, narrow and ſharp-pointed Leaf; and their Seeds are contain'd in chaffy Husks; as Wheat, Barley, Rie, Oats, and moſt kinds of Graſſes.

To Culminate, to riſe to the top: Thus among Aſtronomical Writers, the Sun, or a Star is ſaid To Culminate, or to be Culminant, when it comes to the Meridian of any Place, or to the greateſt Height that it can have that Day.

Culmus, (Lat. in Botanicks) is properly the Stem, or Stalk of Corn, or Graſs, diſtinguiſhed from that of all other Plants, which is termed Caulis.

Culpable, guilty, faulty, blame-worthy.

Culpon that Trout, i. e. cut it up, a Phraſe us'd by thoſe that are skill'd in the Art of Carving.

Culrach or Colrach, (in the Practick of Scotland) one left as a Pledge for the Appearance of a Man, from one Court to another.

Culrage, an Herb otherwiſe call'd Arſe-ſmart, or Water-pepper.

Cultch, the bottom of the Sea, where Oiſters Spawn.

To Cultivate, (Lat.) to manure, till, or Husband the Ground; to improve, to manage.

Cultivation, the Act of cultivating, tilling, or improving.

Culture, Husbandry, Tillage, Improvement, good Education.

Culver, (old Word) a Dove, or Pigeon.

Culverin, (Fr.) a piece of Ordinance, ſo named from its Shape ſomewhat reſembling a Snake; and it is of three ſorts, viz.

Culverin of the leaſt Size, which weighs 000 Pounds, and has 5 Inches Diameter at the Bore: It takes up a Charge of 10 ℔. Powder, and carries a Ball of 4¼ Inches Diameter, and 14 ℔. 9 Ou. Weight; its Random-ſhot being 180 Paces.

Culverin Ordinary, is a great Gun of 5¼ Inches Diameter at the Bore, weighing 4500 Pounds, and taking a Charge of 11 Pounds 6 Ounces of Powder, with a Ball of 5 Inches Diameter, and 17 ℔. 5 Ou. Weight.

Culverin Extraordinary, weighs 4800 Pounds, being 13 Foot long, and its Diameter at the Bore 5½ Inches: It has for its Load 12 ℔. 8 Ou. of Powder, and carries a Shot of 5¼ Inches Diameter, and 20 ℔. Weight.

Culvertage, an old Norman Law-Term, ſignifying the Eſcheat, or Forfeiture of a Vaſſal's Lands to the Lord of the Fee.

Culver-tail, (in Carpentry) a particular manner of faſtening Boards, or any Timber, by letting one Piece into another: Among Shipwrights, it is the fixing of the Carling-timbers in the Beams.

To Cumber, to ſtop, to croud, to trouble.

Cumberſome or Cumb'rous, troubleſome, inconvenient, unwieldy.

Cuminum, (Gr.) Cummin, an Herb like Fennel, but leſs, the Seed of which diſperſes Wind, and is good in the Colick; as alſo for a Tympany, dizzineſs in the Head, &c.

† Cunctation, (Lat.) prolonging of time, Delay.

Cuneiforme Os, (in Anat.) a Bone of the Head, ſituated in the midſt of the Baſis, or bottom of the Brain, and ſo nam'd from its Figure reſembling a Wedge.

Cuneiformia Oſſa, certain Bones of the Tarſus of the Foot, which are counted the fourth, fifth and ſixth, and theſe alſo take Name from their Shape, as being large above, and narrow below, like Wedges.

Cuneus, a Wedge, one of the ſix Principles of Mechanicks. In ſome ancient Deeds, it is taken for a Mint, or Place to coin Money in.

Cuniculus, the Coney, or Rabbet, one of the Beaſts of Chace: Alſo a hole, or paſſage under Ground.

Cunila, an Herb, of which there are three ſorts, viz. Savoury, Marjoram with the ſmall Leaf, and Penny-royal with the broad Leaf.

Cunilago, the Herb Flea-bane, or Moth-mullein; or a kind of Savoury, or Orgament.

To Cunn or Cond, (Sea-Term) to direct, or guide; as To Cunn a Ship, i. e. to direct the Perſon at Helm how to Steer her. See To Cond.

Cunner, a ſort of Fiſh.

Cunning, Ingenuity, Skilfulneſs, Subtilty, Craftineſs.

A Cunning Man, one skill'd in Aſtrology; a Diviner, a Conjurer.

Cuntey Cuntey, (old Law-Term) a kind of Tryal, which ſeems to be the ſame with that of the Ordinary Jury, or Tryal by the Country.

Cuntur or Condor, a ſtrange ſort of Bird in Peru, a Province of Southern America, which the Natives worſhipped as one of their Deities: Some of theſe Birds are five or ſix Ells long, from one end of the Wing to the other, and ſo furious that ſeveral Spaniards have been kill'd by them: They have very hard and ſharp Beaks, that will pierce a Hide, and two of them will ſet upon, kill, and devour a Bull: Their Feathers are black and white like thoſe of a Magpy, with a Creſt on the Head in ſhape of a Raſor; and when they fly, they make a moſt terrible Noiſe. One of the Talons of this Bird is kept in the Treaſury of St. Stephen's Chappel at Paris in France

Cup, a Veſſel to drink out of; alſo the Pommel of a Bed: Among Herbaliſts, Cups are taken for thoſe ſhort Husks, in which Flowers grow; ſome being pointed into two, three, four, five, or ſix Leaves.

To Cup, to apply a Cupping-glaſs.

Cup-ſhot or Cup-ſhotten, that is in his Cups, over-loaded with Drink, fuddled.

Cupella, (Lat.) a Cuppel, or Coppel; a kind of Veſſel us'd by Chymiſts.

Cupidity, Concupiſcence, inordinate Deſire, Senſuality, Luſt.

Cupido or Cupid, the fabulous God of Love, whom the Ancients us'd to repreſent like a Boy naked and winged; having a Vail over his Eyes, carrying a Quiver upon his Shoulder, and holding a Torch in one Hand, and a Bow with ſome Darts in the other, to give deſperate Wounds to the Hearts of Lovers.

Cupola, (Ital.) a round Loover, or arched Tower in a Building, made in form of the Bell of a Watch, or of a Cup turned upſide down; as that of St. Paul's Church, London.

Cuppel. See Coppel.

Cupping-glaſs, (in Surgery) a kind of Glaſs-vial apply'd to the moſt fleſhy Parts of the Body, with burning Tow, to draw out corrupt Blood, or windy Matter. See Cucurbitula.

Cupreſſus, (Lat.) the Cypreſs-tree.

Cuprum, Copper, a Metal ſo call'd from the Iſland of Cyprus, ſome time noted for the beſt ſort of it.

Curable, that may be cured.

Curacy or Curateſhip, the Office of a Curate.

Curate, a Parſon or Vicar, one that ſerves a Cure, or has the Charge of Souls in a Pariſh.

Curatio, (Lat.) a taking care for, or looking to a thing; Management, Over-ſight, Proviſion; an Office, Cure, or Charge. In the Art of Phyſick, a right Method of finding out by Symptoms and Indications, proper Remedies for any Diſeaſe, in order to the recovery of Health; Healing, Phyſicking, a Cure.

Curative Indication, a Sign relating to the Diſeaſe to be cured. See Indication.

Curator, (Lat.) one that has the charge to overſee and provide things neceſſary, or that has the management of a Buſineſs; a Commiſſioner, Truſtee, Guardian, Overſeer, Surveyor, &c.

Curatores Alvei Tiberis & Cloacarum, were Commiſſioners appointed by the Emperour Auguſtus, for cleanſing the River Tiber, and the Common-Shore of the City.

Curatores Calendarii, certain Officers, who put out the Publick Caſh to Intereſt, which was paid at the Calends, or the firſt Day of the Month.

Curatores Denariorum Flandorum, the Wardens of the Mint, or Overſeers for the melting and coining of Money, who were otherwiſe call'd Viri Monetales.

Curatores omnium Tribuum, the Protectors or Governours of the ſeveral Quarters of the City of Rome, like the Aldermen of the Wards in London.

Curatores Operum Publicorum, were the Overſeers or Surveyers of Publick Works.

Curatores Viarum extra Urbem, Commiſſioners for the High-ways, Cauſeys and Bridges about the City of Rome.

Curb, part of a Bridle: Alſo a long Swelling beneath the elbow of a Horſe's Hoof, in the great Sinew behind, above the top of the Horn, which makes him halt and go lame.

To Curb, to reſtrain or keep under, to give a check to.

Curculio, (Lat.) the Weeſand, or Wind-pipe: Alſo a little Worm that eats out the Pith of Corn; a Mite, or Weevil.

Curcuma, an Indian Root of a Saffron-colour, commonly call'd Turmerick.

Cure, the healing of a Diſtemper, or Wound; a Remedy: Alſo a Spiritual Living, or Benefice, with the Charge of Souls.

Curebulli, tanned Leather; a Word us'd by Chaucer.

Curfew, a Law made by K. William the Conquerour, That all People ſhould put out their Fire and Lights at the ringing of the Eight a Clock Bell, which was call'd in French, Couvrir le feu, i. e. covering, or raking up the Fire: Whence, in ſeveral Places at this Day, where a Bell is uſually rung towards Bed-time, it is ſaid to ring Curfew.

Curia, (Lat. among the Romans) an Aſſembly of Senatours, Counſellours, or Prieſts; alſo the Council-houſe, State-houſe, or Hall, where they meet; alſo one of the thirty Wards of the City of Rome. See Curia.

In our Common Law, Curia ſignifies a Court of Judicature, and was alſo ſometimes particularly taken for the Company of Tenants that did their Suit and Service at the Court of their Lord.

Curia adviſare vult, a Law-Phraſe made uſe of to expreſs a Deliberation that the Court intends to take upon any Point, or Points of a Cauſe, before they proceed to paſs Judgment.

Curia claudenda, a Writ that lies againſt a Man, who being under an Obligation to fence and cloſe up his Ground, refuſes, or delays to do it.

Curia Canonicorum, was the Court-lodge, or Manour-houſe in a Lordſhip, belonging to ſome Religious Order.

Curia Domini, the Lord's Houſe, Hall, or Court, where all the Tenants, if need requir'd, were bound to give their Attendance every three Weeks; but more eſpecially at Lady-Day and Michaelmas-Day.

Curia Domini Regis. See Chriſtianitatis Curia.

Curia Militum, a Court anciently held at Carisbrook-Caſtle in the Iſle of Wight.

Curia Penticiarum, a Court kept by the Sheriff of Cheſter, in a Place commonly call'd the Pendice, which probably had that Name, becauſe it was held at firſt under a Pent-houſe, or Shed cover'd with Boards.

Curia Perſonæ, the Parſonage, or Parſon's Manſion-houſe.

Curiæ, the Roman People were at firſt divided into Three Tribes, and thoſe Tribes were ſubdivided into Ten Curiæ, or Wards, every one of which had its peculiar Curio, or Prieſt, who took care of the Sacrifices and Feaſts proper to each Curia.

Curiæ Generales, (in our Common Law) thoſe General and Solemn Courts that were held by the Lord of the Manour twice a Year, viz. on the Feſtivals of the Annunciation of the Bleſſed Virgin Mary, and St. Michael the Archangel.

Curiæ Adventus, the Duty of coming to pay Suit and Service at the Court of ſuch a Lord.

Curialitas Scotiæ, the ſame Tenure in Scotland, as that which we call the Courteſy of England; which See.

Curio. See Curia.

Curio Maximus, the chief of all the Curio's, or Prieſts of the thirty Curiæ, or Wards of ancient Rome; who was choſen by a general Aſſembly of thoſe Prieſts, and afterwards confirmed by the Senate and People.

Curionia or Curialia Sacra, the Sacrifices of the Roman Curia, at which every individual Perſon was bound to be preſent, like the Pariſh-maſſes of the Modern Church of Rome.

Curioſity, over-much Care, a Paſſion or Deſire of Seeing, or Knowing; alſo Delicateneſs, or Niceneſs; a curious Thing, or Rarity.

Curious, deſirous to ſee and know every thing, inquiſitive, prying: Alſo excellent, rare; neat or fine, delicate or nice, exact, wary.

Curlew, a kind of Water-fowl of a gray Colour, with red and black Spots, having a long and crooked Bill.

Curlings, (among Hunters) the little ſpotted Curls, with which the Burr of a Deer's Head is powder'd.

Curmudgeon, a covetous Hunks, a pitiful, niggardly, cloſe-fiſted Fellow.

Curnock, four Buſhels, or half a Quarter of Corn.

Curopalates, (Gr.) the Major-domo, or Maſter of the Houſehold to the Greek Emperours.

Curranto or Courant, (Ital. & Fr.) a running French Dance: Alſo a Muſical Air which runs in a Mood call'd the Imperfect of the more, conſiſting of triple Time.

Currency, (Lat.) Currentneſs, Courſe; as The Currency of Coin.

Current, that goes, that is eſtabliſhed, or received; as Current Money, the Current Price, a Current Opinion, &c.

A Current, a running Stream.

Curricurr, a kind of Eaſt-India Barge.

Currydow, (Old Word) a Curry-favour, or Flatterer.

Currier, one that dreſſes, liquors, and colours tann'd Leather, ſo as to make it gentle, and ſerviceable for many Uſes.

Curriſh, Curr-like, doggiſh, churliſh ill-natur'd.

Curruca, (Lat.) a Bird that hatches the Cuckoo's Eggs; an Hedge-ſparrow, or a Titling; alſo a Cuckold, or Wittal.

To Curry, to dreſs Leather, to rub down a Horſe; to make Suit to one, to get into one's Favour.

Curry-comb, an Iron-tool to comb, or dreſs Horſes with.

Curſer, (in old Records) a Courier, or expreſs Meſſenger of Haſte.

Curſiter or Curſitor, an Officer, or Clerk belonging to Chancery, who makes out Original Writs for that County, or Shire which is allotted to him. In Stat. 18. E. 3. they are called Clerks of the Courſe, and are 24 in number, being a particular Corporation.

Curſory, ſlight, or haſty.

Curſt, curſed, fierce, ſhrewd.

Curſtneſs, Fierceneſs, a crabbed Humour; Severity, Rigour.

Curtail, a Drab, or naſty Slut.

Double Curtail, a kind of Muſical Inſtrument, ſerving as a Baſs to the Haut-bois.

To Curtail, to dock, or cut off a Horſe's Tail; to diſmember, to diminiſh.

Curtain. See Courtin.

Curtation of a Planet, (in Aſtron.) is a little part cut off from the Line of its Interval, or Diſtance from the Sun.

Curteſy of England. See Courteſy of England.

Curteyn or Curtana, the Name of K. Edward the Confeſſour's Sword without a Point; the firſt Sword that is uſually carry'd before the King or Queen Regent of England, at his or her Coronation, as an Emblem of Royal Clemency and Mercy.

Curti-cone, a Term in Geometry. See Truncated Pyramid and Cone.

Curtilage, (Law-word) a piece of Ground, Garden-plot, or Yard, belonging to, or lying near a Houſe.

Curtiles terræ, (among the Feudiſts) Court-Lands, or Lands properly belonging to the Court, or Houſe of the Lord of a Manour.

Curtlaſs or Curtle-ax, a kind of Weapon.

Curvature, bowing, or bending, Crookedneſs.

A Curve, (in Geom.) is a crooked Line.

Curves or Curvilineal Figures, thoſe that are bounded by curved, or crooked Lines; as Circles, Ovals, Conick Sections, Spherical Triangles, &c. and theſe are either Regular, or Irregular.

Regular Curves, ſuch Curves as the Perimeters of the Conick Sections, which are always curved, or bent after the ſame regular Geometrical manner.

Irregular Curves are ſuch as have a Point of Inflection, and which being conrinued, do turn themſelves a contrary Way; as the Conchoid and the Solid Parabola.

Curvet, a certain Motion, Gate, or Prancing of a managed Horſe.

Curvilineal or Curvilineary, (in Geom.) crooked-lined; as Curvilineal Figures.

Curvity, Crookedneſs.

Curulis Sella, (Lat.) a Chair of State made of Ivory, carv'd and plac'd in a Chariot, in which the chief Magiſtrates of Rome were anciently carry'd.

Cuſcuta or Caſſuta, a Weed with a red Stalk winding about Herbs, and call'd Dodder, or Withwind.

Cuſp, (in Aſtrol.) the firſt Point, or Beginning of every one of the Twelve Houſes, in a Scheme, or Figure of the Heavens.

Cuſpidatum. See Frontatum.

Cuſpis, (Lat) the Point of a Weapon, a Spear-head, or Arrow-head; alſo a kind of Bandage uſ'd by Surgeons.

Cuſtode admittendo & Cuſtode amovendo, are Writs for the admitting, or removing of Guardians.

Cuſtodes, (among the ancient Romans) certain Officers appointed to prevent Deceit, in the delivering of Tickets for the choice of Magiſtrates.

Cuſtodes Libertatis Angliæ authoritate Parliamenti, i. e. Keepers of the Liberties of England by Authority of Parliament; the Style in which Writs, and other Proceedings at Law, run during the Times of Trouble, from the Death of King Charles I. till the Uſurpation by O. Cromwel.

Cuſtody, Ward or Keeping, ſafe Hold or Priſon.

Cuſtom, (Fr.) Habit, Way, or Faſhion; Uſage, or Uſe; the Practice of a Tradeſman's Shop: Alſo a certain Duty paid by the Subject to the King, Queen, or State, upon the bringing in, or carrying out of Commodities, for protecting them in their Trade, &c.

Among our Common-Lawyers and Civilians, Cuſtom is counted a Part of the Law, and defined to be a Law, or Right not written, which being eſtabliſhed by long Uſe and the Conſent of Anceſtours, has been, and is daily practiſ'd, for the Proof of which, an hundred Years Continuance is at leaſt requiſite; and it is either General, or Particular.

General Cuſtom, is that which is allowed throughout the whole Kingdom of England. A Particular Cuſtom is that which belongs to this, or that County, as Gavelkind to Kent, or to ſuch a Lordſhip, City, or Town.

Cuſtoms and Services, the Name of a Writ of Right. See Conſuetudinibus & Servitiis.

Cuſtom-houſe, a particular Houſe or Publick Building in ſeveral Cities and Sea-port-Towns of England, eſpecially London, where the Queen's Cuſtoms are receiv'd, and all Buſineſs manag'd, relating to that Affair.

Cuſtomable, that is according to Cuſtom.

Cuſtomary, accuſtomed, common, ordinary, uſual.

Cuſtomary Tenants, ſuch Tenants as hold by the Cuſtom of the Manour; as when a Tenant dying, and the Hold being void, the next of Kin is admitted upon Payment of the Cuſtomary Fine of two Shillings for an Acre, &c.

Cuſtomed, that has Cuſtomers; as A well Cuſtomed Shop.

Cuſtomer, one that buys any thing of another; alſo an Officer of the Cuſtom-houſe.

Cuſtos, (Lat.) a Keeper or Preſerver, an Overſeer, a Warden or Guardian; a Controller, a Tutour.

Cuſtos Brevium, the principal Clerk belonging to the Court of Common-Pleas, whoſe Office is to receive and keep all the Writs, and to put them upon Files, every Return by it ſelf; and at the end of every Term to receive from the Protonotaries, all the Records of Niſi Prius, call'd the Poſtea's.

Cuſtos Oculi, a Surgeon's Inſtrument to preſerve the Eye from being hurt in ſome Operations.

Cuſtos Placitorum Coronæ, an Officer mention'd in ſome old Law-writers, that ſeems to be the ſame with him whom we now call Cuſtos Rotulorum.

Cuſtos Rotulorum, an Officer that has the keeping of the Rolls, or Records of the Seſſions of Peace, and as ſome think, of the Commiſſion it ſelf: He is always a Juſtice of Peace and of the Quorum, in the County where he has his Office.

Cuſtos Spiritualitatis vel Spiritualium, i. e. Keeper of the Spiritualities, he that Exerciſes Spiritual, or Eccleſiaſtical Juriſdiction in any Dioceſs, during the Vacancy of the See; the Appointment of whom by the Canon Law, belongs to the Dean and Chapter, but according to our Cuſtom in England, to the Archbiſhop of the Province.

Cuſtos Temporalium, i. e. Keeper of the Temporalities, a Perſon to whoſe Cuſtody the Profits of a vacant See, or Abbey were committed by the King, as Supreme Lord: This Officer being as a Steward of the Goods and Profits, was to give Account to the Eſcheator, and he into the Exchequer: His Truſt continu'd till the Vacancy was ſupply'd by a Succeſſour, who obtain'd the King's Writ for the reſtoring of the Temporalities.

Cuſtrel, (old Word) the Servant to a Man at Arms, or of a Prince's Life-guard in the Time of K. Henry VIII.

To Cut the Sail, (in Sea-language) is to unfurl it, and let it fall down, The Sail is well Cut, i. e. well faſhioned.

To Cut a Feather, a Term uſ'd by Sailers, when a well bow'd Ship ſo ſwiftly preſſes the Water, that it foams before her, and in a dark Night ſeems to ſparkle like Fire: In the ſame Senſe, a Ship is alſo ſaid, To carry a Bone in her Mouth.

Cut Baſtion. See Baſtion.

Cut-throat, a Murderer, a Villain, or Ruffian. Cut-throat Place, an Inn, or Tavern, where People are exacted upon.

Cut-water, (Sea-term) that ſharpneſs of a Ship, which is underneath the Beak-head; ſo call'd, becauſe it cuts and divides the Water e'er it comes to the Bow: It is alſo termed the Knee of the Head.

Cutaneous, (Lat.) belonging to the Skin, as Cutaneous Diſtempers, i. e. thoſe Diſeaſes that affect the Skin; as the Itch, Scab, &c.

Cutcheneal. See Cocheneal.

Cute, new Wine that has not Fermented, or Work'd.

Cuthbert, (Sax. i. e. famous Knowledge) a Proper Name of Men, particularly of that Renowned Engliſh Saint, who was Archbiſhop of Canterbury in the beginning of the Saxon Monarchy.

Cuticle, (Lat. in Anat.) the Scarf-skin, or outmoſt thin Skin which covers the whole Body, and is full of innumerable Pores, or very ſmall Holes, for the Paſſage of Vapours, Sweat, &c.

Cutis, the inner Skin, which lies under the former, and is ſomewhat thick, abounding likewiſe with Pores: It conſiſts of ſeveral Filaments, or Strings of the Veins, Arteries, Nerves and Fibres, interwoven one with another, and full of Glandules, Lympheducts, &c.

Cutlets, (Fr. i. e. little Ribs) a Term in Cookery, a dainty Diſh made of the ſhort Ribs of a Neck of Mutton.

Cutted, Scolding, Brawling, Quarrelſome; as A Cutted Houſewife.

Cutter of the Tallies, an Officer in the Exchequer, that provides Wood for the Tallies, and having cut Notches upon them, for the Summ payable, caſts the ſame into the Court, to be Written upon.

Cutting the Neck, (a Term uſ'd by Reapers) a Cutting the laſt Handful of ſtanding Corn; which being done, they give a Shout, and fall to Merry-making; it being the end of ſuch a Man's Harveſt for that Year.

Cuttings or Slips, (in Huſbandry) are the Branches, or Sprigs of Trees, or Plants cut, or ſlipped off to ſet again; which is done in fine Earth from the middle of Auguſt to the middle of April.

Cuttings off. See Retrenchment.

Cuttle or Cuttle Fiſh, a kind of Sea-fiſh, which throwing out a black Juice like Ink into the Water, lies hid in that Obſcurity, and ſo eſcapes the Fiſher.

Cutts, a ſort of flat-bottom'd Boats, formerly uſ'd in the Channel for Tranſporting Horſes.

Cuva, (in old Latin Records) a Keeve, or Keever; a Tub, or Veſſel for Brewing.

Cuvet, (Fr.) a kind of Diſh of an Oval Form.

Cuvette, a Ciſtern for a Dining-room: In Fortification, a little Trench, 18 or 20 Foot broad, uſually ſunk by the Beſieged in the middle of a great dry Moat, till they meet with Water; its Uſe being to keep off the Enemies, and to prevent their Mining.

Cuynage, (in Stat. 11. H. 7.) the making up of Tin into that faſhion as it uſ'd to be fram'd, for the better Carriage of it into other Places.

Cyamus, (Gr.) the Bean, a ſort of Pulſe.

Cyanus, a kind of Jaſper-ſtone of an Azure colour; ſome take it for a Turcois, others for the Lazul-ſtone, which being beaten to Powder, makes an admirable Blew: Alſo the Blew-bottle, or Corn-flower, the Diſtilled Water of which is good for Inflammations in the Eyes, &c.

Cyathus, a Cup, or Glaſs with which the Ancients uſ'd to take Wine out of a larger Veſſel, containing an Ounce and a half of Liquor; a little Pot, or Glaſs to drink out of: Alſo a kind of Weight, of Ten Drams.

Cychramus, a ſort of Bird that always accompanies the Quails at their leaving the Country.

Cyclaminus or Cyclaminum, an Herb, of which there are two ſorts, one call'd Sow-bread, and the other our Lady's Seal.

Cycle, (i. e. a Circle, or Round) an Aſtronomical Term for a continual Revolution, or rolling about of certain Numbers, which ſucceſſively go on without any Interruption, from the firſt to the laſt, and then return again to the firſt: Theſe Cycles are chiefly three, viz. The Solar, the Lunar, and that of Indiction.

Solar Cycle or Cycle of the Sun, is a Revolution of 28 Years, for finding out the Dominical, or Sunday-letters; which being expir'd, they all return in the ſame Order, as before.

Lunar Cycle or Cycle of the Moon, otherwiſe call'd the Golden Number, is a Period, or Revolution of 19 Years, invented to make the Lunar Year agree with the Solar: So that at the end of it, the New Moons happen in the ſame Months, and Days of the Month, and the Moon begins again her Courſe with the Sun: This Circle is alſo ſometimes call'd Ennedecateris, Circulus Decennovennalis and Metonicus, from Meton of Athens the Inventer of it.

Cycle of Indiction, a Revolution of three Luſtrum's, or 15 Years, after which thoſe who us'd it began it again. This Cycle was Eſtabliſh'd by the Emperour Conſtantine the Great, inſtead of the Olympiads, A. C. 312, and was ſo nam'd, as ſome ſay, becauſe it denoted the Year that Tribute was to be paid to the Common-wealth. See Indiction.

Cycliſcus, a little Circle, or round Ball: Alſo a Surgeon's Inſtrument, made in form of a Half-moon, to ſcrape away corrupt Fleſh, &c.

Cycloid, (in Geom.) a Figure made by the upper end of the Diameter of a Circle turned about a Right Line.

Cycloidal Space, is the Space contained between the Curve, or crooked Line, and the Subtenſe of the Figure.

Cyclopædia. See Encyclopædia.

Cyclophoria Sanguinis, the Circulation of the Blood.

Cyclus, a Circle, or Round; a Cycle, as of the Sun, or Moon.

Cyclus Paſchalis, a Table to find out the Feſtival of Eaſter.

Cydonia Mala, Quinces, a ſort of Fruit, ſo call'd from Cydon, a City of Crete, or Candia.

Cydonites, a Compound made of ſtew'd Quinces, Pears and Honey; or a kind of Drink made of Quinces.

Cydonium, Quiddany, Conſerve, or Marmalet of Quinces.

Cyema, (Gr.) the ſame with Embryo.

Cygnet, a young Swan, which being well fatted, makes a noble Diſh at great Entertainments.

Cygnus, a Swan: Alſo the Swan a Conſtellation in the Northern Hemiſphere, conſiſting of 35 tars.

Cylinder, a Roller, or Rolling-ſtone, a round Stone, or piece of Wood to break Clods of Earth, or to make Garden-walks even and ſmooth: In Geometry, a Solid Body, made by the turning of a Rectangled Parallelogram about one of its Sides, ſo that it is extended in length, equally round, and its Extremities, or Ends are equal Circles: Among Phyſicians and Surgeons, a Plaiſter made up into a long Roll.

Charged Cylinder, (in Gunnery) is the Chamber of a great Gun, or that part which receives the Charge of Powder and Shot.

Concave Cylinder, all the hollow length of a piece of Ordinance.

Vacant Cylinder, that part of the Hollow which remains empty, when the Gun is Charg'd; or that part of it which is between the Trunnions, and the Muzzle, or Mouth.

Cylindrical, that belongs to, or is in form of a Cylinder, Cylinder-like.

Cylindroid, (in Geom.) a Solid Figure, having Elliptical, or Oval Baſes, parallel and alike Situated.

Cylloſis, (Gr, in Surgery) Lameneſs, Crookedneſs, as when a Leg is put out of Joynt outwardly.

Cyma, a Surge, or Wave; alſo the young Sprout of Coleworts, or other Herbs; a little Shoot, or Branch: But it is more eſpecially taken by Herbaliſts for the top of any Plant.

Cymatium, a little Wave: In Architecture, a Member, or Carved Work, whoſe Figure reſembles a rolling Wave, one half of it being Convex, or Arched on the out-ſide, and the other Concave, or hollow on the in-ſide.

Cymbal, a Muſical Inſtrument, anciently made of two hollow Plates of Copper, or Braſs, like a Porrenger; but it is now taken for a ſort of Wind-muſick.

Cymbalaria, the Herb Penny-wort.

Cymbiforme Os. See Naviculare Os.

Cymindis, a Night-hawk, an Enemy to the Eagle.

Cyminum, the Herb Cummin. See Cuminum.

Cymraecan Language, the Welſh, or old Britiſh Tongue.

Cyna, a Tree in Arabia, with Leaves like the Palm-tree.

Cynanche, the Squinancy, or Quinſey, an Inflammation of the inner Muſcles of the Throat, accompany'd with difficulty of Breathing, and a continual Feaver: This Diſeaſe is ſo call'd, becauſe it often happens to Dogs and Wolves.

Cynanthemis, the Herb May-weed, or ſtinking Camomile.

Cynanthropia, a kind of Frenzy, caus'd by the venomous Bite of a Dog, Wolf, &c. So that the Patient ſhuns the Light, and every thing that is bright, is much afraid of Water, and trembles at the ſight, or remembrance of it.

Cynara, the Artichoke-plant. See Cinara.

Cynchramus, a Bird, ſomewhat bigger than a creſted Lark, and counted a delicate Morſel in Italy.

Cynegeticks, Books that treat of the Exerciſe of Hunting.

Cynical, Dog-like, Dogged, Curriſh, Churliſh, Crabbed.

Cynicks, a Sect of Philoſophers, ſo call'd, from their churliſh Behaviour, and ſnarling Reflections upon all ſorts of Perſons: They deſpis'd all things, eſpecially Grandeur and Riches, with all Arts and Sciences, except Morality.

Cynicus Spaſmus, the Dog-cramp, a Convulſion of the Muſcles of the Mouth, by which the Face is ſo drawn awry, that it reſembles the Countenance of a grinning Dog.

Cynips, a Fly with long Legs and a Sting; the Dog-fly, Gnat, or Midge; one of the Plagues of Egypt.

Cynobotane, an Herb call'd ſtinking May-weed.

of England, eſpecially London, where the Queen's Cuſtoms are receiv'd, and all Buſineſs manag'd, relating to that Affair.

Cuſtomable, that is according to Cuſtom.

Cuſtomary, accuſtomed, common, ordinary, uſual.

Cuſtomary Tenants, ſuch Tenants as hold by the Cuſtom of the Manour; as when a Tenant dying, and the Hold being void, the next of Kin is admitted upon Payment of the Cuſtomary Fine of two Shillings for an Acre, &c.

Cuſtomed, that has Cuſtomers; as A well Cuſtomed Shop.

Cuſtomer, one that buys any thing of another; alſo an Officer of the Cuſtom-houſe.

Cuſtos, (Lat.) a Keeper or Preſerver, an Overſeer, a Warden or Guardian; a Controller, a Tutour.

Cuſtos Brevium, the principal Clerk belonging to the Court of Common-Pleas, whoſe Office is to receive and keep all the Writs, and to put them upon Files, every Return by it ſelf; and at the end of every Term to receive from the Protonotaries, all the Records of Niſi Prius, call'd the Poſtea's.

Cuſtos Oculi, a Surgeon's Inſtrument to preſerve the Eye from being hurt in ſome Operations.

Cuſtos Placitorum Coronæ, an Officer mention'd in ſome old Law-writers, that ſeems to be the ſame with him whom we now call Cuſtos Rotulorum.

Cuſtos Rotulorum, an Officer that has the keeping of the Rolls, or Records of the Seſſions of Peace, and as ſome think, of the Commiſſion it ſelf: He is always a Juſtice of Peace and of the Quorum, in the County where he has his Office.

Cuſtos Spiritualitatis vel Spiritualium, i. e. Keeper of the Spiritualities, he that Exerciſes Spiritual, or Eccleſiaſtical Juriſdiction in any Dioceſs, during the Vacancy of the See; the Appointment of whom by the Canon Law, belongs to the Dean and Chapter, but according to our Cuſtom in England, to the Archbiſhop of the Province.

Cuſtos Temporalium, i. e. Keeper of the Temporalities, a Perſon to whoſe Cuſtody the Profits of a vacant See, or Abbey were committed by the King, as Supreme Lord: This Officer being as a Steward of the Goods and Profits, was to give Account to the Eſcheator, and he into the Exchequer: His Truſt continu'd till the Vacancy was ſupply'd by a Succeſſour, who obtain'd the King's Writ for the reſtoring of the Temporalities.

Cuſtrel, (old Word) the Servant to a Man at Arms, or of a Prince's Life-guard in the Time of K. Henry VIII.

To Cut the Sail, (in Sea-language) is to unfurl it, and let it fall down, The Sail is well Cut, i. e. well faſhioned.

To Cut a Feather, a Term us'd by Sailers, when a well bow'd Ship ſo ſwiftly preſſes the Water, that it foams before her, and in a dark Night ſeems to ſparkle like Fire: In the ſame Senſe, a Ship is alſo ſaid, To carry a Bone in her Mouth.

Cut Baſtion. See Baſtion.

Cut-throat, a Murderer, a Villain, or Ruffian. Cut-throat Place, an Inn, or Tavern, where People are exacted upon.

Cut-water, (Sea-term) that ſharpneſs of a Ship, which is underneath the Beak-head; ſo call'd, becauſe it cuts and divides the Water e'er it comes to the Bow: It is alſo termed the Knee of the Head.

Cutaneous, (Lat.) belonging to the Skin; as Cutaneous Diſtempers, i. e. thoſe Diſeaſes that affect the Skin; as the Itch, Scab, &c.

Cutcheaneal. See Cocheneal.

Cute, new Wine that has not Fermented, or Work'd.

Cuthbert, (Sax. i. e. famous Knowledge) a Proper Name of Men, particularly of that Renowned Engliſh Saint, who was Archbiſhop of Canterbury in the beginning of the Saxon Monarchy.

Cuticle, (Lat. in Anat.) the Scarf-skin, or outmoſt thin Skin which covers the whole Body, and is full of innumerable Pores, or very ſmall Holes, for the Paſſage of Vapours, Sweat, &c.

Cutis, the inner Skin, which lies under the former, and is ſomewhat thick, abounding likewiſe with Pores: It conſiſts of ſeveral Filaments, or Strings of the Veins, Arteries, Nerves and Fibres, interwoven one with another, and full of Glandules, Lympheducts, &c.

Cutlets, (Fr. i. e. little Ribs) a Term in Cookery, a dainty Diſh made of the ſhort Ribs of a Neck of Mutton.

Cutted, Scolding, Brawling, Quarrelſome; as A Cutted Houſewife.

Cutter of the Tallies, an Officer in the Exchequer, that provides Wood for the Tallies, and having cut Notches upon them, for the Summ payable, caſts the ſame into the Court, to be Written upon.

Cutting the Neck, (a Term uſ'd by Reapers) a Cutting the laſt Handful of ſtanding Corn; which being done, they give a Shout, and fall to Merry-making; it being the end of ſuch a Man's Harveſt for that Year.

Cuttings or Slips, (in Husbandry) are the Branches, or Sprigs of Trees, or Plants cut, or ſlipped off to ſet again; which is done in fine Earth from the middle of Auguſt to the middle of April.

Cuttings off. See Retrenchment.

Cuttle or Cuttle-Fiſh, a kind of Sea-fiſh, which throwing out a black Juice like Ink into the Water, lies hid in that Obſcurity, and ſo eſcapes the Fiſher.

Cutts, a ſort of flat-bottom'd Boats, formerly us'd in the Channel for Tranſporting Horſes.

Cuva, (in old Latin Records) a Keeve, or Keever; a Tub, or Veſſel for Brewing.

Cuvet, (Fr.) a kind of Diſh of an Oval Form.

Cuvette, a Ciſtern for a Dining-room: In Fortification, a little Trench, 18 or 20 Foot broad, uſually ſunk by the Beſieged in the middle of a great dry Moat, till they meet with Water; its Uſe being to keep off the Enemies, and to prevent their Mining.

Cuynage, (in Stat. 11. H. 7.) the making up of Tin into that faſhion as it us'd to be fram'd, for the better Carriage of it into other Places.

Cyamus, (Gr.) the Bean, a ſort of Pulſe.

Cyanus, a kind of Jaſper-ſtone of an Azure-colour; ſome take it for a Turcois, others for the Lazul-ſtone, which being beaten to Powder, makes an admirable Blew: Alſo the Blew-bottle, or Corn-flower, the Diſtilled Water of which is good for Inflammations in the Eyes, &c.

Cyathus, a Cup, or Glaſs with which the Ancients us'd to take Wine out of a larger Veſſel, containing an Ounce and a half of Liquor; a little Pot, or Glaſs to drink out of: Alſo a kind of Weight, of Ten Drams.

Cychramus, a ſort of Bird that always accompanies the Quails at their leaving the Country.

Cyclaminus or Cyclaminum, an Herb, of which there are two ſorts, one call'd Sow-bread, and the other our Lady's Seal.

Cycle, (i. e. a Circle, or Round) an Aſtronomical Term for a continual Revolution, or rolling about of certain Numbers, which ſucceſſively go on without any Interruption, from the firſt to the laſt, and then return again to the firſt: Theſe Cycles are chiefly three, viz. The Solar, the Lunar, and that of Indiction.

Solar Cycle or Cycle of the Sun, is a Revolution of 28 Years, for finding out the Dominical, or Sunday-letters; which being expir'd, they all return in the ſame Order, as before.

Lunar Cycle or Cycle of the Moon, otherwiſe call'd the Golden Number, is a Period, or Revolution of 19 Years, invented to make the Lunar Year agree with the Solar: So that at the end of it, the New Moons happen in the ſame Months, and Days of the Month, and the Moon begins again her Courſe with the Sun: This Circle is alſo ſometimes call'd Ennedecateris, Circulus Decennovennalis and Metonicus, from Meton of Athens the Inventer of it.

Cycle of Indiction, a Revolution of three Luſtrum's, or 15 Years, after which thoſe who us'd it began it again. This Cycle was Eſtabliſh'd by the Emperour Conſtantine the Great, inſtead of the Olympiads, A. C. 312, and was ſo nam'd, as ſome ſay, becauſe it denoted the Year that Tribute was to be paid to the Common-wealth. See Indiction.

Cycliſcus, a little Circle, or round Ball: Alſo a Surgeon's Inſtrument, made in form of a Half-moon, to ſcrape away corrupt Fleſh, &c.

Cycloid, (in Geom.) a Figure made by the upper end of the Diameter of a Circle turned about a Right Line.

Cycloidal Space, is the Space contained between the Curve, or crooked Line, and the Subtenſe of the Figure.

Cyclopædia. See Encyclopædia.

Cyclophoria Sanguinis, the Circulation of the Blood.

Cyclus, a Circle, or Round; a Cycle, as of the Sun, or Moon.

Cyclus Paſchalis, a Table to find out the Feſtival of Eaſter.

Cydonia Mala, Quinces, a ſort of Fruit, ſo call'd from Cydon, a City of Crete, or Candia.

Cydonites, a Compound made of ſtew'd Quinces, Pears and Honey; or a kind of Drink made of Quinces.

Cydonium, Quiddany, Conſerve, or Marmalet of Quinces.

Cyema, (Gr.) the ſame with Embryo.

Cygnet, a young Swan, which being well fatted, makes a noble Diſh at great Entertainments.

Cygnus, a Swan: Alſo the Swan a Conſtellation in the Northern Hemiſphere, conſiſting of 35 Stars.

Cylinder, a Roller, or Rolling-ſtone, a round Stone, or piece of Wood to break Clods of Earth, or to make Garden-walks even and ſmooth: In Geometry, a Solid Body, made by the turning of a Rectangled Parallelogram about one of its Sides, ſo that it is extended in length, equally round, and its Extremities, or Ends are equal Circles: Among Phyſicians and Surgeons, a Plaiſter made up into a long Roll.

Charged Cylinder, (in Gunnery) is the Chamber of a great Gun, or that part which receives the Charge of Powder and Shot.

Concave Cylinder, all the hollow length of a piece of Ordinance.

Vacant Cylinder, that part of the Hollow which remains empty, when the Gun is Charg'd; or that part of it which is between the Trunnions, and the Muzzle, or Mouth.

Cylindrical, that belongs to, or is in form of a Cylinder, Cylinder-like.

Cylindroid, (in Geom.) a Solid Figure, having Elliptical, or Oval Baſes, parallel and alike Situated.

Cylloſis, (Gr. in Surgery) Lameneſs, Crookedneſs, as when a Leg is put out of Joynt outwardly.

Cyma, a Surge, or Wave; alſo the young Sprout of Coleworts, or other Herbs; a little Shoot, or Branch: But it is more eſpecially taken by Herbaliſts for the top of any Plant.

Cymatium, a little Wave: In Architecture, a Member, or Carved Work, whoſe Figure reſembles a rolling Wave, one half of it being Convex, or Arched on the out-ſide, and the other Concave, or hollow on the in-ſide.

Cymbal, a Muſical Inſtrument, anciently made of two hollow Plates of Copper, or Braſs, like a Porrenger; but it is now taken for a ſort of Wind-muſick.

Cymbalaria, the Herb Penny-wort.

Cymbiforme Os. See Naviculare Os.

Cymindis, a Night-hawk, an Enemy to the Eagle.

Cyminum, the Herb Cummin. See Cuminum.

Cymraecan Language, the Welſh, or old Britiſh Tongue.

Cyna, a Tree in Arabia, with Leaves like the Palm-tree.

Cynanche, the Squinancy, or Quinſey, an Inflammation of the inner Muſcles of the Throat, accompany'd with difficulty of Breathing, and a continual Feaver: This Diſeaſe is ſo call'd, becauſe it often happens to Dogs and Wolves.

Cynanthemis, the Herb May-weed, or ſtinking Camomile.

Cynanthropia, a kind of Frenzy, caus'd by the venomous Bite of a Dog, Wolf, &c. So that the Patient ſhuns the Light, and every thing that is bright, is much afraid of Water, and trembles at the ſight, or remembrance of it.

Cynara, the Artichoke-plant. See Cinara.

Cynchramus, a Bird, ſomewhat bigger than a creſted Lark, and counted a delicate Morſel in Italy.

Cynegeticks, Books that treat of the Exerciſe of Hunting.

Cynical, Dog-like, Dogged, Curriſh, Churliſh, Crabbed.

Cynicks, a Sect of Philoſophers, ſo call'd, from their churliſh Behaviour, and ſnarling Reflections upon all ſorts of Perſons: They deſpis'd all things, eſpecially Grandeur and Riches, with all Arts and Sciences, except Morality.

Cynicus Spaſmus, the Dog-cramp, a Convulſion of the Muſcles of the Mouth, by which the Face is ſo drawn awry, that it reſembles the Countenance of a grinning Dog.

Cynips, a Fly with long Legs and a Sting; the Dog-fly, Gnat, or Midge; one of the Plagues of Egypt.

Cynobotane, an Herb call'd ſtinking May-weed.

Cynocephale, an Herb bearing a Flower like a Dog's Head.

Cynocephalis or Cynocephalus, a kind of Ape with a Head like a Dog; the Dog's-headed Monkey, or Baboon.

Cynocoprus, Dogs Ordure, or Dung.

Cynocrambe, the Herb Dog's-Mercury, which gently purges Serous Humours.

Cynodes Orexis, or Cynorexis, a Diſeaſe, a preternatural ravening Appetite, or an extreme Hunger, accompany'd with Vomiting, or a Looſeneſs.

Cynodeſmus, (in Anat.) the Band which ties the little Skin of the Penis to the Glans, or Nut.

Cynodontes, the Dog-teeth, or Eye-teeth, betwixt the Fore-teeth and the Grinders, of which there are two in each Jaw.

Cynogloſſus, the Herb Hounds-tongue, good to ſtop Bloud; a Looſeneſs, Rheum, &c.

Cynomazon, a Herb which being put into a piece of Bread, kills Dogs.

Cynomorion, a kind of Weed that grows amidſt Corn and kills it; Choke-weed.

Cynomya, the Dog-fly, an Inſect; alſo the Herb Flea-bane.

Cynorexis. See Cynodes Orexis.

Cynorrhodon, the wild Roſe, or Sweet-brier Roſe: alſo the Flower of the red Lilly.

Cynosbatos or Cynosbaton, Eglantine, or Sweet-brier, a Shrub; alſo the Caper-buſh.

Cynoſorchis, the Herb Dog-ſtones; alſo Gander-gooſe, or Rag-wort.

Cynoſura, a Conſtellation, or cluſter of ſeven Stars, near the North-Pole, otherwiſe call'd Urſa Minor, i. e. the Leſſer Bear; or the Polar Star, in the Tail of it, which ſerves to guide Sailers in their Courſe.

Cynozolon, a ſtinking Weed of the Thiſtle-kind.

Cyon or Cion, a Grafft, Sucker, or Sprig; a young Tree, or Slip, ſpringing from an old one.

Cypariſſæ or Cypariſſeæ, certain fiery Meteors, or Vapours that appear in the Air at Night.

Cypariſſias, the greateſt kind of Spurge; an Herb.

Cypariſſus, the Cypreſs-tree.

Cyperis, an Indian Herb like Ginger, which being chew'd has the Virtue of Saffron.

Cyperus, a kind of Ruſh, white at bottom, and black at top; Galingale: Alſo an Herb whoſe Root ſmells like Spikenard.

Cypher. See Cipher.

Cyphoma or Cyphoſis, (in Anat.) a bending backwards of the Vertebra's, or Turning-joynts of the Back; a being hunch-back'd, or boſſed.

Cypreſs, a Tree with which Sepulchres were adorn'd, as being the Emblem of Death: Alſo a ſort of fine curled Stuff, partly Silk, and partly Hair, of which Hoods, &c. for Women are uſually made; ſo call'd from the Iſland of Cyprus, from whence they were firſt brought.

Cyprian, a proper Name of Men, particularly of one of the Latin Fathers, and Biſhop of Carthage in Africa, who ſuffer'd Martyrdom, A. C. 250.

Cyprinus, the Carp, a freſh-water Fiſh.

Cyprus, an Iſland in the Mediterranean-Sea, anciently dedicated to Venus, and now under the Turks Dominion: Alſo a Shrub, or Buſh much like Privet; with the Flowers of which the Inhabitants of that Iſland us'd to make a very ſweet Oil: Alſo the Drug Camphire.

Cypſelus, the Martin, or Martlet; a Bird like a Swallow.

Cyrickſceat, (Sax.) a certain Tribute, or Duty formerly paid to the Church. See Church-eſſet.

Cyrpus, (in old Latin Records) a Ruſh, or Bulruſh, ſuch as formerly ſerv'd for the ſtrewing of Churches, and are ſtill us'd in ſome Places for the ſame Purpoſe.

Cyrtoma or Cyrtoſis, Crookedneſs, a Bunch in the Back, or a Swelling in any other Part.

Cyſſaros, the Fundament, Breech, or Buttock; alſo the lowermoſt Gut call'd Rectum, or the Straight Gut.

Cyſteolithos, the Spunge-ſtone, a kind of Stone of a brittle Subſtance, and whitiſh Colour, yielding a milky Juice.

Cyſtepatick Artery, (in Anat.) a Branch of the Cœliack, which paſſes to the Liver and Gall.

Cyſtepaticus Ductus, a Conduit, or Paſſage, which is let into that of the Liver call'd Hepatick, and the Gall-bladder.

Cyſtica, Medicines us'd againſt Diſtempers in the Bladder.

Cyſticæ Gemelli, (in Anat.) two very ſmall Branches of the Cœliack Artery, which are diſperſed thro' the Gall-bladder.

Cyſtick Vein, a Branch of the Vena Porta, which goes up to the Neck of the Gall-bladder, and there divides it ſelf.

Cyſticus Ductus. See Ductus Cyſticus.

Cyſtis, a Bladder, eſpecially that of the Urine and Gall: Alſo the Bag, or Skin that contains the Matter of an Impoſtume.

Cyſtis Choledochus, the Gall-bladder.

Cyſtotomia, a cutting, or opening of the Bladder, in order to take out the Stone lodged in it.

Cytharus, a Sea-fiſh of the Turbot-kind.

Cytinus, the firſt Bud, or the Flower of the Pomegranate-tree.

Cytiſus, a kind of Shrub, or Herb good for Cattel's Milk; Hather, or Hadder.

Cyzicenus Stater, the Summ of ſixteen Shillings four Pence, ſo call'd from the Iſland of Cyzicus.

Czar, the Title of the Emperour of Muſcovy, who is ſo ſty led qu. Caſar, which being the Name of the firſt Emperour of Rome, is now become a general Title for thoſe that have attain'd to Imperial Power.

D A.

DAB, a ſort of Sea-fiſh, which is thought to be no other than a young Flounder; alſo a light blow on the Chaps, or box on the Ear.

Dab-chick, a kind of Water-fowl.

To Dabble, to Splaſh, or ſtir about in the Water, or Dirt.

Dabuh, a wild Beaſt in Arabia and Africa, which reſembles a Wolf in Shape and Bigneſs: It routs up Graves to prey upon dead Bodies, and perhaps is the ſame with the Hyæna of the Ancients.

Dabuze, a ſort of Weapon carry'd before the Grand Seignior or Emperour of the Turks, which is of the Nature of our Mace.

Dace or Dare, a ſmall River-fiſh, much of the ſame kind with the Roach.

Dacryodes, (Gr.) an Ulcer that continually ſends forth Matter.

Dactylus, a Finger; alſo a Date, the fruit of the Palm-tree, that grows like a Finger: Alſo a kind of Shell-fiſh, or Muſcle: Alſo a Dactyl, a Foot in Greek and Latin Verſe, conſiſting of one long Syllable and two ſhort ones; as Titĭrĕ.

Daddock, (q. d. dead Oak) a Country-word, ſignifying the Heart, or Body of a Tree that is thoroughly rotten.

Dado, (in Architect.) a Term us'd by ſome Writers for the Die, which is a Member in the middle of the Pedeſtal of a Pillar, between its Baſe and Cornice.

Dæmon. See Demon.

Daff, (old Word) a Daſtard, or Coward.

Daffodil, a Flower, of which there are a great many ſorts variouſly diverſify'd: The Root of it provokes Vomiting, and the Leaves bruiſed are good for St. Anthony's Fire.

Dag, (old Word) a Leather-latchet; alſo a Hand-gun.

To Dag Sheep, to cut off the Skirts of the Fleece.

Dag-locks, the Wooll that is ſo cut off.

Dagger, a well known Weapon; alſo a Croſs, a kind of Mark in Printing thus expreſs'd (†)

Dagger-fiſh, a ſort of Sea-fiſh.

To Daggle, to dawb the Skirts of one's Cloaths with Dirt, or Filth.

Dagon, an Idol of the Philiſtines, ſaid to have the upper Parts like a Man, and the lower like a Fiſh.

To Daign, (Fr.) to condeſcend, to vouchſafe, to be pleaſed.

Dail, (on board a Ship) a Trough in which the Water runs from the Pump, over the Decks.

Daily Motion, (in Aſtron.) the progreſs which any Planet makes in 24 Hours, by its own proper Motion.

Dainty, delicate, coſtly, fine, or curious.

Dainties, Delicacies, Kick-ſhaws, Tid-bits.

Dairy or Dairy-houſe, a Place where Milk and Milk-meats; as Butter, Cheeſe, Whey, &c. are made, or kept.

Daiſy, a Flower, of which there are ſeveral ſorts; as the White, the all Red, the Red and White, the Green, &c.

† Daiz, (Fr.) a Canopy, or Cloth of State.

Daker-hen, a kind of Fowl.

Dakir of Hides, i. e. Ten Hides, or Skins, the twentieth part of a Laſt. See Dicker.

Dale, a little Valley, or low Place.

Dali Prati, (in ancient Latin Writers) certain Balks, or narrow Slips of Paſture-ground, anciently left between the Furrows in plough'd Land, which in ſome Parts of England, are ſtill call'd Doles or Dools.

Dalliance, Wantonneſs, Toying.

Dallops, a Word us'd in ſome Places for patches, or corners of Graſs, or Weeds amidſt the Corn.

To Dally, to be full of mad, or wanton Tricks; to toy, to play the Fool with; to delay, or trifle.

Dalmatia, a Country bordering upon Greece.

Dalmatian Cap, a Flower otherwiſe call'd a Tulip, from Tulippa a Promontory of that Country.

Dalmatick, a kind of Veſtment worn by Prieſts and ſo nam'd from Dalmatia, where it was firſt made.

Dalreudini, the ancient Name of a certain People of Scotland.

Dam, the Mother among brute Beaſts; as A Calf that Sucks his Dam: Alſo a Flood-gate, or ſtoppage in a River, or Pond.

To Dam, to ſtop, or ſhut up.

Dama, (Lat.) a Fallow Deer, a Buck, or Doe; alſo the Mountain-goat, with Horns hooked at the top.

Damaſcus, the chief City of Syria, whence we have the beſt ſort of Prunes call'd Damaſk-prunes or Damaſines.

Damaſk, a kind of fine Silk, Linnen, or Stuff, made of raiſed Work, wrought into Flowers and other Figures.

Damaſk-roſe, a ſort of pale-colour'd Roſe.

To Damaſk or Damaſquine, to work Damaſk-like; to imprint the Figures of Flowers on Silk, or Stuff; to ſtamp rude Draughts on waſte Paper, &c.

To Damaſk Wine, is to warm it a little, in order to take off the edge of the Cold and make it mantle.

Dame, (Fr.) a Word us'd in Law-buſineſs for a Lady, and by Country-people, for Miſtreſs, or Goody.

Dame Simonne, or a la Dame Simonne, (in Cookery) a particular way of Stuffing Cabbage-lettice.

Dames-Violets, a ſort of Plant.

Damiſella, (Lat.) a Word us'd in ſome old Records for a light Damſel, a Miſs, a Lady of Pleaſure.

Dammage, Loſs, Hurt, Prejudice, or Diſadvantage; any Hind'rance that a Man takes in his Eſtate: In Common Law, it is a part of that Loſs, or Prejudice, which the Jurors are to enquire of, and find either for the Plaintiff, or Defendant, in any Civil Action.

Dammage-Cleer, a Duty formerly paid to the Prothonotaries and their Clerks, being a third, ſixth, or tenth part of the Dammages recovered upon a Tryal in any Court of Juſtice; but this Impoſition was taken away by Stat. 17 Car. 2.

Dammage-feaſant, (i. e. doing hurt, or miſchief) a Term us'd when a Stranger's Beaſts are in another Man's Ground, and feed there without a Licence, ſpoiling the Graſs, or Corn; in which Caſe, the Tenant may take, diſtrain and impound them, as well in the Night as in the Day.

To Dammage. See To Indammage.

To Damn, (Lat.) to condemn, or adjudge to Hell-torments; to curſe, to cry down, to hiſs off the Stage.

Damnable, that tends to Damnation, wicked, deſtructive, miſchievous.

Damnata Terra, (among Chymiſts) the ſame as the Caput Mortuum, being only the Maſs of Earth, or groſs Subſtance that remains in the Retort, &c. after all the other Principles are forc'd out by the Fire.

Damnation, the Puniſhment of the Damned, a Sentencing to everlaſting Pains in Hell.

To Damnify, to indammage, or dammage; to hurt, or prejudice.

Damp, Moiſture, Wetneſs: Alſo a Vapour that often ariſes in Mines under Ground, and chokes the Workmen, unleſs they get away ſpeedily.

To Damp, to make damp, or moiſt; to put a Damp upon, or diſhearten; to allay, to chill.

Damſel, (Fr.) a young Maiden.

Damſin or Damſon, a ſort of Plum.

Dan, (Heb. Judgment) one of the twelve Sons of Jacob, and Father of a great Tribe, which took Name from him.

To Dance, to move the Body in meaſure and time, according to the Tune, or Air that is play'd or Sung.

Dancette or Dancy, (Fr. in Heraldry) a Term us'd, when the Out-line of any Bordure, or Ordinary is notched in and out very largely; being the ſame as Indented, only it is deeper and wider: There is alſo a kind of Bend call'd a Double Dancette; as He bears Azure, a Bend Double Dancette Argent.

Dandelion, (i. e. Lion's-tooth) an Herb that provokes Urine, and is much of the ſame Virtue as Endive.

Dandiprat, a ſmall Coin ſo call'd and made by K. Henry VII. Whence it is taken for a very little Man, or Woman; a meer Dwarf.

To Dandle, to ſhake a Child in the Arms, as Nurſes do; to fondle, or make much of.

Dandriff or Dandruff, a kind of Scurf, or ſmall Scales ſticking to the Skin of the Head, which look like Bran, from the Saxon Words Tan, a Scab, and Drof, naſty.

Danes, the People of Denmark.

Dane-geld, Dane-gelt, or Danegilt, a Tribute, or Tax of Twelve Pence for every Hide of Land throughout the Realm, which was laid upon our Saxon Anceſtours, by the Danes, who for ſome time lorded it here.

Dane-lage, a Term ſignifying the Laws that were in force in England, during the Government of the Danes, which Laws more eſpecially took place in fifteen Counties, viz. York, Derby, Nottingham, Leiceſter, Lincoln, Northampton, Bedford, Buckingham, Hartford, Eſſex, Middleſex, Norfolk, Suffolk, Cambridge-ſhire, and Huntington.

Dane-wort, a Plant otherwiſe call'd Wall-wort and Dwarf-elder, which bears Flowers like Elder, ſpringing up every Year, and decaying again: 'Tis of an opening Quality, purges Choler, Phlegm and Water, helps the Dropſey, Gout, Piles, &c.

Danger, (Fr.) Hazard, Jeopardy: In the Foreſt-Law, a Duty paid by the Tenants to the Lord, for leave to plough and ſow in the time of Pannage, or Maſt-feeding: In ſome Places, it is call'd Lef-ſilver, or Lyef-Silver.

Dangerous, full of Danger, hazardous.

Dangerous Wound. See Wound.

To Dangle, to hang, or Swing to and fro; to bob.

Dangwallet, (q. d. making the Wallet to hang down) an old Word for exceſſively, or abundantly.

Daniel, (Heb. Judgment of God) one of the Prophets of the old Teſtament; ſince taken for a Chriſtian Name of Men.

Dank, ſomewhat damp, or moiſt.

Danmonii, the People that anciently inhabited thoſe Parts of England, which are now call'd Cornwall and Devon-ſhire.

Danta, a kind of wild Beaſt like a Mule.

Danubius, (Lat.) the greateſt River in Europe, ſtill call'd the Danube, or Danow.

Daphne, (Gr.) the Laurel, or Bay-tree.

Daphnitis, Laurel of Alexandria, or Tongue-laurel; alſo a kind of Caſſia.

Daphnoides, an Herb call'd Loril, or Laury; alſo the Herb Periwinkle.

Daphnophagi, certain Prophets, or Diviners in old Times, who were inſpir'd after the eating of Laurel, or Bay-leaves.

Dapifer, (Lat.) he that carries up a Diſh at a Feaſt, a Sewer; an Officer, like our Steward of the Houſehold, or Clerk of the Kitchen: Afterwards the Title was given to any truſty Servant, eſpecially the chief Steward, or Head-Bailiff of an Honour, Barony, Manour, &c.

Dapifer Regis, (in old Records) the Steward of the King's Houſehold.

Daping, (among Fiſher-men) a particular manner of Angling near the top of the Water.

Dapper, neat, ſpruce, tight; as A dapper little Fellow.

Dapple or Dapple-gray, a Colour peculiar to Horſes, being a light Gray ſpotted, or ſhaded with a deeper Gray. Dapple-bay, a light Bay, ſpotted with a deeper Colour.

Dar or Dart, a ſort of Fiſh commonly found in the River Severn.

Darcon. See Drachmon.

Dardanels, two ſtrong Caſtles of Turkey, one in Europe, and the other in Aſia, built in the narroweſt part of the Straight call'd the Helleſpont, in the room of the ancient Seſtos and Abydos.

Dare, a kind of ſmall River-fiſh.

To Dare, to be ſo bold as to challenge, to provoke.

Darick, an ancient Coin of two Shillings Value, which had K. Darius's Image ſtampt on it.

Daring-glaſs, a kind of Looking-glaſs, or Device to catch Larks.

Dark Tent, a Box made almoſt like a Deſk, with Optick Glaſſes, to take the Proſpect of any Building, Fortification, Landskip, &c.

Darkened Room. See Obſcura Camera.

Darling, a beloved Child, a Favourite, a Crony, or Boſom-friend.

To Darn or Dearn, to ſow after a particular manner, to mend a hole in Linnen, &c.

Darnel or Cockle, a Weed that grows amidſt, and is hurtful to Corn.

Darnix, a ſort of Stuff ſo call'd from Doornick, or Tournay, a Town in Flanders, where it is made.

Darreighn, (old Word) an Attempt.

Darrein, a Law-Term that ſignifies laſt; being a Corruption of the French Word Dernier.

Darrein Continuance, is when the Defendant pleads new Matter, after the continuance of the Plea.

Darrein Preſentment. See Aſſize of Darrein Preſentment.

Darſis, (Gr.) a rubbing off, or fretting of the Skin.

Dart, a Weapon much us'd among the Ancients, made of Wood arm'd at the end, with a ſharp-pointed Iron, and thrown with the Hand.

Dartus or Darton, (Gr. in Anat.) the Second, or inner of the common Coats that immediately cover the Teſticles: It ariſes from the Membrana Carnoſa, and ſticks to the Tunica Vaginalis, which lies under it, by many Membranous Fibres.

Daruga, an Officer of State among the Perſians.

Daſtard, a Coward, a Faint-hearted Fellow.

Daſymma, (Gr.) an unevenneſs on the top of the inner part of the Eye-lids, accompany'd with Redneſs.

Data, (Lat.) a Mathematical Term for ſuch Things, or Quantities as are ſuppos'd to be given, or known, in order to find out other Things, or Quantities that are unknown, or ſought for: But Euclid uſes the Word Data, (of which he has a particular Tract) for ſuch Spaces, Lines and Angles, as are given in Magnitude, or to which others may be aſſigned equal. See Given.

Datary, the principal Officer in the Chancery of Rome, thro' whoſe Hands all vacant Benefices paſs, except the Conſiſtorial: Alſo the Charge of that Officer, or the Place where he executes his Juriſdiction.

Date, the Fruit of the Date-tree, or Palm-tree: Alſo the Mark that expreſſes the Day of the Month and Year, when any Writing, Coin, &c. was made.

To Date, to ſet ſuch a Date to.

Dative or Datife, (old Law-word) that may be given, or diſpoſed of at pleaſure; as Whether a Prior ſhall be Dative and Removeable, or Perpetual, ſhall be try'd by the Ordinary.

Dative Caſe, (in Grammar) the third of the ſix Caſes in the declenſion of Nouns, or Pronouns, and ſo call'd from its being uſ'd in Actions of giving, or attributing.

Datura, (Lat.) a ſort of Night-ſhade, an Herb.

Daucus, (Gr.) a kind of wild Carret.

Daube, (Fr.) a ſort of Sauce: It is alſo uſ'd in Cookery, for a peculiar manner of dreſſing a Leg of Veal; as alſo of ſeveral ſorts of Fiſh and Fowl, according to the French Mode.

David, (Heb. beloved) the Son of Jeſſe, a moſt Potent King of Judah and Iſrael, next after Saul: He was alſo a great Prophet and Author of thoſe excellent Compoſures call'd the Pſalms, which he Sung to the Harp.

St. David's Day, a Feſtival kept March 1ſt. by the Welſh in honour of their Patron St. David, a Perſon of ſingular Piety and Learning, and Biſhop of St. David's in Pembroke-ſhire, who flouriſh'd in the fifth and ſixth Centuries, and dy'd in the 110th Year of his Age. On that Day, the Welſh-men uſually wear a Leak about them, in remembrance of a famous Victory, which their Anceſtours obtain'd againſt the Saxons, after they had ſet Leaks in their Hats, as a military Mark of Diſtinction, according to the Advice of the ſame Biſhop.

David's-ſtaff, an Inſtrument uſ'd in Navigation, which conſiſts of two Triangles joyn'd together, one longer than the other; each having its Baſe arched and containing an entire Quadrant of 90 Degrees between them, in the Circle of their Baſes.

Davis's Quadrant, the common Quadrant uſ'd by Seamen to take the height of the Sun at Noon, with their Backs towards it, to avoid its glaring in their Eyes. See Back-ſtaff.

Davit, (Sea-Term) a ſhort piece of Timber, at one end of which in a Notch, a Pulley call'd the Fiſh-block, is hung by a Strap; to hale up the Flook of the Anchor, and to faſten it to the Ship's Bow, or Loof: There is alſo a ſmall Davit in the Ship's Boat, ſet over her Head with a Shiver, to which is brought the Buoy-rope, in order to weigh the Anchor.

To Daunt, to frighten, to put out of Heart, to diſcourage.

Dauphin, (Fr.) the Dolphin, a Sea-fiſh: Alſo a Title commonly given to the French Kings eldeſt Son, from the Province of Dauphine, the laſt Soveraign Count, or Earl of which named Humbert, ſold it to King Philip of Valois, for a ſmall Summ of Money, but upon Condition, That the Heir Apparent of France, ſhould always be ſtyl'd the Dauphin of Viennois; Vienne being one of the chief Cities of that Province.

Dauphine, as A Compote à la Dauphine, i. e. a particular manner of Stewing Apples as it were for the Dauphin's Table.

Daw or Jack-daw, a ſort of Bird.

To Dawb, to beſmear, to foul; to ſooth up, or flatter, to bribe.

To Dawn, to begin to grow light, as the Day does.

Day, a ſpace of Time, which is either Aſtronomical, or Civil; and the former is either Natural, or Artificial.

The Natural Day, is the ſpace of 24 Hours, which the Sun takes up in running round the Earth, or the Earth in going about the Sun; comprehending Day and Night: The Artificial Day, is the ſpace of Time, from the Sun's Riſing to its Setting, whereto is oppoſed Night, which is the time that the Sun is under the Horizon.

The Civil Day, only differs from the Natural in its beginning, which is various according to the Cuſtom of ſeveral Nations. The Jews and Athenians began the Day with the ſetting of the Sun, whom the Italians ſtill follow, beginning their firſt Hour at Sun-ſet: The Babylonians began their Day at Sun-riſing, the Umbri at Noon; the Egyptians and Romans at Mid-night, from whom we take our Pattern.

The Parts of a Political or Civil Day, are 1. After Mid-night. 2. The Cocks-crow. 3. The ſpace between the firſt Cocks-crow and break of Day. 4. The dawn of the Morning. 5. Morning. 6. Noon, or Mid-day. 7. The Afternoon. 8. Sun-ſet. 9. Twilight. 10. The Evening. 11. Candle-time. 12. Bed-time. 13. The dead time of the Night.

In a a Law-ſenſe, the Term Day, is ſometimes uſ'd for the Day of Appearance in Court, and ſometimes for the return of Writs; Thus,

Days in Bank, are Days ſet a-part by Statute, or Order of the Court, when Writs are to be return'd, or when the Party ſhall appear upon the Writ ſerved.

To be diſmiſſed without Day, is to be abſolutely diſcharged the Court: The Party had a Day by the Roll, i. e. he had a Day of Appearance aſſign'd him.

Day-lilly, a ſort of Flower.

Day-net, a kind of Net generally uſ'd for the taking of Larks, Buntings, Martins, Hobbies, or any other Birds that play in the Air, and will ſtoop either to Stale, Prey, Gig, Glaſs, &c.

Days-man, a Labourer that works by the Day; as a Threſher, Hedger, &c. In ſome Northern Parts of England Days-man, or Deies-man, is taken for an Arbitrator, Umpire, or Judge, choſen for the deciding of Differences.

Day-were of Land, was anciently as much Ground as could be plough'd up in one Day's Work, or one Journey; as the Farmers ſtill call it.

To Dazzle, to hurt the Sight, with too much Light, to ſurprize the Mind; to tempt, to decoy, to beguile.

Deacon, (Gr.) a Miniſter, or Servant: It is generally taken for a Clergy-man, who in old Times attended on the Biſhop, having the Overſight of the Poor, and charge of the Church-Treaſure: But his Office now is, to adminiſter Baptiſm, to read Divine Service in the Church, to aſſiſt the Prieſt at the Lord's Supper, by giving the Cup only, &c.

Deaconeſs, (in the Primitive Church) a Widow admitted to the Order of a Deacon; whoſe chief Buſineſs was to aſſiſt at the Baptizing of Women.

Dead-mens Eyes, (in a Ship) a kind of little Blocks, or Pulleys, having many Holes, but no Shivers; wherein run ſmall Ropes call'd Lanniers, which faſten the Shrowds below to the Chains.

Dead-neap, a low Tide ſo call'd by Sea-men. See Neap-tides.

Dead-nettles, a ſort of Nettles without Sting.

Dead-pledge. See Mortgage.

Dead-reckoning, (at Sea) is that Eſtimation, Judgment, or Conjecture, which the Sea-men make of the Place where a Ship is, by keeping an account of her Way, by the Log; by knowing the Courſe they have ſteer'd by the Compaſs; and by adjuſting all with Allowance for Drift, Lee-way, &c. according to the Ship's Trim; ſo that this Reckoning is made without obſerving the Sun, Moon, or Stars, and is to be rectify'd as often as any good Obſervation can be had.

Dead-riſing, a Term us'd for that part of a Ship, which lies aft between the Keel and the Floor-timbers, and next adjoyning to the Stern-poſt, under the Bread-room in a Man of War.

Dead-rope, ſuch a Rope as does not run in a Block, or Pulley, nor is haled up by any other Art, or Device, than by Hand, or main Strength.

Dead-tops, a Diſeaſe in Trees: For large Plants that upon their Removal have had their Tops cut off, are apt to die from the Place they were cut off at, to the next Sprig, or Branch upon them.

Dead-water, (Sea-Term) the eddy Water juſt behind the Stern of a Ship, ſo call'd becauſe it does not paſs away ſo ſwiftly as the Water running by her Sides does: So that if a Ship has a great Eddy following her Stern, 'tis ſaid She makes much dead Water.

Deadly Feud, (Law-Term) unappeaſable Hatred, proceeding ſo far as to ſeek Revenge, even by the Death of an Adverſary.

Deafforeſted, diſcharged from being a Foreſt, exempted, or made free from the Foreſt-Laws.

Dealbation, properly, a pargetting, or whiting over with Lime: Whence it is ſometimes taken for the whitening any part of the Body; as Face, Teeth, &c.

† Deambulation, a walking abroad, or about.

Dean, an Eccleſiaſtical Magiſtrate, ſo call'd, becauſe he has Power over Ten Canons at the leaſt: In England, a dignify'd Clergy-man, who is next under the Biſhop, and chief of the Chapter, in a Cathedral, or Collegiate Church; as The Dean of St. Pauls, of Weſtminſter, of York, Lincoln, &c.

Dean and Chapter, a Body Corporate, Spiritual, conſiſting of many able Perſons, as the Dean and his Prebendaries, who together make a Corporation: And as the Corporation may joyntly purchaſe Lands and Tenements, So the Uſe of their Church and Succeſſours; ſo every one of them ſeverally, may purchaſe for the Uſe of himſelf and his Heirs.

Rural Dean, a Curate appointed by the Biſhop and Arch-deacon, to have Juriſdiction over other Miniſters and Pariſhes near adjoyning; his Office being to call Aſſemblies of the Clergy, to ſignify to them the Biſhop's Pleaſure, to give Induction for the Arch-Deacon, living a-far off, &c.

Dean-Pear or Michael-Pear, a ſort of Pear about the bigneſs and ſhape of the Gray Butter-pear; which is ripe the latter end of September and October.

Deanry, the Juriſdiction of a Dean.

Deanſhip, the Dignity, or Office of a Dean.

Dearth, great-Scarcity, or want of Proviſions.

Death, a ſeparation of the Soul from the Body.

Death-watch, a kind of Inſect.

Deauration, (Lat) a gilding, or laying over with Gold: Among Apothecaries, the gilding of Pills to prevent ill Taſtes.

To Debar, to ſhut out, or keep from, to deprive.

To Debark. See To Diſimbark.

To Debaſe, (Fr.) to pull, or bring down, to humble, to diſparage, to Counterfeit Coin.

Debate, Diſpute in Words, Contention, Strife, Quarrel.

To Debate, to examine, to bandy or Canvas, to diſpute,

Debauch, riotous Banquetting and Revelling, hard drinking, inordinate eating.

To Debauch, to corrupt one's Manners, to make him Lewd, to marr or ſpoil.

Debauchery, corruption of Manners, Licentiouſneſs, Lewdneſs.

De bene eſſe, (Lat.) a particular Law-Phraſe; as To take a thing De bene eſſe, i. e. to allow, or accept of it for the preſent, 'till the matter comes to be more fully examin'd, and then to ſtand, or fall, according to the merit of the thing in its own Nature: Thus the Judges often take Bail de bene eſſe, i. e. to be afterwards allowed, or diſallowed upon the Approbation, or Exception of the Plaintiff's Attorney.

Debentur or Debenture, (i. e. they are owing) a kind of Writing that was given to Soldiers during the Civil Wars in the time of K. Charles I. to ſecure the Payment of their Arrears. The Word is mention'd in the Act of Oblivion. 12 Car. 2. and in many Acts of Parliament ſince the late Revolution, eſpecially in that which relates to the forfeited Eſtates in Ireland, out of which Soldiers Debentures, are appointed to be ſatisfy'd.

Debentures, are alſo uſually given at Court to the Servants in the Queen's Houſehold, for the payment of their Salaries, Wages, Board-wages, &c. and the like Bills are us'd in the Exchequer: In Traffick, Debenture is the allowance of Cuſtom paid inward, which a Merchant draws back upon exportation of thoſe Goods that were formerly imported.

Debet, a Term apply'd to that which remains unpaid after the Stating of an Account.

Debet & Solet, (i. e. it ought to be and is uſual) certain Words of Form often us'd by Writers of the Common Law; ſo that according to the diverſity of the Caſe, both Debet & Solet or Debet alone are inſerted in ſeveral Writs of Right. Thus when a Man ſues for a thing now firſt of all deny'd him, and which was enjoy'd by himſelf and his Anceſtours, as Suit to a Mill, Common, Paſture &c. then both Debet & Solet muſt be us'd in the Writ.

To Debilitate, (Lat.) to weaken, or infeeble.

Debilitation, a debilitating, or making weak.

Debility, Weakneſs, Feebleneſs, Faintneſs: In a Medicinal Senſe, a Weakneſs that proceeds from Swooning Fainting, Hunger, or ſome other Indiſpoſition.

In Aſtrology, Debilities, are certain Affections of the Planets, whereby they are weaken'd, and their Influences become leſs vigorous; which Debilities are either Eſſential, when a Planet is in its Detriment, Fall, or Peregrine; or Accidental, when it is in the 12th, 8th, or 6th Houſes; or Combuſt, &c. So that by each of thoſe Circumſtances, a Planet is more or leſs afflicted, and ſaid To have ſo many or ſo few Debilities.

Debilities Eſſential See Eſſential Debilities.

Debito (Lat.) a Writ where a Man owes another; a certain Summ of Money, upon an Obligation or other Bargain for any thing ſold to him.

Debonnaire, (Fr.) gracious, courteous, kind-hearted, meek; alſo that is of a brisk, or ſprightly Air.

Deborah, (Heb. a Word, or a Bee) Rebecca's Nurſe: Alſo a Propheteſs who judg'd Iſrael, and ſent Barak againſt Siſera; thence taken for a Chriſtian Name of Women.

Deboſhee, (Fr.) a debauched diſſolute Fellow, a lewd Wretch, a looſe Liver.

Debruiſed, a Term uſ'd by Heralds, when a Pale, &c. is born upon any Beaſt, in an Eſcutcheon; for then they ſay, The Beaſt is debruiſed of the Pale.

Debt, (Lat.) what is due from one Man to another, whether Money, Goods, &c. In a Law-ſenſe, Debt, or Det, is a Writ that lies upon Default of Payment of a Summ of Money due, by reaſon of any Account, Bargain, Obligation, &c. which was to be paid at a certain Day.

Debtor, one that is Indebted to another.

Decachordon, (Gr.) a Muſical Inſtrument, having ten Strings.

Decade, the Number of Ten, as The Decades of Livy, i. e. the ten Books of that Roman Hiſtorian.

Decadency, (Lat.) a declining, or falling down; Decay, Ruin.

Decaduchi, (Gr.) the ten Governours of the City of Athens in Greece, after the Tyrants were driven out.

Decagon, (in Geom. and Fortif.) a Figure that has ten Sides, and as many Angles, capable of being fortify'd with ten Baſtions; and if the Angles are all equal one to another, 'tis then call'd a Regular Decagon.

Decalogue, (i. e. ten Words) the Ten Commandments, or chief Precepts of the Divine Law deliver'd by Moſes.

Decameron, a Volume of Fables, or Tales, Written by Boccaccio an Italian, and ſo call'd, becauſe it is divided into ten Parts, or Books.

To Decamp, (in the Art of War) to riſe from the preſent Place of Incampment, in order to remove to another; to go from the Camp, to march off.

Decampment, a Decamping, or Marching off.

Decanate or Decury, (in Aſtrol.) otherwiſe call'd the Face, is ten Degrees, or one third part of each Sign, attributed to ſome particular Planet, which being in it is ſaid To have one Dignity, and conſequently cannot be Peregrine; tho' if not otherwiſe ſtrengthen'd, it may be look'd upon like a Man ready to be turn'd out of Doors, having much ado to keep up his ſinking Credit.

To Decant, to pour out of one Veſſel into another.

Decantation, (in Chymiſtry) is a Decanting, or Pouring off the clear part of any Liquor, by Inclination, or ſtooping the Veſſel on one Side, ſo that the Liquor may be without any Dregs, or Settlement.

Decanus, (Lat.) a Leader in the Roman Army, who Commanded Ten Soldiers, a Fore-man of the File: Alſo the Head of a College of Prieſts; a Dean.

Decanus Chriſtianitatis. See Chriſtianitatis Curia.

Decaproti, (Gr.) the ten chief Officers of the Roman Empire, ſuch as the Grandees of Spain, and Marſhals of France are.

Decarchus, a Commander, Captain, or Ruler over ten Perſons; a Tithing-man, or Head-borough.

Decay, Failure, Ruin.

To Decay, to Fail, to fall to Decreaſe, to grow worſe; to wither, to wear off, to looſe one's Strength.

Deceaſe, natural Death.

Deceit, Cheat, a ſubtil, wily Shift, or Device.

Writ of Deceit. See Forger of falſe Deeds.

Deceivable, that may be deceived.

To Deceive, to Beguile, to Cheat, or Couzen; to Mock.

December, (Lat.) one of the Twelve Months of the Year, ſo call'd, as being the Tenth from March.

Decempeda, a Pearch, or Pole ten Foot long, uſ'd for the Meaſuring of Land, &c.

Decemprimi, (among the Romans) the Ten chief Head-boroughs, ſuch as our High Conſtables are: Alſo certain general Receivers of Tribute, who ſtood charged with any thing that might be wanting.

Decem tales, (Law-Term) a Supply of ten Men impannelled upon a Jury in the room of others that did not appear, or were challenged as not indifferent. See Tales.

Decemviral Laws. See Laws of the Twelve Tables.

Decemviri, Ten Magiſtrates choſen at Rome, to govern the Common-wealth inſtead of Conſuls, with an abſolute Power, which being abus'd by them, they were baniſh'd and their State forfeited.

Decemviri Litibus judicandis, were Ten Judges Eſtabliſhed to Adminiſter Juſtice in the Abſence of the Prætors.

Decemvirate, the Office of the Decemviri.

Decency, Comelineſs, Seemlineſs, Beſeemingneſs.

Decenna & Decenniers. See Deciners.

Decennalia Feſta, certain Feſtivals that the Roman Emperours in the declining Times of the Empire, kept every Tenth Year, by Offering Sacrifices to their Gods, and beſtowing Largeſſes upon the People.

Decennial, belonging to ten Years, or that laſts ten Years.

Decennovennalis Circulus. See Cycle.

Decent, becoming, ſeemly, handſome, befitting.

Deception, a Deceiving, or Beguiling, Deceit, Fraud.

Deceptione, (Lat.) a Writ that lies againſt a Man that deceitfully does any thing in the Name of another, for one that receives Damage, or Hurt thereby.

To Decide, to conclude a Buſineſs, to bring it to an Iſſue, Point, or End; to agree, or make up a Controverſy, or Difference.

Decidentia, (Lat.) a falling down, off, or away: In the Art of Phyſick, a Decay, or Tendency to any Diſtemper.

Deciduous, that is apt, or ready to fall, a Term apply'd to the Flower and Seeds of Plants: Thus the Herbaliſts ſay, In ſome Plants, the Calix, or Cup is deciduous with the Flower, i. e. falls off from the Plant with it; but in others it is not.

Decies tantum, (Lat. i. e. ten times as much) a Writ that lies againſt a Juror, who has taken Money for the giving of his Verdict: This Writ is ſo call'd from the Effect, it being to recover ten times as much as he took, and it alſo lies againſt Embracers that procure ſuch Juries.

Decile, (in Aſtron.) one of the new Aſpects invented by Kepler, which is when two Planets, or Stars are diſtant 36 Degrees one from another.

Decimæ, (Lat.) Tenths, or Tithes; a Word uſ'd by the ancient Romans, to ſignifie the tenth part of the Profits of an Eſtate, Revenues, or Goods, ſet a-part for Sacrifices, Publick Wants, &c.

Decimal Arithmetick, or The Arithmetick of Decimal Fractions, is that which relates to the Fractions, or Parts of any Integer, or Whole Number; as Perches, Yards, Inches, &c. Reduc'd to Tenths, Hundreths, Thouſandths, &c. of their reſpective Integers.

Decimal Fraction, is that which has for its Denominator 1, with a Cipher, or Ciphers annexed; as $\frac{3}{10}$, $\frac{52}{100}$, $\frac{116}{1000}$, Which Denominator, for ſhortneſs and convenience ſake is moſt commonly expreſs'd by a Point, or a Comma ſet on the left Hand of the Numerator: Thus, . 3 is $\frac{3}{10}$, . 52 is $\frac{52}{100}$, and . 116 is one Hundred and ſixteen Parts of a thing ſuppos'd to be divided into 1000 ſuch Parts.

Decimal Chain, a Mathematical Inſtrument, for the Meaſuring of Land, divided into ten equal Parts.

To Decimate, a Term of Military Diſcipline among the ancient Romans, who to puniſh whole Legions, when they fail'd in their Duty, made every tenth Soldier draw Lots, and put him to Death, for an Example to others:

Decimation, the Act of Decimating, the Puniſhing of every tenth Soldier in a Regiment by Lot: Alſo the Sequeſtring of a Tenth Part of a Man's Eſtate, which was practis'd in the Time of the Civil Wars in England: The Word may likewiſe be reſtrain'd to ſignify a Tithing, or taking the Tenth Part of any Thing.

Decimis Solvendis pro Poſſeſſionibus Alienigenarum, a Writ, or Letters Patent, which formerly lay againſt thoſe that Farm'd the Prior's Aliens Lands of the King, for the Parſon of the Pariſh to recover his Tithes of them.

Deciners, Decenniers, or Doſiners, (in our old Latin Records) ſuch as had the Overſight, and Check of Ten Sureties, call'd Friborghs, for the Maintenance of the King's Peace: And the Boundary, or Compaſs of the Deciner's Juriſdiction was termed Decenna. See Frank-pledge and Friborgh.

To Decipher, to explain, or unfold the Contents of a Letter, or other Writing expreſs'd in Ciphers, or ſecret Characters; to deſcribe, or draw out.

Deciſion, (Lat.) a Deciding, or Ending of a Buſineſs, the Concluding of a Matter in Debate.

Deciſive or Deciſory, that is apt, or proper to decide.

Deck of a Ship, a Planked Floor, on which the Guns lie, and the Men walk to and fro: They are diſtinguiſhed by the firſt, ſecond and third Deck, beginning from the loweſt upwards. Some great Ships have alſo a Half-deck, which reaches from the Main-maſt to the Stem; a Quarter-deck, which is from the Steerage aloft to the Maſter's Round-houſe; and a Spare Deck, the uppermoſt of all, lying betwixt the Main-maſt and the Miſſen; which laſt is otherwiſe call'd the Orlope.

A Cambering Deck, is that which lies compaſſing higher in the middle than at each end: A Fluſh Deck, or a Deck Fluſh fore and aft, is when it lies from Stem to Stern, upon a right Line, without any Fall. To Raiſe a Deck, is to put it higher; and to ſink the Deck, is to lay it lower.

To Deck, to trim, or trick up, to ſet off.

To Declaim, (Lat.) to make Publick Speeches like an Oratour, to inveigh againſt one, to rail at him.

Declamation, an Oration, or Speech, made upon a particular Subject.

Declamatory, belonging to the Exerciſe of Declaiming, that is in form of a Declamation.

Declaration, a Declaring, making Manifeſt, or ſhewing; alſo a Proclamation, or Publick Order: In Common Law, a ſhewing in Writing, the Grief and Complaint of the Plaintiff, or Demandant, againſt the Defendant, or Tenant, in which the former is ſuppos'd to have receiv'd ſome Wrong. Such a Declaration in Real Actions, is uſually termed a Count.

Declarative or Declaratory, that ſerves to declare.

To Declare, to Manifeſt, Publiſh, or Shew, to make plain, or known; to Denounce, or Proclaim; to open one's Mind, or Thoughts, to tell.

Declenſion, a Term us'd by Grammarians, to ſignify the varying of Caſes of Nouns after ſeveral manners.

Declenſion or Declination of a Diſeaſe, is when the Diſtemper being come to its height, ſenſibly abates, and the Patient is judg'd to be beyond Danger.

Declenſion of Manners, is a looſeneſs of them, a Corruption of Morals.

Declenſion of a Diſeaſe. See Declination of a Diſeaſe.

Declination, a declining, a bowing down, a decaying; as The Declination of an Empire: In Grammar, it is the ſame with Declenſion; which See.

In Aſtronomy, the Declination (of any Star, or part of Heaven) is its Diſtance from the Equator; ſo that accordingly as it declines either Northward, or Southward, 'tis termed North, or South Declination.

The Apparent Declination of a Planet, is the Diſtance of its apparent, or ſeeming Place from the Equator: And the True, or Real Declination of a Planet, is the diſtance of its true Place from the ſame Equator.

Declination of the Sun, is the diſtance of the Parallel to the Equator, which the Sun runs in any Day, from the Equator it ſelf; and on the Globe, this Diſtance is mark'd on the Meridian.

Declination of the Mariners-Compaſs, is its Variation from the true Meridian of any Place.

Declination of a Wall or Plane for Dials, is an Arch of the Horizon, comprehended, either between the Plane and the Prime Vertical Circle, if you count it from the Eaſt, or Weſt; or elſe between the Meridian and the Plane, if it be counted from the North, or South.

Declination of a Diſeaſe. See Declenſion.

Declinator, a Mathematical Inſtrument, to take the Declination of the Stars.

Declinatory, an Inſtrument made of Peartree, or Box, with a Compaſs and Needle, to take the Declination of Walls for Dialling, &c.

To Decline, to avoid, or ſhun, to refuſe; to decay, or abate, to bow downward.

Declining Erect Dials. See Erect Declining Dials.

Declining Inclining or Reclining Dials, are thoſe whoſe Planes neither directly face any of the four Cardinal Points, nor are they either Perpendicular, or Parallel to the Horizon.

Declivis Muſculus. See Obliquus Deſcendens ſeu Declivis.

Declivity, the bending, or ſteepneſs of a Hill.

Decoction, Phyſick-broth, a Medicinal Liquor, or Diet-drink, made of Herbs, Roots, Seeds, Drugs, &c. boil'd together.

† Decollation, a beheading.

Decompoſite, (in Grammar) a Word doubly compounded; as In-diſ-poſition: Alſo a Term us'd by Apothecaries, when a Phyſical Compoſition is encreas'd.

Decoration, an Ornament, Imbelliſhment, or Set-off; as The Decorations of the Stage.

Decortication, a pulling off the outward Bark, or Rind, the peeling, or unhusking of Roots, Seeds, Fruits, &c. or the Freeing of them from their Rinds, Husks, or Shells.

Decorum, Decency, good Grace, Order.

In Architecture, Decorum or Decency, is a ſuiting all the Parts and Ornaments of a Building, ſo as they may beſt become the Station: Thus other Diſpoſitions and Proportions are made uſe of for a Palace than a Church, and different Proſpects are pitch'd upon for ſeveral Parts of a Building, according to the Nature of the Places, &c.

Decoy, a Place made fit for the catching of Wild Fowl; a Lure, or Wheedle.

To Decoy, to allure, entice, or draw in.

Decoy-duck, a Duck that flies abroad, and lights into Company of wild ones; ſo that being made acquainted with them, ſhe draws them by her Allurement into the Decoy-place, where they become a Prey.

Decreaſe, a growing leſs, the Wane of the Moon.

To Decreaſe, to grow leſs, to wear away, or decay.

A Decree, a Statute, Ordinance, or Order; a Precept, or received Opinion; a Purpoſe, or Reſolution.

The Decrees of Gratian, the firſt Volume of the Body of the Canon-law, which is compos'd of the ancient Canons, and collected from the ancient Councils and Writings of the Fathers.

To Decree, to Order, Ordain, or Appoint; to Determine, or Reſolve.

Decrement, Decreaſe, or Waſte: In the Univerſities, Decrements are Fees paid by the Scholars, for the ſpoiling, or dammaging of any thing made uſe of from the College; alſo Abatements, on account of Battling in the Buttery-books at Oxford.

Decrementum, (in old Latin Records) an Abatement in Rent, or other Dues.

Decrepit, worn out with Age, extreme old and crazy.

Decrepitated, (Chymical Term) as Salt decrepitated, i. e. reduced to Powder with a great crackling Noiſe, by throwing it into an unglaz'd Earthen Pot heated red-hot, and preſently cover'd, which is done to free the Salt from Superfluous Moiſture.

Decrepitation, the Act of Decrepitating, or Calcining Sea-Salt, or Sal-gemma after ſuch a manner.

Decreſcent, the decreaſing, or waning Moon in the laſt Quarter.

Decretal, belonging to Decrees; as A Decretal Epiſtle.

Decretals, the ſecond of the three Volumes of the Canon-Law, which contains the Decretal Epiſtles, or Reſcripts of ſeveral Popes, and chiefly from Alexander III. to Gregory IX. by whoſe Authority it was Compil'd.

Decretory, that ſerves to decree, or decide abſolutely; as A decretory Sentence.

To Decry, to cry down, to ſpeak ill of, to aboliſh.

Decumbiture, (Lat.) a lying down; a Term more eſpecially us'd in the Art of Phyſick, when a Man is ſo violently ſeiz'd with a Diſeaſe, that he is forc'd to take his Bed. In Aſtrology, it is a Figure made at that Moment when a Diſeaſe firſt invades a Perſon, or cauſes him to keep his Bed, or Chamber, or to refrain his Buſineſs; by which Figure the Artiſt finds out the Nature of the Diſeaſe, the Parts affected, the Prognoſticks of Death, or Recovery, &c.

Decunx, (among the Romans) the Weight of ten Ounces, or five Sixths of any whole, or entire Thing; as an Inheritance, Eſtate, &c.

Decupelation, a Chymical Term, the ſame as Decantation; which See.

Decuple, ten fold, ten times ſo much.

Decurio, an Officer in the Roman Army, who commanded a Decuria, or Band of ten Troopers; whence the Word may be taken for an Alderman of a Ward in a Corporation, a High Conſtable, or Head-borough, a Tithing-man, &c.

Decuriones Municipales, a Court of Judges, or Counſellours, who repreſented the Senate of Rome in the free Towns; their Office being to take care of all that was for the Benefit of the Town, and the Revenues of the Commonwealth.

Decury. See Decanate.

Decuſſation, a cutting a-croſs in faſhion of the Letter X, or Star-wiſe: In Opticks, the croſſing of any two Lines, Rays, &c. when they meet in a Point, and then go on a-part from one another.

† Decuſſion, a ſhaking off, or beating down.

Decuſſis, (Lat.) a Coin, or Piece of Money of the Value of the Roman Penny, containing ten Aſſes, or Seven Pence Half-penny Engliſh; alſo ten Pound Weight.

Decuſſorium, a Surgeon's Inſtrument, with which the Skin call'd Dura Mater, being preſs'd upwards, is joyn'd cloſe to the Scull; ſo that the corrupt Matter gather'd between the Scull and the Dura Mater, may be let out by a Hole made with a Trepan.

Dedans, (Fr. i. e. within) a Term at Tennis-play.

Dedbanna, (Sax. Law-word) an actual commiting of Murder, or Man-ſlaughter; from Dæd, i. e. a Deed, or Act, and Bana, Murder.

De Deonerando pro rata portione, (Lat.) a Writ that lies, where a Man is diſtrained for Rent, that ought to have been paid by others proportionably.

Dedi (i. e. I have given) is a Warranty in Law to the Feoffee and his Heirs; as if it be ſaid in a Feoffment, A. B. has given and granted, &c. It is a Warranty.

To Dedicate, to conſecrate, devote, or ſet apart for Holy Uſe; to addreſs a Book to ſome Perſon of Worth.

Dedication, the Act of Dedicating.

Dedication-Day, the Feſtival at the Dedication of a Church, anciently kept in every Pariſh, and in ſome even at this Day, with Solemnity and good Cheer. Moſt of the old yearly Fairs were ſettled on that Day, and firſt aroſe from the Concourſe of People on thoſe Occaſions.

Dedicatory, belonging to a Dedication; as An Epiſtle Dedicatory.

Dedimus Poteſtatem, (i. e. We have given Power) a Writ by which Commiſſion is given to a private Man for the ſpeeding of ſome Act before a Judge, or in Court; which is uſually granted, when the Party concern'd is ſo weak, that he cannot travel; and it is call'd Delegatio by the Civilians.

To Deduce, to draw, or gather one thing from another, to inferr; to derive a Word from another.

Deducible, that may be deduced, or inferred.

To Deduct, to ſubtract, or take away from a Summ, to abate.

Deduction, the Act of Deducting; alſo a Concluſion, Conſequence, or Inference.

Deed, an Action, or Thing done: In Common Law, Deeds ſignify Writings that contain the Effect of a Contract or Agreement made between Man and Man; which is termed Literarum Obligatio, by the Civilians. See more in Fait. Of theſe Deeds there are two ſorts, viz.

Deed Indented, or Indenture, a Writing cut with Dents or Notches on the top or ſide; which conſiſts of two, or more Parts, and wherein 'tis expreſs'd, That the Parties concerned have interchangeably, or ſeverally ſet their Hands and Seals to every Part of it.

Deed-poll or Polled Deed, is a ſingle plain Deed, unindented, ſhewing that only one of the Parties has put his Hand and Seal to it, for the purpoſe therein particularly mention'd and expreſs'd.

To Deem, to judge, or think.

Deemſters or Demſters, a kind of Judges in the Iſle of Man, choſen out of the Inhabitants, who decide all Controverſies there, without any Proceſs, Writings, or Charge.

Deep, that has Depth, high, great; cunning, ſecret, difficult.

Deep-ſea-lead, the Lead which is hung at the Deep-ſea-line to ſink it down.

Deep-ſea-line, a ſmall Line with which Sea-men ſound in deep Waters, to find Ground, that the Coaſt they approach to may be known without ſight of Land.

Deer, a wild Beaſt of the Foreſt.

Deer-feld, (old Word) a Deer-fold, or Park.

Deer-hays, certain Engines, or great Nets for the catching of Deer.

Deeſis, (Gr.) a Beſeeeching, or Entreating; a Rhetorical Figure, which is often elegantly made uſe of in Oratory and Poetry, upon occaſion either of earneſt Entreaty, or calling to Witneſs; as Lydia dic per omnes te Deos oro.

Horat.

De eſſendo quietum de Telonio, a Writ which lies for thoſe that are by Privilege freed from the Payment of Toll.

De expenſis Militum, a Writ requiring the Sheriff to levy ſo much a Day for the Expences of the Knight of the Shire ſerving in Parliament: There is alſo a like Writ to levy two Shillings a Day for every Citizen and Burgeſs, call'd De expenſis Civium & Burgenſium.

To Deface, to marr, or ſpoil; to disfigure, to blot out.

De Facto, a Law-Term us'd when a thing is actually done, or done in very Deed.

Defaillance, (Fr.) a Defect, or Failing.

Defalcation, (Lat.) a defalking, abating, or cutting off in Accounts: The Word properly ſignifies the pruning of Vines, or other Trees.

To Defalk, to cut off, to deduct, or abate.

Defamation, the Act of Defaming, or Slandering, Slander: In a Law-ſenſe, it is when a Man ſpeaks ſlanderous Words of another, of a Court of Juſtice, Magiſtracy, or Title of Land; for which the Party ſhall be puniſh'd, according to the nature of the Offence.

Defamatory, ſlanderous, abuſive.

To Defame, to backbite or ſpeak evil of, to diſcredit or ſlander.

Defatigation, Fatigue, Wearineſs, a Term more eſpecially us'd in the Art of Phyſick.

Default, (Fr.) Defect, or Want; an Imperfection, or Flaw: In Common Law, an Offence in omitting what ought to be done, chiefly Non-appearance in a Court at a Day appointed.

Defeaſance or Defeiſance, (Law-Term) a Condition relating to a Deed, as an Obligation, Recognizance, or Statute, which being performed by the Obligor, or Recogniſor, the Act is diſabled and made void, as if it had never been done. The difference between a Proviſo, or a Condition in Deed, and a Defeaſance, is that the former is annexed, or inſerted in the Deed or Grant, whereas the Defeaſance is uſually a Deed by it ſelf.

Defeat, an Overthrow, or Slaughter of the Enemies Forces.

To Defeat, to overthrow, rout, or beat; to diſappoint, to make void.

Defecate, (Lat.) clear from Dregs.

Defecation, a defecating, refining, or cleanſing.

Defect, Failing, Want; a natural Fault, Imperfection, or Blemiſh.

Defection, a falling away, either from the Church, or State; Apoſtacy, Revolt.

Defective, full of Defects, faulty, imperfect.

Defective or Deficient Nouns, (in Grammar) are ſuch as want either a Number, a particular Caſe, or are indeclinable.

Defective Verb, a Verb that has not all its Tenſes.

Defeiſance. See Defeaſance.

Defence, Guard, or Protection; Support, or Prop; Vindication, or Juſtification: In a Law-ſenſe, that Reply which the Defendant ought to make immediately after the Count, or Declaration is produc'd, and then to proceed either in his Plea, or to imparle: In the Art of War, Oppoſition, or Reſiſtance.

To be in a poſture of Defence, is to be provided, and in a Readineſs to oppoſe an Enemy.

Defence. See Line of Defence.

Defences, (in Fortif.) are all thoſe Parts that flank other Works, as Parapets, Caſemates, Falſe-brays, &c. which face and defend thoſe Poſts that are oppoſite to them.

To Defend, to ſtand in Defence of, to protect or ſupport, to uphold or bear out, to maintain or aſſert; to juſtify: Alſo in our ancient Statutes and Laws, to prohibit, or forbid: In the ſame Senſe, Chaucer uſes it in theſe Verſes:

Where can you ſay, in any manner Age,
That ever God defended Marriage?

Defendant, (in Common Law) is he that is ſued in an Action Perſonal; as Tenant is one who is ſued in an Action Real.

Defendemus, (i. e. we will defend) a formal Word in a Feoffment, or Deed of Gift, binding the Donour and his Heirs, to defend the Donee from any Service that may be laid upon the thing given, other than is contain'd in the Donation.

Se Defendendo, a Law-Term us'd when any Man kills another in his own Defence; which is allow'd for a ſufficient Juſtification of the Fact.

Defender of the Faith; a Title given by Pope Leo X. to King Henry VIII. for writing againſt Martin Luther, in Favour of the Church of Rome, and continu'd ever ſince as peculiar to the Kings and Queens Regent of England; that of Moſt Chriſtian is given to the French Kings, and Moſt Catholick to thoſe of Spain.

Defendere Se, (Lat.) a Phraſe in Doomſ-day Record, ſignifying to be taxed for a certain Quantity of Land.

Defendere ſe per Corpus ſuum; (in our old Law-Writers) to offer Combat, Duel, or Camp-fight, as an Appeal, or Tryal at Law.

Defenſa, a Park, or Place fenc'd in for Deer, and defended as a Property peculiar for that Uſe and Service.

Defenſatives, (in the Art of Phyſick) ſuch Medicines as divert, or turn away the Humours from the Part affected.

Defenſible, that may be defended, capable of Defence.

Defenſitive. See Defenſive.

Defenſivæ, (in ancient Latin Deeds) the Lords, or Earls of the Marches; the Defenders, or Wardens of the Country.

Defenſive or Defenſitive, that ſerves to defend, proper for Defence.

Defenſives or Defenſitive Medicines, (in Surgery) are Remedies apply'd outwardly, to prevent an Inflammation, or any other ill Symptom, that ſeems to threaten any Part, from coming ſo far as to that Part.

In Defenſo, (old Law-Term) that Part of an open Field for Corn or Hay, upon which there was no Commoning, or Feeding, was ſaid To be in Defenſo: Alſo any Meadow-ground laid in for Hay; or any Part of a Wood, where the Cattel were not ſuffer'd to run, but were enclos'd and fenc'd up, to ſecure the Growth of the Underwood.

Defenſor Civitatis, (among the Romans) the moſt conſiderable Magiſtrate after the Conſuls and Duumviri, whoſe Office was to protect the People, both in Town, and Country, and to judge of their Differences.

Defenſum, (in old Records) any fenced Ground, or Incloſure.

To Defer, to delay, or put off.

Deference, Submiſſion, Reſpect, Regard, Condeſcenſion, Compliance.

Deferent, (in Aſtronomy) an imaginary Orb, or Circle in the Ptolemaick Syſtem, which is there ſuppoſed as it were to carry about the Body of the Planet; and it is the ſame with the Eccentrick.

Defiance, (Fr.) Challenge, Out-braving.

Deficiency, a Defect, Want, or Failing.

Deficient, failing, wanting.

Deficient Nouns. See Defective Nouns.

Deficient Numbers, (in Arithmetick) are ſuch whoſe Parts added together, make leſs than the Integer, whoſe Parts they be; as 8, whoſe Parts being 1, 2, and 4, make but 7; likewiſe the Parts of 16 make but 15; and of 45 make but 33.

Defile or Defilee, (Fr. in the Art of War) a ſtraight, narrow Lane, or Paſſage, thro' which a Company of Horſe or Foot can paſs only in File, by making a ſmall Front.

To Defile, to pollute or corrupt, to dawb or ſtain, to deflower or raviſh: In a Military Senſe, to march, or go off File by File.

To Define, to declare or explain, to determine or decide; to appoint.

Definite, certain, limited, or bounded.

Definition, a ſhort and plain Deſcription of a thing, with its Nature and principal Properties; alſo a Deciſion, or Determining of an Affair: In Logick, an unfolding of the Eſſence, or Being of a Thing, by its Kind and Difference: In Mathematicks, an Explication of the Terms, or Words us'd for explaining the thing treated of.

Definitive, that ſerves to define, or decide; deciſive, poſitive, expreſs; as a Definitive Sentence.

Deflagration, a burning, or conſuming with Fire: In Chymiſtry, the inkindling and burning off in a Crucible a Mixture of a Salt, or of ſome Mineral Body with a Sulphureous one, in order to purify the Salt, or to make a Regulus of the Mineral; as in the preparing of Sal Prunellæ and Regulus of Antimony. See Sal Prunella.

Deflection, a bending or bowing down, a turning aſide or out of the Way. In Navigation, the Tendency of a Ship from her true Courſe, by means of Currents, &c. which divert or turn her out of her right Way.

To Deflour or Deflower, forcibly to crop the Flower of Virginity, to get a Maiden-head, to raviſh; to take away the Grace, or Luſtre of a thing.

Defluvium, (Lat.) a flowing down, a falling off, as of Hair, a Mould'ring: Among Herbaliſts, a Diſtemper in Trees, whereby they loſe their Bark, proceeding from a ſharp Humour, that diſſolves the Glue with which the Bark is faſten'd to the Wood; and ſometimes from too much Drought.

Defluxion, a flowing downwards: In the Art of Phyſick, a falling down of Humours to any part of the Body.

Deforcement, (Law-word) a With-holding of Lands, or Tenements by force from the right Owner.

Deforceour, Deforciant, or Defortſour, one that overcomes and caſts another out of Poſſeſſion by Force, and in that reſpect differs from a Diſſeiſour, who does it without Force.

Deforciatio, (in ancient Writers) a Diſtreſs, or Seizure of Goods for Satisfaction of a lawful Debt.

Defordar, a great Officer belonging to the Grand Seignior, or Turkiſh Emperour, in the ſame Station with our Lord High Treaſurer.

To Deform, (Lat.) to ſpoil the Form, or Faſhion of, to diſfigure, to make ugly.

Deformation, a deforming, or making out of Form, a defacing or diſfiguring.

Deformed Baſtion. See Baſtion Deformed.

Deformity, Uglineſs, Ill-favouredneſs.

To Defraud, to rob or deprive by a Wile or Trick, to cheat or cozen, to deceive or beguile.

To Defray, to diſcharge Expences, to bear the Charges.

Defrutum, (Lat.) Muſt, or a Drink made of New Wine, of which one half, or a third Part is boil'd away.

Deft, (old Word) neat, handſome, ſpruce; jocund, merry.

Defunct, (Lat.) deceaſed, dead.

To Defy, (Fr.) to challenge, to out-brave.

Degeneracy, a being in a degenerate State, or Condition.

Degenerate, degenerated, grown worſe, corrupted.

Degenerate Cancer. See Cancer.

To Degenerate, to fall from a more noble to a baſer Kind, to go aſide from the Anceſtour's Vertues; to grow worſe, to turn wild, as ſome Plants and Fruits doe.

Degenerous, that degenerates, infamous, baſe, vile.

Deglutition, a Swallowing down, an Action in a Living-creature, whereby Meat chewed in the Mouth, or any Liquor deſcends into the Stomach by the Motion and Contraction of the Fibres of the Gullet.

Degradation, the Act of Degrading: In the Art of Painting, a Term made uſe of to expreſs the leſſening and rend'ring confuſed the Appearance of diſtant Objects in a Landskip; ſo as they may appear there, as they would to an Eye plac'd at that diſtance from them.

To Degrade, to put one from his Degree; to deprive him of his Office, Dignity, or Title.

Degree, Step, any State or Condition, which is as it were aſcending and deſcending. In Aſtronomy, the 360th Part of the Circumference of any Circle; which is ſubdivided into 60 Parts call'd Minutes, and each of them again into 60 Parts more termed Seconds, and ſo into Thirds, &c. And the Space of one Degree in the Heavens is commonly counted to anſwer to 60 Miles on Earth.

In Fortification, a Degree, is a ſmall Part of an Arch of a Circle (every Circle likewiſe containing 360) which ſerves to meaſure the Content of the Angle: So an Angle is ſaid to be of 20, of 50, or of 70 Degrees, &c. In Phyſick and Chymiſtry, Degree is taken for the Vehemence or ſlackneſs of the hot, or cold Quality of any Blant, Drug, Mineral, or other Mixt Body.

Parodick Degree, (in Algebra) the Index, or Exponent of any Power: So in Numbers, 1 is the Exponent, or Parodick Degree of the Root, or Side; 2 of the Square, 3 of the Cube, &c.

Degrees of Fire, (among Chymiſts) are reckon'd to be four in number: The Firſt is made only by two or three Coals, and is the moſt gentle Heat of all: The Second is with four, or five Coals, or only juſt to warm the Veſſel ſenſibly; but ſo that a Man may endure his Hand upon it for ſome time: The third Degree is when there is Heat enough to make a Pot boil that is full of five, or ſix Quarts of Water: The fourth Degree is as great a Heat as can poſſibly be made in the Furnace. But all theſe admit of ſome Variations according to the particular Circumſtances of the Operations, Furnaces, Veſſeſs, Quantity of Matter, &c.

Dehors, (Fr.) the out-ſide of a thing: In Fortification, all ſorts of ſeparate Out-works, as Crown-works, Horn-works, Half-moons, Ravelins, &c. made for the better Security of the main Place.

To Dehort, (Lat.) to diſſwade, to adviſe to the contrary.

Dehortation, a dehorting, or diſſwading.

To Deject, to caſt down, to afflict.

Dejection, a being dejected, caſt down, deſpirited, or put out of Heart: In a Medicinal Senſe, a Voiding of the Excrements, or Ordure, by the motion of the Guts, call'd Periſtaltick, a going to Stool.

Deicides, (i. e. God-killers) a Title given to the Jews, who put our Bleſſed Saviour God and Man to Death.

Deification, the Act of Deifying, or making a God.

To Deify one, to make one a God, or adore him as a God.

Dei Judicium, (i. e. the Judgment of God) the old Saxon manner of Tryal by Ordeal, ſo call'd, because they thought it an Appeal to God for the Juſtice of a Cauſe, and believ'd the Deciſion to be according to the Appointment of Divine Providence. See Ordeal.

Deipnoſophiſts (Gr.) a Company of Wiſe Men diſcourſing at Supper.

Deis, (old word) the high Table, or upper Table in ſome Engliſh Monaſteries.

Deiſm (Lat.) the Belief of thoſe that only acknowledge one God, without diſtinction of Perſons.

Deiſt, one that holds ſuch an Opinion.

Deity, Godhead, the Nature or Eſſence of God; alſo a Fabulous God or Goddeſs.

Delapſion, a ſlipping, ſliding or falling down: In the Art of Phyſick, a falling or bearing down of the Womb, Fundament, Guts, &c.

Delator (among the Romans) an Informer of a Capital Crime, or Conſpiracy, who privily diſcover'd the Matter to the Magiſtrates.

Delay (Fr.) a Put-off, ſtay or ſtop.

To Delay, to defer or put off from Day to Day.

Delayed, deferred, put off. Wine is ſaid to be delayed, when it is mingled with Water.

Delectable (Lat.) delightful, pleaſant.

Delectation, Delight or Pleaſure.

Delegate, or Judge Delegate, one that is Commiſſioned to execute Judgment in the place of an Eccleſiaſtical or Civil Judge.

Delegates (according to Stat. 26. H. 8.) are Perſons delegated or appointed by the King's Commiſſion, to ſit upon an Appeal to him in the Court of Chancery; in three Caſes, viz. 1*ſt.* When a Sentence is given in any Eccleſiaſtical Cauſe, by the Arch-biſhop, or his Official. 2*d.* When Sentence is given in ſuch a Cauſe, in Places exempt. 3*d.* When Sentence is given in the Admiralty, in Suits Civil and Marine, by order of the Civil Law.

To Delegate, to depute or appoint by extraordinary Commiſſion, certain Judges, to hear and determine a particular Cauſe.

Delegatio, a Civil Law-Term. See Dedimus Poteſtatem.

Delegation, an appointment of Delegates, or Commiſſioners, for the taking Cognizance of particular Cauſes.

Deleterium (Gr.) any thing that is of a miſchievous, poiſonous, or deadly Quality.

Deletery, deadly, deſtructive; a Word us'd in Hudibraſs.

Delf or Delfe (old Word) a Mine or Quarry; from the Saxon, delwan to delve or dig: In Heraldry, a Square born in the middle of the Eſcutcheon, an Abatement of Honour, which belongs to one that has revok'd his Challenge, or eaten his Words.

Delf of Coal, Coal lying in Veins under ground, before it is digged up.

Delibation (Lat.) an Aſſay, a Taſte, a Pittance.

Deliberate, prudent, adviſed, wary.

To Deliberate, to weigh in Mind, conſider, or think upon, to conſult or debate.

Deliberation, The Act of deliberating, conſidering, &c.

Deliberative, apt to conſider or conſult.

Delicacy or Delicateneſs, Daintineſs, Niceneſs, Subtilty, Ingenuity.

Delicate, dainty, fine, curious, neat, nice, ſcrupulous, ſqueamiſh.

Delicious, that affords delight to the Palate, pleaſant to the Taſte; ſweet, charming.

Deligatio, a binding or tying up: Alſo that part of Surgery which relates to the binding up of Wounds, Ulcers, broken Bones, &c. a Swathe or Bandage.

Delight, Pleaſure, Joy, Content, Satisfaction.

To Delight, to afford Delight or Pleaſure, to take Delight or Pleaſure in.

To Delineate, to make the firſt Draught of a thing; to deſign or deſcribe.

Delineation, the making of a rude Draught; a Deſcription or Repreſentation.

Delinquency, a failing in one's Duty, or offending, Faultineſs.

A Delinquent, one that has committed a Crime or Fault; an Offender.

Deliquation (in Chymiſtry) the preparing of things melted upon the Fire.

Deliquium (Lat.) a draining, a pouring out, a decanting or making clear; alſo Defect, Lack, Want, Loſs: In a Chymical Senſe, it is either a Diſtillation by the force of Fire; or elſe a diſſolving any calcined Matter, which is hung up in moiſt Cellars, into a Lixivious Humour: Thus when Salt of Tartar is ſet in a Cellar or ſome ſuch cool Place, in an open Veſſel, it will run into a kind of Water, which the Chymiſts call Oil of Tartar, per Deliquium.

Deliquium Animi, a fainting away, or ſwooning.

Deliration, a doting or being beſides ones ſelf.

Delirious, light-headed, raving, doting, fooliſh, ſottiſh.

Delirium, Dotage, Raving: Among Writers in Phyſick it is taken for the frantick or idle talk of People in a Feaver; being a failure in the Imagination and Judgment, occaſion'd by a tumultuary and diſorderly motion of the Animal Spirits.

To Deliver (Fr.) to give, give out, or put into one's Hands; to free, to ſet free, or at Liberty; to reſcue or ſave; to rid of, to releaſe, to lay a Woman with Child.

Deliverance, the delivering of a thing into another's Hands; a Releaſe, a ſetting free, a Riddance, &c.

To Wage Deliverance (Law-Phraſe) to give ſecurity that a thing ſhall be delivered.

Delivery, a delivering or giving, the laying of a Woman in Child-birth; alſo Utterance or ſpeaking out in Diſcourſe.

Clerk of the Deliveries, an Officer whoſe Duty is to draw up all Proportions or Orders, for delivering any Stores or Proviſions whatever at the Tower, or any other of the Queen's Store-houſes, and to ſee them duly executed.

Delphin or Delphinus (Gr.) the Dolphin or Grampus, a Fiſh that ſwims faſter than a Bird or Arrow can fly, and loves Mens Company: Alſo a Conſtellation in the Northern Hemiſphere, containing Ten Stars.

Delphinum, Lark-ſpur, an Herb, the diſtilled Water of which is good to clear and ſtrengthen the Sight.

Deltoides, (in Anat.) a Triangular Muſcle that takes Name from its ſhape reſembling the Greek Letter Δ: It ariſes from the Clavicula, or Channel-bone, from the upper Proceſs of the Shoulder-blade, as alſo from the Proceſs of the ſame call'd Spiniforme, and is faſten'd to the middle of the Shoulder-bone; which it lifts directly upwards, or ſomewhat forwards or backwards.

Deltoton, a Conſtellation or Cluſter of Six Stars, whoſe Figure likewiſe reſembles the Letter Δ, and which is otherwiſe call'd, Triangulus Setentionalis.

To Delude (Lat.) to play the Fool with, or mock, to deceive or beguile, to chouſe, to diſappoint.

Delve, as a Delve of Coals, i. e. a certain quantity of Coals digged in the Mine or Pit.

To Delve (Sax.) to digg.

Deluge (Fr.) an overflowing of the Earth, either in part, or in the whole, by Water; a general Floud.

Deluged, drowned; as Delug'd in Tears.

Deluſion (Lat.) Impoſture, Deceit, Cheat.

Deluſive or Deluſory, that is apt to deceive or beguile.

Demagogue (Gr. i. e. a Leader of the People) one that Heads any Party or Faction; a Ring-leader of the Rabble, a Popular and Factious Oratour.

Demain, Demeſne or Demeans (Fr. Law-Term) that Land which a Man holds originally of himſelf, call'd Dominicum by the Civilians, and oppos'd to Feodum or Fee, which ſignifies thoſe that are held of a ſuperiour Lord: However in England there is no Land, (that of the Crown only excepted) which is not held of a Superiour; for all depend either mediately or immediately, on the Crown: So that when a Man in Pleading, would ſignify his Lands to be his own; he ſays, That he is or was ſeized or poſſeſſed thereof in his Demaine as of Fee; whereby he means, that altho' his Land be to him and his Heirs for ever, yet it is not true Demaine, but depending upon a Superiour Lord.

The Word Demain or Demeans, is alſo ſometimes us'd for a diſtinction between thoſe Lands that the Lord of the Manour has in his own Hands, or in the Hands of his Leſſee, demiſed or let upon a Rent, for a Term of Years or Life; and ſuch other Lands appertaining to the ſaid Manour, as belong to Free or Copy-holders; altho' the Copy-hold belonging to any Manour, (according to the Opinion of many good Lawyers) is alſo accounted Demeans.

Ancient Demaine, a Tenure by which Crown-Manours were held in the time of King William the Conquerour, and ſomewhat before.

Demand (Fr.) a Petition, or Requeſt, a Suit, a Claim: In a Law-ſenſe, a Claim or calling upon one for any thing due: It is alſo more eſpecially diſtinguiſh'd from Plaint; all Civil Actions being purſu'd either by Demands or Plaints; and the Purſuer is termed Demandant or Plaintiff.

To Demand, to ask, to require, to lay claim to.

Demandant (Law-Term) the Proſecutor in a Real Action, ſo call'd, becauſe he demands Lands, &c. being the ſame as Plaintiff in a Perſonal Action.

To Demean one's ſelf, to carry or behave himſelf, to act well or ill.

Demeanour, manner of Demeaning, Behaviour, Carriage.

Demeans. See Demain.

† Dementated (Lat.) made mad, bereaved of his Wits; bewitched or beſotted.

Dementia (Lat.) a ſort of Frenzy or Dotage.

Demerit, what makes one worthy of Blame or Puniſhment; Deſert, ill-deſerving.

Demerſion, properly a drowning, plunging or ſinking down. In Chymiſtry, the putting of any Metal into a diſſolving Liquor.

Demeſne. See Demain.

Demi, a Word which being us'd in Compoſition, or joyn'd with another Word, ſignifies half; as Demi-Caſtor, Demi-God, &c.

Demi-Baſtion, a kind of Fortification, that has only one Face and one Flank. See Baſtion.

Demi-Cannon of the leaſt ſize, a great Gun that carries a Ball of Six Inches Diameter, and Thirty Pounds Weight; with a Charge of 14 l. of Powder, and ſhoots point-blank 156 Paces: The weight of it is 5400 l. the Length from ten to eleven Foot, and the Diameter at the Bore $6\frac{1}{4}$ Inches.

Demi-Cannon Ordinary, is $6\frac{1}{2}$ Inches Diameter at the Bore, and 12 Foot long: It weighs 5600 Pounds, takes a Charge of 17 l. 8 Ounces of Powder, carries a Shot $6\frac{1}{8}$ Inches Diameter, and 32 l. weight; and the Piece ſhoots 162 Paces.

Demi-Cannon Extraordinary is of $6\frac{3}{4}$ Inches Diameter at the Bore, 12 Foot in length, and 6000 l. weight: So that it takes a Charge of 18 l. Powder, carries a Ball of $6\frac{5}{8}$ Inches Diameter and 36 l. weight; its Point-blank Shot being 180 Paces.

Demi-Chace Boots. See Whole Chace Boots.

Demi-Culverine of the leaſt ſize, is a Piece of Ordinance of $4\frac{1}{4}$ Inches Diameter at the Bore, from Nine to Ten Foot long; weighing 2000 Pounds, and taking a Charge of $6\frac{1}{4}$ l. Powder: It carries a Ball of 4 Inches Diameter, and 9 Pounds weight; ſhooting Point-blank 174 Paces.

Demi-Culverine Ordinary, is of $4\frac{1}{2}$ Inches Diameter at the Bore, 10 Foot long, and weighs 2700 Pounds, charged with 7 l. 4 Ounces of Powder; its Ball being of $4\frac{1}{2}$ Inches Diameter, and 10 l. 11 Ounces weight; its Point-blank Shot 175 Paces.

Demi-Culverine Extraordinary is of $4\frac{3}{4}$ Inches Diameter at the Bore $10\frac{1}{3}$ Foot long, and weighs 3000 Pounds: It takes a Charge of $8\frac{1}{2}$ l. Powder, carries a Ball of $4\frac{5}{8}$ Inches Diameter, and 12 l. 11 Ounces weight, and ſhoots Point-blank 178 Paces.

Demi-diſtance of Polygons (in Fortif.) is the diſtance between the outward Polygons and the Flank.

Demi-ditone, a Note in Muſick, the ſame with Tierce Minor; which See.

Demi-gantlet (in Surgery) a ſort of Bandage us'd in the ſetting of disjoynted Fingers.

Demi-gorge (in Fortif.) is half the Gorge or entrance into the Baſtion, not taken from Angle to Angle, where the Baſtion joyns the Courtin, but from the Angle of the Flank to the Center of the Baſtion; or the Angle the two Courtins would make, were they thus lengthen'd to meet in the Baſtion.

Demi-haque, a ſort of Gun. See Haque and Harquebuſs.

Demi-lune; See Half-moon.

Demi-quaver, a Muſical Note; See Semi-quaver.

Demi-ſank or Demi-ſang (Fr. Law-Term) that is of the Half-blood; as when a Man having iſſue by his Wife, a Son or a Daughter, upon the Deceaſe of his ſaid Wife, he marries another Woman, and has alſo by her, a Son or a Daughter; now theſe two Sons or Daughters are commonly call'd Half-Brothers, or Half-Siſters, or of the Half-blood.

Demi-ſemi-quaver, the leaſt Note in Muſick, two of which make a Semi-quaver, four a Quaver, eight a Crotchet, &c.

Demi-ſextile (Lat. in Aſtron.) one of the New Aſpects, when two Planets or Stars are diſtant 30 Degrees one from another.

Demigration, a removing or ſhifting of Quarters or Dwellings.

Demiſe, (Law-word) a letting or making over of Lands, Tenements, &c. by Leaſe or Will: The King's Death is alſo termed in Law, the Demiſe of the King.

To Demiſe, to farm or let.

† Demiſſion (Lat.) ſlackening, looſening.

Democracy (Gr.) a form of Government, where the People bear Rule, the Supreme Power and Authority being lodged in them; a free State, ſuch as in Switzerland.

Democratical, belonging to ſuch a Government.

To Demoliſh (Lat.) to pull, throw, or take down any thing that is built; to ruin or raze a Building.

Demolition, a demoliſhing, pulling, beating or throwing down.

Demon, (Gr.) the Ancients call'd certain Genius's or Spirits that appear'd to Men, ſometimes to ſerve and ſometimes to hurt them, by the Name of Demons: But in Holy Scripture, the Word is always taken for the Devil, or a Bad Genius.

Demoniack, a Man or Woman poſſeſſed with the Devil, or with an Evil Spirit.

Demonology, a Treatiſe of Devils or Evil Spirits.

Demonſtrable (Lat.) that may be demonſtrated, capable of Demonſtration.

To Demonſtrate, to ſhew plainly, to prove evidently or unanſwerably.

Demonſtration, a demonſtrating, ſhewing or making plain, an Argument ſo convincing, that the concluſion muſt needs be infallible; a clear Proof. In Mathematicks, a Chain of Arguments depending one on another, and founded originally on firſt and ſelf-evident Principles or plain Propoſitions raiſed and proved from them, ſo as at laſt it ends in the invincible Proof of the thing to be demonſtrated.

In Algebra, Demonſtrations, are evident and undoubted Proofs, to manifeſt the truth of ſuch Theorems and Canons as are Analytically found out.

Demonſtrative, that ſerves to demonſtrate, or ſet a thing out of Doubt; that proves it beyond Contradiction.

Demſter or Dempſter; ſee Deemſter.

Demure, affectedly grave, reſerved or baſhful.

To Demurr (Fr. Law-Term) to put in Doubts or Objections; to delay or put off to a farther hearing. In Chancery the Defendant Demurrs to the Plantiff's Bill, affirming it to be defective in ſuch or ſuch a Point, and demands the Judgment of the Court thereupon, whether he ſhall be oblig'd to make any farther or other Anſwer thereto.

Demurrage (in Traffick) an Allowance to the Maſter of a Ship by the Merchants, for ſtaying in a Port, longer than the time firſt appointed for his departure.

Demurrer, a kind of pauſe upon a Point of difficulty in any Action at Law, which requires ſome time to be taken for the Court, or Judges to conſider further of the Matter.

Den, (Sax.) a Cave or Lurking-place under Ground: In ancient Records a low Place, in which ſenſe it is ſtill retain'd at the end of the Names of ſeveral Towns and Villages; as Bidden, Tenterden in Kent, &c.

Den and Strond (old Law-Term) liberty for Ships to run a-ground, or come a-ſhoar; a Privilege among others, granted by King Edward I. to the Barons of the Cinque-Ports.

Dena or Dena terræ (Lat.) a word us'd in Doomſday Book for a hollow Place between two Hills.

Denariata terræ, the fourth part of an Acre of Land.

Denarii (in old Records) a general Term for Caſh or any ſort of ready Money.

Denarii de Caritate, Whitſun-farthings, the cuſtomary Oblations formerly made to the Cathedral about Whitſuntide; when the Pariſh-Prieſt, and many of the People went in Proceſſion to viſit the Mother-Church.

Denarius, belonging to, or containing the Number of Ten, tenth: Alſo a Roman Silver-coin, to the value of ſeven Pence Half-penny Engliſh; markt with the Letter X, becauſe it was worth Ten Aſſes: Alſo the ſeventh part of an Ounce-weight.

Denarius Dei (i. e. God's Penny) Earneſt-money anciently ſo call'd, becauſe the piece of Money laid down for the binding of any Bargain or Agreement, was given to God, i. e. to the Church or the Poor.

Denarius tertius Comitatus, a third part of the Fines and other Profits ariſing from the County-Courts, which was paid to the Earl of the County; the other two parts being reſerv'd for the King.

Denarius S. Petri, Peter's pence; See Rome-ſcot.

Denbera, a Place for the running of Hogs, a low Valley for the Pannage or feeding of Swine.

Dendrachates (Gr.) a kind of Agate-ſtone, the Veins and Spots of which reſemble the Figures of Trees and Shrubs.

Dendrociſſos, a ſort of Ivy that grows by it ſelf.

Dendroides, a kind of Spurge, full of Branches like a Tree.

Dendrolibanus, the Herb Roſemary.

Dendromalache, Tree-Mallows; an Herb.

Dendron, a Tree.

Deneb, the Name of a Star otherwiſe call'd Cauda Lucida, or Lion's Tail; which ſee.

Denelage, ſee Danelage.

Denial, a denying or refuſing.

Denier, a French Braſs-Coin, worth three Tenths of an Engliſh Farthing, of which Twelve make a Sols. Alſo a Penny-weight in Silver; thus an Ounce of Silver well purify'd is of 24 Deniers.

Denis, a proper Name of Men Contracted from Dionyſius.

Denizen or Deniſon (in Common-Law) an Alien or Foreigner infranchized by the King's Charter, ſo as to be made capable of any Office or Dignity, and of purchaſing and poſſeſſing of Land: But this Privilege comes ſhort of Naturalization, becauſe a Stranger Naturalized may Inherit Lands by Deſcent, which a Man made only a Denizen cannot do.

To Denominate (Lat.) to give Name to.

Denomination, the Original of a Name, or the Name it ſelf.

Denominatives (in Logick) are ſuch Terms as take their Original and Name from others.

Denominator of a Fraction (in Arithm.) is that part of it which ſtands under the ſeparating Line, and names the Parts that any Integer or whole Number is to be Divided into: Thus in the Fraction $\frac{2}{3}$, 3 is the Denominator, which ſhews that the Integer is to be divided into three Parts; as 2 the Numerator, expreſſes how many of ſuch Parts are to be taken. See Numerator.

Denominator of any Proportion is the Quotient ariſing from the Diviſion of the Antecedent of ſuch a Ratio or Reaſon, by its Conſequent: Thus 6 is the Denominator of the Proportion that 30 has to 5; becauſe 30 divided by 5 gives 6 for the Quotient. This is alſo termed the Exponent of the Proportion or Ratio.

To Denote, to ſhew by a Mark, to ſignify.

To Denounce, to Proclaim or Publiſh, to Declare.

Dens (Lat.) a Tooth, a Tuſh or Tusk, a Fang. The Teeth are of three ſorts, viz. the Inciſores or Cutters, which bite off the Morſel; the Canini or Dog-teeth that break it; and the Molares or Grinders that make it ſmall.

Dens Caninus, an Herb ſo call'd, becauſe the Leaves of its Flowers reſemble a Dog's Tooth.

Dens Leonis, the Herb Dandelion, good to ſtrengthen the Liver and to provoke Urine.

Denſe, Thick, a Philoſophical Term oppos'd to Rare, or Thin. Thus a natural Body is ſaid To be denſe, when it has more of Matter in proportion to the Space or Room it takes up than other Bodies have.

To Denſhire, to cut off the Turf of Lands, and when it is dry, to lay it on Heaps and burn it to Aſhes: Some derive the Word from Devonſhire, where this ſort of Husbandry is ſaid to have been firſt in uſe; which yields a very great Profit, and extremely improves a barren Soil: It is otherwiſe call'd Burn-beating, q. d. burning of Peat; Turf in many Places being call'd Peat.

Denſity, Thickneſs, a Quality belonging to compact Bodies. See Denſe.

Dent, a notch about the edges. Alſo a Term in Heraldry; as A Bordure dent or indented, when the out-line of the Border or Ordinary is indented or notched in and out like the Teeth of a Saw.

Dental, a ſmall Shell-fiſh, rough on the outſide, very ſmooth within, hollow like a little Pipe, and ſharp-pointed on one ſide, like a Dog's Tooth; whence it has its Name.

Dentarpaga (Lat.) a Surgeon's Inſtrument for the drawing of Teeth; a Barber's Pincers.

Dented Verge (among Herbaliſts) ſuch leaves of Plants as are notch'd about the edges; ſome of them being fine-dented, and others large or deep-dented.

Dentes Sapientiæ, (Lat. i. e. Teeth of Wiſdom) are two double Teeth behind the reſt, which ſpring up about the 20th year or upwards, having till then lain hid in their Sockets: They are ſo call'd, becauſe Perſons are then come to years of Diſcretion.

Dentiducum, the ſame as Dentarpaga.

Dentifrice, a ſort of Powder made uſe of to rub, cleanſe, whiten and faſten the Teeth, and to ſtrengthen the Gums.

Dentils or Denticles (in Architect.) a Square Member of the Ionick Cornice, cut out at convenient diſtances, and taking name from its Figure, reſembling a ſet of Teeth.

Dentiſcalpium (Lat.) a Tooth-picker or Tooth-ſcraper.

Dentitio, a growing or breeding of Teeth, the pain of breeding them, or the time that Children breed Teeth, which is about the Seventh Month, or later.

Dentix, the Sea-rough with Dogs Teeth, a kind of Fiſh.

Dento, a Perſon that has great Teeth, or whoſe Teeth and Mouth ſtick out.

Denudation, a laying bare.

Denunciation, a denouncing or proclaiming.

To Deny, not to grant or admit of, to refuſe, to gainſay or diſown, to renounce.

To Deobſtruct (a Term in Phyſick) to remove Obſtructions or Stoppages, to open the Pores of the Body.

Deobſtruentia or Deoppilantia, Medicines which are proper for that purpoſe.

Deodand (Law-Term) a thing given, or rather forfeited to God, to atone for the violent Death of a Man by Miſadventure; as if a Cart-Wheel ſhould run over him, or he were kill'd by the accidental Fall of a Tree; then the Cart-wheel, Cart and Horſes, or the Tree being a Deodand, is to be ſold, and the Money diſtributed to the poor.

Deonerando pro rata portione, a Writ which lies in favour of one that is diſtrained for a Rent, which ought to be paid by others proportionably with him.

Deoppilative Medicines, ſuch as ſerve to remove Obſtructions or Stoppages; the ſame as Deobſtruentia.

To Depaint, to make a lively repreſentation of a Story or Paſſage; to deſcribe, to expreſs or ſet out in Words.

Depart, a certain Operation in Chymiſtry, ſo call'd, becauſe the Particles of Silver are made to depart from Gold or ſome other Metal, when they were before melted together in the ſame Maſs, and could not be ſeparated any other way.

To Depart, to go away from a Place, to go out; to deceaſe or die. The Word was alſo ſometimes us'd for to divide or ſeparate; as in Wickliff's Tranſlation of Gen. 1. 4. God departed the Light from the Darkneſs.

Depart or Departure from a Plea, &c. (Law-Term) as when a Man pleads in Bar of an Action, and Reply being made thereto, in his Rejoynder, he ſhews another Matter contrary to his firſt Plea, and this is term'd a Departure from his Bar; it muſt alſo be apply'd to a Plantiff, who in his Replication ſhews new Matter from his Declaration.

Departers of Gold or Silver, Artificers that purify and part thoſe Metals from the courſer ſort: They are alſo call'd Parters and Finers.

Departure, a departing or going away; alſo Deceaſe or Death; Alſo a Term in Navigation. See Longitude.

Departure in deſpight of the Court, (Law-Phraſe) is when a Tenant or Defendant appears to the Action brought againſt him, and having a Day over in the ſame Term, or being otherwiſe call'd again, he does not appear, but makes Default; in which Caſe he ſhall be Condemned.

Depauperation, (Lat.) an impoveriſhing or making poor.

To Depeach (old Word) to acquit.

Depeculation, a robbing of the Prince or Common-wealth; an imbezilling of the Publick Treaſure.

To Depend, to rely upon, to be under or Subject to; to hang on, or proceed of.

Dependance or Dependency, Subjection, Inferiority, Relation to.

A Dependant, one that depends on another.

Dependent, depending.

Dephlegmated (among Chymiſts) cleared from Phlegm or Water: Thus when any Spirit is made pure, by rectifying or diſtilling it over again, and fully depriv'd of all Water and Phlegm, or at leaſt of as much of it as can well be, they ſay ſuch a Spirit is well dephlegmated.

Dephlegmation, the Act of dephlegmating or ſeparating the Phlegm, or Superfluous Water from a Spirit, by repeated Diſtillations.

Depilation, a pulling off the Hair.

Depilatory, that makes the Hair come off; as a depilatory Plaiſter.

A Depilatory, an outward Medicine proper for that purpoſe.

Deplorable, to be deplored or lamented.

Deploration, a deploring, lamenting or bewailing.

To Deplore, to lament or bewail, to make grievous Complaint, to bemoan.

Deplumation, a pluming or plucking off the Feathers: In Surgery, a ſwelling of the Eye-lids, accompany'd with the fall of the Hairs from the Eye-brows.

Deponent, (a Term in Grammar) as a Verb deponent, i. e. a Verb that has a Paſſive Termination, and an Active Signification.

A Deponent (Law-Word) one that depoſes, lays down, or gives Information of any Matter upon Oath, before a Magiſtrate; a Witneſs that anſwers Interrogatories demanded of him in Chancery.

To Depopulate, to unpeople, to ſpoil or lay waſte, to ravage or harraſs.

Depopulation, the Act of depopulating, deſtroying, or laying waſte.

Depopulatores Agrorum, certain Great Offenders mention'd in ſeveral Statutes, and ſo call'd, becauſe by pulling down and ruining Houſes, they unpeopled and laid waſte whole Towns.

To Deport, to demean or behave one's ſelf.

Deportatio (Lat.) a conveying or carrying out of one Place into another: Alſo a ſort of Baniſhment in Uſe among the Romans, by which they aſſign'd ſome Iſland, or other Place, for the Party baniſh'd to abide in; with a Prohibition not to ſtir out upon pain of Death.

Deportment, Carriage, Behaviour.

To Depoſe, to give Teſtimony about any Matter in a Court of Juſtice or elſewhere; to give Evidence as a Witneſs: Alſo to deprive a Soveraign Prince of his Crown and Dignity, to turn one out of Office.

Depoſitary, the Truſtee or Keeper of a thing in Truſt.

To Depoſite, to truſt a thing with one.

Depoſitio (Lat.) a Depoſition, a committing a thing to one's Keeping or Truſt; alſo a depoſing or depriving of ſome dignity: Among Grammarians it is taken for the ending of the Dimenſions of a Latin or Greek Verſe; ſo as to diſcover whether it be perfect, Redundant or Deficient: So that in this reſpect they reckon four kinds of Verſe, viz. Acatalectick, Catalectick, Brachycatalectick, and Hypercatalectick; which ſee in their proper Places.

Depoſition, an Information upon Oath; the Teſtimony of a Witneſs ſet down in Writing, eſpecially in the Court of Chancery.

Depoſitum, a thing depoſited or committed to one's keeping, in Truſt.

Depravation, a depraving, ſpoiling or Corrupting.

To Deprave, to make lewd, to corrupt, to Marr or Spoil.

To Deprecate, to pray or wiſh againſt a thing.

Deprecation, the Act of deprecating, as when we endeavour by Prayer to divert God's Judgments; a praying againſt any Calamity, &c.

Deprecative, that ſerves to deprecate.

To Depreciate, to run down the Price of, to undervalue.

Depredation, a preying upon, a robbing or ſpoiling.

Deprehenſible, that may be apprehended, conceived or underſtood.

† Deprehenſion, a catching or taking unawares; a ſudden ſeizure or diſcovery.

To Depreſs, to preſs, thruſt or weigh down, to humble or bring down.

To Depreſs the Pole, an Aſtronomical Phraſe: Thus ſo many Degrees as a Man Sails or Travels from the Pole, he is ſaid to depreſs it; becauſe it becomes reſpectively as much lower or nearer to the Horizon.

Depreſſion, the Act of depreſſing, preſſing down, humbling, &c.

Depreſſion of a Planet, (in Aſtrol.) is when the Planet is in a Sign oppoſite to that of its exaltation.

Depreſſor, one that keeps or preſſes down.

Depreſſor or Deprimens Auricularum, (in Anat.) a Muſcle of the Ear in Beaſts, which ſerves to depreſs or let fall the Ear.

Depreſſor Labii inferioris, a Muſcle that lies between the Depreſſores Labiorum Communes, poſſeſſes that part of the lower Jaw call'd the Chin, and is inſerted into the neither Lip, in preſſing it down which, turns it outward.

Depreſſor Labiorum, a Muſcle that ariſes from the lower Edge of the Inferiour Jaw-bone, ſide-ways, and aſcends directly to the Corner of the Lips. This with its Partner and the Quadrati acting, expreſs a Sorrowful Countenance, in drawing down the Corners of the Mouth and Cheeks.

Depreſſor Oculi, a Muſcle of the Eye, which ſprings from the deepeſt part of the Orbit; and paſſes directly to its Inſertion, at the oppoſite part of the Ball of the Eye.

Deprimens or Humilis, is one of the ſtraight Muſcles that move the Globe or Ball of the Eye; its uſe being to pull it downwards.

Deprivation, a depriving or bereaving: In a Law-ſenſe it is when a Clergy-man, as a Biſhop, Parſon, Vicar or Prebend is deprived or depoſed from his Preferment, for any matter in Fact or Law.

To Deprive, to bereave or rob one of a thing, to take it away from him.

Depth of a Squadron or Battalion, (in the Art of War) the Number of Men there is in the File; that of a Squadron being always three, and that of a Battalion generally ſix, whence 'tis ſaid that a Battalion is drawn up five or ſix deep.

Depulſion, a driving, thruſting or beating away.

Depuration (in Phyſick and Chymiſtry) a ſeparating the pure from the impure part of any thing, a clearing any mixt Body from the Dregs or more Groſs Parts: In Surgery, the cleanſing of a Wound from its Matter and Filth.

Deputation, a deputing, appointing or ſending, with a ſpecial Commiſſion.

To Depute, to appoint or ſend another to act in one's ſtead: It is more eſpecially apply'd to a Body Politick, that ſends ſome of the Members, to a Prince or State, to pay Homage, to make Remonſtrances, to be preſent at Debates, &c.

Deputy, a Lieutenant, one that is appointed to govern or act in the place of another: In a Law-ſenſe, one that exerciſes any Office or other things in another Man's Right, whoſe Forfeiture or Miſdemeanour ſhall cauſe the Officer or Perſon for whom he acts to loſe his Office.

To Dequace, (old Word) to daſh.

Dereigne or Dereine (Law-Term) the proof of a thing which one denies to be done by himſelf, ſo as to defeat and confound the Adverſary's Aſſertion.

To Deraigne, to prove or juſtifie; alſo to diſorder or turn out of Courſe.

Deraignment, a deraigning or proving; alſo a diſcharge of Profeſſion, a Term ſome time apply'd to thoſe Religious Perſons that forſook their Orders.

To Dere (old Word) to hurt.

Dereliction (Lat.) an utter forſaking or leaving.

Derick, a proper Name of Men, being a Contraction of Theoderick.

To Deride (Lat.) to laugh one to Scorn, to mock, to flout and fleer at.

Deriſion, deriding, laughing or mocking.

Derivation, properly a draining of Water, or turning its Courſe: In Grammar, the tracing of a Word from its Original: In Rhetorick, the ſame Figure as Paregmenon; which ſee. In the Art of Phyſick, Derivation, is the drawing of a Humour from one part of the Body to another.

Derivative, that is derived from another.

To Derive, to draw or fetch from the Original, to receive from.

Derma (Gr.) the Skin or Hide of a Beaſt, the Skin of a Man's Body.

Dern (old Word) ſad, ſolitary; alſo barbarous or cruel,

To Derogate (Lat.) to leſſen, to take off from the worth of a Thing or Perſon; to diſparage.

Derogation, the Act of derogating, leſſening, diſparaging, &c.

Derogatory, that tends to derogate.

Derviſes, an Order of Religious Perſons, among the Turks, who undergo very ſevere and ſtrict Pennances.

Deruncination, (in Husbandry) a cutting off Trees, Buſhes, &c. or any thing that incumbers the Ground.

Deſart, a large and wild part of a Country, a Tract of Land not Tilled or Inhabited by Men; a Wilderneſs.

Deſcalſas (Span.) a ſort of Friers that go unſhod, or bare-footed.

Deſcant (in Muſick) ſignifies the Art of Compoſing in ſeveral Parts, and is threefold, viz. Plain, Figurate and Double.

Plain Deſcant is the Foundation or Groundwork of Muſical Compoſition, and conſiſts altogether in the orderly placing of many Concords.

Figurate or Florid Deſcant, is that wherein ſome Diſcords are intermix'd with the Concords; ſo that it may well be Term'd the Rhetorical Part of Muſick, in regard that here are brought in all the Variety of Points, Syncope's, Figures and whatever elſe is capable of affording an Ornament to the Compoſition.

Double Deſcant, is when the Parts are ſo contriv'd, that the Treble may be made the Baſs, and on the contrary the Baſs the Treble.

Deſcant, is alſo taken for a continu'd Diſcourſe, a Comment or large Paraphraſe oo any Subject.

To Deſcant, to run deſcant in Muſick; to make a thing more plain by inlarging the Diſcourſe, to give one's Thoughts upon a Matter.

To Deſcend, to go, come, ſtep or be carry'd down; to draw one's Original from, or come of a Family; to condeſcend or ſtoop to.

Deſcendable, that can deſcend.

Deſcenſion, a deſcending or going down: In Chymiſtry, the falling downwards of the Eſſential Juice, diſſolv'd from the diſtilled Matter.

Deſcenſion of a Sign (in Aſtron.) is an Arch of the Equator, which ſets with ſuch a Sign or Part of the Zodiack, or any Planet therein; being either Right or Oblique.

Right Deſcenſion, is an Arch of the Equator which deſcends with the Sign or Star therein, below the Horizon of a Right Sphere.

Oblique Deſcenſion, is a part of the Equator deſcending or ſetting with the Sun or Star, or any Point of the Heavens in an Oblique Sphere.

Deſcenſorium, a Chymical Furnace, do diſtil with per Deſcenſum, i. e. by cauſing the Vapours to deſcend or fall downwards.

Deſcent, a going, or coming down; the ſteep ſide of a Hill: Alſo Extraction or Birth, an iſſuing from the Fore-Father, in a continu'd Order of ſeveral Generations: Alſo a Term in Law. See Diſcent.

Deſcent of heavy Bodies (in Philoſ.) is the tendency of them to the Center of the Earth.

In Fortification, Deſcents ſignifie the Holes, Vaults and hollow Places, made by undermining the Ground, particularly, in the Counterſcarp or Covert-way.

Deſcent into the Moat or Ditch, is a deep digging into the Earth of the Covert-way, in form of a Trench, the Top of which is cover'd with Planks or Wattles cloſe bound together, and well loaded with Earth, to ſecure the Men againſt Fire in their paſſage into the Moat.

To make a Deſcent into an Enemies Country, is to Land on it with Invading Forces.

To Deſcribe, to Write, or ſet down in Writing; to draw the Form of, to Repreſent, to Explain: In Geometry, to draw a Line, a Circle, &c.

Deſcribent, a Geometrical Term, expreſſing ſome Line or Surface, which by its Motion, produces a plain Figure or a Solid.

Deſcription, the Act of deſcribing, a ſetting forth the Nature, Property, or Character of a Thing or Perſon.

To Deſcry, to ſpy out, or diſcover afar off.

Deſert, Merit or Worth; alſo a Confectionary Term for a Banquet of Sweet-meats.

To Deſert (Lat.) to leave alone, to forſake, to run away from one's Colours.

Deſerter, a Soldier that goes over to the Enemy, or that quits the Service without leave, or that runs away from one Regiment to another.

Deſertion, the Act of deſerting, forſaking, &c.

To Deſerve, to be worthy of Reward or Puniſhment.

Deſiccation, a drying up: In a Phyſical ſenſe, a diſſolving of.

Deſiccative, apt to dry, that is of a drying Quality; as Deſiccative Medicines.

A Deſiccative, a drying Plaiſter or Ointment.

Deſidery, Deſire or Luſt, a Word us'd by Chaucer, and derived from the Latin Deſiderium.

Deſign, Intention or Intent; Purpoſe, Mind, Reſolution; Contrivance or Project; Enterprize or Attempt. Alſo the firſt Draught or Sketch of Picture. See Deſſein.

To Deſign, to aſſign or appoint, to contrive or plot, to purpoſe or reſolve, to Draw a Figure or Sketch.

Deſignation, Deſignment, Appointment, Nomination.

Deſignator (among the Romans) a Maſter of Ceremonies in Funeral Pomps, or a Sworn Marſhal who order'd all things at Funerals, either relating to the publick Shew, or the Habits of the Mourners; an Undertaker.

Deſignment, Deſigning, Intendment or Intention.

† Deſipience, Fooliſhneſs, Indiſcretion: alſo the dotage oi raving of a ſick Perſon.

Deſire, an uneaſineſs of the Mind upon the abſenec of any thing, the preſent enjoyment of which affords Delight; Wiſh, Longing: Alſo Requeſt or Entreaty.

To Deſire, to Covet, Wiſh or Long for; to entreat or pray.

Deſireable, that is to be deſired or wiſhed for.

Deſirous, that paſſionately deſires or wiſhes for.

To Deſiſt, to ceaſe or leave off, to give over.

Deſlavy, leacherous, beaſtly; a Word us'd by Chaucer.

Deſolate (Lat.) left alone, forlorn; afflicted, aggrieved, full of trouble: Alſo ſolitary, uninhabited, ruined, laid waſte.

Deſolation, a making deſolate, a laying waſte, by deſtroying whole Countries with Fire and Sword, utter Ruin and Deſtruction.

De ſon tort de meſme (Fr.) are Words of Form us'd in an Action of Treſpaſs, by way of Reply to the Defendant's Plea. As when the Defendant ſays he did what he is charged with, by the Command of his Maſter; and the Plaintiff replies, That the Defendant did it, de ſon tort, &c. i. e. of his own Wrong, or by his own proper Motion.

Deſpair (Lat.) a Paſſion of the Soul which makes it caſt off all Hopes: Or it is a Reflection upon the Unattainableneſs of ſome Good which produces a different effect in Mens Minds; ſometimes cauſing Uneaſineſs or Pain, and ſometimes Reſt or Unconcernedneſs.

To Deſpair, to have no Hopes, to be paſt Hopes, to give over for loſt.

Deſperado, a Deſperate, a Mad, Furious-Hair-brain'd Fellow.

Deſperate, That is in Deſpair or deſpaired of, alſo dangerous, violent, fierce.

Deſperation, a deſpairing or falling into Deſpair.

Deſpicable or Deſpiſable, worthy to be deſpiſed or ſlighted; baſe, ſorry, vile, mean.

To Deſpiſe, to look upon with Diſdain, to ſlight, to ſet at nought, or make nothing of.

Deſpite or Deſpight, Scorn, Hatred, Malice, Spite, Grudge.

To Deſpoil, to ſtrip one of his Goods or Eſtate, to rob him of his ſubſtance.

To Deſpond, to deſpair, to loſe Courage, to be out of Heart.

Deſpondence or Deſpondency, a failing of Courage, a being quite diſheartned.

Deſpondent, deſponding, deſpairing.

Deſponſatio (Lat. in the Civil-law) an affiancing or betrothing.

Deſpote (Gr.) a great Title heretofore among the Grecians, ſignifying as much as chief Lord or Governour of a Country: The Word is ſtill us'd for a Prince or Governour in the Turkiſh Empire; as The Deſpote of Valachia.

Deſpotical or Deſpotick, abſolutely Supreme, Arbitrary; as A Deſpotical Government, which is, when a Prince has gain'd ſuch a deſpotick abſolute Power, that he will no longer be guided or controll'd by the Laws of his Country, but takes upon him to govern by his ſole Will and Pleaſure.

Deſpumation, a foaming or frothing. In Pharmacy or the Apothecaries Art, it is the clearing or cleanſing of any Liquon, by letting it boil or ſimmer over the Fire, ſo as to take off the Scum or other Filth.

Deſſein (Fr.) Deſign, Purpoſe, Reſolution, Project; Enterprize, or Attempt: In Painting it ſignifies two things, either in general the Deſign, or Thought that the Artiſt had about any great Piece; whether the Contours or Out-lines be only drawn, or whether he has proceeded further to put in the Shadows of the Colours: So that if there appear much Maſterly Skill and Judgment in the Contrivance, it is uſually ſaid, The Deſign is Great and Noble. It is alſo taken for the juſt Meaſures, the Proportions and outward Forms, which thoſe Objects ought to have that are drawn in imitation of Nature; and in this ſenſe 'tis one of the parts of Painting, and may be call'd A juſt Imitation of Nature.

Deſſert or Deſert, the laſt Courſe at Table; a Service of Fruits and Sweet meats.

Deſtillation; See Diſtillation.

To Deſtin or Deſtinate (Lat.) to deſign, appoint, or order.

Deſtiny, the Diſpoſal of things ordained by Divine Providence, Fate, Death, either Natural or Violent.

Deſtiny-Readers, Fortune-tellers or Gipſies.

Deſtitute, deprived, bereaved, forſaken, forlorn.

Deſtitution, utter abandoning, forſaking, or leaving.

To Deſtroy. to throw down, overthrow or raze; to lay waſte or ruin, to marr or ſpoil; to deface, to kill.

Deſtruction, deſtroying, Ruin, Overthrow, Slaughter.

Deſtructive, apt to deſtroy or ruin; deadly, miſchievous, hurtful.

Deſuetude, a deſiſting from any Cuſtom or Uſe; Diſuſe, lack of Cuſtom.

Deſultores or Deſultorii (among the Romans) Men that us'd to leap from one Horſe to another, at the Horſe races of the Games call'd Circenſes.

Deſultory (q. d. leaping) inconſtant, wavering, fickle, light.

Det or Debt, a Writ that lies for an Action of Debt; See Debt.

To Detach, (Fr. in the Art of War) to make a Detachment, to ſend away a Party of Soldiers upon a particular Expedition.

Detached Baſtion; See Baſtion detached.

Detachiare (Lat. Law-Term) to ſeize or take into cuſtody another Man's Goods or Perſon, by Writ of Detachment or other Courſe of Law.

Detachment, a certain Number of Men drawn out of one or more greater Bodies, in order to be employ'd in the putting of ſome warlike Enterprize in Execution; as to form a kind of flying Camp, to joyn a ſeparate Army, to relieve a Party already engag'd in Battel, to aſſiſt at the Siege of a Place, to enter into ſome Garriſon, &c. Alſo the Name of a Writ; See Detachiare and Attachment.

Detail (Fr.) the particular Circumſtances of an Affair; as Theſe advantages need not be offer'd in Detail to your View.

To Detain (Lat.) to keep or withhold, to make one ſtay; to ſtop, let, or hinder.

To Detect, to lay open, to diſcloſe or diſcover.

Detection, a detecting, revealing, or laying open, a Diſcovery.

Detents (in Clock-work) are thoſe Stops, which by being lifted up, or let fall down, do lock and unlock the Clock in ſtriking.

Detent-wheel or Hoop-wheel, is that Wheel which has a Hoop almoſt round it, wherein there is a Vacancy, at which the Clock locks.

Detention, a detaining, with-holding or keeping; alſo Impriſonment, Confinement.

To Deterge, to wipe, or rub off.

Detergent; See Abſtergent.

Deterioration, a making worſe or ſpoiling.

Determinable, that may be determined, decided or judged.

Determinate, that is determined, limited, or defined, poſitive.

Determination, determining, Deciſion, Reſolution, Appointment.

To Determine (properly to ſet or appoint Bounds) to judge or decide, to put an end to, to incline or diſpoſe, to deſign, reſolve, or purpoſe.

Determined Problem (in Geom.) is that which has but one, or but one certain Number of Solutions; as the following Problem. viz. To deſcribe an Iſoſceles Triangle on a given Line, whoſe Angle at the Baſe ſhall be double to that at the Vertex or Top.

To Deter, to fright or diſcourage one from a thing, to take him off from it by Terrour or Threats.

Deterration (in Philoſ.) a Removal of the Earth, Sand, &c. from the Mountains and higher Grounds, down into the Valleys and lower Parts, which is occaſioned by Rains that waſh the Earthy Matter down by Degrees; ſo that the richer and finer Part helps to make up the Bodies of Plants and all Vegetables.

† Deterſion, a ſcouring, a wiping or rubbing off.

Deterſive, that is of a ſcouring, cleanſing, or purifying Quality; as A deterſive Medicine.

To Deteſt, to abhor or loath.

Deteſtable, that deſerves to be deteſted, abominable, vile, wretched.

Deteſtation, a deteſting or loathing, Abhorrence.

To Dethrone, to drive a Soveraign Prince from his Throne or Royal Seat, to Depoſe him.

Detinet (Lat. i. e. he detains) a Writ that lies, where a Man owes to another an Annuity, or a certain quantity of Wheat, Barley, &c. which he refuſes to pay: In other Caſes, a Writ of this Nature is call'd Debito; which See.

Detinue, is a Writ which lies againſt one, who having Goods on Chattels do deliver them to keep, refuſes to deliver them again. There is alſo an Action of Detinue, when a Man is ſued to deliver up his Truſt.

Detonation, a mighty thundering: In Chymiſtry, the thund'ring Noiſe that is often made by a Mixture, being inkindled in a Crucible or other Veſſel, ſo that the volatile Parts of it ruſh forth with great Swiftneſs and Violence: This is alſo termed Fulmination.

To Detract, to draw away or take off, to leſſen or abate; to ſlander, deſparage, or ſpeak ill of.

Detraction, a detracting, drawing away, &c. Slander, Evil-ſpeaking or Back-biting.

Detractive, that is apt to detract or take off.

Detriment, Dammage, Loſs, Hurt. At Lincolns-Inn it is a Duty of 1 s. 6 d. paid each Term, by every Member of the Society to the Houſe, for defraying its Charges, and Repairing Loſſes.

In Aſtrology, Detriment is the greateſt of the Eſſential Debilities or Weakneſſes of a Planet, viz. the Sign directly oppoſite to that which is its Houſe; as the detriment of the Sun is Aquarius, becauſe it is oppoſite to Leo.

Detrimental, that brings dammage, prejudicial.

Detrition (in Philoſ.) an Accident that happens to any thing by wearing, or rubbing off ſome of its Particles or ſmall Parts.

† Detruncation, a cutting off a Limb or Branch.

Detruſion, a thruſting down.

Detruſor Urinæ (in Anat.) a Muſcle which by ſome is reckon'd the firſt proper Membrane of the Bladder, lying under that which is deriv'd from the Peritonæum: Its fleſhy Fibres embrace the whole Bladder as it were a Hand, and preſſes it in the diſcharging of the Urine.

Devadiatus, a Word us'd in Doomſday-Record, for one that has no Sureties or Pledges.

Devaſtation, a laying waſte, ſpoiling, plundering, or making havock of.

Devaſtaverunt bona Teſtatoris, a Writ that lies againſt Executors, for paying of Debts and Legacies without Specialty or Bond, to the prejudice of the Creditors that have Specialties or Bonds, before the Debts upon the ſaid Bonds become due.

Deucalidonians, a People that in old times inhabited the Weſtern Parts of Scotland.

Devenerunt, a Writ directed to the Eſcheator, when upon the Death of any of the King's Tenants holding in Capite, his Son and Heir alſo dies within Age; to enquire what Lands or Tenements are come to the Crown.

To Deveſt (properly to uncloath) to ſtrip, diſpoſſeſs, or deprive of. In Common-Law, it ſignifies to turn out of Poſſeſſion, and is the contrary of To Inveſt.

Devexity, Bendingneſs or Shelvingneſs; See Convixity.

To Deviate, to go from, to ſwerve, as to To Deviate from the Truth: In Grammar, it is when a Word varies from the ſenſe of its Primitive or Original.

Deviation, the Act of deviating.

Device, an Invention or Contrivance, a feigned Story; a cunning Trick: Alſo a Motto, ſhort Sentence or Conceit, in a Coat of Arms or Picture.

Devil, one of the fallen Angels that were thrown out of Heaven for their Pride; an evil Spirit.

Devil on the Neck, a kind of Wrack or torturing Engine, formerly us'd by the Papiſts, to wreſt a Confeſſion from the Lollards or Proteſtants: It was made of certain Irons, with which a Man's Neck and Legs were wrench'd ſo violently together, that the more he ſtirr'd, the ſtraighter they preſs'd him, and within three or four Hours broke his Back and Body in pieces.

Sea-devil, a ſtrange kind of Monſter on the Coaſts of America, ſo call'd by reaſon of its terrible Looks, and black Horns, like a Ram: It has alſo a bunch on the Head, like a Hedge-hog, Tuſhes like a Boar, and a forked Tail; and the Fleſh is of a poiſonous Quality.

Devils-arſe a Peak, a ſpacious Hole in Derbyſhire, having a great many Corners, like ſo many Apartments.

Devils-bit, an Herb, the Root of which is feign'd to have been bitten by the Devil, out of Envy, by reaſon of its excellent Virtues for the Benefit of Mankind.

Devils Gold-ring; See Gold-ring.

Devils-milk, a kind of Spurge, an Herb.

Deviliſh, belonging to the Devil, wicked, ill, malicious.

Devious (Lat.) going out of the way, ſwerving from.

Deviſe, whatever is deviſed or bequeathed by Will, a Legacy.

To Deviſe, to invent, to imagine or fancy, to feign or forge, to plot or contrive, to frame or faſhion, to deliberate or conſult: In Common-Law to Deviſe or Diviſe, is to give or make over Lands, Tenements, or Goods, &c. by one's laſt Will and Teſtament in Writing.

Deviſee, the Perſon to whom any thing is deviſed or bequeathed by Will.

Deviſor, he that has ſo bequeathed his Lands or Goods to another.

Deunx (Lat.) Eleven Ounces, ſo call'd becauſe it wants an Ounce of a Roman As, or Pound: Alſo Eleven parts of a piece of Ground, or any other entire thing, anciently divided into Twelve Parts: Alſo a Veſſel holding Eleven Cyatha, and anſwering to our Pint and Six Ounces.

Devocatione Parliamenti, a Writ for Recalling a Parliament; as 5 Ed. 3. the Parliament being Summon'd, was Recall'd by ſuch a Writ, before it came to ſit.

Devoir (Fr.) Duty, Parts, the Obligation one has to do or ſay any thing, whether bound by the Law, by Writing, or Civility.

Devoirs of Calais, the Cuſtoms due to the King for Merchandize, brought to or carry'd thence, when our Staple was there.

To Devolve (Lat.) to fall or come from one to another, as an Eſtate does; alſo to lay a Truſt upon one.

Devolutary, one that claims a Benefice fallen into Lapſe, or becoming void.

Devolution, a devolving or falling from one to another.

Devote, or Devoto, a Bigot, or Superſtitious Hypocrite.

To Devote, to Vow or give up by Vow, to ſet a-part for Holy Uſe.

Devotion, Religious Zeal, Godlineſs; alſo vowed Service, Diſpoſal, Command.

To Devour, to Eat or Swallow down Greedily; to Conſume, Spend or Waſte; to Read over-haſtily, or Study eagerly.

Devouring, is alſo a Term us'd by Heralds, when any Fiſhes are Repreſented in a Coat of Arms in a Feeding Poſture, becauſe Fiſh ſwallow all their Meat whole.

Devout, full of Devotion, Godly.

Deuſans, a kind of hard Fruit that laſts long.

Deuteronomy, the Title of the fifth Book of Moſes in the old Teſtament; ſignifying in Greek, the Second Law, or the Repitition of the Law.

Deuteropathia (Gr. in the Art of Phyſick) a Diſeaſe that proceeds from another Diſeaſe; as the Head-ache ſometimes does from the Diſtemper of another Part.

Dew, a Meteor bred of a thin cold Vapour, which for a while Swims to and fro in the Air, and then falls down again to the Earth in round Drops.

Dew of Vitriol, a Name given by ſome Chymiſts to a kind of Phlegm or Water drawn from that Mineral Salt, by Diſtillation in Balneo Mariæ, or with a gentle Heat.

Dew-berry, a kind of Fruit.

Dew-claw (among Hunters) the Bones or little Nails, behind the Foot of a Deer.

Dew-graſs, a ſort of Herb.

Dew-lap, the looſe Skin that hangs down under the Throat of an Ox.

Deuce, the Two at Cards or Dice.

Dextans (Lat.) ten Ounces, among the ancient Romans, or ten Parts of any entire Thing divided into Twelve.

Dexter Aſpect (in Aſtrol. i. e. a beholding towards the Right Hand) an Aſpect contrary to the Natural Order and Succeſſion of the Signs; as Mars in Gemini, and Saturn in the ſame Degree of Aries; where Mars is ſaid To behold Saturn with a Dexter Aſpect.

Dexter Epiploick Vein (in Anat.) is the Second Branch of the Splenica or Spleen-Vein, which paſſes to the Epiploon or Caul and the Gut Colon.

Dexter Point or Side (in Heraldry) is the Right-hand Point or Side in an Eſcutcheon.

Dexterity, Aptneſs, Nimbleneſs, Readineſs, Induſtry, Skill, Addreſs.

Dexterous or Dextrous, handy, skilful, cunning.

Dextrarius, a Word us'd in a Charter, An. 7. Joh. N. 38. for a Light Horſe, or a Horſe for the great Saddle.

Dey, the Title of the Supreme Magiſtrate of Tunis in Barbary.

Dia, a Greek Prepoſition ſignifying through, in or between, and often ſet before the Names of many Medicinal Compoſitions, to which that of the principal Ingredient, is uſually joyn'd by Phyſicians and Apothecaries, as Diaprunum, Diaſcordium, Diaſenna, &c.

Diabetes (Gr.) a Spigot or Fawcet, a Water-paſſage: Alſo a continual paſſage of the Urine, a Diſeaſe when one cannot hold his Water, accompany'd with a violent Thirſt, and Conſumption of the whole Body.

Diabetical, belonging to, or troubled with a Diabetes.

Diabolical, belonging to the Devil, Deviliſh, extremely Wicked.

Diabolus, (Gr.) the Devil ; the Word Originally ſignifies a Malicious Accuſer or Impeacher.

Diabroſis, an eating quite through, a conſuming. In Surgery, a Solution of the continuity of the Parts, by the eating out of ſome of them.

Diacalaminthe, a Powder, the main Ingredient of which is the Herb Mountain-Calamint.

Diacatholicon, a Medicine or Phyſical Compoſition of univerſal Uſe, ſerving as a gentle Purge for all Humours.

Diacatochia (in the Civil-Law) a Tenure or holding of Lands by Fee-farm.

Diachoreſis, the Act or Faculty of voiding Excrements or Ordure.

Diachylon, a Plaiſter made of the Mucilages or pappy Juice of certain Fruits, Seeds and Roots, whoſe Office is to ripen and ſoften.

Diachyton, a kind of Muſt or Sweet-Wine.

Diacenima, a Term us'd in Surgery, when Bones go back from their Places.

Diacodium, a Syrup made of the tops of Poppeys, Liquoriſh-Roots, Marſh-Mallows, &c.

Diacope, a Cutting or dividing aſunder, a deep Wound, eſpecially one made in the Scull by a ſharp Inſtrument.

Diaclyſma, a rinſing, waſhing or ſcouring ; or whatever is us'd for that purpoſe: In a Medicinal Senſe, a gargling or waſhing of the Mouth, to cleanſe it, or to ſtrengthen the Teeth and Gums.

Diacope, a Rhetorical Figure, the ſame as Diaſtole. which ſee.

Diacopragia, a Medicine made of Goats-Dung, and us'd againſt Swellings in the Spleen or in the Kernels behind the Ears, call'd Parotides.

Diacouſticks or Diaphonicks, a Science that explains the Properties of refracted Sound, as it paſſes through different Mediums.

Diacriſis, a ſeparating, ſevering or dividing ; the Faculty of diſcerning, Judgment: In the Art of Phyſick, a judging of and diſtinguiſhing Diſeaſes, with their reſpective Symptoms.

Diacrommyon, a Medicine made with Onions.

Diacydonium, a Confection made of the pulp of Quinces and Sugar, commonly call'd Marmalet ; which being compounded with Spices, becomes an Electuary.

Diadare, a great Officer among the Egyptians, next in Power to the Sultan, or Soveraign Prince.

Diadem, a kind of Linnen-wreath, or Fillet for the Head, anciently worn by Emperours and Kings inſtead of a Crown.

Diadoche, Succeſſion : In the Art of Phyſick, the ſucceeding or progreſs of a Diſeaſe ; to its change call'd Criſis.

Diadochus, a precious Stone like a Beryl.

Diadoſis, a delivering by Hand, Tradition, Diſtribution : In a Medicinal ſenſe, a diſtribution of Nouriſhment, through all the Parts of the Body.

Diæreſis (Gr. i. e. dividing) a Poetical Figure wherein one Syllable is divided into two ; as Evoluiſſe for Evolviſſe. In the Art of Printing, it is likewiſe the diviſion of a Vowel, commonly mark'd with two Tittles or Points ; as an ë. ï. or ü Diæreſis, to ſhew that ſuch a Vowel is ſounded by it ſelf, and not joyn'd with any other, ſo as to make a Diphthongue ; as Aëra, by the Points over the e is diſtinguiſh'd from Æra.

In Surgery Diæreſis, is a Method for dividing and ſeparating thoſe Parts, which by their Union hinder the Cure of Diſeaſes, ſuch is the continuity of the Fleſh or Skin in Impoſtumes, which are to be open'd to let out the Corrupt Matter : In Anatomy, it is a conſuming or eating out of the Veſſels, ſo that by ſome ſharp fretting Matter, certain Paſſages are made which naturally ought not to have been : Or when ſome real ones are widen'd more than Ordinary, ſo that the Humours which ought to be contain'd in the Veſſels run out.

Diæretica, Medicines that Corrode or Eat.

Diæta, Diet, Food, a particular way or manner of Life: Among Phyſicians, a Method in Healthy Perſons of Living Moderately ; in the Sick, a Remedy conſiſting in the right uſe of things neceſſary for Life.

Diætetica, that part of Phyſick which cures Diſeaſes, by a moderate and regular Diet.

Diagalanga, a Confection of Galangal and certain Hot Spices, good againſt the Wind-Colick, and cold Diſtempers of the inward Parts.

Diaglaucion, a kind of Medicine for the Eyes.

Diagnoſis, a diſcerning or knowing one from another, a Judging of : In the Art of Phyſick, a knowledge of the apparent ſigns of a Diſtemper, or a Skill by which its preſent Condition is perceiv'd ; and this is ſaid to be three fold, viz. a right Judgment of the Part affected, of the Diſeaſe it ſelf, or of its Cauſe.

Diagnoſtick, belonging to ſuch Skill, thoroughly knowing or diſcerning.

Diagnoſtick Sign (among Herbaliſts) is ſome particular Sign, whereby one Plant may be known or diſtinguiſh'd from another.

Diagnoſtick Signs of a Diſeaſe, are thoſe Signs or Symptoms which appear at preſent.

Diagonal or Diagonal Line (in Geom.) a Line that is drawn a croſs from Angle to Angle in any Figure, and is by ſome call'd the Diameter. Diagonal; is alſo ſometimes taken for a particular Parallelogram or long Square, having one common Angle and Diagonal Line, with the principal Parallelogram.

Diagonal Scale ; See Scale.

Diagram, a Sentence, a Decree, a ſhort Draught of a Thing: In Geometry, a Scheme or Figure made with Lines or Circles, for the laying down or demonſtrating of any Propoſition: In Muſick, a proportion of Meaſures diſtinguiſhed by certain Notes.

Diagraphical, belonging to the Skill of Painting or Graving.

Diagraphice, The Art of Painting or Carving on Box.

Diagrydium or Diacrydium, The Plant or Root of Scammony , prepar'd by boiling it in a hollowed Quince, which is a very great Purger of Choler, Phlegm and Watery Humours : But ſome prepare it with the Juice of Quince, and others with the Juice of Lemmons or of pale Roſes.

Diahexapla or Diahexapte, a Drink made for Horſes of the Roots of Round Birth-wort, Gentian, Juniper-Berries, Bay-berries, Myrrh and Ivory-ſhavings: This Remedy takes Name from its ſix Ingredients, and is excellent againſt all manner of Poiſon, Cures the Biting of Venomous Beaſts, helps ſhort Wind, Purſineſs, &c.

Dial or Sun-dial, a well known Inſtrument to ſhew the Hour of the Day; which are of ſeveral ſorts; but the moſt Ornament and Uſeful, are drawn on large Braſs-plates fixed on Pedeſtals.

Dial-planes, are plain Surfaces on which the Hour-lines are drawn in any Latitude, and may be diſtinguiſh'd into Parallel, Perpendicular and Oblique, according to their Poſition or Situation, with reſpect to the Horizon of the Place where they are made.

Parallel Planes or Dials, are ſuch as lie level with the Horizon, and on that account are Termed Horizontal Dials.

Perpendicular Planes, are ſuch as ſtand erect to the Horizon, and ſuch are all thoſe that are ſet againſt an upright Wall or Building: Theſe are often call'd Mural Dials or Wall-dials, and are of two ſorts, viz. either direct or declining.

Erect, Direct, South, Weſt, North, or Eaſt Planes, are thoſe Walls or Planes, which face any one of the four Cardinal Points of the Horizon, and the Dials made upon ſuch a Plane are call'd Erect, Direct, South, Weſt, North, Eaſt Dials.

Erect South, or North Planes declining Eaſt or Weſt, are thoſe Planes which lie open to any two of the Cardinal Points, as to the South or North and Eaſt, or to the South or North and Weſt.

Oblique Planes, reclining from the Zenith, or inclining to the Horizon, are alſo of two ſorts, viz. either Direct Reclining, or Declining and Reclining.

Direct South, Weſt, North, or Eaſt Recliners, are thoſe Reclining Planes which lye open to any one of the Cardinal Points of the Horizon.

Reclining South or North Planes, declining Eaſt or Weſt, are thoſe Planes which face any two of the Cardinal Points South or North and Eaſt, or to the South or North and Weſt.

Dialect, a propriety or manner of Speech, Pronounciation, &c. in any Language, peculiar to each ſeveral Province or Country: as in Greece heretofore there were the Attick, Dorick, Ionick and Æolick Dialects.

Dialectica or Dialectice, Dialecticks or the Art of Logick, which teaches the true Method of Arguing and Reaſoning.

Dialectical or Dialectick, belonging to Dialecticks or Logick.

Dialectical Arguments (according to ſome) are ſuch Arguments as are barely probable, but do not convince or determine the Mind to either ſide of the Queſtion.

Dialepſis, a ſpace between, an Interception or Prevention, a Reſolution or Purpoſe; alſo a Debating or Reaſoning: In Surgery, that middle ſpace in Wounds and Ulcers, which is left open for their Cure.

Dialeucon, a kind of Saffron that is white thro' the middle.

Diallage, a Figure in Rhetorick, when many Arguments are brought to one effect.

Diallel Lines (in Geom.) are ſuch as run acroſs and cut one another.

Dialling, the Art of making Dials, or of drawing Hour-lines truly on any given Plane, ſo as thereby to ſhew the Hour of the Day, when the Sun Shines.

Dialling-Globe, an Inſtrument made of Braſs or Wood, with a Plane fitted to the Horizon, and an Index particularly contrived to draw all ſorts of Dials, and to give a clear demonſtration of that Art.

Dialling-Sphere, an Inſtrument made of Braſs with ſeveral Semi-circles, ſliding over one another, on a moveable Horizon, to demonſtrate the Nature of the Doctrine of Spherical Triangles, and to give a true Idea of the drawing Dials on all manner of Planes.

Dialogiſmus (in Rhetor.) a Figure when a Man reaſons and diſcourſes with himſelf, as it were with another; both making the Queſtion, and giving the Anſwer; as Quid igitur faciam? Terent.

Dialogue, a feigned Diſcourſe, wherein ſeveral Perſons are brought in talking together.

Dialyton, a Rhetorical Figure, when ſeveral Words are put together without any Conjunction Copulative. See Aſyndeton.

Diamargariton, a very reſtorative Powder, generally mention'd, and taught how to be made in the Diſpenſatories: It is ſo call'd from the Margarita or Pearl which is the main Ingredient of it, and is of two ſorts Hot and Cold.

Diameter (in Geom. i. e. meaſuring Line) is a Line that paſſes thro' the middle of any Figure from one Angle, or Corner to another; but this ſhould rather be call'd the Diagonal.

Diameter of a Circle, a Line that paſſes thro' the Center of a Circle, and is bounded at each end by the Circumference; dividing the Circle into two equal Parts.

Diameter of a Conick Section, is a Right Line drawn thro' the middle of the Figure, and biſecting or cutting all the Ordinates into two equal Parts; and if it biſect them at Right-Angles, 'tis call'd the Axis of the Section, and often the Axis.

Diameter Conjugate, (in the Ellipſis) is the ſhorteſt Axis or Diameter.

Diameter Conjugate (in the Hyperbola) is a Line drawn parallel to the Ordinates, and thro' the Center or middle Point of the Tranſverſe Axis; ſo that it always is a middle Proportional between the Latus rectum and the Latus Tranſverſum.

Intercepted Diameter. See Abſciſſa.

Diametral or Diametrical, belonging to, or that is in form of a Diameter.

Diametrically oppoſite, that is directly over againſt, when two things are oppoſed one to another right-acroſs, or directly contrary, as one end of a Diameter is to another.

Diamond, the hardeſt, moſt ſparkling, and moſt valuable of all precious Stones: Three things give a Diamond its value, viz. its Luſtre or Water, its Weight or Bigneſs, and its Hardneſs. The great Mogul has one that weighs $269\frac{3}{8}$ Carats, worth Eleven Millions, Seven Hundred Twenty Three Thouſand, Two Hundred and Seventy Eight Pounds fourteen Shillings and Nine Pence.

Among Printers Diamond is the Name of a ſort of ſmall Letter, or Character; and it is alſo one of the Figures mark'd on a pack of Cards. In Heraldry, it is taken for the black Colour in the Coat-Armour of the Nobility; anſwering to Saturn in the Eſcutcheons of Soveraign Princes, and Sable in thoſe of the Gentry.

Diamoſchum, a Medicinal Powder, whoſe chief Ingredient is Muſk.

Diana (Lat.) the Heathen Goddeſs of Hunting.

Diana's Tree, or Philoſophical Tree, a Chymical Operation, whereby a Mixture of Silver, Quick-ſilver and Spirit of Nitre may be Cryſtallized in ſhape of a Tree, with little Balls at the end of its Branches Repreſenting Fruit.

Dianœa (Gr.) a Rhetorical Figure importing a ſerious conſideration of the matter in Hand.

Dianatick Argumentation (in Logick) a particular way of reaſoning, which carries on a Diſcourſe from one thing to another.

Diapaſma, a Pomander or Perfume; a Compoſition of Powders, ſuch as the Ancients made uſe of to dry their Bodies from Sweat, after they came out of the Bath: Alſo a Medicine made up of dry Powders, to be ſprinkled either upon Cloaths to Perfume them, or elſe upon Ulcers or Wounds, &c.

Diapaſon (in Muſick) a Chord including all Tones, which is the ſame with what is commonly call'd an Octave, or Eighth, becauſe there are but Seven Tones Notes, and then the Eighth is the ſame again with the Firſt: It is the moſt perfect Concord, and the Terms of it are as Two to One.

Diapedeſis, a Leaping over: In Anatomy, the breaking of the Blood-veſſels, a ſweating or burſting out of Blood through the Veins, occaſioned by their Thinneſs.

Diapente (in Muſick) the ſecond of the Concords, whoſe Terms are as Three to Two. It is otherwiſe call'd a Perfect Fifth, and makes up an Octavo with the Diateſſaron: Alſo a Phyſical Compoſition made up of five Ingredients, viz. Myrrh, Gentian, Birth-wort, ſhatterings of Ivory and Bay-berries, and uſually given by Farriers to purge Horſes: Alſo a kind of ſtrong Water, made of five ſeveral Simples.

Diaper (Fr.) a kind of Linnen-cloth wrought with Flouriſhes and variety of Figures.

Diaper'd or Diapred (in Heraldry) as A Bordure Diaper'd, i. e. one that is fretted all over; ſome ſuch things as Bordures us'd to be charged with, appearing between the Frets.

Diapering (in a Picture) is when the Piece, after it is quite finiſh'd, is over-run with Branches or other Work.

Diaphaneity (Gr. in Philoſ.) the property of a Diaphanous Body, i. e. ſuch a one as is tranſparent like Glaſs, the Humours of the Eye, the Tunica, Cornea, &c. For the Pores of ſuch a Body are ſo ranged and diſpoſed that the Beams of Light can paſs freely through them every way.

Diaphanous, tranſparent, or that may be ſeen through.

Diaphœnicon, an Electuary to purge Phlegm and Choler, whoſe chief Ingredient is Dates.

Diaphonia (in Muſick) a harſh Sound, a Sound that makes a Diſcord.

Diaphonicks; See Diacouſticks.

Diaphora, Diverſity, Difference, Contention or Strife: Alſo a Rhetorical Figure, when a Word repeated is taken in another Signification than it was at firſt.

Diaphoreſis or Diapnoe (in the Art of Phyſick) a ſending forth all manner of Humours through the Pores of the Body; Sweating.

Diaphoretick, diſcuſſive, that diſſolves or purges by Sweat, &c.

Diaphoreticks, Medicines that are proper for that purpoſe.

Diaphragm (q. d. a Fence or Hedge ſet between) a Term us'd by Anatomiſts, for the Midriff, a large double Muſcle which paſſes a-croſs the Body, and ſeparates the Cheſt, or middle Cavity from the Belly or lower one: It is alſo ſometimes call'd Septum Tranſverſum and Diſſeptum.

Diaphrattontes, certain Membranes or thin Skins, the ſame with the Pleura, which cover the in-ſide of the Cheſt, and leave a kind of Partition in the middle, termed Mediaſtinum.

Diaphthora, a Corruption of any Part of the Body.

Diaplaſis, a forming, framing or faſhioning: In Surgery the ſetting of a Bone that is out of Joynt and reſtoring it to its proper Form.

Diaplaſma, an Ointment or Fomentation.

Diapnoe, the ſame as Diaphoreſis; which See.

Diaporeſis, a doubting or being at a ſtand about a thing. In Rhetorick, a Figure when the Subjects to be handled being of equal Worth, the Oratour ſeems to doubt which he ought to begin with.

Diaprunum, an Electuary made of Damask-Prunes and other Simples, proper to cool the Body in Burning Feavers.

Diapſalma, a Pauſe or change of Note in ſinging.

Diapyema; ſee Empyema.

Diapyeticks, Medicines that cauſe Swellings to ſuppurate or run with Matter, or that ripen and break Sores, &c.

Diaria Febris (Lat.) a Feaver that laſts but one Day; the ſame with Ephemera.

Diarrhœa (Gr.) a gentle Lask or looſeneſs of the Belly, without Inflammation or Ulceration of the Entrails.

Diarthroſis (in Surgery) a kind of looſe joynting of Bones which ſerves for ſenſible Motions, whereby they are apt to move eaſily and ſtrongly; ſuch as in the Arms, Hands, Thighs, Feet, &c.

Diary (Lat.) an Account of what paſſes daily, a Journal or Day-book, an account of every Days Proceeding in Trade.

Diaſatyrion (Gr.) an Electuary, whereof the chief Ingredient is Satyrion, or Rag-wort, us'd by thoſe in whom the generative Faculty is leſs vigorous.

Diaſcordium, an Electuary of great uſe in all peſtilential and infectious Diſeaſes, driving the chief Cauſe thereof from the Heart: It takes name from the Herb Scordium, or Water-Germander, which is the main Ingredient of it.

Diaſenna, a purging Electuary chiefly conſiſting of Senna; good againſt Quartan Agues, and all other Diſeaſes proceeding from Melancholy.

Diaſphendonomena; See Diſphendonomena.

Diaſtole, a diſtinction, a dividing, ſeparating, or pulling aſunder; a widening, or ſtretching out: In Grammar, an Accent which ſhews that thoſe Words or Sentences to which it is joyn'd, are to be ſeparated; and it is thus mark'd (') Alſo a Figure whereby a Syllable that is naturally ſhort, is made long: Alſo a Rhetorical Figure, when between two Words of the ſame kind ſome other Word is put, and ſometimes two; as Dii mea vota, Dii audiere Lyce, Horat. Duc age, Duc ad nos, &c. This Figure is otherwiſe call'd Diacope, and Ruffinianus expreſſes it by the Latin Term Separatio.

In Anatomy Diaſtole ſignifies that motion of the Pulſes, which dilates or widens the Heart and the Arteries, by the Blood flowing in; being contrary to Syſtole, which ſtraightens or draws them together.

Diaſtylos or Diaſtyle (in Architect.) a Sort of Building, wherein the Pillars ſtand at ſuch a diſtance one from another; that the breadth of three of their Diameters is allow'd for Intercolumniation.

Diaſyrmus, a drawing or pulling aſunder; a reproaching, or taunting. In Rhetorick, a Figure, when a Perſon or Thing is commended by way of Deriſion; a handſome and ſmart manner of Jeering.

Diateretica, the Art of preſerving Health.

Diateſſaron (in Muſick) a Chord or Interval, conſiſting of one greater Tone, one leſſer, and one greater Semi-tone: In Muſical Compoſition 'tis call'd a perfect Fourth, and its Terms of Proportion are as Four to Three.

Among Farriers Diateſſaron is taken for Horſe-treacle; being a Medicine for Horſes made of two Ounces of the Powder of Diapente, and the ſame Quantity of clarify'd or live Honey, work'd together with a wooden Peſtle in a hot Stone-mortar, till it come to a Treacle: Alſo an Electuary made of Gentian, Bay-berries and Birth-wort, of each two Ounces, all beaten to a very fine Powder, and work'd in like manner with two Pounds of Honey in a Stone-mortar.

Diatheſis, Diſpoſition, or Conſtitution; alſo a Perſon's Laſt Will and Teſtament: In the Art of Phyſick the Natural or preternatural Diſpoſition of the Body, that inclines us to the performance of all natural Actions.

Diathyrum (in Architect.) a Screen or Fence of Boards, &c. to keep out the Wind, a Rail or Pale before a Door.

Diatoni or Diatoni Lapides, Corner-ſtones, ſuch as in the building of a Wall, reach over the whole breadth, Band-ſtones or Perpend-ſtones.

Diatonick, belonging to plain Song.

Diatonick Muſick, one of the three ancient Methods of Singing, and the moſt natural, in regard that it makes eaſy Intervals, which renders it more plain and familiar than the others; See Chromatick and Enharmonick.

Diatonos Hypaton, the Muſical Note call'd D-ſol-re Diatonos Meſon G-ſol-re-ut.

Diatonum or Diatonicum, a kind of Song which proceeds by different Tones, and Semi-tones, either in aſcending or deſcending, being more Natural and leſs forced than the other ſorts of Muſick; Plain Song.

Diatragacanth, a Compound made of Gum Tragacanth, and other Simples, good againſt the heat of the Breaſt.

Diatriba or Diatribe, an abiding or dwelling in a Place, a Diſputation or continued Diſcourſe; alſo the Place where ſuch Diſputations and Orations were held.

Diatrion Santalon, a Phyſical Compoſition mention'd in the London-Diſpenſatory, which is made of three ſorts of Sanders, the White, Yellow and Red; being effectual againſt the yellow Jaundice and Conſumption of the Lungs.

Diatypoſis, an Information or Inſtruction, a Deſcription: In Rhetorick, a Figure, wherein a thing is ſo lively deſcrib'd, that it ſeems to be ſet as it were, before our Eyes; as in the Deſcription of Achilles's Shield in Homer, of Hercules in Heſiod, and of Æneas in Virgil.

Diaulon, a kind of Race amongſt the Ancients, two Furlongs in length, at the end of which they return'd back along the ſame Courſe.

Diazoma, a Girdle or Waſte-belt; alſo a broad Foot-ſtep on the Stairs of an Amphitheater: In Anatomy the ſame with the Diaphragm or Midriff.

Dibapha, Purple twice died.

Dibble, a ſetting Tool, a forked Stick with which Herbs are ſet in a Garden, eſpecially Beans; alſo a kind of Bruſh for a Hat.

Dica (Gr. among the Ancients) a Proceſs, Cauſe or Action at Law. In our old Records, a Tally for Accounts, by Number of Marks, Cuts or Notches.

Dicacity (Lat.) Talkativeneſs, Drollery, Buffoonry.

Dicæologia (Gr.) a maintaining or pleading of one's Cauſe: Alſo a Rhetorical Figure, whereby the Juſtice of a Cauſe is ſet forth in as few Words as may be.

Dichalca, an ancient Coin, the fourth part of an Obolus.

Dichophya, a fault in the Hair when it parts and diſ-joyns too much.

Dichoreus, a Foot in Greek or Latin Verſe, conſiſting of four Syllables, of which the firſt is long, the next ſhort, the third long, and the laſt ſhort; it being compounded of two Choreus's; as comprobare.

Dichotomia, a cutting into two Pieces; a dividing a Speech or Diſcourſe into two Parts.

Dicker of Leather, is ten Hides or Skins, and twenty Dickers make a Laſt: Of Gloves, ten Pair: Of Neck-laces ten Bundles, each Bundle containing ten Neck-laces.

Dicra ferri (Lat. in Doomſday-book) a certain quantity of Iron, which probably might conſiſt of ten Bars.

Dicrotum (Gr.) a Galley that has two Oars in a Seat or Bank, a Galley-foiſt.

Dicrotus, a Pulſe that beats twice.

Dictamen (Lat.) a thing written by another's Inſtruction, a Preſcript or Rule: But it is more eſpecially taken for a Leſſon or ſhort Diſcourſe, which a School-Maſter dictates or pronounces to his Scholars.

Dictamnum or Dictamnus, Dittander or Dittany, an Herb of ſingular Virtue for driving out Poiſon, and haſtening Womens Delivery.

Dictates, Precepts, Commands, Rules, or Inſtructions; as The Dictates of Reaſon, Conſcience, &c.

To Dictate, or rehearſe, to tell one Word by Word, what he is to write, to indite, to teach or ſhew, to inſpire with.

Dictator (among the old Romans) a Soveraign Commander; who had abſolute Authority for the time being, both in War and Peace, with Power of Life and Death: This Magiſtrate was never choſen, but upon ſome great Occaſion, and his Command was to laſt but half a Year; although the Senate might continue it.

Dictature or Dictatorſhip, the Office and Dignity of a Dictator.

Dictionary, a Collection of all the Words of a Language, or of the Terms of Art in any Science, explained and digeſted in Alphabetical Order.

Dictum (Lat.) a Word, a Saying, a Proverb; an Order or Command.

Dictum de Kenelworth, an Edict or Ordinance, containing an Agreement between King Henry III. and his Barons; about the Eſtates forfeited in that Rebellion, and ſo call'd, becauſe it was made at Kenelworth-Caſtle in Warwick-ſhire.

Didactical or Didactick (Gr.) that ſerves to teach or explain the Nature of Things; doctrinal, inſtructive.

Didapper, a Bird otherwiſe call'd a Dab-chick or Diver.

To Didder, to ſhiver or ſhake with cold.

Didrachmum (Gr.) an ancient Coin containing two Drachma's, to the Value of Fifteen Pence of our Money.

Didymi, Twins; alſo the Teſticles of a Man.

Die (in Architect.) the middle of a Pedeſtal, viz. that part which lies between the Baſis, and the Cornice; ſo termed from its ſhape, reſembling that of a Die us'd in Play. It is alſo call'd Dado by the Italians.

Diem Clauſit extremum, a Writ that lies for the Heir of him that holds Land of the Queen, either by Knights-ſervice, or Soccage, and dies under or at full Age: This Writ is directed to the Eſcheator of the County, to enquire of what Eſtate he was poſſeſs'd, who is the next Heir, and of what value the Land is.

Diers-Weed, a ſort of Herb. See Dyers-weed.

Dies (Lat.) a Day. The ancient Romans made ſeveral diſtinctions of Days, viz.

Dies Comitiales, Days of the Meeting of the People mark'd in their Calendar or Almanack, with the Letter C.

Dies Comperendini, Days of Adjournment, Twenty in Number, which were granted by the Prætor or Judge to the Parties, after a hearing on both ſides, either to inform more fully, or to clear themſelves.

Dies Faſti, Pleading-Days, during which the Prætor was allow'd to adminiſter Juſtice.

Dies Feſti, Holy-days, upon which the People were employ'd in Offering Sacrifices, or following their Diverſions.

Dies Interciſi or Entercociſi; So call'd becauſe one part of them was ſpent in performing Sacred Rites, and the other in the diſtribution of Juſtice; being marked in the Calendar with theſe two Letters E. N.

Dies Juſti, thirty Days that the Romans uſually granted to their Enemies, after the proclaiming of War againſt them, and before they enter'd their Territories, or proceeded to any Act of Hoſtility.

Dies Luſtrici. See Luſtrici Dies.

Dies Nefaſti, certain unlucky Days, wherein no Law-matters were heard, nor any Aſſemblies of the People call'd.

Dies Præliares, Days during which it was permitted to engage the Enemy.

Dies non præliares aut atri, fatal and unlucky days, upon which the Romans forbore Fighting any Battel, by reaſon of ſome Loſs they had ſuffer'd in thoſe days.

Dies Senatorii, Days that the Senate or Chief Council met about the Affairs of the Commonwealth.

Dies Stati, the laſt Days of Adjournment in Law-ſuits.

In Doomſday-Record Dies is us'd for the Charge of one Days Reception or Entertainment of the King.

Dies Critici. See Critical Days.

Dies datus (in Common-Law) a Reſpite given by the Court to the Tenant or Defendant.

Dies Juridici or Legal Days, are all Days in Bank, Continuance, Eſſoin-days and others, given during the Term, to the Parties in Court.

Dies non Juridici, Days on which no Pleas are held in any Court of Juſtice, viz. all Sandays in the Year, beſides certain particular Days in the ſeveral Terms; as in Eaſter-Term, the Feſtival of our Lord's Aſcenſion; in Trinity Term, that of St. John Baptiſt; in Michaelmas-Term, thoſe of All-Saints and All-Souls; and in Hilary-Term, that of the Purification of the Bleſſed Virgin Mary.

Dies Marchiæ, the Day of Congreſs or Meeting between the Engliſh and Scotch, formerly appointed to be held every Year, on the Marches, or Borders, to adjuſt all Differences, and preſerve the Articles of Peace.

Dies Vacui. See Vacui Dies.

Dieſis (Gr. in Muſick) is the Diviſion of a Tone below a Semi-tone, or an Interval made up of a leſſer or Imperfect Semi-tone: So that when Semi-tones are plac'd where there ought to be Tones; or when a Tone is ſet, where there ſhould be only a Semi-tone, this is call'd Dieſis. Among Printers it is taken for a Mark, otherwiſe call'd a Double Dagger, ‡.

Enharmonical Dieſis, is the Difference between the greater and the leſſer Semi-tone. Theſe Dieſes are the leaſt ſenſible Diviſions of a Tone, and are mark'd on the Score, in form of St. Andrew's Croſs.

Diet, Food, Nouriſhment, a particular way of Living: Alſo a general Meeting of the Eſtates in Germany, Poland, &c.

To Diet one, to give him his Diet or Food: In a Medicial ſenſe, to keep one to a ſtrict and regular Diet.

Dieta, a Word us'd in ſome old Latin Law-Records, for a Days Work and Dieta rationabilis, for a reaſonable Days Journey.

Dietetical, belonging to a limited and moderate Diet, ſuch as is preſcrib'd, for the Preſervation or Recovery of Health.

Dieu et mon Droit; (Fr.) the general Motto of the Arms of the Kings or Queens Regent of England, ſignifying, God and my Right.

Dieu ſon Act (i. e. the Act of God) a particular Law-Phraſe, it being a Maxim, That the Act of God ſhall prejudice no Man: So that if a Houſe be beat down by a Tempeſt, the Leſſee ſhall not only be free from the force of an Action of waſte, but alſo has a Right to take Timber to rebuild the Houſe.

Diezeugmenon (Gr.) a Rhetorical Figure, in which ſeveral Clauſes of a Sentence have relation to one Verb, as Quorum ordo humilis, fortuna ſordida, natura turpis à ratione abhorret: It is otherwiſe call'd, Epizeugmenon, and in Latin by Aquila Romanus, Disjunctum.

Diezeugmenon nete (in Muſick) the Note call'd E-la-mi. Diezeugmenon paranete D-la-ſol-re.

Diffamation. See Defamation.

Diffarreatio (Lat.) a Solemnity anciently us'd among the Romans, at the Divorcement of a Man from his Wife; being the contrary of Confarreatio.

To Differ, to vary, to be unlike, to diſagree or fall out.

Difference, a Differing, Variety, Diverſity, Diſtinction; alſo a Controverſy, Diſpute, or Quarrel.

Difference (in Logick) ſignifies an Eſſential Attribute, belonging to any Species, that is not found in the Genus, and is the Univerſal Idea of that Species. Thus Body and Spirit or Soul, are two Species of Subſtance, which contain in their Ideas ſomething more than is in that of Subſtance: For in a Body we find Impenetrability and Extenſion, in a Spirit the power of thinking and reaſoning; ſo that the difference of a Body is impenetrable Extenſion, and the difference of a Spirit is Cogitation or Thought.

In Mathematicks Difference is the Remainder when one Number or Quantity is ſubtracted from another.

Difference of Aſcenſion, a Term in Aſtronomy. See Aſcenſional Difference.

Difference of Longitudes (of two Places on the Earth) is an Arch of the Equator comprehended between the Meridians of thoſe Places.

Differences (in a Coat of Arms) are certain Additions, which ſerve to diſtinguiſh one Family from another, or Perſons of the ſame Family from each other: Theſe ſome take to be either Ancient or Modern; the former being the Bordures of all kinds, but the modern ones are the Creſcent, File or Labe, Mullet, Martlet, &c.

To Difference, to make a difference between, to diſtinguiſh.

Different, that differs, unlike, various, divers.

Difficult, uneaſy, troubleſome, crabbed, hard to be pleas'd, or to be underſtood.

Difficulty, Uneaſineſs, Hardneſs, Trouble; a Rub, Croſs or Hindrance; a difficult Caſe, Point or Queſtion.

Diffidence, Diſtruſt, Miſtruſt, Suſpicion, Jealouſy; Miſgiving, Doubting.

Diffident, diſtruſtful, ſuſpicious, jealous, fearful:

Difflation, a blowing or puffing away: Alſo a Term us'd by ſome Chymiſts, when Spirits raiſed by heat, are blown with a kind of Bellows, into the oppoſite Camera or Arch of the Furnace, and there found congealed.

Diffluence, a Looſeneſs, a flowing to and fro.

Difform, a Word us'd in oppoſition to Uniform, and ſignifing, That there is no manner of Regularity in the formor appearance of a thing: It is more eſpecially apply'd by Herbaliſts, to diſtinguiſh the Flowers of ſome Plants. See Uniform Flowers.

To Diffuſe, to ſpread here and there.

Diffuſion, a ſcattering or ſhedding abroad: In Philoſophy it is uſually taken to expreſs the diſperſing of the ſubtil Effluvia, of Bodies into a kind of Atmoſphere quite round about them: Thus the Light is diffuſed by the Rays of the Sun iſſuing all a-round from that wonderful Body of Fire; and thus the Magnetical Particles are diffuſed every where round about our Earth in Parts adjacent to it.

Diffuſive, that ſpreads it ſelf far, or is of a great Extent; as A diffuſive Charity.

To Dig, to break or open the Ground with a Spade, Mattock, &c.

To Dig a Badger (in the Hunters Language) is to raiſe or diſlodge him.

Digamma (Fr.) the Letter F ſo call'd by Grammarians, becauſe it ſeems to reſemble the double Gamma thus marked in Greek (Γ)

Digaſtricus or Biventer (in Anat.) a Muſcle ſo Nam'd from its double Belly, which ariſes from the Proceſs call'd Mammiformis or Maſtoides, and is inſerted at the inferiour part of the lower Jaw, which it draws downward.

Digerentia (Lat.) Digeſtives, Medicines that digeſt or ripen.

Digeſt or Digeſts, the firſt Volume or Tome of the Civil-Law, ſo nam'd becauſe the Compiler has digeſted or put all things with every Book and Title in its proper natural Place and Order. It is alſo call'd Pandects from the Greek Words Pan, all and dechomai, to receive; as containing all that the Emperour Juſtinian caus'd to be collected or drawn out of 150000 Verſes of the old Books of the Law: This Volume of the Digeſts is divided into Seven Parts, and they again into Fifty Books.

To Digeſt, to diſſolve in the Stomach, to diſpoſe or ſet in Order; to examine., ſcan, or ſift a Buſineſs; to bear or ſuffer, to brook or put up an Affront: In Phyſick and Surgery, to bring to Maturity or Ripen; to cleanſe a Sore: In Chymiſtry to ſet a ſoaking or infuſing over a gentle Fire.

Digeſter, a Veſſel ſo call'd by its Inventor Mr. Papin, which is a kind of cloſe Balneum Mariæ, and ſerves for diſſolving Bones into a Jelly, &c..

Digeſtible, that may be digeſted.

Digeſtion, the digeſting or diſſolving of Meats by the Heat of the Stomach, ſo as to change them into the Juice call'd Chyle.

Chymical Digeſtion, is when a mixt Body is ſet to infuſe or Steep in ſome proper Menſtruum, or Liquor fit to diſſolve it, over a very gentle Fire; ſo that it may, as near as is poſſible, have the ſame effect as a Natural Heat.

Digeſtive, that helps the Digeſtion.

A Digeſtive, a Digeſtive Medicine; of which there are two ſorts, viz. Internal or External: The former are uſually preſcrib'd to prepare the Body by Purgation, which they do by making the Humours fluid, thinning or drawing clammy or tough Subſtances, tempering ſuch as are ſharp, &c.

External Digeſtives, are ſuch as ripen a Swelling, or breed good and laudable Matter in a Wound, and prepare it for Mundification or cleanſing.

To Dight (old Word) to deck or ſet off.

Digit, the quantity of an Inch in Meaſure: In Aſtronomy, a twelfth part of the Diameter of the Sun or Moon, a Meaſure which is us'd to expreſs the quantity of an Eclipſe. In Arithmitick a Character that denotes a Figure: As V is put for 5, X for 10, L for 50, &c.

Digits or Monades, alſo ſignifie any Integer or whole Number under Ten; as 1,2,3,4,5,6,7,8,9. &c.

Digitalis, (Lat.) Finger-herb, Bell-flower or Fox-glove, very good in the Falling-ſickneſs and King's Evil: Alſo the greater Sengreen or Mouſe-tail.

Digitatum Folium (among Herbaliſts) the Leaf of a Plant which either is made up of many Simple Leaves ſet together in one Foot-ſtalk, as in Cinque-foil, Vetches, &c. Or elſe when there are many deep Gaſhes or Cuts in the Leaf; as in thoſe of Strawberries, Hops, &c.

Digitorum Tenſor. See Extenſor Digitorum Communis.

Digitus, a Finger or Toe, a Digit, a Finger's Breadth or Length.

Digladiation, a Sword-playing, Fencing, Fighting or Scuffling.

Digne, worthy, genteel, neat; a Word us'd by Chaucer.

To Dignify, to advance to a Dignity, eſpecially in the Church.

Dignitary, one that is promoted to any Preferment in the Church; as a Dean, Arch-Deacon, Prebendary, &c.

Dignity, Merit, Worth, Importance; Nobleneſs, Greatneſs, high Station, degree of Honour, Quality.

Eccleſiaſtical Dignity, a Term us'd in ſeveral Statutes, and defin'd by the Canoniſts to be an Adminiſtration joyn'd with ſome Juriſdiction and Power.

In Aſtrology, Dignities are the Advantages a Planet has upon account of its being in a particular place of the Zodiack, or in ſuch a Station with other Planets, &c. by which means its Influences and Virtue are encreas'd.

Dignities Eſſential. See Eſſential Dignities.

To Digreſs, to go from the Subject in Hand.

Digreſſion, a digreſſing, that part of a Diſcourſe or Treatiſe, which does not relate to its main ſcope or principal Deſign.

Diiambus (Gr.) a Foot in Greek or Latin Verſe, that conſiſts of four Syllables, and is compounded of two Iambicks, ſo that the firſt and third are ſhort, the ſecond and laſt long; as Amœnitas.

To Dijudicate, to judge between two Parties, to diſcern or diſtinguiſh.

Dijudication, the Act of dijudicating or judging.

Dike, a Ditch or Furrow; a Cauſey.

Dike-Grave, an Officer in the Low-Countries, that has the Over-ſight of the Dikes and Banks, and ſecures the Coaſts from the Over-flowing of the Sea.

Dike-Reeve, an Officer of the ſame Quality, whoſe Buſineſs is to take care of the Dikes and Drams, in Deeping-Fenns in Lincoln-ſhire and elſewhere.

† Dilaceration, (Lat.) a rending or tearing aſunder.

Dilapidation (properly a ſcattering of Stones) a conſuming, riotous ſpending, or ſquandering away: In Common-Law, a waſteful deſtroying, or letting of a Building run to ruine and decay, for want of Reparation; as a Parſon guilty of Dilapidation.

Dilatable, that may be dilated or widen'd.

Dilatation, a dilating, widening or inlarging. In a Philoſophical ſenſe, it ſignifies a Thing's taking up more Space than it did before. Among Anatomiſts, it is when any Paſſages or Veſſels in the Body are diſtended or ſtretched out too much; as Veins that ſwell with Melancholy corrupt Blood, in the Temples, Legs, &c.

Dilatatores Alarum Naſi, are ſmall thin Muſcles that have a double rank of Fibres croſſing each other, not unlike the Intercoſtal Muſcles: They pull up the Alæ or ſides of the Noſe, and Dilate or widen the Noſtrils.

Dilatatory or Dilater, a Surgeon's dilating Inſtrument, hollow on the in-ſide, to draw barbed Iron, &c. out of a Wound: Alſo an Inſtrument with which the Mouth of the Womb may be dilated.

To Dilate, to widen or grow wide, to ſtretch; to rarify or grow thin as the Air does, to inlarge upon a Subject.

Dilatory, making delays, full of Shifts and Put-offs, tedious.

Dilemma (Gr. in Logick) an Argument that catches and convinces both ways, otherwiſe call'd Argumentum Cornutum, or a Horned Syllogiſm; wherein both Propoſitions are ſo well fram'd, that neither can well be deny'd: Such a one may be brought againſt a Perſon, who ſpeaks ill of another, and yet keeps him Company, If he be a good Man, why d'ye beſpatter him? if naught, why do you converſe with him?

Diligence (Lat.) great Care, Carefulneſs.

Diligent, careful, watchful, laborious, pains-taking.

Dill, an Herb ſomewhat like Fennel.

Dilligrout, a kind of Potage formerly made for the King's Table, on the Coronation-Day.

Dilling, a Child born when the Parents are Old; a Darling or beloved Child.

Dilogia (Gr.) a Figure in Rhetorick, when a doubtful Word ſignifies two things.

Dilucidation (Lat.) a making clear, or plain; an Explanation of a Matter.

Diluentia (Lat. among Phyſicians) ſuch Medicines or Drugs as ſerve to dilute or thin the Blood.

To Dilute, to temper or allay, to mingle with Water: It is alſo much us'd by the Writers of Chymiſtry and Pharmacy, and in that ſenſe ſignifies to diſſolve the Parts of a dry Body in a moiſt or liquid one; for when the Body is ſo diſſolv'd, they ſay 'tis diluted.

Dilution, the Act of diluting, tempering, diſſolving, &c. a cleanſing, purging, or waſhing.

Dilutum (Lat.) an Infuſion. Dilutum Vinaceorum, Wine of a ſecond preſſing made of the Husks.

Dimachæ (Gr. among the Ancients) a ſort of Dragoons that maintain'd a double Fight, on Horſeback and on Foot.

Dimenſion (Lat.) the juſt meaſure or proportion of any Thing. In Geometry, Length, Breadth and Thickneſs or Depth, are Termed the three Dimenſions: Thus a Line is ſaid to have one Dimenſion, viz. Length, a Surface two, viz. Length and Breadth; and a Solid or Body has all three Dimenſions. In Algebra, it is apply'd to the Powers of any Root in an Equation, which are call'd the Dimenſions of that Root; as in a Biquadratick Equation, the higheſt Power has four Dimenſions, or its Index is 4.

Dimetæ, the ancient Name of the People Inhabiting that part of Wales, which comprehends the Counties now call'd Caermarthen-ſhire, Pembroke-ſhire and Cardigan-ſhire.

Dimeter Iambick. See Iambick.

Dimetient, the ſame with Diameter.

† Dimication, a Skirmiſhing or Fighting.

Dimidietas (in old Latin Record's) the Moiety, or one half a thing.

To Diminiſh, to leſſen, to impair, to abate, to grow leſs; to decreaſe or decay, to fall or ſink.

Diminutio. See Litotes.

Diminution, a diminiſhing or leſſening; Abatement, Decreaſe. In Architecture, the leſſening of a Pillar by little and little from the Baſe to the Top: In Heraldry, a defacing or blemiſhing of ſome particular Point of the Eſcutcheon, by the laying on of ſome Stain or Colour. In Muſick the diminiſhing or abating ſomewhat of the full Value or Quantity of any Note.

Diminutive, that diminiſhes or makes leſs.

A Diminutive (in Grammar) a Word that diminiſhes the force of the Original, whence it is deriv'd, as from Tabula a Table, comes Tabella a Tablet or little Table.

Dimiſſory, that is ſent; as Dimiſſory Letters: When one that ſtands for Holy Orders, has a Title in one Dioceſs, and is to be ordain'd in another; the proper Dioceſan grants his Letters Dimiſſory, directed to another Biſhop, and importing that the Bearer may be ordain'd to ſuch a Cure within his Juriſdiction.

Dimitty, a fine ſort of Fuſtian.

Dimple, a little dent or pit in the Cheeks, or in the bottom of the Chin.

Dinah (Heb. Judgment) Jacob's Daughter Raviſh'd by Hamor a Prince of the Hivites.

To Ding, to throw or daſh againſt, to bruiſe or batter.

† Dingle, a Narrow Valley between to ſteep Hills.

Dinica (Gr.) Medicines againſt Dizzineſs.

Dinus, a Whirl-wind, a Whirling round or turning about: Alſo a giddineſs or ſwimming of the Head, a Diſeaſe otherwiſe call'd Vertigo.

Dint, an Impreſſion or Mark, the force or bent of a Diſcourſe.

Diobolon (Gr.) a Scruple, the third part of a Dram.

Dioceſan, a Biſhop to whom the Care of a Dioceſs is Committed; or an Inhabitant within the Bounds of a Dioceſs.

Dioceſan Synod. See Synod.

Dioceſs, the Circuit, extent or bounds of a Biſhop's Spiritual Juriſdiction: Of theſe Dioceſſes there are 22 in England, and 4 in Wales.

Diogenes, a famous Philoſopher, who liv'd in a Tub, and for his Churliſh Diſpoſition was call'd the Cynick.

Dionyſia, the Feaſts of Bacchus, otherwiſe Termed Bacchanalia and Orgia; a Merry time like our Carnaval or Shrove-tide.

Dionyſias, a precious Stone, having red Spots, and ſuppos'd to be efficacious for the preventing of Drunkenneſs.

Dionyſionymphas, a certain Herb, which being bruis'd in Water, ſmells of Wine, yet reſiſts Drunkenneſs.

Dionyſius, a Sirname given to Bacchus the Fabulous God of Wine, from Dios, i. e. Jupiter his Father, and Niſa a Town of Aſia, where he was Nurs'd by the Nymphs: Alſo the Name of two Tyrants of Sicily, and of ſeveral other Eminent Men.

Diopter, the Index or Ruler of an Aſtrolabe or ſuch like Inſtrument.

Dioptra (Gr.) a Quadrant to take the diſtance and height of a Place, by looking thro' little Holes therein; the Sight-hole of any Mathematical Inſtrument, a Proſpective-Glaſs: Alſo a Surgeon's Inſtrument, otherwiſe call'd Speculum Matricis and Dilatatorium, with which the inſide of a Womb may be inlarged, for the taking out of a dead Child, or the viewing any Ulcers that are in it.

Dioptricks, a part of Opticks, which treats of the different Refractions of the Light, paſſing thro' tranſparent Mediums; as the Air, Water, Glaſſes, &c.

Diorthoſis, (Gr.) a correcting or amending: In Surgery, an Operation, whereby crooked or diſtorted Members are made even, and reſtor'd to their Original and Regular Shape.

Dioſpyros, the Herb Stone-crop.

Diota, a kind of Veſſel or Jar for Wine, with two Handles; a Drinking-pot with two Ears, a College-cup; Alſo a Chymical double Veſſel us'd in diſtilling by Circulation.

Diphryge, the droſs of Braſs or other Metals that ſticks to the bottom of the Furnace like the Aſhes of burnt Wood: It is of a very drying Quality, and cures foul Ulcers.

Diphthong (in Grammar) two Vowels ſounded together, a Sound made up of two Vowels in one and the ſame Syllable; as æ, ai, œ, oi, &c.

Diplaſiaſmus, (Gr.) a doubling: Among the Writers in Phyſick, a redoubling of Diſeaſes: In Anatomy, a pair of Muſcles in the Arm, which ſerve to turn it about.

Diple, a Mark in the Margin of a Book, to ſhew where a Fault is to be corrected.

Diploe, a being double; Craft, Subtilty. In Anatomy, the lower thin Plate or Shell of the Scull: Alſo a Cluſter of ſmall Veſſels that nouriſh the Scull-bones, and make the diſtinction of the firſt and ſecond Tablature: Alſo a kind of double Veſſel us'd in Chymical Operations.

Diploma, a Royal Charter, or a Prince's Letters Patent: Alſo the Licence of a Phyſician or Surgeon to practice their Art, or of a Divine to exerciſe the Miniſterial Functions: In Anatomy, the ſame as Diploe, or the Scull-plate; and it is ſometimes taken by Surgeons for a folded Cloath.

Dipondium or Dipondius (Lat.) a Weight of two Pounds; alſo a piece of Money; Penny Half-penny.

Dipping-Needle, a Device that ſhews a particular Property of the Magnetick Needle, that beſides its Polarity or Verticity, which is its direction towards the North, in an Horizontal Poſition; it has alſo a direction of Altitude or Height above the Horizon; ſo that when duely poiſed about an Horizontal Axis, it will always point to a determinate degree of Altitude or Elevation above the Horizon, in this or that Place reſpectively.

Dipſacum or Dipſacus (Gr.) Teazel or Fullers-thiſtle, an Herb, the Roots of which boil'd in Wine, Cures Ulcers of the Fundament call'd Rhagades, Warts, &c. Alſo a Diſtemper when one cannot hold his Water, which is ſo call'd from the great Thirſt that attends it, and is the ſame with Diabetes.

Dipſas, a kind of Viper or Adder, whoſe biting cauſes a moſt unquenchable Thirſt; the burning or fiery Serpent.

Dipteron (in Architect.) a Building that has a double Wing or Iſle. The Ancients gave that Name to ſuch Temples as were ſurrounded with two ranges of Pillars, making two Porticoes or Porches, which they call'd Wings; but we commonly call them Iſles, from the the French word Ailes of the ſame ſignification.

Diptoton (in Grammar) a Noun that has but two Caſes; as Suppetiæ, Suppetias.

Diptychs, folded Tables, a pair of Writing Tables: Alſo a kind of Church-Regiſter, out of which the Names of Famous Men were formerly rehears'd at the Altar; thoſe of the Living being written on one ſide, and thoſe of the Dead on the other.

Diradiation (Latin in Philoſ.) a ſpreading abroad of Beams of Light; alſo a plaſhing or ſetting of Vines in form of Sun-beams.

Diræ, the Furies of Hell, whom the Poets repreſent with fiery Eyes, a fierce Countenance, and their Heads dreſs'd with Serpents; holding Iron-chains in their Hands, and Scourges with burning Torches, to puniſh the Guilty.

Dire or Direful, curſed, damnable, fierce, cruel, hideous, deadly.

Direct, ſtraight, right. In Aſtronomy and Aſtrology, a Planet is ſaid to be direct, when by its proper Motion, it goes forward in the Zodiack, according to the Succeſſion of the Signs; as from Ten Degrees of Taurus to Twenty, and thence into Gemini.

Direct, Erect, Eaſt or Weſt Dials, are thoſe whoſe Planes lie directly open to the Eaſt or Weſt Points of the Heavens, or parallel to the Meridian of the Place.

Direct, Erect, South or North Dials. See Erect Verticals.

Direct Erect Planes. See Dial-Planes.

Direct Inclining or Reclining Planes. See Dial-Planes.

Direct, South or North Inclining or Reclining Dials, are thoſe whoſe Planes incline to the Horizon, or recline from the Zenith, and lie directly open to the South or North.

Direct Ray (in Opticks) is the Ray which is carry'd from a Point of the Viſible Object directly to the Eye, through one and the ſame Medium.

Direct Sphere, the ſame as Right Sphere. See Sphere.

Direct Viſion. See Viſion.

To Direct, to rule, guide, govern or manage; to level or aim, to bend, to turn, to ſteer, to ſhew or give Inſtructions.

Direction, a directing or over-ſeeing; Management, Inſtruction or Order; Aim or Mark. In Aſtrology, it is a real Motion perform'd by that of the Sphere call'd Primum Mobile, whereby the Sun, Moon, or any Star, or part of Heaven, which was a Man's Significator at his Birth, or is ſaid to effect any thing concerning him, is carry'd to another Star or part of Heaven, ſignifying likewiſe ſomething referring thereto, and as it were expecting the ſame to compleat an Effect.

Line of Direction (in Mechan.) is the Line of Motion that any Natural Body obſerves according to the Force impreſſed upon it; and which is directed or determin'd to move ſuch a way.

Number of Direction (in Chronol.) is a Number conſiſting of Thirty five, which contains the Term of years, between the higheſt and loweſt falling of any of the moveable Feaſts.

Direction-word (in the Art of Printing) a Word ſet at the bottom of a Page directing or ſhewing the firſt word of the next Page.

Director, a Guider, Overſeer, or Manager.

Directory, that ſerves to direct or guide.

The Directory, a Form of Publick Prayer, &c. ſet forth by the Aſſembly of Divines, and brought in Uſe by the Long Parliament; inſtead of the Common-Prayer Book of the Church of England; but it only continu'd in force about two years, and was voted down, Novemb. 26. 1644.

Direption, a robbing, ſpoiling or ranſacking; a pillaging or plundering.

Dirge, certain Prayers or Service for the Dead, us'd by Roman Catholicks: Alſo a mournful Ditty or Song of Lamentation ſung at a Funeral, from the Teutonick Word Dyrke, to commend or praiſe.

Diribitor (among the Romans) a Pay-maſter or Diſtributer of Money, whoſe Buſineſs it was to pay the Soldiers, at their Muſter: Alſo an Officer in the Publick Elections, who marſhall'd the Tribes into their Claſſes or Orders, and diſtributed the Tables among them, when they gave their Votes: Alſo a Judge or Umpire for the determining of Cauſes.

Diribitorium, a Place where Soldiers were Muſter'd and receiv'd their Pay; or the Place where the Diribitores attended when the People met to chuſe Magiſtrates: Alſo a Place where the Grooms and Pages were kept a-part from the reſt of the Family.

Dirigent (in Geom.) the Line of Motion along which, the Deſcribent Line or Surface is carry'd in the Geneſis or Production of any plain or ſolid Figure.

Diſability, a being unable, incapable or unfit: In a Law-ſenſe, when a Man is ſo diſabled, as to be made incapable to Inherit, or to enjoy a Benefit, which otherwiſe he might have done; and this may happen four ſeveral ways, viz.

1. Diſability by the Act of the Anceſtor, as if a Man be attainted of Treaſon or Felony, by ſuch Attainder his Blood is corrupt, and thereby himſelf and his Children diſabled to inherit.

2. Diſability by the Act of the Party himſelf, as if one Man make a Feoffment to another, that then is ſeiz'd upon condition that he ſhall enfeoff a third before Marriage, and before Marriage or the Feoffment made, the Feoffee takes a Wife; he has by that Act diſabled himſelf to perform the Condition, and therefore the Feoffer may enter and out him.

3. Diſability by Act of Law, is properly, when a Man by the ſole Act of the Law is diſabled, and ſo is an Alien: Therefore if a Man born out of the Queen's Dominions will ſue an Action, the Tenant or Defendant may ſay, That he was born in ſuch a Country, out of the Queen's Ligeance, and demand Judgment if he ſhall be anſwer'd; for the Law is our Birth-right, to which an Alien is a Stranger, and upon that account diſabled to take any Benefit thereby.

4. Diſability by the Act of God, as to be non compos mentis, or non ſanæ Memoriæ, i. e. not in his Wits, or not of a ſound or diſpoſing Memory; which ſo diſables a Man, that in all Caſes where he gives or paſſes any Thing or Eſtate out of him, after his Death, it may be diſannulled and made void.

To Diſable, to make unable or uncapable of, to render unfit for Service.

To Diſabuſe, to undeceive.

Diſadvantage (Fr.) Prejudice, Loſs, Dammage, Hinderance.

Diſadvantageous, that tends to Diſadvantage, prejudicial, inconvenient.

Diſaffected (Lat.) bearing no good Will to, diſſatisfied with.

Diſafforeſted. See Deafforeſted.

To Diſagree, (Fr.) not to agree, to fall out, to be at Variance or Strife.

Diſagreeable, that does not pleaſe, or is offenſive; unſuitable, unpleaſant.

To Diſallow, not to allow or countenance, to diſlike.

To Diſalt, an old Law-word, for to diſable.

To Diſannul (Lat.) to annul abſolutely, to repeal; to aboliſh or make void.

To Diſappear, to appear no longer, to vaniſh away, to go out of ſight.

To Diſappoint, to deceive, to fail or break one's Word, to overthrow or ſpoil a Deſign.

Diſappointment, a diſappointing or failing; a croſs Accident, Trouble or Miſchance.

To Diſapprove, not to approve, to diſlike; to condemn, to blame, or find fault with.

To Diſarm, to take away one's Arms or Warlike Stores; as To Diſarm a Soldier, a Ship, &c. Among Hunters, Deer are ſaid To be Diſarmed when their Horns are fallen.

† Diſarrayed (Fr.) put into Confuſion, or Diſorder.

Diſaſter, ill Luck, great Misfortune; properly ſuch as is deriv'd from the evil Influence of the Stars.

Diſaſtrous, unfortunate, unlucky, fatal.

To Diſavow, to diſown, to deny.

To Diſband, to put out of the Band or Company; to turn out of Service.

Diſbelief, Miſtruſt, Doubt.

To Diſbelieve, not to believe or give Credit to, to diſtruſt or doubt of.

To Diſburden, to take off the Burden; to unload or eaſe.

To Diſburſe, to ſpend or lay out Money.

Diſburſement, a diſburſing, or laying out.

Diſcalceated (Lat.) wearing no Shoes, unſhod; as Diſcalceated Friers.

Diſcalendred, put out of the Calendar.

To Diſcamp. See To Decamp.

Diſcarcatio (in old Latin Records) the unloading of a Ship, by taking out the Cargo or Goods.

To Diſcard, to lay out at Cards; to turn or diſcharge from Service.

Diſcent (in Common-Law) an order or means whereby Lands or Tenements are deriv'd to any Man; as To make one's Diſcent from his Anceſtours, i. e. to ſhew how and by what means the Land in Queſtion, came to him from his Anceſtours, and this Diſcent is either Lineal or Collateral.

Lineal Diſcent, is convey'd downwards, in a right Line from the Grand-father to the Father, from the Father to the Son, from the Son to the Nephew, &c.

Collateral Diſcent, is ſpringing out of the ſide of the whole Blood, as Grand-father's Brother, Father's Brother, &c.

† Diſceptation (Lat.) a diſputing or debating.

To Diſcern, to put a Difference between, to diſtinguiſh, to perceive.

Diſcernible, that may be diſcerned.

Diſcernment, the diſcerning Faculty, Diſcretion, Judgment.

Diſcerptible (in Philoſ.) that may be torn in pieces or ſeparated.

† Diſceſſion, a departing or going away.

Diſcus or Diſciformis Cometa (Lat.) a Comet or fiery Meteor in the Air, reſembling the Shape of a round Diſh or Platter: The chief of this kind is call'd a Solaris Comet from the likeneſs of its Rays to thoſe of the Sun; as alſo Roſa and Chryſeus from its bright Silver-colour mixt with a Golden or Amber one.

Diſcharge (Fr.) a Releaſe, an Acquittance for Money paid, a diſmiſſing or ſending away; a Volley of Shot, a driving out, or purging of Humours.

To Diſcharge, to releaſe, free or eaſe, to clear or acquit, to put out of Office or Service; to pay or make Payment of Money; to diſburden or empty it ſelf into the Sea, as a River does.

Diſchevelled. See Diſ-ſhevelled.

Diſciple (Lat.) a Scholar or Learner.

Diſciplinable, capable of Diſcipline, teachable, apt to receive Inſtruction.

Diſciplinants, an Order of Religious Men that ſcourge themſelves.

Diſciplinarians, Sectaries that pretend to a ſtricter Diſcipline and Purity than their Neighbours.

Diſcipline, Inſtruction, Learning, Education, ſtrict Order, Management: Alſo Correction or Scourging, ſuch as is us'd in Monaſteries.

To Diſcipline, to bring under a Diſcipline, to inſtruct, to rule or Order; to Correct, Scourge, or Whip.

To Diſclaim, to quit claim to; utterly to refuſe, renounce, or diſown the having any Concern, or Intereſt in a thing.

Diſclaimer (in Common-Law) a Plea containing an expreſs Denial or Refuſal: So a Tenant denying himſelf to hold of ſuch a Lord, is ſaid To Diſclaim; and if a Man deny himſelf to be of the Kindred of another in his Plea, he is ſaid To diſclaim his Blood.

To Diſcloſe, to diſcover, reveal or open; to put forth, as a Hen does her Chickens; to bud, blow, or put out Leaves. In Falconry, the Term Diſcloſed is likewiſe apply'd to young Hawks, that are newly hatch'd, and as it were put forth from the Shells.

To Diſcolour, to alter, ſpoil, or take away the Colour of a thing; to tarniſh.

† To Diſcomfit (Fr.) entirely to defeat, rout, or overthrow in Battel.

Diſcomfiture, Rout, Defeat, Overthrow, Slaughter.

To Diſcomfort, to afford no Comfort, to afflict, caſt down, or put out of Heart.

To Diſcommend (Lat.) to diſpraiſe, or blame.

Diſcommendation, the Act of diſcommending; Shame, Diſgrace.

Diſcommodity, Inconveniency.

To Diſcompoſe, to diſorder, diſquiet, or trouble.

Diſcompoſure, Confuſion, Diſorder, Trouble.

Diſconſolate, deprived of Conſolation, Comfortleſs, Afflicted.

Diſcontent, or Diſcontentment, a not being content; Trouble, Sorrow, Faction.

Diſcontented, diſpleaſed, troubled, offended.

Diſcontinual Proportion. See Diſcrete Proportion.

Diſcontinuance or Diſcontinuity, an Interruption, or breaking off.

Diſcontinuance of Plea or Proceſs (in Common-Law) is when the Inſtant is loſt, and cannot be regain'd, but by a new Writ, to begin the Suit a-freſh.

Diſcontinuance of Poſſeſſion, has this Effect, That a Man may not enter upon his own Lands or Tenements alineated, whatever Right he has to them, but muſt bring his Writ, and ſeek to recover Poſſeſſion by Law.

To Diſcontinue, to leave or break off for a time, to give over. In a Law-ſenſe, To be diſcontinued, is to be finally diſmiſs'd the Court.

Diſcord, Diſagreement, Variance, Debate, Strife.

Diſcords (in Muſick) are certain Intervals of Sounds, which being heard at the ſame Time are harſh and offenſive to the Ear; yet when orderly taken and intermix'd with Concords, they make the beſt Muſick. Theſe Diſcords are the Second, Fourth and Seventh, with their Octaves; that is to ſay, all Intervals except thoſe few which preciſely determine the Concords, are Diſcords.

Diſcordant, untunable, jarring, as A diſcordant Voice.

To Diſcover (Fr.) to reveal, to make manifeſt or known, to lay open, to find out, to ſpy.

Diſcovery, a diſcovering, finding out, &c.

Diſcount, Abatement.

To Diſcount, to deduct, abate, or ſet off from an Account or reckoning. In the way of Trade, it is to ſet off in Conſideration of Payment in ready Money; which is uſually what the Intereſt comes to: As if I owe a Hundred Pounds payable at the end of Six Months, upon preſent Payment of the ſame, I am to have the Intereſt of a Hundred Pounds for Six Months diſcounted to me, i. e. I am but to pay Ninety Seven Pounds.

To Diſcountenance, to put out of Countenance, to give a Check, or put a ſtop to.

To Diſcourage, to bring down one's Courage, to diſhearten, to put out of Conceit.

Diſcouragement, diſcouraging, or putting out of Heart.

Diſcourſe, Speech, Talk, Converſation, Reaſoning: In a Logical ſenſe, it is that rational Action of the Mind, by which we form any new Judgment from others before made, or whereby we can inferr or conclude one thing from another.

Diſcourteous, unkind, uncivil.

Diſcourteſy, Diſpleaſure, an ill Turn.

Diſcous or Diſcoidal Flowers (among Herbaliſts) ſuch whoſe Floſculi or little Leaves, are ſet together ſo cloſe, thick and even, as to make the Surface of the Flower plain and flat like a Diſh.

Diſcredit, Diſgrace, Reproach.

To Diſcredit, to make one loſe his Credit, to diſgrace.

Diſcreet (Lat.) wiſe, ſober, conſiderate, wary.

Diſcrepant, varying or differing from.

Diſcrete, parted, ſevered.

Diſcrete or Diſjunct Proportion (in Arithm.) is when the Ratio or Reaſon between two pairs of Numbers is the ſame, but there is not the ſame Proportion between all the four Numbers: Thus if theſe Numbers, 6, 8 :: 3, 4 be conſider'd, the Ratio between the firſt Pair 6 and 8, is the ſame as that between 3 and 4, and therefore theſe Numbers are proportional; but 'tis only directly or disjunctly: For 6 is not to 8, as 8 is to 3, i. e. the Proportion is broken off between 8 and 3, and is not continued all along, as in theſe following which are, Continued Proportionals, viz. 3, 6, 12, 24.

Diſcrete Quantity is ſuch as is not continued and joyned together; as Number, whoſe Parts being diſtinct, cannot be united into one Continuum: For in a Continuum there are no actual determinate Parts, before Diviſion, but they are potentially infinite.

Diſcretion, diſcerning Judgment, diſcreet Management, Wiſdom, Warineſs; alſo Pleaſure or Will.

To Live at Diſcretion (a Military Phraſe) to have free Quarters. To ſurrender at Diſcretion, is to yield without Articles or Terms.

Diſcretive, that ſerves to ſeparate, as A Conjunction diſcretive; a Term in Grammar.

Diſcretive Propoſitions (in Logick) are thoſe where various Judgments are made and denoted by the Particles but, notwithſtanding, or Words of the like Nature, either expreſs'd or underſtood: As, Fortune may deprive me of my Wealth, but not of my Vertue: They that croſs the Sea change only their Country, but not their Diſpoſition.

Diſcretorium (Lat.) a Word us'd by ſome Writers of Anatomy, for the Diaphragm or Midriff.

Diſcrimen, Diverſity, Difference, Debate or Doubt, Danger or Hazard: In Surgery, a kind of Bandage for letting Blood in the Fore-head and Temples.

To Diſcriminate, to put a difference between, to diſtinguiſh.

Diſcrimination, the Act of diſcriminating or diſtinguſhing: In Rhetorick, Diſcrimination is the ſame Figure with Paradiaſtole; which See.

To Diſcure, to diſcover; a Word us'd in Chaucer.

Diſcurſive, running to and fro.

Diſcus (Lat.) a Diſh or Platter for Meat: Alſo a kind of Quoit, which Gameſters anciently us'd in their Exerciſes; being a round piece of Metal or Stone, about a Foot broad, with a Hole in the middle: Alſo a round Conſecrated Shield made to repreſent a Memorable Deed of ſome Hero of Antiquity, and hung up in a Temple of the Gods.

Among Herbaliſts, Diſcus is taken to ſignifie the middle, plain and flat part of ſome Flowers; becauſe its Figure reſembles the ancient Diſcus: Of this kind are Camomile, Daiſy, Marigold, Sun-Flower, Tanſy, &c.

Diſcus or Diſk (in Aſtron.) the round Face of the Sun or Moon, which being really Spherical or in ſhape of a Ball; nevertheleſs by its great diſtance from the Earth, appears to us plain, or like a Diſh.

Diſcus or Deſcus (in old Records) a Desk or Reading-ſhelf in a Church.

To Diſcuſs, to examine, ſcan or ſift, to ſearch or enquire into; to ſhake off thoſe Difficulties with which a Matter is embarraſſed or perplexed. Thus 'tis ſaid ſuch a Point was well diſcuſſed, when it was well treated of and cleared up.

Diſcuſſion, a diſcuſſing, ſtrict Examination or Inquiry; the clear treating or handling of any particular Problem or Point. In a Medicinal ſenſe, Diſcuſſion ſignifies a diſperſing the Matter of any Tumour or ſwelling in the Body, and is defined by Surgeons, To be a diſcharge of ſome thin Matter gather'd together in any Part, by inſenſible Evaporation.

Diſcutient, apt or proper to diſcuſs, diſſolve, or diſperſe Humours, or the Matter of a Sore.

Diſcutients (Lat.) diſcuſſive Remedies.

Diſdain (Fr.) Scorn proceeding from Pride or Averſion.

To Diſdain, to deſpiſe, ſcorn, or ſet light by.

Diſdiapaſon (Gr.) a Term in Muſick, denoting a double Eighth or Fifteenth.

Diſeaſed, troubled with a Diſeaſe or Sickneſs.

To Diſembark, to go a Shore from on Ship-board, to Land; to take Goods out of a Ship; to quit an Enterpriſe or Undertaking.

To Diſembogue (Sea-T.) to roll or diſcharge it ſelf into the Sea, as a great River does at ſuch a Place, after it has run ſo many Leagues: Alſo when a Ship paſſes out of the ſtraight-mouth of ſome Gulph it is termed Diſemboguing.

To Diſengage, to free from an Engagement; to fetch, get, or take off.

To Diſeſteem (Lat.) to have no Eſteem for, or regard to, to ſlight.

Diſfavour, a being out of Favour, Diſcourteſy, an ill turn, Diſparagement.

To Diſfigure, to ſpoil the Figure or Shape of, to make ugly.

Diſfigure that Peacock, i. e. Cut it up, a Term uſed in Carving at Table.

Diſfigurement, a Diſfiguring, a Blemiſh.

To Diſforeſt, to diſplant, or cut down the Trees of a Foreſt.

To Diſfranchiſe, to turn out of the Number of Citizens or free Deniſons; to take away one's Freedom or Privilege.

To Diſgarniſh, to take away the Garniſh; as To diſgarniſh a Diſh. In the Art of War, to diſgarniſh a Place, is to take away a great part of its Garriſon and Ammunition; to leave it unprovided, to drain it from Soldiers.

To Diſgorge, to caſt or throw up by vomiting; to empty it ſelf or run ſwiftly into the Sea; as ſome Rivers do.

Diſgrace, Diſhonour, Diſfavour, Reproach.

To Diſgrace, to turn out of Favour, to put to Shame.

Diſgrading or Degrading (Law-Word) the depoſing of a Clergy-Man from Holy Orders, who being deliver'd to his Ordinary could not clear himſelf of the Offence whereof he was convicted by the Jury. There is alſo the Diſgrading of a Lord, Knight, &c. which is twofold, viz. either Summary, by Word only; or Solemn, by ſtripping the Party degraded of thoſe Ornaments which are the Enſigns of his Order or Degree.

Diſguiſe (Fr.) a Counterfeit Habit, a Pretence, Colour, or Cloak.

To Diſguiſe, to put into another Guiſe or Faſhion; to alter, to conceal, to cloak, or diſſemble.

Diſguſt (Lat.) to Diſtaſte, Diſlike.

To Diſguſt, to Diſtaſte, to Diſlike, or be averſe from.

Diſhwater, a Bird otherwiſe call'd Wag-tail.

Diſharmony, want of Harmony, Diſcord, Jarring.

To Diſhearten, to put out of Heart, to diſcourage.

Diſheriſon, an old Law-word for Diſinheriting.

Diſheritor, one that diſinherits, or puts another out of his Inheritance.

Diſhevelled. See Diſ-ſhevelled.

Diſhoneſt, void of Honeſty, unchaſte, lewd, knaviſh; unjuſt, unhandſome, baſe.

Diſhoneſty, a being diſhoneſt, Knavery, Lewdneſs.

Diſhonour, Loſs of Honour, Diſgrace, Shame; Diſparagement, Reproach.

To Diſhonour, to diſgrace, debaſe, or diſparage.

To Diſinchant, to ſet free from an Inchantment, to break a Charm.

Diſingenuity, want of Ingenuouſneſs or Sincerity, Diſſimulation.

Diſingenuous, falſe-hearted, unfair, uncivil.

Diſinhabited, void of Inhabitants, deſolate.

To Diſinherit, to deprive one of his Inheritance.

To Diſintangle, to diſengage, to rid out of, or free from; to unravel.

Diſintereſſed or Diſintereſted, void of ſelf-intereſt, impartial, unbiaſſed.

To Diſinter, to dig up, or take a dead Body out of the Grave.

To Diſinthrone, to unthrone, or put out of the Throne or Royal Seat.

To Diſinvite, to recall an Invitation, to forbid one to come, that was before invited.

To Diſjoyn, to ſeparate, part, or looſen; to warp, not to lie cloſe.

To Diſjoynt, to put out of Joynt, to divide an Eſtate into Parcels.

Diſjunct Proportion. See Diſcrete Proportion.

Diſjunction, the Act of disjoyning, ſeparation, or Diviſion.

Diſjunctive, that ſeparates; as A Disjunctive Particle; a Term in Grammar.

Diſjunctive Propoſitions (in Logick) are thoſe wherein the Disjunctive Particle (or) is found; as Either the Sun moves about the Earth, or The Earth about the Sun; Men are guided either by Intereſt or Fear.

Diſjunctum, a Disjunctive Propoſition, which from two contraries, by denying one proves the other; as in the preceeding Examples, and in this Either he is alive, or elſe he is dead. Alſo a Rhetorical Figure, the ſame with Diezeugmenon: Which See.

Diſlocated (in Surgery) put out of its right Place, or Joynt; as a Limb or Bone may be.

Diſlocation, a being diſlocated, the ſlipping or forcing of the Head of one Bone, out of the Cavity or Hollow of another; which diſables the Part from performing its Natural Motion.

To Diſlodge, to put or turn one out of his Houſe or Lodging, to remove a Camp. Among Hunters, To Diſlodge Beaſts of Game, is to raiſe them from their Lodging or Harbour.

Diſloyal (Fr.) unfaithful to a Soveraign Prince, or to a Husband; traiterous, treacherous, deceitful, falſe.

Diſloyalty, an Act committed againſt Fidelity and the Law; Unfaithfulneſs, Treachery, falſe Dealing, Villany.

Diſmal, terrible, dreadful, hideous, lamentable.

To Diſmantle (properly to take off the Mantle or Cloak) to beat or pull down the Walls or Fortifications of a City, Town, &c.

Diſmayed, aſtoniſhed, terrified, or put in a Fright.

To Diſmember (Lat.) to cut off the Members or Limbs; to disjoynt, to divide, or Cantle out.

Diſmember that Hern, i. e. Cut it up, a Term us'd by skilful Carvers.

Diſmes (Fr. Law-Term) Tithes, or the tenth part of Fruits, Cattel, &c. allotted Miniſters: Alſo the Tenths of Spiritual Livings, yearly given to the Prince: Alſo a Tribute levy'd of the Temporality.

To Diſmiſs (Lat.) to ſend or put away, to Diſcharge.

To Diſmiſs a Cauſe (in Chancery) is to put it quite out of the Court, without any farther Hearing.

Diſmiſſion, the Act of diſmiſſing or ſending away.

To Diſmount, to unhorſe; as To Diſmount the Cavalry; to alight from on Horſe-back; to take away, or remove.

To Diſmount a Piece of Ordnance (in Gunnery) is to take or throw it down from the Carriage; alſo to break, diſable, or make it unfit for Service.

Diſobedience (Lat.) Undutifulneſs, Frowardneſs.

Diſobedient, undutiful, froward, ſtubborn.

To Diſobey, to with-draw one's Obedience, to act contrary to Order.

Diſobligation, a Diſobliging, Diſpleaſure, Offence.

To Diſoblige, to do an ill Office to, to diſpleaſe, or affront.

Diſorder, Confuſion, Lewdneſs, Exceſs or Riot; Trouble or Diſcompoſure of Mind.

To Diſorder, to put out of Order, to confound, to diſcompoſe, to vex.

Diſordinate, diſorderly, irregular, extravagant, immoderate, unruly.

To Diſown, not to acknowledge for one's own, to deny.

† Diſpanſion, a ſpreading abroad.

To Diſparage, to decry or ſpeak ill of, to ſet at nought or ſlight.

Diſparagement, a diſparaging or undervaluing: In a Law-ſenſe it is taken for the matching or diſpoſing of an Heir or Heireſs in Marriage, under his or her Degree, or againſt Decency.

Diſparates (in Logick) a ſort of Oppoſites that are altogether unlike one another; as A Man, a Stone, a Horſe, a Wolf.

Diſparity, Inequality, Unlikeneſs, Difference.

To Diſpark, to take away the Pales or Incloſure of a Park.

Diſparpled or Diſperpled (in Heraldry) looſely ſcattered, or ſhooting it ſelf into ſeveral Parts.

Diſpart (in Gunnery) is the difference between the thickneſs of the Metal, at the Mouth and Breech of the Piece.

To Diſpart a Cannon, is to ſet a Mark on the Muzzle-ring, or thereabouts, to be of an equal height or level with the top of the Baſe-ring, ſo that a Sight-line taken between them, will be parallel to the Axis of the Concave Cylinder or Hollow Length of the Piece, for the Gunner to take Aim by it at the Mark he is to ſhoot.

Diſpatch (Fr.) the ſpeedy doing of a thing, Riddance.

To Diſpatch, to haſten, to rid or ſpeed, to ſend away in haſte; alſo to kill or put to Death ſpeedily.

Diſpatches, Letters diſpatch'd, or ſent abroad about Publick Affairs.

Diſpaupered (Lat. Law-Term) put out of the Capacity of ſuing in forma pauperis, or without paying any Fees; which Privilege is ſometimes taken away from a Perſon admitted thereto, when the ſame Party during the Suit has any Lands or Perſonal Eſtate fallen to him, or otherwiſe at the Diſcretion of the Court. See Pauper.

To Diſpel, to drive away.

To Diſpend (old Word) to ſpend or lay out Money.

Diſpenſable, that may be diſpenſed with.

Diſpenſation, the Charge of laying out Money for another, Diſtribution, Management; a performing the Office of a Diſpenſer or Steward: Alſo a Licence or Permiſſion, an Indulgence from the Pope. Alſo a Term us'd by Apothecaries, when the particular Simples of a Compoſition are ſet in Order, leſt any of the Ingredients ſhould be forgotten.

In Divinity, God's high Diſpenſation, is the giving of the Levitical Law to the Jews, the Goſpel to the Gentiles, the ſending his Son for the Redemption of Mankind, &c.

Diſpenſatory, a Book ſet forth by able Phyſicions, to direct Apothecaries in the diſpenſing and ordering of every Ingredient, as to the quantity and manner of making up their Compoſitions.

To Diſpenſe, to diſtribute, or diſpoſe of; to adminiſter, beſtow, or manage. To Diſpenſe with, to exempt or excuſe, to free from the Obligation of a Law.

Diſpenſes (old Word) Expences, Charges, or Layings out.

To Diſpeople, to unpeople, to lay waſte, or deſtroy the People of a Country.

To Diſperſe, to ſpread abroad, or ſcatter.

Diſperſion, a diſperſing or ſcattering into ſeveral Parts; as The Diſperſion of the Jews.

To Diſpert. See to Diſpart.

Diſphendonomena or Diſphendonomenon (Gr.) a Puniſhment anciently us'd in Perſia, where the Tops of two Trees were drawn down together, and the Offender being bound to each of them by the Legs, was miſerably torn to pieces.

To Diſpirit, to pull down one's Spirit; to diſhearten or diſcourage.

To Diſplace, to turn out of his or its Place, to remove, to turn out of an Office.

To Diſplant, to pluck or root up that which was planted.

Diſplay, a particular Explication.

To Diſplay, to ſpread wide, to unfold, to ſet forth to Advantage, to make a ſhew of, to declare or explain at large.

Diſplayed, ſpread, unfolded, &c. Alſo a Term in Heraldry, apply'd to an Eagle when repreſented on an Eſcutcheon in an upright Poſture, and with the Wings ſpread abroad.

Diſpleaſant, diſpleaſing, unpleaſant.

To Diſpleaſe, not to pleaſe, to offend, trouble or vex; to be unacceptable or diſagreeable.

Diſpleaſure, Affront, Diſcourteſy, ſhrewd turn; Diſcontent, Diſſatisfaction, Anger.

Diſploſion (Lat.) a burſting or breaking aſunder, with a great Noiſe or Sound; the diſcharging or letting off a Gun.

Diſpoliation, a ſpoiling, robbing or rifling.

Diſpondæus (in Grammar) a double Spondee, a Foot in Greek or Latin Verſe conſiſting of Four long Sylables; as Orātōrēs.

To Diſpone (old Word) to diſpoſe.

Diſport, Divertiſement, Paſtime, Recreation.

To Diſport one's ſelf, to divert one's ſelf, to take his Pleaſure.

Diſpoſal or Diſpoſe, the power of diſpoſing, Command, Management.

To Diſpoſe, to order or ſet in order; to prepare, to fit or make ready. To Diſpoſe of, to do what one pleaſes with.

Diſpoſition, the Act of Diſpoſing, Order, Situation, State; Inclination, or Aptneſs; Habit, or Temper of Mind or Body. In a Medicinal Senſe, it is defin'd to be an Habit whereby, we are well or ill diſpoſed to perform an Action: In Architecture, it is the juſt placing of all the ſeveral Parts of a Building, according to their proper Order.

Diſpoſition or Method, is alſo that Action of the Mind, by which we range various Ideas, Judgments and Ratiocinations upon one and the ſame Subject, in that Order which is moſt proper for the explaining of it.

Diſpoſitor, a Diſpoſer or Setter in Order. In Aſtrology, the Planet that is Lord of the Sign, where another Planet happens to be; which it is therefore ſaid, To diſpoſe of.

To Diſpoſſeſs, to turn or put out of Poſſeſſion, to deprive.

Diſpoſure, a Diſpoſing, Diſpoſal.

Diſpraiſe, Cenſure, Blame, Reproach.

To Diſpraiſe, to diſparage, find fault with, or blame.

Diſprofit, Dammage, Loſs, Prejudice.

Diſproof, a diſproving.

Diſproportion, a not anſwering or not holding Proportion; Inequality.

Diſproportionable or Diſproportionate, that bears no Proportion to, unequal.

To Diſprove, to prove the contrary.

Diſputable (Lat.) that may be diſputed.

Diſputant, a Diſputer, one that holds a Diſputation.

Diſputation, a Diſputing, Reaſoning, or Debating; a Publick Exerciſe in the Schools upon any Subject or Point, relating to a particular Art or Science.

Diſputative, apt to Diſpute, Contentious, Quarrelſome, Troubleſome.

Diſpute, Debate, Conteſt, Quarrel, or Difference.

To Diſpute, to hold a Diſputation; to Debate, Reaſon, Diſcourſe, or Treat of; to quarrel or wrangle.

To Diſpute a thing, to contend or ſtrive for it, to quarrel about it.

† Diſquammation, a taking off the Scales.

Diſquiet, Unquietneſs, Trouble.

To Diſquiet, to diſturb one's Quiet or Reſt, to make uneaſie; to trouble, to vex, or perplex.

Diſquiſition, diligent Search, ſtrict Inquiry or Examination of a thing, a particular Enquiry into the nature, kinds and circumſtances of any Problem, Queſtion or Topick.

To Diſrank, to put out of Rank or Order.

Diſrationare, or Dirationare (in old Latin Records) to juſtify or make good the denyal of a Fact, to traverſe an Indictment; alſo to clear one's ſelf of a Crime. See Deraign.

To Diſregard, to have no regard to, to deſpiſe, or ſlight.

To Diſreliſh, not to reliſh well, to diſapprove or diſlike.

Diſreputation or Diſrepute, ill Name, Diſcredit.

Diſreſpect, want of Reſpect, Incivility, Slight.

To Diſreſpect, to ſhew no Reſpect, or to be uncivil to.

To Diſrobe, to take or pull off one's Robe, to ſtrip.

Diſſalted, cleared from Salt, made freſh.

Diſſatiſfaction, Diſcontent, Diſguſt, Diſpleaſure.

Diſſatiſfactory, that gives no ſatiſfaction, offenſive, diſpleaſing.

Diſſatiſfied, not ſatisfied, diſpleaſed, diſcontented.

To Diſſect, to cut open a dead Body.

Diſſection, a cutting aſunder or in pieces, the Anatomizing or cutting up of the Body of any Living creature.

To Diſſeiſe, (Fr. Law-word) to Diſpoſſeſs, to turn out of Poſſeſſion.

Diſſeiſee, a Perſon that is put out of his Lands, &c.

Diſſeiſin, an unlawful diſpoſſeſſing of a Man of his Land, Tenement, or other immoveable or incorporeal Right.

Diſſeiſin upon Diſſeiſin, is where the Diſſeiſor is Diſſeiſed or put out of Poſſeſſion by another.

Diſſeiſor, he that ſo puts another out of Poſſeſſion.

Diſſeiſoreſs, a Woman that puts another Perſon out of his or her Land or Inheritance, &c.

To Diſſemble, (Lat.) to pretend or feign, to conceal or cloak, to diſguiſe or counterfeit.

To Diſſeminate, to ſpread about; as To diſſeminate Errours.

Diſſeminate Vacuum, See Vacuum.

† Diſſemination, a ſowing or ſcattering up and down; a ſpreading all about.

Diſſenſion, Diſcord, Diviſion, Variance, Strife.

Diſſent, contrariety of Opinion.

To Diſſent, to diſagree or differ in Opinion.

Diſſentaneous, diſagreeing, contrary. In Logick thoſe things are ſaid To be diſſentaneous, which are equally manifeſt among themſelves, yet appear more clearly when taken ſeparately.

Diſſenter, one that is of a different, or contrary Opinion: But the Term Diſſenters is more eſpecially apply'd to the Non-conformiſts, that refuſe to comply with the Diſcipline of the Church of England.

Diſſentory, (old Word) a kind of Still.

Diſſeptum (Lat.) Walls about a Houſe, an Incloſure: It is alſo ſometimes taken by Anatomiſts for the Diaphragm or Midriff.

Diſſertation, a Diſcourſe, Debate, or Treatiſe upon any Subject.

To Diſſerve one, to do him a Prejudice.

Diſſervice, an ill Office or Turn, an Injury or Prejudice.

† Diſſidence, a diſagreeing or falling out, Diſcord, Diſagreement.

Diſſevered, ſeparated, parted, divided, or put aſunder; as A Province diſſevered by a River.

Die-ſhevelled, (Fr.) that has the Hair hanging looſe.

Diſſimilar (Lat.) unlike, that is of a different kind or nature.

Diſſimilar Leaves (among Herbaliſts) are the two firſt Leaves of any Plant, at its firſt ſhooting out of the Ground; ſo call'd becauſe they are uſually of a different form from the common Leaves of the grown Plant.

Diſſimilar Parts (in Anat.) are thoſe that may be divided into various Parts different from one another; or are made up of ſeveral Similar Parts: Thus the Hand conſiſts of Fleſh, Bones, Nerves, Muſcles, Veins, &c. whoſe Portions are neither of the ſame Nature or Name. Theſe are otherwiſe termed Compound and Organical Parts, and oppoſed to Similar Parts; which See.

Diſſimilitude, Unlikeneſs: Whence a form of Speech is ſo call'd, in which ſeveral things of a different Quality are compar'd one with another; as The Stork in the Air knows her appointed Times, alſo the Turtle, the Crane and the Swallow, &c. but my People not know — Prov.

Diſſimulatio (Lat.) Diſſembling, making as tho' that were which is not. Alſo a Rhetorical Figure the ſame as Ironia.

Diſſimulation, a Diſſembling, Diſguiſing or Counterfeiting; a concealing what a Man has in his Heart, by making a ſhew of one thing and being another.

To Diſſipate, to diſperſe or ſcatter, to drive away, to remove, to diſſolve; to Conſume, Waſte, or Spend.

Diſſipation, a Diſſipating, Conſuming, Waſting, &c.

† Diſſociation, a ſeparating of Company, a putting aſunder.

Diſſoluble, that may, or is apt to be Diſſolved.

To Diſſolve, to pierce thro' a ſolid Body and divide its Parts, to ſoften, to melt, to break off, to ſpoil the force of. In Chymiſtry, to change ſome hard Matter into a liquid Form, by means of a certain Liquor fit for that purpoſe.

A Diſſolvent, a Medicine to diſſolve Humours: In a Chymical ſenſe, any Liquor that is proper for diſſolving a mixt Body, and uſually termed a Menſtruum.

Diſſolving Medicines. See Diſcuſſion and Diſcuſſive.

Diſſolute, Debauched, Riotous, Lewd, given over to a looſe Life.

Diſſolutio (Lat.) a diſſolving or looſing: Alſo a Figure in Rhetorick, the ſame as Dialyton; which See.

Diſſolution, a diſſolving or ſeparation of Parts; an aboliſhing or breaking off: Alſo Diſſoluteneſs, Debauchery, Lewdneſs, Riot, or Exceſs. Among Apothecaries, &c. the mingling and diſſolving of Electuaries or Powders in a Decoction, or in simple Water. In Chymistry, the turning of hard Bodies into Liquors.

Dissonance (in Musick) a disagreeable Interval between two Sounds, which being continu'd together offend the Ear; a Discord in Tunes or Voices: Whence it is figuratively taken for a Contrariety or difference in Opinion, &c.

Dissonant, untunable, jarring, disagreeing.

To Dissuade or Disswade, to advise to the contrary, to divert or put one off from a Design, &c.

Dissuasion, the Act of dissuading.

Dissuasive, that serves to dissuade.

A Dissuasive, a Discourse, Argument, or Reason proper for dissuading.

Dissyllable. See Disyllable.

Distaff, a well known Instrument us'd in Spinning. The Crown of France never falls to the Distaff, i. e. is never inherited by Woman.

Distance (Lat.) the Space between one thing and another, whether in point of Time, Place or Quality. In Navigation, the Number of Degrees, Leagues, &c. that a Ship has sail'd from any proposed Point; or the Space in Degrees, Leagues, &c. between any two Places.

Distance of the Bastions (in Fortif.) is the side of the Exteriour or outward Polygon.

Distance of Polygons, is the Line made from the Flank, and its Prolongation to the Exteriour Polygon.

Distanced, Set at a Convenient Distance; outstripped or left behind in a Race.

Distant, being far asunder, differing.

Distaste, Dislike.

To Distaste, to give Distaste, to take Offence, to displease, to dislike.

Distemper, Disease, Sickness, Indisposition; the Troubles or Disorders of a Kingdom or State: Also a kind of Painting, when the Colours are mixt with Size, Whites of Eggs, or any such proper glewy Substance, and not with Oil or Water: In which Case, the Piece is said To be done in Distemper, as the admirable Cartons are at Hampton-Court.

Distemper, to put out of Temper, to trouble.

To Distend, to stretch or stuff out.

To Distension, a distending or stretching out: In a Medicinal Sense, it is when any Parts of the Body are puff'd up, widen'd or loosen'd, as the Guts by Wind, &c. whence Oppressions and Pains are often occasion'd.

To Disterminate, to bound one Place from another; to divide, separate or part.

To Disthrone. See To Dethrone.

Distich (Gr.) a pair or couple of Verses in a Poem, containing a compleat Sense.

Distichia, a double Row of Hairs on the Eye-Lids.

Distichum Hordeum, the lesser sort of Barley, having a double Row of Grains in the Ear.

To Distil (Lat.) to drop or run down by little and little. In a Chymical sense to draw off some of the Principles of a mixt Body, as the Water, Oil, Spirit, Salt, or Earth, in proper Vessels, by means of Fire.

To Distill per Ascensum, is when the Matter to be distilled is above the Fire, or when Fire is put under the Vessel that contains the Matter.

To Distill per Descensum, when the Matter to be distilled is below the Fire, or when Fire is plac'd over the containing Vessel, so that the moist Parts being made thin, and the Vapour which rises from them, not being able to fly away upwards, it sinks down, and distils at the bottom of the Vessel.

Distillable, that may be distilled.

Distillation, a distilling or dropping down, [illegible] ment [illegible] of [illegible] the [illegible] ing out of the small parts of [illegible] Heat, which are first dissolv'd into a Vapour, and then thicken'd again by Cold.

Distillations, are also those [illegible] Vapours that the Sun draws up into the Air, and when the Sun is set fall to the Earth again; the same that we commonly call Dew.

Distinct, different, separate from [illegible] clear, plain.

Distinct Base (in Opticks) is that precise Distance from the Pole of a Convex Glass, in which Objects beheld through it appear distinct, and well defin'd; so that 'tis the same with what is otherwise termed the Focus.

Distinct Vision. See Vision.

Distinction, a noting the difference of Things, separation; a distinguishing or marking by Notes.

Distinctive, that serves to make a Distinction; as A Distinctive Mark.

To Distinguish, to discern, to note or mark; to put a Difference between, to divide or part: Also to make eminent, to raise above the common Level, by one's Wit, Valour, Learning, &c.

Distinguishable, that may be distinguished.

To Distort, to wrest aside, to pull awry.

Distortion or Distorture, a pulling awry, a wresting or wringing several Ways. In Surgery, it is when the Parts of an Animal Body are ill placed or ill figured.

To Distract (properly to draw or pull asunder) to interrupt, perplex or trouble; to make one mad, or put one out of his Wits; to rend or divide.

Distraction, a wandering or perplexity of Mind; Distractedness, Madness, Frenzy.

To Distrain, to attach or seize upon one's Goods for the satisfaction of a Debt, &c.

Distress, the Act of Distraining: In Common-Law, it is defined to be a Compulsion, whereby a Man is forc'd to appear in Court, or to pay a Debt or Duty deny'd. Also a great Straight, Adversity or Calamity.

Distressed, brought into Distress, reduced to Extremity or Misery.

To Distribute, to divide, part, or share; to bestow or deal among several Persons, to dispose or set in Order.

Distributio (Lat.) Distribution: In Rhetorick, a Figure when we apply to every thing its peculiar Property; as Wantonness to the Eyes, Robbery to the Hands, &c. In Logick, a resolving of the Whole into Parts.

Distribution, the Act of distributing, dividing, sharing, &c.

Distribution of the Chyle (in an Animal Body) is when that Juice after a due working in the Stomach and Guts, goes into and through the Glandulous Coat of the Intestines, passes through the Lacteal Veins and its proper Channels, along the side of the Chest, and at last falls into the Subclavian Vein, that it may Circulate with the Blood and receive its Colour.

Distributive, that serves to distribute.

Distributive Justice, that Justice which is administer'd by a Judge, Arbitrator, or Umpire, who in executing his Office, may be said to give every Man his own.

Distributive Noun (in Grammar) is such a one as betokens a reducing into several Orders or Distinctions, as Singuli, Bini, Terni, &c.

[illegible] (Gr.) a double Row of Hair on the Eye[illegible]

District, a particular Territory, the extent of a Jurisdiction.

[illegible] Domains or Distresses, [illegible] Payment [illegible]

Districtus, a District, a place of Jurisdiction: In a Law-sense, it is sometimes taken for the Circuit within which a Man may be forc'd to make his Appearance.

Distringas, a Writ directed to the Sheriff or other Officer, requiring him to distrain for a Debt to the Queen, &c. or for his Appearance at a Day.

Distrust, Suſpicion, Jealouſy, Miſgiving.

To Disturb, to interrupt, to let, or hinder; to [illegible] or croſs; to diſorder, or put in confuſion.

Disturbance, a Diſturbing, Trouble, Vexation, Diſorder, Tumult or Uproar.

Disunion, Diviſion, Diſagreement, Odds.

To Disunite, to divide or ſet at Variance, to ſeparate or disjoyn.

Disusage or Disuse, a diſuſing, a being out of uſe.

To Disuse, to forbear the uſe of, to leave off; to break one's ſelf of a Uſe or Cuſtom.

Disyllable, a Word that conſiſts only of two Syllables, as Bounty.

Ditch-burr or Clot-burr, a ſort of Herb.

Dithyramb or Dithyrambus (Gr.) a kind of Hymn anciently ſung in honour of Bacchus the God of Wine; a jovial Song full of Tranſport and Poetical Fury.

Dithyrambick, belonging to ſuch Compoſures; as A Dithyrambick Poet.

Ditone (in Muſick) a double Tone, or the greater Third, an Interval which comprehends two Tones. The Proportion of the Parts that make the Ditones is as 4 to 5, and that of the Semiditones, as 5 to 6.

Ditrochæus, a Foot in Greek or Latin Verſe which conſiſts of two Trochees; as Cāntĭlēnā.

Dittander or Dittany, an Herb of a cleanſing Quality and ſharp Taſte, otherwiſe call'd Pepperwort.

Ditto (Ital.) the aforeſaid, or the ſame; a Word much us'd in Merchants-Accounts, and Relations of foreign News, to expreſs the ſame Commodity or Place with that immediately before mention'd.

Dittology (Gr.) double Reading, ſuch as ſeveral Texts of Scripture will admit of.

Ditty, a Song that has the Words ſet in Muſick.

Divan, a great ſolemn Council, or Court of Juſtice among the Turks and Perſians.

Divaporation (Lat. in Chymiſtry) a driving out of Vapours by means of Fire.

Divaricated, ſpread wide from another; ſet aſunder, or at a diſtance; ſtraddling.

Divarication, a divaricating or wide ſpreading.

To Dive, to duck, or go under Water; to ſearch, ſift or enquire narrowly into a Buſineſs.

Diver, a Perſon that Dives; alſo a Water-fowl otherwiſe call'd a Didapper.

Diverberation, (Lat.) a ſtriking or beating.

Divergent Point. See Virtual Focus.

Divergent or Diverging, Rays (in Opticks) are thoſe Rays which going from a Point of a Viſible Object, are diſperſed, and continually depart one from another, accordingly as they are removed from the Object.

Divers, ſundry, ſeveral, many.

Diverse or Diverſe, unlike in Circumſtances, various, different, contrary. In Logick thoſe things are ſaid To be diverſe, which have no Oppoſition to one another, but only differ in Circumſtance.

To Diversify, to make diverſe, to vary, to alter.

Diversion, a turning aſide, or driving another way; Recreation or Paſtime.

Diversity, a being diverſe or different, Unlikeneſs, Variety.

To Divert, to lead or turn aſide, to take off, to paſs over to a thing; to miſapply or imbezzle: Alſo to delight or make chearful.

Diverting, pleaſant, agreeable, delightful.

To Divertise, the ſame as to Divert in the laſt Senſe, to afford Diverſion, to Recreate.

Divertisement, Diverſion, Paſtime, Sport, Pleaſure.

Dives, (Lat.) Rich, Wealthy; the proper Name of the Rich Man in the Goſpel-Parable.

To Divest. See To Deveſt.

To Divide, to ſever, part or put aſunder, to diſtinguiſh; to diſunite, to ſet at Variance or at Odds; to diſtribute, or ſhare.

Dividend, a ſhare of the yearly Salary, equally and juſtly divided among the Fellows of a College in the Univerſity: Alſo an equal ſhare of the Profits of a joynt Stock in a Company or Corporation: In Arithmetick, it is a Number given to be divided by another into certain equal Parts.

Dividenda, a Word us'd in old Latin Records for an Indenture: Whence Dividend in the Exchequer ſeems to be one part of an Indenture.

Dividers, a Mathematical Inſtrument, like a pair of Compaſſes, uſually made of Steel, and confin'd by a Screw, to be more ſteady in ſmall Operations.

Dividuals (in Arithm.) is a Number in the Rule of Diviſion, comprehending part of the Dividend diſtinguiſhed by a Point; whereof the Queſtion muſt be ask'd, How often the Diviſor is contain'd in it?

Divinale (old Word) a Riddle.

Divination, the Art of Divining, a gueſſing or telling of things Secret, or that are to come.

Divinatoria Virgula. See Virgula Divinatoria.

Divine, belonging to God, Godly, Heavenly; Excellent, Admirable.

A Divine, a Profeſſour of Divinity.

To Divine, to foretell, to diſcover by Gueſs.

Diviner, a Sooth-ſayer, a Cunning-man, a Conjurer.

Divinistre, a Word us'd by Chaucer, for a Divine or Doctor of Divinity.

Divinity, the Divine Nature and Eſſence, the Deity or Godhead: Alſo that noble Science which has God and the things reveal'd by him for its Object; the Knowledge of Divine Myſteries.

Divisa (in ancient Deeds) a Deviſe or bequeathing of Goods by laſt Will and Teſtament; alſo a Device, Sentence, or Decree.

Divisæ, Diviſes or Bounds, the Borders or Limits of Diviſion, between Countries, Pariſhes, or Lands: Hence the Deviſes or Divizes, a Town in Wilt-ſhire took Name, from its Situation in the Borders of the Weſt-Saxon and Mercian Kingdoms.

Divisibility (in Philoſ.) a being diviſible, the Capacity of ſuffering a Diviſion into ſeveral Parts, or that Diſpoſition of a Natural Body, whereby it is conceiv'd to have Parts into which it might be actually divided, or at leaſt in the Mind.

Divisible, that may be divided.

Division, a dividing or ſevering, the diſtributing of any Whole into its proper Parts. Alſo Separation, a going into Parties; Diſcord, Variance, Odds.

Division (in Arithm.) is that Rule by which we diſcover, how often one Number is contained in another, or it ſhews how to divide a propoſed Number into as many equal Parts as you pleaſe. In Geometry, it changes the Species or kind of a Quantity: As a Surface divided by a Line gives a Line; a Solid by a Line, produces a Surface, &c.

In Muſick Division, is the dividing of a Tune into many ſmall Notes; as Quavers, Semiquavers, &c. And To run Diviſion, is to play on an Inſtrument, or to ſing after ſuch a manner.

In Species or Algebra, Diviſion is a reducing the Dividend or Diviſor to the form of a Fraction which Fraction is the Quotient: Thus if a were to be divided by b, it muſt be plac'd thus, $\frac{a}{b}$ and that Fraction is the Quotient; tho' ſome write it thus b) or $a \div b$.

Diviſion Logical, is an Oration, or Speech, explaining a thing part by part.

Diviſion Geometrical or Diviſion in Lines, is otherwiſe call'd Application, the Deſign of which in the Conſtruction of Plain Problems is this, viz. A Rectangle being given as alſo a Right-line, to find another Right-line, ſo that the Rectangle contained under it, and the Right-line given, ſhall be equal to the Rectangle firſt given; which Effection or Conſtruction is call'd the Application of a given Rectangle to a Right-line given; and the Right-line ariſing by ſuch Application, is termed the Parabola or Geometrical Quotient.

Diviſion Phyſical, is a Separation of the parts of Quantity; ſo that what was before one continued Body, is ſever'd into many Parts.

A Diviſion (in the Art of Printing) is a ſmall Rule or Line ſet betwixt two Words; as A Corn-field, a Field-battel, a Pocket-book, &c. In Military Diſcipline, it is a certain Body of Men in a Company of Horſe or Foot, lead up by a particular Officer.

Diviſor (in Arithm.) the dividing Number, or that by which the Dividend is to be divided, i. e. the Number which ſhews into how many equal Parts the Dividend muſt be divided.

Diviſor Common. See Common Diviſor.

Diviſors Juſt. See Juſt Diviſors.

Divorce or Devorce (in Common Law) is a ſeparation of two Perſons actually marry'd together, one from the other, not only with reſpect to Bed and Board, but alſo all other Conditions belonging to the Bond of Wedlock, which is only allow'd upon a Nullity of the Marriage, by reaſon of ſome Eſſential Impediment; as nearneſs of Kin within the Degrees forbidden, Pre-contract, Impotency, Adultery, &c.

Bill of Divorce, a Writing which according to the Old Levitical Law, a Woman divorced, was to receive from her Husband upon that Occaſion.

Divorcement, the Act of Divorcing.

Diureſis (Gr.) a Separation of the Urine by the Reins, or a voiding of it through the Bladder, &c.

Diuretical or Diuretick, that provokes or cauſes Urine.

Diureticks, thoſe Medicines which by thinning, parting and diſſolving the Blood, carry down the Serum, or Urine, through the Reins into the Bladder.

Diurnal (Lat.) belonging to the Day, daily: In Aſtrology, thoſe Planets or Signs are ſaid To be Diurnal, which contain more Active than Paſſive Qualities; as on the contrary, thoſe that abound in Paſſive Qualities are termed Nocturnal.

Diurnal Arch is the Arch or Number of Degrees, that the Sun, Moon, or any Star deſcribes between its Riſing and Setting.

Diurnal Motion of a Planet, is ſo many Degrees and Minutes, &c. as any Planet moves by its proper Motion in 24 Hours.

Diurnal Motion of the Earth (in the Copernican Syſtem) is that Motion whereby it turns about its own Axis, and which cauſes the interchangeable Succeſſion of Day and Night.

A Diurnal, a Regiſter for ſetting down things daily done; a Journal, or Day-book.

Diuturnity, Duration, Laſtingneſs; eſpecially the long continuance of any Thing.

† Divulgation, a divulging, publiſhing, or ſpreading abroad.

To Divulge, to publiſh, to ſet or ſpread abroad.

Divulſion, a pulling violently away, or aſunder.

Dizzard, a ſilly, ſottiſh Fellow.

Dizzineſs, giddineſs, or ſwimming of the Head. See Vertigo.

De-la-ſol-re, the Name of the Fifth Note, in each of three Septenaries or Combinations of Seven in the Gamut, or ordinary ſcale of Muſick; only in the lowermoſt Septenary La is wanting, and Re in the uppermoſt.

Dobeler or Doubler, a great Diſh or Platter.

Dobuni, an ancient People of Great Britain, who liv'd in thoſe Parts which are now call'd Oxfordſhire and Gloceſter-ſhire.

Docea or Doucea (old Word) a Muſical Inſtrument commonly call'd a Dulcimer.

Dochimus or Dochmius (Gr.) a Foot in Greek and Latin Verſe or Proſe, conſiſting of Five Syllables; a ſhort and two long, a ſhort and a long, as ămicos tenes.

Docible or Docile (Lat.) teachable apt to learn.

Docility, Teachableneſs, Tractableneſs, tractable Temper.

Dock, a great Pit, Pond or Creek by the ſide of an Harbour, made convenient to Work in, with two large Floud-gates; ſo that it may be kept dry, till a Ship be built or repair'd therein, and then being open'd, let in the Water to float and launch her; and this is call'd a Dry-dock. A Wet Dock is any Place, where a Ship may be hal'd into the Oaze; out of the Tides way.

Dock, a kind of Herb, whoſe Root is good againſt the Yellow Jaundice, Itch and other Breakings out.

Dock, call'd Patience, a ſort of Sorrel, the Leaves of which are now and then mix'd with thoſe of common Sorrel.

Dock-Oxylapathum or Sharp-pointed Dock, an Herb whoſe Roots brewed in Ale or Beer are excellent for the Scurvy.

Among Hunters, Dock, is taken for the fleſhy part of a Boar's Chine, between the middle and the Buttock; alſo the ſtump of a Beaſt's Tail.

To Dock, to cut off the Tail: In Sea-language, a Ship is ſaid To have dock'd herſelf, when being brought on Oazy Ground, ſhe has made herſelf a Place to lie in.

Dock-creſſes, a ſort of Herb.

Docked, as ſtrong-docked, i. e. that has ſtrong Reins and Sinews, luſty, ſtout.

Docket, a little Bill tyed to Goods or Wares, and directed to the Perſon and Place, they are to be ſent to: In a Law-ſenſe, a ſmall piece of Paper or Parchment, containing the Heads of a larger Writing: Alſo a Subſcription at the Foot of Letters Patent, made by an Officer call'd the Clerk of the Dockets.

Doctor (Lat. i. e. Teacher) one that has taken the higheſt Degree at an Univerſity, in any Art or Science, as A Doctor of Divinity, Law, Phyſick, Muſick, &c.

Doctors Commons, a College near St. Paul's Church London, firſt founded by Dr. Henry Harvey Dean of the Arches, for the Profeſſours of the Civil Law, and ſo call'd, becauſe they formerly liv'd there in a Collegiate Manner, Lodging and Dieting together.

Doctoral, belonging to a Doctor.

Doctreſs, a Female Doctor, a Woman that practiſes Phyſick.

Doctrinal, relating to a Point of Doctrine, inſtructive.

Doctrine, Learning, Knowledge, Maxims, or Tenets.

Document, an Inſtruction or Leſſon, an Admonition or Warning, an Example or Inſtance.

† To Documentize, to inſtruct.

Docus (Gr.) a Beam or piece of Timber; alſo a kind of fiery Meteor like a Beam.

Dodded (old Word) unhorned; alſo lopped as a Tree, having the Branches cut off.

Dodder, a Weed that winds about other Herbs.

Dodecadactylum (Gr. in Anat.) the firſt of the ſmall Guts, ſo nam'd by the Ancients as if it were of the length of Twelve Fingers; but it is moſt uſually call'd Duodenum; which See.

Dodecaedron (in Geom.) one of the five Regular Bodies; being a Solid comprehended under, or bounded by Twelve equal and equilateral Pentagons.

Dodecagon, a regular Polygon conſiſting of Twelve equal Sides and Angles; which may be fortify'd with the ſame Number of Baſtions.

Dodecapharmacum, a Medicinal Compoſition, conſiſting of Twelve Simples or Ingredients as Unguentum Apoſtolicum, or the Apoſtles Ointment.

Dodecatemory (in Aſtron.) the Twelve Signs Aries, Taurus, Gemini, &c. ſo call'd, becauſe every one of them is the Twelfth part of the Zodiack.

Dodecatheon, a kind of Herb with Leaves like Lettice: Alſo a ſecret Banquet that the Emperour Auguſtus made, conſiſting of Twelve Gueſts of both Sexes.

Dodkin, a ſmall Piece of Money, which ſome think to be of the ſame Value as our Farthing.

Dodo, the Monk-ſwan of St. Maurice's Iſland, a Bird having a great Head, cover'd with a Skin reſembling a Monk's Cowl.

Dodrans (Lat. among the Romans) Nine Ounces; Nine Parts of Twelve, or three Parts of Four, with reſpect to any entire thing ſo divided: Alſo a full Span from the Thumbs-end, to the Top of the little Finger.

Doeg (Heb. Careful) King Saul's chief Herdſman, who betray'd David.

Dog, a well known Creature.

Dog-brier or Sweet-brier, a Shrub.

Dog-days. See Canicular Days.

Dog-draw (in the Foreſt-law) a Term us'd when any Man is found Drawing after a Deer, by the Scent of a Hound which he leads in his Hand: This is one of the Four Circumſtances, wherein a Foreſter may Arreſt the Body of an Offender againſt Vert or Veniſon; the other three being Back-berond, Bloody-hand and Stable-ſtand; which See.

Dog-fennel, a Plant that has dark Green Leaves, and broad White Flowers at the top of the Branches, without Scent.

Dogs-bane, an Herb ſo call'd, becauſe it kills Dogs.

Dogs-graſs, a Plant common in Gardens and Plough'd Fields, good to provoke Urine, and waſte the Stone.

Dogs-Mercury, a ſort of Herb.

Dogs-ſtones, a kind of Satyrion or Rag-wort, an Herb of great Virtue in provoking Venery, and otherwiſe call'd Adders-graſs, perhaps becauſe Adders or Vipers uſe to lurk about it.

Dogs-tooth or Dogs-tooth Violet, another ſort of Satyrion Half a Foot high, with a ſingle Flower of a White, Purple, Red, or Yellow Colour, ſet with Six Chives rooted long and White, like a Dog's tooth.

To Dog one, to follow one cloſe, in order to know where he is going.

Doge of Venice or Genoa, the Duke or Chief Magiſtrate of either of thoſe Common-wealths.

Doggiſh, that is of a doggiſh Humour, ſullen, ſurly, crabbed.

Dogger, a kind of ſmall Light Ship of about Eighty Tun Burden, with a Well like a Cullender in the Middle, wherein live Cod-fiſh are put to bring them to the Shore or River's Mouth.

Dogger-fiſh, Fiſh formerly brought in ſuch Veſſels to Blackney-Haven, and elſewhere.

Dogget. See Docket.

Doggrel or Rhime-doggrel, pitiful Poetry; ſorry, paltry Verſes.

Dogma (Gr.) a Decree, a received Opinion; a Maxim or Tenet.

Dogmatica Medicina, the rational Method of practiſing Phyſick, ſuch as was us'd by Hippocrates and Galen: Whence thoſe Phyſicians are call'd Dogmatical, who upon the Principles of School-Philoſophy, reject all Medicinal Virtues that they think not reducible to manifeſt Qualities.

Dogmatical or Dogmatick, a relating to a Dogma, inſtructive; alſo peremptory or poſitive, wedded to his own Opinion.

Dogmatici (Lat.) Phyſicians that confirm their Experience by Reaſon.

Dogmatick Philoſophy, that ſort of Philoſophy, which being grounded upon ſound Principles, poſitively aſſures a thing, and is oppoſed to Scepticks.

Dogmatiſt, one that dogmatizes, a dogmatical Teacher; brings in any new Sect or Opinion, a Broacher of ſtrange Doctrines.

To Dogmatize, to ſpeak poſitively or peremptorily, to give Precepts or Inſtructions; to teach new Opinions, or diſpute the Truths of Religion.

Doit or Doitkin, a ſmall baſe Coin in the Low Countries, of leſs Value than our Farthing, prohibited by Stat. 3. H. 5. Whence the Phraſe, He is not worth a Doit, or a Doitkin.

Doke, a word us'd in Eſſex and Suffolk, for a deep Ditch or Furrow.

Dol (Welſh.) a low Meadow by a River's ſide; whence the Town of Deal in Kent took its Name.

Dolabra (Lat.) a Carpenter's Ax, a Chip-ax, a Cooper's Addz, a great Planer: Alſo the Pontifical Ax with which the Roman Prieſts us'd to knock down Beaſts offer'd in Sacrifice.

Dole (Sax.) a Part or Portion. The Word ſtill ſignifies a Share, a diſtributing or dealing of Alms, a Liberal Gift of a Noble-man to the People.

Doles or Dools, certain Balks or ſlips of Paſture left between the Furrows in plough'd Lands.

Dole-fiſh, that Fiſh which the Fiſhermen employ'd every Year in the North Seas, uſually receive for their Allowance.

Dole-meadow, a Meadow wherein divers Perſons have a ſhare.

Doleful (Lat.) woeful, mournful, lamentable, ſad.

Dolgbote (Sax. Law-word) a Recompence made for a Wound or Scar.

Dolichurus (Gr.) that has a long Tail. Dolichurus Verſus, a long-tail'd Verſe, having a Foot or Syllable two much.

Dolichus, a Space of Ground containing 12 Furlongs, or 24, according to Suidas: Alſo the French Bean, or Kidney-bean, a ſort of Pulſe.

Dollar, a foreign Coin: The Zeoland, or common Dollar is worth 3 Shillings Sterling, the Specie-Dollar 5 s. The Dollar of Riga 4 s. 8 d. Of Lunenburgh and Briſgaw, 4 s. 2 d. Of Hamburgh 3 s. 2 d.

Dolling (old word) warning.

Dolorous (Lat.) painful, ſorrowful, woeful, grievous, ſad.

† Dolour, Pain, Grief, Sorrow, Affliction, Torment, Anguiſh.

Dolphin (Gr.) a Sea-fiſh with a round arched Back, the Fleſh of which is like that of an Ox: Alſo the Name of a Northern Conſtellation. See Delphin.

Dolphin or Dauphin, a Title given to the French King's eldeſt Son, whoſe Coat of Arms is ſet out with Dolphins and Flowers-de-luce. See Dauphin.

Dolphins (in Gunnery) the Handles that are made to ſome pieces of Ordinance. See Maniglions.

Dolt, a meer Sot, or Block-head.

Doltiſh, ſtupid, ſottiſh, dull.

Dolven (old word) buried, from Delve to dig.

Dolyman, a kind of Turkiſh Garment.

Dombec (i. e. Book of Judgment) a Statute Book belonging to the Engliſh Saxons, in which the Laws of their Kings were contain'd.

Dome (Ital.) a Town-houſe or Chief Meeting-place of a City or Town: In Architecture, a vaulted Roof or Tower of a Church, or any ſuch great Building; a Cupola, as that of St. Paul's Church London, St. Peter's at Rome, &c. Among Chymiſts, a kind of arched Cover for a Reverberatory Furnace.

Dome, is alſo a Saxon word for Doom or Judgment: Whence Falling of Domes, a Scotch Phraſe which ſignifies a reverſing of Judgment, or making void Decrees.

Domes-man or Dooms-man, a Judge or Perſon appointed to doom or determine Suits at Law, or Differences: Alſo a Confeſſour or Prieſt that hears Confeſſions.

Domeſtick (Lat.) belonging to the Houſhold or Family; as A domeſtick Servant, Chaplain, &c.

Domicil, a Dwelling-houſe, a place of Habitation or Abode.

Domigerium (in ancient Latin Writers) Dammage, Danger.

Domina, Dame, Lady, a Title formerly given to thoſe honourable Women that held a Barony in their own Right of Inheritance.

Domination, Dominion, Empire, Soveraignty Lordſhip, Rule, Authority.

Dominations, is alſo one of the Nine Orders of Angels.

To Domineer, to Govern, to bear Rule or ſway, to be Lord and Maſter, to inſult, vapour, or Lord it over.

Domini, as Anno Domini (i. e. in the Year of our Lord) an Expreſſion commonly us'd to denote the Computation or Date of Time, from the Birth of our Lord and Saviour Jeſus Chriſt.

Dominica or Dies Dominicus, the Lord's Day, which takes Name from our Bleſſed Saviour's Reſurrection, and is commonly call'd Sunday.

Dominica in Ramis Palmarum, Palm-Sunday, ſo call'd from the Palm-branches, and other Green Boughs formerly diſtributed on that Day, in Remembrance of our Lord's ſolemn riding to Jeruſalem.

Dominical Letter, one of the firſt ſeven Letters of the Alphabet, with which the Sundays throughout the whole Year are mark'd in the Almanacks.

Dominicans, an Order of Friers, founded by one Dominick a Spaniard, about A. D. 1206.

Dominicum (Lat.) the Bleſſed Sacrament of the Lord's Supper.

Dominicum or Terræ Dominicales, a Law-Term ſignifying Demain or Demeſne, i. e. Lands not let out to Tenants, but kept for the Lord's own Uſe and Service. See Demain.

Dominicum antiquum Regis, the King's ancient Demeſne, or ſuch Royal Manours as were reſerv'd to the Crown, for maintaining of the King's Houſhold, and not diſpoſed of to Barons or Knights to be held by any feudatory or military Service.

Dominion, Government, Rule, Authority, Juriſdiction; the Extent of a Kingdom, or State.

Dominium (Lat.) Dominion, Lordſhip, Empire, Principality, Ownerſhip: In ſome of our ancient Writers, Right, or Legal Power; alſo a Lordſhip or Manour.

Domino, a kind of Hood worn by the Canons of a Cathedral Church; alſo a Mourning Vail for Women.

Dominus, a Lord or Maſter, a Ruler, a Landlord: This Title in ancient times being ſet before the Name of a Perſon, denoted him a Knight or a Clergy-man; yet it was ſometimes given to a Gentleman of Quality, tho' not a Knight, eſpecially if he were Lord of a Manour.

Domicellus (q. d. little Lord) a Title heretofore given to the Natural Sons of the French Kings.

Domo reparanda, a Writ for one againſt his Neighbour, by the fall of whoſe Houſe, going to Decay, he fears ſome Dammage may come to his own.

Domus, a Houſe, a Lodging, a Dwelling-place.

Domus Converſorum, the ancient Name of the Houſe where the Rolls are kept in Chancery-lane, London, ſo call'd, becauſe it was inhabited by Jews that were converted to Chriſtianity.

Don, a Spaniſh Word for Lord or Maſter.

Donaria (Lat.) certain Gifts and Preſents made by the Romans to their Gods, and hung up in their Temples, alſo the Temples where thoſe Gifts were offer'd.

Donation, a Publick Act whereby one may make over to another, the property of all or part of his Eſtate, a Deed of Gift, a Grant.

Donatiſts, a Sect of Hereticks raiſed by Donatus Biſhop of Carthage, A. C. 358. They held the Son of God to be Leſs than the Father, and the Holy Ghoſt to be inferiour to the Son, and affirm'd the True Church to be only in Africa.

Donativum or Donative, a Largeſs or Benevolence in Money or Corn, which the Emperours beſtow'd upon Soldiers, to gain their good Will and Votes in time of Need: The Word is ſtill us'd for a Dole, free Gift, or Preſent, made by a Prince or, Noble-man.

In a Law-ſenſe a Donative, is a Benefice meerly given and collated by the Patron to a Clerk, without Preſentation to the Biſhop, and without any Inſtitution or Induction by the Biſhop's Order.

Donax (Gr.) a ſort of Reed or Cane, of which Arrows were made; alſo a kind of Sea-Fiſh.

Donee (Lat. Law-word) the Perſon to whom Lands or Tenements are given.

Dongeon or Donjon (Fr.) a Tower or Platform in the midſt of a Caſtle; a Turret or Cloſet raiſ'd in the very Top of a Houſe. In Fortification, a large Tower or Redoubt of a Fortreſs, where the Garriſon may retreat in caſe of neceſſity and capitulate with greater Advantage.

Donour (Lat.) a Giver, a Benefactor: In a Law-ſenſe; one that gives Lands, &c. to another. See Feoffor.

Donum, a Gift, a Reward, a Preſent: In old Records, any ſort of Indowment, Right, or Property in Goods, &c.

Dools. See Doles.

Doom (Sax.) Sentence or Judgment.

Dooms-day, the Day of Judgment in the future State.

Doomſday-Book, a Tax-book, made in the time of King Edward the Confeſſour, or as others ſay, of William the Conquerour, and ſtill kept in the Exchequer, wherein all the Lands through England are regiſter'd with the Names of thoſe that then had them in Poſſeſſion.

Dooms-man, a Judge. See Domes-man.

Dor, the Drone-bee an Inſect: Alſo a Term uſ'd at Weſtminſter-School, for leave to ſleep a while.

Dorado (Span. i. e. gilded over) a Fiſh otherwiſe call'd the Sea-bream; or Amber-fiſh, the Head of which in the Water is Green, and the Body as Yellow as Gold: It is as good Meat as a Trout or Salmon, and is uſually catch'd with a Piece of White Linnen faſten'd to an Hook.

Dorcas (Gr.) the Roe-buck, a wild Beaſt very common in Scotland; alſo a proper Name of Women.

Doree, a Sea-fiſh, otherwiſe call'd St. Peter's Fiſh.

Dores or Black-Clocks, a ſort of Inſects that are great deſtroyers of all kind of Corn, whilſt it lies dry in the Ground, and before it ſprouts.

Dorias's Wound-wort, a large Herb with broad Leaves, ſo call'd from one Captain Dorias, who made Uſe of it to cure himſelf and his Soldiers, when Wounded.

Dorick Dialect. See Dialect.

Dorick Mood (in Muſick) one of the Five Moods or Tones in uſe among the Ancients, which conſiſted of ſlow-tun'd Notes, and was proper for ſtirring up Perſons to Sobriety and Piety; ſo call'd from one of the Provinces of Greece, where it was firſt invented.

Dorick Order (in Architect.) one of the Five Orders which likewiſe took Name from the Dorians, wherein the ſimple Columns or Pillars without Pilaſters are $7\frac{1}{2}$ or 8 Modules high; but if they have Pilaſters, their Height reckoning Baſe and Chapiter muſt be $17\frac{1}{3}$ Modules. However it is obſervable, That tho' a Module in all the other Pillars be a Diameter divided into 60 equal Parts, yet in this Order the Module is to be accounted, but as the Semi-Diameter, and is therefore of 30 ſuch Parts.

Dormant (Lat. i. e. being a-ſleep) a Term uſ'd by Heralds when a Lion is born in any Coat of Arms in a ſleeping Poſture. Money is alſo ſaid To lie Dormant, when it is not put to Uſe or improved in Trade.

Dormant-Tree (among Carpenters) a great Beam that lies a-croſs an Houſe, and is by ſome call'd a Summer.

Dormant Writing, a Deed that has a Blank to put in the Name of any Perſon.

Dormer or Dormer-Window, a ſort of Window made in the Roof of a Houſe.

Dormitory or Dorter, a Sleeping-place, or Bed-chamber, eſpecially in a Monaſtery. See Dorter.

Dormouſe, a ſort of Wild-Rat that is nouriſh'd in a Tree, and ſleeps all the Winter in the hollow of it.

Dornick, a kind of Stuff uſ'd for Curtains, Carpets and Hangings, ſo call'd from Doornick, or Tournay, a City in Flanders, where it was firſt made.

Doron (Gr.) a Gift or Preſent; alſo a kind of ancient Meaſure, the ſame as Paleſt. Which See.

Doronicum, an Herb like Wolf-bane in Shape, but not in Qualities; for it is ſaid to be a Soveraign Cordial, and to reſiſt the Poiſon both of venomous Creatures and Drugs.

Dorothy, a proper Name of Women, ſignifying the Gift of God.

Dorp or Thorp, a Country-Town, or Village.

Dorſer or Doſſer, a ſort of Pannier or great Basket, to carry things on Horſe-back.

Dorſi Latiſſimus. See Latiſſimus Dorſi.

Dorſi Longiſſimus, a Muſcle which ariſes from the Spine of the Os Ilium, and the upper part of the Sacrum, as alſo from all the Spines of the Vertebræ of the Loins, and in its Aſcent is inſerted to the tranſverſe Proceſſes of the ſame Vertebræ: This great Muſcle as it marches over the laſt Rib, divides its ſelf into two, of which the innermoſt next the Spine ſtill retains its Name, but the outermoſt is call'd Sacrolumbalis.

Dorſiparous or Dorſiferous Plants, ſuch as are of the Capillary kind, without Stalks, and bear their Seeds on the back-ſide of their Leaves: Theſe are alſo termed by ſome Herbaliſts, Epiphylla, or Epiphylloſperma, and by others Hypophylloſpermæ. See Capillary Plants.

Dorſum (Lat.) the Back, or hinder part of the Cheſt; alſo the back or out-ſide of the Hand or Foot.

Dort or Dordrecht, an ancient and rich City of Holland, famous for the Synod or great Aſſembly of Calviniſtical Divines held there, A. D. 1618.

Dorter, Dortour, or Dorture, the Common Room or Place, where all the Friers of one Convent ſleep together, and lie all Night.

Doſe (Gr.) the ſet quantity of a Potion or other Medicine given or preſcribed at once, by a Phyſician to his Patient.

Doſel or Dorſel; a rich Canopy under which Princes ſit; alſo the Curtain of a Chair of State.

Doſens or Dozens, a ſort of ſtraight Cloaths made in Devonſhire.

Doſiners. See Deciners.

Doſology (Gr.) a Diſcourſe concerning the Doſe or Quantity of Herbs or Drugs, i. e. how much of every one ought to be taken at a time, as well in compounded as in ſimple Medicines.

Doſſale or Dorſale (in old Latin Writers) Hangings, or Tapeſtry.

Doſſer. See Dorſer.

Doſſil, a kind of Tent, to be put in Wounds.

Dotage, a doting, a being ſtupid or dull.

Dotard, a doting Fellow.

To Dote, to grow dull, fooliſh, or ſenſeleſs; to loſe one's Senſes. To dote upon, to be extremely fond of.

Dote aſſignanda (Lat.) a Writ directed to the Eſcheator, and lying for the Widow of the King's Tenant in Chief, who makes Oath in Chancery, that ſhe will not Marry without the King's leave.

Dote unde nihil habet, a Writ of Dower that lies for a Widow againſt the Tenant, who bought Land of her Husband in his Life-time, of which he was poſſeſſed only in Fee ſimple or Fee-tail, in ſuch ſort as the Iſſue of them both might have inherited it.

Dothien (Gr.) a Felon, Whitlow or Boil; but it is more eſpecially taken by ſome Writers for a kind of hard Swelling or Puſh, as big as a Pigeon's Egg, attended with grievous Pain, proceeding from thick Blood.

Doting-Tree (in Husbandry) a Tree almoſt worn out with Age.

Dotkin or Dodkin, a ſmall Dutch Coin, the Eighth part of a Stiver. See Doit or Doitkin.

Dotterel, a kind of Bird ſo call'd from its doting Fooliſhneſs, in imitating the Actions of the Fowlers, till it be catch'd in the Net: Of theſe Birds there is great ſtore in Lincolnſhire.

Douane (Fr.) a Cuſtom-houſe or Place where any Duty is paid for Merchandizes, &c. that at Lyons in France being more eſpecially known to Traders by this Name.

Double, two-fold, twice as much, or twice the Value; alſo diſſembling, deceitful or treacherous.

A Double (a Term in Printing) the miſtake of a Compoſitor, that ſets the ſame thing twice: Alſo a French Braſs-coin worth two Deniers.

To Double, to make double, or fold up: Among Hunters, when a Hare keeps in plain Fields, and winds about to deceive the Hounds, it is ſaid ſhe Doubles: In Military Diſcipline, To double is to put two Ranks into one, or two Files into one; accordingly as it is expreſs'd by the Word of Command.

Doubles, Folds, in a Law-ſenſe, the Duplicates of Letters Patent.

Double Baſtion. See Baſtion.

Double Deſcant. See Deſcant.

Double Eccentricity. See Eccentricity.

Double Horizontal Dial, a kind of Dial invented by Mr. Oughtred, and made of Braſs, with a double Gnomon or Cock, one to ſhew the Hour on the outward Circle, and the other to ſhew the ſame Hour in the Stereographick Projection drawn on the Plate. This Inſtrument not only finds the Meridian Hour, &c. but alſo the Sun's Place, Riſing and Setting, Declination, Amplitude, Azimuth and Diurnal Arch, with many uſeful Propoſitions.

Double Flower (in French, La Double Fleur) the Name of a very beautiful, large and flat Pear, which is beſt for Compotes, and therein exceeds any other Pear.

Double Pellitory, a ſort of Herb.

Double Plea, a Plea in which the Defendant alledges for himſelf two ſeveral Matters, againſt the Plaintiff, in bar of the Action; whereof either is ſufficient for that purpoſe: But this is not to be admitted in the Common-Law; and Sir Thomas Smith gives this Reaſon, becauſe the Tryal is by Twelve illiterate Men, whoſe Heads are not to be troubled with over many things at once.

Double Quarrel (in Law) is a Complaint made by a Clerk or other Perſon to the Archbiſhop of the Province, againſt an Inferiour Ordinary for delaying Juſtice in ſome Eccleſiaſtical Cauſe; as to give Sentence, to inſtitute a Clerk preſented, &c. And this ſeems to be ſo termed, becauſe it is moſt commonly made both againſt the Judge and the Party, at whoſe Petition Juſtice is delay'd.

Double Tenaille or Flanked Tenaille. See Tenaille.

Double Veſſel (in Chymiſtry) is when the Neck of one Bolt-head, or Matraſs is joyn'd and well luted into the Neck of another. And this is us'd for the Circulation of Spirits, in order to their being exalted and refin'd to the higheſt Degree; as alſo for the opening or ſubtilizing of any mixt Body, by a long Digeſtion.

Double Uſance. See Uſance.

Doubler, a large Platter.

Doublet, an old-faſhion'd ſort of Garment: Among Lapidaries, a falſe Stone or Jewel, conſiſting of two Pieces joyn'd together. Doublets is alſo the doubling of a Hare, when ſhe Winds up and down, to avoid the Dogs; alſo a Throw at Dice-play, when two Dice come up with the ſame Point or Points.

Doublings (in Heraldry) the Linings of Robes, Mantles of State, or other Garments.

Doucet, a kind of Cuſtard.

Doucets or Doulcets (among Hunters) the Stones of a Deer or Stag.

Doucine (Fr. in Architect.) is an Ornament of the higheſt part of the Cornice, or a Moulding cut in form of a Wave, half Convex and half Concave.

Dove, a Female Pigeon.

Doves-foot, an Herb, a kind of Cranes-bill, good for the Wind-Colick, Stone and Gravel, Wounds inward and outward, Ruptures, &c.

Doves-tail Joynt, a ſort of Joynt us'd by Carpenters and Joyners, and ſo call'd for its reſembling that Figure.

Doughty (old Word) valiant, ſtout, undaunted, reſolute.

Douillet (Fr.) ſoft, tender, nice: Whence in Cookery, a particular manner of Dreſſing a Pig, is call'd au Pere Douillet.

Doulſabel (i. e. ſweet and fair) a proper Name of Women.

To Dow, an old Engliſh Word for to give; as To whom for evermore my Heart I dow. Chaucer.

Dowager, a Widow endowed or that enjoys her Dower; a Title chiefly apply'd to the Widows of Princes, Dukes, Earls and other Perſons of Honour; as The Queen Dowager, a Counteſs Dowager, &c.

Doway, a Town of Flanders, noted for an Engliſh Seminary or Nurſery of Prieſts eſtabliſh'd by the procurement of William Allen of Oxford. A. D. 1568.

Dowdy, a ſwarthy groſs Woman.

Dower (in Common-Law) ſignifies two things, viz. That Portion which the Wife brings to her Husband: Secondly and more commonly, that which ſhe has of her Husband, after the Marriage is ended, if ſhe out-live him.

Dowlas, a ſort of Linnen-Cloth ſo call'd becauſe it is made at Dourlens, a Town of Picardy in France.

Down, the fineſt Feathers of Geeſe, with which Beds, Pillows, &c. are ſtuff'd: Alſo a ſoft woolly Subſtance, growing on the tops of Thiſtles, and other Plants.

Downs, hilly Plains, or hills conſiſting of Sand or Gravel: Alſo a part of the Sea, lying near the Sand-banks on the Coaſt of Kent, where Ships uſually ride.

Downy, full of, or partaking of the Nature of Down; as Downy Fruits, or Leaves, a Downy Beard, &c.

Dowry, a Marriage-Portion brought by a Wife to her Husband, from the old Engliſh Word, To dow, i. e. to give; but it is often confounded with Dower, Which See.

Dowſe, a blow on the Chaps.

Dowtremere, a Word us'd by Chaucer, for fair Weather.

Doxology (Gr.) a Verſe or ſhort Hymn of Praiſe, anciently appointed in the Church, to be ſaid in Divine Service, after the Prayers and Pſalms; as the Gloria Patri, i. e. Glory be to the Father. &c. The Concluſion of the Lord's Prayer, viz. for thine is the Kingdom, the Power and the Glory, &c. which is ſometimes left out, is alſo termed the Doxology.

Doxy, a She-Begger, a Trull, a Punk.

To Doze, to make or to grow dull, heavy, or ſleepy.

Dozel or Doſſel, a ſort of Tent for a Wound without a Head.

Drab, a common Whore, a dirty Slut.

Draba or Drabe (Gr.) an Herb growing a Cubit high, and having a Tuft like Elder at the Top; Yellow Creſs.

Drabler (in a Ship) a ſmall Sail ſet on a Bonnet, as the Bonnet is on a Courſe; and only us'd when the Courſe and Bonnet are not deep enough to Cloath the Maſt. See Bonnet.

Dracæna (Gr.) the Female or She-dragon; alſo the Fiſh Quaviver.

Drachma, a Drachm or Dram, a Greek Coin equal to Seven Pence Half-penny of Engliſh Money: Alſo a kind of Weight compoſ'd of two Scruples, and each Scruple of two Oboli: But with us it is taken for the Eighth Part of an Ounce, and contains three Scruples. See Dram.

Drachmon or Darcon, an Hebrew Gold-Coin, being half the Shekel, and of Fifteen Shillings Value.

Draco (Lat.) a Dragon, a kind of Serpent; a Fiſh call'd a Quaviver or Sea-Dragon: Alſo the Herb Tarragon, often us'd in Sallets, to correct the Rawneſs of other Cold Herbs: Alſo the Enſign in ſhape of a Dragon peculiar to the ſeveral Companies of Roman Soldiers, as the Eagle was to the whole Legion or Regiment. See Draconarius. Alſo a Northern Conſtellation conſiſting of Thirty Three Stars.

Draco Arbor or Draconis Sanguis, a Tree that yields the Gum call'd Dragons-blood: Which See.

Draco Regius, the Standard or Enſign born in War by one of our former Kings, having the Figure of a Dragon upon it.

Draco Volans, a kind of Meteor that appears long and winding, and in Shape ſomewhat reſembles a flying Dragon.

Draco's Laws, certain rigid Laws, anciently made at Athens, in Greece, by one Draco; whence any ſevere Puniſhment for a ſlight Offence, is termed Draco's Law.

Draconarius (among the Romans) the Standard-bearer of their Foot-Companies of Soldiers, the Head of which drawn in Silver, and the reſt of the Body of Taffety, was ſtuck up at the Top of a Pike, fluttering in the Air like a Dragon; and out of it hung down great Bands, with tufts of Silk at the End.

Draconites or Draconitis (Gr.) a precious Stone taken out of a Dragon's Brain.

Dracontia or Dracontium, Dragon-wort or Dragons; an Herb of a binding Quality and ſharp Taſte, good in Coughs, Rheums and Convulſions.

Dracontias, the Dragon-ſtone.

Dracunculus (Lat.) a little Dragon. Alſo an Herb having a Stalk ſpeckled like a Serpent, and a Root twiſted like a Dragon's Tail; Dragon-wort or Dragons: Alſo a kind of Ulcer that eats even thro' a Nerve it ſelf; alſo a long ſort of Earth-worm, which frequently grows to Indians Legs.

Dracunculus Hortenſis, the Herb Tarragon.

Draff, Waſh for Hogs.

Drag, a Hook; alſo a Fox's Tail, ſo termed by Hunters; alſo a ſort of Grain. See Dragium.

Drags, are alſo pieces of Timber ſo joyn'd together, as floating upon the Water, they may bear a Boat-load of Wood, or other Wares down a River.

To Drag, to draw by force, to draw after one; as a long Garment does; alſo to fiſh for Oiſters.

Drag-net, a Draw-net or Sweep-net.

Dragant or Tragacanth, a ſort of Gum diſtilling from an Herb of the ſame Name, in Engliſh call'd Goats-horn.

To Draggle, to draw, or trail in the Dirt.

Dragium (in old Latin Records) Drag, a Courſer ſort of Bread-corn.

Dragma (Gr.) a Handful, a Gripe: It is more eſpecially us'd by Phyſicians and Apothecaries, for a Handful of Herbs, &c.

Dragmis, is as much as may be taken up with three Fingers.

Dragoman or Druggerman, an Interpreter made uſe of in the Eaſtern Countries, for the more eaſy managing of Commerce and Trade.

Dragon, a ſort of Serpent, that with Age grows to a monſtrous Bigneſs; alſo a Name of a Conſtellation or Company of Stars. See Draco. The Word in Holy Scripture is often apply'd to the Devil.

Flying Dragons, certain fat and clammy Vapours, thinner in the middle, and thicker at each end, which being mov'd with an extraordinary ſwiftneſs, ſeem to fly in the Air like Dragons.

Dragon-fly, a ſort of Inſect.

Dragons-blood, the Gum or Roſin of a Tree call'd Anchuſe, of a deep Red Colour, which is brought from Africa, and other Parts.

Dragons-head (in Aſtron.) is a point where the Orbit of the Moon Cuts that of the Sun, and the Ecliptick-Line, in aſcending from the South to the North: So that the Moon being therein, is ſaid to have North Latitude; and it is thus marked ☊: Among Heralds, Dragons-head is taken for the Tenne, or Tawny Colour in the Eſcutcheons of Soveraign Princes.

Dragons-tail is a Point oppoſite to the Dragons-head in the Ecliptick, which the Moon Cuts, as ſhe deſcends from the North to the South, ſo as to begin her South Latitude: being uſually diſtinguiſh'd by this Character ☋: In Heraldry, it ſignifies the Murrey Colour in the Coats of Soveraign Princes; and in Chiromancy, the ſame as Reſtrict Line; which See.

Dragons-ſtone, a ſort of precious Stone.

Dragon-wort or Dragons, an Herb otherwiſe call'd Serpentary and Vipers-bugloſs.

Dragoon or Dragooner, a Soldier that Fights ſometimes on Horſeback, and ſometimes on Foot; a Musketeer mounted, by which means he is enabled to keep pace with the Horſe, and to do the Service of the Foot.

Drain, a Water-courſe or Sink: In Fortification, a Trench cut to clear a Moat or Ditch of Water.

To Drain, to draw away Waters by Ditches, Furrows, Conduits, &c.

Drainable, that may be drained.

Drake, a Male-Duck; alſo a ſort of great Gun.

Drake's-root, a kind of Plant.

Dram or Drachm (Gr.) the juſt Weight of Sixty Grains of Wheat: Among Apothecaries, it is the eighth part of an Ounce, containing three Scruples; and in Aver-du-pois Weight, the Sixteenth part of an Ounce.

Dramatick, relating to Acts, eſpecially thoſe of a Stage-Play; belonging to the Stage.

Dramatick Poem, a Compoſure deſign'd to be acted by ſeveral Perſons upon a Publick Stage, in order to ſet before the Eyes of the Spectators, a lively Repreſentation of Humane Actions: Of this ſort are Comedy, Tragedy, &c.

Drana (in ancient Latin Deeds) a Drain or Water-courſe, to draw away Water from wet Places.

Drap (Fr.) Cloath, Woollen-cloath. Whence Drap de Berry, a kind of thick Cloath, firſt made in the Country of Berry in France.

Draper, one that ſells Linnen or Woollen Cloath.

Drapery, a Cloth-Market. In Painting and Carving, a Work in which the Cloathing of any Humane Figures is repreſented: So that when the Garments hang eaſy and natural, and yet appear ſtrong, the Drapery is ſaid To be very good.

Draſcus (in ſome old Latin Writers) Grains, or the refuſe of Malt after Brewing, ſtill call'd in ſome Places, Drains and Draff.

Draſtica (Gr.) Draſtick Remedies, i. e. ſuch as operate or work, ſpeedily and effectually.

Draught, the reſemblance of a thing drawn with a Pencil or otherwiſe; the Copy of a Writing: In Navigation, the quantity of Water that a Ship draws, when ſhe goes a-float, or the Number of Feet under Water, when Laden, according to which ſhe is ſaid To be of more or leſs Draught: In Military Affairs Draught, ſignifies a Detachment of Soldiers; and in Trade, an Allowance made in the weighing of Commodities. See Clough.

Draughts, a kind of Game, play'd on a Draught-board; among Husband-men, Harneſs for Horſes to draw with.

Draught-Compaſſes, a ſort of Compaſſes with ſeveral moveable Points, to make fine Draughts of Maps, Charts, Architecture, Fortification, Dialling, &c.

To Draw, to pull or pull out, to lead on, to trace with a Pencil, &c. Among Sailers a Ship is ſaid To draw ſo much Water, according to the number of Feet ſhe ſinks into it: Thus if Fifteen Foot from the bottom be under Water, or if ſhe ſink into the Water ſo many Foot perpendicular, ſhe is ſaid To draw fifteen Foot Water.

Draw-bridge, a Bridge made after the manner of a Floor, to be drawn up, or let down, (as occaſion ſerves) before the Gate of a Town or Caſtle.

Draw-gear, any Harneſs or Furniture of Cart-horſes for drawing a Waggon or other Carriage.

Draw-latches, a ſort of mighty Thieves ſo termed in ſeveral old Statutes, and otherwiſe call'd Roberds-men.

Draw-net, a kind of Net for taking the larger ſort of Fowl.

Drawing (among Painters and other Artiſts) the Repreſentation of the Form or Shape of any Bodily Subſtance, by an exact Obſervance of the Proportion of what is to be ſo imitated or repreſented: It comprehends Picture by the Life, Hiſtories, Landskips, Perſpective, &c. Drawing is alſo a Term us'd by Hunters, when they beat the Buſhes, &c. after a Fox.

Drawing amiſs, is when the Hounds or Beagles hit the Scent of their Chace contrary; ſo as to hit it up the Wind, when they ſhou'd have done it down; in which Caſe 'tis ſaid, They draw amiſs.

Drawing on the Slot, is, when the Hounds touch the Scent, and draw on till they hit on the ſame Scent.

Drawing-Pen, an Inſtrument made with a pair of Steel-chaps, and govern'd by a Screw, to draw Lines finer or thicker; as alſo to draw Five or Six Lines together, for Muſick-books, &c.

Drawing-Table, an Inſtrument with a Frame, to hold a Sheet of Royal-Paper, for Draughts of Ships, Fortifications, Buildings, Gardens, &c.

Drawk, a ſort of Herb.

To Drawl out one's Words, to ſpeak dreamingly.

Dray, a kind of Cart us'd by Brewers, for the carrying Barrels of Drink; alſo a Sled drawn without Wheels.

Dread, great Fear.

Dredge or Dreg (Country-word) Oats and Barley mingled together.

Dredgers, Fiſhers for Oiſters, a Term us'd in the Law of the Admiralty.

Dreery (old Word) lamentable, ſorrowful, diſmal.

Dreg, a ſort of Grain in Eſſex: In Staffordſhire, there is alſo a kind of Malt made of Oats mix'd with Barley, and commonly call'd Dreg-malt.

Dreint (old Word) drowned.

Dreit-Dreit (Fr.) an old Law-word ſignifying a double Right, that is a Right of Poſſeſſion and that of Dominion.

Drench, a Phyſical Potion for a Horſe.

To Drench, to give ſuch a Drench; alſo to Bathe or Soak.

Drenches or Drenges (Law-Term) a ſort of ancient Tenants in Chief, ſuch as at the Conqueſt being put out of their Eſtates, were reſtor'd; becauſe they did not oppoſe King William either by their Perſons or Counſels; the free Tenants of a Manour.

Drengage, the Tenure by which thoſe Drenchers held their Lands.

Drepanis (Gr.) a Sea-Swallow.

To Dretch, (old Word) to dream, to tarry.

To Dribble, to let one's Spittle drip out of the Mouth; to ſlabber.

Dribblet (old Word) a ſmall Portion: It is ſtill us'd for a little Summ of Money owing.

Drift, Purpoſe, Scope, Aim. In Sea-language, any thing that floats upon the Water; as Drifts of Ice, &c. A Boat is alſo ſaid To go a-drift, when it has no body to Row or Steer her.

Drift of the Foreſt, is an exact View or Examination what Cattel are in the Foreſt, that it may be known, whether it be over-charged or not, and whoſe the Beaſts be.

Drift-land. See Drofland.

Drift-ſail, (in a Ship) a Sail which is only us'd under Water, and Veer'd or let out Right a-head, by Sheat-ropes, to keep the Ship's Head right upon the Sea, in a Storm, or when ſhe Drives too faſt in a Current; upon which account it is generally made uſe of by Fiſher-men, eſpecially in the North Seas.

Drill, a Baboon or over-grown Ape, alſo a ſort of Boring-tool us'd by Stone-cutters, Turners, &c.

To Drill, to bore Holes with a Drill, to draw in or entice. To Drill one on, to amuſe one, to baffle or ſham him with falſe Pretences.

Drinkham or Drinklean, a certain Quantity of Drink, provided by Tenants for the Entertainment of the Lord, or his Steward: It is otherwiſe call'd Scot-ale.

Drip, a Term in Architecture. See Corona and Larmier.

Dripping, the Fat that drops from Meat, as it is Roaſting. Dripping or Dropping, is alſo a Term us'd in Falconry, when a Hawk Mutes directly downwards in ſeveral Drops, not yerking it ſtraight forwards.

To Drive, to guide or lead; to put on or force; to paſs forward as a Coach, Cart or Waggon does: Among Mariners; a Ship is ſaid To drive, when an Anchor being let fall, will not hold her faſt, but that ſhe falls away with the Tide or Wind: Alſo when a Ship is a-hull, or a-try, with her Sails taken in, the Sea-phraſe is, That ſhe drives to the Leeward, or in with the Shore, according to the Way ſhe makes.

Drive-bolts (in a Ship) are long Iron-pins us'd for the driving out other Bolts, Nails, Pins, &c.

To Drivel, to let the Spittle fall on one's Chin; to Slabber, Slaver, or Foam.

Driver, one that Drives; alſo a Cooper's Tool.

To Drizzle, to fall in ſmall Drops, as the Rain does.

Drizzly, full of ſmall Drops or Dew.

Drofden, (amongſt our Saxon Anceſtours) ſignify'd a Grove or Woody Place, where Cattel were kept, and the Keeper of ſuch Place was call'd Drofman.

Droffen, Dru, Druff and Druften, are Words us'd in Doom's-day-Book, for a Thicket of Wood in a Valley.

Drofland or Dryfland, a yearly Payment anciently made by ſome Tenants to their Land-lords, for driving their Cattel through the Manour, to Fairs and Markets.

Droit (Fr.) Right, Equity, Juſtice: It is alſo us'd in the ſame ſenſe in Common-Law, as Of meer Droit and very Right, Droit Advowſon, &c. Alſo a kind of Meaſure. See Perit.

Droll, a merry Companion, or Buffoon, a Libertine or looſe Liver: Alſo a ſort of Farce or Mock-Play.

To Droll, to play the Droll, to Jeſt or Joke.

Drollery, Drolling, a merry pleaſant Way of ſpeaking or Writing.

Dromas (Gr.) the Dromedary, a kind of Camel with two Bunches on the Back; ſaid to be very ſwift, to travel above a Hundred Miles in one Day, and to abide three Days Journey without Drink.

Dromo, a Caravel or ſwift Bark that ſcours the Seas; alſo a ſort of Fiſh of great ſwiftneſs.

Dromones, Dromi or Dromunda (in our old Writers) certain Ships or Veſſels of a large ſize, made for great Burden and ſwift Sailing.

Drone, a kind of Fly or Waſp without a ſting; whence it is figuratively taken for a Hum-drum, a ſlothful Fellow.

Dronkelew (old Word) given to Drink.

To Droop, to fade as Flowers do, to be afflicted, to languiſh, or grow faint.

Drop, the ſmalleſt Quantity that can be of Water or any other Liquor: In Architecture, an Ornament on the Pillars of the Dorick Order, underneath the Triglyphs, repreſenting Drops or little Bells.

Drop-wort, an Herb counted good againſt the Strangury, and the Stone in the Kidneys or Bladder.

Dropax, a ſort of Ointment uſ'd by the Ancients to take away Hair.

Dropax or Dropacismus, a Medicine made of Pitch and Oil, with other Ingredients, which helps ſuch as are troubled with frequent Vomitings, Colick and rawneſs of Stomach; as alſo all ſuch Parts as do not grow for want of Nouriſhment.

Dropping See Dripping.

Dropſical, troubled with, or ſubject to the Dropſy.

Dropſy, a Diſeaſe, the ſettlement of a watery Humour, either throughout the whole Body, or elſe in ſome Part of it; as the Belly, Head, Breaſt, Hand, Foot, &c.

Droſomeli (Gr.) Honey-dew, or Manna.

Droſs, the Scum of Metals.

Droſſy, belonging to, or full of Droſs.

Drova (in old Latin Records) a Drove, Drift-way, or common Road for driving Cattel.

Drovy (old Word) troubled.

Drought, exceſſive Thirſt or Dryneſs; an over-drineſs of the Earth and Air, a long time of dry Weather.

Drouſy or Drowſy, inclined to ſleep, ſleepy, ſluggiſh.

Dru (Sax. i. e. Subtil) a proper Name of a Man: In Doomſday-Record, a thicket of Wood.

To Drub, to beat the Soles of the Feet with a Stick, a Puniſhment uſ'd in Turkey: Alſo ſimply, to cudgel or bang one ſoundly.

Drudge, one that is appointed to do all mean Services; a great Pains-taker in any Employment.

To Drudge, to toil and moil, to ſlave; alſo to fiſh for Oiſters after a particular manner.

Drudger or Dredger, an Oiſter-fiſher.

Drudgery, Drudging, Slavery.

Druggeria or Drogeria (in old Latin Records) a place of Drugs, a Drugſter's Shop.

Druggerman. See Dragoman.

Drugs, all ſorts of Simples for the moſt part dry, eſpecially ſuch as are brought from far diſtant Countries, being ſerviceable in Phyſick, as alſo to Painters, Diers and other Artificers. The Word is alſo apply'd to ſorry Commodities of little Value, that lie upon a Merchant's Hands.

Drugget, a ſort of Woollen Stuff.

Druggiſt or Drugſter, a Seller of, or Dealer in Drugs.

Druids, certain Prieſts and Philoſophers of great Eſteem among the Britains and Gauls; ſo nam'd from the Greek word Drys, an Oak, becauſe they uſ'd to live amidſt the Woods and Foreſts.

Drum, a well known Warlike Muſical Inſtrument, or the Man that beats it: Alſo a fine Sieve, made uſe of by Confectioners, to ſift powder'd Sugar, &c.

Drupæ (Lat.) unripe Olives, or rather Olives growing Black with Ripeneſs, and ready to drop off from the Trees.

Drury (old Word) Sobriety, Modeſty.

Druſilla (Lat.) the proper Name of ſeveral Eminent Women.

Dry, that has no Moiſture or Juice, parched, thirſty; empty, flat; reſerved, ſtingy: In Piloſophy, Bodies are call'd Dry, when the Pores contain'd between their more firm Parts are not fill'd with any viſible Liquor.

Dry Dock. See Dock.

Dry Exchange (a Term in Uſury) when ſomething is pretended to be exchang'd on both ſides, yet nothing really paſſes but on one ſide.

Dry Moat. See Moat.

Dry Nurſe, a Nurſe who having loſt her Milk, brings up a Child by Hand, or tends a Woman that lies in.

To Dry-ſhave, to chowſe, gull, or cheat notoriouſly.

Dry-ſtitch (in Surgery) is when the Lips of a Wound are drawn together, by means of a piece of Linnen-cloth ſtuck on each ſide, with ſtrong Glue, or ſome Compoſition that is of a binding Quality.

Dryades (Gr.) certain Nymphs of the Woods, or Wood-Fairies, ſo call'd from Drys, an Oak; becauſe their Life was feign'd to be included in Trees.

Dryinus, the Oak-ſerpent.

Dryites, a precious Stone found in the roots of Trees.

Dryophonon, an Herb like Oak-fern.

Dryophyte, a kind of Frog.

Dryopteris, an Herb call'd Oſmund Royal, Oak-fern or Petty-fern.

Drys hyphear, a ſort of Miſſeltoe that grows on Oaks.

Dual (Lat.) belonging to Two, as The Dual Number in the Greek Grammar, i. e. that Number which ſignifies two Perſons or Things, and no more.

Duarium, Doarium or Dotarium (in ancient Deeds) the Dower or Joynture of a Wife, ſettled on her in Marriage, to be enjoy'd after her Huſband's Deceaſe.

To Dub a Knight, is to confer the Order of Knighthood upon one.

Dubing of a Cock, a Term uſ'd by Cock-Maſters for the cutting off a Cock's Comb and Wattles.

Dubious (Lat.) doubtful, uncertain.

Dublin, a large, rich and populous City, the ſecond in the Britiſh Iſles, and the chief of the Kingdom of Ireland.

Ducal, belonging to a Duke.

Ducape, a ſort of Silk uſ'd for Womens Garments.

Ducat or Ducket, a foreign Coin of Gold or Silver, ſo call'd from its being uſually ſtampt in the Territories of a Duke; as The Ducat de Banco at Venice, worth 4 Shillings 4 Pence Sterling, that of St. Mark, 2 s. 10 d. Of Rome, 5 s. 6 d. Of Meſſina, 4 s. 9 d. Of Palermo, 4 s. 10 d. Of Naples, 4 s. 2 d. Of Valencia in Spain, 4 s. 10 d. Of Saragoſſa, 4 s. 11 d. Of Barcelona, 5 s. 4 d. Of Lisbon in Portugal 4 s. 6 d. A Ducket of Gold is valu'd at 9 s. 6 d.

Ducatoon or Duckatoon, another ſort of foreign Coin: That of Holland and Flanders, amounts to 6 s. 3 d ½ Sterling, and that of Lucca in Italy, to 4 s. 6 d.

Ducenarii (Lat.) the Receivers of the Hundredth Penny; a Tax ſometime paid to the Roman Emperours.

Duces tecum, is a Writ commanding one to appear at a Day, in the Chancery, and to bring with him ſome Evidence or other Thing, which that Court would view. There is alſo another kind of Duces tecum directed to the Sheriff, upon Return, that he cannot bring his Priſoner, without danger of Death, he being adeo languidus, i. e. ſo weak; then the Court grants a Habeas Corpus in the Nature of a Duces tecum licet languidus.

Duck, a well known Water-fowl.

To Duck, to dive, to ſtoop, to bow.

Duck up, a Word uſ'd at Sea by the Steers-man, when the Main-ſail, Fore-ſail or Sprit-ſail hinder his ſight, ſo that he cannot ſteer by a Land-mark, &c. for then he cries Duck up the Clew-lines of thoſe Sails, i. e. hale them out of the way: The term is alſo more eſpecially made uſe of when a Shot is to be made with a Chace-piece, which would otherwiſe be hinder'd by the Clew of the Sprit-ſail.

Ducks-meat, an Herb that ſwims on the top of ſtanding Waters, good againſt all Inflammations and Swellings of any Part, which proceed from Heat.

Ducker or Doucker, a kind of Cock, that in Fighting will run about the Clod, almoſt at every Blow he gives.

Ducket. See Ducat.

Ducking at the Main-yard, a Puniſhment us'd at Sea, when a Malefactor having a Rope faſten'd under his Arms, about his Waſte, and under his Breech, is hoiſed up to the end of the Yard, and thence violently let fall into the Sea, two or three ſeveral times, after one another: If the Offence be great, he is alſo drawn underneath the Ships-Keel; which is termed Keel-raking.

Ductile, that may be eaſily drawn, hammer'd, or beat out into thin Plates.

Ductility, a being ductile, an eaſy yielding Extenſion and ſpreading of the Parts of any Metal, under the Hammer, &c. which is moſt remarkably the property of Gold.

Ductus (Lat.) a leading, guiding or Drawing, a Guidance or Draught; alſo a Conduit-pipe for the Conveyance of Water.

Ductus Adipoſi (in Anat.) certain Bladders of Fat. See Sacculi adipoſi.

Ductus Alimentalis, the Gullet, Stomach and Bowels, ſo call'd by Dr. Tyſon; all which make but one continued Canal or Duct.

Ductus Aquoſi, the Channels of the Veins that carry the Watery Humour call'd Lympha.

Ductus Biliarius or Ductus Hepaticus, a Channel which with the Ductus Cyſticus, makes the Ductus Communis Choledochus, that paſſes obliquely to the lower end of the Gut Duodenum, or beginning of the Jejunum. See Choledochus Ductus and Porus Biliarius.

Ductus Chyliferus, is a Veſſel that ariſes about the Kidney on the left Side, and aſcending along the Cheſt, near the great Artery, ends at the Subclavian Vein on the left Side: Its Uſe is to convey the Juices call'd Chyle and Lympha, from the lower Parts to the Heart. This Duct is alſo ſometimes call'd Ductus Communis Lympharum, becauſe the Lymphatick Veſſels diſcharge themſelves into it, and very often Ductus Thoracicus.

Ductus Cyſticus, is a Pipe that goes from the Neck of the Gall-bladder to that part where the Porus Biliarius joyns it, and is of the bigneſs of a Gooſe-quill.

Ductus Lachrymales, a Paſſage by which the Water that moiſtens the Eyes, is convey'd into the Noſe.

Ductus Pancreaticus, is a little Channel which takes Riſe from the Pancreas, or Sweat-bread, running along the middle of it, and is inſerted to the Gut Duodenum, not far from the Paſſage that conveys the Bile or Choler. It carries a Juice which it diſcharges into the Duodenum, to ferment and volatilize the Meat from the Acid Ferment of the Stomach, and the mixture of the Gall.

Ductus Roziferus, a Channel ſo nam'd by the learned Bilſius, being the ſame as the Ductus Chyliferus.

Ductus Salivares or Salivarii, are Paſſages which proceeding from the Maxillary Glandules or Parotides, paſs as far as the Jaws and ſides of the Tongue; where they ſend forth the Juice commonly call'd Spittle.

Ductus Thoracicus. See Ductus Chyliferus.

Ductus Virſungianus, is the Ductus Pancreaticus, a Canal which is often ſo call'd from Virſungus, who firſt found it out.

Ductus Umbilicalis, the Navel-Paſſage belonging to a Child in the Womb. See Funiculus.

Ductus Urinarius, the Urinary Paſſage, the ſame with Ureter and Urethra.

Dudgeon (old Word) Stomachfulneſs, Diſdain, Grudge: Whence the Phraſe, To take a Thing in Dudgeon, i. e. to take it hainouſly, or in ill part.

Dudgeon-dagger, a little Dagger.

Duel, a ſingle Combat between two Perſons, at a certain Place and Hour appointed, in purſuance of a Challenge: In a Law-ſenſe a Fight between two Men for the Tryal of the Truth, the Proof of which ſeem'd to be on the Conquerour's Side. This kind of Tryal is now diſus'd, tho' the Law be ſtill in Force.

Duella (Lat.) the third part of an Ounce, containing Eight Scruples, or two Drams and two Scruples.

Duelliſt or Dueller, one that Fights a Duel.

Duelliſts, a Name given by Mr. Boyle, to the two Principles of thoſe Philoſophers who would needs explain all the Phænomena or Appearances of Nature, from the Doctrine of Alkali and Acid, and the ſuppoſed Enmity there is between them; ſo that whenever they meet, they do as it were engage and Fight a Phyſical Duel.

Dug, the Teat of a Cow or other Beaſt.

Dug-tree, a kind of Shrub.

Duke, the higheſt Title of Honour in England, next to the Prince of Wales; in Latin, Dux, à ducendo, i. e. from leading; becauſe theſe Noblemen were anciently either Generals and Leaders of Armies during the Wars, or Governours of Provinces in time of Peace. A Duke is created by Patent, girding with a Sword; a Mantle of State, a Cap and Coronet of Gold ſet on his Head; and a Verge or Rod of Gold put into his Hand.

There are alſo Soveraign Dukes in ſome Foreign Countries, who have abſolute Power, within their reſpective Territories; as the Great Duke of Tuſcany, the Dukes of Savoy, Mantua, Modena, &c.

Dukedom or Dutchy, the Dominions and Territories of a Duke; as the Dukedom of Burgundy, the Dutchy of Deux-Ponts, &c.

Dulcamara (Lat. i. e. bitter-ſweet) an Herb call'd Windy Night-ſhade.

Dulcarnon, a certain Propoſition found out by Pythagoras; upon which account he offer'd an Ox in Sacrifice to the Gods, in Token of Thankfulneſs, and call'd it Dulcarnon: Whence the Word is taken by Chaucer, and other old Engliſh Writers, for any hard knotty Queſtion, or Point.

To Be at Dulcarnon, to be at one's Wits ends.

Dulcification (Lat.) the Act of dulcifying or making ſweet.

To Dulcify, to ſweeten or make ſweet. In Chymiſtry, to waſh off the Salt from any Metal or other mixt Body that was calcin'd with it, with warm Water; in which the Salt is diſſolv'd, and the Matter ſweeten'd. Alſo when equal Parts of Spirit of Wine and any Acid Menſtruum, ſuch as Spirit of Salt, Nitre, Vitriol, &c. are digeſted together for three or four Days time, the Chymiſts term it dulcifying the Acid Spirit, and after that it is call'd, Spiritus Salis, Nitri, Vitrioli Dulcis, &c.

Dulcimer, a kind of Muſical Inſtrument.

† Dulcitude, Sweetneſs.

Dulcoration a making ſweet, the ſame as Dulcification.

Dulocracy, (Gr.) a Government where Slaves and Servants domineer.

Dulwich-College, a noted Hoſpital at Dulwich in Surrey, founded by one Allen, ſometime an Actor of Stage-Plays, for a Maſter or Warden, 4 Fellows, 10 poor Men and Women, and as many poor Boys, with a Chaplain, School-Maſter and Uſher; the Revenues ſettled for that purpoſe being 900 Pounds per Annum.

Dum fuit infra ætatem, a Writ of one that before he came to his full Age, made a Feoffment or Donation of his Lands in Fee or for term of Life, or in Tail; to recover them again, from him to whom he convey'd them.

Dum non fuit compos Mentis, a Writ that lies againſt the Alienee or Leſſee, for one who not being of ſound Mind, did alien or make over any Lands or Tenements in Fee-ſimple, Fee-tail, for Term of Life, or for Years.

Dumb Signs or Degrees. See Mute Signs.

Dump, a ſudden Aſtoniſhment, a Melancholy Fit.

Dun, that is of a Browniſh Colour: In Horſes, a light Hair-colour next to a White, and Mouſe-dun, is a Mouſe-Colour.

To Dun, to come often, and preſs one to pay a Debt.

Dun-neck, a ſort of Bird.

Duna, (in ancient Latin Deeds) a Bank of Earth caſt up, the ſide of a Ditch.

Dunch, (old Word) Deaf.

Dung, Soil, Ordure, Filth.

Dung-fork, a Husbandman's Tool, with three Tines or Iron-ſpikes, for the better caſting of Dung, &c.

Dung-meers, are Places or Pits were Soils, Dungs, Weeds, &c. are mix'd, and lye and rot together for ſome time, for the Improvement of Husbandry.

Dungeon, the moſt loathſome, darkeſt and cloſeſt part of a Priſon; the Condemn'd Hole, where Malefactors are put a little before they are brought forth to Execution.

Dunio, (in old Latin Writers) a ſort of baſe Coin leſs than a Farthing; a Double.

Dunmow, a Town in Eſſex, wherein was a Priory, Famous for a pleaſant Cuſtom of giving a Flitch, or a Gammon of Bacon, to ſuch marry'd Couples, as did not repent of their Match, within a Year and a Day, nor made any Tranſgreſſion or Offence each to other in Word or Deed; upon their ſolemn Oath taken kneeling on two Stones at the Church-door, before the Prior or Convent.

Dunſtan, (Sax, moſt high) a proper Name, particularly of a Perſon much eſteem'd for his Piety and Learning by King Athelſtan, and ſeveral other ſucceeding Saxon Monarchs, under whom he bore a great ſway, and held for a long time the Archiepiſcopal See of Canterbury.

Dunum or Duna, a Word us'd in Doomſday-book for a Down, or hilly Plain; which Termination (in ſome, a little vary'd into Don) is found in the Names of many of our Towns; as Aſhdown, Cleydon, &c.

Duodecimo, (Lat.) a Book is ſaid To be in Duodecimo, or in Twelves, when it conſiſts of Twelve Leaves in a Sheet.

Duodena, (in old Records) a Jury of Twelve Men.

Duodenum, (in Anat.) the firſt of the thin Guts about Twelve Fingers breadth long, which is continu'd to the Pylorus, or lower Orifice of the Stomach, and ends at the firſt of the Windings under the Colon: This Gut differs from the Jejunum and Ileum, in that it is ſtraighter, and its Coats thicker.

Duplicarius or Duplicarius Miles, (among the Romans) a Soldier that had double Allowance, Pay, or Wages for his good Service.

Duplicate, a ſecond Letter Patent, granted by the Lord Chancellour, of the ſame Contents with the former; alſo any Tranſcript or Copy of a Writing.

Duplicate Proportion or Ratio, (in Arithm.) muſt be well diſtinguiſh'd from Double: For in a Rank of Geometrical Proportions, the firſt Term to the Third is ſaid To be in a Duplicate Ratio of the firſt to the ſecond, or as its Square is to the Square of the ſecond: Thus in 2, 4, 8, 16. the Ratio of 2 to 8 is a Duplicate of that of 2 to 4; or as the Square of 2 to the Square of 4; ſo that Duplicate Ratio is the proportion of Squares, as Triplicate is of Cubes. See Triplicate Ratio.

Duplicatio, (Lat.) a Term in the Civil-Law, anſwering to Rejoynder in the Common.

Duplication, a doubling, the folding of any thing back on its ſelf. In a Law-ſenſe, an Allegation brought in to weaken the Pleader's Reply: Alſo a Rhetorical Figure, the ſame with Anadiploſis: In Arithmetick, the multiplying of any Number by two.

Duplication of the Cube, is when the ſide of a Cube is found, which ſhall be double of a given Cube.

Dupondium, (Lat.) two Pound weight; alſo half an Ounce, or the Weight of 4 Drams in Drugs.

Durable, that is of a long Continuance, laſting.

Dura Mater, (Lat. in Anat.) the outward Membrane or Skin that encloſes the Brain. See Mater dura.

Durance, Impriſonment, Confinement.

Duration, Continuance. In a Philoſophical Senſe, it is the Idea we have of the Continuation of the Exiſtence or Being of any thing; and 'tis the ſame thing with Time, when the latter is Mathematically and abſolutely conſider'd: But Time, according to the common Notion, is the meaſure of this Duration, taken from the Motion of the Heavenly Bodies, &c.

Duration of an Eclipſe, (in Aſtron.) is the time the Sun or Moon remains Eclips'd or darken'd in any Part.

Durden, (in ancient Deeds) a Copſe, or Thicket of Wood in a Valley.

Dureſs, (Lat.) an old Word for Hardſhip: But it is ſtill us'd in Common-Law, for a Plea made by way of Exception, for one who being caſt into Priſon at a Man's Suit, or otherwiſe hardly us'd by Beating, Threats, &c. is forc'd to Seal a Bond to him, during his Reſtraint: For the Law holds ſuch Specialty to be void, and Dureſs pleaded ſhall defeat the Action.

Durgen, a little thick and ſhort Perſon; a Dwarf.

Durham, the chief City of the Biſhoprick, or County of the ſame Name in the North of England.

Durham-College, a College in Oxford repair'd by Sir Thomas Pope; and dedicated to the Holy Trinity.

Durotriges, an ancient People of Great Britain, who dwelt in that Part, which we now call Dorſetſhire.

Duſkiſh or Duſky, ſomewhat dark.

Duſty-foot, an old Law-word for a foreign Trader, travelling Merchant, or Pedlar, that has no ſettled Habitation. See Pie-powder.

Dutcheſs, a Duke's Wife.

Dutchy, the Territory of a Duke. In England, a Seigniory or Lordſhip eſtabliſh'd by the King under that Title, with ſeveral Privileges, Honours, &c. as The Dutchy of Cornwall, Lancaſter, &c. See Dukedom.

Dutchy-Court, is a Court wherein all Matters relating to the Dutchy or County-Palatine of Lancaſter, are decided by the Decree of the Chancellour of that Court: The other Officers belonging thereto, are the Attorney, Receiver General, Clerk, Meſſenger, &c. beſides ſome other Aſſiſtants.

Duty, any thing that one is oblig'd to do. In the way of Trade, Money paid for Cuſtom of Goods, to be apply'd to the Queen's own Uſe, as that of Tunnage, Poundage, &c. In Military Affairs, the Exerciſe of thoſe Functions that belong to a Soldier, eſpecially where an Enemy is not to be directly engag'd; for in that Caſe, it is call'd Going upon Service.

Duumvirate, (Lat.) an ancient Roman Magiſtracy, the Office of the Duumviri, or two Perſons in equal Authority.

Duumviri Capitales, certain Judges in Criminal Cauſes, appointed at Rome, and other free Cities, having great Authority and Power; for they took care of the Priſons like our Sheriffs, were Members of the Publick Council, and had two Lictors, or Ax-bearers walking before them.

Duumviri Municipales, two Magiſtrates, who were in the free Towns, what the Conſuls were at Rome: They alſo had Officers that walk'd before them, carrying a ſmall Switch in their Hands; and ſome of them aſſum'd the Privilege of having Lictors bearing Axes and Bundles of Rods.

Duumviri Navales, two Commiſſaries for the Fleet, Created A. V. 542. when the Romans were at War with the Samnites: The Duty of their Office was to take Care of the fitting of Ships, and ordering the Seamen.

Duumviri Sacrorum, two Commiſſioners appointed at Rome by King Tarquinius Superbus, whoſe Buſineſs was only to keep the Three Books of Verſes, which he bought of an unknown Woman, and were thought to have been Written by the Sibyl of Cumæ; as alſo to conſult thoſe Sacred Volumes in ſome Caſes, about what was to be done for the good of the State.

Dwale, an Herb otherwiſe call'd Sleeping, or Deadly Night-ſhade.

Dwarf, one that is extremely little and low in Stature whether Male or Female. At Okeham in Rutlandſhire, was born a Dwarf, ſcarce 18 Inches high when a Year old, and when 30, only about 3 Foot and 9 Inches; ſo that the Court coming in Progreſs that way, he was ſerv'd up in a Cold Pie, at the Duke of Buckingham's Table.

Dwarf-trees, certain Trees ſo call'd from the lowneſs of their Stature, which are of ſpecial Advantage for Table-fruit, whether Pears, Apples, Plums, Cherries, &c.

To Dwindle or Dwindle away, to decay, or waſte; to ſhrink, or conſume to nothing.

Dwined, (old Word) conſumed.

Dye, See Die.

Dyers-weed, an Herb with long narrow Leaves of a dark blewiſh Green Colour, us'd by Dyers and others, to make a Yellow Colour; Its Root cuts tough, and digeſts raw Phlegm, thins groſs Humours, diſſolves hard Swellings, and opens Stoppages.

Dyna, a kind of Eaſt India Coin worth about Thirty Shillings of our Engliſh Money.

Dynaſty, (Gr.) ſupreme Government, Seigniory, or Lordſhip, eſpecially among the ancient Egyptians. Alſo a Liſt of the Names of ſeveral Kings that have reign'd one after another in a particular Kingdom.

Dyſæſtheſia, (in the Art of Phyſick) a difficulty or fault in ſenſation, or the Faculty of perceiving things by the Senſes.

Dyſcineſia, an Uneaſineſs in moving, or ſtirring.

Dyſcraſia, a Diſtemper proceeding from the unequal Mixture of Elements in the Blood or Nervous Juice; or an Intemperature when ſome Humour or Quality abounds in the Body.

Dyſecoia, dulneſs of Hearing.

Dyſelces, troubled with Ulcers that are very hard to be cur'd.

Dyſentery, the Bloody-flux, a Looſeneſs with gripings in the Belly, voiding bloody corrupt Matter, and even skinny pieces of the Bowels, often attended with a continual Feaver and Drought.

Dyſepulotica, great inveterate Ulcers beyond Cure.

Dyſis, the Seventh Houſe in an Aſtrological Figure, ſometimes ſo call'd; the Word in Greek ſignifying the Sun-ſet, or the Weſt.

Dyſodes, that ſends forth an ill ſmell, ſtinking, as Excrements, Ordure.

Dyſorexia, a decay or want of Appetite, proceeding from an ill Diſpoſition, or diminiſhed Action of the Stomach.

Dyſpathia, an impatient Temper; or a Languiſhing under ſome grievous diſeaſe, or trouble of Mind.

Dyſpepſia, a Difficulty of Digeſtion, or Fermentation in the Stomach and Guts; ſo that the Nouriſhment is often turn'd into a ſharp Humour, and ſmells ill.

Dyſphonia, a Difficulty of Speech, occaſion'd by an ill Diſpoſition of the Organs.

Dyſphoria, an impatient Reſtleſneſs in ſuffering, or bearing.

Dyſpnœa, Difficulty of breathing, hardneſs or ſtraightneſs of Breath, Purſineſs.

Dyſtherapeuta, Diſeaſes that are of difficult Cure.

Dyſthymia, a Diſtemper, or indiſpoſition of the Mind.

Dyſtichia, a double Row of Hairs on the Eye-lids.

Dyſtocia, a Difficulty of bringing forth, or a preternatural Birth.

Dyſtrichiaſis, a continual falling down of Tears, caus'd by the pricking of Hairs in the Eye-lids, which grow under the Natural Hairs.

Dyſuria, a Difficulty of making Water, accompany'd with a ſcalding Heat, proceeding from an ill Diſpoſition of the Organs, or from a Stoppage of them by the Stone, Gravel, or ſlimy Humours; or elſe from an Inflammation or Exulceration of the Neck of the Bladder.

E A.

Ead or Eadith, (Sax.) a proper Name of Women, ſignifying Happineſs.

Eadelman or Adelman, a Saxon Word for a Noble-man.

Eadgar, (i. e. happy Power) a proper Name of Men. See Edgar.

Eadiſh. See Eddiſh.

Eadulph, (Sax.) happy Help.

Eadwin. See Edwin.

Eager, (Fr.) ſharp, ſow'r or tart of Taſte; ſharp ſet, or hungry; vehement, or earneſt.

The Eager, the Tide, Current, or ſwift Courſe of a River.

Eagle, the biggeſt and ſtrongeſt of all Birds of prey.

Eagle-ſtone, a ſort of Stone found in the Neſts of Eagles.

Eaglet, a young, or little Eagle.

Ealderman or Eolderman, among the Saxons, was the ſame as Earl with the Danes; and now we call them Aldermen, who are Aſſiſtants to the chief Magiſtrate of a City or Town Corporate.

Ealred, (i. e. all Counſel) a proper name of Men.

To Ean or Yean, to bring forth young, as Ewe or Female Sheep does.

Ear, the Inſtrument of Hearing.

To Ear, to ſhoot out Ears as Corn does.

To Ear or Are, to Till, Plough, or Fallow the Ground.

Ear-wig, an inſect which in ſome Years prove injurious to Fruit, by their great Numbers feeding on and devouring them.

Earing, (aboard a Ship) that part of the Bolt-rope, or Rope wherein the Sail is ſow'd, which is left open at all the Four Corners of the Sail, being round in ſhape of a Ring. The two uppermoſt of theſe Earings are put over the Yard-arms, to faſten the Sail to the Yard; and into the lower Earings the Tacks and Sheats are ſeized, or as the uſual Phraſe is, are there bent unto the Clew.

Eacites, (Gr.) the Blood-ſtone.

Earl, (Sax.) a Noble-man, next in Dignity to a Marqueſs, who is created by the Cincture or girding on of a Sword, a Mantle of State, having three Guards of Furrs, put upon him by the Queen herſelf, with a Cap and Gold-coronet on his Head, and a Charter in his Hand.

Earl Marſhal. See Marſhal.

To Earn, to get by one's Work, Labour, or Employment; it is alſo us'd in ſome Countries for to glean.

Earneſt, induſtrous, diligent, eager, vehement, important, weighty.

Earneſt, Earneſt-money or Earneſt-penny, a piece of Money given in Hand to bind a Bargain.

Earning, (Country-word) Rennet to turn Milk into Cheeſe-curds.

Earth, one of the four Elements: Alſo the laſt of the five Chymical Principles, being that which remains after all the other Principles are drawn out, by Diſtillation, Calcination, &c. This is uſually termed Terra Damnata, and Caput Mortuum.

To Earth, to go under Ground, to run into a Lurking-hole, as a Fox or Badger does.

Earth-bags, us'd in Fortification. See Canvas-bags.

Earth-nut, a Root growing ſomewhat deep in the Ground, in Shape and Taſte like a Nut, from which ariſe a few fine Leaves, with a Stalk and Umbel of White Flowers like Saxifrage, or Meadow-Parſley, but leſſer.

Earthing, (in Husbandry) the covering of Vines or other Trees and Herbs with Earth. Among Hunters, a Term us'd for a Badger's Lodging, as To dig the Badger, is to diſlodge him.

Earthly, belonging to the Earth.

Earthquake, a violent ſhock or ſhaking of the Earth, occaſion'd by Fire or hot Vapours pent up the Bowels or hollow parts of the Earth, which force a Paſſage, and often produce dreadful Effects; as the Deſtroying of Cities, overturning or ſwallowing up Mountains, &c.

Earthy, partaking of the nature or quality of Earth.

Earthy Triplicity (in Aſtrol.) the Signs Taurus, Virgo and Capricorn, ſo call'd from their Nature and Influence, as partaking of Earthy Qualities, viz. Coldneſs and Drineſs.

Eaſe, Reſt, Pleaſure, Comfort.

To Eaſe, to give Eaſe or Reſt, to aſſwage. In Sea-language, it ſignifies to ſlacken, to let go ſlacker or to let looſe: For when the Mariners would have any Rope ſlack'd, they ſay eaſe it, as Eaſe the Bowling, eaſe the Sheat, &c.

To Eaſe a Ship, is to ſlacken the Shrowds, when they are too ſtiff: And To Eaſe the Helm, is to bear or let the Ship fall to the Leeward.

Eaſel, a Wooden Frame, upon which a Painter ſets his Cloath, either higher or lower, at pleaſure; as the Picture is a Drawing.

Eaſement, eaſing, Refreſhment; alſo an Houſe of Office or Privy: In Common-Law, a Service which one Neighbour has of another, by Charter or Preſcription without Profit; as a Paſſage thro' his Ground, a Sink or ſuch like.

Eaſter, a ſolemn Feſtival appointed in remembrance of Chriſt's Reſurrection, and ſo call'd from Eoſter, an ancient Goddeſs of the Saxons, whoſe Feaſt they kept about the ſame time, viz. in April, which was thence call'd Eoſter-Monath.

Eaſter-Offering. See Oblation.

Eaſter-pence. See Chriſmatis Denarii.

Eaſterlings, People that live on the Eaſt of England, particularly Merchants of the Hanſe-Towns in Germany: Whence Eaſterling-money, that which we commonly call Sterling, or Current Money, from a certain Coin that King Richard I. caus'd to be ſtamp'd in thoſe Parts, and which was held in great Requeſt for its Purity.

Eat-bee, a ſmall Bird which delights to feed on Bees.

Eaves-dropper, one that privily liſtens at the Eaves, Windows, or Doors of a Houſe, to make Strife and Debate among Neighbours; a Pick-thank or Tale-bearer.

Ebb, the going out of the Tide, diſtinguiſhed by Seamen into ſeveral Degrees; as Quarter-ebb, Half-ebb, Three-quarter-ebb, and Low-water, or dead Low-water: Whence the Word is figuratively taken to ſignify the loweſt Point of a Fortune or Condition.

To Ebb, to flow back as the Sea does. See Tide.

Ebberman. See Hebberman.

Ebdomadarius, (in old Latin Records) the Ebdomary or Weeks-man, an Officer in Cathedral Churches, appointed weekly, to overſee the Performance of Divine Service, and to ſet out the particular Office of every Perſon attending in the Choir, what part he is to bear that Week, in reading, ſinging, praying, &c.

Eben-tree, a Tree that grows in India and Ethiopia, having neither Leaves nor Fruit; but the Wood is Black as Jet, very hard, and ſo weighty, that the leaſt Chip of it ſinks, which is call'd Ebony and ſerves for many Uſes.

Eberemorth or Eberemurder (Sax.) bare, or downright Murder, which could not be atoned for by any Fine. See Aberemurder.

Ebionites, a Sect of Hereticks that had one Ebion for their Ring-leader, and appear'd about A. C. 71. They deny'd the Divinity of Chriſt, and rejected all the Goſpels, but St. Matthew's.

Ebiſcus (Lat.) the Herb Marſh-mallows.

Eboniſt, one that works, or deals in Ebony. See Eben-tree.

Ebrack, a Word us'd by Chaucer for the Hebrew Tongue.

Ebriety, (Lat.) Drunkenneſs.

Ebullition, a boiling, bubbling or riſing up in Bubbles. Among Chymiſts, the great boiling or ſtruggling, which ariſes upon the mingling together of an Acid and an Alkalizate Liquor: Whence any inward violent Motion of the Parts of a Fluid, occaſioned by the ſtruggling of Particles of different Natures is call'd by this Name.

Ebulum or Ebulus, (Lat.) the Herb Wall-wort, Dane-wort, or Dwarf-elder.

Ecbaſis (Gr.) a going out, an Event; alſo a Rhetorical Figure call'd Digreſſion.

Ecbolas, a Fig-tree that caſts her Fruit.

Ecbolia, Ecbolica, Ecbolinæ or Ecbolades, Medicines that help Womens Delivery in hard Labour, or fetch away a Dead Child; alſo ſuch as cauſe Abortions or Miſcarriages.

Eccathartica, purging Medicines.

Eccathiſma, a Bath of hot Water, in which the Sick Patient is to ſit down.

Eccentricity, (in the Ptolemaick Aſtron.) is that part of the Linea Apſidum, which lies between the Center of the Earth, and of the Eccentrick, i. e. that Circle which the Sun is ſuppoſed to move in about our Earth, and which has not the Earth exactly for its Center.

Eccentricity, (in the new Elliptical Aſtron.) is either Simple or Double: Simple or Single Eccentricity, is the diſtance between the Center of the Ellipſis and the Focus, or between the Sun and the Center of the Eccentrick. Double Eccentricity, is the diſtance between the Foci, or Navel-points in the Ellipſis, and is equal to twice the Single Eccentricity.

Eccentrick Circles or Eccentricks, are Circles that have not the ſame Center: Of which kind ſeveral Orbits were invented by ancient Aſtronomers, to ſolve the Appearances of the Heavenly Bodies. The Eccentricks of the Planets are alſo call'd Deferents, because they ſeem to carry the Body of the Planet round in their Circumferences.

Eccentrick Equation (in the old Aſtron.) is an Angle made by a Line drawn from the Center of the Earth, and another drawn from the Center of the Eccentrick, to the Body or Place of any Planet. 'Tis the ſame with the Proſthaphereſis; and is equal to the difference between the Sun's or Planet's, Real or Apparent Place, counted in an Arch of the Eclip:ick.

Eccentrick Place of a Planet, is that very point of the Orbit, where the Circle of Inclination, coming from the Place of a Planet in its Orbit, falls on it at Right-Angles.

Eccho, the Reflection of a Sound or Voice.

Ecchyloma, a Chymical Extract.

Ecchymoma or Ecchymoſis, an appearing of Marks or Spots in the Skin, which proceeds from Blood got out of the Veins; a Contuſion or Bruiſe.

Eccleſia, a Church or Congregation of People to Worſhip God, or the Place ſet a-part for that Uſe. In ſome old Records, a Sculpture or Image of a Church, which in former times, was often cut out or caſt in Metal, and kept as a ſacred Treaſure or Relick.

Eccleſiaſtes (i. e. the Preacher) the Title of one of King Solomon's Books contain'd in the Canon of Holy Scripture.

Eccleſiaſtical, belonging to the Church.

Eccleſiaſtical Advocate. See Advocate.

Eccleſiaſtical Cenſures. See Cenſures.

Eccleſiaſtical Dignity. See Dignity.

Eccleſiaſtical Perſons. See Regular and Secular Clergy.

An Eccleſiaſtick, a Church-man, or Clergy-man.

Eccleſiaſticus, a pious and profitable Book in the Apocrypha, written by Jeſus the Son of Sirach.

Eccope, a cutting off. In Surgery, the cutting off any Member or part of the Body.

Eccoprotica, Medicines that are of a lenitive or aſſwaging Quality.

Eccriſmocritica, are Signs to judge of a Diſtemper, from particular Excretions, or diſcharges of Humours, &c.

Eccriſis, a voiding of Humours, Excrements, or Ordure.

Ecdicus (among the Ancients) an Attorney or Proctor of a Corporation, to maintain its Rights; a Recorder.

To Eche, (old Word) to encreaſe, to add to, or help out.

Echeneis (Gr.) a little Fiſh that ſticking to the ſide of a Ship, is ſaid to ſtop its Courſe; the Sea-Lamprey.

Echetæ, a ſort of ſtinging Graſs-hoppers.

Echidna, the Viper, a Serpent.

Echidnion, an Herb call'd Vipers-Bugloſs.

Echinate Seeds (among Herbaliſts) ſuch as are prickly, or rough.

Echinomelocactus, an Indian Plant otherwiſe nam'd Melocarduus.

Echinometra, the bigger ſort of Sea Urchin; a ſhell-fiſh.

Echinopus, a kind of prickly Herb.

Echinus, the Urchin, or Hedge-hog; the Sea-Urchin, a Fiſh: Alſo the Pill or rough prickly Shell of Cheſnuts. In Architecture, a Member or Ornament firſt plac'd on the top of the Ionick Capitals, taking Name from the roughneſs of its Carving, which reſembles the prickly Rind of a Cheſnut: This Ornament is now made uſe of in Cornices of the Ionick, Corinthian, and Compoſit Orders, being Carved with Anchors, Darts, and Ovals or Eggs. Whence 'tis termed Ove by the French and Ovolo by the Italians; but the Engliſh Workmen commonly call it the Quarter-round.

Among Herbaliſts, Echinus is taken for the prickly Head, or Cover of the Seed or top of any Plant, ſo call'd from its likeneſs to the thorny Coat of a Hedge-hog.

Echion or Echium, Wild Borage, Vipers-Bugloſs, or Vipers-herb.

Echite, an Herb like Scammony.

Echites, a precious Stone of a darkiſh Green Colour, ſomewhat reſembling a Viper; alſo a kind of Climers, an Herb.

Echo, a Nymph of the Air, who dying for the Love of Narciſſus, was feign'd by the Poets, to be chang'd into that Voice or Sound, which is reflected back from Caves or hollow Places, and commonly call'd an Eccho.

Echoicus Verſus, a Verſe that returns the laſt Syllable like an Eccho; as grata malis lis.

Ecligma, a kind of Medicine to be licked or ſucked in, againſt Diſtempers of the Throat and Lungs, being a liquid Compoſition thicker than a Syrup and thinner than an Electuary.

Eclipſe (i. e. waining, or failing) an Eclipſe of the Sun happens when we are depriv'd of its Light, by the interpoſition, or coming in of the Moon's Body between it and our Sight; as the Eclipſe of the Moon, is the taking of the Sun's Light from the Moon, and is occaſion'd by the interpoſition of the Body of the Earth, between it and the Sun. The Word is alſo us'd in a figurative Senſe, as During the unhappy Eclipſe of the Monarchy.

Central Eclipſe of the Moon, is when not only the entire Body of the Moon is cover'd by the Shadow, but alſo her Center paſſes through the Center of that Circle which is made by a Plane, cutting the Cone of the Earth's Shadow at Right Angles, with the Axis or with that Line which joyns the Centers of the Sun and the Earth.

Partial Eclipſe, is when either of the Luminaries or noble Lights of the Sun or Moon are only darken'd in part.

Total Eclipſe, is when they are wholly Eclipſed or darken'd; although the Sun's Eclipſe is not properly Univerſal, but vary'd greater or Leſſer according to the diverſity of the Climates.

To Eclipſe, to obſcure or darken, to draw a Vail over.

Eclipſis (Gr.) a failing, want: In Grammar, a Figure when a Word is wanting in a Sentence; alſo an Eclipſe of the Sun or Moon: In a Medicinal Senſe, a failing of the Spirits, a fainting or Swooning away, a Qualm.

Ecliptick or Ecliptick Line, is a great Circle of the Sphere ſuppoſed to be drawn through the middle of the Zodiack, and ſo nam'd becauſe the Eclipſes of the Sun and Moon always happen under it: 'Tis alſo ſometimes call'd Via Solis, or the Way of the Sun, becauſe the Sun in his yearly Courſe never departs from this Line, as all the other Planets do more or leſs; from whence the Zodiack has its Breadth. See Zodiack.

In the new Aſtronomy, the Ecliptick is that Path or Way amidſt the fixed Stars which the Earth appears to deſcribe to an Eye plac'd in the Sun, as in its yearly Motion it runs round the Sun from Weſt to Eaſt; and if this Circle be divided into Twelve equal Parts, they will be the Twelve Signs, each of which is diſtinguiſh'd by ſome Conſtellation or Cluſter of Stars.

Eclogue (i. e. a choice Piece) the Title of Virgil's Paſtoral Poems; a Shepherd's Song, or Rural Ditty.

Eclyſis, a looſing, releaſing, or diſſolving: Alſo a Term us'd by Phyſicians, when the Strength is ſomewhat decay'd for want of ſufficient Warmth and Spirits in the Body.

Ecnephias, a Storm that breaks out of a broad, dry Cloud.

Ecphoneſis, an exclamation. In Rhetorick, a pathetical Figure, whereby the Oratour expreſſes the vehement Tranſport of his own Mind, and ſtirs up the Affections of thoſe to whom he ſpeaks; as Oh falſe Hopes! Vain Pleaſure!

Ecphora, a jutting or bearing out in a Building.

Ecphractica, Medicines that are proper for Obſtructions, or Stoppages.

Ecphaſis (in Rhetor.) a plain declaration or interpretation of a thing.

Ecphraxis, (in the Art of Phyſick) a removing or taking away of Stoppages in any part of the Body.

Ecphyſeſis, a Diſtemper in which the Patient fetches his Breath thick.

Ecphyſis, a riſing or ſpringing up, a budding or ſprouting forth: In Anatomy, that part where the Guts take riſe from the lower Orifice of the Stomach call'd Pylorus: In Surgery, any Proceſs or Knob that is joyn'd with, or ſticks to a Bone; the ſame as Apophyſis.

Ecpieſma, a Juice preſſed out, or the remaining Dregs of any thing that is ſqueez'd: Alſo a Fracture of the Scull, when the broken Parts preſs upon the Meninges, or Skins of the Brain.

Ecpieſmus, a ſtraining, wringing, or ſqueezing out; alſo a very great protuberance or bunching out of the Eyes.

Ecplexis, Aſtoniſhment, Conſternation, great Fright; a Diſtraction of Mind, proceeding from ſome ſudden outward Diſturbance: Alſo blaſting, or a numneſs in any part of the Body.

Ecpneumatoſis, the faculty of breathing out. See Expiration.

Ecptoma, Luxation, or a being out a Joynt, as when the Bones are got out of their natural Place, but not broken.

Ecptoſis, a falling or ſlipping down; alſo the ſame as Ecptoma.

Ecpyctica, Medicines that are of a thickening Quality.

Ecpyeſma or Ecpyeſis, the ſame with Empyema; which See.

Ecrhythmus, a Pulſe that obſerves no Method or Order.

Ecſarcoma, the growing of Fleſh in any Part.

Ecſtaſy or Extaſy, properly the removal of a thing from the State wherein it was to another; a Trance or Rapture of Spirit, a Swoon: In a Medicinal Senſe, a ſort of Frenzy, or Diſturbance of Mind.

Ectaſis, Extenſion or Stretching out. In Grammar a Figure whereby a ſhort Syllable is extended or made long.

Ecthlimma (in Surgery) an Ulceration that proceeds from a violent Preſſure on the Surface of the Skin.

Ecthlipſis, a preſſing, ſqueezing, or daſhing out: In Grammar, the cutting off of a Vowel or Conſonant, eſpecially the Letter (m) in Greek, or Latin Verſe, at the end of a Word, when the following Word begins with a Vowel, or (h) as βέλομ ἐγὼ for βέλομαι ἐγὼ; Div' incido, for Divum incido.

Ecthymata, certain Pimples or breakings out in the Skin; as the Small Pox, Meazles, &c.

Ecthymoſis, a Diſturbance and Swelling of the Blood; alſo Sprightlineſs or Chearfulneſs of Mind.

Ectillotica, Medicines that conſume Callous Parts or proud Fleſh, and pull out Hairs, &c.

Ectome, a cutting off: In Surgery, the cutting off any Limb or part of the Body.

Ectropium, a fault in the Eye-lids, when they are turn'd downwards, or when the lower is ſhorter than the upper, ſo that they cannot cloſe one with another.

Ectypum, an Image or Picture made according to the Pattern, a Copy taken from the Original.

Eczemata, fiery, red and burning Pimples which are painful, but do not run with Matter.

† Edacity, (Lat.) a greedy eating, or devouring.

Edder, a Fiſh ſomewhat like a Mackerel.

Eddiſh or Eadiſh, the latter Paſture, the Graſs that comes after Mowing or Reaping. It is alſo call'd Etch, Earſh and Eegraſs.

Eddy, the turning round in a Stream.

Eddy-tide, is when the Water at any Place, runs back contrary to the Tide or Stream, and ſo falls into the Tide or Current again.

Eddy-water, (among Sea-men) is that which falls back as it were on the Rudder of a Ship under Sail; the dead Water.

Eddy-wind, is a Wind check'd by the Sail, by a Mountain, Reach, or any other thing that makes it recoil or turn back again.

Edder, (Sax.) a Hedge.

Edder-breche, the Treſpaſs of Hedge-breaking.

Edgar, (i. e. happy Power) the proper Name of a King of England, the Eleventh from Egbert, and one of the greateſt of the Saxon Monarchs in Power, Succeſs and Renown.

Edge, the ſharp end of any Weapon, Knife, &c. a Brink, Border, Hem, or Skirt; the Corner of a Stone, Table, &c.

To Edge, to make an Edge or Border; alſo a Country-word for to Harrow.

Edge-hill, a Hill in Warwickſhire, noted for the firſt pitch'd Battel fought between the Forces of King Charles I. and thoſe of the Parliament.

Edible, that may be eaten, or good to eat; as An edible Root.

Edict, (Lat.) a Proclamation, a Publick Ordinance or Decree; a Letter of Command from a Prince or State.

Edification, an edifying, building up, or improving in Faith; Inſtruction.

Edifice, a Building, or Houſe.

To Edify, to build up in Faith, to inſtruct, to improve in Godlineſs, Knowledge and good Manners.

Edile, (among the Romans) an Officer appointed to overſee the building of Temples and private Houſes. See Ædiles.

Edinburgh, the Principal City of the Kingdom of Scotland.

Edition, (Lat.) a ſetting forth, or publiſhing; but it is commonly taken for the Printing, Publication, or putting out of a Book.

Editor, the Publiſher of a Book.

Edmund, (Sax. happy Peace) a proper Name of which there were three eminent Kings of this Nation, viz. 1. a King of the Eaſt Angles, who being murder'd by the Danes, his Body was tranſlated to St. Edmundbury in Suffolk, and gave Name to that Town. 2. A Saxon Monarch the Eighth from Egbert. 3. The Fourteenth King of that Race, Sirnam'd Iron-ſide, a very Warlike, hardy and valiant Prince, victorious in many Battels againſt Canutus the Dane: But he was forc'd at laſt to yield to a ſharing of the Kingdom, and ſoon after was treacherouſly kill'd by Earl Edrick.

Edom, (Heb. red, or earthy) the Sirname of Eſau; from whom deſcended the Edomites, a great and Warlike People, with whom the Iſraelites had Wars a long time.

To Educate, (Lat.) to bring or train up, to inſtruct.

Education, Inſtruction, Nurture, the bringing up or breeding of Children and Youth.

To Edulcorate, properly to ſweeten or make ſweet; a Chymical Term for the clearing of any Matter from the Salts it may be imbody'd or mix'd with, by waſhing it thoroughly in common Water.

Edulcoration, the Act of Edulcorating, the Waſhing of things that are calcined or burnt to Powder from their Salts to make them ſweet: Alſo the ſweetening of Medicinal Potions with Sugar, Honey, or Syrups.

Edward, (Sax. happy Keeper) a proper Name, born by Nine Engliſh Kings; three before the Conqueſt, and Six ſince; many of whom have the firſt Rank in the Regiſter of Fame.

Edwin, (i. e. happy Conquerour) of this Name there were two Soveraign Princes, viz. the firſt a King of the Northumbrians, the fifth from Ida, and the other the tenth of the Saxon Monarchs from Egbert.

Eel, a well known Fiſh, of which there are chiefly four ſorts, viz. the Silver-Eel, a greeniſh Eel call'd a Grey, a blackiſh one with a broad flat Head, and laſtly an Eel with reddiſh Finns.

Eel-fares or Eel-vares, a Word us'd in ſome old Statutes, for a Fry or Brood of Eels.

Eel-pout, a kind of young Eel.

† Effable, (Lat.) that may be expreſſed or uttered.

Effect, any thing made, procured, or brought to paſs: Intent, Deſign; Performance, Succeſs; alſo Conſequence, End, Iſſue; the chief point of a Matter.

Effects, are alſo the Goods, or Concerns of a Merchant.

To Effect, to perform, to bring to paſs, to put in Execution.

Effections (in Geom.) a Word us'd in the ſame ſenſe with the Geometrical Conſtruction or forming of Propoſitions; and often for Problems or Practices, which when they may be deduced from; or founded on ſome general Propoſitions, are call'd the Geometrical Effections thereto belonging.

Effective, that brings to effect, real.

Effector, the Author, Contriver, or Performer of a thing.

Effectleſs, that is of no Effect.

Effectual, that neceſſarily produces its Effect, powerful, forcible, prevailing.

Effeminacy, Womaniſh ſoftneſs.

Effeminate, Woman-like, wanton, delicate, nice.

To Effeminate, to make womaniſh or wanton, to ſoften by Voluptuouſneſs.

Effervescence or Effervescency, a boiling over, a growing very hot, a ſudden tranſport of Anger or Rage. In a Phyſical Senſe, an inward Motion of Particles of different Natures and Qualities tending to ſudden Deſtruction.

Among Chymiſts Effervence, is taken to expreſs a greater Degree of Motion and Struggling of the ſmall parts of a Liquor, than is underſtood by the Word Fermentation; ſo that it implies a violent Ebullition or bubbling up, with ſome degree of Heat, and is the uſual Term for the Effect of pouring an Acid Liquor on an Alkalizate one; as Oil of Vitriol on Oil of Tartar, per Deliquium; for a very great Diſturbance, Struggling, Heat and Boiling will immediately ariſe, which is call'd a great Efference.

Efficacious, that can do or prevail much; effectual, powerful.

Efficacy or Efficaciouſneſs, Ability, Operation, Force, Virtue, Strength.

Efficience, the Power or faculty to do a thing.

Efficient, producing its Effect, accompliſhing, bringing to paſs, cauſing.

Effigies, Image, Shape, Likeneſs, the Picture or Repreſentation of a Perſon, &c.

Efflorescence or Efflorescency, (properly a blowing as a Flower does) a ſpringing forth or flouriſhing greatly, a flouriſh of Rhetorick; alſo the encreaſe of a Diſeaſe.

Effluence or Efflux, a Philoſophical Word for a flowing or running out.

Effluviums or Corpuscular Effluviums, are ſuch very ſmall parts as are continually flowing out of all mixt Bodies, the number of which is vaſtly great: The extreme ſubtility and fineneſs of them in many Bodies is alſo tranſcendently remarkable, as being able for a long time together, to produce ſenſible Effects, without any apparent or at leaſt conſiderable diminution of the bulk or weight of the Body that ſends them forth.

Among Writers in the Art of Phyſick, Effluviums are more eſpecially taken for Vapours that paſs through the Pores or inviſible Holes of the Skin.

Efflux. See Effluence.

Effluxion, a flowing out; the Term is more eſpecially apply'd to Women, when they bring forth an imperfect Birth.

Effort, (Fr.) ſtrong Endeavour, a great ſtraining, forcible Attempt.

Effractor, (Lat. in the Roman and Common-Law) a Burglar that breaks open Doors or Walls to ſteal; a Houſe-breaker.

Effrontery, (Fr.) Impudence, Brazen-fac'd, Boldneſs, or Sauciness.

Effusio Sanguinis, (Lat. i. e. ſhedding of Blood) the Fine or Penalty impos'd by the old Engliſh Laws for Blood-ſhed or Murder, which the King granted to many Lords of Manours.

Effusion, a pouring out, ſpilling or ſhedding; as A great Effuſion of Blood. In Chymiſtry, a pouring out the Liquor by Inclination, or ſtooping the Veſſel on one ſide, when the Matter by its Weight, is fallen to the bottom of it.

Eft, (old Word) again.

Eft or Evet, a venomous Creature like a Lizzard.

Eftsoons, (old Word) ever and anon, often, preſently.

Egbert (Sax. ever Bright, or Famous) a proper Name, the moſt eminent Bearer of which, was that renowned King of the Weſt-Saxons, who by ſubduing ſeveral Kingdoms of the Heptarchy, was the firſt that laid the Foundation of the Engliſh Saxon Monarchy.

Egers, (Country-word) the Spring or firſt-blown Tulips.

Egestion, a caſting forth, a voiding: In the Art of Phyſick, the diſcharging of Meat digeſted thro' the Pylorus, or lower Mouth of the Stomach, into the reſt of the Entrails.

To Egg on, to provoke, ſtir up, ſet on, or ſpur forwards.

Egistments, (Law-word) Cattel taken in to graze or to be fed by the Week or Month. See To Agiſt.

Eglantine, a Shrub full of Prickles, which is alſo call'd Sweet-brier.

Egregious, (Lat. i. e. choſen out of the Flock) choice, ſingular, excellent, rare; alſo notorious or manifeſt.

Egreſs or Egression, a going forth; as To have free Egreſs and Regreſs.

Egressio. See Epanodos.

Egret, a Bird of the Heron-kind with Red Legs.

Egula (Lat.) a kind of Brimſtone, anciently uſed for the making of Wool white.

Egyptians, the Natives or Inhabitants of Egypt, a Country of Africa: Alſo the ſame as Gipſies, who according to our Statutes, are a kind of ſhifting Rogues that ſtroll about the Countries in Diſguiſe, blacking their Faces and Bodies, and framing to themſelves an unknown Language; ſo that under pretence of telling Fortunes, curing Diſeaſes, &c. they abuſe the ignorant common People, and live by pilfering, filching and ſtealing.

Egyptian Thorn, a Shrub the ſame with Acacia.

Ehu

Ehud, (Heb. praiſing) a Judge of Iſrael, who kill'd Eglon King of Moab.

Eia, (Sax.) an Iſland, an Eit or Ait: Whence the Termination of Rumes-eia or Romſey, Schep-eia or Shepey, and many other Engliſh Iſlands.

Ejaculation (Lat.) a ſhort Prayer pour'd forth from the bottom of the Heart, with fervent Devotion; the Word properly ſignifies a caſting forth, or darting a-far off.

Ejaculatory, that ſpurts out.

Ejaculatory Veſſels, (in Anat.) certain Veſſels that ſerve to diſcharge the Semen in the Act of Copulation.

To Eject, to caſt or throw out.

Ejection or Ejectment, the Act of ejecting or throwing out. In a Medicinal Senſe, it is the ſame with Egeſtion; which See.

Ejectione Cuſtodiæ, a Writ which lies properly againſt one that caſts out a Guardian from any Lands, whilſt the Heir is under Age: It is alſo call'd Ejectment de Gard in French.

Ejectione Firmæ, a Writ lying for the Leſſee for Term of Years, that is caſt out before his Term expired, either by the Leſſor or a Stranger.

Ejectum, (in old Records) a Jetſon or Wreck of Goods thrown out of a Ship.

The Eight or Eyt, (i. e. the Iſland) anciently call'd Alney, an Iſland in Gloceſterſhire, made by the River Severn; where a ſingle Combat was fought by King Edmund, Sirnam'd Ironſide, and Canutus the Dane, to decide their Right to the Kingdom.

Eigne, (Fr.) a Law-word for the Eldeſt or Firſt-born.

Einecia, Elderſhip; a Term in Common-Law.

Eire. See Eyre.

Eiſil, an old Engliſh Word for Vinegar.

† Ejulation, (Lat.) a yelling, pitiful crying, or wailing.

Ejulator, a Wild Beaſt call'd a Crier, which reſembles a Gray-hound in Shape and Size, and makes a noiſe like the crying of a young Child.

To Eke out, to make larger by adding another Piece.

Elaborate, (Lat.) done with Exactneſs and Pains, perfectly and curiouſly wrought and compos'd.

Elaboratory. See Laboratory.

Elacate or Elacatena, (Gr.) a kind of Tunny, a Sea-fiſh.

Elæa, the Olive, a ſort of Fruit.

Elæomeli, a kind of fat Gum, thicker than Honey, that drops from the Olive-trees in Syria.

Elæophyllon, Olive-Phyllon, or Maiden-Mercury; an Herb.

Elæoſaccharum, Oil and Sugar mix'd together, or an Oil whoſe Parts are ſeparated by Sugar: Alſo Sugar imbody'd with ſome drops of diſtilled Oil, ſo as to make the Oil more eaſy and agreeable to be ſwallow'd by the Patient.

Elæotheſium, a Place where the Ancients kept Oil and Wax mingled, to anoint the Wreſtlers.

Elam, (Heb. i. e. a young Man) the Father of the Elamites, a great People.

E-la-mi, the Name of the ſixth aſcending Note of each Septenary or Order of Seven Notes in the Scale of Muſick, only in the uppermoſt Septenary mi is wanting, and the Note is call'd E-la.

Elaphaboſimum, (Gr.) Wild, or Mountain-Parſley.

Elaphobolion, a Month among the ancient Greeks, anſwering to our December, and ſo nam'd from the Sacrifices then offer'd to the Goddeſs Diana, ſtyl'd Elaphebolos, i. e. the Stag-ſhooter.

Elaphoboſcon, a Wild Parſnep, or Wild Carret.

Elaphos, a Stag, Hart, or Hind.

Elaps, the Stag-Snake, a kind of Serpent, ſo call'd from its Swiftneſs.

Elapſed, (Lat.) gone or ſlipped away; as The time is elapſed.

† Elapſion, a ſliding forth, or away.

Elaſticity, (in Philoſ.) a Power to return to its firſt Place or Condition, as a Stick that is forcibly bent.

Elaſtick or Elaſtical, that has or belongs to ſuch a Quality, that recoils with a kind of Spring or Force.

Elaſtick Body, is that which being preſs'd yields for a while to the Stroke, yet can afterwards recover its former Figure by its own natural Power; and if it can do this with the ſame force as that which preſs'd upon it, 'tis ſaid To be perfectly elaſtical. In this reſpect it is diſtinguiſh'd from a Soft Body, i. e. that which being preſs'd, yields to the Stroke, loſes its former Figure, and cannot recover it ſelf again.

Elaſtick Force, originally ſignifies the force of a Spring when bent, and endeavouring to unbend it ſelf phers again: This Quality is attributed by Philoſo- to the Air, &c. In the Art of Phyſick, it is taken for the endeavour of Elaſtick, or ſpringing Particles, when compreſs'd or crowded into a little room, to ſpread and roll themſelves out again: Whence this Term is often us'd to denote ſuch an Exploſion or throwing out of Animal Spirits, as is frequent in Cramps, or Convulſions.

Elate, (Gr.) the Firr-tree, alſo a kind of Palm-tree.

Elate, (Lat.) puffed up, tranſported, lofty, proud, haughty; as A Man of an Elate Mind.

Elateriſts, a Name given by Mr. Boyl, to ſuch as hold the Doctrine of Elaterium, or Spring and Weight of the Air, which he maintains againſt Linus.

Elaterium, the Elaſticity or ſpringing Faculty of the Air, &c. Alſo the Juice of Wild Cucumbers made up into a thick Conſiſtence, being a ſtrong Purge for Choler and Phlegm: It is alſo taken by ſome, for any Medicine that purges or looſens the Belly.

Elatine, a Weed growing amidſt Corn, and commonly call'd Running Buck-wheat, or Bind-corn; Lluellin.

Elatites, a kind of Blood-ſtone, more eſpecially good for Burns.

Elb, the Name of one of the great Rivers of Germany.

Eld, (old Word) Age, Elderſhip.

Elder-hole, a Hole in Derbyſhire, remarkable for its deepneſs, it having been plumb'd to the Depth of 800 Fathoms, and yet no Bottom could be found.

Elder, more aged, or farther advanc'd in years.

Elder Battalion, (in the Art of War) that Battalion which was firſt rais'd, and has the Poſt of Honour according to its ſtanding.

Elder Officers, Military Officers are accounted Elder than others, not by their Age, or the time they have ſerv'd in the Wars, but by the Date of their Commiſſions, and accordingly they are to take their reſpective Poſts.

Elder, or Elder-tree, a well known Shrub, whoſe Leaves, Bark, Berries, &c. are of very great uſe in Phyſick. In ſome Countries, the Udder of a Cow, or other Beaſt is alſo call'd an Elder.

Ele, an old Word for Help.

Eleanor, (Sax. all fruitful) a proper Name of Women.

Eleazar, (Heb. the help of God) the Son of Aaron, and his Succeſſour in the Prieſtly Office.

Elecampane, (Lat.) an Herb otherwiſe call'd Horſe-heal, whoſe Root is counted very good for the Lungs.

Elect, choſen, appointed; as The Lord Mayor Elect.

The Elect, (a Term in Divinity) the Elected Saints, the Faithful, ſuch as are choſen and appointed by God, to be Inheriters of Everlaſting Glory.

To Elect, to chuſe, or make choice of.

Electica, (Gr.) the ſame as Attrahentia: which See.

Election, (Lat.) an Electing, or Chuſing, Choice: In a Law-ſenſe 'tis when a Perſon is left to his own free Will, to take or do any thing to another, which he pleaſes: So if A. Covenants to pay B. a Pound of Chocolate or Tobacco before Whitſontide, it is at the Election of A. at all times before Whitſuntide which of them he will give; but if he does not pay it before the ſaid Feſtival, then it is at the choice of B. to have Action for which he thinks fit.

Elections, (among Aſtrologers) are certain Times or Opportunities pitch'd upon, according to their Obſervations, as moſt fit for the Undertaking of a particular Buſineſs or Enterprize.

Election de Clerk, a Writ granted out of the Chancery for the choice of a Clerk, appointed to take and draw up Statutes Merchant.

Elective, that is done by, or depends upon Election or Choice; as An Elective Kingdom.

Elector, a Chuſer.

Electors of the Empire, certain Princes of Germany, who have a Right to chuſe their Emperour; according to the Ordinance or Decree made for that purpoſe, by the Emperour Charles IV. Theſe Electors at firſt, were Seven in Number, that is to ſay, Three Spiritual, viz. the Biſhops of Mentz, Trier and Colen; Four Temporal, viz. the Prince Palatine of the Rhine, the Duke of Saxony, the Marqueſs of Brandenburgh, and the King of Bohemia, for a caſting Voice: Afterwards the Duke of Bavaria, having the upper Palatinate given him, was admitted as an Eighth Elector, and a Ninth was lately added, who is the Duke of Hanover.

Electoral, belonging to an Elector.

Electorate, the Dignity, or the Territories of an Elector of the German Empire.

Electoreſs, an Elector's Wife.

Electricity, (among Naturaliſts) is the Quality that Amber, Jet, Sealing-wax, &c. have of attracting or drawing all ſorts of very light Bodies to them, when the attracting Body is rubbed, or chafed.

Electrum, (Gr.) a kind of precious Gum call'd, Amber.

Electuarium Theriacum, (Lat.) a ſort of Cordial for Conſumptive and weak Horſes, made of Syrup of Violets, Lemmons and Roſes mingled with London-Treacle,

Electuary, a Medicinal Compoſition made of ſeveral Ingredients, with Syrup, or Honey, to the Conſiſtence of a Conſerve.

Electuary of Diateſſaron. See Diateſſaron.

Electuary of Kermes, a Compoſition made of the Grains of Kermes, Juniper-berries, Bay-berries, Cubebs, Elicampane-roots, &c. which is good for Rheums, Colds, loſs of Appetite, Dulneſs and Leanneſs in Horſes.

Eleemoſyna, (Gr.) Alms, Pity. Whence the Law-Phraſe, Dare in puram & perpetuam Eleemoſynam, i. e. To give in pure and perpetual Alms, or in Frank-Almoine; as Lands in former times were given to Religious Uſes, and ſo diſcharg'd from Military Service, and other Secular Burdens.

Eleemoſynaria, the Place in a Monaſtery; where the common Alms were laid up, and thence diſtributed by the Almoner to the Poor: It was alſo ſometimes taken for the Almoner's Office, to which certain peculiar Rents were allotted.

Eleemoſynarius, the Almoner, or Officer, who receiv'd the Eleemoſynary Rents and Gifts, and duely diſpos'd of them to Pious and Charitable Uſes.

Eleemoſynary, belonging to Alms, or that is voluntarily and freely given by way of Alms.

Elegance or Elegancy (Lat.) fineneſs of Speech, politeneſs or neatneſs of Language.

Elegant, Handſome, Neat, Fine, Spruce, Gay, Curious, Delicate, Eloquent.

Elegiack, belonging to Elegy.

Elegiack Verſe, a ſort of Greek or Latin Verſe, otherwiſe call'd Pentameter, ſeldom or never uſ'd of it ſelf, but ſet by turns with the Hexameter: It conſiſts of a Spondee or a Dactyl, in the firſt Place, of a Choriambus, or a Moloſſus, in the ſecond; then of a Dactyl and a Choriambus, which two laſt Feet are always certain; as Ad vada Mæandri, concinit albus olor.

Elegiambick Verſe, a kind of Verſe uſ'd in Horace's Poems, call'd Epods.

Elegiographus, a Writer of Elegies.

Elegit, (Lat.) a Judicial Writ which lies for him that has recover'd Debt or Dammages in the Queen's Court, againſt one not able to make Satisfaction, commanding the Delivery of half the Party's Lands or Tenements, and all his Goods, except Oxen and Beaſts for the Plough, to be held till the whole Debt and Dammages be ſatisfy'd.

Elegy, a Mournful Poem, a Funeral Song, a lamentable Ditty.

Elelisphacum or Elelisphacos, the Herb Sage.

Elementary, (Lat.) belonging to Elements.

Elements, are the ſimpleſt Bodies that can be, neither made of one another, nor of any thing elſe, but of which all Things are made, and into which they are at laſt reſolved; being Four in Number, viz. Fire, Air, Earth and Water. It is alſo often uſ'd for the firſt Principles or Grounds of any Art or Science; and thus the Propoſitions of Euclid are termed his Elements, becauſe they contain the firſt Principles of Geometry. The Letters of the Alphabet are likewiſe call'd Elements, as alſo the Bread and Wine prepar'd in the Bleſſed Sacrament of the Lord's Supper.

Among Naturaliſts, the Word is generally taken in the ſame Senſe as Principles; and by the Elements and Principles, or as they ſometimes call them, the Elementary Principles of a Natural or Mix'd Body, they mean thoſe ſimple Particles, or very ſmall Parts, out of which ſuch a Body is made up, and into which it may be reſolved.

In Geometry, a Point, Line and Surface are termed The firſt Elements of Magnitude.

Elements Chymical. See Principles Chymical.

Elemi, a ſort of tranſparent Gum or Roſin, which iſſues from a Cedar-tree in Ethiopia; being of a Whitiſh Colour, and mix'd with Yellow Specks.

Elenchus, (Gr.) a Sophiſtical Argument, a Confutation; alſo an Index, or Table in a Book, referring to Places: Alſo a kind of long Pearl like a Pear, which the Roman Ladies wore in their Ears.

Elenctical, convictive, that ſerves to convince, or confute.

Elenge, (old word) ſtrange.

Eleos, (Gr.) a kind of Night-bird with crooked Claws that catches Mice and Moles.

Elephant, the biggeſt, ſtrongeſt, moſt intelligent and moſt teachable of all Four-footed Beaſts.

Elephantia, Elephantiaſis, or Elephas, the Leproſy which makes the Skin rough like that of an Elephant, with red Spots gradually chang'd into Black and dry parched Scales or Scurf. In this Diſeaſe, (according to Galen) the Lips grow thick, the Noſe ſwells, the Ears decay, the Jaws are red, and the Fore-head ſet with Tumours or Bunches like Horns.

Elephantiaſis Arabum, a Swelling in the Legs and Feet, a-kin to the Varix, which proceeds from Melancholy and Phlegmatick Blood, ſo that the Feet reſemble thoſe of an Elephant in ſhape and thickneſs; and this ſort of Swelling often happens to Beggers that wander much.

Elephantus or Elephas, the Elephant, an Indian Beaſt; or the Leproſy, a Diſeaſe.

To Elevate, (Lat.) to raiſe, or raiſe up, to exalt or lift up; to make chearful or merry, as Wine does.

Elevated, raiſed. In Aſtrology, a Planet is ſaid To be elevated above another; when one being ſtronger, weakens the Nature and Influence of the other.

Elevation, the Act of elevating, raiſing or lifting up; as The Elevation of the Hoſt: In Chymiſtry, it is the cauſing of any Matter to riſe up in Fumes or Vapours, by means of Heat.

Elevation of a Mortar-piece or Cannon, (in Gunnery) is the Angle which the chace of the Piece, or the Axis of the Horary Cylinder makes with the Plane of the Horizon.

Elevation of the Pole, (in Aſtron. and Geogr.) is the Height or Number of Degrees that the Pole in any Latitude, is raiſed, or appears above the Horizon.

Elevation of the Pole, (in Dialling) is the Angle which the Style, or upper end of the Cock that caſts the Shadow on the Dial-plane makes with the Subſtylar Line.

Elevator, (Lat.) a Perſon that helps, or lifts up: Whence thoſe Muſcles that ſerve to draw the Parts of the Body upwards, are termed Elevators, or Elevating Muſcles, by Anatomiſts.

Elevator Labii Inferioris, is a Muſcle which with its Partner, lies within the lower Lip and draws it upwards: They ariſe from the lower part of the Gums of the lower Jaw, that belong to the Dentes Inciſores, and deſcend directly to their Implantations in the lower part of the Skin of the Chin.

Elevator Labii Superioris, a Muſcle that ſprings from the fore-part of the fourth Bone of the upper Jaw, immediately above the Elevator Labiorum, and deſcending obliquely under the Skin of the Upper Lip, joyns with its Partner in a middle Line from the Septum Narium, to its end in the Sphincter Labiorum.

Elevator Labiorum, is a Muſcle which lies between the Zygomaticus and the Elevator Labii ſuperioris proprius, and takes riſe from the fourth Bone of the Upper Jaw.

Elevator Oculi, a Muſcle of the Eye, which ariſes near the Place where the Optick Nerve enters the Orbit, and is inſerted to the Tunica Sclerotis, on the upper and fore part of the bulb of the Eye under the Adnata. This Muſcle is call'd Superbus, or the Proud, from its moral ſignification, it being one of the common Marks of a haughty Diſpoſition to look high; and therefore its oppoſite Muſcle is termed Humilis or the Humble.

Elevator or Elevatorium, a Surgeon's Inſtrument with which the Scule-bone when ſunk, is raiſed up again: it is alſo made uſe of to draw Bullets, or Hail-ſhot out of the Fleſh.

Eleeſon. See Kyrie Eleeſon.

Eleuſina Sacra, the Sacred Rites of Eleuſina, ordain'd by the Inhabitants of the City Eleuſis in Greece, in honour of the Goddeſs Ceres: Theſe Myſteries were kept very ſecret, no Men being admitted to them, but only Women, who took all immodeſt Liberties among themſelves.

Eleutheria, certain Feſtivals ſolemnly kept every fifth Year, in honour of Jupiter Eleutherius, i. e. the Protector of Liberty: Theſe Feaſts were appointed by the Greeks, after the ſignal Defeat of Three Hundred Thouſand Perſians, whom Mardonius General to King Xerxes brought againſt them.

Elf, a Fairy, or Hobgoblin, a Dwarf.

Elf-arrows, Flint-ſtones ſharpen'd and jagged on each ſide like Arrow-Heads, made and us'd in War by the ancient Britains, of which ſome have been found in England, and greater ſtore in Scotland; where the People gave them that Name, and imagine they dropt from the Clouds.

Eli, (Heb. the offering or lifting up) a Judge of Iſrael, and Father of Hophni and Phinehas, two wicked Prieſts.

Eliakim, (i. e. God ariſes) the Son of Hilkiah; alſo Joſiah's Son whom Pharaoh Nechoh made King in his Father's ſtead.

Eligible, (Lat.) fit to be elected or choſen.

Elihu, (Heb. he is my God) the Son of Barachel, and one of Job's Friends.

Elijah or Elias, (i. e. God the Lord) a great Prophet who foretold a Famine among the Iſraelites, did many ſtrange Miracles, and was at laſt carry'd up into Heaven in a fiery Chariot.

† Elimation, (Lat.) a filing off, or poliſhing.

Eliphaz, (Heb. the Endeavour of God) one of thoſe that argu'd with Job in his Sickneſs.

Eliſha, (i. e. the Health of God) the Son of Shaphat: He was anointed Prophet by Elijah to ſupply his Place, and became no leſs eminent than his Predeceſſour, for the number and greatneſs of his Miracles.

Eliſion, (Lat.) a ſqueezing, or ſtriking out: In Grammar, the cutting off of a Vowel in Verſe, at the end of a Word.

Elixation, a ſeething or boiling: It is more eſpecially taken for the boiling of any thing for a Medicinal Uſe in a proper Liquor, to the end that the Matter may impart its Virtue to the Liquor 'tis boiled in.

Elixir, (Arab. i. e. ſtrength) a Name that Chymiſts have given to many Infuſions or Tinctures of mixt Bodies prepar'd in Spirituous Menſtruums; and by the Term Elixir, they would expreſs a very precious Liquor, or a Quinteſſence; as Elixir Proprieiatis, Elixir Salutis, &c.

Elixir Proprietatis, is a Tincture of Myrrh, Aloes and Saffron drawn by Spirit of Wine, and Spirit of Sulphur: It ſtrengthens the Heart, helps Digeſtion, purifies the Blood, and works by Sweat.

Elizabeth, (Heb. the Oath of God) a proper Name of Women: Among thoſe of this Name, beſides the Perſon ſo eminent in Holy Scripture, our Queen Elizabeth of Glorious Memory, is not to be forgotten.

Elk, a ſtrong Swift Beaſt as high as a Horſe, and ſhap'd like a Hart, with two very large Horns bending in a plain Edge towards the Back, and the Fore-Legs without Joynts like an Elephant; ſo that they ſleep leaning on Poſts, or Trees, and Fight not with their Horns, but Fore-feet. They are found in the Foreſts of Pruſſia, but more commonly in Lapland and Canada.

Elke, a Word us'd in Stat. 32. H. 8. for a kind of Yew, proper to make Bows.

Ell, a Meaſure containing Three Foot and Nine Inches: At Bruges in Flanders, it is equal to 1. 64. Engliſh Meaſure. At Antwerp 1. 667. At Amſterdam in Holland 1. 695. And at Paris in France 0. 95.

Elleborum. See Hellebore.

Ellipſis, (Gr.) Omiſſion, leaving out, or paſſing hy, Defect: In Grammar, a Figure, whereby ſome part of a Diſcourſe is left out, or cut off; as in the Latin Expreſſion Paucis te volo, in which the Words Verbis alloqui, are left out, or to be underſtood: Alſo a Rhetorical Figure, when ſome Word is wanting to make up the Senſe; as

Quid plura ———

In Geometry, Ellipſis, is a plain Figure commonly call'd an Oval; or a crooked Line including a Space longer on one ſide than the other, and drawn from two Center-points, each call'd the Focus or Navel; being one of the three Sections of a Cone. See Oval.

Elliptical Compaſſes, a pair of Braſs-compaſſes, to make any Ellipſis or Oval Figure, by drawing the Index once round.

Eliptical Dial, a ſort of Dial made of Braſs or Silver, with a folding Joynt, and the Gnomons or Cocks to fall flat; fitly contriv'd ſo as to take up little room in the Pocket.

Ellops, (Gr.) a choice Fiſh, which ſome take to be the ſame as a Sturgeon.

Elm, a Tree of which there are four or five ſorts; the chief being the Common or Mountain-Elm, the French Elm, and the Dutch or Witch-Elm: The Timber is of ſingular uſe where it may lie continually dry or wet, and therefore proper for Water-works, Mills, Pumps, Pales, Ship-planks, &c.

Elminthes or Helminthes, are little Worms bred in the Guts, eſpecially that call'd Rectum or the lowermoſt ſtraight or great Gut.

Eln, a Meaſure of three Foot and one Inch.

Elocution, (Lat.) proper Speech, handſome Utterance, Delivery, or Expreſſion.

Elodes or Helodes, (Gr.) full of Fens or Bogs, marſhy: Alſo a ſort of Feaver, accompany'd with a violent and perpetual Sweating.

Elogy, a Teſtimonial to one's Praiſe or Commendation.

Elohim, (Heb.) one of the Names of God in the Bible, expreſs'd in the Plural Number, either to denote his Majeſty, or the Myſtery of the Holy Trinity; as in the beginning of Geneſis; Elohim bara, i. e. God created. There is alſo Eloah in the Singular Number.

Eloi, my God; a Word us'd in the New Teſtament.

To Eloin, (Fr. Law-word) to remove, put, or ſend a great way off; as If ſuch as are within Age be Eloined, ſo that they cannot ſue Perſonally, their next Friends ſhall be admitted to ſue for them.

Elongation, properly a prolonging or lengthening: In Surgery, a ſort of imperfect disjoynting, when the Ligament of any Joynt is ſtretch'd, but not ſo as that the Bone goes quite out of its Place.

In Aſtronomy and Aſtrology, Elongation ſignifies the Removal of a Planet to the furtheſt Diſtance it can be from the Sun, as it appears to an Eye plac'd in the Earth. The two Points wherein the Epicycle interſects or cuts the Deferent are call'd the Points of the greateſt Elongation.

To Elope, (Law-Term) to leave one's Husband, and follow or dwell with an Adulterer.

Elopement, the Act of Eloping, for which a marry'd Woman, unleſs ſhe be voluntarily reconcil'd to her Husband, ſhall loſe her Dower or Marriage-Portion; neither ſhall the Husband be compell'd to allow her any Alimony or Maintenance.

Eloquence, (Lat.) the Art of well ſpeaking, a Rhetorical Utterance, which delivers things proper to perſwade.

Eloquent, that has a Gift, or good Grace of ſpeaking or Delivery; well ſpoken.

† Elucidation, a making bright, clear, or plain; a Comment, or Gloſs.

Elucubration. See Lucubration.

To Elude, to ſhift off, to wave, to get clear of.

Elul, (Heb.) the Month of Auguſt among the Jews.

Elvers, a ſort of Griggs, or ſmall Eels which at a certain time of the Year, ſwim on the top of the Water, about Briſtol, and are skimm'd up in ſmall Nets: By a peculiar way of dreſſing, they are bak'd in little Cakes, fry'd, and ſo ſerv'd up to Table.

Elves, Scare-crows to affright Children.

Elviſh, (old Word) froward.

Eluſory, that ſerves to elude, or ſhift off; cheating, deceitful.

Elyſian Fields, a certain Paradiſe of delightful Fields or Meadows, with fine Walks, &c. into which the Heathens held that the Souls of juſt Men paſs'd after Death; the Word Elyſium being of an Hebrew or Phenician Original, and ſignifying a Place of Delight and Joy.

Elythroides, (Gr. in Anat.) the ſecond proper Coat which imediately wraps up, or Covers the Teſticles, and is otherwiſe call'd Vaginalis, or the Vaginal Tunicle.

† Emaceration, (Lat.) a waſting or making lean; alſo a ſoaking, or ſowſing.

To Emaciate, to make lean.

Emanation, a flowing or iſſuing from; as Theſe are the emanations of the Royal Juſtice: Alſo a Term in Divinity, us'd to expreſs the proceeding of the Holy Ghoſt from the Father and the Son.

To Emancipate, (in the Roman Law) to make free, or give one his Freedom; to ſet at Liberty a Son, Nephew, or other Perſon under his Juriſdiction.

Emancipation, the Act of emancipating or ſetting free; properly a Legal freeing of Children from their Father's Tuition before a Magiſtrate: Alſo an alienation or ſurrendry of an Eſtate.

Emanuel. See Immanuel.

Emargination, (in Surgery) a taking away the Scurf that lies about the brims of Wounds or Sores.

To Emaſculate, to take away the force of Manhood, to Geld, to weaken or infeeble.

To Embale, to make up into a Bale or Pack.

To Embalm, to dreſs a dead Body with Balm, Spices, Gums and other Drugs, in order to keep it, for a conſiderable time, from Putrefaction; to perfume.

Embamma, (Gr.) a kind of Sauce.

Embaphium, a Saucer or ſmall Veſſel in which Medicines, or other things are put or meaſured.

Embargo. See Imbargo.

To Embark, to go on Ship-board, to enter upon a Deſign.

To Embarras, (Fr.) to peſter or trouble, to incumber or clog.

Embarraſment, Crowd, Confuſion, Diſorder, Incumbrance, Perplexity.

To Embaſe. See To Imbaſe.

Embaſis, (Gr.) a going in, an Entrance; In a Medicinal ſenſe, a ſort of Bath.

Embaſſadour, (Fr.) a Commiſſioner appointed to act for, and repreſent the Perſon of a Prince or State in a foreign Country. See Ambaſſador.

Embaſſadreſs, an Embaſſadour's Wife or Lady.

Embaſſage or Embaſſy, the Commiſſion which a Prince or State gives to an eminent Man of Parts and Skill, to treat with another Prince or State about matters of Importance.

Embarce, Ships that only ſerve to carry Paſſengers, Paſſage boats.

Embaſure, the Hole, or Sight, of a Croſs-bow.

Embateuticum Jus (among the Civilians) a kind of Law, by which People might keep things pawn'd to them, in their own Poſſeſſion.

Embattelled or Crenelle (in Heraldry) a Term us'd when the Out-line of any Ordinary is drawn, ſo as to reſemble the Battlements of a Wall or Caſtle.

To Embelliſh, (Fr.) to beautify, or grace; to ſet off, or ſet out.

Embelliſhment, an Embelliſhing, a Set-off.

Ember-Weeks, Four Seaſons in the Year more eſpecially ſet a-part for Prayer and Faſting, and of great Antiquity in the Church, viz. the firſt Week in Lent, the Week after Pentecoſt or Whitſuntide, the Week following the 14th Day of September, and that following December 13th.

In every one of theſe Seaſons there are three Days moſt ſolemn, viz. Wedneſday, Friday and Saturday, which are termed Ember-days, from the Word Ember, i. e. Aſhes; becauſe in old Times, the Faſters us'd to ſprinkle themſelves with Aſhes; or from the Cuſtom of eating nothing on thoſe Days till Night, and then only a Cake bak'd under the Embers, which was thence call'd Ember-bread.

To Embezel or Embezzle, to waſte or ſpoil, to purloin or pilfer.

Emblem, (Gr.) a Repreſentation of ſome Moral Notion, by way of Device, or Picture; as the Lion is an Emblem of Generoſity, a Ball of Inconſtancy, the Ant of Induſtry, &c.

Emblematical or Emblematick, belonging to, or partaking of the Nature of Emblems.

Emblements, (Law-Term) the Profits of Land that has been ſowed. It is alſo ſometimes more largely taken for the Natural Productions of the Ground; as Graſs, Fruit, Hemp, Flax, &c.

To Embody. See To Imbody.

Emboline, (Gr.) a Shrub growing in Aſia, the Leaves of which ſteep'd in Drink, are good againſt Poiſon.

Emboliſm, (in Aſtron.) the putting in, or adding of a Day in Leap Year, the ſame as Intercalation.

Emboliſmical Lunation or Emboliſmatical Month, is when the Lunations which happen every Succeſſive Year, Eleven Days ſooner than in the fore-going, amount to Thirty Days, and make a New Additional Month, to render the Common Lunar Year equal to the Solar.

Embolus, a Bar of a Door, a Spoke, a Pin, a Wedge: Alſo a Term us'd by Natural Philoſophers for the Sucker of a Pump, or Syringe, which when the Pipe of the Syringe is cloſe ſtopt, cannot be drawn up but with the greateſt Difficulty; and when forced up by main ſtrength, on being let go, will return again with great Violence.

To Emboſs. See To Imboſs.

To Embowel, to take out the Bowels.

To Embrace, (Fr.) to compaſs, hug, or take about in one's Arms; to lay hold of an Opportunity, to favour an Opinion.

Embraceour or Embraſour, (in Common-Law) he that, when a Matter is on Tryal, comes for Reward to the Bar, being no Lawyer, and ſpeaks in favour of one of the Parties, or endeavours to corrupt, or over-awe the Jury.

Embracery, the Offence of an Embraceour, in tampering with the Jury, &c. the Penalty for which is Twenty Pounds, and Impriſonment at the Juſtice's Diſcretion.

Embraſure, (in Architect.) an Inlargement made on the in-ſide of a Gate, Door, or Window, or in the opening of a Wall, to give more Light; or for the greater Conveniency of the Building.

In Fortification, Embraſures are the Gaps or Loop-holes left open in a Parapet, or Breaſt-work, to let the Mouth of the Cannon through, in order to Fire into the Moat, or Field.

Embrocation, (from the Greek Word Embroche, i. e. a watering or wetting) a Term us'd by Phyſicians, for a kind of Fomentation, in which the warm Liquor is let diſtill Drop by Drop, or very ſlowly upon the part of the Body to be fomented: Alſo a gentle rubbing, or an applying of Linnen or Woollen dipt in Oil, or any other aſſwaging Liquor, to the Place affected.

To Embroil. See To Imbroil.

To Embrue. See To Imbrue.

Embryo, (Gr.) a Child in the Mother's Womb, after its Members come to be formed, but before it has its perfect Shape: Whence figuratively, any thing not brought to Perfection, is ſaid To be in Embryo.

Embryoctenes or Embryothlaſtes, an Inſtrument with which Surgeons break the Bones of a dead Child, that it may the more eaſily be taken out of the Womb.

Embryotomy, an Anatomical Diſſection of an Embryo, or young Child that is newly form'd.

Embryulcus, a Surgeon's Inſtrument or Hook, with which a dead Child may be drawn out of the Womb.

Embuſcatum Marmor, (Lat.) Boſcage, or buſhy Marble of Jeruſalem, a ſort of Marble digged out of Mount Sinai in that City, of a White Colour inclining to Yellow: It has this wonderful Property, that after whatever manner it is cut or divided, Shrubs and Buſhes appear therein, curiouſly wrought by Nature, and of a blackiſh Colour, which ſoon diſappear, if the Stone be ſet over Fire.

Eme, (old Word) the Emmet, or Ant; an Inſect.

Emendals, an old Word ſtill us'd in the Accounts of the Inner Temple, where ſo much in Emendals at the Foot of an Account, ſignifies ſo much in Bank, in the Stock of the Houſe, for the Supply of all extraordinary Occaſions.

Emendare (Lat.) to amend, correct, or make better; alſo an old Law-Term, to make amends for any Crime or Treſpaſs: Whence a Capital Crime, not to be atton'd for by a pecuniary Mulct, or Fine paid in Money, was ſaid To be inemendable.

Emendatio, an Amendment. In old Law-Records it is taken for the Power of correcting Abuſes according to ſet Rules or Meaſures; as Emendatio Panni, the Power of Alnage, or looking to the Aſſize of Cloath, that it be of the juſt Ell, or due Meaſure: And Emendatio panis & cereviſiæ, the Aſſizing of Bread and Beer, or the Power of over-ſeeing and correcting the Weights and Meaſures of them.

Emendation, Amendment, Correction.

Emerald, (Span.) a precious Stone of a Green Colour, the hardeſt next to the Ruby: Among Heralds, the Green Colour in the Coats of Noblemen. See Vert.

To Emerge, (Lat. in Philoſ.) when any Natural Body in ſpecie lighter than Water, being violently thruſt down into it, riſes again, it is ſaid To Emerge out of the Water, and this is the moſt proper ſignification of the Word.

Emergency, a thing that happens ſuddenly, an unexpected Circumſtance of Affairs.

Emergent, that riſes, appears, or comes out; as An emergent Occaſion, i. e. a Buſineſs of Conſequence happening on a ſudden. In Aſtronomy, a Star is ſaid To be emergent, when it is getting out of the Sun-beams, and ready to become Viſible.

Emeril or Emery, a ſort of Stone found in Mines of Copper, Iron and Gold, very hard and heavy; which ſerves to burniſh Gold, and cut all manner of precious Stones but Diamonds: Alſo a Glazier's Diamond to cut Glaſs.

Emerſion, (Lat.) properly an iſſuing, or coming out from under Water: It is a Term more eſpecially us'd by Aſtronomers, when a Star which has lain hid for ſome time, under the Sun-beams, begins to appear again: It is alſo taken for the Sun or Moon's coming out of an Eclipſe.

Emetical or Emetick, (Gr.) that provokes, or cauſes to Vomit.

Emetick Medicines or Emeticks, Medicines that with their pricking Particles, draw together the Fibres of the Stomach upwards, and ſo throw out at the Mouth, whatever is offenſive to the Stomach.

Emetick Tartar, is Cream or Cryſtal of Tartar powder'd and mingled with a quarter part of Crocus Metallorum, and then the Mixture is to be boil'd for Eight or Nine Hours in an Earthen Pan, in a ſufficient quantity of Water: Afterwards the hot Liquor is ſtrain'd through a Woollen Cloath, and about half of it being gently evaporated, the reſt is left to cool, and will ſhoot into Cryſtals.

Emeu, a kind of Fowl. See Caſſowary.

† Emication, (Lat.) a ſhining, or appearing aloft; a ſpringing, or riſing up.

Eminence or Eminency, paſſing, or ſtanding above others, Excellency, high Degree or Quality; alſo a Title uſually given to Cardinals. Eminence is alſo a little Hill or Riſing-ground. In Fortification, an Height that overlooks and commands the Place under it.

Eminent, high, over-topping, great, renowned.

Emir, (among the Turks) a Lord, eſpecially any one deſcended from the falſe Prophet Mahomet.

Emiſſarius or Emiſſarius equus, a Word us'd by Plautus, Matthew of Weſtminſter and others for a Stallion-Horſe, or Steed.

Emiſſary, a truſty Perſon of quick Parts, ſent privately to ſound or ſift another, to get Intelligence, or to Spy out the Actions or Poſt of an Enemy.

Emiſſion, a ſending, caſting, hurling, or ſhooting forth.

To Emit, to ſend, dart, or ſhoot forth.

Emma, a proper Name of ſeveral Women, particularly of King Edward the Confeſſour's Mother.

Emmenagoga or Emmenagogues, Medicines that ſtir up the Menſes, or Courſes.

Emmenia, Womens Monthly Courſes, or Terms.

Emmet, an Inſect otherwiſe call'd an Ant or Piſmire; the Pains this little Creature takes to lay up Corn againſt Winter, makes it generally taken for the Emblem of Induſtry.

Emmoton, (Gr.) a Liquid Medicine to be ſquirted into Ulcers.

Emollient, (Lat.) mollifying, ſoftening, or aſſwaging; as An emollient Decoction.

Emollientia, Emollients, or ſoftening Medicines, i. e. ſuch as with a moderate Heat and Moiſture diſſolve thoſe Parts which before ſtuck cloſe together; and diſperſing others, make them looſe and ſoft.

Emolument, Profit got by Labour and Coſt; Benefit, Advantage. The Word properly ſignifies Gain ariſing from the Griſt of a Corn-mill.

Emotion, a ſtirring, or moving forth; Diſturbance, Diſorder, or Trouble.

Empalement, (according to Dr. Grew) is the outmoſt part of the Flower of a Plant, encompaſſing the Foliation of the Attire. 'Tis deſign'd to be a Guard and Band to the Flower, where it is weak and tender; and therefore ſuch Plants as have Flowers with a firm and ſtrong Baſis, as Tulips, &c. have no Empalement, nor need any.

To Empannel, (Law-Term) is to ſet down the Names of the Jury-men in a Parchment-Schedule, or Roll of Paper, call'd the Pannel, which is done by the Sheriff, after he has ſummon'd them to appear for the performance of ſuch Publick Service as Juries are uſually employ'd in.

Emparlance, (Fr. in Common-Law) a Petition, or Motion made in Court, for a Day of Reſpite, to conſider what is beſt to be done; or for the Defendant to put in his Anſwer to the Plaintiff's Declaration. In the Civil-Law, it is call d Petitio Induciarum.

Empaſma, (Gr.) a Compoſition of ſweet Powders, to take away a Sweat, and cauſe itching. See Catapaſma.

Empattement, (according to ſome) is the ſame as Talus in Fortification; which See.

Emperour (Lat. an abſolute Soveraign Prince, who bears Rule over many large Countries.

Empetron, (Gr.) the Herb Samphire, or as ſome ſay, Saxifrage.

Emphaſis, a Figure in Rhetorick, when a tacit Signification is given to Words, or when more is ſignify'd than expreſs'd; a Weight or Streſs laid upon a Word in the ſpeaking of it.

Emphatical or Emphatick, utter'd with a Grace, ſignificant, forcible. Thus when any thing is ſpoken with great Earneſtneſs and Concern, we ſay 'Twas ſpoken very Emphatically, or with a great Emphaſis.

Emphatical Colours, (according to the old Natural Philoſophers) are thoſe Apparent Colours, as they otherwiſe term them, which are often ſeen in Clouds, before the Riſing, or after the Setting of the Sun, or thoſe in the Rain-bow, &c. And theſe, becauſe they are not permanent or laſting, they will not allow to be true Colours.

Empheuteuſis, a Planting, Grafting, or Imping: In the Roman-Law, the Renting of Land, upon condition to Plant it.

Empheuteuta or Empheuteutes, ſuch a Tenant of Land; a Copy-holder.

Empheuteuticus Ager, Land improved, let out to Farm, Hire, or Rent.

Emphracticks, Medicines that by their Clammineſs ſtop up the Pores of the Skin.

Emphragma, a Stopple, a Bar or Bolt: Alſo a wringing and grinding Pain of the Guts, as in the Wind-colick.

Emphraxis, an Obſtruction, or Stoppage in any Part of the Body.

Emphyſema, a blowing into; or that which is brought in by blowing.

In Surgery, an Inflammation proceeding from Heat, or otherwiſe: Alſo a kind of Swelling, wherein Wind is contain'd, with a little ſlimy Phlegm.

Emphyton Thermon or Calor Innatus, is the Innate Heat, or Heat firſt ſuppos'd to be produc'd in a Fœtus, or Child in the Womb, from the Parents Semen, which afterwards, when Reſpiration is begun, and the Fœtus ſubſiſts of it ſelf, decays and ceaſes by Degrees. Many Philoſophers and Phyſicians call this Heat an Innate and Natural Spirit, and make it conſiſt of three Parts, viz. of a Primogonial Moiſture, an Innate Spirit, and Heat.

Empire (Lat.) the Dominions, or Juriſdiction of an Emperour; alſo Power, or Authority.

Empirica Medicina or Empirice, (Gr.) Quacking or pretending to cure Diſeaſes by Gueſs, without Reaſon, a practiſing Phyſick without enquiring either into the Nature of the Diſeaſe, or of Medicines proper to be made uſe of to Cure it ; but depending altogether on the Authority of experienced Medicines, which are often apply'd too Univerſally in all manner of Caſes and Circumſtances.

Empirical, belonging to an Empirick, or Quack.

Empiriciſm, the Profeſſion, or Practice of an Empirick.

Empirick, a Phiſician by bare Practice, that applies general Medicines after a bold and heedleſs rate ; a Quack-ſalver, a Poſt-Doctor, a Mountebank.

Emplagia, the Palſey, a Diſeaſe.

Emplaſticks. See Emplattomena.

Emplaſtrum, a Plaiſter, or Salve outwardly apply'd to the Skin, ſpread upon Linnen-cloath, Leather, &c. and made of divers things, as Oil, Wax, Pitch, Roſin, Swines-greaſe, the ſlimy Juice drawn from Gums, Seeds, Roots, &c.

Emplattomena or Emplaſtica, are Salves, or Sticking Plaiſters, which ſo cloſe and ſhut up the Pores of the Body, that Sulphureous Vapours, &c. cannot paſs.

Emplecton Opus, Work well knit and couched together ; properly when the Stones of a Building are ſo laid, that the Front and Back which are in ſight be ſmooth, but their inſide rough, that they may take the better hold of one another.

To Employ, (Fr.) to ſet one at Work, or upon ſome Buſineſs, to uſe or make uſe of, to beſtow Time or Pains.

Employ or Employment, Work, Buſineſs, Trade ; Place or Office.

Empneumatoſis, (Gr. in Anat.) an alternate dilatation or widening of the Cheſt, whereby the outward Air is continually breathed in, and communicated to the Blood by the Wind-pipe and Lungs.

Emponema, the beſtowing of Pains and Charge about a Thing, to improve or make it better : In the Roman Law, the Right and Covenant of Tenancy for the holding of Land.

Emporetical or Emporetick, belonging to Merchandize.

Emporium, a Mart-Town : Among Anatomiſts, it is often taken for the Common Senſory in the Brain.

Empory, a Mart-Town, a place for Fairs and Markets ; an Exchange.

Empreſs, an Emperour's Wife.

Emprimed, a Term us'd by Hunters, when a Hart forſakes the Herd.

Emprize, an old Word for Enterprize.

Emproſthotonos, (Gr. in Anat.) a continual Contraction, or drawing together of the Muſcles of the Neck towards the Fore-parts: a ſtiffneſs of the Back-bone when it is bent forwards, as Opiſthotonos, when 'tis bent backwards.

Emption, (Lat.) a buying or purchaſing.

Empuſa, (Gr.) a Hobgoblin, or Spirit that goes upon one Leg.

Empyema, (Gr. in Surgery) a gathering together of Corrupt Matter, about the Breaſt and Lungs : Alſo an Operation to diſcharge all ſorts of Matter, with which the Midriff is loaded, by making a Perforation or opening in the Breaſt.

Empyræum Cœlum, the Heaven of Heavens, or higheſt Heaven ; the Eleventh Sphere above the Primum Mobile, or firſt Mover, in which is the Throne of God ; the Reſidence of Angels, and the Eternal Manſion of Saints or Glorify'd Spirits ; ſo call'd from its fiery Brightneſs.

Empyreal or Empyrean, belonging to the higheſt Heaven ; as The Empyreal Orbs.

Empyreumata, (in the Art of Phyſick) little feveriſh Remains, after the Criſis, or Turn of a Diſeaſe : Alſo that thick ſlimy Matter which ſettles at the bottom of diſtilled Waters. Empyreuma, alſo ſignifies that taſte and ſmell of the Fire, which in Diſtillations happens to ſome Oils, Spirits and Waters, from their being drawn off by too great a Degree of Heat.

Emeril or Emery, a Glazier's Diamond.

Emrods. See Hæmorrhoids.

Emroſe, a kind of Flower.

To Emulate, (Lat.) to vie with one, and ſtrive to match or Maſter him ; to envy another's Excellency or Worth.

Emulation, the Act of emulating, or imitating with a Deſire to excell ; Contention, Envy.

Emulgent, (i. e. milking out or ſtroking) a Term in Anatomy, as the Emulgent Veſſels, i. e. two large Arteries and Veins, which ariſe, the former from the deſcending Trunk of the Aorta, or great Artery, the latter from the Vena Cava : They are both inſerted to the Kidneys ; ſo that the Emulgent Arteries carry the Blood with the Humour call'd Serum, to them, and the Emulgent Veins bring it back again, after the Serum is ſeparated from it by the Kidneys.

Emulſion, a kind of Phyſick-drink made of Fruits and Seeds of the Form and Colour of Milk, to be us'd in ſuch Caſes as require eaſing or aſſwaging Medicines

Emunctories, certain Kernally places in an Animal Body, by which the Principal Parts diſcharge their Excrements, or Superfluities ; as the Glandules that lies under the Ears for the Brain, under the Arm-pits for the Heart, and under the Groin for the Liver, &c.

To Enable, to make able, or capable.

Enach, (in the Practick of Scotland) Satisfaction for any Crime, or Fault.

To Enact, (Law-word) to eſtabliſh an Act, to ordain, or decree.

Enæmon (Gr.) a Medicine that ſerves to ſtanch or ſtop the Blood, cloſing the Paſſages of the Veſſels by its binding, cooling, or drying Quality.

Enæreoma, that which hangs as it were a little Cloud in the middle of diſtilled Waters or Urines, eſpecially when the Diſeaſe is breaking away.

Enallage, a changing, or exchanging. In Grammar, a Figure, whereby there is a Change either of a Pronoun, as when a Poſſeſſive is put for a Relative ; as Suus for Ejus ; or of a Verb, when one Mood or Tenſe is put for another.

Enaluron, the Heralds Term to expreſs a Bordure charged with any kind of Birds : Thus they ſay, He bears Argent, a Bordure Azure, charged with an Enaluron of Martlets ; meaning that there are Martlets all round the Border.

Enamel, a ſort of Compoſition us'd by Painters, Goldſmiths, Glaziers, and other Artificers.

To Enamel, to ſet off with Enamel, to Paint after a particular Way, with little Spots or Flowers, to engrave with Fire.

Enamoured. See Inamoured.

Enantioſis or Antenantioſis, (Gr.) contrariety : In Rhetorick, a Figure when that is ſpoken by a contrary, which is intended ſhould be underſtood, as it were by Affirmation ; as There was Strength againſt Nimbleneſs, Rage againſt Reſolution, Pride againſt Nobleneſs.

Enargia, a Rhetorical Term, for Evidence, or Clearneſs of Expreſſion.

Enarration, (Lat.) a plain Declaration, or Interpretation ; a Recital or Rehearſal.

Enarthroſis, (Gr. in Anat.) a kind of Joynting, when the Cavity, or Hollow Part which receives is deep, and the Head of the Bone that's let in, is ſomewhat long ; as in the Joyning of the Thigh-bone with the Iſchion, or Huckle-bone.

Encænia, certain yearly Feſtivals, anciently kept on the Days that Cities were built. Alſo one among the Jews, call'd The Feaſt of the Dedication of the Temple, and obſerv'd by our Saviour. Among Chriſtians, the Conſecration, or Wake-days of our Churches.

To Encamp. To Incamp.

Encanthis, a Swelling, or piece of Fleſh that grows out of the inner Corner of the Eye.

Encardia, a precious Stone, having in it the Figure of an Heart.

Encarpa, (in Architect.) Flowers, or Fruit-work cut out on the Chapiters of Pillars.

Encathiſma, (in the Art of Phyſick) a kind of Bath for the Belly, the ſame as Inſeſſus.

Encauma, a Brand, or Mark made by Burning, a Burning in; a Wheal, or Puſh caus'd by a Burn: Alſo an Ulcer in the Eye with a filthy Scab, which often follows a Feaver.

Encauſtes, an Enameller that Engraves with Fire.

Encauſtice or Encauſtica, Encauſticks, the Art of Enamelling, making Images, or Painting with Fire.

Encauſtum, a kind of Picture wrought with Fire; alſo Enamel or Varniſh us'd for that purpoſe.

Enceinte, (Fr.) Compaſs, Incloſure. In Fortification, the whole Compaſs of a Place, either lin'd and compos'd of Baſtions, Courtins, &c. or otherwiſe.

Encephalos, (Gr. in Anat.) whatever is contain'd within the Compaſs of the Scull.

Enchalabris, a kind of Table, ſet up by the Roman Prieſts, upon which the Beaſt kill'd in Sacrifice was ſtretch'd out, to view its Inwards.

To Enchant. See To Inchant.

Encharaxis, (Gr.) an Engraving or Cutting into: In a Medicinal Senſe, a Scarifying, or Lancing the Fleſh.

Encheſon, (Fr.) a Word much us'd in Law-Books, and ſignifying the Occaſion, Cauſe, or Reaſon, for which any thing is done.

Enchireſis, (Gr.) the Act of undertaking, or ſetting about any thing. Enchireſis Anatomica, a Readineſs or Skilfulneſs in Anatomizing, or diſſecting a dead Body, when an Anatomiſt ſhews the Parts of it dext'rouſly and expeditiouſly.

Enchiridion or Enchiridium, a Manual, or ſmall Volume, that may be carry'd about in one's Hand, a Pocket-book: Alſo that part of the Oar, which a Water-man holds in his Hand, the Handle of a thing; alſo a Dagger.

Enchriſta, thin Ointments.

Enchymoma, a flowing of the Blood, whereby the outward Parts become Black and Blue, as in the Scurvy, Blood-ſhot-Eyes, &c. Alſo a ſudden and quick Motion of the Blood; as in Anger, Joy, &c.

Enchyta, an Inſtrument with which Liquors are dropt into the Eyes, Noſtrils, or Ears.

To Encircle. See To Incircle.

Encliticks, (in Grammar) are certain Particles, commonly joyn'd to the end of a Word, and ſo call'd upon account that they cauſe the Accent to incline towards themſelves, as que, ne, ve, in Latin.

To Encloſe. See To Incloſe.

Encluſma, (Gr.) a Clyſter, or Glister.

Encolpiæ, Winds ariſing out of Creeks and Nooks.

Encomiaſt, a Maker of Encomiums.

Encomiaſtick, a Copy of Verſes in one's Praiſe, or belonging thereunto.

Encomium, a Speech, or Song, in Commendation of a Perſon, Praiſe.

To Encompaſs, to ſurround, or ſtand about.

Encope, (Gr.) an Inciſion, Cut, or Gaſh: In Surgery, a Cutting, or Lancing of any Part of the Body, with a Gangrene.

Encounter, (Fr.) Meeting, Fight, Carnal Copulation.

To Encounter, to meet, to engage in Fighting.

To Encourage, to give Courage, or Heart, to Countenance; to incite or ſtir up, to promote or prefer.

Encouragement, that which ſerves to encourage, a Gift, Recompence, or Reward.

Encranium, (Gr.) the hinder part of the Brain, the ſame as Cerebellum.

Encraſicholus, the Anchovy, a ſort of Fiſh.

To Encreaſe. See To Increaſe.

To Encroach, (Fr.) to intrench upon, or uſurp, to invade, to abuſe.

Encroachment, the Act of Encroaching, Uſurpation: In a Law-ſenſe, Encroachment, or Accroachment, is an unlawful gaining upon the Rights, or Poſſeſſions of another; as if two Grounds lying together, one preſſes too far upon the other; or when as if a Tenant owes two Shillings Rent-ſervice to the Lord, and the Lord takes three.

To Encumber. See To Incumber.

Encyclopædia, (Gr.) the whole Circle or Compaſs of Learning, which comprehends all Liberal Arts and Sciences.

Encyſted Tumours. See Tumours.

End for end, a Phraſe us'd by Sea-men, when a Rope runs all out of the Block or Pulley; and when a Cable runs all out at the Hole call'd the Hanſe, they ſay, The Cable is run out End for end.

To Endammage, (Fr.) to do Dammage to, to hurt.

To Endanger. See To Indanger.

To Endear, to make dear and beloved.

Endearment, an Endearing, a great cauſe of Affection.

Endecagon, (Gr. in Geom.) a plain Figure of Eleven Sides and Angles.

Endeixis, a ſhewing or declaring: In the Art of Phyſick, an Indication of Diſeaſes, ſhewing what is to be done; as a Plethory, or too great fulneſs of Blood, directs, to the opening of a Vein.

Endelechia. a Philoſophical Word for Continuence, or Laſtingneſs. See Entelechia.

Endemical, Endemial, or Endemious Diſeaſe, a Diſtemper that infects a great many in the ſame Country, the Cauſe of it being peculiar to the Country where it Reigns; as the Flux to Ireland, the Scurvy to Holland, intermitting Feavers to the Inhabitants of our marſhy Places, &c. It is alſo ſometimes call'd Morbus Vernaculus, & Communis.

To Endew, (among Falconers) is when a Hawk ſo digeſts her Meat, that ſhe not only diſcharges her Gorge of it, but alſo cleanſes her Pannel.

To Endite, to Compoſe, Pen, or deliver the matter of a Letter, or other Writing.

Enditement or Inditement, (in Common-Law) a Bill, or Declaration in form of Law brought againſt one for ſome Offence, either Criminal or Penal unto Jurors, and by their Verdict found and preſented to be true before an Officer, or Court that has power to puniſh ſuch an Offence. It is always at the Suit of the Queen, and differs from an Accuſation in this Reſpect, that the Preferrer is no way ty'd to the Proof of it, except there appear Conſpiracy.

Endive, an Herb us'd in Sallets and Potage in the Autumn and Winter-ſeaſon. The diſtilled Water of it is very much us'd in Feavers and Inflammations, by reaſon of its cooling Quality.

Endorſe, (in Heraldry) the eighth part of a Pale, or the fourth of a Pallet as He bears, or an Endorſe Gules.

To Endorſe. See To Indorſe.

Endorſed, when two Lions are born Rampant, and turning their Backs to each other, the Heralds ſay, They are endorſed, but if their Faces be towards each other, it is termed Combatant.

To Endow, to beſtow a Dower, or Marriage-Portion; to ſettle Rents or Revenues, for the maintenance of a College, Hoſpital, &c.

Endowment, natural Gift or Quality: In a Law-ſenſe, the giving, or taking of a Dower to a Woman: Alſo the ſetting out or ſevering of a ſufficient Portion for the maintenance of a Vicar, when the Benefice is appropriated; and ſuch a Vicarage is call'd a Vicarage Endowed.

Endowment de la plus belle part, (Fr.) a Law-Phraſe us'd when a Man dying poſſeſſed of ſome Lands held in Knights-Service, and others in Socage, the Widow has her Dower out of the Socage-Lands, as being la plus belle part, i. e. the fairer Part.

Endromis, (Gr.) a kind of courſe Shag-Mantle which Runners and Wreſtlers anciently us'd to caſt about them after Exerciſe, alſo worn by others in cold Weather; a Scotch Plad, or Iriſh Robe.

To Endue (Lat.) to qualify, to ſupply or furniſh with.

To Endure. See To Indure.

Enema, (Gr.) a Gliſter.

Energetical, full of Energy, emphatical, forcible.

Energetical Bodies, or Particles, (among Naturaliſts) ſuch as are eminently Active, and which produce manifeſt Operations of different Natures, according to the various Circumſtances, and Motions of thoſe Bodies or ſmall Parts.

Energumeni Dæmoniaci, Men that are poſſeſs'd with unclean Spirits.

Energy, effectual Working, Efficacy, Force: In Rhetorick, a Figure wherein great force of Expreſſion is us'd: In a Medicinal Senſe, a ſtirring about, or Operation of the Animal Spirits and Blood.

To Enervate, (Lat. q. d. to ſpoil the force of the Nerves or Sinews) to take away one's Strength and Vigour, to weaken, or infeeble, to ſoften, or make wanton.

Enervation, the Act of enervating, weakening, or making feeble. In Surgery, a weakneſs about the Nerves and Tendons.

Enewed, (old Word) made new.

Enepa, (in the Practick of Scotland) the principal part of an Inheritance, which goes to the eldeſt Son.

Enfans Perdues, (Fr. i. e. loſt Children) the Forlorn Hope in an Army. See Forlorn Hope.

To Enfeeble. See To Infeeble.

To Enfeoff. See To Infeoff.

Enfilade, (Fr.) a Ribble-row of Rooms, Doors, &c. a long train of Diſcourſe: In the Art of War, the ſituation of a Poſt, that can diſcover and ſcour all the Length of a ſtraight Line; which by that means is render'd almoſt defenceleſs.

To Enfilade or Enfile the Courtin, Rampart, &c. is to ſcour or ſweep the whole Length of ſuch a Work with the Shot.

To Enforce. See To Inforce.

To Enfranchiſe, (Fr. Law-word) to make one a Free-Man, or a free Deniſon, to incorporate a Man into a Society, or Body Politick.

Enfranchiſement, the Art of enfranchiſing, making free, &c.

To Engage, to perſwade, or draw in, to oblige or bind, to mortgage or pawn; to take upon one's ſelf, or paſs one's Word, to Encounter or Fight.

Engagement, a Promiſe, Obligation, or Tie; a Combat, or Fight.

Engelbert, (Germ. i. e. bright Angel) a proper Name of ſome Men.

To Engender, (Fr.) to get or beget, to breed, to create or cauſe.

Engine, in general, is any Mechanick Inſtrument, made up of Wheels, Screws, or Pulleys, &c. in order to lift, caſt, or bear any Weight, or to produce any conſiderable Effect which cannot be ſo eaſily perform'd by the bare Application of Mens Hands; as Engines to raiſe Water, or put out Fire, Cranes, Draw-beams, &c. The Word is alſo figuratively taken for an Artifice, Device, or Contrivance.

Warlike Engines, ſuch as are made uſe of for the battering and taking of ſtrong Places.

Engineer or Ingenier, a Perſon well skill'd in the Art of Contriving, Building and Repairing of Forts, and other Works; alſo experienced in the Methods of Attacking and Defending all ſorts of Poſts.

Engiſoma, (Gr. in Surgery) a Fracture of the Scull, wherein the Bone ſinks to the inner Membrane or Skin of the Brain, and preſſes upon it: Alſo the Name of an Inſtrument us'd in ſuch Caſes.

England, the moſt happy Country in Europe upon many Accounts, more eſpecially with reſpect to its ſituation, temperateneſs of its Air, Richneſs of Soil, &c. Its Name is derived from the Angles, a People of Denmark, who with the Jutes and Saxons, ſubdu'd and ſettled themſelves in this Iſland. See Saxons.

Englecery, Englechery or Englechire, an old Law-Term that only ſignifies the being an Engliſhman, and formerly us'd in Oppoſition to Francigena, which laſt Word denoted any Foreigner: So that according to K. Canutus's Law, a Fine was laid upon the Country, for the private Murder of ſuch a one, and every Man ſo kill'd was accounted Francigena, unleſs Englecery was proved, i. e. due Proof were made that he was an Engliſh-man. This Law for the Abuſes and Troubles occaſioned by it, was utterly aboliſh'd by Stat. 14. Ed. 3.

Engliſh, belonging to England; as The Engliſh Tongue: Alſo the Name of a kind of Printing-Letter.

Engliſh Serpentary, an Herb. See Biſtort.

Engonaſi or Engonaſis, one of the Northern Conſtellations containing about 48 Stars, and ſo nam'd from its Figure, wherein Hercules is repreſented leaning on his Right Knee, and endeavouring to bruiſe a Dragon's Head with his left Foot.

Engonios, (in Anat.) the bending of the Arm or Leg.

Engouted, a Term in Heraldry, when a Hawk's Feathers have black Spots in them.

To Engraft. See To Ingraft.

Engrailed, a Term in Heraldry, when a Bordure, &c. is made by a Line notched and ſhap'd like a Scollop, ſo that the little Arches turn outwards from the middle of the Eſcutcheon; for if they turn the other way, 'tis call'd Invected.

To Engrave, to cut any Figure, or Repreſentation in Wood, Copper, or other Metal.

To Engroſs. See To Ingroſs.

Engyſcope, (Gr.) the ſame with a Microſcope, being an Inſtrument to view ſmall Bodies diſtinctly, and ſo call'd, becauſe it brings the Eye much nearer to thoſe ſmall Bodies, ſo as to make them appear to have larger Parts and Dimenſions than they had before. See Microſcope.

To Enhance, to advance, or to raiſe the Price.

Enharmonical or Enharmonick Muſick, (Gr.) the laſt of the three kinds of Muſick in uſe among the Ancients abounding with Dieſes; a particular manner of turning the Voice, and diſpoſing the Intervals with ſuch Art, that the Melody becomes more moving. See Chromatick and Diatonick.

Enharmonical Dieſis. See Dieſis.

Enhydris, (Gr.) an Adder, or Water-ſnake; an Otter.

Enhydros, a ſort of round Stone ſmooth and white, wherein as one ſhakes it, ſomewhat ſeems to move to and fro.

Enigma or Ænigma, a Riddle, an obſcure Allegory, in which the natural Senſe of the Words cannot be immediately perceiv'd; an intricate Sentence, a Difficult Queſtion or Propoſition.

Enigmatical, belonging to, or full of Riddles, or dark Speeches; myſtical, hard to be underſtood.

Enigmatiſt, one that makes, or propoſes Riddles, or hard and obſcure Queſtions.

Enixum Sal, a Term us'd by Chymiſts, for that which they otherwiſe call a Neutral Salt, which partakes both of the Nature of an Acid, and an Alkali; as common Salt, Nitre, Allum, &c.

To Enjoy, to have the Uſe or Profit of, to have at one's Diſpoſal, to poſſeſs.

Enjoyment, enjoying, poſſeſſing; Poſſeſſion, Pleaſure, Joy.

To Enjoyn, to bid, order, charge, or command.

To Enlarge. See To Inlarge.

To Enlighten, to light, or give light to; to clear or make clear.

To Enliven, to put Life into, to make lively, or brisk.

Enmity, (Lat.) Hatred, Grudge, Variance, Strife, falling out.

Ennea, (Gr.) the Number of Nine.

Enneadecaterides, (in Aſtron.) a Revolution of Nineteen Years, otherwiſe call'd the Lunar Cycle, or Golden Number; which See: Or, Cycle of the Moon.

Enneagon (in Geom. and Fortif.) a regular Figure of Nine equal Sides, and as many Angles, which may be fortify'd with the ſame Number of Baſtions.

Enneaphyllon, an Herb that has Nine long Leaves.

Enneatical, belonging to the Number of Nine; as Enneatical Days or Years, i. e. every Ninth Day of a Sickneſs, or Ninth Year of a Man's Life, which is thought to bring ſome great Alteration in the Diſeaſe, or change of Fortune.

Enneemeris, (Gr.) one kind of the Figure Cæſura in a Greek or Latin Verſe, after the Fourth Foot in the Ninth Syllable of the Verſe, which odd Syllable ending the Word, helps to make the next Foot with the following Word; as in this Verſe.

Ille latus niveum molli fultus hyacintho.

Where are found all the Four Branches of the Cæſura, viz. Triemimeris Penthemimeris, Hephthemimeris & Enneemimeris.

To Ennoble, (Lat.) to make Noble, to render more renowned.

Enoch's Pillars, two Pillars ſaid to be ſet up by Enoch, the Son of Seth, one of Brick, and the other of Sto e, upon which the whole Art of Aſtronomy was engrav'd.

Enodation, (Lat. in Husbandry) an unknotting, or cutting away the Knots of Trees: Alſo an explaining, expounding, or unfolding of a Matter.

Enormity, Hainouſneſs, high Miſdemeanour.

Enormous, that is out of Rule or Square, exceeding great, hainous, grievous.

To Enpleet, an old Law-word, for to Implead; as May exleet, and be enpleated in all Courts.

Enqueſt or Inqueſt, the Inquiſition or Enquiry into matter of Fact made by the Jury in all Cauſes, both Civil and Criminal, in order to the giving of their Verdict; according to which Judgment paſſes; for the Judge ſays, The Jury finds the Fact thus, and the Law is thus.

To Enquire, See To Inquire.

To Enrage, to put in a Rage, to make one mad, or provoke him.

To Enroll. See To Inroll.

Ens, (Lat.) a Philoſophical Term for a Being, whatever has any Kind of Exiſtence, or Being: This the School-men call Ens reale, or Ens poſitivum, to diſtinguiſh it from their Ens rationis; which is only an imaginary thing, a Creature of the Brain, and exiſts only in the Underſtanding.

Ens Primum, (according to Paracelſus) is the moſt efficacious Part of any natural mixt Body, Vegetable, Animal, or Mineral, which he pretends to have been able to ſeparate from them, and with it to effect prodigious things, for the renewing and reſtoring of Youth.

Ens Veneris, is a Sublimation of equal Parts of the Powder of Cyprus-Vitriol, calcined or burnt to a dark Colour, and of Sal Armoniack, into the form of a Yellow Flower; and this Operation is ſo call'd from ſome Particles of Venus, or Copper, which are thereby carry'd away from the Vitriol.

Enſample, (old Word) an Example, Model, or Pattern.

To Enſconſe, (old Word) to intrench. See Inſconſed.

To Enſeam or Enſaim, to purge a Hawk, or Falcon of her Glut, and Greaſe.

Enſeeled, (among Falconers) a Hawk is ſaid To be enſeeled, when a Thread is drawn through the upper Eye-lids, and made faſt under the Beak, to take away the Sight.

Enſiformis Cartilago or Mucronata, (Lat. in Anat.) is the loweſt part of the Sternum, or Breaſt-bone, ſo nam'd from its ſharp-pointed Triangular Shape, reſembling the Edge of a Sword.

Enſign, an Officer in a Foot-Company of Soldiers that bears the Standard or Colours; or the Standard it ſelf: Alſo the Colours that are ſet up, or hung out in a Ship: In Heraldry, an Eſcutheon in which are painted the Trophies of Honour, or Coat Armour of a particular Family.

Enſigns of Royalty. See Royalty,

Enſigne, (Fr.) a Word us'd in ſome of our ancient Writers, for Bleeding or Blood-letting; alſo Blooded, or let blood.

To Enſlave. See To Inſlave.

To Enſnare. See To Inſnare.

To Enſue, (Fr.) to follow, to proceed, or ſpring from.

Entablature or Entablement, (in Architect.) properly a flooring, or lofting with Boards: It is more eſpecially taken for the Architrave, Frize and Cornice of a Pillar, being in effect the outmoſt end of the Flooring, which is either ſupported by Pillars, or by a Wall, if there be no Columns.

Entail, (Fr. in Common-Law) a Fee-tail, or Fee entailed, ſcanted or ſhorten'd; by which means the Heir is limited, and ty'd up to certain Conditions.

To Entail an Eſtate, is to make it over after ſuch a manner.

Entalium, (Lat.) a kind of Sea-ſhell of about a Finger's length, Scollop'd without, and ſmooth on the inſide.

To Entangle. See To Intangle.

Entelechia, (Gr.) a Word us'd by Ariſtotle, to expreſs the Humane Mind or Soul, as being the perfection of Nature, and the Principle of Motion. The ancient Commentators on Ariſtotle, interpret it by the Word Actus, meaning a kind of Subſtantial Form, by which Action is produced in the Body. But the modern Philoſophers take it for a ſort of continued and perpetual Motion, and fit Modification of Matter, qualifying the whole to be able to perform ſuch Acts as are proper to it.

Entendment, (in Common-Law) the true ſenſe or meaning of a Word, or Sentence: Thus a thing that is in doubt ſhall be ſometimes made out by Entendment. See Intendment.

To Enter, to go into, to ſet down in Writing; eſpecially to Note down Goods, &c. in a Book of Accounts. Among Carpenters, to let the Tenon of a piece of Timber into the Mortiſe of another.

To Enter a Hawk, a Term us'd by Falconers, when ſhe firſt begins to kill.

Entera, (Gr.) the Entrails, the inward Parts of the Body, the Bowels.

Enterenchyta, a Clyſter pipe, which is alſo call'd Siphon and Syringa.

To Enterfere. See To Interfere.

Enterfering, a Diſeaſe in Horſes, which cauſes ſuch a Beaſt to go ſo narrow behind with the hinder Feet, that he frets one Foot againſt another; whence there ariſe hard mattery Scabs which make him go lame.

Entering. See Ent'ring.

Entermewer, (among Falconers) a Hawk that changes the Colour of her Wings by degrees.

Enterocele, (Gr. in Surgery) the fall of the Entrails, eſpecially of the Gut call'd Ileum, through the widen'd Proceſſes of the Peritoneum, into the Groin or outward Skin that covers the Scrotum: It is otherwiſe call'd Hernia Inteſtinalis.

Enteroepiplocele, a kind of Rupture, when the Caul and the Guts fall down both together into the Scrotum, or Cod.

Enterology, a Diſcourſe or Treatiſe of the Bowels.

Enteromphalus or Hernia Umbilicalis, a Rupture, when the Entrails bunch out at the Navel; which is common among great-belly'd or teeming Women.

To Enterpenn, (a Term in Falconry) as, The Hawk Enterpenneth, i. e. has her Feathers wrapt up, ſnarled or intangled.

Enterpleader, (Fr. in Common-Law) the debating of a Point that accidentally happens, before the Principal Cauſe can have an end: In the Civil Law, it is termed Cognitio præjudicialis. See To Interplead.

Enterprize, an Undertaking, Attempt or Deſign; eſpecially in the Art of War.

To Enterprize, to undertake, to take in Hand, to attempt.

To Entertain, to maintain, keep or lodge; to receive or accept of, to Treat.

Entertainment, an entertaining, receiving, &c. Treatment, good Welcome.

Enterview, (a Term in Falconry) by which is meant the ſecond Year of an Hawk's Age.

Enthemata, Graffs ſtuck into the Clefts of Trees: Alſo Medicines apply'd to Green Wounds, to ſtop the Blood and Courſe of Humours.

To Enthrall. See To Inthrall.

To Enthrone. See To Inthrone.

Enthuſiaſm, (Gr.) Fanaticiſm, a making ſhew of Divine Inſpiration.

Enthuſiaſt, one that pretends to be ſo inſpired, or is tranſported with imaginary Revelations.

Enthuſiaſtical or Enthuſiaſtick, belonging to, or favouring of Enthuſiaſm.

Enthymema, (Gr.) any Act, Conception, or Idea of the Mind: Alſo a Rhetorical Figure, when the concluding Sentence conſiſts of Contraries.

In Logick, Enthymema, is a Syllogiſm perfect in the Mind, but imperfect in the Expreſſion; becauſe ſome one of the Propoſitions is ſuppreſs'd, as being ſo clear and common, that it may be eaſily ſupply'd by the Underſtanding of thoſe to whom it is made: As every Right-lined Triangle has all its Three Angles juſt equal to two Right ones, therefore it will be ſo in an Iſoſceles; where the Propoſition, That an Iſoſceles is a Right-lined Triangle, is omitted, as being ſufficiently known, and conſequently it were needleſs to inſert it.

To Entice, to draw in cunningly, to tempt.

Enticement, the Act of enticing, Allurement.

Entierty or Intierty, (Fr.) a Law-word ſignifying Entireneſs, or the Whole; as it is diſtinguiſhed from Moiety, or the Half.

Entire, whole, compleat, perfect, full, abſolute, ſincere.

Entire Pertingents, (in Heraldry) are Lines that run the longeſt way of the Shield's Poſition, without touching the Center.

Entire Pertranſient, a Line which croſſes the middle of the Shield or Eſcutcheon, and runs diametrically the longeſt way of its Poſition.

Entire Tenancy, (in Common Law) is uſually oppos'd to Several Tenancy, and taken for a ſole Poſſeſſion in one Perſon, whereas the other imports a joynt or common Poſſeſſion in more.

To Entitle. See To Intitle.

Entity, (Lat.) a Philoſophical Word for a Being, or the having a Being.

Entoire, (Fr. in Heraldry) a Term us'd when a Bordure is charged with all ſorts of things that have no Life, except Leaves, Fruits and Flowers; ſuch as Bezants, Plates, Ogreſſes, &c.

Entombed. See Intombed.

Entrails, the Inwards, Bowels, or Guts.

Entrance, Entry or going in, Admittance, Beginning.

To Entrap. See To Intrap.

To Entreat, to beg earneſtly, or beſeech; to court with fair Words: Alſo formerly, to treat of, or handle.

Entreaty, Supplication, Requeſt.

Entremes, (old Word) intermingled.

Entrichomata, (Gr.) the utmoſt edge of the Eye-lids, from whence the Hair grows.

Entriked, (old Word) deceived.

Ent'ring a Ship, (in a Sea-fight) ſignifies as much as Boarding; and the ſafeſt way to do it is in the Bow.

Ent'ring-Ladder, is of two ſorts; one of Wood faſten'd to the Ship's ſides, which is us'd in a Harbour, or in fair Weather, for Perſons to go in and out of the Ship: The other is made of Ropes, with ſmall Staves for Steps, and is hung out of the Gallery, to get into the Boat, or to come a board the Ship from thence; when the Sea runs ſo high that the Boat cannot be brought to the Ship's ſide without danger of ſtaving her.

Ent'ring-Rope, a Rope ty'd by the Ship's ſide to hold by, as one goes up the Ent'ring-Ladder or Wales.

Entruſion or Intruſion, (Law-Term) a violent and unlawful Entrance upon Lands or Tenements void of a Poſſeſſour, by one that has no manner of Right to them.

Entruſion de Gard, a Writ that lies where an Infant within Age enters into Lands, and holds his Lord out; in which Caſe the Lord ſhall not have the Writ de Communi Cuſtodia, but this.

To Entruſt. See To Intruſt.

Entry, ent'ring or coming in, Paſſage; alſo the ent'ring or ſetting down of Goods in the Cuſtom-Houſe. In a Law-ſenſe, the taking Poſſeſſion of Lands or Tenements: It is alſo us'd for a Writ of Poſſeſſion. See Ingreſſus.

Entry ad Communem Legem, is a Writ that lies where a Tenant for Term of Life, Tenant for Term of another's Life, Tenant by the Cour-

Life, or Tenant in Dower, aliens or makes over Lands and dies, then the Party in Reverſion ſhall have this Writ againſt whomſoever is in Poſſeſſion.

Entry ad Terminum qui præteriit, a Writ lying for a Leſſor, in caſe Land being let to a Man for another's Life; he for whoſe Life the Lands are leaſed dies, and the Leſſee or Tenant holds over his Term.

Entry in Caſu Conſimili, a Writ which he in Reverſion ſhall have againſt a Tenant for Life, or in Courteſy, who aliens in Fee.

Entry in Caſu Proviſo, a Writ that lies in like manner for one in Reverſion, when a Tenant in Dower aliens in Fee, or for Term of Life, or for another's Life.

Entry Cauſa Matrimonii prælocuti or Entry for Marriage in Speech, a Writ that lies where Lands or Tenements are given to a Man, upon condition that he take the Donour to Wife within a certain Time; and he does not marry her within the time appointed, or eſpouſes another, or otherwiſe diſables himſelf from performing the ſaid Condition; then the Donour and her Heirs, ſhall have this Writ againſt him, or whoſoever elſe is in the ſaid Lands.

Entry per le cui et poſt, a Writ that lies where a Man is diſſeiſed, or turn'd out of his Freehold, and the Diſſeiſour aliens or dies in poſſeſſion, and his Heir enters: Then the Diſſeiſee, or his Heir, ſhall have this Writ againſt the Heir of the Diſſeiſour, or the Alienee of the Diſſeiſour.

Entry ſine caſu Capitali, a Writ lying where an Abbot, or ſuch as has Covent or Common Seal, aliens Lands or Tenements of the Right of his Church, without the conſent of the Covent or Chapter, and dies; then the Succeſſour ſhall have this Writ.

Among Hunters, Entries are taken for thoſe Places or Thickets through which Deer are found lately to have paſs'd; whereby their greatneſs is gueſſed at, and then the Hounds or Beagles are put to them for the View.

To Entwine, to twiſt, or wind about.

Entypoſis, (Gr. in Surgery) the joynting of the Shoulder with the Arm.

† Enucleated, (Lat.) declared, made plain, thoroughly ſcanned or ſifted.

Enucleation, properly a taking out the Kernel; the explaining or unfolding of a difficult Matter.

Envelope, (Fr.) a Cover for any thing: In Fortification, a Work of Earth rais'd either in the Ditch of a Place, or beyond it; ſometimes in form of a plain Parapet or Breaſt-work, and ſometimes like a little Rampart, with a Breaſt-work to it. Theſe Envelopes are otherwiſe call'd Counter-guards, Conſerves, Lunettes, Sillons, &c.

To Envelope, to Cover, to wrap or fold up in Linnen, Paper, &c. to ſurround, to hem in or beſet; to muffle up.

To Envenom, to infect with Poiſon, to corrupt; as To envenom with bad Doctrine, falſe Principles, &c.

To Environ, (Fr.) to encompaſs, ſurround, or ſtand about.

Enula or Enula Campana, (Lat.) the Herb Ellecampane, the Root of which is good in ſhortneſs or difficulty of Breathing, old Coughs, and ſeveral other Diſtempers.

To Enumerate, to number, or reckon up.

Enumeration, an enumerating or numb'ring, a ſumming up of ſeveral Particulars.

Enunciation, an uttering or pronouncing, a Maxim or Propoſition: In Logick, it is taken for a Propoſition, which ſimply affirms or denies.

Envoy, (Fr.) an able Perſon of a lower Degree than an Ambaſſadour, ſent from one Sovereign Prince or State to another, upon Publick Affairs: Alſo the Concluſion of a Ballad or Song.

Envoyce, a Term in Traffick. See Invoy

To Enure, (Law-word) to take Place or Eff to be of force or available; as A Releaſe made to a Tenant for Term of Life, ſhall enure to him in the Reverſion.

Envurny, a Term apply'd by Heralds to all Bordures of Coats that are charged with the Figures of Beaſts.

Envy, an Uneaſineſs of Mind, or Grief ariſing from the view of another's good Qualities, or Proſperity.

Enydris, (Gr.) an Otter, a Water-ſnake.

Enypnion, (Gr.) a Dream.

Eolipile. See Æolipyle.

Epacmaſtica, (Gr.) a Word us'd in ſome Writings of Phyſick, for a Feaver that continually grows ſtronger.

Epact, (i. e. additional Supply) a Term us'd in Aſtronomy, for a certain Number of Days by which the common Solar Year exceeds the Lunar, which exceſs is 11. in regard that the Lunary Month conſiſting but of $29\frac{1}{2}$ Days, makes but 354 Days in a Year, whereas the Solar Year has 365. For the Equation of which Year's differing thus 11 Days, certain Days are yearly ſupply'd by the Epact, never exceeding 30 (becauſe the Days between one Change of the Moon and another, never go beyond that Number) until a Thirteenth Month be added, by which means every Third Year becomes Emboliſmical, or a Lunary Leap-year.

Epact of the Year, is the Moon's Age at the beginning of every Year, i. e. the time between the firſt Minute of the firſt Day of January, and the laſt New Moon of the fore-going Year.

Epagoge, an importing or bringing in; alſo the examining of, or diſcourſing with one by croſs Queſtions, or Interrogatories: Alſo a Rhetorical Figure wherein like things are compared.

Epagogium, (in Anat.) the ſame as Præputium, or the Fore-skin of a Man's Yard.

Epagon, a Truckle in a Crane or other Engine.

Epanadiploſis, (i. e. a redoubling) a Figure in Rhetorick, when a Sentence begins and ends with the ſame Word; as Severe to his Servants, to his Children ſevere. This Figure is call'd Incluſio in Latin; but in the Art of Phyſick, Epanadiploſis is taken for the frequent redoublings or returns of Feavers.

Epanalepſis, (i. e. Repetition) a Rhetorical Figure in which the ſame Word is repeated for enforcement ſake, eſpecially after a long Parentheſis; as It is known that thou haſt done this, it is known.

Epanaphora, (i. e. Reference) a Figure wherein the ſame Word begins ſeveral Sentences or Clauſes; as Ver adeo frondi, Ver utile ſylvis.

Epanodos, (i. e. Return) a Figure when the ſame Sound or Word is twice repeated in ſeveral, or in the ſame Sentence, in an inverted Order; as Nec ſine ſole ſuo lux, nec ſine luce ſua ſol.

Alſo a Figure when we return to that which once we quitted: It is call'd in Latin, by Ruffinianus, Everſio, or Egreſſio.

Epanorthoſis, Amendment or Correction, a reſtoring to the former State. In Rhetorick, a Figure when ſome fore-going Words or Expreſſions appearing too weak are recall'd, as it were for the better correcting of the Speech, and rend'ring it more emphatical; as

O clementia, ſeu potius patientia mira !

Epaphæreſis, a Term in Phyſick for a repeated Blood-letting.

Epar, See Hepar.

Eparmata, Swellings of the Glandules, or Kernels behind the Ears call'd Parotides.

Epaule, (Fr.) a Shoulder: In Fortification, the Shoulder of a Baſtion, being the Space contained in the Angle, made by the joyning together of the Face and Flank; whence that Angle is often call'd, The Angle of the Epaule.

Epaulement, a Shouldering Piece, or Covert; a Side-work made either of Earth thrown up, of Baggs or Baskets full of Earth, or of Faggots loaded with Earth: It is alſo taken for a Demi-Baſtion, and ſometimes it ſignifies a Square Orillon, which is a Maſs or heap of Earth almoſt Square, and fac'd or lin'd with a Wall, to cover the Cannon of a Caſemate. See Orillon.

Epauxeſis, (Gr.) an Encreaſe, a Figure in Rhetorick.

Epentheſis, (i. e. Interpoſition) a Grammatical Figure, when a Letter or Syllable is put in or added in the middle of a Word, as Relligio for Religio, Induperator for Imperator, &c.

Eperlanus, (Lat.) the Smelt, a ſort of Fiſh.

Epexegeſis, (Gr.) a plainer Interpretation of what was mention'd before.

Epha, an Hebrew Meaſure containing 9 Gallons, or about a Buſhel, acording to others, Seven Wine Gallons and Four Pints.

Ephebeum or Ephebium, (Gr.) a Place where young Men us'd to Wreſtle and Exerciſe themſelves. In Anatomy, the Space from the Hypogaſtrium, or lower part of the Belly, to the Privy Parts.

Ephebia, Striplings Age, at the entry of Fifteen Years.

Ephedron, the Herb Horſe-tail.

Ephelcis, a bloody ſubſtance brought up in ſpitting of Blood; alſo a Shell or Cruſt that is brought over Ulcers.

Ephelis, a Spot or Freckle that uſually proceeds from Sun-burn.

Ephemera or Ephemeris, a Wind-fly, a kind of Worm, which being chang'd to a Fly, lives not above a Day.

Ephemera or Ephemera Febris, a continued Feaver that laſts but one Day.

Ephemerides, certain Regiſters or Aſtronomical Tables calculated to ſhew the daily Motions of the Planets, with their Aſpects, Places and other Circumſtances throughout the Year. Theſe Journals are generally made uſe of by Aſtrologers, to draw Horoſcopes, or Schemes of the Heaven.

Ephemeris, a Regiſter or Day-Book, a Journal: Among Aſtronomers, ſuch a one as contains Obſervations relating to the Heavenly Bodies, eſpecially ſhewing their Place at Noon.

Ephemeriſt, a maker of Ephemerides, Almanacks, &c.

Ephemeron or Ephemerum, a kind of Plant that dies the ſame Day it ſprings, Liriconfancy or May-Lilly; Meadow-Saffron: Alſo a Beaſt about the River Hypanis that lives but one Day.

Epheſtris, a ſort of Garment us'd to be worn over Armour.

Epheſus, a City of the Leſſer Aſia, ſtill call'd Efeſo, and famous for the Stately Temple of Diana, counted one of the Seven Wonders of the World, which took up above 200 Years in building, all Aſia contributing to its Expence; the Pillars were all of Marble, and 70 Foot high: This prodigious Fabrick was burnt by Eroſtratus, the ſame Night that Alexander the Great was born.

Ephetæ, certain Judges at Athens in Greece, who try'd Cauſes of Man-ſlaughter, as the Areopagites did thoſe of wilful Murder: Theſe Magiſtrates being Fifty in Number, were to be as many Years old, and of approved Integrity.

Ephialtes, a Diſeaſe call'd the Night-mare, or Hag, when the Patient being aſleep, fancies his Wind-pipe to be oppreſs'd by ſome Weight lying upon it, and his Breath to be ſtopt: This Diſeaſe is alſo call'd Incubus; which See.

Ephidroſis, a ſweating or diſcharging Humours through the Pores of the Skin.

Ephippium, a Saddle, the Harneſs of a Horſe; an Houſing or Horſe-cloath: In Anatomy, the ſame as Sella Equina or Turcica, being a part of the Os Sphenoides or Wedge-like Bone, in which the Pituitary Glandule is plac'd.

Ephod, a kind of Linnen-garment Worn by the High Prieſt, and other inferiour Prieſts among the Jews.

Ephori, (Gr.) certain Magiſtrates or Overſeers of the Common-wealth among the ancient Lacedemonians, who were eſtabliſh'd to bridle the Authority of their Kings.

Ephraim, (Heb. fruitful or encreaſing) the Second Son of Joſeph, and the Father of the Ephraimites, who together with the Children of Manaſſeh were reckon'd among the Twelve Tribes of Iſrael.

Epiala or Epiales, (Gr.) a continued Feaver proceeding from cold Phlegm, wherein Heat and Cold is felt at once in every part of the Body: It was riſe at London, in the Month of March, A. D. 1688.

Epibates, Sea-Veſſels that are only us'd to carry Paſſengers; Paſſage-boats, or Tranſport-ſhips.

Epibata or Epibates, a Soldier ſerving at Sea, or on Ship-board.

Epibole, (i.e. a caſting or putting in) a Figure in Rhetorick, whoſe repetition of the ſame Word, at the beginning of ſeveral Sentences, has reſpect to the Matter; whereas in Epanalepſis, it has regard chiefly to the Style.

Epicarpium, a Medicine outwardly apply'd to the Wriſt, like a Plaiſter or Pultice, to drive away intermitting Feavers.

Epicauma, a foul Sore, or cruſty Ulcer, that ſometimes happens to the Black of the Eye.

Epicedium, a Funeral Song, or Copy of Verſes in praiſe of the Dead.

Epicene, (i.e. common) that is of both Kinds or Sexes as The Epicene Gender in Grammar, a Gender which contains both Sexes under one Termination, whether Maſculine or Feminine; as Hic Paſſer, a Sparrow, either Cock or Hen; hæc Aquila, an Eagle, &c. which is chiefly in the Names of thoſe Creatures, whoſe different Sex it is hard to diſtinguiſh.

Epiceraſtica, Medicines that take away the force of and moderate ſharp Humours.

Epichirema, an Attempt or Endeavour: In Logick, an Argument for the proving or clearing of any Matter, eſpecially ſuch a one as conſiſts of many Propoſitions depending one upon another, whereby at laſt ſome particular Point is made out; a kind of Sorites, which See.

Epichireſis, an attempting, ſetting about, or endeavouring; alſo an Argumentation or Reaſoning: Among Surgeons a dexterity or readineſs in Anatomizing or Diſſecting Animal Bodies; the ſame with Enchireſis.

Epicitharisma, (in the ancient Theaters) the laſt part of the Interlude, or a Flouriſh of Muſick after the Play was done.

Epick, belonging to, or conſiſting of Heroick or Hexameter Verſe; as An Epick Poem.

Epick Poet, one that writes ſuch Verſes.

Epicks, Epick Poetry.

Epiclintæ, Earthquakes that move ſide-long.

Epicolicæ Regiones, (in Anat.) thoſe Parts which lie upon the Gut Colon, ſo call'd by Dr. Gliſſon.

Epicophoſis, Deafneſs.

Epicraſis, a mingling together or tempering: In a Medicinal Senſe, a voiding of ill Humours in the Blood by Degrees.

Epicriſis, Approbation, Eſtimation, Judgment: Among Phyſicians, &c. it is taken for a judging of a Diſeaſe.

Epictetus, a Famous Stoick Philoſopher, born at Hierapolis in Phrygia, who was ſo much eſteem'd, that his Lamp, tho' but of earthen Ware, was ſold for 3000 Attick Groats, i. e. about 92 Pounds of Engliſh Money.

Epicure, a ſenſual Man, one that gives himſelf wholly to Pleaſure. See Epicurus.

Epicurean, a Follower of Epicurus's Sect.

Epicurean Philoſophy, the Natural Philoſophy firſt taught by Epicurus and Democritus, and afterwards deliver'd in Verſe by Lucretius: It is much the ſame with the preſent Mechanical Philoſophy; which See.

Epicuriſm, the Doctrine of Epicurus; alſo the Practice of an Epicure, or voluptuous Perſon.

To Epicurize, to live like an Epicure.

Epicurus, (i. e. a Helper) a noted Athenian Philoſopher, who held Pleaſure, or rather Indolency, that is a being free from Pain, to be the chiefeſt Good; whence by Miſtake, all voluptuous Perſons are call'd Epicures.

Epicycle, (in Aſtron.) a litle Circle whoſe Center is in the Circumference of a greater; or a ſmall Orb which being fix'd in the Deferent of a Planet, is carry'd along with its Motion; and yet with its own peculiar Motion, carries the Body of the Planet faſten'd to it, round about its proper Center: Such an Epicycle is attributed by ancient Aſtronomers to all the Planets, except the Sun, and ſerves for ſolving their Appearances in the Ptolemaick Syſtem.

Epicyema, the ſame with Superfetation; or a conceiving again, before the firſt Young is brought forth.

Epidemical or Epidemick, common among the People, publick, univerſal.

Epidemical Diſeaſe, is one that proceeds from a common Cauſe, and ſpreads it ſelf over ſeveral Countries at divers times; ſuch are the Plague, Malignant Feavers, Small Pox, &c.

Epidermis, (in Anat.) the Scarf-skin, the outward Skin or Coat, which ſerves as it were for a Covering to the main Skin of a Man's Body. See Cuticle.

Epideſis, a binding: In Surgery, the binding up of a Wound, to ſtop the Blood.

Epideſmus, a Ligature, Bandage, or Swathe for a Wound or Sore.

Epididymis or Epididymidæ, (in Anat.) a Body of Veſſels, whoſe Figure reſembles crooked Veins, ſwollen with ill Blood; its greater Globe or Bunch being faſten'd to the back of the Teſticles, and the leſſer to the Veſſel that carries the Seed. Theſe are otherwiſe call'd Paraſtatæ, as alſo Supergeminales in Latin.

Epigæum, (in Aſtron.) the lower part of the Circle in which a Planet moves, next to the Earth.

Epigaſtrick Artery, (in Anat.) is ſaid by ſome to be a Branch of the Iliack Artery, and diſtributes it ſelf among the Muſcles of the Epigaſtrium.

Epigaſtrick Veins, the Flank-veins.

Epigaſtrium, the fore-part of the Abdomen or lower Belly, whoſe upper part is call'd Hypochondrium, the middle part Umbilicalis, and the Lowermoſt Hypogaſtrium.

Epigenema, that which is added to any thing over and above: In a Medicinal Senſe, that which happens to a Diſeaſe like a Symptom.

Epiglottis or Sublinguium, (in Anat.) the fifth Cartilage or Griſtle of the Larynx, the cover or flap of the Wind-pipe.

Epigonatis, the Pattle or Whirl-bone of the Knee.

Epigram, a ſhort and witty Poem, playing upon the Fancies or Conceits that ariſe from any kind of Subject.

Epigrammatiſt, a Maker of Epigrams.

Epigraphe, an Inſcription or Title ſet on a Statue, &c.

Epilepſia or Morbus Caducus, the Falling-ſickneſs, ſo call'd becauſe the Perſons troubled with it fall down on a ſudden: It is otherwiſe termed Morbus Herculeus, becauſe it is hard to be cured; as alſo Comitialis, Sacer, Lues Deifica, &c. This Diſeaſe is a Convulſion of the whole Body that hinders or puts a ſtop to all Animal Actions, and proceeds from a Diſorder in the Brain.

Epilepſia Inteſtinalis, a Convulſion ariſing from things that fret the Bowels, which often happens to Children.

Epilepſia Puerorum, Convulſions with which Infants are frequently ſeiz'd.

Epileptica, Medicines againſt the Epilepſy or Falling-ſickneſs.

Epileptical or Epileptick, troubled with that Diſeaſe.

Epilœmica, Medicines good againſt the Peſtilence or Plague.

Epilogiſmus, a Computation, a reckoning, or caſting up, a deliberating or weighing in Mind: In ſome Writers, the Vote or Opinion of Phyſicians, when conſulted about a Cure.

Epilogue, a Concluſion or cloſing of a Speech; alſo a Speech made at the end of a Play.

Epimelis, the Medlar, a kind of Fruit.

Epimenia, certain Preſents anciently ſent from Africa to Rome every Month; a Soldier's Monthly Pay; alſo Womens Monthly Courſes.

Epimenidium, a ſort of Onion.

Epimone, Continuance, Stay, Perſeverance: In Rhetorick, a Figure whereby the ſame Cauſe is continu'd and perſiſted in, much after one form of Speech: Alſo when to move Affection, the ſame Word is repeated, as Sic, ſic juvat ire ſub umbras, Virg.

Epimythium, the Moral of a Fable.

Epinicion, a Song of Triumph after a Victory.

Epinyctides, Pimples that ſend forth Matter, and are painful, eſpecially in the Night: Alſo a Sore in the Eye, that dulls the Sight, and makes the Corners of it water.

Epiparoxyſmus, a Term us'd by Phyſicians, when a Patient is ſeiz'd with more Fits in a Feaver than are uſual.

Epipedometry, (in Mathem.) ſignifies the meaſuring of Figures that ſtand on the ſame Baſe.

Epiphænomena, Signs which appear afterwards in Diſeaſes.

Epiphany, Appearance properly from above, Manifeſtation; a Word now peculiarly apply'd to the Feſtival celebrated, Jan. 6. and commonly call'd Twelfth-day, on which Chriſt was made manifeſt in the Fleſh to the Gentiles, by the appearing of a miraculous Star in the Eaſt, which conducted the Wiſe Men to the Place of his Nativity.

Epiphonema, (i. e. Exclamation) a Figure in Rhetorick, being a ſmart cloſe at the end of a Narration or Argument, or a preſſing and lively Reflection on the Subject treated of, as Tantæ molis erat Romanam condere gentem!

Or this.

So inconſtant is the favour of Princes!

Epiphora, Attack, Aſſault, or Onſet; alſo a Sentence added to the fore-going Diſcourſe: Alſo a Rhetorical Figure in which a Word is repeated at the end of ſeveral Sentences, but differs from Epiſtrophe, in this Point, that it has reſpect chiefly to the Matter: In Logick, a Concluſion or Conſequence drawn from the Aſſumption in a Syllogiſm.

In a Medicinal Senſe, Epiphora, is taken for a violent flowing of Humours into any Part, eſpecially the watering or dropping of the Eyes, occaſion'd by a thin Rheum, which is commonly call'd Involuntary Weeping, and continually flows from the Corners of the Eyes: Alſo an Inflammation of that Part, and more largely an Inflammation of the whole Body: Alſo the fall of Water into the Cod; as in ſome kind of Ruptures.

Epiphylloſpermous Plants, (among Herbaliſts) are ſuch as bear their Seed on the back part of their Leaves; being the ſame with Capillaries, which See.

Epiphyſis, a growing to, Encreaſe: In Surgery, it is us'd when one Bone grows to another, by a ſimple and immediate Joyning; but with ſome kind of entrance of one Bone into the Cavity or Hollow of another.

Epiplaſma, a Pultice, the ſame as Cataplaſma.

Epiplexis, an upbraiding or taunting, a chiding, or rebuking; Rebuke, Reproof: In Rhetorick, a Figure, which by an elegant kind of upbraiding, endeavours to convince, and is otherwiſe call'd Epitimeſis.

Epiploce, a folding in, a platting, or interweaving: Alſo a Rhetorical Figure that expreſſes a gradual riſing of one Clauſe of a Sentence out of another, much after the manner of Climax; as Domum ejus expugnavit, expugnata domo familiam extraxit, abſtractam cruciavit.

Epiplois dextera, (in Anat.) is a Branch of the Cœliaca Arteria, which runs through the Right-ſide of the inner or hinder Leaf of the Omentum or Caul and the Gut Colon that is next to it.

Epiplois poſtica, a Branch of the Cœliack Artery, that ſprings out of the lower end of the Splenica and runs to the hinder Leaf of the Caul and the Colon joyned thereto.

Epiplois ſiniſtra, a Branch of the Cœliack Artery, which is beſtowed on the lower and left Side of the Caul.

Epiploocele, a kind of Rupture, when the Caul or thin skin that covers the Bowels falls into the outward skin of the Scrotum.

Epiploocomiſtæ, fat big-belly'd Men that have huge Cauls.

Epiploomphalum, a Navel-rupture, when the Navel ſtarts, by reaſon of a ſwoln Caul that is fallen down, or the Entrails bearing too hard upon it.

Epiploon, the Caul, a cover ſpread over the Bowels in ſhape of a Net or Fowler's Bag, and abounding with Blood-Veſſels; its Uſe being to cheriſh the Stomach and the Guts with its Fat. It is alſo call'd Omentum and Reticulum.

Epiporoma, a kind of hard Brawn in the Joynts.

Epiſarcidium, a ſort of Dropſy. See Anaſarca.

Epiſchium, the Share-bone.

Epiſcopacy, Church-government by Biſhops.

Epiſcopal, belonging to a Biſhop.

Epiſcopales Valvulæ, (in Anat.) two Membranes or thin Skins, in the Pulmonary Vein, that hinder the Blood from flowing back to the Heart: They are otherwiſe termed Mitrales and Sigmoides, which See.

Epiſcopalia, (in old Records) the Synodals, Pentecoſtals and other Cuſtomary Dues payable by the Clergy to the Biſhop of their Dioceſs: Theſe Impoſitions were alſo call'd Onus Epiſcopale, and were by ſpecial Privilege remitted to thoſe free Chappels that were built upon the King's Demeſne, and exempt from Epiſcopal Juriſdiction.

Epiſcoparians, thoſe of the Epiſcopal Party.

Epiſemaſia, (a Term in Phyſick) the very inſtant of Time that a Diſeaſe firſt ſeizes a Perſon.

Epiſion, the lower part of the Belly that ends in the Privities.

Epiſode, (i. e. entrance or coming in) a ſeparate Relation or Action which a Poet or Hiſtorian inſerts and tacks to his principal Subject, to ſupply his Work with variety of Events: Thus the Story of Dido is a pleaſing Epiſode in Virgil's Æneids.

Epiſpaſticks, Medicines that ſerve to draw Bliſters.

Epiſphæria, (in ſome Anatomical Writers) certain Windings and Turnings in the outer Subſtance of the Brain, for the more ſecure Paſſage of the Blood-veſſels.

Epiſtalma, a Prince's Commiſſion under Hand and Seal.

Epiſtathmi, Officers that appoint Lodgings for a Prince's Train, Harbingers.

Epiſtle, a Letter that is ſent.

Epiſtler, he that reads the Epiſtles, in a Cathedral or Collegiate Church.

Epiſtolar or Epiſtolary, belonging to Epiſtles, or Letters.

Epiſtolares, certain Secretaries to the Roman Emperours, under the principal Secretary of State, who was ſtyl'd Magiſter Scrinii Epiſtolarum; which See.

Epiſtomia, (in Anat.) the utmoſt gapings and meetings of Veſſels.

Epiſtomium, a Cock or Spout in a Conduit, a Tap or Spiggot; a Cork or ſtopple for a Veſſel, a Bung: Alſo the ſtop in a pair of Organs, whereby the Sound is made high or low.

Epiſtrophe, a turning or Alteration, a going back: In Rhetorick, a Figure wherein ſeveral Sentences end in the ſame Word; as Ambition ſeeks to be next to the beſt, after that to be equal with the beſt, then to be chief and above the beſt.

Epiſtropheus, (in Anat.) the ſecond Vertebra or Joynt of the Neck, ſo call'd from turning; becauſe the Head turns upon it, as alſo Cardo in Latin, on the ſame Account.

Epiſtylium or Epiſtyle, (in Architect.) a maſs of Stone, or piece of Timber laid upon the Capital of a Pillar: The ancient Greeks often made uſe of this Word to ſignifie what we call the Architrave, which is the firſt Member of the Entablature, and is uſually broken into two or three Diviſions termed Faſciæ, i. e. Swathes, Fillets, Bands, or Liſts.

Epitaph, an Inſcription or Writing ſet on a Tomb.

Epitaſis, a Stretching or Straining, Intenſeneſs, Vehemence; an amplifying or inlarging on a Subject: Alſo the buſieſt part of a Comedy or other Stage play, before Things are brought to the full State and Vigour.

Epithalamium, a Nuptial Song, or Poem, which anciently us'd to be rehearſed at Weddings, in Praiſe of the Bride and Bridegroom; wiſhing them a fruitful Iſſue, and all things conducing to a future happy Life; alſo now and then wantonly glancing upon the Pleaſures of the Marriage-bed, &c.

Epithemation, a Plaiſter, Salve, or Ointment, to be laid upon a Sore.

Epitheme, a liquid Medicine apply'd to an outward Part of the Body, to cool and comfort the inward, eſpecially the Heart, Stomach and Liver.

Epithet, (i. e. that is put to, or added) a Grammatical Term for a Word that expreſſes the nature or quality of another Word to which it is joyn'd; as A generous mind, an unruly Paſſion, where the Terms Generous and Unruly are the Epithets expreſſing the Qualities of the Mind and Paſſion.

Epithymon, a Weed that grows about the Herb Time; Dodder: Alſo the Flower of Time.

Epitimeſis, a checking or rebuking. See Epiplexis.

Epitogium, a Tabard, a Garment worn looſe over another; a Habit or Hood that Students wear after they have taken their Degrees in an Univerſity.

Epitome, an Abridgment, or ſhort Abſtract.

To Epitomize, to abridge, or ſhorten; to expreſs the ſubſtance of any Diſcourſe or Treatiſe in fewer Terms.

Epitonium, an Inſtrument to wreſt or ſtretch Cords, a Pin or Peg in a ſtringed Muſical Inſtrument: Alſo a device to force up Water out of a Well; a Squirt.

Epitritus, a Foot in Greek or Latin Verſe, conſiſting of four Syllables, of which the Grammarians reckon four kinds. The firſt is compounded of an Iambus and a Spondæus, as Salutantes, where the firſt Syllable is ſhort, and all the reſt long: The ſecond is made out of a Trochee and a Spondee; as Concitati, where the firſt Syllable is long, the ſecond ſhort, and the two laſt long: The third is compounded of a Spondee and an Iambus; as Communicans, where the two firſt Syllables are long, the third ſhort, and the laſt long. The fourth conſiſts of a Spondee and a Trochee, as Incantare; where the three firſt Syllables are long, and the laſt ſhort; to which may be added a Fifth, which is made up of a double Pyrrhichius; as Arabia; where all the Syllables are ſhort.

Epitrochaſmus, a running over with great Swiftneſs. In Rhetorick, a Figure, wherein we ſpeedily run over ſeveral things, either for Brevity's ſake; as Cæſar confinium ceperat, urbe potiebatur, Pompeium ſequebatur: Or elſe to amaze thoſe we ſpeak to; as State viri; quæ cauſa viæ? quive eſtis in armis? Quove tenetis iter? Virg.

Epitrope, a committing of a Buſineſs to one's Management, Permiſſion: Alſo a Rhetorical Figure, when we ſeem to allow one to do what he will, and yet think nothing leſs; as I ſequere Italiam ventis, pete regna per undas. Virg.

Epitropus, a Commiſſioner, a Bailiff or Farmer; a Proctor or Factor.

Epityrum, a kind of Sallet among the Ancients made of Olives, with Vinegar, Cummin, Fennel, Rue and Mint; alſo a Cheeſe-cake.

Epizeugmenon. See Diezugmenon.

Epizeuxis, a joyning together. In Rhetorick, a repetition of the ſame Word, in the ſame Sentence or Verſe, no other word coming between; as Ah! Coridon, Coridon, What Madneſs has thee mov'd?

Epneumatoſis, Expiration, the Act or Faculty of breathing out, a Term in the Art of Phyſick.

Epocha or Epoch, (in Chronol.) a ſolemn date of Time, counted from ſome memorable Action or Event; as the Creation of the World, Noah's Floud, the Birth of our Lord, &c. from the Greek Word Epecho, i. e. to ſtop or ſtay; becauſe the Meaſures of Time are thereby ſtay'd or determin'd: Theſe Epocha's or Æra's are different according to the Cuſtom of ſeveral Nations, and among them the four following ones are chiefly remarkable, viz.

The Julian Epocha, taking Name from Julius Cæſar's Reformation of the Roman Calendar; which was done Forty five Years before Chriſt's Nativity, in the 708th Year from the Building of Rome, and in the 731 Olympiad.

The Ethiopick or Abaſſine Epocha, ſo nam'd from its being in uſe among the Abaſſines and Egyptians: This Epocha begun Aug. 29. A. C. 284. and in the firſt Year of the Emperour Diocleſian's Reign; whence ſome call it the Diocleſian Epocha, and others the Æra of the Martyrs, becauſe it bore Date with a very ſevere Perſecution.

The Turkiſh or Arabick Epocha, which they call the Hegeira, takes its Riſe from the Impoſtor Mahomet's flight from the City of Mecca in Arabia; which happen'd July 16. A. C. 622.

The Perſick or Jeſdegerdick Epocha, takes its Date either from the Coronation of the laſt Perſian King Jeſdegerdis or Jeſdagerdis, as ſome ſay; or rather from his being conquer'd by Ottoman the Saracen, which was June 16. A. C. 632.

Epode, one of the Members of that ſort of Lyrick Poetry of which Pindar's Odes conſiſt; the other two being Strophe and Antiſtrophe, which in every Ode anſwer each other; whereas one Epode anſwers to another in ſeveral Odes: Alſo a Title of one of Horace's Books after his Odes.

Epomis, a Hood, ſuch as Univerſity-Students and Livery-men wear. In Anatomy, the upper part of the Shoulder, otherwiſe call'd Acromium.

Epomphalum, a Plaiſter or other Medicine apply'd to the Navel, when it ſtarts or bunches out.

Epops, the Hoop, a ſort of Bird.

Epoſtraciſmus, a kind of Sport or Play, with Oiſter-ſhells or ſuch like thrown into the Water, commonly call'd A Duck and a Drake, and a White Penny-cake.

Epſema, a Decoction of new Wine, till half be boil'd away.

Epſom, a Town in Surrey, famous for its Mineral Waters, which have been in ſo great Requeſt of late Years, as to cauſe a conſiderable increaſe of Buildings, for the Entertainment of Gentlemen reſorting thither, for their Health or Pleaſure.

Epulis, (Gr.) a Lump of fleſh growing about the Gums, which reaches the fartheſt Teeth, and is ſo large, as ſometimes to hinder the opening of the Mouth.

Epulones, (Lat.) certain Officers among the Romans, whoſe Buſineſs was to furniſh Banquets for Jupiter, and the other Gods, at their Publick Sports, or at the Birth of Emperours.

Epuloticks, (Gr.) Powders or other Medicines that dry up Ulcers or Sores, or that ſerve to bring them to an Eſcar; the ſame with Cicatrizantia.

Epulum, (Lat.) a ſolemn Banquet or Holy Feaſt among the Romans, prepared for their Gods, whoſe Statues were commonly laid on Beds, and were ſerv'd as if they were hungry: Whence the Word is taken for a Noble Entertainment, a great Treat; a Meal.

Equable Motions, (Lat. in Philoſ.) ſuch Motions as always continue the ſame Degree of Velocity or Swiftneſs, and are neither haſten'd nor ſtopt in their Courſe: But if the Swiftneſs of ſeveral Bodies be promoted or hinder'd, and it be exactly and uniformly the ſame in all; ſuch Bodies are ſaid to be equally accelerated or retarded.

Equal, like, juſt.

To Equal, to make equal, to anſwer, to be agreeable to.

Equality, a being equal or like, Agreeableneſs, Likeneſs: In Mathematicks, the exact agreement of two Things in reſpect of Quantity.

To Equalize, to equal, to make Shares equal.

Equanimity, evenneſs of Mind, Contentedneſs, a calm and quiet Temper upon all events of good or bad Fortune.

Equapium, (Lat.) the Herb Aliſander, or Lovage.

Equation, (in Algebra) a mutual comparing of two equal Quantities, or Things of different Names or kinds: As when the value of three Shillings is compar'd to Thirty Six Pence; which Equation may be thus expreſs'd in Symbols, or Characters, viz. 3 s. = 36 d. i. e. Three Shillings are equal to Thirty Six Pence.

Algebraical Equations, are of Two kinds, viz. 1. Pure or Simple, 2. Adfected or Compounded, which are explain'd at large in Kerſey's Algebra, p. 63. & ſequ.

In Aſtronomy, Equation is taken for the proportioning or regulating of Time, or the difference between the Time mark'd out by the Sun's apparent Motion, and the Time that is meaſur'd by its real or middle Motion, according to which Watches and Clocks are to be adjuſted.

Equation or Optical Proſtaphæreſis, (in the Ptolemaick Syſtem) is the Angle made by two Lines drawn from the Center of the Epicycle, to the Centers of the World and of the Eccentrick.

Equation or Phyſical Proſtaphæreſis, is the difference between the Motions of the Center of the Epicycle, in the Equant and in the Eccentrick.

Equation or Total Proſtaphæreſis, is the difference between the Planet's mean and true Motion, or the Angle made by the Lines of the true and mean Motion of the Center.

Equator or Equinoctial Line, which Sea-men, by way of Excellency, call The Line, an imaginary great Circle, that divides the Heaven or Globe of the Univerſe, into two equal Parts, North and South; ſo call'd, becauſe when the Sun paſſes through it, the Day and Night become of an equal length in every Part of the Earth. See Equinoctial and Equinox.

Eques, (Lat.) a Horſe-man, a Man of Arms; a Roman Knight of a middle Order, between the Commonalty and Peerage.

Eques Auratus, the Latin Term for a Knight in England, becauſe anciently none but Knights were allowed to guild their Armour and other War-like Furniture.

Equeſtria, certain Places or Seats in the Roman Theater, for the Gentry to ſit in.

Equeſtrian, belonging to a Horſe-man, Cavalier, or Knight.

Equiangular, that has equal Angles, or Corners.

Equicrural, that has equal Legs or Sides; as An Equicrural Triangle.

Equiculus or Equus Minor, (i. e. the little Horſe) one of the Northern Conſtellations, conſiſting of Four Stars.

Equidiſtant, that is of an equal Diſtance.

Equilateral, that has equal Sides.

Equilateral Triangle. See Triangle.

Equilibrium, equal Ballance, equality of Weight and Poiſe, when the Ballance hangs neither on one Side nor on the other: Thus two Weights in a pair of Scales being equal, are ſaid to be in Equilibrio.

Equimultiplees, are Numbers or Quantities multiply'd by one and the ſame Number or Quantity: Or ſuch Numbers or Quantities as contain their Submultiplees, an equal Number of times; as 12 and 6 are Equimultiplees of their reſpective Submultiplees 4 and 2.

Equinoctial, (in Aſtron.) belonging to the Circle call'd the Equinoctial in the Heavens, and the Equator on the Earth.

Equinoctial Dial, a Dial whoſe Plane lyes parallel to the Equinoctial.

Equinoctial Line. See Equator.

Equinoxes, the preciſe Times in which the Sun enters the firſt Points of Aries and Libra, when the Days and Nights are of equal Length, as about March 10, and September 12; the former being termed the Vernal, and the other the Autumnal Equinox.

Equinus Barbatus, (Lat.) i. e. the bearded Horſe, a kind of Comet. See Hippeus.

To Equip, to provide of Neceſſaries, to furniſh; to ſet forth, to ſet or fit out.

Equipage, the Proviſion of all things neceſſary for a Journey or Voyage; as Attire, Furniture, Attendance, Horſes, Cloaths, &c.

Equiparates, (Lat. in Logick) things compared, or made equal.

Equipollence, another Logical Term us'd, when ſeveral Propoſitions ſignify one and the ſame thing, tho' they expreſs it after different manners; as ſome Man is Learned, not every Man is Learned.

Equipollent, being of equal Force, Value, or Signification.

Equiria, (Lat.) certain Games in Honour of Mars, anciently celebrated at Rome in the Month of March, in Mars's Field, with Horſe-races, like our Juſts or Turnaments.

Equiſetum, Horſe-tail, an Herb of a very binding Quality, much us'd to Cure the Whites in Women, and Fluxes of Blood.

Equiſuga, the Horſe-fly; an Inſect.

Equitable, juſt, righteous, reaſonable.

Equitatura, (in ſome old Latin Records) a Liberty of Riding, or of carrying Griſt and Meal from a Mill on Horſe-back: Miles cum equitatura, a Knight with his Horſe, Arms and Furniture.

Equity, the Vertue of treating all Men according to the Rules of right Reaſon and Juſtice: The Word in Law, has a double and contrary Senſe; for one enlarges and adds to the Letter of the Law, extending the Words of it to Caſes unexpreſſed, yet having the ſame Reaſon: Whereas the other abridges and takes from it; ſo that the latter is defin'd to be the Correction of the Law, generally made in that part wherein it fails.

Court of Equity, the ſame as the Court of Chancery, in which the ſeverity of other Courts, and the Rigour of the Common Law is moderated; and where Controverſies are ſuppos'd to be determin'd according to the exact Rules of Equity and Conſcience.

Equivalence, a Term which ſerves to expreſs the Agreement in Nature, Quality, or Circumſtances between ſeveral Things propoſed.

Equivalent, being of equal Worth or Value.

An Equivalent, as To give an Equivalent, i. e. to produce ſomething of equal Value with another.

Equivocal, (a Term in Logick) having a doubtful or double Signification; or whoſe Senſe and Meaning may be taken ſeveral ways.

Equivocals or Equivocal Terms. See Univocal Terms.

Equivocal Generation, (in Philoſ.) the production of Plants or Herbs without Seed, or of Living-Creatures without being begotten by Parents in the natural Way of Copulation, between Male and Female.

Equivocal Signs, (in Surgery) See Univocal Signs.

Equivocal Word, (in Grammar) a Word which comprehends more Significations than one, or that ſerves for different Notions. See Homoonymous.

To Equivocate, to ſpeak doubtfully, to ſay one thing and mean another.

Equivocation or Equivoque, an equivocating, a double meaning.

Equuleus or Eculeus, (Lat.) a Colt, or little Horſe; alſo a kind of Rack or Torturing-Engine in uſe among the Romans; a Strappado, or Wooden Horſe, ſuch as Soldiers are made to ride upon for Miſdemeanours.

Equus, a Horſe, alſo a Sea-fiſh.

Equus Alatus, the fabulous winged Horſe, call'd Pegaſus, one of the Northern Conſtellations, conſiſting of Twenty Stars.

Equus Coopertus, (in old Records) a Horſe ſet out with a Saddle and other Furniture.

Er, (Heb. a Watch-man) the firſt born Son of Judah, who marry'd Tamar, and for his Wickedneſs was brought to an untimely End.

To Eradicate, (Lat.) to pluck up by the Roots, to root out, to deſtroy utterly; as To Eradicate a Diſeaſe, a Vice, &c.

Eradication, the Act of eradicating, rooting out, &c.

Eranarches, (Gr.) an Aſſeſſour, or Tax-gatherer.

Eranthemum, the Herb Camomile.

Eranus, a Tax, a Contribution or Club; alſo the Stone call'd a Turqoiſe.

Erased, (Lat. i. e. ſcraped or torn out) a Term in Heraldry, us'd when any thing is forcibly torn off from its proper Place, and contradiſtinguiſh'd from Couped, which ſignifies a thing clean Cut off.

Erasement, a blotting, or daſhing out.

Erasmus, (Gr. amiable or lovely) a proper Name of Men.

Erastians, a Sect of Hereticks, ſet up by one Eraſtus a Phyſician, who held that the Power of Excommunication reſided in the Civil Magiſtrate.

Erato, the Name of one of the Nine Muſes, who rul'd amorous Poeſy.

Eratosthenes, a noted Hiſtorian, Poet, Philoſopher and Aſtronomer; who upon account of his great Learning, was ſtyl'd Plato Minor, and was eſpecially eminent for his Skill in the Mathematicks.

Erchembald, (Germ.) a proper Name of Men, ſignifying a bold or ſpeedy Learner.

Erebinthus, (Gr.) Chich-peaſe, a ſort of Pulſe.

Erect, (Lat.) raiſed, upright.

Erect declining Dials, Dials whoſe Planes are not directly oppoſite to any of the Four Cardinal Points, but decline from the Meridian or Prime Vertical Circle.

Erect Flowers, are thoſe that grow upright, without Hanging the Head.

To Erect, to raiſe or ſet up, to build.

To Erect a Figure, (in Aſtrol.) to divide the Twelve Houſes a-right; putting down the proper Sign, Degree, and Minute on each Cuſp, with the Planets in their proper Places; ſo that the Figure may truly repreſent the Poſitions of the Heavenly Bodies, at that Moment of Time for which it is deſign'd.

Erection, an erecting or raiſing, a making to ſtand upright.

Erectores Penis, (in Anat.) a pair of Muſcles that ariſe from the outward knob of the Os Iſchium, and help to cauſe the Erection of the Yard.

Eremita, (Gr.) an Hermit, a Dweller in a Wilderneſs.

Eremitical, belonging to a Deſart, or leading a Hermit's Life.

Eremitorium, (in our ancient Writers) an Hermitage or deſart Place for the Retirement of Hermits.

Eremodicium, (Gr. in the Roman Law) a Non-ſuit or Default of Appearance at the Day appointed.

† Ereption, a ſnatching, or taking away by force.

Ergata, (Gr.) an Engine call'd a Capſtand, a Wind-beam or Draw-beam, a Crane.

Erica, the Sweet Broom, Heath or Ling.

Ericaeum, a ſort of Medicine for the Eyes; alſo a Waſh for the Mouth.

Ericius or Erinaceus, (Lat.) the Urchin or Hedge-hog, a Wild Beaſt: Alſo a Warlike Engine made of Iron, and full of ſharp pointed Spikes or Nails; a Port-cullis.

Eridanus or Padus, a River in Italy, commonly call'd the Po, and made a Southern Conſtellation, conſiſting of Twenty Eight Stars.

Erigeron, (Gr.) the Herb Groundſel, which being outwardly apply'd, is good for an Inflammation of the Paps, the King's Evil, &c.

Erinaceus or Herinaceus, (Lat.) a Hedge-hog.

Eringo, a ſort of Plant, otherwiſe call'd Sea-holly, the Roots of which being candy'd, are excellent Sweet-meats, good againſt the Plague, Conſumption, &c.

Erioxylon, (Gr.) a kind of Wooll that comes of Trees; Cotton.

Eriphia, an Herb, which ſome call Hollow-root, or Holy-wort.

Erisma, an Arch, Buttreſs, Shore-poſt, or Prop to hold up a Building that is otherwiſe like to fall.

Erithace, a kind of Wax, or Honey; a red Juice in the Honey-combs of Bees.

Erithacus, the Robin Red-breaſt; a Bird.

Erithales, the Herb Prick-madam, Sengreen, or Houſe-leek.

Ermine, a little Northern Weaſel, whoſe Furr is very coſtly, and only fit for Princes or Perſons of great Quality to wear. In Heraldry, a Repreſentation of that ſort of Furr; ſo that the Field or Ground of a Coat being Argent, i. e. of a White Colour, and the powdering Sable or Black, it is call'd Ermin; but if Black be powder'd with White, it is Ermines; if a Ground Or or Gold-colour'd be powder'd or ſpotted with Black, it is Erminois; and if to a White Ground powder'd with Black, a Red Hair be added, it is termed Ermenites.

Ermine-street or Erminage-street, one of the Four noted Roman High-ways in England, which begins at St. David's in Weſt-Wales, and leads to Southampton.

Ernes, an old Word for Promiſes: Alſo the looſe ſcatter'd Ears of Corn left on the Ground after the Cocking of it; whence to Earn in ſome Places, is to Glean.

Ernest, (Germ. ſerious or ſevere) a proper Name of Men.

Erodentia, (Lat.) Medicines that gnaw and prey upon the Fleſh, with their ſharp Particles.

Erodius, a kind of Bird that ſweats Blood in the time of Treading; a Ger-falcon, an Heron, a Moor-Hen.

† Erogation, a ſpreading, or laying out.

Erogenneton, (Gr.) an Herb that cauſes Love.

Erosion, (Lat.) a gnawing, eating away, or conſuming.

Erotema or Erotesis, (Gr.) Interrogation, or Queſtion: In Rhetorick, a Figure, when by asking many Queſtions we aggravate a Buſineſs, eſpecially in Matters that might be poſitively affirmed; as Fuiſtine illo in loco? dixiſtine hæc ita eſſe geſta?

Erotylos, a kind of precious Stone like a Flint.

To Err, (Lat.) to go out of the way, or miſtake.

Errand, a Meſſage.

Errant, wand'ring, going up and down: In a Law-ſenſe, it is apply'd to Juſtices that go the Circuit; and to Bailiffs travelling at large.

Knights Errant, a ſort of Romantick Knights, feign'd to wander about the World in ſearch of new Adventures.

Errata, Faults eſcaped in Printing.

Erratick, wand'ring.

Erraticum, (in old Law-Records) a Waif or Stray, an errant or wand'ring Beaſt.

Errhines, (Gr. in Phyſick) Medicines put up the Noſtrils to cleanſe the Head of Phlegmatick Slimy Humours; without making the Patient Sneez-

Erroneous, ſubject to Errour, Falſe

Errones or Erratick Stars, the Planets ſo call'd in Contradiſtinction to the fixed Stars, by reaſon of their having each a peculiar Motion, and ſeveral Aſpects one to another, which by ſuch Motion, they daily change.

Errour, Miſtake, Overſight, Folly: In a Law-ſenſe, it ſignifies a fault in Pleading, or in the Proceſs: Whence the Writ brought for Remedy of this Overſight is call'd a Writ of Errour; being that which lies to redreſs falſe Judgment given in any Court of Record.

Clerk of the Errours, an Officer of the Common-Pleas, whoſe Buſineſs it is to Copy out and Certifie the Tenour of the Records of a Cauſe or Action, upon which the Writ of Errour is brought into any of thoſe Courts.

Ers, bitter Vetch, a kind of Pulſe.

Ervangina, (Lat.) a ſort of Weed that winds about Corn; Orebank, Choke-weed.

Eruca, the Cater-pillar, Palmer or Canker-worm, an Inſect; alſo the Herb Rocket or Winter-creſs.

Eructation, a belching-forth, a breaking of Wind off the Stomach.

Erudition, an inſtructing or bringing up in good Literature; Learning, Scholarſhip.

Ervilia, Ervilium, or Ervum, (Lat.) a ſort of the leſſer Pulſe like Vetches or Tares.

† Eruncation, a Weeding, or pulling out of Weeds.

Eruption, an iſſuing or breaking forth with Violence.

Erewhile, (old Word) a while ago, lately.

Eryngium, (Gr.) the Herb Eringo, Sea-holm, or Sea-holley. See Eryngo.

Eryſimum, Hedge-muſtard, the Syrup of which is an excellent Remedy for Coughs and other Diſtempers of the Lungs.

Eryſipelas, a Swelling of a bright Yellowiſh Colour inclining to Red, (whence it has its Name) which is uſually attended with a pricking Pain, but not beating, and a Symptomatick Feaver.

Eryſipelatodes, a Swelling like the former, the Skin being of a darker Colour, and the Symptoms more gentle; a Baſtard Eryſipelas.

Eryſipelatous, belonging to, or partaking of the Nature of an Eryſipelas; as Eryſipelatous Tumours.

Erythace, the Honey-ſuckle Flower.

Erythacus, the Robin-red-breaſt; a Bird.

Erythinus or Erythrinus, a Sea-fiſh all over Red except the Belly which is White; the Rotchet or Sea-Roach.

Erythremata, Red Spots like Flea-bites, common in Peſtilential Feavers.

Erythrodanum, an Herb having a Red Root; Madder made uſe of by Diers.

Erythroides Membrana, (in Anat.) a Red Skin of the Teſticles; the firſt of the proper Coats.

Erythropus, (i. e. Red-foot) the Runner, a ſort of Water-fowl.

Erythros, a Shrub call'd Sumach, the Leaves of which Curriers uſe in the Dreſſing of Leather.

Erythrotaon, a kind of Pheaſant, or Buſtard.

Eſaias. See Iſaiah.

Eſarhaddon, (Heb. Binding, Chearfulneſs) the Son of Senacherib, and his Succeſſour in the Kingdom of Aſſyria.

Eſau, (Heb. doing or working) the Son of Iſaac: He Sold his Birth-right to his Brother Jacob for a Meſs of Potage, and was by him Supplanted of his Father's Bleſſing; nevertheleſs he became a great Prince, and Father of a very Populous Nation.

Eſbrancatura (in old Records) the cutting off of Branches or Boughs in a Foreſt.

Eſcalade, the Furious Storming of a Place, carry'd on with Ladders to mount upon it, without a formal Attack. See Scalado.

Eſcambio, (Ital. in Traffick) a Licence granted for the making over of a Bill of Exchange to a Man beyond Sea.

Eſcape, (Fr.) Flight.

To Eſcape, to make one's Eſcape, to get away or out, to avoid or ſhun: In a Legal Senſe, when one that is Arreſted comes to his Liberty, before he be deliver'd by Order of Law; or it is a violent or privy getting out of ſome Lawful Reſtraint.

Eſcapium, (in old Latin Records) what comes by Accident, Chance, or Hap.

Eſcara or Eſchara, (Gr.) an Eſcar, a Cruſts, Shell or Slough brought over an Ulcer, or rais'd with a Searing-iron; alſo a kind of Herb.

Eſcarotick or Eſcharotick, a Plaiſter, a Searing-iron, actual Fire, or the like, that brings a Sore to a Cruſt.

Eſchanderia, (in old Latin Records) the Chandlary or Chandry, the Office where Candles are laid up and deliver'd out for Family-Uſes.

Eſcheat, (in Common Law) any Lands or Profits that fall to a Lord within his Manour by Forfeiture, or the Death of his Tenant without Heirs: It is alſo ſometimes taken for the Place or Circuit within which the King or other Lord has Eſcheats of his Tenants; Alſo the Name of a Writ for the Recovery of Eſcheats.

To Eſcheat, to fall after ſuch a manner to the chief Owner.

Eſcheator, an Officer, who takes notice of the King's or Queen's Eſcheats in the County, and certifies them in the Exchequer: But this Office depending chiefly on the Court of Wards, is now in a manner out of Date.

To Eſchew, to avoid, or ſhun.

Eſcoriatio Moræ, a paring of the Turf of Mooriſh Sedgy Ground for burning. Rog. Hoveden Annal.

Eſcouade, (Fr. in the Art of War) the Third part of a Foot Company ſo divided, for the more convenient Mounting of Guards and Relieving one another: It anſwers to a Brigade of Horſe.

Eſcroll, (Law-Term) a Deed or Inſtrument deliver'd to a Third Perſon, to be the Deed of the Party, upon a future Condition.

Eſcuage, (Fr.) a kind of Knight-Service, call'd Service of the Shield; a Tenure or Manner of holding Land, whereby the Tenant was bound to follow his Lord into the Scotch or Welſh Wars at his own Charges.

Eſculents, (Lat.) Plants for Food; as Artichokes, Carrets, Turneps, Parſneps, Cabbage, &c.

Eſculus, (Lat.) the Beech, or Maſt-tree.

Eſcurial, a Famous Monaſtery built by Philip II. King of Spain, and Dedicated to St. Laurence; it is Situate near a Village of the ſame Name, not far from Madrid.

Eſcutcheon, (in Heraldry) the Coat or Field on which any Arms are born; from the Latin Word Scutum, ſignifying a Shield.

Eſcutcheon of Pretence, an In-eſcutcheon or ſmall Eſcutcheon, which a Man that has Marry'd an Heireſs, may bear over his own Coat of Arms, and in it the Arms of his Wife.

Eſkeltores, (in old Statutes) Robbers, or Deſtroyers of other Mens Lands or Eſtates.

Eſkippeſon, an old Law-word for Shipping or Paſſage by Sea.

Eſnecy, (Fr. Law-Term) the Right of chuſing firſt in a divided Inheritance, which belongs to the eldeſt Copartner.

Eſox, (Lat.) a great Fiſh in the River Rhine; a Lax.

Eſpaliers, Trees planted in a curious Order againſt a Frame, for the bounding of Borders or Walks in Gardens or Plantations, or for the ſecurity of Orange-trees, Lemmon-trees, Myrtles and other Foreign Plants, and in Greens in the Summer Seaſon.

Eſparcet, a kind of St. Foin Graſs.

Eſpeautre, (in old Latin Records) to expeditate or Law Dogs, which was done either by cutting off the Three Fore-claws of the Right Foot, or by cutting out the Ball of the Foot; that ſo they might be diſabled from Hunting or Running hard in the Foreſt.

Eſpervarius or Sparverius, a Word uſ'd in the Foreſt-Law for a Hawk.

Eſpigurnantia, the Office of Spigurnel or Sealer of the King's Writs.

Eſplanade, (Fr. in Fortif.) properly the Glacis or Slope of the Counterſcarp; but it is now chiefly taken for the void Space between the Glacis of a Citadel and the firſt Houſes of a Town.

Eſplees, (a Law-Term) the full Profits that the Ground yields; as the Hay of Meadows, the Feeding of Paſtures, the Corn of Plough'd Lands, &c.

Eſpouſals, (Fr.) Wedding, Marriage, the Ceremony uſ'd upon that Occaſion.

To Eſpouſe, to Betroth, Wed, or take in Marriage; to Embrace or Maintain an Opinion, Cauſe, Party, &c.

Eſpringolds, a certain Warlike Engine for the Caſting forth of great Stones.

To Eſpy, (Fr.) to Perceive or Diſcover, to Watch or Obſerve.

Eſquilinus, one of the Seven Hills upon which the City of Rome was Built, call'd alſo Exquilinus, becauſe Romulus miſtruſting the Sabines ſet Centries upon it for his Guard.

Eſquire, (Fr.) was Anciently one that attended a Prince or Noble-man in War, bearing a Shield, Lance or other Weapon before him: But the Word now ſignifies a Gentleman that bears Arms, and is only a Title of Dignity next below a Knight.

Eſquires, are alſo Created by the Queen, by putting about their Necks a Collar of SS, and beſtowing on them a pair of Silver-ſpurs.

Eſquires of the Queen's Body, certain Officers belonging to the Court.

Eſſartum, Exartum, or Aſſartum, (in the Foreſt-Law) Wood-lands broke up or Plough'd. See Aſſart.

Eſſay, (Fr.) Proof, Tryal, Attempt; a ſhort Diſcourſe upon a Subject.

Eſſay of a Deer, a Term uſ'd by Hunters for the Breaſt or Brisket of a Deer.

To Eſſay, to make an Eſſay, to Try.

Eſſe. See Poſſe.

Eſſedarius, a Soldier who Rode in a War like Chariot call'd Eſſedum, but Fought on Foot; a Cuſtom among the Ancient Britains and Gauls.

Eſſence, (Lat.) the Nature, Subſtance, or Being of a Thing: In Geometry, the Eſſence of a Circle is, that its Radii or Semidiameters be all equal; the Eſſence of a Square is, that it have Four Right-angles and as many equal Right-lined Sides.

In Chymiſtry, Eſſence, is a Spirit drawn out of certain Subſtances, the Balſamick Part of any thing ſeparated from the thicker Matter.

Eſſence of Amber-greaſe, an Extract of the more Oily parts of Amber-greaſe, Musk and Civet, in Spirit of Wine.

Eſſendi quietum de Tolonio, a Writ that lies for the Citizens and Burgeſſes of any City or Town that has a Charter or Preſcription to free them from Toll throughout the whole Kingdom, if the ſame be any where exacted of them.

Eſſeni, certain Philoſophers among the ancient Jews, who ſeparated themſelves from the reſt of the People; and led a kind of Monaſtical Life.

Eſſentia Quinta, Quinteſſence, a Medicine made of the moſt powerfully Working and Active Particles of its Ingredients. See Quinteſſence.

Eſſential, belonging to the Eſſence, Natural, neceſſary.

Eſſential Debilities, (in Aſtrol.) are when the Planets are in their Detriment, Fall or Peregrine. See Debilities.

Eſſential Dignities, Certain Real Advantages, by which Planets are fortify'd or ſtrengthen'd, as when they are in their proper Houſes, or in their Exaltation.

Eſſential Properties, ſuch Properties as neceſſarily depend on the Nature or Eſſence of any thing: Thus in Geometry, 'tis the eſſential Property of every Right-lined Triangle, to have the Summ of its Three Angles equal to two Right ones.

Eſſential Salt of a Plant, is Chymically prepar'd by Pounding the Plant in a Mortar, ſo as to get its Juice; which being ſtrain'd and ſet for ſome time in a Cellar or other Cool Place, the Salt will ſhoot out into Cryſtals every Way; the means of drawing it thus, being eaſie and natural.

The Eſſentials of Religion, the Fundamental Articles and Points of it.

Eſſere, little Puſhes or Wheals ſomewhat Red and hard, which ſoon infect the whole Body with a violent Itching, as if one were ſtung with Bees, Waſps, or Nettles.

Eſſoin, (in Common Law) an Excuſe alledged for one that is Summon'd to appear and anſwer to a Real Action, or to perform Suit at a Court-Baron, upon ſome juſt Cauſe of Abſence; as Sickneſs, a being beyond Sea, &c.

To Eſſoin, to Excuſe a Perſon ſo Abſent.

Clerk of the Eſſoins, an Officer of the Common Pleas, who keeps the Eſſoin-Rolls, delivers them to every Officer, and receives them again when they are Written.

Eſſonio de malo lecti, a Writ directed to the Sheriff, for ſending Four Lawful Knights to view one that has eſſoin'd or excus'd himſelf, de malo lecti, i. e. as being Sick a-bed.

To Eſtabliſh, to make Stable, Firm, or Sure, to ſettle, or fix; to ſet, appoint, ordain, or make.

Eſtabliſhment, Eſtabliſhing, Settlement or Settling.

Eſtabliſhment of Dower, (Law-Phraſe) the Aſſurance of a Dower or Portion made to the Wife by the Husband or his Friends, about the time of Marriage.

Eſtandard, (Fr.) the ſtanding Meaſure of the Queen or Common-wealth, to the ſcantling of which all Meaſures throughout the Land are to be fram'd: Alſo a Bannur or Enſign, See Standard.

Eſtate, the Poſture or Condition of Things or Affairs, Revenues or Means, Degree or Rank: In a Law-ſenſe, it ſignifies that Title or Intereſt which a Man has in Lands or Tenements.

The Three Eſtates of the Realm, are the Three diſtinct Orders in the Kingdom of England, viz. the King or Queen, the Lords Spiritual and Temporal, and the Commons.

Eſteem (Lat.) Value, Reſpect, Account, Regard, Reputation.

To Eſteem, to Value, to have an Eſteem or

Value for; to believe, to think, to judge, to look upon, to suppose, to reckon.

Esther, (Heb. Secret or Hidden) Mordecai's Kinswoman, who being advanc'd to be Ahasuerus's Queen, in the room of Vashti, sav'd the Jews from a Destruction which was plotted against them.

Esthiomenos, (Gr. in Surgery) a winding Inflammation, that gnaws and consumes the Parts; a Gangrene, or disposition to Mortification.

† Estimable, worthy to be esteemed, being of Value.

Estimate or Estimation, Prizing or Rating, the set Price or Value. See Æstimatio Capitis.

To Estimate, to Value, Prize, or Rate, to Appraise, or set a Price on.

Estival, belonging to the Summer.

Estival Orient, See Orient.

Estival Occident, See Occident.

Estival Solstice, or Summer Solstice, See Solstice.

Estoppel, (Fr. Law-Term) an Impediment, Hind'rance or Bar of an Action, growing from a Man's own Fact, that has or otherwise might have had his Action.

Estovers, (Law-Term) Nourishment, Maintenance; particularly that Sustenance, which a Man accus'd of Felony, is to have for himself and Family out of his Lands or Goods during his Imprisonment: Also certain Allowances of Wood, to be taken out of another Man's Woods or Ground.

Estoufade, (in Cookery) a particular way of Stewing Meat, or other things in an earthen Pan.

Estrade, the one half of an Alcove or Bed-Chamber, rais'd with Boards and Richly Furnish'd, and adorn'd for the Reception of Persons of Quality.

To Estrange, (Fr.) to draw away the Affections, to take off from.

Estrangement, the Act of Estranging.

Estrangers, (Law-Term) Foreigners that are born beyond Sea: Also they that are not Privies or Parties, to the levying of a Fine, or making of a Deed, &c.

Estray, (in Common Law) a Beast not Wild, found in any Lordship, and not own'd by any Man; which being cry'd in the Neighbouring Market-Towns, if it be not claim'd by the Owner in a Year and a Day, it falls to the Lord of the Manour.

Estreat, a Law-word for the Duplicate or true Copy of an Original Writing; particularly of Amerciaments or Fines, set down in the Rolls of a Court, to be levy'd of the Bailiff or other Officer of any Man for his Offence.

Clerk of the Estreats, a Clerk belonging to the Exchequer, who every Term receives the Estreats out of the Lord Treasurer's Remembrancer's Office, and writes them out to be levy'd for the Queen.

Estrecitus, (in old Latin Records) straighten'd, or block'd up.

Estrichboards, Boards, Deal, or Fir, brought from the Eastern Parts for Wainscoting and other uses.

To Estrepe, (Law-Term) to make Spoil in Lands or Woods to the prejudice of him in the Reversion.

Estrepement or Estrepament, Spoil made by a Tenant for Term of Life, upon any Lands or Woods, to the Damage of the Reversioner: Also the Name of a Writ to forbid the making such Waste, during a Law-suit between two Parties.

Esula, (Lat.) the Herb Spurge.

Esurine Salts, Salts that are of a fretting and eating Quality, which abound in the Air of Places situate near the Sea-Coasts, and where great Quantities of Coals are burnt.

Etape, (Fr.) a Staple or Publick Store-house; a Staple-Town. In the Art of War, an allowance of Provisions and Forrage for Soldiers during their March thro' a Country, either to or from Winter-Quarters.

Etapier, one that makes an Agreement with a Country or Territory, for furnishing Troops in their March with Provisions and Forrage.

Etas probanda, See Ætas probanda.

Etching, a particular way of Engraving with a Needle on a Copper-plate, cover'd over with a ground of Wax; Aqua fortis being afterwards pour'd on, to eat into the Strokes drawn on the said Ground.

Eternal, (Lat.) that is without beginning or end, or that had a beginning, but is to last for ever; everlasting, endless.

Eternity, Everlastingness, a Continuance that Time cannot measure.

To Eternize or Eternalize, to make Eternal.

Etesiæ, (Gr.) certain mild Northerly Winds which arise constantly every Year with the Dog-Star, and blow for six Weeks together, to cool the Air from the Heat of that Season.

Etheling or Atheling, (Sax. Noble or Excellent) a Title peculiar to the Prince or next Heir to the Crown, among our Saxon Anceſtours.

Ethelbald, (i. e. nobly bold) the Name of two Kings of this Nation; the First was King of the Mercians, and the Tenth from Crida; the other of the West-Saxon Race, was the Third of the English Monarchs from Egbert.

Ethelbert, (i. e. nobly bright) of this Name there were several of our English Kings, viz. one of Kent, the Fourth from Hengist: One of the East-Angles, who was Treacherously Kill'd by Offa the Mercian: And two of the Northumbrians, the last of whom some rather call Ethelred.

Ethelfred, (i. e. Noble Peace) of this Name we only find one King of the Northumbrians, the Son of Ethelrick, who was slain by Cedwald King of the East-Angles.

Ethelred, (i. e. Noble in Council) a Name answering to the Greek Cleobulus; of which there have been several of our English-Saxon Princes, viz. One King of the Mercians, the Seventh from Crida; and two of the Saxon Monarchs; one the Fourth from Egbert, and the other, whom some call Etheldred as a different Name, signifying Noble Terrour, or Terrour of the Nobles, the Thirteenth from Egbert.

Ethelstan or Athelstan, (i. e. Noble Gem) Of this Name there was a most Renowned King, the Seventh of the Saxon Monarchs from Egbert: He overcame the Scots, and reduc'd the rebelling Northumbrians to their Obedience.

Ethelward, (i. e. Noble Keeper) a proper Name of Men among the Saxons.

Ethelwin, Noble Purchaser.

Ethelwald, Noble Governour.

Ethelwolph, (i. e. Noble Helper) the chief of this Name was the Second of our Saxon Monarchs; a Prince of very great Worth, both for Piety and Valour, and the Son of King Egbert.

Ethereal, (Lat.) belonging to the Air, See Æther and Æthereal.

Ethereal Oil, (among Chymists) a very fine or exalted Oil, or rather Spirit, which soon takes Fire; as Oil of Turpentine, &c.

Ethicks, Moral Philosophy, a Science that shews those Rules and Measures of Humane Actions that lead to true Happiness, with the means to put them in Practice; also Treatises on that Subject.

Ethmoidalis, (in Anat.) a Suture or Seam that ſurrounds a Bone of that Name, and ſeparates it from the Bones which are about it.

Ethmoides, the Bone which reſembles a Sieve, plac'd above the inner part of the Noſe, and full of little Holes, to receive the Serous Humours that fall from the Brain: It is alſo call'd Os Cribroſum in Latin.

Ethnarchus, a Lord General, or chief Governour of a Nation.

Ethnick, belonging to the Gentiles or Heathens, Heatheniſh.

Ethologus, one that expreſſes other Mens Manners by Voice or Geſture; a Mimick.

Ethology, a Diſcourſe, or Treatiſe of Manners: In Rhetorick, the Art or Skill of counterfeiting or ſhewing the Manners of others.

Ethopœia, a Rhetorical Figure, in which there is a Repreſentation of the Manners and Paſſions of Men, either to their Praiſe or Reproach.

Ethiopick Epocha, See Epocha.

Etymologiſt, one Skill'd in ſearching out the true Interpretation of Words.

Etymological, belonging to Etymology.

† To Etymologize, to give an account of the Derivation of Words.

Etymology, that part of Grammar which ſhews the Original of Words, for the better diſtinguiſhing and eſtabliſhing of their true Signification.

Etymon, the Original of a Word.

To Evacuate, to empty or leave empty, to diſcharge or void.

Evacuation, an emptying or voiding: In Phyſick, a diſcharging of ſuperfluous Humours and Excrements out of the Body.

To Evade, to eſcape, to ſhift off, to avoid the force of an Argument.

Evan or Ivon, a proper Name, of the ſame Signification as John.

Evangelical, (Gr.) belonging to the Goſpel, Goſpel-like.

Evangeliſts, the Sacred Writers who were the Pen-men of the Goſpel; Four in number, viz. St. Matthew, Mark, Luke and John.

Evangelium, (i. e. Good Tidings) the Goſpel, or the declaration of that ineſtimable Benefit which Chriſt has conferr'd on Mankind, in freeing them from Eternal Death by his own Meritorious Paſſion.

Among the Ancients, the Word Evangelia in the plural Number, ſignify'd Proceſſions and Prayers made in Joy of Good Tidings, or Rewards given to thoſe that brought them: But it is now taken for thoſe Books of the New Teſtament, which contain an Account of the Life, Miracles and Doctrine of our Bleſſed Saviour.

Evanid, (Lat. in Philoſ.) faiding, frail, that will ſoon periſh; an Epithet that ſome give to Colours, which are not of a very long continuance; as thoſe in the Rain-bow, Clouds before and after Sun-ſet, &c. Theſe are alſo call'd Fantaſtical and Emphatical Colours; which See.

To Evaporate, to diſſolve into Vapours, to ſteam out.

To Evaporate to a Pellicle, (a Chymical Phraſe) to conſume a Liquor by a gentle Heat, till a kind of Film or thin Skin is perceiv'd to ſwim on the top of it.

Evaporation, an evoparating, breathing or ſteaming out: In Phyſick, a diſcharging of Humours through the Pores of the Body; alſo the diſſolving ſome part of Juices, &c. till they become of a better Conſiſtence: In Chimiſtry, a diſperſing the ſuperfluous moiſture of any Liquid Subſtance by means of a gentle Fire, without leſſening the quantity of the Matter contain'd in the Liquor.

Evaſion, Eſcape, or Flight; Shift, or Trick.

Euchariſt, (Gr. i. e. Thankſgiving) the Bleſſed Sacrament of the Lord's Supper.

Euchariſtical, belonging thereto.

Euchroa, a good Colour and Temper of the Skin.

Euchylos, (among Phyſicians) one that abounds with good Juices or Humours; it is alſo apply'd to Victuals that afford good Nouriſhment.

Euchymia, an excellent temper of the Blood, and other Humours or Juices in the Body of a Living-creature.

Eucraſia, a good temperature of the ſeveral parts of the Body.

Eudæmon, (i. e. the good Genius or Spirit) the Eleventh Houſe of a Celeſtial Figure, ſo call'd by Aſtrologers, upon account of its good and proſperous Significations; as ſtore of Friends, attainment of Hopes, &c.

Eudes, a proper Name of Men, from the Saxon Word Hud, i. e. Keeper.

Eudixon, the Thread or Cork that is ty'd to a Gliſter-pipe; alſo a ſcupper-hole in a Ship.

Eudiapneuſtes, one that ſweats kindly.

Eve, the Wife of Adam, from the Hebrew Word Chava to Live; alſo the Day before a Feſtival or Holy-day.

Eve and Treve, (in the Practick of Scotland) Servants whoſe Predeceſſours have been Servants to any Man and his Predeceſſours.

Eve-churr or Churr-worm, a kind of Inſect.

Eveck, a ſort of Beaſt like a wild Goat.

Euectica, (Gr.) that part of Phyſick which ſhews how to get a good habit of the Body.

Evection, (Lat.) a carrying forth. In Aſtronomy, Evection or Libration of the Moon, is an inequality in her Motion, by which at or near the Quarters, ſhe is not in that Line which paſſes through the Center of the Earth to the Sun, as ſhe is at her Syzigies or Conjunction and Oppoſition.

Evectiones, (in the Roman Law) are Licenſes to uſe Stage-horſes, Poſt-warrants, &c. alſo Cockets at the Cuſtom-houſe, for the exporting or carrying out of Goods.

Euelces, (Gr.) that is troubled with Ulcers, eaſy to be cur'd.

Even Number, (in Arithm.) a Number which may be divided into two even or equal Parts, without any Fraction; as 6 and 8, into 3 and 4.

Evenly even, is that which an even Number meaſures by an even Number; as 32, because 8 an even Number meaſures it by 4, which is alſo an even Number.

Evenly odd, is that which an even Number meaſures by an odd one; as 30, which 2 or 6 being even Numbers, meaſure by 15 or 5, that are odd Nnmbers.

Evenings, (in old Records) the delivery at Even or Night of a certain portion of Graſs, Corn, Under-wood, &c. as a Gratuity to a Tenant, who perform'd his wonted Service of Cutting, Mowing, or Reaping for his Lord.

Event, (Lat.) Adventure, Chance, Hap, Iſſue, Succeſs, End.

To Eventilate, properly to Winnow, or Fan: In a Law-ſenſe, to eſtimate, prize, or value an Eſtate or Inheritance.

Eventilation, the Act of Eventilating, Winnowing, &c. a ſtrict examining, canvaſſing or ſifting of a Buſineſs or Queſtion; a Debate.

Everard, (Germ. well reported) a proper Name of Men, anſwering to Eudoxus in Greek; others write it Eberard, i. e. excellent Diſpoſition.

Everſion, an Over-throwing or Over-turning; Ruin, Deſtruction, or Overthrow. In Rhetorick, the ſame Figure as Epanodus, according to Ruffinianus.

† Evestigation, a finding or seeking out.

Evet. See Eft.

Euexia, (Gr.) a good sound habit of Body.

Eugalacton, a kind of Herb good to breed Milk, Milk wort.

Eugenia, Noblenneſs of Birth, Nobility, Gentility; alſo an excellent ſort of Grape.

Eugenius or Eugene, (i. e. of Noble Deſcent) a proper Name of Men, particularly of that Generous Prince of Savoy, and experienc'd General, whoſe Valour and Skill in Military Affairs is become tranſcendently remarkable.

Eugeos or Euginon, the Womb ſo call'd by way of compariſon with fruitful Ground.

Eviction, (Lat.) a convincing by force of Argument, or Law; a thorough Conviction, or Proof.

Evidence, the being evident, Clearneſs, Plainneſs, Demonſtration: In a Law-ſenſe, any Proof by the Teſtimony of Men, Records, or Writings; alſo a Witneſs that makes Proof againſt a Malefactor or Priſoner at the Bar of a Court of Juſtice.

To Evidence, to make evident, to prove.

Evidences, Inſtruments, Deeds, or Authentical Writings of Contracts, Agreements, &c. that are Seal'd and Deliver'd.

Evident, manifeſt, apparent, clear, plain.

Evil, Ill, Miſchief; alſo the King's Evil a Diſeaſe, ſo call'd by way of Eminency.

To Evince, (Lat.) to overcome, bear down, or prove by Argument: Among the Civilians, to Convict and Recover by Law.

Evitable, that may be eſchewed, avoided, or ſhun'd.

Eulogium, (Gr.) an Elogy, a praiſing or ſpeaking well of.

Eumenides, the Furies of Hell, whom the Ancient Heathens look'd upon as the Executors of the Vengeance of the Gods againſt Wicked Men. See Diræ.

Eumeces, a Stone, which laid under the Head diſturbs the Fancy and cauſes ſtrange Dreams.

Eunomians, a Sect of Hereticks, who held that Faith alone was acceptable without good Works.

Eunuch, a Man that is gelded or depriv'd of his Genitals: In the Bible, the Word is ſometimes us'd for a Chamberlain or great Officer in a King's Court.

Eunuchion, a kind of broad Lettice, which by reaſon of its extreme Coldneſs, is thought to be very forcible in allaying the Heat of Luſt.

Evocatio, (Lat.) a calling forth or calling upon, a Term that the Romans us'd upon a ſuddain calling out to Battel Man by Man; a Summons: In Grammar, a Figure of Conſtruction, a reducing of the Third Perſon to the Firſt, or Second; as Ego tua deliciæ iſtue veniam.

Euodes or Euoſmia, (Gr.) Fragrancy or Sweet-Smell; alſo a Term in Phyſick when the Excrements or Ordure have a Sweet Scent.

Evolution, (i. e. rolling) an Algebraical Term us'd by ſome Writers, for the Extraction of Roots out of any Powers, and directly contrary to Involution.

In the Art of War, Evolutions are doubling of Ranks or Files, Wheelings or other Motions, made by a Body of Soldiers, that change their Poſture or Form of drawing up; either to attack the Enemy, or to receive their Onſet more Advantageouſly.

Euonymus, (Gr.) the Spindle-tree or Prick-timber, the Berries of which are us'd for a Vomit and Purge.

Eupatorium, Hemp-agrimony or Liver-wort, an Herb of great Virtue againſt Rheums, Coughs, Stoppages, &c.

Eupathia, an eaſineſs in ſuffering.

Eupepsia, a good and eaſie Concoction or Digeſtion.

Eupetalos, a precious Stone of four Colours, viz. Fiery, Blew, Vermilion, and Green: Alſo a kind of Laurel.

Euphemiſmus, Good Name, Reputation, honourable mention or ſetting forth one's Praiſe: In Rhetorick, a Figure, whereby a foul harſh Word or Speech is chang'd into another that may give no Offence; as Eumenides for Furies.

Euphonia, (in Grammar) a graceful Sound, a ſmooth running of Words.

Euphorbia, the Libyan Ferula, a Tree or Shrub firſt found by King Juba, and ſo call'd from the Name of his Phyſician Euphorbus.

Euphorbium, the gummy Juice or Sap of that Tree, much us'd in Phyſick and Surgery.

Euphoria, the well bearing of the Operation of a Medicine, i. e. when the Patient finds himſelf eas'd or reliev'd by it.

Euphragia or Euphraſia, the Herb Eye-bright, of ſingular efficacy in ſtrengthening the Eyes, and repairing a weak Sight.

Euphrates, an Aſian River, one of the moſt noted of the World, now call'd Phrat or Phorat.

Euphroſynum, the Herb Burrage or Bugloſs, ſo nam'd, becauſe drunk in Wine, it cheers the Heart.

Eupnœa, a right Natural Faculty of fetching one's Breath.

Euporia, a readineſs in preparing Medicines, or the eaſineſs of their Working.

Euporiſta, Remedies that may be eaſily had, concerning which Galen wrote a uſeful Book.

Euripus, a narrow Sea between Eubœa and Bœotia, now call'd Il Golpho di Negroponte, which ebbs and flows ſeven times in Twenty Four Hours. The Canals of Water which ſurrounded the Circus at Rome, where Sea-fights were Repreſented, were alſo call'd Euripi.

Euroaquilo, (Lat.) the North-Eaſt Wind, a boiſterous Stormy Wind.

Euroauſter, a South-Eaſt Wind.

Euroclydon, (Gr.) the ſame as Euroaquilo, a violent and tempeſtuous North-Eaſt Wind, which uſually happens about the beginning of Winter, and is by ſome call'd The Sea-man's Plague.

Euronotus, a South-Eaſt Wind.

Europe, one of the Four Parts of the World, ſeparated from Aſia by the River Tanais or Don; and ſaid to take Name from Europa the Daughter of Agenor King of Phœnicia, whom Jupiter carry'd away in the ſhape of a Bull.

Eurotias, a precious Stone of a Black Colour, and having a kind of Mould upon it.

Eurus, the Eaſt Wind.

Eurythmia, the true Meaſure obſerv'd in Dancing after Muſick: Among Oratours, a Graceful Motion and Carriage of Body: In Architecture, the exact Proportion between all the Parts of a Building: In the Art of Phyſick, an excellent natural diſpoſition of the Pulſe.

Euſarcos, one that is well fleſhed.

Euſebes, Religious, Godly: Alſo a Stone of which in Hercules's Temple at Tyre, a certain Seat was made, where the Devil-Gods us'd to appear.

Euſemia, a Creſis or Judgment of a Diſeaſe, excellently well made.

Euſitia, a good Appetite.

Euſplanchnus, one whoſe Entrails or Bowels are ſound and in good Temper.

Euſtace, a proper Name, from the Greek, Euſtathius or Euſtachius, i. e. ſtanding firm.

Euſtomachus, a good Stomach, alſo Meat proper for it.

Euſtylos or Euſtyle, (in Architect.) a kind of Building wherein the Pillars are plac'd at a moſt convenient diſtance one from another; the Intercolumniations or Spaces between each, being juſt two Diameters and a Quarter of the Pillar, except those in the middle, the face, before and behind, which have in distance three Diameters.

Eutaxia, a handsome ordering or disposing of things.

Euterpe, one of the Nine Muses, the Inventress of the Flute, and other Musical Instruments.

Euthanasia, a gentle quiet Death; or an easy Passage out of this World.

Euthropia, a due Nourishment of the Body.

Euthyporos, a going upright.

Eutocus, fruitful and bringing forth with Ease.

Eutonos, strong and lusty.

Eutrophia, the same with Euthropia.

Eutychians, a Sect of Hereticks, whose Ring-leader was one Eutyches, A. C. 443. Their chief Tenet was, That there is but one Nature in Christ.

Evulsion, (Lat.) a plucking, pulling, or a drawing out.

The Euxine, (Gr.) as The Euxine-Sea, now commonly call'd the Black-Sea, which is one of the Boundaries of Europe on the East.

Euzomos or Euzomum, the Herb-Rocket, so call'd because it gave a good Taste in the Greek Pottage.

Ew, a Female Sheep.

Ew is Blissom, (among Shepherds) signifies that ſhe has taken Tup or Ram; as Ew is riding, imports ſhe is Tupping.

Ewagium, (in old Latin Records) Toll paid for Water-passage.

Ewbrice, (Sax.) Spouſe-breach, Adultery, from Ewe Marriage and Brice breaking; a Term us'd in the Laws of King Edmund: Whence our English Words to Woo, a Wooer.

Ewry, a kind of Veſſel to hold Water, to be pour'd into a Baſon.

Exacerbatio, (Lat.) a provoking, galling, or grieving anew: In Rhetorick, the ſame Figure as Sarcaſmus: In the Art of Phyſick, the ſharp Fit of a Diſeaſe.

Exact, perfect, punctual, preciſe, ſtrict, nice, diligent.

To Exact, to require more than is due, to ask above the juſt Value, to demand rigorouſly.

Exaction, an unreaſonable exacting or demanding: In a Law-ſenſe, Wrong done by an Officer, or one pretending to have Authority, that takes Reward or Fee for what the Law does not allow.

Exactneſs, Care, Carefulneſs, Diligence; a punctual Obſervation of the ſmalleſt Circumſtances.

Exactor, (Lat.) a Gatherer of Taxes and Tolls.

Exactor Regis, the King's Exactor or Tax-gatherer.

Exaereſis (Gr.) a taking away, or drawing out. In Surgery, a drawing out of the Body, whatever is noxious or hurtful; as Bullets, Arrows, &c.

To Exaggerate, (Lat.) to heap up, amplify, or enlarge in Words.

Exaggeration, an exaggerating, amplifying, or aggravating.

† Exaggitation, a ſtirring up, or moving.

Exagium, (Gr.) a Weight among the Ancients, conſiſting of Four Scruples; a kind of Weight appointed to be a Standard, to prevent Fraud.

To Exalt, (Lat.) to raiſe or lift up, to extol or praiſe highly.

To Exalt a Mineral, (in Chymiſtry) to refine it, or increaſe its Strength.

Exaltation, an exalting or lifting up. In Chymiſtry, an Operation, whereby a thing being chang'd in its natural Quality, is rais'd to a higher Degree of Virtue: In Aſtrology, it is an Eſſential Dignity of a Planet, next in Virtue to being in its proper House.

Exalted, raiſed, or lifted up; alſo ſublime, great, excellent; as exalted Virtue.

Exambloſis, (Gr.) an Abortion, or Miſcarriage.

Examen, (Lat.) a Tryal, a Proof, particularly of one that is to be admitted to Holy Orders, or to any Employment.

Examination, an examining or ſearching out, a Tryal.

To Examine, to ſearch or enquire into, to weigh and conſider; to canvaſs, ſcan, or ſift.

Examiners in Chancery, two Officers who examine upon Oath, Witneſſes produc'd on either Side in that Court, and ſometimes the Parties themſelves that are engag'd in a Suit.

Example, a Pattern, Model, or Copy; an Inſtance, or Preſident to prove a thing; the making good of any Rule by a Proof: In Logick, the concluſion of one ſingular Point from another.

Exanguious, being without Blood, bloodleſs.

Exanaſtomoſis, (Gr. in Anat.) an opening the ends of Veſſels, as Arteries, Veins, &c.

† Exanimation, (Lat.) a depriving of Life, an aſtoniſhing, diſmaying, or diſheartening.

Exannual Roll, a Roll in which Fines that could not be levy'd, and deſperate Debts, were formerly enter'd, in order to be yearly read to the Sheriff, to ſee what might be got in.

Exanthemata, (Gr.) the Meazles, or Small-pox; certain Wheals, Puſhes, or Breakings out in the Skin of the Head, like thoſe that appear on the Body.

Exarch, a Vice-Roy, or great Officer, heretofore under the Emperours of Conſtantinople, who manag'd the Affairs of Italy, and was ſtyl'd The Exarch of Ravenna, from the Place of his Chief Reſidence.

Exarchate or Exarchy, the Office or Dignity of an Exarch.

Exarthema, (in Surgery) a disjoynting, as when a Bone is put out of its proper Place. See Luxation.

Exarticulation, (Lat.) a putting out of Joynt, after the ſame manner.

To Exaſperate, (properly to make ſharp) to incenſe or provoke, to anger or vex.

Exaſperation, an exaſperating, or provoking to Anger.

Exauctorati, (among the Romans) were Soldiers diſcharged from going to the Wars.

† Exauctoration, a putting out of any Office or Service, a Caſhiering or Diſcarding.

Excambiator, (in old Records) an Exchanger of Land, probably ſuch as we now call Brokers, that deal upon the Exchange between Merchants.

Excavation, a making hollow.

† To Excecate, to make blind, to put out one's Eyes.

Excecation, a blinding or making blind.

To Exceed, to go beyond, to ſurpaſs.

Exceeding or Exceſſive, that exceeds, immoderate, extravagant.

To Excell, to out-do, to be eminent or ſingular in any reſpect.

Excellence or Excellency, Eminency, Preheminence, ſingular Advantage: Excellency is alſo a Title of Honour given to Ambaſſadours and others.

Excellent, that excells, admirable, notable, ſingular, extraordinary, choice, rare.

† Excelſity, Height, Loftineſs.

Excentrical or Excentrick, that moves in a different Center. See Excentrick.

To Except, to take out of the Number of others, to put out of the ordinary Rule, to object againſt.

Exceptio, (Lat. in Phyſick) the imbodying, or mixing of dry Powders with ſome ſort of Moiſture: Thus Electuaries are made, and ſeveral Powders are mingled with, Honey, Syrup, Wine, &c.

Exception, an excepting, a Clauſe reſtraining a Generality in ſome particular Point: In the Civil and Common Law, it is a Bar or Stop to an Action, and is either dilatory, or peremptory.

In Grammar, Exceptions are certain Diſtinctions of Words, which differ in the manner of their Declining from ſome general Rule.

Exceptionable, that may be excepted againſt.

Exceptious, Captious, that is apt to take Exception or Offence.

Exceptive, that ſerves to except.

Exceptive Propoſitions, (in Logick) are thoſe where a thing is affirmed of the whole Subject, except ſome one of the Inferiours of the Subject, by adding a Particle of Exception; as The Covetous Man does nothing well, but when he dies.

To Excerp, to pick or cull out; as To Excerp fine Notions out of a Book.

Excerption, a culling or chuſing out.

Exceſs, an exceeding, that which exceeds or is ſuperfluous in any thing; alſo Riot, Debauchery, looſeneſs of Manners. Intemperance.

Exceſſive, exceeding, that goes beyond the due Bounds, or Meaſure, Immoderate.

Exchange, a changing or trucking one thing for another: In Traffick, it commonly ſignifies Coin given for Coin, i. e. the giving a Summ of Money in one Place, for a Bill ordering the Payment of the like Sum in another Place; alſo a Place where Merchants meet to concert their Affairs.

In a Law-ſenſe, where a Man is ſeiz'd or poſſeſs'd of certain Land, and another is ſeiz'd of other Land; if they by Deed indented, or otherwiſe, exchange their Lands, ſo that each of them ſhall have other Lands to him ſo exchanged in Fee, Fee-tail, or for Term of Life; this is call'd an Exchange, and is good without Livery or Seizin.

So that Exchange in Common Law is as much as Permutation with the Civilians: It is alſo us'd in another peculiar Senſe, for the Compenſation or Satiſfaction, which the Warranter muſt make to the Warrantee, Value for Value, if the Land warranted be recover'd from the Warrantee.

The Queen's Exchange, the Place appointed for the Exchange of Bullion, Gold, Silver or Plate, &c. for the Queen's Coin, which is now only ſettled at the Mint in the Tower of London.

Royal Exchange. See Royal.

Exchange-Brokers, Men that give Information to Merchants, &c. how the Exchange of Coin goes, and of fit Perſons to exchange with: See Brokers of Exchange.

Exchangers, they that return Money beyond Sea, by Bills of Exchange, &c.

Exchequer, (Fr.) a Court of Record, in which all Cauſes relating to the Crown-Revenues are handled: Alſo the Place where the Queen's Caſh is receiv'd and paid, properly call'd The Receipt of the Exchequer: Alſo the Prerogative Court of the Archbiſhop of York, where all Laſt Wills and Teſtaments made in that Province, are to be prov'd.

Excipulum, (Lat.) an Inſtrument to take, lay hold of, or catch any thing; alſo a kind of Chymical Veſſel.

Exciſable, that may be charg'd with the Duty of Exciſe.

Exciſe, an Impoſition or Charge laid by Act of Parliament upon Beer, Ale, Cider and other Liquors, during the Queen's Life.

Exciſion, (Lat.) a cutting off, or breaking down, a razing, or deſtroying. In Surgery, the cutting off any Member or part of the Body.

† Excitation, a ſtirring up, a cauſing of ſome Effect, a Provocation.

To Excite, to provoke, ſtir up, or egg on; to cauſe; to quicken, to encourage or abet.

Excitement, the ſame as Excitation.

To Exclaim, to cry out, to call aloud.

Exclamation, an exclaiming or crying out, an Out-cry: Alſo a Figure in Rhetorick; as Now I ſpeak to thee O Africanus.

To Exclude, to debar, ſhut out, or keep from.

Excluſa or Excluſagium, (in old Latin Records) a Sluce for Water damm'd or pent up.

Excluſion, an excluding, barring, or ſhutting out.

Excluſioners, a Name given in the time of King Charles II. to thoſe Members of Parliament that were for excluding his Brother from the Crown.

Excluſive, that has the force of excluding; as Sovereigns have an Excluſive Voice in the Election of Popes.

Excluſive Propoſitions, (in Logick) ſuch Propoſitions as ſignify that a Predicate ſo agrees with its Subject, as to agree with that alone and no other: Thus, Vertue only makes Nobility, nothing elſe renders a Man truely Noble.

† To Excogitate, to invent, or find out by thinking.

Excogitation, an Invention, or Device.

Excommengement, an old French Law-word for Excommunication.

To Excommunicate, (Lat.) to turn out of the Communion of the Church.

Excommunication, among the Ancient Heathens, was an excluding of Men from partaking of the Sacred Myſteries, and cutting them off from Communicating with others of the ſame Religion: Among Chriſtians, it is a Sentence pronounc'd by an Eccleſiaſtical Judge againſt an obſtinate Offender, debarring him from the Sacraments, as alſo ſometimes from the Communion of the Faithful, and all Civil Privileges.

Excommunicato capiendo, a Writ iſſuing out of Chancery, and directed to the Sheriff for the apprehending of one who ſtands obſtinately Excommunicated Forty Days, and for the laying of him up without Bail or Mainpriſe, till he be reclaim'd.

Excommunicato deliberando, a Writ to the under Sheriff, for the delivery of an excommunicate Perſon out of Priſon, upon the Ordinary's Certificate of his Conformity to the Juriſdiction Eccleſiaſtical.

Excommunicato Recipiendo, a Writ whereby Perſons Excommunicate being Impriſon'd for their Obſtinacy, and unlawfully ſet at Liberty, before they have given Caution to obey the Authority of the Church, are commanded to be ſought for and laid up again.

Excoriated, (in Surgery) that has the Skin flead, or fretted.

Excoriation, is when the Skin is rubb'd or torn off, or elſe eaten or fretted away from any Part of the Fleſh.

Excortication. See Decortication.

Excreation, a ſpitting out with retching or hauking.

Excrement, Ordure, Dregs.

Excrements of the Body, (properly ſo call'd) are whatever is ſeparated from the Food after Digeſtion, and is to be thrown out; as Spittle, Snot, Sweat, Ear-wax, Urine, Dung, &c.

Excrementitious, belonging to, or partaking of the Nature of Excrements.

Excreſcence or Excreſcency, that which ſticks to, or grows upon another thing, as the ſpungy Subſtance call'd Jews-ear upon the Elder-root, Carcall upon a Nut-tree, &c. In Surgery, it is ſuperfluous Fleſh that grows upon any part of the Body; a fleſhy Swelling; as a Wart, a Wen, &c.

Excretion, (in the Art of Phyſick) a ſeparating and voiding of Excrements, or Excrementitious Humours from the Aliments and mass of Blood, [illegible]

[illegible] Boney, a Diſeaſe that happens to Horſes, when a kind of Subſtance [illegible] the Bone of the Leg, &c. occaſion'd by a [illegible] or the Galling of a Lock, or elſe by the [illegible] Application of Cauſticks or burning Corroſives.

† Excruciation, a tormenting, a putting to Pain.

To Exculpate, to clear of a Fault, to juſtify or excuſe; as Good meaning will never exculpate blind and ſuperſtitious Devotion.

Excuneati, (among the Romans) thoſe that had no Seat in the Benches of the Amphitheatre, but were ſtanding in the Corners of it, to ſee the Games.

Excurſion, an Invaſion or Inrode, a Sally; alſo a Digreſſion, or going from the Subject in a Diſcourſe or Speech.

Excuſable, that may be excuſed.

Excuſatory, that ſerves to excuſe.

Excuſe, a Reaſon whereby we endeavour to juſtify ſome Offence or Fault committed; a Pretence, or Cloak.

To Excuſe, to admit one's Excuſe, to juſtify; to diſpenſe or bear with.

Excuſſio, (Lat.) a ſhaking or caſting off: In the Roman Law, a ſtrict Enquiry into the Debtor's Eſtate; a detaining of his Goods till full Payment were made.

Execrable, abominable, curſed, odious, hateful.

Execration, a deteſting, abhorring or loathing; a dreadful Oath, Imprecation or Curſe.

To Execute, to do, effect, or perform, to put to Death by Authority.

Execution, the executing or doing of a Thing, Performance; the Capital Puniſhment of a Malefactor: In Common Law, the laſt performance of an Act, as of a Fine, to get abſolute Poſſeſſion of the Things therein contain'd; or of a Judgment, for the ſeizing of Perſons, Goods, or Lands.

Executione facienda, a Writ commanding the Execution of a Judgment.

Executione facienda in Withernamium, a Writ that lies for the taking of his Cattel, that formerly convey'd another's Cattel out of the County; ſo that the Bailiff impower'd by the Sheriff, to replevy the Cattel ſo convey'd away, could not execute his Charge.

Executioner, the Hangman, or Finiſher of the Law.

Executor, one that performs any Action: In a Law-ſenſe, it is taken for one who is appointed by a Laſt Will and Teſtament to diſpoſe of the deceaſed Parties Eſtate, according to the Contents of that Will.

Executor de ſon tort, (Fr. i. e. Executor to his own Prejudice) one that takes upon him the Office of an Executor by Intruſion, not being ordain'd by the Teſtator, nor for want of that appointed by the Ordinary to Adminiſter.

Executory or Executive, that ſerves to execute; as The executive Power.

Executrix, a Female Executor, a Woman impower'd to diſpoſe of an Eſtate according to another's laſt Will.

Exedra, (Gr.) certain Halls with many Seats, where the Philoſophers, Rhetoricians and Men of Learning anciently ſat, when they met for Diſcourſe or Diſputing.

Exedum, an Herb good againſt Drowſineſs.

Exegeſis, an Explication: In Rhetorick, a Figure, wherein that which was at firſt ſomewhat darkly deliver'd, is afterwards in the ſame Sentence render'd more clear and intelligible; as Time at one Inſtant ſeem'd both ſhort and long: Short in the Pleaſure of calling to Mind; long in the ſtay of his Deſires.

[illegible] Numeral or Literal Solution, or Extraction of Roots out of Affected Equations, firſt invented by Vieta.

Exegetical, explanatory, that ſerves to explain or unfold.

Exelciſmus, (in Surgery) a breaking of Bones from the [illegible] downwards.

Exemplar, (Lat.) a Sampler, Pattern or Model.

Exemplary, that ſerves for an Example or Pattern, worthy of Imitation.

Exemplification, a Demonſtration of a thing by an Example; alſo a Draught or Copy of an Original Record.

Exemplification of Letters Patent, a Duplicate or Copy of ſuch Letters, made from the [illegible] Originals, and ſeal'd with the Great Seal of England; which Exemplifications are as effectual to be Shew'd or Pleaded as the Originals themſelves.

Exemplificatione, a Writ granted for the exemplifying of an Original.

To Exemplify, to clear, prove, or confirm by an Example or Inſtance; to Copy out a Deed or Writing.

Exempt, free from, privileged.

An Exempt, a Life-Guard free from Duty: In France, an Officer in the Companies of the Guards, who Commands in the abſence of the Captains and Lieutenants.

To Exempt, to free, or diſcharge.

Exemption, Immunity, Privilege, Freedom: In a Law-ſenſe, a Privilege to be free from Service or Appearance.

To Exenterate, a Word us'd by Philoſophers for to Draw or Bowel.

Exenteration, a taking out the Bowels, or Guts.

Exequies, Funeral Rites or Solemnities.

Exercent, that makes Exerciſes or Practices, as A Doctor of Law exercent.

Exerciſe, Labour or Pains, Practice or Uſe; application to any particular Study, Profeſſion or Calling; the function or performance of an Office. Among Phyſicians 'tis defin'd to be a Motion, whereby the Body is ſtirr'd in order to Health.

In the Art of War, Exerciſe is the practice of all thoſe Motions, Actions and Management of Arms a Soldier ought to be well vers'd in, to be fit for Service.

To Exerciſe, to inure or train up to, to uſe or employ, to practiſe; to bear an Office, to harraſs or tire.

Exerciſes, the Task of Boys at School, or of young Students in an Univerſity.

Exercitation, frequent exerciſing; a vehement and voluntary Motion of the Body, undertook for getting or preſerving Health: Alſo a kind of Critical commenting upon Authors, an ingenious Diſcourſe upon any Subject.

Exergaſia, (Gr. i. e. Poliſhing) a Figure in Rhetorick, when one thing is often repeated, but with other Terms, Sentences and Ornaments; as She was the Object of his Thoughts, the Entertainment of his Diſcourſe, and the Contentment of his Heart.

To Exert, (Lat.) to thruſt out, or put forth, to ſhew; as Now Exert your Strength and Courage.

Exertion, the Act of Exerting, Production, Operation.

To Exfoliate, (in Surgery) to riſe up in Leaves or Splinters, as a broken Bone does.

Exfrediare, (old Law-Term) to break the Peace, to commit open Violence, from the Saxon Word Frede or Frith, i. e. Peace.

Ex gravi Querela, a Writ that lies for one, to whom any Lands or Tenements within a City, Town, or Borough are deviſ'd by Will, and who is kept from the Poſſeſſion of them by the Deviſor's Heir.

Exhalation, a Fume or Vapour rising up from the Surface of the Earth, or Water, by means of the Sun, or that of Fire under Ground, of which Meteors are bred, as Mists, Fogs, Hail, Snow, Rain, &c. In the Art of Physick, it is a subtil Spirituous Air, that breaths forth out of the Bodies of Living-Creatures: In Chymistry, an Operation whereby the more Volatile or Airy parts of Substances are rais'd, and dispers'd by means of Heat.

To Exhale, to cast, or send forth a Fume or Vapour; to breath out, or steam.

To Exhaust, to draw quite out, drain, or empty; to waste, spend, or consume.

Exhaustions, as The Method of Exhaustions, which is much in use among the ancient Mathematicians; as Euclid, Archimedes, &c. See Indivisibles.

Exhebenus (Gr.) a kind of White Stone, with which Goldsmiths polish Gold.

Exenium or Exennium, (in old Latin Records) a New-Years-gift, a Present, a Token.

† To Exheredate, to disinherit; to deprive one of his Inheritance.

An Exhibit, a Term us'd in Chancery, when a Deed, Acquittance, or other Writing, is brought to be prov'd by Witness; and the Examiner writes on the Back, That it was shew'd to such a one at the Time of his Examination.

To Exhibit, to produce or shew, to present or offer.

Exhibition, an exhibiting, shewing, &c. The Word was also formerly taken for an allowance for Meat and Drink, such as the Appropriators of Church-livings made to the depending Vicar: And the Settlements of Benefactors for the Maintenance of University-Scholars, not depending on the Foundation, are now call'd Exhibitions.

To Exhilerate, to delight, to cheer up or make merry.

Exhileration, the Act of exhilerating, comforting, or cheering.

To Exhort, to encourage, to incite or stir up; to counsel, advise, or perswade to.

Exhortation, an exhorting, encouraging, or solliciting.

Exhortative or Exhortatory, that serves to exhort.

† Exiccation, a drying up.

Exigence or Exigency, Need, Necessity, Occasion.

Exigency or Exigent, a Pinch or Straight, an Occasion, an Expedient.

Exigendary of the Common Bench, the same as Exigenter; which See.

Exigent, a Writ that lies where the Defendant in an Action Personal cannot be found, nor any Thing within the County to be distrained: It is directed to the Sheriff, to call the Party Five County-days successively, to appear under Pain of Outlawry: This Writ lies also in an Indictment of Felony, requiring the Party's Appearance to answer the Law, under the same Penalty.

Exigenter or Exigendary, an Officer in the Common-Pleas Court; of whom there are Four in Number, who make out Exigents and Proclamations in all Actions in which Process of Outlawry lies.

Exile, (a Term in Philos.) fine, thin, subtil: Also Banishment, or a Person that is Banish'd.

To Exile, to send one into some Place far distant from his Native Country under a Penalty if he return, either for a set Time, or for Life; to Banish.

Exility, (in Philos.) Slenderness, Smallness.

Exilium, (Lat.) Exile, Banishment: In our Old Law-Records, a Waste, or Destruction of Lands, Houses, Woods, &c. Also an Injury done to a Man's Estate by altering the Tenure or Condition of it, by selling, advancing, rebuilding, &c.

Eximious, excellent, notable, singular, choice, rare.

Exinanition, (in Philos.) a making void, or empty; a bringing to nothing: In the Art of Physick, the same as Evacuation.

Exischios, (Gr.) a Term us'd in Surgery, when the Thigh-bone is out of Joynt.

To Exist, (Lat.) to be, or have a Being.

Existence, a Being, defin'd to be that which a Thing is formally, or intrinsically, tho' separated from its Causes; so that Essence is the Thing it self, and Existence the manner of the Thing.

Existimation, a Thinking, or Judging; an Opinion.

Exit, Going forth, Departure: It is commonly taken for the going out of an Actor in a Stage-Play; and for one To make his Exit out of the World, is as much as to die.

Exitial, bringing Danger or Destruction, Mischievous, Deadly.

Exitus, (Lat.) a going forth, the end of a Business, Death: The Word is often us'd in our old Law-writings, and in some Epitaphs for Issue, Child, or Children; also for Issues, Revenues, Rents, or Profits.

Ex mero motu, are formal Words in a Charter, by which the Prince signifies, That he does what is contain'd in the Charter, of his own Will, without the Suggestion, Sollicitation, or Request of any other Person.

Exochas (Gr.) a Pimple, or Wheal in the Fundament.

Exocœtus, the Sleeper, a Sea-fish, so call'd, because it goes on Land to sleep.

Exodium, an Interlude, or Farce, at the end of a Tragedy, to make People laugh.

Exodus, a going, or departing out; the Title of Moses's Second Book, in the beginning of which is describ'd the Departure of the Israelites out of Egypt.

Exomis, a Jacket, or sleeveless Jerkin, a Student's Hood, a Freeman's Livery-gown.

Exomphalos, a Protuberance, or starting out of the Navel, common to Infants; a Dropsy, or Rupture in the Navel.

To Exonerate, to unload or disburden, to discharge or ease.

Exoneratione Sectæ, a Writ that lay for the Ward or Heir of the King's Tenant under Age, to be disburden'd of all Suit, &c. to the County, Hundred, Leet or Court Baron, during the time of his Wardship.

Exophthalmy, (Gr.) a bunching of the Eye out of its natural Position.

† Exoptation, (Lat.) an earnest wishing.

Exorable, easie to be entreated, that may be prevail'd upon by Reasons, Prayers, or Entreaties.

Exorbitancy, a Thing done out of Measure, Square or Rule; Irregularity, Extravagance.

Exorbitant, extravagant, excessive; irregular, immoderate.

Exorcism, (Gr.) an Abjuration or Conjuring, for the laying of Spirits, or casting them out.

Exorcist, one that casts out Devils, a Conjurer.

To Exorcize, to Conjure out, or lay Evil Spirits.

Exordium, (Lat.) a Preface or Preamble: In Rhetorick, an Oration or Speech, in which the Oratour prepares the Minds of the Auditors for that which is to follow: The other Four Parts are the Proposition, Narration, Confirmation and Peroration; which See in their proper Places.

Exornation, an adorning, or setting off.

Exostosis, (in Surgery) the swelling or Bunching of a Bone out of its natural Place, caused by the setting of a Corrupt Humour in its proper Substance.

Exostra, (Gr.) a Wooden Engine, whereby Things acted within behind the Stage, were shewn to the Spectators, by the turning about of a Wheel: Also a Bridge thrust out of a Turret by Pullies to the Walls of a Town, in order to get into it. The Word is now us'd for a Petard, to break open a Gate or Portcullice.

Exotick, (Gr.) foreign, outlandish, brought out of a strange Country.

Exoticks, foreign Plants not growing Naturally in our English Soil.

To Expand, (Lat.) to stretch out, to open, to spread out or abroad.

Expanded, (in Heraldry) displayed, or set out.

Expansion, an opening, displaying, or spreading abroad: In a Metaphysical Sense, it is defin'd by Mr. Lock, to be the Idea we have of Lasting Distance, all whose Parts exist together: Among Naturalists, it is often taken for the swelling or encrease of Fluids or Liquours, when stirr'd about by Heat.

Ex parte, (Lat. i. e. of the one Part) as A Commission ex Parte in Chancery, i. e. a Commission taken out and executed only by one Side, whereas a Joynt Commission is by Consent and Agreement of both.

Ex parte talis, a Writ that lies for a Bailiff or Receiver, who having Auditors assign'd to take his Account, cannot obtain reasonable Allowance.

To Expatiate, to enlarge on a Subject.

To Expect, to look for; to tarry, stay, or wait for; to hope, or fear what may happen.

Expectance or Expectation, an expecting, a looking or longing for; Hope or Fear of Things to come.

Expectant Fee, (in Common Law) Land given to a Man and to the Heirs of his Body, the Remainder to him and his Heirs; in which Case, there is a Fee simple Expectant, after the Fee-tail.

To Expectorate, to discharge, or spit Phlegm out of the Breast.

Expectoration, the Act of expectorating; the raising and casting forth of Phlegm, or other Matter out of the Lungs.

Expedient, convenient, necessary, needful or fit to be done.

An Expedient, a Way, Device, or Means.

Expeditatæ Arbores, (in the Forest-Law) Trees rooted up, or cut down to the Roots.

To Expeditate, to cut out the Balls of Dogs Feet, or the Three Claws of the Fore-foot, on the right Side, to hinder their pursuit of the Queen's Game; which is otherwise call'd Lawing of Dogs. See Espealtare.

Expedite, ready, being in a Readiness, quick, nimble.

To Expedite, to dispatch, or rid.

Expedition, a setting forth upon a Journey, War, or other Business; especially a Military Enterprize, or Adventure.

Expeditionary, an Officer at the Pope's Court for Dispatches.

Expeditious, that tends to dispatch, quick.

To Expel, to drive out or chace forth, to thrust or turn out.

Expence, Cost, or Charges.

To Expend, to spend, or lay out Money.

Expenditor, the Steward or Sworn Officer, who oversees the Repair of the Banks or Water-courses in Romney-marsh.

Expensis Militum levandis, a Writ directed to the Sheriff for levying the Allowance for Knights in Parliament.

Expensis Militum non levandis ab hominibus de Dominico antiquo Coronæ, a Writ to forbid the Sheriff from levying any Allowance for the Knights of the Shire, upon those that hold in Ancient Demesne.

Expensive, that causes Expence, chargeable, costly.

Experience, long Proof or Tryal upon Sight, or Observation; Knowledge, or Skill got by Use and Practice.

To Experience, to try, or find by Experience.

Experienced, essayed, tried; well skilled, or versed.

Experiment, Essay, Tryal, Proof.

To Experiment, to make an Experiment, to try.

Experimental, grounded upon Experience.

Experimentum Crucis, such an Experiment as leads Men to the true Knowledge of the Nature of the Thing they enquire after; in the same manner as a Cross set up where several Ways meet, serves to guide Travellers in their right Course.

Expert, that has much Experience, cunning, skilful.

† Expetible, worth seeking after, desirable.

Expiable, that may be atoned for.

To Expiate, to purge by Sacrifice, to atone or make Satisfaction for.

Expiation, an Expiatiating, an Atonement which was anciently made by having recourse to Temples, Altars, Prayers, &c.

Expiatory, that serves to expiate, or make an Atonement.

Expiration, an expiring or breathing out; the end of an appointed Time: In a Physical Sense, the contracting, drawing together, or straightning of the Chest, so as the Air and Vapours may be driven out by the Wind-pipe.

To Expire, to breath one's last, to give up the Ghost or die; to be out or come to an end, as Time does.

To Explain, to make plain or clear, to unfold or open.

Explanation, an explaining, or making plain.

Explanatory, that serves to explain, or give light to.

Expletive, that fills up; a Term in Grammar, as An Expletive Particle or Conjunction, which serves to make up the Sentence.

Explication, an explaining, or unfolding; an Exposition, or Interpretation.

Explicit, plain, clear, express, formal, as In Explicit Terms.

Explitia, Expletia, or Expleta, (in old Latin Records) the Rents or mean Profits of an Estate, in Custody or Trust.

To Explode, (properly to hiss off the Stage) to decry or cry down, to reject with Scorn; to dislike absolutely.

Exploit, (Fr.) a brave Warlike Action, a noble Deed or Feat.

Exploration, a spying, a diligent searching out.

Explorator, (Lat.) a Scout, a Spy, or Privy Searcher; the Word is also sometimes us'd in our Ancient Authors for a Huntsman.

Explorator Generalis, a Scout-Master General.

Exploratorium, a Surgeon's Instrument commonly call'd a Probe.

Explosion, an exploding, casting off, or rejecting. Among Naturalists, an Action of the Animal Spirits, whereby the Nerves are suddenly drawn together, when some Particles of a different kind are mixed with the Spirits, by which they are violently expanded, or spread forth and driven into confusion, like the parts of fired Gun-powder.

That violent Heat and bubbling up which arises from the mixture of some contrary Liquors is also call'd Explosion; as when Spirit of Nitre and that of Wine, Oil of V[illegible] or Oil of Vitriol and Sal Armoniack being [illegible] together.

Exponent of the Ratio, or Proportion between two Numbers or Quantities, is the Quotient ariſing, when the Antecedent is divided by the Conſequent: Thus 6 is the Exponent of the Ratio that 30 has to 5.

Alſo a Rank of Numbers in Arithmetical Progreſſion, beginning from 0, and plac'd over a Rank of Numbers in Geometrical Progreſſion, are call'd Indices or Exponents; on which is founded all the Reaſon and Demonſtration of Logarithms: There are alſo Exponents of Powers in Algebra. See Indices.

To Export, to Bear, Carry, or Convey out.

Exportation, an Exporting, or Conveying out, eſpecially of Goods from one Country to another.

To Expoſe, to Set forth, to Set or lay abroad in View; to Venture, or Hazard.

Expoſition, an Expounding or Interpreting.

Expoſitor, an Expounder or Interpreter.

To Expoſtulate, to Argue or Reaſon the Caſe by way of Complaint, about an Injury receiv'd.

Expoſtulation, the Act of Expoſtulating.

Expoſtulatory, that ſerves to Expoſtulate.

To Expound, to Explain or Unfold.

Expreſs, Plain, Clear, Manifeſt.

An Expreſs, a Meſſenger ſent on purpoſe about a particular Errand; a Courier that carries Letters of Advice about News, &c. or the Tidings brought by him.

To Expreſs, to declare in Word or Writing, to Pronounce or Utter; to Portray or Repreſent.

Expreſſed or Expreſt, Declared, Repreſented, &c. alſo preſſed, wringed, ſtrained or ſqueezed out.

Expreſſed Oils, thoſe that are prepar'd, by ſqueezing out the Oily Juice of Fruits or Seeds; as Oil of Olives, of Sweet and Bitter Almonds, &c.

Expreſſio, (in Rhetorick) the ſame Figure as Ethopœa.

Expreſſion, a Manner or Way of Pronouncing, or Uttering; alſo the thing expreſs'd or utter'd, a Phraſe or Word: In Phyſick and Chymiſtry, a Preſſing or Squeezing out the Juices or Oils of Plants, either by Hand or by a Preſs; and thus Oils ſo prepared are call'd Oils by Expreſſion, as thoſe made by Fire are Termed Stillatitious Oils.

Expreſſive, that is proper to Expreſs.

Exprobration, an Upbraiding or Twitting; a Reproach.

Expromiſſor, (in the Roman Law) a Surety or Bail, one that promiſes or undertakes for another.

† Expugnation, a Conquering, or Getting by Force of Arms.

Expulſion, Expelling, Thruſting, Turning or Driving out.

Expulſive, that has a Power to Expel or Drive out.

Expulſive Faculty, (in Phyſick) that by which the Excrements are forc'd out or voided, being perform'd by the Animal Spirits, which Cauſe the Motion of the Guts call'd Periſtaltick to that purpoſe.

To Expunge, to Put or Blot out, to Aboliſh or Deface.

Expurgatory, that has the Virtue to Purge, Cleanſe, or Scour.

Expurgatory Index, a Book ſet forth by the Pope, containing a Catalogue of thoſe Authors and Writings that he thinks fit to Cenſure and forbid to be Read by Roman Catholicks.

Exquiſita Angina, See Angina.

Exquiſite, (properly much ſearched) Curious, Choice, Fine, Rare, Dainty; alſo exact, or carry'd on to the utmoſt Height.

Exta, (Lat.) the Entrails or Bowels of an Animal Body.

Extant, that is in being, or to be ſeen; as The Works of Xenophon now extant.

Extaſy, (Gr.) a Trance, Swoon, or Rapture of Spirit; a Deprivation or Defect of the Judgment and Imagination, common to Diſtracted and Melancholy Perſons: See Ecſtaſy.

Extatical or Extatick, belonging to an Extaſy; as Extatical Viſions.

Extemporal or Extemporary, (Lat.) done or ſpoke in the very Inſtant of Time, without Study or thinking before hand, as An extemporary Compoſure, Verſe, &c.

Extempore, all on a ſudden, immediately, forthwith; as, He made that Speech Extempore.

To Extend, to ſtretch out, to make longer, to enlarge, to reach or go ſo far: In a Law-ſenſe, to value the Lands and Tenements of one that has forfeited his Bond; at ſuch a Rate, as by the Yearly Rent, the Obligator may in time be paid his Debt.

Extendi facias, a Writ commonly call'd a Writ of Extent, a Writ whereby the Value of Land, &c. is commanded to be made and levy'd in divers Caſes.

Extenſible, that may be Extended.

Extenſion, an Extending, Stretching out, or Enlarging.

Extenſive, that ſerves to Extend; that Extends, or Reaches far.

Extenſor Carpi Radialis, (in Anat.) a Muſcle of the Wriſt, by ſome call'd Bicornis and Radiæus Externus, which has two Beginnings, and ſeems to be two diſtinct Muſcles.

Extenſor Carpi Ulnaris, another Muſcle of the Wriſt, which acting with the Ulnaris Flexor, moves the Hand ſide-ways towards the Ulna; but if the Radialis Flexor and Extenſor act, they move it towards the Radius.

Extenſor Digitorum Communis, ſeu Digitorum Tenſor, a Muſcle of the Fingers, which takes riſe from the outward knob of the Shoulder-Bone, and is divided into Three Portions that are let into the upper Parts of the Firſt, Second and Third Bones of the Fore, Middle, and Third Fingers.

Extenſor Indicis, or Indicator, a Muſcle which ariſing from the middle of the outward part of the Ulna, joyns with the Tendon of the Extenſor Communis, and is inſerted with it to the upper part of the third Bone of the Fore-finger; its Uſe which anſwers its Name, being to ſtretch out the Fore-finger.

Extenſor primi Internodii Oſſis Pollicis, a Muſcle of the Thumb, which ariſes from the upper part of the Ulna, and is let into the upper part of the firſt Bone of the Thumb.

Extenſor ſecundi Internodii Oſſis Pollicis, a Muſcle of the Thumb, which ariſing from that part of the Radius next the Ulna, paſſes under the ſame Involucrum or Cover with the Tendons of the Extenſor primi, &c. and is implanted in the upper part of the ſecond Bone of the Thumb.

Extenſor tertii Internodii Oſſis Pollicis, a Muſcle of the Thumb, which has its riſe immediately below the beginning of the Extenſor primi Internodii, and is let in to the upper part of the Third Bone of the Thumb: When this Muſcle acts, it ſtretches out the Thumb and brings it ſomewhat backward.

Extenſor minimi Digiti, a Muſcle which ariſes partly at the end of the outward Proceſs of the Shoulder-bone, and partly from the upper part of the Ulna: It is inſerted to the upper part of the Third Bone of the little Finger, which it ſtretches out according to the Import of its Name.

Extenſor Pollicis Pedis brevis, a Muſcle of the great Toe, that ariſes from the fore-part of the Heel-bone, and is let in to the upper part of the ſecond Bone of the great Toe, which it ſtretches or pulls upwards.

Extenſor Pollicis Pedis longus, a Muſcle of the great Toe, which takes its Riſe from the fore-part of the Fibula, and is likewiſe implanted in the upper part of the Second Bone of the great Toe.

Extent, the Extending or Reaching of a thing in Length, Breadth, Depth, Compaſs, Space, &c. In Common Law an Extent Signifies 1. a Writ or Commiſſion to the Sheriff for the valuing of Lands or Tenements; 2. the Sheriff's Act upon that Writ; 3. the Eſtimate or Valuation of ſuch Lands; which when done to the utmoſt Value, was ſaid To be to the full Extent.

To Extenuate, to leſſen, to take off from the Hainouſneſs of a Crime or Fault.

Extenuation, the Act of Extenuating, Leſſening, &c. Alſo an Undervaluing, a Figure in Rhetorick oppoſite to Hyperbole, whereby things are diminiſh'd and made leſs than they really are: In a Medicinal Senſe, it is taken for a Leanneſs of the whole Body.

Extergent Remedies. See Abſtergent.

Exterior, more outward.

Exterior Polygon. See Polygon Exterior.

Exterior Talus. See Talus.

To Exterminate, (properly, to drive or caſt out of the Bounds) to deſtroy utterly, to root out, or cut off.

Extermination, an Exterminating or Deſtroying.

Exterminator, a Deſtroyer.

External, that is on the out-ſide, outward.

External Angles. See Angles External.

External Digeſtives. See Digeſtives.

Externus Auris vel Auratus Externus, (in Anat.) a Muſcle that ariſes from the outward and upper edge of the Auditory Paſſage, and is inſerted to the long Proceſs of the Membrane, or Skin call'd Malleus.

† Extерſion, a Wiping or Rubbing out.

† Extimulation, a Pricking forward, a ſtirring up or egging on.

Extinct, Dead, or Ceaſing to be.

Extinction, a quenching or putting out, being moſt properly apply'd to Fire or Heat: In Chymiſtry, it is the quenching of Red-hot Minerals in ſome Liquor, to abate their ſharpneſs, or to impart their Virtue to the Liquor.

To Extinguiſh, to Quench, Smother, or put out any thing that Burns, to appeaſe or ſtint, to deſtroy or aboliſh: In a Law-ſenſe, to redeem a Rent.

Extinguiſhment, an Extinction, or Extinguiſhing: In Common Law, it is an effect of Conſolidation; as when a Man has a Yearly Rent out of any Lands, and afterwards Purchaſes the ſame Lands, both the Property and Rent are Conſolidated or United in one Poſſeſſour, and therefore the Rent is ſaid To be Extinguiſhed. See Suſpenſion.

To Extirpate, to pluck up by the Roots, to root out or deſtroy.

Extirpation, an Extirpating, or utter Deſtroying: In Surgery, the Cutting off a Part by reaſon of a Cancer, or Blaſting; tho' in other Caſes, the Term Amputation is more proper.

Extirpator, one that Extirpates or Deſtroys, as an Extirpater of Hereſies.

Extirpatione, a Writ that lies againſt one, who after a Verdict found againſt him for Land, &c. ſpitefully overthrows any Houſe upon it.

Extiſpicium, a kind of Sooth-ſaying among the Ancient Romans, when by looking into the Entrails of Beaſts Sacrific'd, they foretold things to come.

Extirpare, (in old Latin Records) to Stock up or Grub Wood-land, and reduce it to Arable or Meadow.

To Extoll, to Raiſe or Advance by Commendation, to Praiſe greatly, to Cry up.

To Extort, to Wreſt, Wring, or Get out of one by Force, Threats, or Authority.

Extortion or Extorſion, an Unlawful or Violent Wringing of Money, or Money-worth from any Man, as when an Officer takes more than his ordinary Dues or Fees; the exaction of unlawful Uſury, winning by unlawful Games, and all taking more than is due.

Extortioner, one that practiſes Extortion, a griping Uſerer.

Extract, a Draught, or Copy of a Writing; alſo Birth or Pedigree: In Chymiſtry, it is that pure unmix'd and efficacious Subſtance, which by the help of ſome Liquor, is ſeparated from the Groſſer and more unactive Earthy Parts of Plants, &c. as Extracts of Rhubarb, Gentian, Wormwood, &c.

To Extract, to Draw out, to Copy out; In a Chymical Senſe, to ſeparate the more pure part from the groſſer.

Extracta Curiæ, (in old Records) the Iſſues or Profits of holding a Court, which ariſe from the Cuſtomry Fines, Fees and Dues.

Extraction, an extracting or drawing out; alſo a being deſcended from ſuch or ſuch a Family. Among Chymiſts, the drawing forth of an Eſſence or Tincture from a mixt Body, by means of ſome convenient Liquor, as Spirit of Wine, &c.

Extraction of Roots, (in Mathem.) the Method of finding out the true Root of any Number or Quantity given. In Arithmetick, the unravelling of a Number, (which being multiply'd once or more times by it ſelf, is call'd a Power) in order to find out its Side or Root.

Extraction of the Quadrate or Square Root, is when having a Number given, we find out another Number, which being multiply'd by it ſelf, produces the ſaid given Number.

Extraction of the Cube Root, is that by which out of a Number given, another Number is found, which being firſt multiply'd by it ſelf, and then by the Product, becomes equal to the given Number.

Extraction of the Biquadrate or double Square Root, is the untwiſting of a given Number, to find another; which being multiply'd by it ſelf, and the Product likewiſe multiply'd by it ſelf, may make the Number firſt given.

Extractor, a Surgeon's Inſtrument to lay hold on the Stone, in the Operation of cutting for the Stone.

Extractum Panchymagogum, a Collection of the purer Subſtances of ſeveral Purgative and Cordial Medicines, to Purge out all Humours.

Extragenous, (a Term in Anatomy and Surgery) that is of a foreign kind; as An Extragenous Body.

Extra-judicial, done out of the ordinary courſe of Law; as when Judgment is given in a Court, on which the Cauſe is not depending, or where the Judges has no Juriſdiction.

Extramundane, (a Philoſophical Term) being without the World; as Extramundane Space, i. e. the infinite empty void Space, which is ſuppos'd by ſome to reach beyond the Bounds of the Univerſe, and in which there is really nothing at all.

† Extraneous, that is of another Country, Foreign, Strange.

Extraordinary, that is beyond or contrary to common Order and Faſhion, unuſual, uncommon.

Extra-Parochial, that is out of the Bounds of any Pariſh, privileged or freed from the Duties of a Pariſh.

Extra-Parochial Lands, ſuch Lands as are newly left by the Sea, and conſequently belonging to no Pariſh.

Extra-tempora, (a Term in the Roman Chancery) Licence, or Leave from the Pope, to take Holy Orders at any time, beſides the Canonical Seaſons.

Extravagance or Extravagancy, Impertinence, Folly.

Extravagant, abſurd, fooliſh, idle, ſilly; rambling, or diſorderly; exceſſive, expenſive, prodigal.

Extravagantes, certain Conſtitutions or Ordinances of Princes, ſo call'd, becauſe they are not contain'd in the Body of the Civil Law: Alſo particular Decrees of Pope John XXII. and ſome other Popes added in like manner to the Canon Law.

† To Extravagate, to talk fooliſhly, ſillily, or idly; to rave, or dote.

To Extravasate, (a Term in Surgery) to go out of its proper Veſſels, as the Blood and Humours do, when by ſome Accident they flow beſides the Veins, Arteries, &c.

Extreat. See Eſtreat.

Extreme, laſt, or utmoſt; very great, exceeding.

Extreme and mean Proportion, (in Geom.) is when a Line is ſo divided, that the whole Line is to the greater Segment, as that Segment is to the other.

Extreme Reason. See Reaſon.

Extreme Unction, a ſolemn anointing of a Sick Perſon at the point of Death; one of the Seven Sacraments of the Roman Church.

An Extreme, the utmoſt Bounds or point of a Thing; as To go from one Extreme to another.

Extremity, the end, hem, skirt, edge, brink, or border of a Thing: Alſo great Diſtreſs, Miſery, Neceſſity; the worſt or loweſt Condition, the utmoſt Rigour, &c.

To Extricate, to diſentangle or diſengage, to deliver or rid out of.

Extrinſecal, that is on the out-ſide, outward.

† Extrusion, a thruſting or driving out.

Extuberance, a ſwelling or bunching out.

Extuberation, a ſwelling forth, or riſing up in the Fleſh; or the ſtarting out of a Bone.

Extuberous, ſwelling forth, or bunching out; as An extuberous Body.

Extumæ, (in old Records) Relicks of Saints.

Exuberance or Exuberancy, an overflowing, or over-abounding; Superabundance, great Plenty.

Exuberant, abounding, plentiful.

Exudation, a ſweating out.

To Exulcerate, to make a Sore, to eat the Skin, to gall or fret; to grow, or turn to an Ulcer.

Exulceration, an exulcerating, or turning to an Ulcer; a Solution of Continuity, which proceeds from ſome gnawing Matter, and in ſoft Parts of the Body, is attended with a loſs of their Quantity.

To Exult, to leap and skip for Joy, to rejoyce exceedingly.

Exultancy or Exultation, a leaping or dancing for Joy, a Triumphing or Rejoycing.

Exumbilication, a ſtarting out of the Navel.

Exundation. See Inundation.

Exuperation, an excelling or ſurpaſing.

Exuſtion, a burning.

Exutheniſmus, (Gr.) a Rhetorical Figure, in which there is an extenuation, or ſpeaking contemptibly of a Perſon or Thing; as Antiochus has no other Arms to defend himſelf with, but his Pen and Ink.

Exuviæ, (Lat.) Cloaths put, or left off; Spoils taken from an Enemy, Pillage, Booty: Alſo the Skin, Fell, or Hide of a Beaſt; the Slough or old caſt Skin of a Snake or Adder: The Word is alſo us'd by ſome modern Naturaliſts, for thoſe Shells, and other Bodies that are often found in the Bowels of the Earth, and which were left there at the Univerſal Deluge; being properly ſo call'd, becauſe they are the real Spoils of once Living-Creatures.

Ey, (old Word) an Egg; alſo an Iſland in Doomſday-Book.

Eye, the Wonderful Inſtrument of Sight. Among Herbaliſts, it is taken for that part of a Plant, where the Bud puts forth, and ſometimes for the Bud it ſelf. In Architecture, the middle of the Voluta, or Scroll of the Ionick Chapiter, which is cut in ſhape of a little Roſe.

In Sea-affairs, the Hole wherein the Ring of the Anchor is put into the Shank, is call'd the Eye of the Anchor; and the Compaſs or Ring which is left of the Strap-rope, to which any Block or Pulley is faſten'd, is likewiſe termed The Eye of the Strap.

To Eye-bite, to bewitch by a certain evil influence of the Eyes.

Eye-bright, an Herb very good for the Eyes, Brain and Memory.

Eye-flap, a little piece of Leather that covers the Eye of a Coach-horſe.

Eyess, (in Falconry) a young Hawk newly taken out of the Neſt, and not able to prey for her ſelf.

Eyet, an Iſlet or ſmall Iſland, which is now commonly call'd an Eyght or Ait. See Ait.

Eyrar, (in old Records) an Eyrie, Brood, or Neſt of young Birds.

Eyre or Eire (Law-Term) the Court of Juſtices Itinerant, or going their Circuit, from the French Word Erre, a Journey.

Eyre of the Foreſt, the Juſtice-Seat or Court, which us'd to be held every Three Years by the Juſtices of the Foreſt, journeying up and down to that purpoſe.

Eyrie, a Brood, or Neſt; a Place where Hawks build and hatch their Young.

Eyth or Eth, (old Word) eaſie.

Ezechias. See Hezekiah.

Ezechiel, (Heb. ſtrength of God) an eminent Prophet among the Jews, whoſe Book of Prophecies is included in the Canon of the Holy Scriptures.

Ezechiels-Reed, a Meaſure of Six Cubits, or Ten Foot Eleven Inches.

Ezra, (Heb. an Helper) a Famous Jewiſh Scribe, to whom King Artahſhaſht or Artaxerxes gave leave to return to Jeruſalem, and ſettle there with a great Number of his Country-men.

F A

Fa, one of the Notes in Muſick.

Faba, (Lat.) the Bean, a well known and nouriſhing ſort of Pulſe; the diſtill'd Water of its Flowers, provokes Urine, and is much us'd for Beautifying the Face.

Fabaria, the Herb Orpin, good for Ruptures, Fluxes, &c. and for taking away the Spots of the Skin.

Faber, a Handycrafts-man, properly that works in Iron, or other hard Materials; a Smith: Alſo a kind of Sea fiſh, ſo call'd, becauſe its Bones and Prickles reſemble a Smith's Tools; the Doree, or Dorn.

Fabian, a proper Name, the chief of which was Fabianus Biſhop of Rome, who ſuffer'd Martyrdom under the Emperour Decius.

Fable, a Story made on purpoſe for Inſtruction, being an Image fit to repreſent the Truth; alſo a feigned Tale, or meer Falſhood.

Fabrick, a Building.

Fabrick-Lands, (Law-Term) Lands given for the Rebuilding, Repairing, or Maintaining of Cathedrals, or other Churches.

Fabulous, feigned, full of Fables or invented Tales.

Facade, (Fr.) the Out-ſide, or Fore-front of a great Building.

Face, Viſage, Looks or Countenance, Preſence or Sight; State or Condition of Affairs; Appearance, ance or Shew; also Confidence or Boldneſs: In Architecture, that Member that has a great Breadth and a ſmall Projecture or Jutting out: It is alſo taken for the Front or outward Part of a great Building, which immediately preſents it ſelf to View: In Aſtrology, the third part of every Sign, attributed to ſome Planet. See Decanate.

Face of a Baſtion, (in Fortif.) is either of the two foremoſt ſides towards the Field, reaching from the Flanks, to the Point of the Baſtion where they meet.

Face of a Place, the Diſtance between the Points of two neighbouring Baſtions, which comprehends the Courtin, the two Flanks, and the two Faces of the Baſtions that look one towards another.

To Face, to ſtare or look in the Face; to look toward ſuch a Side, or to turn to it; alſo to line, as To face a pair of Sleeves.

To Face to the Right, or To the Left, (in Military Diſcipline) to turn the Face and whole Body that way.

Faceles, a kind of Pulſe.

Facetious, (Lat.) wittily, Merry, or Pleaſant; Jovial, Comical.

Facies Hippocratica, a Diſtemper, when the Noſtrils are ſharp, the Eyes hollow, the Temples low, the laps of the Ears drawn together, the Skin about the Forehead hard and dry; the Complexion Pale, of a leaden Colour or Black.

Facil, eaſy to be done, eaſy of Belief or Addreſs.

To Facilitate, to make facil or eaſy.

Facilitation, a facilitating, or making eaſy.

Facility, Eaſineſs, Readineſs, or Quickneſs.

Facinorous, villanous, wicked, hainous.

Fack. See Fake.

Fact, Act, Action, or Deed; in Arithmetick, the ſame as Product.

Facta Armorum, (in old Latin Records) Feats of Arms, Juſts, or Turnaments.

Faction, a Party or Sect, a Company or Band of Men.

Factious, that follows a particular Faction or Sect, ſeditious, mutinous.

Factitious, (in Philoſ.) made by Art; as A Factitious Concrete. See Concrete.

Factor, an Agent for a Merchant beyond Sea, one that buys and ſells Goods, as a Truſtee for other Merchants: In Arithmetick, both the Numbers given to be multiply'd are termed Factors, becauſe they conſtitute, or make the Product.

Factorage, Proviſion, or Commiſſion, the Wages allow'd to a Factor, i. e. ſo much for every Hundred Pound Value of the proceed of Goods bought or ſold by the ſaid Factor, which is more or leſs, according to the diſtance of the Factory, or Place of Trade.

Factory, a Place beyond the Seas, where Merchants Factors reſide for the Conveniency of Trade; or a Company of Factors.

Fac-totum, (Lat. i. e. Do-all) one that manages all Affairs in a Family: Among Printers, a kind of Border, in the middle of which any Letter or Character may be put in, or taken out at Pleaſure.

Facula, a little Torch: Among Modern Aſtronomers, Faculæ, are certain Bright or Shining Parts, which they have ſometimes obſerved upon, or about the Surface of the Sun.

Faculty, the power or ability of performing any Action: Virtue, Talent; Aptneſs, Readineſs: Alſo a Body of Doctors in any Science; as the Faculties of Divinity and Phyſick; alſo a particular Profeſſion or Myſtery.

In a Phyſical Senſe, the Ancients uſually reckon Three ſorts of Faculties, viz. the Natural, Vital, and Animal.

Natural Faculty, is that by which the Body is nouriſh'd and encreas'd, or another engender'd like it, being diſtinguiſh'd into Three Parts, viz. Nutrition, Growth and Generation.

Vital Faculty, is that which preſerves Life in the Body, and performs the Functions of the Pulſe and Reſpiration.

Animal Faculty, is that whereby the Soul executes the Offices of Imagination, Reaſoning, Senſe and Motion.

In a Legal Senſe, Faculty is a Privilege, or ſpecial Power, granted to a Man by Indulgence or Diſpenſation, to do that which by Common Law he cannot do; as to eat Fleſh in Lent, to Marry without Banes, to hold two or more Church-Livings, &c.

The Court of Faculties, a Court under the Archbiſhop of Canterbury, for granting ſuch Diſpenſations; the chief Officer of which is call'd, The Maſter of the Faculties.

To Faddle, to dandle, cheriſh, or make much of a Child.

Fadom. See Fathom.

Fæces, (Lat.) Dregs, Lees or Grounds, the Settlement of any Liquor, Droſs of Metal, &c. Alſo the Excrements of the Body, Ordure, Dung, Filth: 'Tis alſo taken for the groſs Subſtance that ſettles after Fermentation, or remains after Diſtillation.

Fæcula, ſmall Dregs, or flying Lees: Alſo the Duſt that ſinks in the preſſing of ſome Plants; as in Briony, Aron, &c. Alſo a ſort of White Powder made of certain Green, waſhed and prepared Roots, which being beat together with a little Water, and ſtrain'd, will ſink to the bottom of the Veſſel and is to be lightly dried.

Faggot, (Fr.) a Bundle of Sticks, or Wood for Fuel. In times of Popery, it was alſo taken for a Badge, or the Figure of a Faggot embroider'd on the Sleeve of the upper Garment, worn by thoſe who had recanted what was then call'd Hereſy.

In Military Affairs, Faggots are Men hir'd to Muſter, by Officers whoſe Companies are not full, to cheat the State of ſo many Mens Pay.

Faggot of Steel, (in Traffick) the Quantity of 120 Pound-Weight.

To Faggot one, an Expreſſion us'd by Robbers for to bind one Hand and Foot.

Fagopyrum or Fagotriticum, (Lat.) Buck-wheat, or Beech-wheat, a kind of Grain.

Fagus, the Beech tree, the Leaves of which bruiſed, are good to diſſolve hot Swellings.

To Fail, (Fr.) to offend or do amiſs, to miſtake or be out, to diſappoint; to faint, to give over, to break, as a Tradeſman may do.

Failing of Record, (Law Phraſe) is, when in an Action, the Defendant having a Day given to prove a Matter by Record, he fails, or elſe brings in ſuch a one as is no Bar to the Action.

Faint or Faint Action, a feigned Action at Law, viz. ſuch as tho' the Words of the Writ be true, yet for certain Cauſes, there is no Title to recover thereby; whereas in a falſe Action, the Words of the Writ are falſe.

Faint Pleader, a falſe or deceitful manner of Pleading, to the prejudice of a Third Party.

Faint Viſion, a Term in Opticks. See Viſion.

Fair Pleading, a Writ upon the Statute of Marlborough, whereby it is provided, That no Fines ſhall be taken of any Man for not Pleading fairly or to the purpoſe.

A Fair, a ſolemn or greater ſort of Market.

Fairy, a Hobgoblin or Phantome.

Fait, (Fr.) Fact, Act, Deed, or Action: The Word is us'd in our Common Law for a Deed, or Writing Sealed and Delivered, to teſtify and prove the Agreement of the Parties whoſe Deed it is.

Faith, Belief, Credit, Truſt; Promiſe, Word:

Among Divines, one of the Principal Chriſtian Vertues, a real Belief of the Truths of the Goſpel, and of the means of Salvation by Chriſt alone.

Faithful, Truſty, True, Honeſt, Sincere.

The Faithful, (in Divinity) Believers who are endued with Saving Faith, God's Elect or choſen People.

Fake or Fack, (Sea-Term) one Circle or Roll of a Cable or Rope quoiled up round, ſo that when a Cable is veered, or let out by Hand, it is demanded How many Fakes are left; i. e. how much of the Cable is left behind unveered.

Falcated, (Lat. in Aſtron.) the Moon or any other Planet is ſaid To appear Falcated, when the Inlighten'd Part ſhews it ſelf in the ſhape of a Sickle or Reaping-hook.

Falcatura, (in old Records) a Term us'd for one Day's Mowing or cutting Graſs, perform'd by an Inferiour Tenant as a Cuſtomary Service to his Lord.

Falchion, a kind of ſhort Sword, turning up ſomewhat like a Hook.

Falcidian Law, a remarkable Law made by Falcidius a Roman Tribune, that Men ſhould diſpoſe by their laſt Will, but of three parts of their Eſtate, and were bound to leave the other fourth Part to their Lawful Heir.

Falcinellus, (Lat.) the Scith-bill'd Heron; a Bird.

Falco, a Falcon; alſo one whoſe great Toes are crooked and bent inward.

Falcon or Faucon, a large ſort of Hawk: Alſo a piece of Ordinance 2¾ Inches Diameter at the Bore, 7 Foot long, and weighing 750 Pounds: It takes a charge of 2¼ Pounds of Powder, and carries a Ball 2½ Inches Diameter; its Point-blank Shot being 130 Paces.

Falcon Gentle, a Bird ſo call'd from her familiar Courteous Diſpoſition; but ſhe is withal valiant, ſtrong, and better able to endure ſtreſs of Weather than any other Hawk.

Falconer, one that Tames, Manages, and looks after Hawks.

Falconet, a ſmall piece of Cannon, whoſe Diameter at the Bore is 2¼ Inches, Length 6 Foot, and Weight 400 Pounds: Its Charge is 1¼ Pound of Powder; its Ball 2⅛ Inches Diameter, and 1 Pound 5 Ounces Weight; and its Point-blank Shot 90 Paces.

Falda, (in old Records) a Sheep-fold.

Faldage, an Ancient Privilege, which ſeveral Lords reſerv'd to themſelves of ſetting up Folds for Sheep, in any Fields within the Manours, for the better Manuring of them: In ſome Places, it is call'd Fold-courſe, or Free-fold, and in ſome Ancient Charters, Fold-ſoca.

Faldata, a Flock of Sheep, as many as were uſually ſhut up in one Cote, Penn, or Fold.

Faldfey or Faldee, a Duty paid by ſome Tenants, for Liberty to Fold their Sheep upon their own Land

Faldſtool, a kind of Stool plac'd on the South-ſide of the Altar, at which the Kings or Queens of England kneel at their Coronation.

Falding, a kind of courſe Cloth.

Faldiſtory, the Biſhop's Seat or Throne within the Chancel; from the Barbarous Word Falda, ſignifying a Fold, or Place ſhut up.

Falera, a Diſeaſe in Hawks, perceived when their Talons grow White.

Falernum or Falernian Wine, a Rich ſort of Wine Anciently made at Falernus, a Country of Campania in Italy; Muſcadine.

Falaiſia or Falaiſe, (in old Records) a Steep Shore Bank, or Hill by the Sea-ſide; from the French Word Falaiſe, of the ſame Signification.

Fall, (in Aſtrol.) an Eſſential Debility, or Weakneſs of a Planet, when it is oppoſite to the Place of its Exaltation: In Sea-affairs, that part of the Rope of a Tackle which is haled upon, is call'd The Fall: Alſo a Rope made uſe of at the Helm, when the Sea is Rough. See Sea-yoke.

A Ship is ſaid To have a Fall, or ſeveral Falls, when ſome part of the Deck is rais'd higher, or ſome parts have Riſings more than others.

A Ship is ſaid to Fall off, when being under Sail, She does not keep ſo near the Wind as is appointed.

Fallacious, (Lat.) Deceitful, Crafty, Uncertain.

Fallacy, Deceit or Craft: In Logick, a Propoſition fram'd with an Intention to Deceive, and otherwiſe Termed a Sophiſm.

Fallible, that may Fail, or Err.

Falling of Domes. See Domes.

Falling-Evil, a Diſeaſe which ſometimes happens to Horſes, being no other than the Falling-ſickneſs, which proceeds from ill Blood, and Cold thin Phlegm gathered together in the Fore-part of the Head.

Falling-Sickneſs, a Diſeaſe ſo call'd, becauſe the Perſons troubled with it are ſuddenly caſt upon the Ground, and ſuffer a Convulſion of the whole Body.

Fallopian Tubes, (in Anat.) two ſlender Veſſels on each ſide of the Womb, which take Name from their firſt Diſcoverer Fallopius, and whoſe Uſe is to afford a Paſſage to the more ſubtil Part of the Genitura Maſculina, into the Parts call'd Ovaria.

Fallow, being of a Paliſh Red Colour, like that of a Brick half burnt; as A fallow Deer.

Fallow Field or Fallow Ground, Land lay'd up, or that has lain untilled for a conſiderable time.

To Fallow, to prepare Land by Ploughing, long before it is Plough'd for Seed; to do this twice, is to Twifallow, and to do it thrice, is to Trifallow.

Fallow-ſmiter, a Bird; See Oenanthe.

Falmotum or Folchſmotum. See Folkmote.

Falque, a ſmall Sea-Veſſel. See Felucca.

Falſe, (Lat.) Untrue, Lying, Forged, Feigned or Counterfeit; Treacherous or Unfaithful; Miſchievous, or Malicious.

Falſe Action. See Faint Action.

Falſe Attack, an Attack, which in Beſieging a Place, is not carry'd on ſo Vigorouſly as the reſt, being intended only to give a Diverſion to the Beſieged, and Divide the Garriſon.

Falſe Bray, (Fr. in Fortif.) a Space about Two or Three Fathom Broad round the foot of the Rampart on the out-ſide, border'd with a Parapet or Breaſt-work; the deſign of it being to defend the Moat: It is otherwiſe call'd Chemin des Rondes Baſſe Enceinte, and Counter-Breaſt-work.

Falſe-claim, (in Common Law) is where a Man claims more than his due.

Falſe Conception, (in Midwifry) a Lump of Shapeleſs Fleſh, or Matter bred in the Womb.

Falſe Impriſonment, a Treſpaſs by Impriſoning a Man without a Lawful Cauſe; alſo the Name of a Writ brought upon ſuch a Treſpaſs.

Falſe Keel, (in Sea-affairs) a Second Keel ſometimes put under the firſt to make it deeper, when the Ship Rolls too much by reaſon of the ſhallowneſs of her Keel.

Falſe Muſter, (in Military Diſcipline) is when in the Review of a Foot-Company, or Troop of Horſe, ſuch Men paſs as are not actually Liſted among the Soldiers.

Falſe Poſition. See Poſition.

Falſe Quarter, (among Farriers) is a Rift, Chink or Crack commonly on the in-ſide, and ſometimes on the out-ſide of a Horſe's Hoof, which is an unſound Quarter, ſeeming like a piece put in, and not all entire.

Falſe Stem, (in Sea-affairs) is when a Ship's Stem being too flat, another is faſten'd to it, which makes her rid more Way, and bear better Sail.

Falſifiable, that may be Falſified.

Falſification, a Falſifying, Counterfeiting, or Forging.

To Falſifie, to Forge, or Counterfeit, to break one's Word: In a Law-ſenſe, it is ſometimes taken for to prove a thing to be Falſe.

To Falſifie a Thruſt, (in Fencing) is to make a feigned Paſs.

Falſity, Falſehood, Untruth, Flam.

Falſo Judicio, a Writ that lies for falſe Judgment given in the County, Hundred, Court Baron, or others that are no Courts of Records.

Falſo Retorno Brevium, a Writ which lies againſt the Sheriff, for making falſe Returns of Writs.

To Falter or Faulter, to Stammer in one's Speech; to Stumble; to fail in one's Deſign, to commit Miſtakes. Thraſhers are alſo ſaid to Falter, when they Thraſh, or Beat over the Corn again.

Falx, (Lat.) a Hook or Bill, a Scith or Sickle: In Anatomy, one of the Proceſſes made by the doubling of the Membrane, or Skin of the Scull, call'd Dura Mater, which divides the Brain into the Right and Left Parts and alſo ſeparates it from the Cerebellum: It takes Name from its reſembling a Sickle or Reaping-hook.

To Famble, to Faulter, or Stammer in Speech.

Fame, Report, Reputation, Renown.

Fames, (Lat.) Hunger, or a deſire of Food.

Fames Canina, a Canine Appetite, or extreme Hunger. See Cynodes Orexis.

Familia, a Family or Houſehold, a Lineage: The Word is ſometimes taken by our Ancient Writers, for a Hide or Plough'd Land, a Space of Land containing as much as one Plough can Till in a Year.

Familiar, Intimately Acquainted with, Free, Common or Uſual; Plain, Eaſie, or Natural.

A Familiar, or Familiar Spirit, a Spirit, or Devil ſuppos'd to attend upon Sorcerers, Witches, &c. to Execute their Commands.

Familiarity, Familiar Way, or Friendſhip; intimate Correſpondence.

To Familiarize one's ſelf, to make one's ſelf Familiar, to grow Familiar, or Contract a Familiarity with.

Familiſt, one that belongs to the Sect, call'd The Family of Love.

Family, a particular Corporation conſiſting of a Husband, Wife, Children and Servants, a Houſehold; alſo Houſe, Stock, or Parentage.

Family of Love, a ſort of Hereticks, that ſprung up about the Year 1550, and had one Henry Nicholas of Amſterdam for their Ring-leader; their chief Tenet being, That Chriſt is already come in his Glory to Judge, &c.

Famine, a general Scarcity of Corn, Fruits and other Proviſions.

To Famiſh, to Starve, or cauſe to be Starv'd; to Periſh with Hunger.

Famous, Renowned, much Spoken of.

Fan, an Inſtrument to gather Wind for the Winnowing of Corn; alſo a well known piece of Furniture us'd by Women to Cool themſelves, or to keep off the Heat of the Sun, &c.

Fanam, an Indian Coin worth Three Pence of our Engliſh Money.

Fanatical, belonging to Fanaticiſm; as A fanatical Conception.

Fanaticiſm, pretended Inſpiration, the Tenets or Opinions of Fanaticks.

Fanatick, Inſpired, Poſſeſſed, Frantick, Mad.

A Fanatick, one that pretends to Revelations and Inſpirations, a Religious Coxcomb.

The Fanaticks, a Reproachful Title, commonly given to Quakers, Muggletonians, Anabaptiſts and other Sectaries that Diſſent from the Church of England.

Fancy. See Phantaſy and Imagination.

Fane, a Weather-cock, which turns about as the Wind changes, and ſhews from what Quarter it blows.

Fangot, an uncertain Quantity of ſome Wares, as of Grogram and Mohair-yarn, from one Hundred Weight and a half to two Hundred and a half: Of raw Silk, from 1 to 2¼ C.

Fanion, (Ital.) a Banner carry'd by a Servant belonging to each Brigade of Horſe and Foot, at the Head of the Baggage, to keep good Order, and prevent Confuſion in the March.

Fannatio or Menſis Fannationis, (in old Latin Records) the Fawning-time, or Fence-Month in Foreſts, fifteen Days before Midſummer, and as many after.

Fannatum Frumentum, Wheat, or Bread-corn clean'd up, or fann'd with a Wind-fan or Knee-fan.

Fannel, a kind of Scarf-like Ornament, worn about the Left Arm of an Officiating Maſs-Prieſt. See Maniple.

Fantaſm, an Apparition or Ghoſt; as A dreadful Fantaſm.

Fantaſtical or Fantaſtick, Conceited, Humourſome, Whimſical, Odd.

Fantaſtical Colours. See Emphatical Colours.

Fantaſy or Fancy, Imagination, Humour; Crotchet, Maggot, Whim.

Fantome, a Hobgoblin or Spright, a vain Apparition, an idle Conceit.

Faonatio or Feonatio, (in the Foreſt Law) a Fawning, Calving, or bringing forth Young, as Does or Hinds do.

Faquirs, certain Counterfeit Devoto's in the Indies, that voluntarily undergo moſt horrid and incredible Penances.

Faraudman, (in the Practick of Scotland) a Merchant-ſtranger, to whom Juſtice ought to be done with all Expedition.

Farce, (Fr.) a Mock-Comedy, or Droll; alſo a kind of Pudding, a Hodge-podge. In Cookery, a Compound made of ſeveral Meats and Herbs, chopt ſmall and well-ſeaſon'd with Spice, in order to Stuff any Joint of Meat, Fowl, Fiſh, &c.

Farced, Crammed, Stuffed with a Farce.

Farciminalis Tunica, (Lat. in Anat.) a Coat belonging to a Child in the Womb, which receives the Urine from the Bladder, and is ſo call'd, becauſe in many Beaſts 'tis of the ſhape of a Gut-pudding; but in Man and ſome few other Living-creatures it is round. See Allantoides.

Farcin or Farcy, a Loathſome Diſeaſe in Horſes, which begins firſt with hard Knots and Wheals, and at laſt by ſpreading it ſelf, will over-run the Beaſt's whole Body, filling the Skin with Swelling Running Ulcers.

Farcin or Water-Farcin, a Swelling under a Horſe's Belly and Chaps, cauſ'd by his Feeding in Low Watery Grounds, or in Pits and Holes, where the Graſs grows above Water; which is licked up with the Graſs.

Fard, (Fr.) Paint us'd by Women to Beautifie their Faces; alſo a Diſguiſe, Pretence, or Diſſimulation.

Fardel, a Bundle, or Packet.

Fardel of Land, the fourth part of a Yard-land; altho' others will have two Fardels to make a Nook, and four Nooks a Yard-land.

Fardingale, a Whalebone-Circle, which the Ladies formerly wore on their Hips, and upon which they ty'd their Petticoats.

Farding-deal or Farundel of Land, the fourth part of an Acre.

Fare, Diet, Cheer, or Commons, as Good or Slender Fare: Alſo Money paid for paſſing by Water or in a Hackney-Coach; or the People that are ſo convey'd: Alſo a Watch-Tower at Sea; as The Fare of Meſſina. See Phare.

Farfara, the Herb Colts-foot, or Foal-foot.

Farfaria, the Herb Betony.

Farfarum or Farfarus, the White Poplar-tree; or as others ſay, the Herb Colts-foot, which has Leaves like it white underneath.

Farinaceous, belonging to Meal, mealy.

Farleu or Farley, a Duty of Six Pence paid to the Lord of the Manour of Weſt-Slapton in Devonſhire; a Farleu in ſome Weſtern Parts, being diſtinguiſh'd as the beſt Good, from Heriot the beſt Beaſt.

Farm or Ferm, the chief Meſſuage or Houſe, in a Town or Village, whereto belongs a conſiderable Eſtate, let for Term of Life or Years, at Will: The Rent reſerv'd upon ſuch a Leaſe is alſo call'd Farm, and the Tenant or Leſſee, Farmer.

Farrago, (Lat.) a mixture of ſeveral Grains ſown in the ſame Plat of Ground, or afterwards mingled together; Bollimong, Maſlin.

Farreatio, (among the Romans) a joyning in Marriage with the Ceremony of a Cake. See Confarreatio.

Farrier, one whoſe Imployment it is to ſhooe Horſes, and Cure them when they are diſeaſed or lame.

To Farrow, to bring forth Pigs, as a Sow does.

Farſang, a Perſian Word for a League, containing about three Engliſh Miles.

To Farthel (Sea-Term) the ſame as to Furl, i. e. to take up the Sails and bind them cloſe to the Yards.

Farthelling-Lines, ſmall Lines made faſt to all the Top-ſails, Top-gallant Sails, and the Miſſen Yard-arms.

Farthing, a Copper-Coin, the leaſt piece of Engliſh Money, and the fourth part of a Penny: Alſo anciently the fourth part of any Coin; hence Quarter-Rials or pieces of Gold that paſs'd for 2 s. 6 d. being the fourth part of a Rial current at 10 s. were call'd Rial-Farthings.

Farthing of Gold, an ancient Coin ſuppos'd to be in Value the fourth part of a Noble, viz. 1 s. 8 d. in Silver, and in Weight the ſixth part of an Ounce of Gold, i. e. 5 s. in Silver.

Farthing of Land, a certain conſiderable Quantity of Land, different from Farding-deal.

Farundel. See Farding-deal.

Faſces, (Lat.) Axes faſten'd to long Staves, with a Bundle of Rods which were anciently carry'd before the great Roman Magiſtrates; alſo the Office and Dignity of ſuch a Magiſtrate.

Faſcia, a Swath or Swadling-band; a Swath or long Band of a convenient Breadth us'd by Surgeons; a Feſs in Heraldry. In Architecture, one of the Bands that make up the Architrave, being three in Number; alſo a range of Stones, to divide the Stories in a Building.

Faſciæ, (in Aſtron.) certain rows of Spots in the Planet Mars, which look like Swaths or Fillets wound about his Body.

Faſcia lata, or Faſcialis latus, a Muſcle that moves the Leg; the ſame with Membranoſus Muſculus; which See.

Faſcialis, the Name of another Muſcle of the Leg. See Sartorius.

Faſciation, (in Surgery) a binding of Swaths about a Limb, in order to its Cure.

Faſciculus, a little Bundle, or Packet: In the Preſcriptions of Phyſicians, it ſignifies an Armful of Herbs, &c.

Faſcinated, bewitched.

Faſcination, an inchanting, bewitching, or charming.

Faſcines, (Fr.) Faggots, or Bavins: In Fortification, Branches of Trees or ſmall Wood, bound about at the end and middle; which are mixt with Earth to fill up Ditches, make Breaſt-works of Trenches, &c. Some of them are dipt in melted Pitch or Tar, and being ſet on Fire, ſerve to burn the Enemies Lodgments, or other Works.

Faſhion-pieces, (among Ship-wrights) two pieces of Timber, which make up the breadth of the Stern or after end of the Ship, and are the outermoſt Timbers of the Stern, on each ſide thereof excepting aloft, where the Counters are.

Faſhionable, that is according to the Faſhion, modiſh.

Faſhioner, as The Queen's Faſhioner, or Taylor.

Faſhioniſt or Faſhion-monger, one that follows Faſhions, or Modes of Apparel.

Faſhions, a Horſe-Diſeaſe, the ſame as Farcin; which See.

Faſt, (Sea-Term) a Rope to faſten a Ship, or Boat.

Faſti, (Lat.) the Roman Calendar, in which were ſet down all Days of Feaſts, Pleading, Games, Ceremonies and other Publick Buſineſs throughout the Year: Alſo certain Table-Books on which were Written the Names of the Conſuls, and the moſt memorable Things tranſacted in the Common-wealth.

Faſti Dies, were certain Days, during which the Romans were allow'd to ſue at Law, and the Prætor or Judge to pronounce theſe three Words, Do, Dico, Addico. See Leet.

Faſtidious, that loaths or cannot brook, ſqueamiſh or queaſy; alſo coy, ſcornful or diſdainful.

Faſtidium Cibi, a loathing of Meat, a Diſeaſe; the ſame as Anorexia.

Faſtigium, the top or height of any Thing: In Architecture, the ridge of a Houſe, the higheſt pitch of a Building; alſo a kind of Ornamental Member. See Fronton.

Faſtneſs, Firmneſs; alſo a ſtrong Hold or a Place not to be come at for Bogs.

Fat, full of Fat or Greaſe; fertile, fruitful: In Sea-Language the ſame with broad: Thus if the Tucking in, or Tuck of a Ship's Quarter be deep, 'Tis ſaid, She has a fat Quarter.

Fat, Fate, or Vat, a great wooden Veſſel, commonly us'd for the meaſuring of Malt, which contains a Quarter, or Eight Buſhels: Alſo a large Brewing-Veſſel made uſe of by all Brewers to run their Wort in: Alſo a Leaden Pan or Veſſel for the making of Salt at Droitwich in Worceſterſhire.

Fat of Iſing-glaſs, a Quantity from Three Hundred Weight and a quarter, to four Hundred Weight: Of unbound Books, half a Maund or four Bales: Of Wire, from 20 C to 25 C Weight: Of Yarn, from 210 to 221 Bundles.

Fatal, (Lat.) belonging to Fate, deadly, unlucky.

Fatality, a being liable to Fate, the neceſſity of an Event, whereof the Cauſe is unknown, and which the Ancients uſually attributed to Deſtiny.

Fate, a perpetual and unchangable Diſpoſition of Things following one upon another; God's Providence, or Decree; Death either natural, or violent; any Calamity, or Misfortune.

The Fates or Fatal-Siſters. See Parcæ.

Fated, order'd, or appointed by Fate.

Father, he that has begot a Child, either Male or Female: The Biſhops of the Primitive Church are also ſtyl'd Fathers; and the Superiours of Convents or Monaſteries among the Roman-Catholicks: The ſame Title is alſo given to Perſons venerable for their Age, and eſpecially to Archbiſhops and Biſhops of the Church of England; as The Right Reverend Father in God, Thomas, Lord Archbiſhop of Canterbury.

To Father a Thing upon one, to impute it to him.

Fatherlaſher, a kind of Fiſh.

Fathom or Fadom, a Meaſure of Six Foot, generally taken for the ſpace comprehended by the utmoſt ſtretching out of both Arms: By this Meaſure all Cables and other Ropes at Sea are Meaſur'd, and the depth of the Sea is Sounded; as alſo all ſorts of Works in Fortification and eſpecially among the French: The Hebrew Fathom contain'd 7 Foot 3 Inches.

Fathom of Wood, (in Husbandry) a parcel of Wood ſet out, the Sixth part of a Quantity call'd a Coal-fire.

To Fathom, to meaſure by Fathoms, to Sound the depth of Water at Sea; to diſcover one's Intention, or Deſign.

Fatidical, (Lat.) foretelling what is to come.

To Fatigate, to weary or tire, to harraſs.

Fatigue, (Fr.) Toil, Hardſhips; alſo Wearineſs, or being tired.

Faucet, a Tap, a Peg; alſo a kind of Pipe or Flute, us'd in former Times.

Fauchion. See Falchion.

Faucon. See Falcon.

Fauces or Frumen, (Lat.) the upper part of the Gullet. See Pharynx.

Faugh Ground or Ground lying Faugh, is that which has lain a Year, or more unploughed.

Fauconer or Faulkner. See Falconer.

To Faulter. See to Falter.

Faunalia Ruſtica, certain Feaſts kept among the Romans, December 5. in Honour of the God Faunus, during which the Country-People leaving Work, diverted themſelves with Dancing and other Merriments.

Favonius, the Weſtern Wind, which blowing in the Spring, cheriſhes the growth of Plants, &c. and is favourable to Mariners.

Favour, Kindneſs, good Office, or Benefit done to any Perſon: It is alſo oppos'd to Rigour, eſpecially in matters of Juſtice; Approbation, Eſteem, good Will of a Superiour; the Credit or Intereſt an Inferiour has with a great Perſonage: Alſo a ſmall Preſent made by a Lady, a Knot of Ribbons, worn at a Wedding or other Solemnity.

To Favour, to ſhew Favour, to aſſiſt or Countenance; alſo to reſemble, or be like another Perſon.

Favourable, apt to favour, good, gracious, kind, obliging.

Favourite, one that enjoys the good Will of his Prince, of his Superiour, or of his Miſtreſs, a Minion, or Darling.

Fauſen, a ſort of large Eel.

Fauſetum, (in old Latin Records) a Muſical Pipe, or Flute.

Fauſſe-bray, (Fr. in Fortif.) a ſecond Wall or Rampart, below the firſt, which runs round about the Place, for the defence of the Moat. See Falſe-bray.

Fautor, (Lat.) a Favourer, Abetter, or Maintainer.

Favus, an Honey-comb; alſo an Ulcer, mattery Sore, or Scab. See Achor.

Fauxbourg, (Fr.) the Suburbs of a City, the Buildings and Streets without the City-walls.

Fawn, a Buck or Doe of the firſt year; ſo call'd by Hunters.

To Fawn, to bring forth Young, as a Deer does.

To Fawn or Fawn upon, to gloze or glaver, to flatter or ſooth up.

Fay, (old Word) Faith.

Faytours, Vagabonds, idle Fellows or looſe Livers; a Word us'd in the Old Statute, 7 R. 2.

Feabes or Feaberries, a Country-Word for Gooſeberries.

Feal, (Fr.) the Tenants by Knights-Service us'd to ſwear to their Lord, to be Feal and Leal, i. e. Faithful and Loyal.

Fealty, Loyalty, Fidelity or Faithfulneſs. In Common Law, an Oath taken at the admittance of every Tenant, to be true to the Lord of whom he holds his Land.

Fearn. See Fern.

Feaſible, (Fr.) that may be done.

Feat, finical, odd.

A Feat, a notable Action, or Deed; as Famous Feats of War, Feats of Activity, &c.

Feather, as To cut a Feather a Sea-Phraſe us'd when a Ship makes the Water foam before her.

Feather-top-graſs, a kind of Herb.

Feathered Boiling of Sugar, (among Confectioners) is when after ſeveral Boilings, the Artiſt blows thro' the Holes of the Skimmer, or ſhakes the Spatula with a back Stroke, till thick and large Bubbles flying up on high, the Sugar is become Feathered; and when after frequent Tryals, he perceives thoſe Bubbles, to be thicker and in greater Quantity, ſo that they ſtick together, and form as it were a Flying Flake, then the Sugar is ſaid To be greatly feathered.

Feaver, an inordinate motion and too great Heat of the Blood, attended with Burning, Thirſt, and other Symptoms: Feavers may be divided into two ſorts, viz. Continual, or Intermittent.

Continual Feaver, is that whoſe Fit is continu'd for many Days; having its times of Abatement, and of more Fierceneſs; altho' it never intermits, or leaves off.

Intermittent Feaver, commonly call'd an Ague, has certain times of Intermiſſion, or ceaſing; it begins for the moſt part with Cold or Shivering, ends in Heat, and returns exactly at ſet Periods.

Feazing, (Sea-Term) the Ravelling out of a Cable, or any great Rope, at the ends.

Febrifuge, (Lat.) a Medicine that will Cure an Intermitting Feaver, or Ague.

Febris, a Feaver, or Ague.

Febris Ungarica therubis or Lues Pannoniæ, a Peſtilential Feaver, common in Hungary.

February, the Second Month of the Year, ſo call'd by Numa Pompilius King of Rome, a Februis, i. e. from the expiatory Sacrifices that were then offer'd up for the purifying of the People.

Feciales, Heralds at Arms, a College of twenty Perſons of Quality among the ancient Romans, well skilled in State-Affairs; whoſe Office it was to make Peace, or proclaim War, and the chief of this College was call'd Pater Patratus.

Feculency, a being full of Dregs.

Feculent, belonging to Lees or Dregs, full of Dregs, dreggy.

Fecundity, Plenty, or Fruitfulneſs.

Federal, belonging to a Covenant; as A federal Holineſs, i. e. ſuch as is attributed to young Children born of Chriſtian Parents and newly baptiz'd, as being included within the Covenant of Grace.

Fee, Reward, or Wages given to one for the Execution of his Office: Alſo that Conſideration which is given to Lawyers, or Phyſicians, for their Counſel and Advice in their reſpective Profeſſions.

In Common Law, Fee, ſignifies all thoſe Lands which are held by perpetual Right: According to Henry Spelman's Definition, it is a Right which the Vaſſal has in Land or ſome immoveable Things of his Lord's, to uſe the ſame, and take the Profits of it hereditarily, rend'ring to his Lord ſuch feodal Duties and Services as belong to Military Tenure; the meer Propriety of the Soil always remaining to the Lord.

Fee Abſolute or Fee Simple, is that of which we are poſſeſs'd in thoſe general Words, To Us and Our Heirs for ever.

Fee Conditional or Fee-tail, is that whereof we are poſſeſs'd, To Us and Our Heirs with Limitation, i. e. the Heirs of our Body: And this Fee-tail is either General, when Land is given to a Man and the Heirs of his Body; or Special, where a Man and his Wife are poſſeſs'd of Lands, to them and the Heirs of their Bodies.

Fee Expectant. See Expectant Fee.

Fee-farm, Land held of another in Fee, that is for ever to himſelf and his Heirs, for a certain yearly Rent, more or leſs; as to a Half, Third, or Fourth part of the Value.

Fee Simple. See Fee Abſolute.

Fee-tail. See Fee Conditional.

Feeble, weak Part, blind Side; as, Every Man has his Feeble; alſo the ſmall of a Sword.

To Feign, to pretend, to diſſemble, to make a ſhew of, to counterfeit; to contrive, deviſe, or forge.

Feint, Diſguiſe, falſe Shew; as The Troops made a Feint of paſſing the River, but march'd another Way: Alſo a Term in Fencing, when an Offer is made at one Part, and a real Paſs at another.

Feiſus, (in old Latin Records) a ſmall Bundle, or Arm-ful, as of Herbs, Flowers, &c.

Fel, (Lat.) the Gall, one of the Humours of the Body.

Fel Terræ, the leſſer or common Centaury, ſo call'd becauſe it is very bitter.

Fel Vitri, Sandever, the Droſs or Scum of melted Glaſs.

Felicitated, made happy; as, His Reign was Felicitated by the ſubduing of his Enemies.

Felicity, Happineſs, Bleſſedneſs.

Felis, (Lat.) a Cat, a well known Creature.

Felis Zibethi, the Civet-cat, which breeds the Perfume call'd Civet, in a little Bag about the Groin.

Fell, (old Word) cruel, outragious; alſo the Skin of a Beaſt.

Fell-monger, one that deals chiefly in Sheep-skins, and parts the Wooll from the Pelts, which is either dreſs'd to make Leather for Gloves, or made into Parchment.

Fell-wort, an Herb. See Gentian.

To Fell, to ſtrike, or cut down.

Fellable, that may be felled; as, A fellable Tree.

Fellon, a kind of Wheal, or Bliſter on the Fingers.

Fellows or Felfies of a Wheel, pieces of Wood joyn'd together to make the Circle.

Fellowſhip, Company, Communion, Partnerſhip; the Place of one that is Member of a College in an Univerſity.

Rule of Fellowſhip, (in Arithm.) that Rule by which in Accounts among divers Merchants or others, their ſeveral Stocks together, with the whole Gain or Loſs, being propounded, the Gain or Loſs of each particular Man may be diſcover'd.

Felo de ſe, (Lat. Law-Term) one that commits Felony, by laying violent Hands on himſelf; a Self-murderer.

Felon-wort, an Herb. See Bitter-ſweet.

Felony, (in Common Law) any Offence that is in Degree next to Petty Treaſon, and comprehends divers Particulars, as Murder, Theft, killing of a Man's ſelf, Sodomy, Rape, wilful firing of Houſes, &c. which are alſo puniſh'd with Death, except Petty Larceny.

Felt, Stuff uſed by Sadlers in ſtuffing of Saddles, and by Hatters in making Hats; alſo a Hat made of ſuch Stuff.

Felucca, (Ital.) a ſort of Sea-Veſſel, or Boat.

Feme Covert, (Fr. Law-Term) a married Woman, who is alſo ſaid to be under Covert-Baron.

Feminine, (Lat.) that is of the Female Kind.

Feminine Gender, (in Grammar) a Term proper to thoſe Nouns that are declin'd with the Feminine Article Hæc, which chiefly belongs to the Names of Women or Female Creatures.

Femoreus, a Muſcle of the Leg. See Cruræus.

Femur or Femen, (in Anat.) the Thigh, the Part from the Buttocks to the Knee, ſo call'd becauſe it ſupports or bears up the Body. Among Grammarians, Femen is taken for the hinder or inner Part of the Thigh, and Femur for the other, or the out-ſide.

Fen, a Marſh, or boggy Ground.

Fen-cricket, a kind of Inſect.

Fence, a Hedge, or Incloſure.

Fence-month, the Month wherein Deer begin to fawn, and during which it is unlawful to Hunt in the Foreſt. It begins about June 9th, and continues to July 9th.

To Fend, a Sea-Word for to defend; as, Fending the Boat, i. e. ſaving it from being daſh'd againſt the Rocks, Shore, or Ship's Sides.

Fender, an Iron-device, ſet before a Fire-grate, to keep in the Coals, Cinders, &c.

Fenders, (in Sea-affairs) pieces of old Cables, Ropes, or Wooden Billets, hung over a Ship's Side, to keep other Ships from rubbing againſt her: Boats have the ſame, as alſo little ſhort Staves likewiſe call'd Fenders, which ſerve to keep the Boat from beating and Staving againſt the Ship's Sides.

Fender-bolts, Iron-pins with long and thick Heads ſtuck into the outermoſt Bends or Wales of a Ship, to ſave her Sides from Bruiſes and Hurts.

Feneſtra, (Lat.) a Window: In Anatomy, two Holes in the Barrel of the Ear next the Drum; one call'd Ovalis, and the other Rotunda.

Fennel, a ſweet-ſcented Herb, effectual againſt the Stone, and to provoke Urine; the Root of it is opening, and the Leaves good to clear the Eyes.

Fennel-Apple or Annis-Apple, a ſort of Apple that has a little ſmack of thoſe Herbs from whence its Name is taken, and keeps till February or March.

Fennigreek or Fenugreek, an Herb ſo call'd, becauſe it grows in great abundance in ſeveral Parts of Greece.

Fenny, full of Fens, or Marſhes.

Fenny-ſtones, a Plant ſomewhat of the ſame Quality as Cynoſorchis, or Dog-ſtones.

Feod or Feud, a Law-Term, the ſame as Fee.

Feodal, of, or belonging to a Fee; as Feodal Tenure, i. e. the holding of Lands or Tenements of another, ſo as to owe Service, or pay Rent, or both to a Superiour Lord.

Feodalitas, (in old Latin Records) Fealty, or Homage paid to the Lord by his feodal Tenant.

Feodary, Feudary, or Feudatory, an Officer belonging to the Court of Wards and Liveries, who was to be preſent with the Eſcheator, at the finding of any Office, to ſurvey and value the Land of the Ward, &c. But the ſaid Court and this Officer are now quite taken away.

Feodatory, a Tenant that held his Eſtate by Feodal Service.

Feodum, (Lat.) Land held in Fee of a Superiour Lord. See Demaine.

Feodum Laicum, a Lay-fee, or Land held in Fee of a Lay Lord by common Services in oppoſition to the Eccleſiaſtical holding in Frankalmoine.

Feodum Militis or Militare, a Knight's Fee, which by the uſual Computation is 480 Acres, 24 Acres making a Virgate, 4 Virgates a Hide, and 5 Hides one Knight's Fee.

Feoffee, (Law-Term) he that is infeoffed, or to whom a Feoffment is made.

Feoffment, (in Common Law) the Gift or Grant of any Honours, Caſtles, Manours, Lands, Meſſuages, &c. to another in Fee ſimple, i. e. to him and his Heirs for ever, by the Delivery of Seiſin or Poſſeſſion of the thing given; whether the Gift be made by Deed or Writing, and when it is in Writing 'tis call'd a Deed of Feoffment.

Feoffment in truſt, is the deviſing, or making over of Lands, &c. by Will to Truſtees, for the Payment of Debts, Legacies, &c.

Feoffor, he that infeoffs or makes a Feoffment to another. The Difference between a Feoffor and a Donour is, that the former gives in Fee ſimple, and the other in Fee-tail.

Feorm, (among our Saxon Anceſtours) was a certain portion of Victuals and other Neceſſaries, which the Tenants of Out-lands uſually gave to the Thane or Lord; whence we ſtill retain the Terms Farm and Farmer.

† Feracity, (Lat.) Fruitfulneſs.

Feral, deadly, diſmal, mournful.

Feral Signs, (in Aſtrol.) are Leo, and the laſt part of Sagittarius, ſo call'd, not only upon Account of the repreſenting the Figure of wild Beaſts, but alſo becauſe they have ſome kind of Savage Influence, and give fierce and cruel Diſpoſition to thoſe that are born under them.

The Moon is alſo ſaid To be Feral, when ſhe is ſeparated from one Planet, and applies to no other while ſhe continues in the ſame Sign.

Fercoſt, (Ital.) a kind of Ship, or Boat.

Ferdella Terræ, (in Latin Records) a Fardel, or ten Acres of Land.

Fer-de-moulin, (Fr. in Heraldry) a Bearing, whoſe Figure repreſents the Iron-ink of a Mill.

Ferdfare, (Sax.) a Privilege to be free from going to War.

Ferdinando, a proper Name of Men; of which there were two Emperours of Germany, two Kings of Arragon, five of Caſtile, two of Naples, and one of Portugal.

Ferdwit, (Sax.) an acquitment of a Murderer in the Army; alſo a Mulct or Fine of 120 Shillings anciently impos'd, for not bearing Arms in a Military Expedition.

Fere, (old Word) a Companion.

Feria, (among the Romans) a Holy-day or Reſting day: The Word is alſo us'd in the Language of the Church, for any Day of the Week; as Feria Prima, Sunday, Feria Secunda, Monday, &c.

Feriæ, Holy-days, Days vacant from Labour and Pleading, of which the Romans had two kinds, viz. the Publick Feriæ common to all the People in general, and the Private ones only kept by ſome particular Families.

In our old Records, Feriæ is alſo taken for a Fair, at firſt occaſion'd by the reſort of People to the Dedication-Feaſts of Churches.

Feriæ Conceptivæ, (among the Romans) were Holy-days appointed every Year upon uncertain Days, at the diſcretion of the Pontiffs or High Prieſts.

Feriæ Imperativæ, (i. e. commanded or extraordinary Holy-days) were kept according as the Occaſions of the Common-wealth requir'd; as to give Thanks to the Gods for ſome Signal Favours, to appeaſe their Wrath, &c.

Feriæ Latinæ, were certain Feſtivals celebrated by the Roman People, upon account of a ſolemn League they made with the Latins.

Feriæ Stativæ, were ſet Holy-days mark'd in the Calendar, which always fell out upon the ſame Day.

Ferio, a Word us'd in Logick, when the firſt Propoſition of a Categorical Syllogiſm is an Univerſal Negative, the ſecond a particular Affirmative, and the third a particular Negative; as No fooliſh Authors are to be commended, Some Poets are fooliſh Authors, Therefore ſome Poets are not to be commended.

Feriſon, another Logical Term, when the Propoſitions are anſwerable to Ferio in the firſt Figure; as, No Severity pleaſes, Some Severity is good, Therefore ſomething which is good does not pleaſe.

Ferity, (Lat.) Savageneſs, Brutiſhneſs, Wildneſs, Fierceneſs, Cruelty.

Ferling, (in old Records) the fourth part of a Penny; alſo the Quarter of a Ward in a Borough.

Ferlingata, Ferlingus, or Ferdlingus Terræ, the fourth part of a Yard-land.

Ferm or Farm, a Houſe, or Land, or both taken by Indenture of Leaſe or Leaſe-Parole. See Farm.

Ferment, (Lat.) Leaven or Yeſt, that which riſes or puffs up by Leavening.

To Ferment, to riſe or puff up after ſuch a manner; to work as Beer, Cider, or other Liquors do, ſo as to clear it ſelf from Dregs or Impurities.

Fermentation, a Fermenting or ſwelling with Ferment, an eaſy ſlow motion of the inward Parts of a Mixt Body; as when Leaven or Yeſt ferments, makes thin and lightens Bread or Wort, &c. In the Art of Phyſick, it is taken for any gentle Motion of the Parts of the Blood or Juices in the Body occaſion'd by ſomething which helps to clarify, exalt, and make them more ſubtil; ſo as to reduce them to a healthful and natural State.

Among Chymiſts, Fermentation is a kind of Ebullition or bubbling up, rais'd by the Spirits that endeavour to get out of a Mixt Body; ſo that meeting with groſs earthy Parts, which oppoſe their Paſſage, they ſwell and make thin the Liquor until they find their way out.

Fermiſona, (in ancient Deeds) the Winter-ſeaſon of Deer.

Fern or Fearn, a wild Plant very common in dry and barren Places, and diſtinguiſh'd into Male and Female.

Fernigo, (in old Latin Records) a Heath, or waſte Place where Fern grows.

† Ferocity, Fierceneſs, Cruelneſs, Curſtneſs, Surlineſs.

Ferrel or Ferrule, a Piece of Iron or Braſs, to bind the end of a Cane or Walking-ſtick.

Ferret, a little Creature like a Weeſel, made uſe of for the catching of Rabbets.

Ferret or Ferret-Ribbon, a ſort of Ribbon made of half Thread, and half Silk.

To Ferret, to ſearch out narrowly; to vex, or teaz.

Ferriage, the ferrying or paſſage over a River, or the hire of a Ferry-boat.

Ferruginous, that is like ruſt of Iron, or of an Iron-colour; that has in it ſomewhat of the Nature or Quality of Iron, as thoſe Waters have which are otherwiſe call'd Chalybeate, ſuch as thoſe of Tunbridge-Wells, &c.

Ferrum, (Lat.) Iron, a Metal.

Ferrumen, Steel, or Iron harden'd; Solder.

Ferrumination, a ſoldering, a faſtening together properly in Iron: Among Chymiſts, a ſoldering together of Metals.

Ferrure, the ſhooing of Horſes.

Ferry, the Place from whence People, Horſes, Coaches, &c. are convey'd in a Boat over a River.

Fers, the Queen at Cheſs-play.

Ferſcher, (Sax.) Fare-ſcot, the Ferriage or cuſtomary Payment, for ferrying over, or croſſing a River.

Fertile, (Lat.) fruitful, plentiful.

Fertility or Fertileneſs, Fruitfulneſs, Plentifulneſs.

To Fertilize, to make fertile, fruitful, or plentiful.

Fervency or Fervour, Earneſtneſs, Heat, or great Zeal.

Fervent or Fervid, hot, full of fervour, vehement or eager, zealous.

Ferula, (Lat.) an Herb growing in Africa, call'd Fennel-Giant.

Ferula or Ferular, a Palmer, or flat Stick with which Boys are chaſtis'd at School.

Ferulæ, (in Surgery) Splents or light Chips made of Firr, Paper glu'd together, or Leather, &c. and us'd about the binding up of looſen'd or disjoynted Bones, after they are ſet again.

Fervour. See Fervency.

Fervour of the Matrix, a Diſtemper when the whole Subſtance of the Womb is extreme hot; accompany'd with a Pain and heavineſs of the Loins, Loathing, ſuppreſſion of Urine, &c. the Patient being continually deſirous of Copulation, and at the ſame time afraid of it, by reaſon of Pain.

Ferule. See Ferrel.

Feſſe, (in Heraldry) an Ordinary repreſenting a broad Belt, or Girdle of Honour, anciently worn by Knights at Arms: It takes up the middle of the Eſcutcheon, and contains in Breadth one third Part of it.

Feſſe-point, the very middle Point of an Eſcutcheon.

To Feſter, to putrefy or wrankle, as a Sore ſometimes does.

† Feſtination, a haſtening, or making Speed.

Feſting-men, (among our Saxon Anceſtours) ſuch Perſons as were Pledges for others, and bound for their Appearance or Forth-coming who ſhould tranſgreſs the Laws.

Feſting-Penny, a Word us'd in ſome Northern Parts of England, for Earneſt given to Servants, when hir'd or retain'd, from the Saxon, Faſtnian to faſten or confirm.

Feſtino, a Term made uſe of by Logicians, when the firſt Propoſition of a Syllogiſm is an Univerſal Negative, the ſecond a particular Negative, and the third a particular Affirmative; as, No Wickedneſs is excuſable, Some Faults are not Wickedneſs, Therefore ſome Faults are excuſable.

Feſtival, a Solemnity or Day of rejoycing, kept in honour of ſome extraordinary Occaſion.

Feſtivity, Mirth, Rejoycing, Pleaſantneſs; alſo a Feſtival Time.

Feſtivous, jocund, jovial, merry.

Feſtoon, (Fr.) a Garland or Border of Fruits and Flowers, eſpecially in engraven or imboſſed Works; which ſerves for an Ornament in Architecture, &c.

Feſtucago, (Lat.) Wild Oats.

Feſtucous, (among Herbaliſts) having a tender Branch, or Sprig.

Fetch or Fitch, a Pulſe of which there are ſeveral ſorts.

Fetid, ſmelling ill, or ſtinking.

Fetiſe, (old Word) handſome, ſpruce.

Fetlock, a Horſe's Ancle-joynt.

Fetters, Irons to bind the Feet of Malefactors, or the Legs of Cattel; Figuratively taken for Bondage, or Slavery.

To Fettle to, to go about, or enter upon a Buſineſs.

Feud, (Geom.) deadly Hatred, or Enmity. In the North Parts of England and Scotland, it is taken for a Combination of Kindred, to revenge the Death of any of their Family, on the Murderer and all his Race.

Feud-bote, a Recompence for engaging in a Feud or Faction, and the Dammages that happen thereupon.

Feudal. See Feodal.

Feudary or Feudatary. See Feedary.

Feude, a Law Term for a Tenure or manner of holding Lands: The Civilians define it to be a Grant of Lands, Honours, or Fees, made to a Man upon Condition, That he and his Heirs, do acknowledge the Giver and his Heirs, to be their Lord and Soveraign, and ſhall do ſuch Service for the ſaid Tenure, to him and his, as is covenanted between them, or is proper to the Nature of a Feude.

Feudes, a Volume of the Civil Law, ſo call'd, becauſe it contains the Cuſtoms and Service that the Subject or Vaſſal does to his Soveraign Prince or Lord, for the Lands or Fees that he holds of him.

Feuillantins, (Fr. in Cookery) ſmall Tarts of the breadth of the Palm of one's Hand filled with Sweat-meats.

Feuille-mort. See Fillemot.

Feverfew, an Herb of a cleanſing and opening Quality, counted excellent for all Diſeaſes of the Mother, and good againſt Feavers.

Feuterer. See Veltrarius.

Few or Few-ferm, a kind of Tenure in Scotland, whereby Lands are held of the King, Church, Barons, or others; paying a certain Duty call'd Feuda firma.

Fewel or Fuel, any thing that is fit to burn, or to make a Fire.

Fewmets or Fewmiſhing, (among Hunters) the Dung of a Deer.

Fez, one of the moſt conſiderable Kingdoms of that Part of Africa call'd Barbary, the King of which is alſo Soveraign of Morocco.

F-Fa-ut, the ſeventh or laſt Note of the three Septenaries of the Scale of Muſick, call'd the Gam-ut; being alſo the Cliff Note of the Baſs, or loweſt Part.

Fiants or Fuants, (Fr.) the Dung of a Badger or Fox, and of all Vermine.

Fibers or Fibres, the Threads or Hair-like Strings of Muſcles, Veins, Plants, Roots, &c.

Fibra, (Lat.) a Fiber.

Fibra Auris, the lower Part of the Ear.

Fibrillæ, the ſmalleſt Threads of which Fibers conſiſt.

Fibrous, full of Fibers.

Fibula, (Lat.) a Hook, Buckle, or Claſp: In Architecture, a Nail, Peg, Key, or Brace: Alſo a particular way of ſowing up the Lips of a Wound, in uſe among the Ancients: Alſo the leſſer Bone of the Shank, which ſeems to joyn the Muſcles of the Leg like a Button or Claſp.

Ficaria, the Fig-tree; alſo the Herb Fig-wort, or Pile-wort.

Ficedula, a Bird like a Nightingale, feeding on Figs and Grapes.

Fichant Flank. See Flank.

Fichant Line of Defence. See Line of Defence Fichant.

Fickle, light, inconſtant, wavering.

Fictale. See Filkale.

Fictile, (Lat.) Earthen, or made of Earth.

Fiction, an Invention or Device, a Lie or feigned Story, a Cog or Cheat.

Fictitious, feigned, fabulous, counterfeit.

Ficus, (Lat.) a Fig, or a Fig-tree: Alſo certain outward Swellings in the Fundament and other Parts which resemble Figs, as in the Hæmorrhoids or Piles: They are alſo ſometimes call'd Mariſcæ and Sycoſes.

Fid or Fidd, (in Gunnery) a little Dab [illegible] ſhap'd like a Nail, put in at the Touch-hole of a Gun, and cover'd with thin Lead, to keep the Powder dry in the Piece.

In Sea-Affairs, a Fid is an Iron or wooden Pin made tapering and ſharp at the end, to open the Strands of the Ropes, when they are to be ſplic'd or faſten'd together: The Pin in the Heel of the Top-maſt, which bears it upon the Cheſs-trees, is alſo call'd a Fid.

Fid-hammer, a Tool being a Fid at one end, and a Hammer at the other, with a Head and Claw, to drive in, or draw out a Nail.

Fidelity, (Lat.) Faithfulneſs, Loyalty, Integrity, Honeſty.

Fidejuſſor, (in the Civil Law) one that is a Pledge or Surety for another, eſpecially in a Money-matter.

To Fidge about, to be continually moving up and down, and never ſit ſtill.

Fidicula, a little Lute, a Gittern, a Fiddle: Alſo a Northern Conſtellation or Company of Stars, otherwiſe call'd Lyra.

Fiduciary, a Truſtee, one that is intruſted by another.

Fief, (Fr.) Fee or Feodal Tenure: Lands and Tenements, which the Vaſſal holds of his Lord by Fealty and Hommage, and for which he does Service or pays Rent; alſo a Manour or Noble Inheritance.

Field, a piece of Ground for Tillage, a Meadow: In Heraldry, the whole Surface of an Eſcutcheon or Shield, ſuppoſed to be over-ſpread with ſome Metal, Furr or Colour, and containing the Charge, if there be any.

Field-fare, a ſort of Bird.

Field-Officers. See Officers.

Field-piece, a Cannon proper to be us'd in the Field of Battel.

Fiend, a Fury, or Evil Spirit.

Fierabras, (Fr. i. e. fierce at Arms) a Hector, or Bully.

Fieri facias, a Judicial Writ, which lies for one that has recover'd in an Action of Debt or Dammages, commanding the Sheriff to levy the Debt or Dammages of his Goods of whom the Recovery was had.

Fiery Meteors. See Meteors.

Fiery Triplicity, (in Aſtrol.) thoſe Signs of the Zodiack that ſurpaſs the reſt in fiery Qualities, viz. Heat and Dryneſs; as Leo, Aries and Sagittarius.

Fife, a ſort of Wind-Muſick, ſometimes us'd in a Company of Foot-Soldiers.

[illegible], a certain old Meaſure of Corn.

Fifteenth, a Tax which formerly us'd to be rais'd by the Parliament, and laid upon every City or Borough thoroughout the whole Realm; ſo call'd becauſe it amounted to the Fifteenth part of what the City or Town was valu'd at, or to a Fifteenth Part of every Man's Goods and Perſonal Eſtate.

Fifth, a Term in Muſick. See Diapente.

Fig, a well known Fruit: Alſo a Diſeaſe in Horſes, being a kind of Wart ariſing in the Fruſh or Frog of the Foot, and ſometimes over the whole Body.

Fig-pecker, a ſort of Bird that eats Figs.

Fig-wort, an Herb.

Figary, a Freak, or Frolick.

Figentia, (Lat. in Chymistry) ſuch Things as ſerve to fix Volatile Subſtances, and keep them from flying away.

Fights, (in Sea-Affairs) the Waſte-cloths that hang round about the Ship in a Fight, to hinder the Men from being ſeen by the Enemy: Alſo any Place wherein Men may cover themſelves, and yet uſe their Fire-arms.

Cloſe Fights, thoſe Bulk-heads before or in the hinder part of the Ship, which are put up for Men to ſtand ſecure behind, and Fire on the Enemy in caſe of Boarding.

Fightwite, (Sax.) a Mulct or Fine of Money anciently impos'd for making a Quarrel to the diſturbance of the Peace.

Figment, a Fiction, or feigned Tale.

Figural or Figurate Numbers, ſuch Numbers as do or may repreſent ſome Geometrical Figure, and are always conſider'd in relation thereto; being either Linear, Superficial, or Solid; which See in their proper Places.

Figurate Deſcant. See Deſcant.

Figuration. See Ethopœia.

Figurative, belonging to, or ſpoken by a Figure.

Figurative Speeches, are particular ways of expreſſing our ſelves, wherein we make uſe of an improper Word, which Cuſtom has apply'd to another Subject.

Figure, Shape, Faſhion; Repreſentation, Appearance.

Figures in Diſcourſe, are extraordinary ways of ſpeaking, very different from thoſe that are ordinary and natural, and they are either Grammatical, or Rhetorical.

Grammatical Figures are us'd in Conſtruction, when we depart from the common and ordinary Rules, as by omitting ſome Word, and leaving it to thoſe to whom we ſpeak, to ſupply it, &c.

Rhetorical Figures, ſerve either to expreſs the Commotions or violent Tranſports of the Mind in our Paſſions or eager Diſcourſes; or elſe to adorn our Speech, or to move the Audience more pathetically.

In Logick, Figure, is a due diſpoſing of the middle Term of a Syllogiſm, with the two Extremes, and according to this triple Diſpoſition a Figure is threefold: The firſt Figure is, when the middle Term is the Subject of the Major, and the Predicate of the Minor Propoſition; the ſecond is, when it is the Predicate in both Premiſes; the third is, when it is the Subject in both.

In Phyſicks or Natural Philoſophy, Figure is the Surface or bounding Extremes of any Natural Body: In Arithmetick, Figures are the Nine Digits or Numeral Characters; as 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, and 9; to which is added the Cipher 0.

In Geometry, Figure is a Space circumſcribed or limited by one or more Extremities or utmoſt Bounds, and thoſe Figures are either Rectilineal, Curvilineal, or Mixt.

Rectilineal Figures, are thoſe that have their Extremities all Right-lines; as Squares, Triangles, Polygons, &c.

Curvilineal Figures, are ſuch as have their Extremities crooked; as Circles, Ovals, &c.

Mixt Figures, thoſe that are bounded partly by Right-lines and partly by crooked ones; as a Semicircle, Segment of a Circle, &c.

Plain Figures or Plain Surfaces, are ſuch as are bounded only by Right-lines.

Regular Figures. See Regular.

In Aſtrology, Figure, is taken for a Scheme or Draught of the face of Heaven at ſome ſet Time.

To Figure, to repreſent, to Flower or ſet Figures upon.

Figuretto, a kind of Stuff ſo call'd from the Flowers, or other Figures which are Wrought upon it.

Filaceous, (Lat.) full of Filaments, small Threads or Strings about the Roots of Plants.

Filacer, an Officer in the Common-Pleas Court, so call'd because he files those Writs on which he makes Process: There are Fourteen of these Officers in their ſeveral Diviſions or Counties, and their Buſineſs is to make out all Original Proceſſes, Real, Perſonal and Mixt, &c.

Filacium, (Latin Law-Term) a File, a Thread or Wire on which Writs and other Deeds in Courts and Offices are filed up, for the more ſafe keeping of them: Whence Cuſtodes Filaciorum, File-keepers in our Courts of Juſtice are ſtyl'd Filacers.

Filago, a ſort of Cud-wort or Cotton-Weed, an Herb.

Filaments, little thin ſlender Rags like Threads, which ſometimes appear in Urine. The ſmall Fibers or Threads, which make up the texture of the Muſcles or other Parts of any Living Creature or Plant, are alſo ſometimes call'd by this Name.

Filanders, a ſort of Worms ſmall as a Thread, and about an Inch long, that lie wrapt up in a thin Skin in the Reins of a Hawk; alſo Nets, or Gins for wild Beaſts.

Filberds, the beſt ſort of ſmall Nuts.

To Filch, to ſteal cunningly.

File, a Tool to poliſh Iron, &c. a Thread or Wire upon which looſe Papers are filed up together. In Heraldry, the ſame as Label, a ſtraight Line from which iſſue ſeveral Points. 'Tis uſually the mark of Diſtinction which the Elder Brother bears in his Coat during his Father's Life; altho' it be ſometimes born as a particular Charge in a Coat-Armour.

In Military Diſcipline, File is the ſtraight Line or Row, made by Soldiers ſtanding one behind or below another; which is the depth of the Battallion or Squadron.

To Double the Files, is to put two Files into one, which makes the Ranks look thin.

To File off, to fall off from Marching in a large Front, and March in Length by Files.

File-Leaders, the Men that compoſe the Front, or firſt Rank of a Battalion, being the firſt of every File.

Filet, (Fr.) a ſmall Thread, or String: In Architecture a little ſquare ſtraight Member, which appears in the Ornaments and Mouldings, and is otherwiſe call'd Liſtel.

In Cookery, Filets, are any ſort of Butchers-meat, Fowl, or Fiſh cut into Slices and dreſs'd in a Ragoo.

Filets mignons, large Slices of Beef, Veal, or Mutton, ſpread over with a Rich Farce, well roll'd up, and cover'd with Bards or thin Slices of Bacon; in order to be bak'd in a Stew-pan between two Fires, and ſerv'd up with a good Cullis or Ragoo.

Filial, (Lat.) belonging to a Son.

Filiation, Sonſhip, or Deſcent from Father to Son.

Filiolus, properly a little Son: In our Writers, it is ſometimes taken for a Grand-ſon, and ſometimes for a Nephew.

Filipendula, Drop-wort or Red Saxifrage, an Herb, the Root of which in a Decoction provokes Urine and expels Gravel.

Filius ante Patrem, (i. e. the Son before the Father) an Expreſſion apply'd by Herbaliſts, a ſort of Looſe-ſtrife or Saffron-Pulſatilla and other Plants, whoſe Flowers come out before the Leaves.

Filix, Fern or Brake, the Root of which is good for Bruiſes, and of ſingular Virtue in curing the Rickets.

Filkdale or Fictale, (Sax.) a kind of Entertainment made by Bailiffs, for thoſe of their Hundreds, for their Gain: It is alſo call'd Sothale or Scotale.

Fillets or Fillettings, (Fr.) [illegible] Leg.

Fills or Filleyn. See Tiller.

Fillet, a Hair-lace, a Band of Cloth; also a Book-binder's Ornament on the Cover of a Book, or a kind of Veal commonly ſo call'd.

In Heraldry, Fillet is a fourth part of the Ordinary call'd a Chief, and is plac'd in the chief Point of the Eſcutcheon: In Architecture, 'tis an Ornament which differs from the Aſtragal only in this reſpect, that it is flatter.

Filly-foal, a Mare-colt.

Film, a thin Skin within the Body, dividing ſeveral parts of the Fleſh, or any near Member one from another: In Plants, that thin woody Skin which ſeparates the Seed in the Pods, and keeps them a-part.

Filoſella, a kind of courſe Silk, Ferret-ſilk, or Flurt-ſilk.

To Filter or Filtrate, to ſtrain thro' a Bag, Felt, brown Paper, &c.

Filtration, the Act of filtrating, or ſtraining: Among Chymiſts, the paſſing a Liquor through a Woollen Cloth, or through a Coffin of brown Paper; in order to purify and free it from Dregs.

Filtrum or Feltrum, (Lat.) a Strainer, through which Liquors are paſs'd to clarify; a Wine-ſack that draws Wine from the Lees: In our old Records, a covering for the Head made of courſe Wool cotton'd together; a Felt-hat.

Filum Aquæ, (in Ancient Deeds) a Stream, or courſe of Water.

Fimaſhing, (among Hunters) the dunging of any ſort of wild Beaſts.

Fimbria, (Lat.) the Skirt or Hem of a Garment; a Fringe, Welt, or Guard; the Border, End, Edge, or Liſt.

Fimbriated, (in Heraldry) a Term us'd when an Ordinary is border'd or edg'd round with a different Colour; as He bears Or, a Croſs Patee fimbriated Gules.

Among Herbaliſts, the Leaves of Plants are ſaid To be fimbriated, when they are jagged and have as it were a kind of Fringe about them.

To Fin a Chevin, to carve, or cut up a Chevin or Chub-fiſh.

Finable, liable to be fined, or amerced.

Final, that ends or is laſt, that concludes or makes an end.

Final Cauſe (in Logick) that Cauſe for which a Thing is what it is. In Divinity, Final Cauſes are ſuch great, wiſe and good Ends as Almighty God the Author of Nature, had in creating and proportioning, in fitting and diſpoſing, in continuing and preſerving all the ſeveral Parts of the Univerſe.

Finance, (Fr.) a Fine, a certain Summ of Money paid to the French King, for the enjoyment of ſome Privilege or other.

Finances, the Treaſure, or Revenues of that Prince.

Financier or Financer, an Officer in the Finance, a Receiver of the King's Revenues.

Finery, the ſecond Forge of an Iron-mill, where the Pigs are wrought into groſs Iron, and prepar'd for the Chafery.

To Find the Ship's Trim, (in Sea-Language) to diſcover how ſhe will Sail beſt.

Finours, (in old Statutes) the ſame Officers that we now call Searchers, employ'd about the diſcovery of Goods carry'd out or brought in, without paying Cuſtom.

Fine, handſome, neat, ſpruce; excellent, pure.

A Fine, a Penalty or Amends made in Money, for an Offence againſt the Queen and her Laws, or againſt the Lord of a Manour: Alſo a Summ of Money paid for entrance upon Lands or Tenements let by Leaſe: Alſo a formal Conveyance of Lands, &c. by acknowledging a perfect Agreement before a Judge, in Court, [illegible] to cut off Intails, and to make them over to others with more certainty.

Fines for Alienation, were certain Fines paid to the King, by his Tenants in Chief, for Licence to alienate or make over their Lands to others.

To Fine, to ſet a Fine or Penalty upon, or to pay a Fine; alſo to purge, or clear from Dregs.

Fine Force, (Fr. Law-Term) an abſolute unavoidable Neceſſity or Conſtraint; as when a Man is forc'd to do, what he can no way avoid, he is ſaid To do it de Fine Force, i. e. upon pure Force.

Fine adnullando levato de Tenemento quod fuit de antiquo Dominico, a Writ to the Juſtices, for the diſannulling or making void a Fine levy'd of Lands holden in ancient Demeſne to the prejudice of the Lord.

Fine capiendo pro Terris, &c. a Writ lying for one that upon conviction by a Jury, having his Lands and Goods ſeiz'd for the Queen's Uſe, and his Body impriſon'd, obtains Favour for a Summ of Money, &c. to be ſet at Liberty, and recover his Eſtate.

Fine levando de Tenementis tentis de Rege in Capite; a Writ directed to the Juſtices of the Common-Pleas, and impowering them to admit of a Fine for Sale of Lands holden in Capite.

Fine non capiendo pro pulchre placitando, a Writ to forbid Officers of Courts, to take Fines for fair Pleading.

Fine pro rediſſeiſina capienda, &c. a Writ that lies for the Releaſe of one laid in Priſon for a Rediſſeiſin, upon a reaſonable Fine.

Finers. See Finours.

Finery, a being fine or ſpruce, Gallantry: alſo a ſort of Forge in the Iron-works.

Finew, Mouldineſs, or Hoarineſs.

Finewed, grown mouldy.

Finger-fern, a ſort of Plant.

Fingers-breadth, a Meaſure of two Barley-corns in Length, and four laid Side to Side.

Finical, ſpruce, neat; affected, or conceited.

Finire, (Lat.) to finiſh, or end: In our old Records, to Fine, or pay a Fine upon Compoſition.

To Finiſh, to end or make an end, to put the laſt Hand to.

Finite, that has an end, that has appointed Limits or Bounds ſet to its Power, Extent, or Continuance.

Finitor, the ſame as the Horizon, or great Circle, which ſeparates the Upper Hemiſphere, or half of the Globe from the Lower; So call'd becauſe it finiſhes or bounds our Sight, View, or Proſpect.

Finours of Gold or Silver, are thoſe that purify and ſeparate thoſe Metals from others that are courſer, by Fire and Water: They are alſo call'd Parters, and Departers in ſome Statutes.

Fir, the Fir-tree; alſo Deal, or the Wood of that Tree.

Firdfare. See Fyrdfare.

Firdwite, (Sax.) a Fine or Penalty, anciently impos'd on Military Tenants, for their Default in not appearing in Arms.

[illegible] or [illegible], Military Men, ſuch as are worthy to bear Arms, to be muſter'd or Inroll'd to appear upon any Occaſion, or Expedition.

Fire, one of the four Elements. See [illegible]

Actual and Potential Fire. See [illegible] alſo [illegible]

Running Fire, (in the Art of War) is when Men drawn up for that purpoſe, Fire one after another, ſo that it runs the whole length of the Line, or round a Town, &c. which is uſ'd upon Occaſions of Publick Rejoycings.

To Fire, to ſet on fire, to diſcharge Fire-arms.

Fire-bare, (Sax.) a ſort of Beacon which us'd to be ſet on the higheſt Hills in every Hundred, throughout the Kingdom of England.

Fire-boot or Firebote, an allowance of Wood, to maintain competent Firing for the uſe of the Tenant.

Fire-croſs, two Fire-brands faſten'd Croſs-ways on the Top of a Spear; a Signal formerly us'd in Scotland, to give notice of a ſudden Invaſion.

Fire-drake, a fiery Meteor ſometimes flying in the Night like a Dragon; alſo a kind of Artificial Fire-work.

Fire-maſter, a Perſon that makes the Fuzes for Bombs, Granados, and other Fire-works.

Fire-Ordeal. See Ordeal.

Firkin, a ſort of Meaſure, the fourth part of a Barrel, containing 8 Gallons of Ale, Soap, or Herrings; 9 Gallons of Beer, and 10½ Gallons of Salmon, or Eels.

Firkin-man, one that trades with a Brewer for ſmall Beer, to furniſh his own Cuſtomers.

Firma, (in Doomſday-Record) a Cuſtom or Tribute anciently given towards the Entertainment of the King of England for one Night. In the Practick of Scotland, it is a Duty, which the Tenant pays to his Land-lord: Alſo a Firm, Farm, or Rent uſually paid for Lands or Tenements let by Leaſe.

Firmament, (in Aſtron.) the eighth Orb, according to the Ptolemaick Syſtem, or the Heaven of the fixed Stars: But more properly, 'tis that Space which is ſtretch'd out, or arched over us above in the Heavens.

Firmaratio, (in old Latin Records) farming, or holding to Farm, the Firmary's or Farmer's Right to the Lands and Tenements let to him ad Firmam.

Firmatio, (in the Foreſt-Law) the Seaſon for Does; as oppoſed to Buck-ſeaſon.

Firmed or full Firmed, (in Falconry) well fledged, or well cover'd with Feathers.

Firmneſs, a being firm, ſolid or hard; Steddineſs, Conſtancy, Reſolution: In a Philoſophical Senſe, it is deſcrib'd by Mr. Boyle, to conſiſt chiefly in this, That the Particles compoſing ſuch Bodies as we call Firm or Solid, are pretty groſs, and are either ſo much at reſt, or ſo intangled one with another, that there is a mutual Cohæſion or ſticking together of their Parts; and that they cannot flow from, ſlide over, or ſpread themſelves every way from one another, as the Parts of fluid Bodies can.

Firſt Fruits, the Profits of every Spiritual Living for one Year, in ancient Times given to the Pope, throughout all Chriſtendom; but by Stat. 26. H. 8. tranſlated to the King here in England.

Firſt Mover. See Primum Mobile.

Firth, a Bug-bear, or frightful Apparition, as it is expounded in Somner's Gloſſary; perhaps from the old Saxon Word Fyrhto, i. e. Terrour or Aſtoniſhment.

Fiſcal, (Lat.) belonging to Fiſcus, i. e. the Publick Treaſure, Revenue, or Exchequer of a Prince or State.

Fiſgig. See Fiz-gig.

Fiſh, (in Sea-Affairs) is any piece of Timber or Plank made faſt to the Maſts or Yards, to ſuccour and ſtrengthen them when they begin to fail, or in danger of breaking.

Fiſh, is alſo a Tackle hung at the end of a piece of Timber call'd the Davit, by the Block or Pulley, wherein there is a Runner, with a Hook termed the Fish-hook; to hitch or lay hold on the Flook of the Anchor, by which means it is hoised up to the Ship's Bow or Chain-wale.

Fish-block, a peculiar Block or Pully, which belongs to the Fish, and thence takes its Name.

Fishgarth, a Wear, or Dam in a River, for the taking of Fish, especially in the Rivers Ouse and Humber.

Fishery, the Art or Trade of Fishing.

Fishing of the Mast, (Sea-Phrase) the Nailing of a Fish, or piece of Timber to the Mast with Spikes, and woulding, or wrapping it hard round about with Ropes.

To Fisk up and down, to go hastily and madly from one Place to another.

Fissile Saxum, (Lat.) Slate, or Tile-stone.

Fissure, a Cleft, or Opening; a Slit, Rift, or Chop: In Surgery, a kind of Fracture, or breaking of a Bone, that happens in the length of it.

Fissure, is also a Term us'd by some Naturalists, to signify certain Interruptions, that serve to distinguish the several Strata or Layers, of which the Body of our Terrestrial Globe is compos'd: And these are intersected or cut through again by others, which by reason of their Situation, are call'd Perpendicular Fissures.

Fisticum, (Lat.) the Fistick-nut. See Pistacia.

Fistula, a Pipe to convey Water; a Pipe or Flute, a Musical Instrument: Also a sort of deep Ulcer, narrow, callous or hard, like Brawn, and of difficult Cure.

Fistula Lacrymalis, is when the Hole in the Bone of the Nose, call'd Punctum Lacrymale, is grown brawny and hard from an Ulcer of the Caruncula, or ſmall fleſhy Kernels at the greater Corners of the Eyes; by which means there happens a continual trickling down of Tears.

Fistula Pulmonis, the ſame as Aſperia Arteria, or the Wind-pipe.

Fistula Sacra, that part of the Back-bone, which has Holes in it.

Fistula Urinaria, the Urinary Paſſage in a Man's Yard.

Fistular, Fistulary, or Fistulous, belonging to a Fiſtula.

Fistular Flowers, (among Herbaliſts) thoſe that are compounded of many long, hollow, ſmall Flowers like Pipes, all divided into large Jaggs at the end.

Fitch or Fitchow, a Pole-cat; alſo the Skin or Furr of it.

Fitch or Vetch, a ſort of Pulſe.

Fitchee, a Term in Heraldry, when the lower part of a Croſs is ſharpen'd into a Point; as, Azure a Croſs potence fitchee.

Fitwite or Fightwite, (Sax.) a Fine laid upon one for Fighting, or breaking the Peace.

Fitters, as To cut into Fitters, i. e. into little Pieces.

Five-finger, a Fiſh reſembling a Spur-rowel, which gets into Oiſters when they open, and ſucks them out.

Five-foot or Star-fish, a ſort of Sea-Inſect, ſhap'd like a Star, with five Branches, in the middle of which is a Mouth that has Five Teeth.

To Fix, (Lat.) to ſtick, faſten, or ſettle; to ſet, or appoint.

Fixa, (in Chymiſtry) are ſuch things as cannot be exalted, or rais'd up by Fire.

Fixation, (in [illegible]) [illegible] a [illegible] any Volatile Subſtance to endure the [illegible] away, either by repeated [illegible] or by adding [illegible] of a fixing Quality.

Fixed Line of Defence, (in Fortif.) a Line that is drawn along the Face of a Baſtion, and ends in the Courtin.

Fixed Nitre, Salt-petre melted in a Crucible, and made to Flame, by throwing in a Spoonful of Powder of Coals, and this is repeated, till no Flame nor Noiſe ariſe: Afterwards 'tis cool'd, powder'd, diſſolv'd in Water, and then evaporated into a fine White Salt.

Fixed Signs, (in Aſtrol.) are Taurus, Leo, Scorpio and Aquarius; ſo call'd becauſe the Sun paſſes them reſpectively in the middle of each Quarter, when that particular Seaſon is more fixed and ſettled, than under the Sign that begins or ends it.

Fixed Spirit, a Chymical Term. See Spirit.

Fixed Stars, the Stars of the ſeveral Conſtellations, which tho' carry'd about daily from Eaſt to Weſt by the Primum Mobile, and back again by the ſlow Motion of the Firmament; yet becauſe they do not move of themſelves, but always keep the ſame Place, they are juſtly counted, in reſpect of the others, fixed and unmoveable.

Fixity or Fixtneſs, (among Chymiſts) is an oppoſite quality to Volatility.

Fiz-gig, a ſort of Top for Boys to play with; alſo a gadding or ſtrolling Goſſip; alſo a kind of Dart, with which Mariners ſtrike Fiſhes as they are ſwimming.

To Fizzle or Foist, to break Wind backward without Noiſe, to let a ſilent Fart.

Flabby, ſoft and moiſt.

† Flaccid, (Lat.) flagging, drooping, withering.

Flag, (in Sea-affairs) an Enſign or Banner uſually ſet out in the Tops of Ships, and ſerving as a Badge, as well to diſtinguiſh Nations, as Officers and Commanders: So the chief Admiral of a Fleet or Squadron has his Flag in the Main-top, the Vice-Admiral in the Fore-top, and the Rear-Admiral in the Miſſen-top, with the Croſſes, or Colours of their reſpective Nations.

To Lower or Strike the Flag, to pull it down upon the Cap; which in Fight is a Token of Yielding, and otherwiſe of great Reſpect.

To Heave out the Flag, is to wrap it about the Staff.

Flag or Sedge, a ſort of Ruſh; alſo the upper part of Turf par'd off to burn. Among Falconers, Flags are the Feathers next to the principal Feathers in a Hawk's Wing.

To Flag, to bring or bear down, to cow, or balk; to wither and decay, to grow limber.

Flag-ship, a Veſſel commanded by one of the general Officers, that has a Right to carry a Flag.

Flag-staves, the Staves which are ſet upon the Heads of the Top-gallant Maſts, and ſerve to let fly, or ſhew abroad the Flags.

Flag-worm, a kind of Inſect, ſo call'd, becauſe it is found and bred in Flaggy Ponds, or Sedgy Places, hanging to the Fibers or ſmall Strings that grow to the Roots of the Flags, and are uſually found in a Yellow or Reddiſh Husk or Caſe.

Flagelet or Flageolet, (F.) a Musical Instrument [illegible].

Flagellants, (Lat.) a sort of Hereticks, that went up and down, scourging themselves, and begging Alms; they were so call'd from the Latin Word Flagello, to Scourge or Whip.

Flagitation, an earnest Entreaty, or Desire.

Flagitious, ungracious, full of Mischief, very wicked, lewd, villanous.

Flagon, a sort of Pot.

Flagrancy, (Lat. properly a being all in a Flame) ardent Desire; Earnestness.

Flagrant, very hot, eager or earnest; notorious, infamous.

Flail, an Instrument to Thresh Corn with.

To Flair or Flare, to sweal or melt away fast, as a Candle does when blown by the Wind: Among Shipwrights, the Work is said to Flair over, when a Ship being Housed in near the Water, a little above that, the Work hangs over somewhat too much, and is laid out broader aloft, than the due Proportion will allow.

Flam, an idle Story, a Sham or Put-off.

Flambeau, (Fr.) a kind of Torch or Taper.

Flame, (Lat.) the most subtil part of Fire, ascending upwards in form of a Pyramid: In a figurative Sense 'tis said, Such a one burns with an Innocent Flame for such a Virgin; Such a one by false Reports, has put all the House in a Flame.

Vital Flame, a kind of subtil gentle kindled Heat which some suppose to be in the Heart of Living-Creatures; so that for its Preservation, they judge the Air taken in by Breathing, to be necessary, as it is to the keeping in of ordinary Flame.

Flamant or Flammant, a large and fine Fowl, as big as a wild Goose, having the Legs and Neck very long, with so exquisite a Scent and quick Sight, that it is hard to be shot; insomuch that the Fowler is forc'd to get the Wind of them, and to creep along in an Ox-hide, till he be within Gun-shot.

Flamines, certain Roman Priests, appointed by Numa Pompilius, and so call'd from the Filum or little Thread-band or Coif they wore on their Heads.

Flammant, a kind of large Water-fowl. See Flamant.

Flammeolum, (Lat.) a little Vail or Scarf of a flame-colour, such as Brides, or new-marry'd Women wore among the Romans: Also a Flag or Banner; also an Herb of the Spurge kind.

Flammula, a little Flame or Blaze, also the Herb Trinity or Hearts-ease.

Flanch, (in Heraldry) an Ordinary made of an Arch-line, which beginning at the Corner of the Chief, compasses with a swelling Imbossment, and ends in the Base of the Escutcheon; as He bears Ermin two Flanches Vert. See Flask.

Flanders, the Chief of the Ten Provinces of the Low Countries remaining under the King of Spain's Dominion, which gives Name to the rest.

Flank, the Side properly of Horses and Oxen: In the Art of War, the Side of an Army or Battalion from the Front to the Rear; as To Attack the Enemy in Flank, i. e. to discover and fire upon them on one Side.

In Fortification, Flank is that part of a Bastion which lies between its Face and the Courtin, serving not only to defend the Courtin, but also the Face of the opposite Bastion.

Angle of the Courtin, is that part of the Courtin between the Flank and the Point, where the Fichant Line of Defence ends.

Flank Covert, otherwise call'd the Low or Retired Flank, is that the outward part of which advances to secure the innermost; which advanced Part, if it be rounded, is call'd an Orillon.

Flank Fichant, is that from whence a Piece of Ordinance playing, fixes its Bullets in a direct Line in the Face of the opposite Bastion.

Flank Oblique or Second Flank, is that part of the Courtin, where the Men can lie to scour the Face of the opposite Bastion; being the Distance between the Lines Fichant and Razant.

Flank Razant, the Point from whence the Line of Defence begins, from the joyning of which with the Courtin, the Shot razes the Face of the next Bastion.

Flank Retired, the same with the Covert Flank, being only the Platform of the Casemate, which lies hid in the Bastion. See Flank Covert.

Simple Flanks, are Lines which go from the Angle of the Shoulder to the Courtin, and whose chief Use is for the Defence of the Moat and Place.

To Flank, to discover and fire upon the Side, to play upon the Enemy both in Front and Rear.

To Flank a Wall, to strengthen it with Flanks; to dispose a Bastion or other Work, after such a manner that there shall be no Part of it but what is defended; so as from thence one may play upon Front and Rear.

Flanked Angle, the Angle made by the two Faces of the Bastion, which forms the Point of the Bastion.

Flank'd or Double Tenaille. See Tenaille.

Flanking Angle. See Angle.

Flanking Line of Defence. See Razant Line of Defence.

Flanks, (among Farriers) a Wrench, Crick, Stroke, or other Grief in the Back of a Horse; also a kind of Pleurisy, proceeding from his being over-run with too much Blood.

Flannel, a kind of Woollen-Stuff made in Wales.

To Flare. See To Flair.

Flash, a sudden Spurt.

Flask of Flanes, an old Expression for a Sheaf of Arrows.

Flask, a Box generally made of Horn, to hold Gun-powder; also a Bed in the Carriage of a Piece of Ordinance: Also a sort of Bottle, such as Florence-Wine is usually sold in.

In Heraldry, Flask, is an Ordinary consisting of an Arch-line drawn from the Corner of the Chief to the Base Point, but not so much bent in as the Flanch, both which are always born by Pairs; as The Field is Or, two Flasks Azure.

Flasket, a great sort of Basket.

Flat Bastion. See Bastion.

Flat-bottom'd Moat. See Moat.

Flat Crown. See Corona.

Flat Key. See Cliff.

To Flat in a Sail, (Sea-phrase) to hale in the Fore-sail flat by the Shear-rope, as near to the Ship's Side as may be; which is done when a Ship will not fall off from the Wind.

Flats, Shallows [illegible] between the [illegible] Sand-banks.

To Flatter, (Fr.) to [illegible] to soothe [illegible] to conceal the Truth [illegible] upon, [illegible] in the dark.

Flattery, fawning, wheedling, false Praise.

Flatulent, (Lat.) windy, that causes or breeds Wind.

Flatuosity, windiness.

Flatuous, windy, or full of wind.

Flatus, (Lat.) a Blast, Puff, or Gale of Wind; in a Physical Sense, disorderly Motions stirr'd up in the Body by Wind let in, or by windy Meats.

Flawns, Milk-meats, or Dainties made of Cream; a Word us'd by Chaucer.

To Flaunt, to spread as a piece of Linnen does that is too stiff starch'd, to strut it, to make State upon one, to make a vain-glorious Shew of one's self.

Flavour, a pleasant Relish, peculiar to some sorts of Meats, Wine, &c.

Flaw, a defect in precious Stones, Metals, &c. a Fault, a Chink, a blast of Wind; also a little Skin that grows at the Root of one's Nails.

Flawn, a kind of Dainty made of fine Flower, Eggs and Butter.

Flaxweed or Toad-flax, a kind of Herb.

Flea-bane, an Herb that destroys Fleas.

Flea-bitten Colour, (in Horses) a White spotted all over with sad reddish Spots.

Flea-wort, an Herb so call'd, because the Seed of it resembles a Flea, both in Colour and Bigness.

Fleak, (Country-word) a Gate set up in a Gap.

Fleam, a Surgeon's Instrument to Lance the Gums; or a Farrier's Tool to let a Horse Blood.

Flebing, (old Word) Slander.

Flecked or Fleckt, full of Spots or Speckles: In Heraldry, arched like the Firmament.

Flecta, (in old Latin Records) a fledg'd or feather'd Arrow, a fleet Arrow.

Fledge or Fledged, that begins to be well cover'd with Feathers, fit to fly out of the Nest.

Fledwit, (Sax.) a Law-Term, signifying a Discharge, or Freedom from Fines, when an Out-law'd Fugitive comes to the Peace of his own accord.

To Fleer, to cast a Saucy, or Disdainful Look.

Fleet, swift, as Fleet Dogs.

A Fleet, a certain Number of Ships sailing together, either upon account of War or Merchandize: Also a Famous Prison in London, so call'd from the River near which it stands.

To Fleet, to remove from Place to Place; also to skim Milk.

Fleeting, passing, or fading away.

Flemed, (old Word) daunted, or frighted.

Flemenes-frenith or [illegible], (Sax.) a Word us'd in old Charters, the relieving of a Fugitive, or one that has fled out of the Country.

Flemenes-firme or [illegible], the Chattels or Goods of Fugitives, according to [illegible] H. 4.

Flemeswite, or [illegible], a Liberty to challenge the Chattels, or Fines of one's Servant that is a Fugitive.

Flesh of Living-Creatures, is defin'd by Anatomists, [illegible] to be a [illegible] thick, which with the Bones serve [illegible] the Body [illegible]

Among Herbalists, Flesh is that Substance of any Fruit which is between the outer Rind or Skin and the Stone, or between the Skin and the Seeds; or that part of any Fruit which is fit to be eaten.

Flete, (in old Records) [illegible] a Place where the Float or Tide comes up; whence Fleet-bridge, Fleet-ditch, and [illegible].

Fletcher, a Maker of Arrows.

Fleurettée, (Fr. in Heraldry) flowered, or set off with Flowers.

Flexibility, (Lat.) aptness to bend, or be pliant.

Flexible, that may be bowed or bent, pliable, tender; apt to be persuaded, or entreated.

Flexor Carpi Radialis, (in Anat.) a Muscle of the Wrist, which arises from the inward Protuberance, or Knob of the Shoulder-bone, and is let into the upper part of the Os Metacarpi which bears up the Fore-finger.

Flexor Carpi Ulnaris, a Muscle of the Wrist, which arises from the little Knob of the Shoulder-bone with the Flexor Radialis, as also from the upper and outward part of the Ulna: It is partly inserted into the fourth Bone of the Carpus, and partly into the Os Metacarpi, which bears up the Little finger.

Flexor Secundi Internodii Digitorum Manus. See Perforatus.

Flexor Tertii Internodii Digitorum Manus. See Perforans.

Flexor Tertii Internodii or Longissimus Pollicis, a Muscle of the Thumb, which is observ'd to have a two-fold Beginning, viz. the upper from the outward Knob of the Shoulder-bone, and the lower from below the upper part of the Radius; proceeding thence till it be implanted in the upper part of the third Bone of the Thumb.

Flexor Pollicis Brevis, a Muscle of the great Toe, which takes rise from the upper part of the Os Cuneiforme Medium, and is let into the Ossa Sesamoidea of the Great Toe.

Flexor Pollicis Pedis Longus, a Muscle of the Great Toe, which is a direct Antagonist to Extensor Longus: It arises opposite to it, from the back part of the Fibula, and is inserted to the upper end of the second Bone of the Great Toe.

Flexor Primi et Secundi Ossis Pollicis, a large fleshy Muscle, arising from the Bones of the Carpus and Os Metacarpi of the Middle-finger; whence it passes to its Insertion partly to the Ossa Sesamoidea of the Second Internode, and partly to the first Bone of the Thumb.

Flexure, a crooking, bending, or bowing.

Flichtwite or Flitwite, (Sax.) a Penalty or Fine anciently impos'd upon account of Contentions, Quarrels, or Brawls.

To Flicker, to fleer, to laugh wantonly or scornfully.

[illegible] or [illegible], otherwise call'd [illegible], the Game that is now known by the Name of Shovel-board.

Flimsy, limber, slight.

To Flinch, to quit, to start, or give over; to play [illegible]

Flip, a sort of Drink, made of Ale, Brandy, and Sugar, much used by Sailors.

Flippant, nimble of Tongue, full of [illegible] Jovial, Brisk.

[illegible], a kind of wild Goat, otherwise call'd Oryx, whose Hair grows the contrary way, and turns toward the Head.

To Flirt, to Banter, or Jeer.

[illegible], or Tittle.

Flitter-mouse or Flinder-mouse, an old Word for a Bat, a kind of Bird.

Flitting, a removing from one Place to another; [illegible] properly apply'd to a Horse which being ty'd to a Stake, eats up all the Grass round about, within the compass of the Rope.

Flix-weed, an Herb of a drying and binding Quality, which grows by Hedge-sides and in High-ways.

Flo, (old Word) an Arrow, or Dart.

Float of a Fishing-line, the Cork or Quill that swims above Water.

Floats, pieces of Timber joyn'd together with Rafters overthwart, which serve to convey Burdens down a River with the Stream.

To Float, to swim upon the Water, to be in Suspence.

Flotages, all such things as are floating on the top of the Sea, or great Rivers; a Word more especially us'd in the Commissions of Water-Bailiffs.

Floating, (in Husbandry) the drowning, or watering of Meadows.

Floating of Cheese, is the separating of the Whey from the Curd.

Floating-bridge, a Bridge made in form of a Work in Fortification call'd a Redoubt, consisting of Two Boats cover'd with Planks, which ought to be so solidly fram'd as to bear both Horse and Cannon.

Florid or Figurate Descant, a Term in Musick. See Descant.

Flook, See Flouk.

Flook or Flouke of an Anchor, is that broad and peaked Part, with its Barbs like an Arrow-head, which takes hold on the Ground.

Floor in a Ship, strictly taken, is only so much of her Bottom as she rests upon when brought on Ground: Therefore those Ships that have long and broad Floors, lye on Ground with most Safety, and are not apt to Seel, i. e. to fall on the one Side; whereas others that are narrow in the Floor, cannot be grounded without danger of being overthrown, or at least of wronging their Sides.

Floralia, certain Festivals kept by the Romans, in Honour of the Goddess Flora, during which, common Strumpets us'd to Dance Naked.

Floramour, a Flower, otherwise call'd the Flower of Love, Passevelours, Purple Velvet-Flower, and Flower-Gentle.

Flore or Florey, a kind of Blew Colour us'd in Painting or Limning, being the Scum of boiled Glastum, or Woad dry'd and beaten to Powder.

Florence, (Lat. i. e. Flourishing) a Proper Name of Women. Also a kind of Gold Coin current in England under King Edward III. being the Fiftieth part of a Pound-Weight of Standard-Gold, and worth [illegible]: Also the Name of the chief City of Tuscany in Italy.

Florences, a kind of Cloath, mention'd in Stat. 1. R. 3.

Florentine, a sort of bak'd Pudding, or Tart.

Florentine or [illegible], a kind of Marble, in which the Figures of Mountains, Rivers, Towers, Houses, and even whole Cities are naturally Represented.

Flores, (Lat.) Flowers, or Blossoms: In Chymistry, the more subtil parts of a Body that are separated from the grosser by Sublimation.

Floret, (Fr.) a kind of [illegible] Silk.

Florid, (Lat.) full of Rhetorical Flowers. A Florid Discourse or Style.

Florida, a Country of Northern America, bordering on Virginia, so nam'd because it was discover'd on Palm-Sunday, which the Spaniards call Pascua de Flores.

Florin, a Gold-Coin first coin'd by the Florentines, with a Flower upon it: The Florin of Palermo is worth 2 s. 6 d. Sterling: Of Francfurt is [illegible] Of France 1 s. 6 d.

Florist, one that Delights, and has Skill in Flowers.

Florus, a sort of Bird that feeds on Flowers. See Anthus.

Flory, (in Heraldry) when the Out-lines of any Ordinary, are drawn as if trimm'd with, or in the Form of Flowers; as A Cross Flory.

Flos, (Lat.) a Flower, a Bloom or Blossom.

Flos Æris, (in Chymistry) Brass-flower a Composition that consists of small Grains of Brass like Millet-seed, which are separated from its Body, when hot Brass is quench'd in Water.

Flos Frumentorum, Blew-bottles, a kind of Flower.

Flotson or Flotsam, (Sea-Term) any Goods lost by Shipwrack, which lye floating or swimming on the top of the Water: These with Jetson, or Goods cast out of the Ship, being in danger of Wrack, and beaten to the Shore; Lagan or Ligan, i. e. those that lye at the bottom of the Sea and Shares, i. e. Goods to be proportionably divided among many; are all given to the Lord Admiral, by his Letters Patent.

Flotten Milk, fleet, or skim Milk.

Floud, an overflowing of Water; the Tide.

Floud or Young Floud, a Sea-Term us'd when the Water begins to rise.

Flouk, See Flook.

To Flounce, to toss, or roll about in the Water; to be in a toss, or fume with Anger.

Flounder, a sort of flat Sea-fish.

[illegible], rustling, or making a Noise with its Fall.

Flourish, (Lat.) an Ornament in Writing, Rhetorick, Musick, &c. a Flower-work in Architecture; a Vaunt, Boast, or Brag.

To Flourish, to prosper, to be at one's Prime; to be in Repute, Vogue, or Esteem.

To Flout, to mock, or jeer.

It Flows Tide and half Tide, an Expression us'd by Sea-men, signifying, it will be half Flood by the Shore, before it begins to flow in the Channel.

Flowers of Plants, (according to Dr. Grew) commonly have these three Parts, viz. the Empalement, the Foliation, and the Attire; which See in their proper Places.

Among Chymists, that fine mealy Matter, which in Sublimations, is carry'd up into the Head of the Vessel call'd Aludel, and sticks to it in form of a fine Powder, is call'd Flowers or Flores.

Flowers of Sulphur or Brimstone, is made by putting the Sulphur grossly powder'd into a Glass Vessel set over an open gentle Fire, and having put another Earthen Vessel over it, the Fire will ſublimated or raiſed up by the Fire, and ſtick to the upper Veſſels.

Flower-de-luce, a Flower of which there are ſeveral ſorts: In Heraldry it is the diſtinguiſhing Mark for the Sixth Brother of any Family; it is alſo born as Coat-Armour.

Flower-gentle. See Floramour.

Flowerage, the ſetting of ſeveral ſorts of Flowers together in Huſks, and hanging them up with Strings.

[illegible], a ſort of Herb.

[illegible]. See [illegible].

To Fluctuate, (Lat.) to be troubled in Mind, to waver, to be at an Uncertainty, or in Suſpence.

Fluctuation, a fluctuating, floating, or Wavering.

Flue, the Down, or ſoft Hair of a Rabbet; alſo little Feathers, or Flocks that ſtick to Cloaths.

Fluellin, an Herb otherwiſe call'd Speedwell, good for Ulcers of the Breaſt and Lungs, and for expelling Poiſon.

Fluency or Fluentneſs, readineſs of Speech, nimbleneſs of Tongue.

Fluent, ready or eloquent in Speech, full of Diſcourſe.

Fluid, that eaſily flows, or runs, as Water does.

Fluid Body, is defin'd by ſome Naturaliſts, to be that whoſe Parts eaſily give Place, and move out of the Way, on any Force put upon them, by which means they eaſily move one over another.

Fluidity or Fluidneſs, aptneſs to flow or run. As it is conſider'd in a Philoſophical Senſe, it ſeems to conſiſt in this, That the Parts of any Natural Bodies being very fine and ſmall, are ſo diſpos'd by Motion and Figure, as that they may eaſily ſlide over one anothers Surfaces, all manner of Ways.

Fluke, a ſort of an Inſect; alſo part of an Anchor. See Flook.

Flummery, a wholeſome Jelly made of Oatmeal.

Fluor, (Lat.) a Flux, Courſe, or Stream.

Fluor Albus or Fluor Uterinus, the Whites, a Diſtemper in Women; a voiding of Corrupt Humours from the Womb.

Fluores, Womens Flowers, or Monthly Courſes: Alſo Spars, a ſort of Stones found in Mines and Quarries, which at firſt ſight reſemble Gems; being of divers Colours and Shapes.

Fluſh, a Red Colour in the Face; alſo a Term us'd in a Game at Cards, when all are of a Suit.

Fluſh fore and aft, (in Sea-Language) is when the Decks in a Ship are laid level or even from Head to Stern, without any Falls or Riſings.

Fluſhed or Fleſhed, put in Heart, encouraged, or egged on; as He was fluſh'd with his late Succeſs.

Fluſtered, ſomewhat diſorder'd with Drink, Fuddled.

Fluta, a kind of Lamprey, a Fiſh about Sicily, that floats on the top of the Water.

Flute, a Muſical Wind-Inſtrument: Alſo a ſort of long Veſſel of about 300 Tun, built on purpoſe for Carriage of Goods.

Fluted, channelled, or wrought in form of a Gutter.

Flutings, (in Architecture) the Channels, Furrows, or Gutters of Pillars, &c. alſo call'd because they are hollow'd, like a Flute or Pipe.

To Flutter, to try to fly, to fly up and down.

Flux, (Lat.) a Looſeneſs of the Belly; alſo the Flowing of the Flood, or Tide.

Flux and Reflux, the ebbing and flowing of the Tide, or Sea, or of any River.

Flux-Powders, (in Chymiſtry) certain Powders prepar'd to promote the diſſolving of the harder Metals, and to melt Oars, in order to diſcover what proportion of Metal they contain.

Fluxibility, an aptneſs or diſpoſition to flow, or run.

Fluxing. See Salivation.

Fluxion, a flowing of Humours or Rheum: In Surgery, 'tis defin'd to be that which raiſes a Tumour or Swelling all at once, or in a very ſhort time, by the fluidity of the Matter: In Geometry, Fluxions ſignify a new Improvement of that Science upon the Doctrine of Indiviſibles, or Flowing Quantities.

Fluxus, (Lat.) a Flux, or Flowing.

Fluxus Chyloſus, the ſame as Cœliack Paſſion, a Purging, when the Meat is thrown out, and does not make any of that Humour call'd Chyle.

Fluxus Hepaticus, a Flux, in which black ſhining Blood, and as it were parch'd, is driven out of the Guts through the Fundament: It is alſo ſometimes taken for a Flux, wherein ſerous, ſharp Blood is voided.

Fly, a well known Inſect, of which there are ſeveral ſorts: In Sea-affairs, that part of the Mariner's Compaſs on which the 32 Points of the Winds are deſcrib'd.

To Fly groſs, (in Falconry) is ſaid of a Hawk, when ſhe flies at the great Birds, as Cranes, Geeſe, &c. To Fly on Head, is when the Hawk, miſſing her Quarry, betakes her ſelf to the next Check, as Crows, &c.

Let fly the Sheats, (Sea-Phraſe) i. e. let the Sails go out à-main.

Fly-boat, a Veſſel of no great Burden; but ſwift and light, built for Sailing.

Fly-catcher, a little Creature in the Iſland of Nevis in America, having four Legs, and a great variety of Colours: It does no miſchief, but clears all Places of Flies and ſuch like Vermin; being ſo tame and familiar, as to come upon the Tables to purſue its Game.

Flying-Army, or Flying-Camp. See Camp.

Flying-Bridge. See Bridge.

Flying-Dragons. See Dragons.

Flying-Fiſh, a ſort of Fiſh that have Wings like Bats, and ſometimes to avoid being made a Prey by the greater Fiſh, fly Twenty Foot above Water, a Hundred Paces in length, and then fall again into the Sea: They are like large Herrings, and thought good Meat by hungry Sea-men.

Flying-Pinnion, a part of a Clock, having a Fly or Fan, thereby to gather Air, and ſo to curb the ſwiftneſs of the Clock's Motion, when the Weight deſcends in the ſtriking Part.

Flying-Tiger, an American Inſect ſpotted like a Tiger, having Six Wings and as many Feet: It feeds on Flies, &c. and ſpends the Night in ſinging upon a Tree.

Foal. See Fole.

To Fob one off, to give one the trouble of attending to no purpoſe.

Focage, (Lat.) Hearth-money. See Fuage.

Focale, (in old Records) Fire-wood, or Fuel.

Focile or Fociles, a Term in Surgery, as Focile majus, the greater Bone of the Arm, peculiarly call'd Ulna, or the greater Bone of the Leg, named Tibia. Focile minus, the leſſer Bone of the Arm, known by the Name of Radius, or the leſſer Bone of the Leg, termed Fibula.

Focillation, a comforting, cheriſhing, or nouriſhing.

Focus, (Lat.) a Hearth, or Fire-place: In a Phyſical Senſe, a certain Place in the Meſentery and other Parts, from whence the Ancients deriv'd the Original of Fevers.

In Geometry, there are two Foci or Focus's, i. e. two Navel-Points in an Ellipſis or Oval, which ſerve for the drawing of that Figure, and from whence, if two Right Lines be drawn to any Point of the Circumference, the Summ of them is equal to the tranſverſe or longer Axis.

Focus of a Parabola, is a Point in the Axis, within the Figure, diſtant from the Vertex or Top, one fourth part of the Parameter or Latus Rectum: 'Tis call'd the Focus, it being the Point, in which the Sun's Rays will be united, when reflected from a Parabolick Concave, ſo as to ſet Fire on Natural Bodies; whence by ſome it is termed, the Burning Point.

Focus, (in Opticks) or the Focus of a Speculum or Glaſs, is the Point of Convergence or Concourſe, where the Rays meet and croſs the Axis, after their Refraction by the Glaſs.

Focus Virtual. See Virtual Focus.

Fodder, any kind of Meat for Horſes, or other Cattel: In the Civil Law, it is a Prerogative that the Prince has to be provided of Corn, &c. by his Subjects, for his Horſes in any Warlike Expedition.

Fodder or Fother of Lead, a Weight of Lead containing Eight Pigs, every Pig 23½ Stone: In the Book of Rates, it is ſaid to be Two Thouſand Pound-Weight: At the Mines, it is Twenty Two Hundred and a half; and among the Plummers at London, Nineteen Hundred and a Half.

Fodertorium, (in old Latin Records) Proviſion of Fodder or Forrage, made by Cuſtom, to the King's Purveyors.

Fodina, a Quarry or Mine: In Anatomy, the Labyrinth or leſſer Pit in the Bone of the Ear.

Fœmina, a Woman, the Female in Brute Beaſts and Plants: In Chymiſtry, it ſignifies Sulphur or Brimſtone.

Fœniculum, Fennel, an Herb the Seed of which ſtrengthens the Stomach, takes off Nauſeouſneſs, and relieves the Lungs.

Fœnum, Hay.

Fœnum Græcum or Fenugreek, the Herb Fenigreek; the Flower of whoſe Seed ſerves to mollify, ripen, and diſſolve; and aſſwages Pain.

Foda, (in old Records) Herbage, Graſs.

Fœtor, a Stench, or ill Smell: Among Phyſicians, it is taken for a ſtinking Breath, which proceeds from filth about the Teeth and Gums, &c.

Fœtus, the Young of all kind of Creatures, eſpecially Humane; but in a ſtricter Senſe, it is a [illegible] the Womb.

Fog, a thick Miſt; In ſome [illegible]

Fogagium, (Foreſt Law-Term) [illegible] eaten in Summer.

Foil, an Inſtrument to Fence with; a Weapon that is not clearly [illegible] or ſet off.

To Foil, to overthrow, or overcome; also to ſet off to advantage.

Foine. See Foyne.

Foiling, (among Hunters) the footing and treading of all Deer, that is on the Graſs and ſcarce viſible.

To Foin, (in Fencing) to make a Paſs, or Thruſt at one.

Foin, a kind of Furr black at the top on a whitiſh Ground, and taken from a little Ferret or Weeſel of the ſame Name.

† Foiſon, (Fr.) Plenty, Abundance.

Foiſt, a Pinnace, or little Ship with Sails and Oars.

To Foiſt. See To Fizzle.

To Foiſt in, to put a thing in prepoſterouſly, to forge, to ſtuff in or cram.

Folcland, or Folkland, (Sax.) the Land of the common People, in the time of the Saxons, ſuch as was held only under certain cuſtomary Rents and Services, at the Will of the Thane or Lord, Copy-hold Land, diſtinguiſh'd from Bocland or Charter-Land.

Folcmote or Folkmote, is taken for two kinds of Courts, one now call'd the County-Court, and the other the Sheriff's Turn: Alſo a general Meeting of the People to conſult about, and order State-Affairs: Alſo an Aſſembly or Court ſometime held in the City of London, where all the People or Citizens did complain of the Mayor and Aldermen, for Miſgovernment.

Fold-courſe or Free-fold. See Faldage.

Folenet, a ſort of Net with which ſmall Birds are taken in the Night.

Fole, a young Colt.

Fole-bit and Fole-foot, two ſorts of Herbs.

Foliage, the branched Work in Tapeſtry, Painting or Carving: In Architecture, a kind of Ornament, us'd in Cornices, Frizes, Chapiters of Pillars and other Members; ſome of which repreſent the Leaves of the Herb Brank-Urſin or Bears-foot, and others thoſe of ſeveral ſorts of Trees; as the Oak, Laurel, Olive, Vine, &c.

Foliatanes, a certain Religious Order of Men.

Foliate, as To foliate Looking-glaſſes, i. e. to ſpread over a kind of Compoſition that will ſtick cloſe to the back of the Glaſs, and there reflect the Image: This is call'd the Foile, and uſually made of Quick-ſilver mixt with ſome other Ingredients.

Foliation, (according to Dr. Grew) is one of the parts of the Flower of a Plant; being a Collection of thoſe fine colour'd Leaves that make up the compaſs of the Flower; which ſometimes ſerves to ſecure and guard the Fruit that ſucceeds, as in Apples, Pears, &c. and ſometimes ſtands within it, as in Apricocks, Cherries, &c.

Folio, a Book is ſaid To be in Folio, when it is of a large Volume, conſiſting of Sheets only once doubled, or making but two Leaves a-piece: In the Art of Printing, it is the

Figure ſet at the top of every Page: In Merchants Accounts, a Leaf, or two Pages of the Ledger-Book.

Folkland. See Freehold.

Folliculus, (Lat.) a little Bag, or Satchel: Among Herbaliſts, the Seed-veſſel, the Husk, Caſe, or Cover, which ſome Fruits and Seeds have over them; as that of the Alkakengi, [illegible] &c.

Folliculus Fellis, the Gall-Bladder, a little Bag faſten'd to the hollow part of the Liver, ſo as to receive the Gall, which in proceſs of Time, empties it ſelf into the Gut Duodenum.

Fomahant, a Star of the firſt Magnitude in the Sign Aquarius, whoſe Longitude is 330 Degrees, 17 Minutes, and Latitude 21 Degrees, 5 Minutes.

Fomen, (old Word) Enemies, Foes.

To Foment, (Lat.) to cheriſh, or comfort, by applying Warm and Liquid Remedies; to keep, maintain or nouriſh, to encourage or abet.

Fomentation, a fomenting, the bathing of any Part of the Body with a convenient Liquor; which is uſually a Decoction of Herbs, Roots, Flowers, Seeds, &c. boil'd in Water, Wine, or Milk: Alſo the applying of Bags ſtuff'd with Herbs, and other Ingredients, which is call'd Dry Fomentation.

Fomentum, (among Phyſicians) any thing laid to the Body, to cheriſh and warm it, whether dry or wet.

Fond or Fund, a Bank, or Stock of Money; a conſiderable Summ laid up for a particular Uſe.

To Fondle, to cocker, pamper, or make much of.

To Fonne, to be fooliſh; a Word us'd by Chaucer.

Fons Solis, (Lat. i. e. the Fountain of the Sun) a Spring in Africa, near the Temple of Jupiter Hammon, which at Midnight is as hot as boiling Water.

Font, the fixed Baſon, or Place in a Church where the Sacrament of Baptiſm is adminiſter'd; alſo a Caſt, or compleat Set of Printing-Letters.

Fontalis, (Lat.) belonging to a Fountain, or Spring; alſo the Herb Pond-weed.

Fontanalia or Fontinalia, the Feaſt of Fountains, heretofore ſolemniz'd at Rome, by crowning the Springs and Wells with Garlands of Flowers, Lamps, &c.

Fontanella, or Fonticulus, a little Well, or Spring: In Surgery, an Iſſue, or little Ulcer, made in ſound parts of the Body, to let out bad Humours, and to Cure, or prevent Diſeaſes: In Anatomy, the mould or roof of the Noſe.

Foot, a part of the Body, the bottom of a Hill, Tree, Wall, &c. Alſo a Meaſure of Twelve Inches: In Fortification, the ſixth part of a Fathom, and the fifth of a Geometrical Pace: Abſolutely taken, it alſo ſignifies all thoſe Bodies of Men that ſerve in the Wars on Foot.

Foot of a Verſe, (in Grammar) a certain Number of Syllables, Two, Three, or more, which ſerve for the meaſuring of ſuch a Verſe. Among the Greeks and Latins, thoſe of Two Syllables are the Spondee, Trochee, Iambus, &c. thoſe of Three, the Dactyl, Moloſſus, &c. thoſe of Four, the Choriambus, Epitritus, &c. which See in their proper Places.

In the Art of War, To be on the ſame Foot with another, is to be under the ſame Circumſtances in point of Service.

To Fight or make Ground Foot by Foot, to do it regularly and reſolutely, defending every Poſt to the utmoſt; or forcing it by dint of Art and Induſtry.

Foot-bank or Foot-ſtep, (in Fortif.) a Step about 1½ Foot high, and a Foot wide, rais'd with Earth, under a Parapet, or Breaſt-work; upon which the Men get up to Fire over it.

Footgeld or Foutgeld, (Sax.) is an Amerciament or Fine, for not cutting out the Balls of great Dogs Feet in a Foreſt; and To be quit of Footgeld, is a Privilege to keep Dogs in the Foreſt unlawed, without Puniſhment or Controll.

Foot-hooks. See Futtocks.

Foot-ſtalks, are ſhort Heads, out of which Flowers grow.

Foot-pace, a Cloth, Mat, &c. ſpread round, before, or on the ſide of a Bed, or Chair of State, &c.

Fop, a fantaſtical, or impertinent Fellow.

Foppery, Foolery, Fantaſticalneſs.

Foppiſh, fooliſh, ridiculous, impertinent, finical.

Forage. See Forrage.

Foragium, (in old Latin Records) Straw, or Stubble after the Corn is Threſhed out.

Foramen Iſchium, (in Anat.) a large Hole in the Hip-bone, about whoſe Circumference, the Muſcles call'd Obturator Externus and Internus take their riſe.

Foramen Lachrymale. See Lachrymale Punctum.

Forbalca, (in old Records) a Fore-balk, or Balk lying forwards, or next the High-way.

To Forbear, to ſpare, to ſuffer, to let alone, or leave off; to ſhun or avoid: In Sea-language, it is to hold ſtill any Oar of a Boat upon the Word of Command.

Forbicina or Forbicula, the Ear-wig, an Inſect.

Force, (Fr.) Violence, Conſtraint, Neceſſity; Strength, Might, Power, Weight: In Common Law, it ſignifies unlawful Violence us'd to Perſons or Things, and is either Simple or Compound.

Simple Force, is that which is ſo committed, that it has no other Crime joyn'd to it; as when one enters by force upon another Man's Poſſeſſion, without doing any other unlawful Act.

Mixt or Compound Force, is that Violence which is committed with ſuch a Fact, as of it ſelf only is Criminal; as if any by force enter into another Man's Poſſeſſion, and kill a Man, or raviſh a Woman there.

In Mechanicks, Force ſignifies whatever is the original Cauſe of any Motion of Bodies; as Weight, Men, Horſes, Water, Wind, &c. with reſpect to the Body or Weight to be moved.

Forces or Military Forces, an Army or conſiderable Body of Soldiers.

To Force, to oblige or take by Force, to Raviſh.

To Force Wooll, to clip off the upper and more hairy part of it.

Forceps, (Lat.) a pair of Tongues, Pincers, or Nippers: Alſo a Surgeon's Inſtrument, with which Dead and Corrupt Parts, Splinters and other things beſides, or againſt Nature, are ſaid to be Cut off, or pull'd out.

Forcible, ſtrong, or prevailing; violent.

Forcible Detainer or Holding Poſſeſſion, (in Common Law) is a violent Act of Reſiſtance by armed Men, or any terrifying Action in the ſame Place, or elſewhere, by which the lawful Entry of Juſtices or others, is barr'd or hinder'd.

Forcible Entry, a violent actual Entry into any Houſe, Land, &c. ſo as to offer Violence to any there, and put them in fear of being hurt, or furiouſly drive any out of the Poſſeſſion.

Ford, a ſhallow place in a River, where one may go over a foot.

Forda, (Lat.) a Cow with Calf, or a Milch-cow: In our old Records, a Ford or Shallow, made by damming or penning up the Water.

Fordable, that may be forded, or waded over.

Fordicalia or Fordicidia, a Feſtival kept by the Romans, April 15. on which they offer'd in Sacrifice, a Cow with a Calf call'd Forda.

Fordika, (in old Records) Herbage, or Graſs growing on the edge or Bank of Dikes or Ditches.

To Fordoe, (old Word) to kill.

Fordol, Fordolis or Fordalis, a Butt or Head-land that ſhoots upon other Grounds.

To Fore-bar or Forbarre, (Law-Term) for ever, to deprive.

To Fore-bode, to Divine or Foretell.

Fore-bolts, (Sea-Term) certain Iron Pins in a Ship, made like Locks, with an Eye at each end, into which a Fore-lock of Iron is driven, to prevent ſtarting out.

To Fore-caſt, to conſider before-hand, to foreſee.

Fore-caſtle of a Ship, that part where the Fore-maſt ſtands, which is ſeparated from the reſt of the Floor by a Bulk head.

Fore-cloſed, (Law-Term) barred and utterly excluded.

Fore-courſe, the Fore-ſail of a Ship.

Fore-foot, (Sea-Term) when one Ship lies or ſails a-croſs another Ship's Way, ſhe is ſaid to lye or ſail with the other's Fore-foot.

Fore-goers, Purveyors going before the King or Queen in Progreſs.

Foreign, Strange, Outlandiſh, not agreeable to the purpoſe or matter in hand: In a Law-ſenſe it is often taken for a Foreigner, or Stranger.

Foreign Anſwer, (in Common Law) ſuch an Anſwer as is not tryable in the County where it is made.

Foreign Appoſer or Oppoſer, an Officer of the Exchequer, by whom all Sheriffs and Bailiffs are appoſed or examined, about the Summs of Money, or Fines received by them; and other Matters relating to the Pipe-Office.

Foreign Attachment, an Attachment of Foreigners Goods, found within a Liberty or City, in the Hands of a third Perſon, for the ſatisfaction of ſome Citizen, to whom the ſaid Foreigner owes Money.

Foreign Matter, is Matter done, or tryable in another County.

Foreign Plea, a rejecting of the Judge as incompetent, becauſe the Matter in hand was not within his Precinct.

Foreign Service, ſuch Service whereby a mean Lord holds over of another, without the Compaſs of his own Fee: Or elſe that which a Tenant performs either to his own Lord, or to other Lord Paramount out of the Fee.

Foreign Voucher. See Voucher.

Forejudged the Court, is when any Officer is expelled the Court for ſome Offence, or for not appearing to an Action by Bill filed againſt him.

Forejudger, a Judgment whereby a Man is deprived of, or put by the Thing in queſtion.

Fore-Knights and Knight-heads, (Sea-Term) Two ſhort thick pieces of Wood carv'd with the Figure of a Man's Head, and faſt bolted to the Beams upon the ſecond Deck.

Fore-land or Foreneſs, a Promontory, or Point of Land jutting out into the Sea: In Fortification, a ſmall ſpace of Ground, between the Wall of a Place and the Moat.

Fore-locks, the Hair of the Head before: In Sea-affairs, little flat Wedge-like pieces of Iron, us'd at the ends of Bolts, to keep them from flying out: They likewiſe ſerve to keep faſt down the Cap-ſquares of the Carriages for Guns; and theſe laſt are alſo call'd Forelock-keys.

Fore-loin, (among Hunters) is when a Hound going before the reſt of the Cry, meets Chace, and goes away with it.

Fore-maſt, that Maſt or piece of Timber which is ſeated in the Fore-caſtle or Fore part of the Ship: on which is born the Fore-ſail and Fore-top-ſail Yards: Its length is uſually ⅘ of the length of the Main-maſt.

Foreneſs. See Fore-land.

Fore-priſed, excepted, a Term often us'd in Conveyances.

Fore-reach, (Sea-Term) when Two Ships Sail together, or one after another, that which Sails faſteſt, is ſaid To Fore-reach upon the other.

Fore-ſail, the Sail of the Fore-maſt.

To Fore-ſhorten, (a Term in Painting) when a Head or Face in a Draught is made to appear ſhorter before.

Fore-ſkin, the Skin that covers the Head of the Penis, or Yard.

To Fore-ſpeak, to beſpeak, to bewitch.

Fore-ſtaff or Croſs-ſtaff, an Inſtrument uſed at Sea, for obſerving the Sun, Moon, or Stars, with one's Face towards the Object. See Croſs-ſtaff.

Fore-ſtall. See Forſtal.

To Fore-ſtall, is to buy, or bargain for Corn, Cattel, or other Merchandize, as it is coming to be ſold towards any Fair, Market, Port, or Harbour, in order to ſell the ſame again at a higher Price.

Fore-ſtaller, he that ſo fore-ſtalls the Market: Alſo one that lies in wait to ſtop Deer broke out of the Foreſt, and hinders them from returning thither.

Foreſt, a great Wood privileged to hold the Queen's Game, defined to be a ſafe Harbour or Abiding place for Deer, or any ſort of Beaſts that are wild, and delight in Woods.

Foreſter, the Keeper of a Foreſt, a ſworn Officer appointed by the Queen's Letters Patent to walk the Foreſt, to watch the Vert and Veniſon; attaching and preſenting all Treſpaſſes againſt both, within his own Bailiwick, or Walk.

Foreſter in Fee, one that has that Office to him and his Heirs.

Forfang, (Sax.) Pre-emption, the taking of Proviſions in Fairs, or Markets, before the King's Purveyors are furniſh'd with neceſſaries for his Majeſty.

Forfait, (Fr.) a Default, a Penalty, or Fine.

To Forfeit, to loſe an Employment, Eſtate, Goods, &c. for neglect in doing one's Duty, or for ſome Crime committed.

Forfeitable, liable to be forfeited.

Forfeiture, the tranſgreſſing of a Penal Law, or elſe the effect of it.

Forfeiture of Marriage, a Writ that lies for the Lord againſt his Ward, or Tenant under Age by Knight-ſervice, who refuſes a convenient Marriage offer'd him by his Lord, and Marries another, without the ſaid Lord's Conſent.

To Forfend, (old Word) to forbid; as Heaven forfend that.

Forfex, (Lat.) a pair of Sheers; an Iron-hook, or Cramp-iron to take hold of a thing: Alſo an Inſtrument to pull out Teeth.

Forficula, a little pair of Sizzers, a forked Claw, as that of a Lobſter; alſo the Ear-wig, an Inſect.

Forgabulum, (in Ancient Deeds) Forgavel, a ſmall reſerved Rent in Money; a Quit-rent.

Forge, (Fr.) a large Furnace, where the Iron-oar is melted when taken out of the Mines; the Word is commonly apply'd to thoſe Places where Smiths heat their Iron, that it may be wrought with the Hammer.

To Forge, to Hammer, or work as a Smith does; to faſhion, or ſhape; to contrive, or frame; to invent, or deviſe, to counterfeit.

Forger of falſe Deeds, (in Common Law) one that deceitfully makes and publiſhes falſe Writings; or the Writ that lies againſt ſuch an Offender, which by ſome is call'd, A Writ of Deceit.

Forgery, that which is forged, Falſhood, falſe Tale, Impoſture, Cheat.

Forgia or Forgia ferraria, (in old Latin Records) a Smithy, or Smith's Forge.

Forherda, a Herd-land, Fore-land, or Head-land.

Forinſecum Manerium, (Law-Term) a Manour which lies without the Town, or Bars, and is not included within the Liberties of it.

Forinſecum Servitium, the payment of Aid, Scutage, and other extraordinary Impoſitions of Knight-Service, oppos'd to Intrinſecum Servitium, which ſignify'd the common and uſual Duties, within the Lord's Court and Liberties.

Fork-fiſh, a kind of Thorn-back, ſo call'd from its forked Tail.

Forked Heads, (among Hunters) are all Deers Heads which bear two Croches on the top, or that have their Croches doubled.

Forletten, (old Word) abandoned, or forſaken.

Forlorn, deſperate, or deſpairing; dejected, or caſt down by ſome Diſappointment; forſaken, or left comfortleſs.

The Forlorn or Forlorn Hope in an Army, Men detach'd from ſeveral Regiments, or otherwiſe appointed, to give the firſt Onſet in Battel, or at an Attack upon a Place Beſieged; ſo call'd upon account of the great Danger they are expos'd to.

Form, (Lat.) Shape, Figure, Faſhion, Manner, Way.

In Philoſophy, Form is the ſecond Principle which being join'd to Matter, makes all Natural Bodies: Or, The form of a Natural Body, is the Eſſential, particular or diſtinguiſhing Modification of the Matter of which it is compos'd, whereby it receives ſuch a peculiar manner of Exiſtence or Being.

Among Hunters, Form is the Seat of a Hare.

To Form, to frame, or make, to Faſhion or mould, to contrive or deviſe.

Formal, belonging to Form or Faſhion; according to Form; alſo punctual, preciſe, affected.

Formal Cauſe, (in Logick) is that which gives an inward Eſſence or Being to Subſtances and Accidents.

Formaliſt, a Follower of Forms, or Modes; a formal, or complimental Perſon.

Formality, Form in Law, Ceremony, outward Shew, Preciſeneſs, Affectation. Formalities, are alſo Robes worn on ſolemn Occaſions, by the Magiſtrates of a City, Corporation, &c.

To Formalize, to play the Formaliſt.

Formation, a forming, framing, or faſhioning.

Formed Stones, (among Naturaliſts) ſuch Bodies as being either pure Stone, or Sparr, are found in the Earth, ſo formed that their outward Figure and Shape very much reſembles that of Cockles, Muſcles, Perewinkles, and other Sea-ſhells.

Formedon, a Writ at Common Law, lying for one that has a Right to Lands or Tenements, by Virtue of an Entail, and ſo call'd becauſe it contains the form of the Gift; being of Three ſorts, viz. Formedon in the Deſcender, in the Reverter, or in the Remainder.

Formee, a Term ſometimes us'd in Heraldry, for the Croſs Patee. See Patee.

Formers, (Sea-Term) round Pieces of Wood which are fitted to the Bore of a great Gun, and ſerve to hold the Cartridges that contain the due charge of Powder: Alſo the hollow Tin or Latten-Caſes, in which the Cartridges are carry'd about the Ship in the time of a Fight.

Formeth or Seateth, a Term in Hunting apply'd to a Hare, when it Squats in any Place.

Formica, (Lat.) the Ant, Emmet, or Piſmire an Inſect: Alſo a kind of Wart, hard, black and broad at the bottom, and painful when Cut, like the ſtinging of a Piſmire: Alſo a kind of Mange, which in Summer time very much annoys a Spaniel's Ears: Alſo a Diſtemper that commonly ſeizes on a Hawk's Beak, and will eat it away, if not timely prevented.

Formidable, to be feared; frightful, dreadful.

Formula, (Lat.) a Form in Law, an Ordinance or Rule; alſo a Phyſician's Preſcription, or Bill appointing Medicines to be prepar'd by an Apothecary.

Formulary, a Book of Forms, a Preſident for doing any Thing, eſpecially in Law-matters; a Writing that contains the form of an Oath to be taken upon certain Occaſions, &c.

Fornacalia, (Lat.) the Feaſt of Ovens, kept by the Romans, in remembrance of thoſe Ancient Ovens in which Wheat was bak'd, before the Way of grinding Corn, and making Bread was found out.

Fornagium, (in old Records) a Fee taken by a Lord of his Tenants, bound to bake in his Oven, or for liberty to uſe their own; alſo Chimney or Hearth-money.

Fornication, the Act of uncleanneſs between ſingle Perſons; ſo call'd becauſe uſually committed in Stews, under Vaults or Arches, in Latin, Fornices.

Fornicator, a Haunter of Stews, a Whoremonger.

Fornix, an Arch, or Vault; alſo a Brothel-houſe, or Stews: In Surgery, the brawny Subſtance of the Brain, ſo call'd becauſe it ſeems to ſupport, or bear up its bulk like an Arch.

Forrage, (Fr.) Proviſion of Hay, Straw, Oats, &c. for Horſes and other Cattel, eſpecially in the Wars.

To Forrage or Go a forraging, to Ride about the Country to get Forrage.

To Forſake, to leave, or quit.

Forſchet, (Sax. in old Records) the outer or fore-part of a Furlong; a skirt or ſlip of Ground that lies next the High-way.

Forſes, Water-falls.

Forſet, a little Trunk or Coffer.

Forſlagen, (old Word) ſlain, or kill'd.

Forſpreak, (old Word) an Advocate, or one that pleads in another's behalf.

Forſtal, (Law-Term) a being quit of Amerciaments or Fines, and Cattel arreſted within one's Land.

To Forſwear, to ſwear falſely.

Forſwonk or Forſwat, (old Engliſh) over-laboured and Sun-burnt.

Fort, (Lat.) a Caſtle, or Strong-hold of ſmall Extent; a Work intrench'd on all Sides, to ſecure or make good any Spot of Ground, or the Paſs of a River; to defend the Lines of a Siege, &c.

Fort Royal, a Fort that has 26 Fathoms for the Line of Defence.

Field-fort. See Fortin.

Star-fort, a kind of Redoubt made of re-entring and ſaliant Angles, which commonly have from five to eight Points.

Fortifiable, that is capable of being fortified.

Fortification or Military Architecture, an Art which teaches how to ſtrengthen or ſecure a Place with Ramparts, Breaſt-works, Moats, &c. to the end that a ſmall Body of Men within that Incloſure, may be able to defend themſelves for a conſiderable time, againſt a great Army; ſo that the Enemy cannot attack them without ſuffering great Loſs: The Word is alſo taken to ſignify all the Works that ſerve to cover or defend a ſtrong Place.

Regular Fortification, is that which is built on a regular Polygon, or many-ſided Figure, the Sides and Angles of which, are all equal and diſtant about a Musket's Shot one from another.

Irregular Fortification, is that where the Sides and Angles are not all uniform, equidiſtant, or equal one to another.

Durable Fortification, that which is made to continue a long while.

Temporary Fortification, that which is rais'd upon ſome extraordinay Occaſion for a ſhort time; ſuch are all ſorts of Works caſt up for the ſeizing or maintaining of a Poſt or Paſſage; as alſo Batteries, Trenches, Redoubts, &c.

To Fortify, to ſtrengthen, or make ſtrong to fence; to ſecure a Place after a regular manner with Ramparts, Ditches, and other Bulwarks.

Fortin, or Field-fort, a ſmall Fort of different Extent or Figure, according to the Situation, or Nature of the Ground: The Uſe of ſuch Forts being only to guard ſome Paſſage or dangerous Poſt, to ſtrengthen a Line of Circumvallation, &c.

Fortility, (in old Statutes) a fortify'd Place, a Caſtle or Bulwark; as Within the Towns and Fortilities of Berwick and Carliſle.

Fortitude, Valour, Courage, or Stoutneſs of Mind; one of the Cardinal Vertues by which a Man acts according to the Rules of Reaſon, even in the midſt of the greateſt Adverſities.

In Aſtrology, Fortitudes, are certain Advantages that Planets have to make their Influences more ſtrong, by being ſo or ſo placed, qualified, or affected.

Fortlet, (old Law-Term) a little Fort, a place of ſome Strength.

Fortreſs, a Place fortify'd either by Art or Nature, a Strong-hold.

Fortuitous, that happens, or comes by Chance; accidental.

Fortunate, happy, lucky.

Fortune, a Goddeſs, whom the Heathens look'd upon, as the Ruler of all Events, both good and bad. The Word is now taken for Adventure, Hap, or Chance; alſo Eſtate, Goods, Credit, Advantage, Settlement in the World, &c. Whence Wealth, Honour, Preferment, with other inconſtant and periſhable Comforts of this Life, are ſaid to be The Bleſſings of Fortune.

Fortunes, (in Aſtrol.) the Two benevolent Planets, Jupiter and Venus, ſo call'd by reaſon of their kind and friendly Nature.

Fortuny, a kind of Tournament, or running a tilt on Horſe-back with Lances; a Sport much us'd in old Times.

Forum, (Lat.) a Market-place at Rome, where Things were ſold; as Forum Olitorium, the Herb-Market, Forum Piſcarium, the Fiſh-Market: Alſo a Place where the People met about Buſineſs, and where Matters of Judgment were pleaded and decided, as in our Weſtminſter-Hall.

Forurth, (in ancient Deeds) a long ſlip of Ground.

Forwelked, (old Word) dried.

Forwyned, (old Word) withered.

Foſs, (Lat.) a Trench, Moat, Ditch, or Pit.

Foſs-way, one of the Four principal High-ways of England, made by the Romans, and ſo call'd from its being Ditched in on both Sides: It leads from Cornwall, through Devonſhire, by Coventry, Lieceſter, Newark, &c. and ſo to Lincoln.

Foſſa Magna, (in Anat.) the inward hollowneſs of the Vagina, or Neck of the Womb.

Foſſatorum Operatio, (in old Records) Foſs-work, or the Service of Labouring formerly done by Inhabitants and Neighbouring Tenants, for repairing and maintaining the Ditches round a City or Town; for which ſome paid a Duty call'd Foſſagium.

Foſſatum, a Trench, a Place intrenched, or moated about: In our Law-Records, it alſo ſignifies a Ditch, or Place fenced with a Ditch, or the Trench of a cut River.

Foſſellum or Foſſetellum, a ſmall Ditch, or Trench.

Foſſet or Forſet, a little long Coffer, or Cheſt.

Foſſile, that is, or may be digged out of the Ground, as foſſile Salt.

Foſſile Wood. See Subterraneous Wood.

Foſſils, all ſorts of Bodies whatever that are dug out of the Earth; generally ſo call'd by Writers in Natural Philoſophy.

To Foſter, to nouriſh, cheriſh, or bring up.

Foſter-Land, Land appointed, ſet out, or given, for the finding of Food or Victuals for one or more Perſons; as in Monaſteries for the Monks, &c.

Fother or Fodder, a Weight of about a Tun, or Twenty Hundred; which is a Wain, or Cart-load.

Fother of Lead, (according to Skene) is 128 Stone. See Fodder.

Fotmel, a Weight of Lead of Ten Stone, or Seventy Pounds.

Fotus, (Lat.) a nouriſhing, or keeping warm; alſo a Fomentation or Bathing of a Part.

Fovea, a deep Hole in the Ground to catch wild Beaſts; a Den, or Cave. In ſome of our old Records, it is taken for a Grave to bury the Dead in. Among Aſtrologers, the fourth Houſe of a Figure of the Heavens; the ſame as Imum Cœli.

Fovea Cordis, (in Anat.) a hollowneſs in the Breaſt above the Heart, the Pit of the Stomach, otherwiſe call'd Scrobiculus Cordis, and Anticardium.

Fougade or Fougaſſe, (Fr.) a kind of Mine made like a Well, Eight or Ten Foot wide, and Ten or Twelve in breadth, charg'd with Barrels or Bags of Powder, to blow up a Work, a Lodgment, or a Poſt that is like to be loſt.

Foul, full of Dirt, filthy, naſty, ill-favoured, baſe. In Sea-Language, when a Ship has been long untrimmed, ſo that Graſs, Weeds, Barnacles, or Periwinkles, grow or ſtick to her Sides; ſhe is ſaid to be Foul. A Rope is alſo ſaid to be Foul, when it is intangled in it ſelf, or hinder'd by another, ſo that it cannot run, or be haled.

Foul-water, (Sea-Term) a Ship is ſaid To make Foul Water, when being under Sail ſhe comes into ſuch ſhole or ſhallow Water, that ſhe raiſes the Sand, Mud, or Oaze in her Courſe, tho' her Keel does not touch the Ground.

Fouldage, (a Word us'd in Norfolk) the liberty of Folding or Penning Sheep by Night.

Foulk, (Germ.) a proper Name of Men.

To Found, to build, or cauſe to be built, to ſettle; to eſtabliſh, or ground; alſo to caſt Metal.

Foundation, the loweſt part of a Building, which ſupports the whole Pile, the Ground-work of a Thing; the raiſing of a Publick Building for pious Uſes, or the Building it ſelf ſo ſettled.

Founder, one that builds, or endows a Church, College, Hoſpital, &c. or leaves yearly Revenues for the Reading of Prayers, Preaching a Sermon, &c. Alſo an Artificer, whoſe buſineſs is to melt Metals, to caſt them in Moulds, &c.

To Founder, to over-ride, or ſpoil a Horſe with hard working, or to be ſo diſabled: In Sea-affairs, a Ship is ſaid To Founder, when by an extraordinary Leak, or by any great Wave breaking in, ſhe is ſo fill'd with Water, that ſhe cannot be freed of it, and ſinks under its Weight.

Foundling, a Child found expoſed, or left deſtitute.

Found'ring in the Feet, a Diſeaſe in Horſes, that comes by hard Riding, or ſore Labour, or by great Heats and Colds, cauſing malignant Humours to ſettle in the Feet, with a great numneſs and pricking in the Hoof.

Found'ring or Cheſt-found'ring, a Diſeaſe in a Horſe diſcover'd by his often coveting to lie down, and ſtanding ſtraddling with his Fore-legs. Found'ring in the Body, may alſo befall a Horſe, when the Meat not being well digeſted breeds ill Humours, which ſpread all over his Limbs, and at laſt oppreſs the whole Body; ſo that he cannot go, or bend his Joynts, and being once laid, cannot riſe again; neither can he ſtale, or dung without great Pain.

Founes, (old Word) Devices.

Fountain, a Place where Water breaks out, and ſprings forth in Drops from the Earth; alſo the Source or ſpring-head of a River.

Fourche, (Fr.) a Fork, or Pitch-fork, a forked ſhoot of a Tree. In Common Law, a Delay, the prolonging or putting off an Action. In Heraldry, a Croſs fourché, is a Croſs forked at each end.

Fourier, an Under-Harbinger, or Meſſenger.

Fourneau, a kind of little Oven, or Stove. In the Art of War, the Chamber of a Mine, being a Hollow made under ſome Work that is to be blown up, and commonly charg'd with about a Thouſand Weight of Powder.

Fourneau Superficiel. See Caiſſon.

Fourth, a Term in Muſick. See Diateſſaron.

Foutgeld. See Footgeld.

Fowler, one that goes a fowling, i. e. to catch Fowl or Birds; alſo a Piece of Ship-Artillery, otherwiſe call'd a Paterero.

Fox, a well known Beaſt of Chace, call'd a Cub the firſt Year, a Fox the ſecond, and an Old Fox the third.

Fox-gloves, an Herb of a bitter Taſte, and cleanſing Quality.

Fox-tail, a ſort of Herb.

Foxes-Evil. See Alopecia.

Foy, as To give or pay one's Foy, i. e. to Treat his Friends, upon going out of Town, or taking a Journey.

To Foyl, (in Husbandry) to Fallow Land in the Summer or Autumn.

Foyling, (among Hunters) the Foot-ſteps of a Stag on the Graſs, or Leaves.

† Fracid, (Lat.) rotten-ripe, hoary and putrefy'd.

Fraction, (i. e. Breaking) Diſſenſion, or Strife among Parties. In Arithmetick, a broken Number, being a proportionable part of any Integer, or whole Thing. Such a Fraction conſiſts of two Parts, a Numerator and a Denominator, which are ſeparated by a little Line; the former being above that Line, and the other below it; as $\frac{1}{2}$, $\frac{2}{3}$, $\frac{3}{5}$, &c. Where ſome Whole is ſuppos'd to be divided into 2, 3, or 5, equal Parts, and then that 1, 2, or 3, ſuch Parts are to be taken.

Fractions, are either Proper or Improper, as alſo Single or Compound.

A Proper Fraction is leſs than the Whole; the Numerator being leſs than the Denominator; ſuch are thoſe but now produc'd; alſo $\frac{5}{8}$, $\frac{7}{10}$, $\frac{9}{11}$, &c.

An Improper Fraction, has a Numerator greater, or at leaſt equal to the Denominator, as $\frac{6}{4}$, $\frac{4}{4}$; the former being equal to $1\frac{1}{2}$, and the other to 1 Integer, or whole Thing: So that they are whole or mixt Numbers only put into the Form of Fractions, in order to be added, ſubtracted, multiply'd, or divided, &c.

A Single Fraction, is that which conſiſts of one Numerator and one Denominator, as $\frac{3}{5}$, $\frac{5}{9}$, $\frac{6}{7}$, &c.

A Compound Fraction, or a Fraction of a Fraction, has more Numerators and Denominators than one, and may be diſcover'd by the Particle of ſet between them; as $\frac{2}{3}$ of $\frac{3}{4}$.

Fractions of the ſame Denomination, are thoſe whoſe Denominators are equal; as $\frac{2}{8}$, $\frac{3}{8}$, $\frac{5}{8}$, &c.

Decimal Fractions. See Decimal Arithmetick.

Fracture, (i. e. breaking, or burſting) a Term in Surgery for the breaking of a Bone; a Solution of Continuity in the hard or bony parts of the Body.

Frænulum, a little Bridle: In Surgery, a skinny String under the Tongue, which in new-born Children, (ſaid to be tongue-tied) ſometimes ſpreads too far towards the tip of it, and is to be cut aſunder.

Frænulum or Frænum Penis, a Membrane, or thin Skin, which ties the Fore-skin to the lower Part of the Glans, or Nut of the Yard.

Fragaria or Fragum, the Straw-berry, a Fruit of a cooling and moiſtening Quality; the diſtilled Water of which comforts the Heart, purges the Blood, and Cures Ulcers of the Mouth.

Fragil, apt to break, brittle; frail, or weak.

Fragility, Brittleneſs.

Fragment, a broken part, or piece of any Thing.

Fragrancy, ſweetneſs of Smell.

Fragrant, that is of a pleaſant Smell, ſweet-ſcented.

Fraight or Freight, the Burden, Lading, or Merchandize a Ship Carries; alſo the Money paid for ſuch Carriage.

Frail, brittle, weak, feeble.

A Frail, a Basket of Ruſhes, or ſuch like Materials, to pack up Figs, Raiſins, &c. Alſo a certain quantity of Raiſins, about 75 Pounds.

To Frain, (old Scotch Word) to ask, or deſire.

Fraiſe, (Fr.) a Straw-berry; alſo a Kid's, or Calve's Chaldron.

In Fortification, Fraiſes are pointed Stakes about Six or Seven Foot long, driven about a third part into the Wall or Rampart of a Place near the Foot of the Parapet or Breaſt-work: They are ſtuck in ſomewhat ſloping, with their Points downwards, that Men may not ſtand on them; their Uſe being to prevent Surprizes, Scalado's, and Deſertion.

To Fraiſe a Battallion, (in the Art of War) is ſo to line it every way with Pikes, that it may ſtand the Shock of a Body of Horſe.

Frame, Form, Figure, Make, an Engine to put about any Thing: Among Artificers, the Out-work of a Clock or Watch, conſiſting of the Plates and Pillars, and containing in it the Wheels, with the reſt of the Work.

To Frame, to form, to create, to build, to contrive.

Frampole-Fence, a Privilege enjoy'd by the Tenants of the Manour of Writtle in Eſſex, to have the Wood growing on the Fence, and as many Trees or Poles as a Man can reach from the top of the Ditch, with the helve of his Ax, for the repairing of his Fence.

Franc, a French Liver, worth 1 s. 6 d. Sterling.

Franchiſe, Liberty, Freedom; a particular Immunity or Privilege belonging to a City or Corporation: In Common Law, a Privilege or Exemption from an ordinary Juriſdiction; alſo ſometimes, a freedom from Tribute.

Franchiſe Royal, is where the Queen grants to a Man and his Heirs, that they ſhall be free from Toll, and ſuch like Impoſitions.

Franci or Franks, a certain People anciently inhabiting a part of Germany, who enter'd Gallia or Gaul under the Conduct of Pharamond, and conquer'd a great part of the Kingdom; whence it was afterwards call'd France.

Francigena, a French-man, a Foreigner. See Englecery.

Francis, a proper Name from the German Word Frank, i. e. free; anſwering to Eleutherius in Greek, and Liberius in Latin. For the nicity of diſtinction between the Man's Name and the Woman's, 'tis generally thought fit to write the former Francis, and the other Frances.

St. Francis Pear, a ſort of Pear, good only for baking or preſerving.

Franciſcans, an Order of Friers, founded by St. Francis of Aſſiſi in Italy. A. D. 1198. They are enjoyn'd Chaſtity, Poverty, and Obedience, and obſerve many other ſtrict Rules of Life and Converſation.

Francling, an old Law-Word for a Freeholder.

Francolin, a ſort of Red-legged Bird, fit for Hawking; a Heath-cock, Snite, or Rail.

Frangible, (Lat.) that may be broken.

Frangula, the Black Alder-tree.

Frank, free, open-hearted, generous, bountiful.

A Frank, a Place to feed a Boar in.

Frank-Almoin, (Law-Term) a Tenure, or manner of holding ſuch Lands or Tenements as are beſtow'd upon People that give themſelves up wholly to the Service of God, for pure and perpetual Alms.

Frank-Bank or Free-Bench, that Eſtate in Copy-hold Lands, which the Wife, being eſpous'd a Virgin, has after her Husband's Deceaſe for her Dower.

Frank-Chace, a Liberty of free Chace in a Circuit adjoyning to a Foreſt, by which all Men, tho' they have Land of their own within that Compaſs, are forbidden to cut down Wood, &c. without the View of the Foreſter.

Frank-Fee, that which is in the Hand of the Queen or Lord of the Manour, being Ancient Demeſne of the Crown; whereas that which remains in the Hands of the Tenants, is Ancient Demeſne only: Or elſe Frank-Fee is a Tenure in Fee Simple, which a Man holds at the Common Law to himſelf and his Heirs, and not by ſuch Service as is requir'd in Ancient Demeſne.

Frank-Ferme, is Land, or Tenement, wherein the Nature of the Fee is chang'd by a Feoffment, or grant in Fee Simple, out of Knight-Service, for certain yearly Services, ſo as to be free'd from Homage, Worſhip, Relief, and all other Services that are not contain'd in the Feoffment.

Frank-fold, is where the Lord has Power to Fold or Pen up his Tenant's Sheep within his Manour, for the Tilling or Improving of his Land.

Frank-law, is taken for a free enjoyment of all thoſe Privileges, which the Law allows a Man that is not found guilty of any hainous Offence.

Frank-Marriage, a Tenure in Tail Special, by which a Man and his Wife have Land given to them and the Heirs of their Bodies, and ſhall do no Fealty or Homage to the Donour till the fourth Degree.

Frank-Pledge, a Pledge, or Surety for Free-men; an Ancient Cuſtom obſerv'd in England, for preſerving the Publick Peace; whereby a certain Number of Neighbours were bound one for another, to ſee every Man of their Pledge forth-coming; to anſwer any Tranſgreſſion with which he ſhould be charg'd.

The Circuit of this Frank-Pledge was call'd Decenna, becauſe it uſually conſiſted of Ten Houſeholds, and every particular Perſon thus bound for himſelf and Neighbours, was ſtyl'd Decennier, Deciner or Doſiner.

Frank-Tenement. See Free-hold.

Frankfurt, the chiefeſt Mart-Town in Germany, and one of the Imperial Cities in the Circle of the Rhine.

Frankincenſe, a ſweet-ſcented Gum, iſſuing from an Arabian Tree of the ſame Name, like the Laurel in Leave and Bark. It is us'd in Phyſick, as alſo for the perſuming of Rooms, Garments, &c.

Frantick, that has the Frenzy, Mad, or Diſtracted.

Frateria, (in old Latin Records) a Fraternity, Brother-hood, or Society of Religious Perſons, who were mutually bound to pray for the Health, &c. of their Living Brethren, and the Souls of thoſe that were Dead.

Fraternal, belonging to a Brother, Brotherly; as Fraternal Union, or Love, &c.

Fraternity, a Brother-hood, the Relation of one Brother to another; alſo a Company of Men enter'd into a firm bond of Society or Friendſhip.

Fratricelli, a Sect of Hereticks that had one Harman for their Ring-leader, A. D. 1304. They Preach'd up Community of Goods among Chriſtians, and that it was unlawful for them to be Governours one over another.

Fratricide, Brother-Slaughter, the Killing of a Brother; or one that kills his Brother.

Fraud, Deceit, Guile, Cheat, Coſenage.

Fraudulency, Deceitfulneſs, Craftineſs, Knavery.

Fraudulent, inclined to, or done with fraud, deceitful.

Fraxinella, (Lat.) Baſtard, or White Dittany, a Plant with very beautiful Flowers, good againſt Stoppages, Stone and Strangury.

Fraxinus, the Aſh-tree, whoſe Seed, powder'd and taken in Wine, forces Urine, and is good for the Dropſy.

Fray, Fight, Scuffle, Quarrel.

To Fray, to fret as Cloth or Stuff does by rubbing, or over-much wearing.

Among Hunters, a Deer is ſaid To Fray her Head, when ſhe rubs it againſt a Tree, to renew it, or to cauſe the Pills of her new Horns to come off.

Freak, a Whimſey or Maggot, and idle Conceit.

Fream, (in Husbandry) Arable, or Plough'd Land worn out of Heart, and laid Fallow till it recover.

To Fream, a Term apply'd by Hunters, to a Boar that makes a Noiſe in Rutting-time.

Frederick, (Germ. Rich Peace) a proper Name, of which there have been Three Emperours of Germany, and as many King's of Denmark.

Frediſwid, (Sax. very free) a proper Name of Women.

To Free, to ſet, or make free, to deliver: In Sea-affairs, the Pump frees the Ship, when it throws out more Water than comes in by Leakage: On the contrary, when the Men cannot diſcharge the Water as faſt as it Leaks in, their uſual Phraſe is, The Pump cannot free her: The bailing or lading Water out of a Boat, is likewiſe call'd freeing the Boat.

Free-bench. See Frank-Bank.

Free-booter, a Soldier that makes Inrodes into an Enemy's Country for Cattel, or any other Commodity; a Soldier that ſerves for Plunder without Pay: Alſo a Pirate, or Rover at Sea.

Free-bord, a certain Quantity of Ground beyond, or without the Fence; as of Two Foot and a Half, &c. which is claimed in ſome Places.

Free Chappel, (as ſome ſay) is a Chappel founded within a Pariſh, over and above the Mother-Church, to which it was free for the Pariſhioners to come, or not to come: Or rather, Free Chappels are thoſe of the Queen's Foundation, exempted or freed from the Juriſdiction of the Ordinary. See Chappel.

Freedſtoll or Fridſtoll, (Sax. i. e. the Stool of Peace) a certain Stone-Chair plac'd in a Church near the Altar, to which Offenders us'd to fly for Sanctuary: Of theſe there were many in England; but the moſt Famous was that which King Athelſtan ſet up at Beverley, in Honour of John of Beverley, Archbiſhop of York.

Free-hold or Frank-Tenement, (in Common Law) is that Land or Tenement, which a Man holds in Fee, Fee-tail, or at leaſt for Term of Life: It is alſo ſometimes taken in Oppoſition to Villenage.

Free-hold in Deed, is the actual Poſſeſſion of Lands or Tenements in Fee, &c.

Free-hold in Law, is the Right that a Man has to ſuch Lands or Tenements, before his Seizure or Entry upon them.

Free-holders, they that enjoy a Freehold, ſo call'd becauſe they hold Lands or Tenements Inheritable, by a perpetual Right to them and their Heirs for ever.

Free-ſtone, a kind of Stone dug up in ſeveral parts of England, that works like Alabaſter, and is of excellent uſe in Building, &c.

Free-Warren, the power of granting or denying Licence to any, to Hunt or Chaſe in ſuch or ſuch Lands.

Freez, a ſort of Woollen-cloth, probably ſo call'd, becauſe it was firſt invented or made by the Friſons: Alſo a Term in Architecture. See Frize.

In Gunnery, the ſame as the Muzzle-ring of a Cannon; all the Rings near the Mouth are alſo ſometimes call'd the Freezes.

Freezing Mixture, (among Naturaliſts) that which is mixt together, in order to cauſe other Bodies to freez or congeal into Ice; as all ſorts of Salt, Spirit of Wine, Oil of Vitriol, &c. mingled with Snow.

Freezland-Horſe. See Chevaux de Friſe.

Fremd, (old Word) ſtrange.

Fremund, (Sax. free Peace) a Proper Name.

French-beans or Kidney-beans, a ſort of Pulſe.

French-men, a Word anciently us'd to ſignify every Foreigner or Out-landiſh Man.

French-Marigold, a kind of beautiful Flower.

French Pox. See Lues Venerea.

Frendleſs-man, a Word us'd by our Saxon Anceſtours for an Out-law'd Perſon; perhaps becauſe upon his being debarr'd from the King's Peace and Protection, he was deny'd all help of Friends after certain Days.

Frenſy or Frenzy, a ſort of Madneſs, or Dotage.

Frequency, (Lat.) the frequent, or often repeating of a thing.

Frequent, that happens often, uſual, common, ordinary.

To Frequent, to haunt, or viſit often, to go, or reſort often to; to converſe, or keep Company with.

Frequentative, (in Grammar) a Term apply'd to ſuch Verbs as denote the repitition of an Action.

Freſca, (in old Records) Freſh Water, Rain, or a Land-flood.

Freſcades, (Ital.) ſhady, cool Walks, Bowers, or other Refreſhments in the heat of Summer.

Freſco, as To walk in Freſco, i. e. to take the freſh Air. To Drink in Freſco, to Drink cool Liquors.

To Paint in Freſco, to Paint upon bare Walls, Cielings, &c. before the Plaiſtering be dry, that the Colours may ſink in.

Freſh-Diſſeiſin, (Law-Term) that Diſſeiſin, which a Man may ſeek to defeat of his own Power, without the help of the Queen or the Judges.

Freſh-fine, that which was levy'd within a Year paſt.

Freſh-force, a Force done within Forty Days.

Freſh-gale, (in Sea-Language) is when a Wind blows immediately after a Calm.

Freſh-man, a Novice, or young Student in an Univerſity, College, &c.

Freſh-ſhot, (among Sea-men) is when any great River falls into the Sea, ſo that it is freſh Water for a Mile or Two at the Mouth of that River; which ſometimes happens accidentally, by the ſudden deſcent of Land-waters, and it is accordingly call'd A great, or A ſmall Freſh-ſhot.

Freſh-ſuit, (in Common Law) is ſuch an earneſt following of an Offender, as never ceaſes from the time of the Offence committed or diſcover'd, till he be apprehended, or ſeiz'd.

Freſh-ſuit within the View, impowers the Officers that purſue Treſpaſſers in the Foreſt, to ſeize them, even without the Bounds of it.

Freſh-water Soldier, a raw unexperienced Warriour; alſo an Herb ſo call'd.

Fret, a Fume, or heat of Paſſion; alſo a particular Stop in a Muſical Inſtrument, ſuch as are uſually diſtinguiſh'd by Strings or Wires ty'd round it at certain Diſtances.

In Heraldry, Fret is a Bearing, wherein ſeveral Lines run croſſing one another, which is ſometimes made up of Eight Pieces, and then 'tis expreſs'd to be ſo; but if it conſiſt of more, it is termed Fretté. See Diaper'd.

Fretted, that has the Skin rubb'd off. Viols, Lutes, and other Inſtruments are ſaid to be fretted, when they have their ſeveral Frets or Stops marked upon them.

Friable, (Lat.) that may be eaſily crumbled, broken, or divided into ſmall Parts, by rubbing.

Fribbling, captious, impertinent, trifling; as a Fribbling Queſtion.

Friborgh, Friburgh, or Frithburg, (Sax.) a Surety for the Peace or good Behaviour; the ſame in the Saxon Times as the French Frank-Pledge ſince the Conqueſt. See Frank-Pledge.

Fricandue, (Fr. in Cookery) a ſort of Scotch Collops made of thin ſlices of Veal, well larded and ſtuff'd; which are afterwards to be dreſs'd in a Stew-pan, cloſe cover'd over a gentle Fire.

Fricaſſee or Fricaſſy, a Diſh of fry'd Meat, as of Chickens, Rabbets, Scotch Collops, &c.

Frication or Friction, (Lat.) Rubbing: In Phyſical Preſcriptions, a rubbing or chafing any part of the Body either dry, with the Hands or Linnen-clothes, or moiſt with Waters, Oils, Ointments, &c.

Friday, the ſixth Day of the Week, anciently ſet a-part by our Saxon Anceſtours, for the Worſhip of the Goddeſs Friga; which See.

Good Friday, the Friday next before Eaſter, appointed by the Church to be kept Holy, in remembrance of Chriſt's Paſſion.

Friendly Society, one of the Offices ſettled in London, for the Inſuring of Houſes from Caſualties by Fire: The Reward or Conſideration-Money paid for Inſuring, to the Value of 100 l. in this Office, is 1 s. 4 d. per Annum for Seven Years. The Device of it is a Sheaf of Arrows, and the Number of Houſes inſur'd ſince, A. D. 1684. is 12500.

Frier, (Fr.) a Monk or Religious Perſon: Of theſe there are Four principal order or Branches, viz. Firſt, Minors, Franciſcans or Gray Friers. Second, Auguſtines. Third, Dominicans, or Black Friers. Fourth, Carmelites or White Friers; which See in their proper Places.

In the Art of Printing, a Frier, is a Sheet or Page ſo ill worked off at Preſs, that it can hardly he read.

Friga, a certain Idol Worſhipped by the Saxons in old Times, under the form of an Hermaphrodite.

Frigat, (Fr.) a ſmall Man of War, built ſomewhat lower and longer than others, for ſwift Sailing, and not having above Two Decks.

Frigefaction, (Lat.) a cooling, or making cold.

Frigeratory, a Place to make or keep things cool.

Frigid, cold, impotent, ſlight.

Frigid Zone. See Zone.

Frigidarium, a Place in the Baths at Rome, to cool the People; a cold Bath, or a Bath of cold Water.

Frigidity, Coldneſs, Inability for the Sports of Venus.

Frigorifick Particles, (in Philoſ.) ſmall Particles of Matter eſſentially cold, which ent'ring and piercing other Bodies, produce in them that Quality which is called Cold.

To Frill, (in Falconry) as the Haw frills, i. e. trembles, or ſhivers.

Fringilla, or Frigilla, (Lat.) the Chaffinch, or Spink, a Bird.

Fringillarius, or Frigillarius, the Sparrow-Hawk, an Hobby or Musket.

Friperer, one that ſcours and trims up old Apparel to ſell again; a Broker.

Fripery, the Place where ſuch Friperers drive their Trade; a Street of Brokers, as Long-lane in London: Alſo Stuff of little Value, Lumber, Trumpery.

To Friſk, to leap or jump up and down.

To Friſt, (in Traffick) to ſell Goods at time, or upon Truſt.

Frit, Salt, or Aſhes fry'd or bak'd together with Sand.

Frith, anciently ſignify'd a Plain between Woods, and in Chaucer a Wood: Alſo all Hedge-wood except Thorns. The Saxons made uſe of the Word to expreſs Peace or Liberty; but it is now taken, eſpecially in Scotland, for an Arm of the Sea, or Mouth of a great River.

Frithburgh. See Friburgh.

Frithbrech, (Sax.) the breaking of the Peace.

Frithſoken, or Frithſocne, a Liberty, Privilege, or Power of having Frank-Pledge.

Fritillary, (Lat.) a ſort of Flower which is often very finely checker'd, and reſembles the Shape of a Dice-box; whence it has its Name.

Frivolous, that is of no Account or Value; vain, ſlight, ſorry, pitiful, trifling.

Frize, or Freez, (in Architect.) a part of the Entablature, between the Architrave and the Cornice.

To Frizzle, to curl or criſp.

Frodmortel, or Freomortel, (old Law-term) an Immunity, or Free Pardon, granted for Murder or Man-ſlaughter.

Frog, a creeping Creature, of which there is a ſort in Virginia, eight or ten times as big as any in England, that make a Noiſe like the bellowing of a Bull: Alſo a kind of Fiſh; alſo the Fruſh of a Horſe's Foot.

Frog-bit, an Herb much of the Nature of, if not a kind of Water-Lilly.

Frog-graſs, or Toad-graſs, an Herb.

Frog-lettice, another kind of Herb.

Froiſe, a ſort of Pan-cake, made of Flower, Eggs and Bacon.

Frolick, a Whim, a merry Prank.

Frolickſome, or Frolick, full of Frolicks, merry, jocund.

Frondoſity, a being full of green Leaves. In Architecture, a Repreſentation of Leaves, juſt under the Architrave.

Frons (Lat.) the Fore-head, the upper part of the Face.

Front, the Fore-part of a thing, or of a Building, Room, &c. In Perſpective, the Orthographical Projection of an Object upon a Parallel Plane: In Fortification, the Face of a Work, or that part which is comprehended between the Points of any two neighbouring Baſtions.

In the Art of War the Front is the foremoſt Rank of a Battalion, Squadron, or other Body of Men.

To Front every Way, is when the Men are fac'd to all ſides.

Front-line, a Term in Perſpective. See Line of the Front.

Front-ſtall, a part of a Horſe's Bridle.

Frontal Bone, the Bone of the Forehead.

Frontale, (Lat.) a Frontlet or Forehead-cloth, the Front-ſtall of a Horſe-bridle: Alſo an outward Medicine apply'd to the Forehead in Diſtempers of the Head.

Frontalis, (in Anat.) a Pair of Muſcles that draw up and wrinkle the Skin of the Forehead; taking Riſe from the upper Part of the Os Frontis, near the Coronal Suture.

Frontatum, a Term us'd by Herbaliſts to ſignify, That the Leaf of a Flower call'd Petalum grows broader and broader, and at laſt perhaps is bounded by a Right-line. 'Tis taken in Oppoſition to Cuſpidatum, which expreſſes, that the Leaves of a Flower end in a Point.

Frontiers, the Limits or Borders of a Country or Province.

Frontiniack, a kind of rich luſcious Wine made at Frontiniac, a Town near Montpellier in France.

Frontis Os, or Coronale, (Lat. in Anat.) a Bone of the Scull almoſt of a round Figure, which joyns the Bones of the Sinciput and Temples, by the Coronal Suture, as alſo thoſe of the Upper Jaw, by the Tranſverſal Suture and the Os Sphenoides, or Wedge-like Bone by the Sphenoidal Suture.

Frontiſpiece, the facing, or Fore-front of a Building; alſo an Emblem or Picture ſet before the Title of a Book, to ſhew the Deſign of it.

Frontlet, an Attire for the Forehead, a kind of Forehead-cloth formerly worn by Women.

Fronton, (in Architect.) a Member that ſerves to compoſe an Ornament, raiſed over Croſs-works, Doors, Nitches, &c. ſometimes making a Triangle, and ſometimes part of a Circle: It is otherwiſe call'd a Pediment, and Faſtigium by Vitruvius.

To Frote, (old Word) to rub.

The Frounce, a Diſeaſe in a Hawk's Tongue, alſo certain Warts or Pimples in a Horſe's Palate. See Camery.

Frow, a Dutch Word for a Woman.

Froward, peeviſh, croſs, ſurly, ſtubborn, ſaucy.

Frower, an Edge-tool, us'd in cleaving Lathes.

Frozen Zones. See Zones.

Fructiferous, (Lat.) bearing Fruit; as ſome Trees are fructiferous, ſome not. 'Tis alſo apply'd by the Lord Bacon and others to ſuch Experiments in Natural Philoſophy, as bring gain or Profit to thoſe that make th[illegible]

To [illegible], to make fruitful, to bring forth Fruit, to proſper or thrive.

Frugal, thrifty, ſparing, temperate, ſober.

[illegible], Thriftineſs, Sparingneſs in Expences; good Husbandry, Temperateneſs, Soberneſs.

Fruggin, a Fork to ſtir about the Fuel in an Oven.

Fruit, the Product of the Earth, Trees, Plants, &c. Alſo a Deſert or Banquet of Sweet-meats: Alſo Profit taken of Goods, Rent, Revenue; Benefit, Advantage.

Fruitage, all manner of eatable Fruit; alſo branched Work, or the Repreſentation of Fruit in Carving or Painting.

Fruitery, A Place for the keeping of Fruit; a Fruit-houſe or Fruit-loft.

Fru[illegible] Signs, (in Aſtrol.) are Gemini, Cancer and Piſces, ſo called, becauſe if the Moon and Principal Significators be in any of thoſe Signs and ſtrong, there is no doubt the enquiring Party will have Iſſue.

Fruition, (Lat.) Enjoyment.

Frumen, the upper part of the Throat, alſo a kind of Pulſe.

Frumenta, or Frumentaceous Plants (among Herbaliſts) ſuch Plants, as have their Culm or Stalk jointed, and their Leaves like Reeds; bearing their Seed in Ears like common Corn; theſe are the larger ſort of Culmiferous Plants, and otherwiſe call'd Cereales.

Frumentatores, or Frumentarii, (among the Romans) were Officers who brought Corn for Cities or Armies, or receiv'd that which ſome Provinces furniſh'd the Common-wealth with: Alſo Purveyors for the Army, who diſtributed every Day, a certain Quantity of Corn to each Soldier.

Frumentum, all manner of Corn or Grain for Bread; eſpecially Wheat and Rye.

Frumenty, or Furmety, a kind of Potage made of prepared Wheat, Milk, Sugar, Spice, &c.

Frumgilda, (in the Saxon Laws) a Payment made to the Kindred of a ſlain Perſon in Recompence of the Murder.

Frumſtoll, a Manſion-houſe, or chief Seat of a Mannour.

To Frump, to flout or jeer; to taunt or ſnub.

Fruſca Terra, (in old Latin Records) untilled waſte Ground.

Fruſh, or Frog, a part of a Horſe's Foot next the Heel.

Fruſſare Terram, (in ancient Deeds) to break up new Ground.

Fruſſura Domorum, Houſe-breaking by Thieves.

Fruſſura Terræ, Land newly broken or lately plough'd up.

Fruſtraneous, that is in vain, or to no purpoſe.

To Fruſtrate, to deceive or diſappoint, to make void.

Fruſtration, a fruſtrating, deceiving, or diſappointing: In Aſtrology, it is a kind of Debility or Weakneſs, which happens to a Planet, when it is coming towards Conjunction with another, but before they are joyn'd, one of them becomes retrograde; by which means the Deſign is fruſtrated.

Fruſtum, (Lat.) a Fragment, a broken Piece, a Gobbet: In Mathematicks, a Piece cut off, or ſeparated from a Body; as the Fruſtum of a Cone or Pyramid, i. e. a part or piece of it uſually cut off by a Plane Parallel to the Baſe. In Gauging there are alſo Fruſtum's of Conoids, Spheroids, &c.

Frutex, a Shrub, a Sprout; alſo an Herb with a great Stalk.

Frutication, the ſprouting or ſhooting forth of young Sprigs.

Fruticoſe Stalks, (among Herbaliſts) thoſe that are of a hard woody Subſtance.

Fry, the Spawn of young Fiſh, a Multitude or Company.

Fryth. See Frith.

Fuage, or Focage (Fr.) Hearth-money, an Impoſition of Twelve-pence for every Fire-hearth, formerly laid upon the Dukedom of Aquitain by Edward the Black Prince.

Fub, as a fat Fub, i. e. a little plump Child.

Fucus, (Lat.) red Alkanet or Elkanet, an Herb us'd in Dying, with which Women painted their Faces; a Diſguiſe or Cheat; alſo the Drone-bee, an Inſect.

To Fuddle, to overcharge with Drink, to make one drunk.

Fuel. See Fewel.

Fuer, (Fr. Law-term) flying or eſcaping by Flight: Fuer en fait is when a Man does actually fly or run away: Fuer en Ley, is when being call'd in the County, he appears not till he be outlaw'd.

Fuga, (Lat.) Flight, running away, Baniſhment, a Race or Courſe; ſhunning or eſchewing.

Fuga Dæmonum, the Herb St. John's Wort.

Fuga Vacui, Nature's Endeavour to avoid a Vacuum; a Notion of the Peripateticks and ſome other ancient Philoſophers, who held, That Nature abhors ſuch a Vacuum, or empty Space, as is void of all Body.

Fugalia, Feaſts kept in the Month of February by the Romans, in Remembrance of the Liberty reſtor'd to the Common-wealth, after the Kings were driven out of Rome.

Fugile, an Impoſtume in the Ears.

A Fugitive, one that flies out of his Country; a Deſerter or Run-away.

Fugitive's Goods (in a Law-ſenſe) the Goods of one that makes his Eſcape from Juſtice, upon Felony, which being found after the Flight are forfeited to the King, or to the Lord of the Mannour.

Fugue, or Chace, (in Muſick) a Point conſiſting of ſeveral Notes, begun by ſome one ſingle Part, and then ſeconded by a third, fourth, fifth and ſixth Parts, according to the Nature of the Compoſition, repeating the ſame or ſuch like Notes; ſo that the ſeveral Parts anſwer or come in one after another in the ſame manner; the leading Parts flying as it were before thoſe that follow.

Double Fugue, is when two or more different Points move together in a Fugue, and are chang'd by turns one with another, by the ſeveral Parts.

Fulbert, (Germ. full bright) a proper Name of Men.

Fulcrum, (Lat.) a Stay or Prop; alſo a Term in Mechanicks. See Hypomochlion.

To Fulfil, to accompliſh or perform.

Fulgency, Gliſteringneſs or Brightneſs.

Fulgid, bright, ſhining.

Fulguration, a lightning or flaſhing of Fire in the Clouds, which appears before the Thunder: In Chymiſtry, an Operation, by which all Metals except Gold and Silver, are meteoriz'd, or reduc'd into Vapours and Fumes by means of Lead put in the Coppel, and the vehement Heat of a well kindled ſtrong Fire.

Fulica, (Lat.) a Sea-fowl like a Coot; a Moor-hen, or Fen-duck.

Fuliginous, ſooty or full of Smoak; as fuliginous Vapours.

Fuligo, Reech or Soot of the Chimney; alſo a Miſt, Darkneſs, Blackneſs: In a Phyſical Senſe Sulphureous, foul and thick Vapours breath'd out at the Mouth, or thro' the Pores of the Body.

Fullage, Money paid for the fulling of Cloth.

Fuller, one that fulls, mills, or ſcours Cloth.

Fullers Earth, a congeal'd Subſtance mixt with Nitre, which makes it ſcour like Soap: It is digged out of Pits about Brickhil in Bedfordſhire, and thence carry'd to moſt Parts of the Kingdom: Being diſſolv'd in Vinegar it diſperſes Pimples and Puſhes, checks Inflammation, and cures Burns.

Fullers-weed, or Fullers-thiſtle, an Herb.

Fulmart, a kind of Pole-cat.

To Fulminate, (Lat.) to thunder out; as To fulminate an Excommunication.

Fulminating Powder. See Aurum fulminans and Pulvis fulminans.

Fulmination, a Crack or Clap of Thunder: In Chymiſtry, it is when Metals or Minerals heated in the Crucibles make a great crackling Noiſe. See Detonation.

Fulmineum Telum, or Fulminans Lapis, the Thunder-ſtone, a kind of hard Stone, commonly ſuppos'd to fall out of the Clouds with a Clap of Thunder.

Fulſome, noiſome, loathſome, diſtaſtful, naſty, filthy.

Fumagium, (in old Latin Records) Fumage, Dung, or manuring with Dung: Alſo Smoak-farthings, or cuſtomary Payment from every Houſe that had a Chimney or Fire-hearth.

Fumaria, or Fumus Terræ, Fumitory or Earth-ſmoke, an Herb that purges Choler and purifies the Blood; being alſo much us'd in the Leproſy, Itch, French Pox, and other Diſeaſes.

Fumathoes, or Fumadoes, Pilchards garbaged, ſalted and dry'd in Smoke; ſo call'd in Italy and Spain,

Spain, where they are carry'd in great Quantities.

To Fumble, to handle or go about a thing unſkilfully or awkwardly, to towze or rumple.

To Fume, to ſmoke, ſteem, or riſe up in a Fume or Vapour; to chafe, or be in a Fret.

Fumets, or Fewmets, the Ordure or Dung of Hart, &c.

To Fumigate, (Chymical Term) to make one mixt Body receive the Fume or Smoke of another.

Fumigation, a perfuming with the Smoke of Sweet-wood, or other Matter, either for qualifying the Air or helping ſome kind of Diſtempers; in Chymiſtry a fumigating or ſmoking, an Eroſion, or eating away of Metal by Smoke or Vapour.

Fumitory, an Herb of a biting Quality, and hot in the firſt Degree. See Fumaria.

Fummer, or Fulmart, a Pole-cat.

Fumous, or Fumy, apt to fume up, that ſends Fumes into the Head, heady.

Function, the performance or exerciſe of any Office or Duty; a particular Calling or Imployment: In a Phyſical Senſe, the ſame as Action; an effective Motion produc'd in any Part of a Living Creature, by the proper Aptitude or Fitneſs of ſuch a Part for the Uſes appointed by the Author of Nature.

Fund. See Fond.

Funda (Lat.) a Sling, an Inſtrument made of Ropes to caſt forth Stones with a greater Violence; alſo a Satchel or Purſe; a Caſting-net.

Fundament, one's Back-ſide, Breech, or Buttock.

Fundamental, what ſerves for the Foundation or Ground-work; principal, chief.

Fundamental Diagram, a Projection of the Sphere in a Plane, &c.

Fundamentals, fundamental Principles, main Points of any Art or Science.

Fundator, a Founder, eſpecially of a Church, College, Hoſpital, or other Publick Building; which Title in the old Religious Houſes was equivalent to Patron.

Funditores, (among the Romans.) the Slingers, who were a part of their Militia, trained up to caſt Stones or Darts out of a Sling.

Fundus, Land or Ground, with a Houſe belonging to it; a Cloſe, a Bottom.

Fundus Plantæ, (among Herbaliſts) the bottom of a Plant or Herb, where the Stalk and Root juſt meet and joyn.

Funeral, belonging to a Burial, as Funeral-Sermon, Ticket, Torch, &c. Alſo Subſtantively taken for the Burial it ſelf, eſpecially if accompany'd with Pomp and Ceremony.

Funeral Oblations. See Oblations.

Funerary, that relates to a Funeral or Burial; as Funerary Expences.

Fungites (Lat.) the Muſhroom-Stone, a kind of Stone ſo call'd from its ſhape.

Fungous, full of holes, like a Muſhroom or Spunge, light and ſpungy.

Fungus, a Muſhroom or Toad-ſtool, growing from Trees and Shrubs, or immediately out of the Earth: In Surgery, a ſoft ſpungy Fleſh, that grows upon Wounds or Sores; alſo a ſpungy Swelling upon Tendons bruis'd or weaken'd by ſome Hurt.

Funicular Hypotheſis, that which Francis Linus adduces againſt the Spring and Weight of the Air, ſo as to explain the riſing and falling of the Quick-ſilver in a Barometer or Weather-glaſs, by means of a Funiculus, or little String at the Top, being of a very fine thin Subſtance, which is continually drawing it ſelf up or is ſtretch'd out more, according to the different Temperature of the outward Air.

Funicularis. See Catenaria.

Funiculus, a ſmall Rope, Cord or Line; alſo an ancient Egyptian Meaſure of 60 Furlongs, in length about $6\frac{1}{4}$ Engliſh Miles.

In Anatomy Funiculus is taken for the Navel-ſtring of a young Child, a skinny Channel which reaches from the Navel to the Placenta in the Womb, its uſe being to convey the Mother's Blood by the Veins therein to the Child for its Nouriſhment, and to carry back that which is unfit for this purpoſe to the Placenta, by the Arteries. It is otherwiſe call'd Ductus Umbilicalis, Laqueus, and Inteſtinalum.

Funk, a ſtrong rank Smell, particularly that of ſtinking Tobacco.

Funnel, an Inſtrument to convey Liquors into a Veſſel; alſo the upper part of a Chimney.

Fur (Lat.) a Thief or Robber: Alſo a kind of Inſect call'd a Thief, which gets into Bee-hives and devours the Honey; it is bigger than a Bee or Drone, and of a darker Colour.

Furacity, an Inclination to Steal or Pilfer, Thieviſhneſs, Thievery.

To Furbiſh, to poliſh or make bright.

Furbiſher, one that furbiſhes Swords, &c. a Sword-Cutler.

Furbote, Fyrbote, or Fire-bote, (Sax.) a Liberty granted by the Lord to his Tenant, to take Underwood for Fewel and other Uſes in his Family.

Furca, (Lat.) a Fork, a Pitch-fork: Alſo a kind of forked Gibbet that Slaves and other Malefactors among the Romans carry'd to the place of Execution, upon which they were often nail'd, and ſometimes Whipt to Death.

Furca & Foſſa, (in old Records) a Juriſdiction for puniſhing Felons, i. e. Men by Hanging, and Women by Drowning.

Ad Furcam & Flagellum, a Law-Phraſe, ſignifying the meaneſt ſervile Tenure or manner of holding Land, when the Bond-man was at his Lord's Diſpoſal for Life and Limb.

Furcale Os, Furcula ſuperior, or Furcella, (in Anat.) the upper Bone of the Sternum, or Breaſt-bone, otherwiſe call'd Jugulum.

Furchee or Fourche, (Fr. in Heraldry) a kind of Croſs in a Coat of Arms that is forked at each end.

Furendal, Fardingel, or Ferling of Land, the fourth part of an Acre, which in Wiltſhire is ſtill call'd a Furdingale, and in ſome other Parts a Furthindale.

Furendel, or Frundel of Corn, contains two Gawns or Gallons, i. e. the fourth part of a Buſhel.

Furfuration, the falling of Dandriff or Scurf from the Head, when it is comb'd.

Furfures, Scales that fall from the Head, and ſometimes from other parts of the Body, which happens when the Cuticula or Scarf-skin is ſeparated from the Cutis, or real Skin.

Furious, full of Fury, raging, mad, frantick, fierce.

To Furl, (Sea-Term) to wrap up and bind any Sail cloſe to the Yard.

Furling-Lines, ſmall Lines made faſt to the Top-ſails, Top-gallant-ſails, and Miſſen-Yard-Arms, to furl up thoſe Sails.

Furlong, a Meaſure which in moſt places contains forty Poles or Pearches in length, being the eighth part of a Mile.

Furlough, a Licenſe granted by a ſuperiour Officer in War to an inferiour Officer or Soldier, to be abſent for a while from his Charge.

Furmety. See Frumenty.

Furnace, a Kiln for Brewing, and other Uſes; of theſe the Chymiſts have ſeveral ſorts, as the Reverberatory; which ſee.

Moveable Furnace, a Furnace, whoſe ſhape is like that of the Reverberatory, and which is uſually made of a Paſte conſiſting of three parts of Powder of broken Pots, and two parts of Clay, well temper'd together with Water.

Wind-Furnace, or Furnace for Fuſions, is ſo call'd becauſe the Wind comes with force to blow the Coals, in order to fuſe or melt the Matter in the Veſſels call'd Crucibles or Coppels.

Furnage, a Fee paid to the Lord of the Manour by his Tenants, for baking their Bread in his common Oven; alſo the uſual Profit allow'd to private Bakers.

To Furniſh, (Fr.) to find, provide or ſupply; to give or afford.

Furniture, whatever is requiſite for the furniſhing of a Houſe, &c. Among Taylors the Skirt, Hanging-ſleeves, and other under-work belonging to a Child's Coat, &c.

Furniture of a Dial, Lines that are drawn on it for Ornament, as the Parallels of Declination, Length of the Day, Points of the Compaſs, the Babyloniſh and Jewiſh Hours, &c.

Furnivals, an ancient Family, Lords of Fernham in Buckinghamſhire, who hold their Lands by this Tenure, viz. to find the King upon his Coronation-Day a Glove for his Right Hand, and to ſupport his Right Arm whilſt he holds his Scepter.

Furnivals Inn. See Inns of Chancery.

Furnus, (Lat.) a Furnace or Oven, eſpecially ſuch a Furnace or Place where Fire is kept for Chymical Uſes.

Furo, the Fitchet or Fitchow, a little Wild Beaſt.

Furole, (Fr.) a kind of little Meteor appearing amidſt the Sails of a Ship, eſpecially upon an approaching Storm, and by ſome call'd St. Hermes's Fire.

Furor, (Lat.) Fury, Madneſs, Rage.

Furor Uterinus, (i. e. Womb-fury) a ſtrange Diſtemper, which provokes Women to tranſgreſs the Rules of common Modeſty, without reſtraint.

Furr, the Skin of certain Wild Beaſts, which are of ſeveral ſorts, as Calaber, Foins, Genets, Lucerns, Martens, Menevers, Sables, &c. which ſee in their proper places.

In Heraldry Furrs are uſ'd in the doublings of the Mantles belonging to a Coat of Arms, and ſometimes in the Coat it ſelf, being generally of two Colours.

Furring, (in Sea-Affairs) is a laying on double Planks on a Ship's ſides after ſhe is built, which is termed Plank upon Plank; but more properly it is a ripping of the Planks, and putting new Timbers upon the former Timbers, and on them other Planks, which is done to make a Ship bear the better Sail.

Furrow, a Trench or Drain in Land, either left by the Plough, or otherwiſe made.

Furtive, (Lat.) done by Stealth or Privily, ſecret.

Furunculus, a little Thief; alſo a kind of Weaſel; alſo a Boil, a Swelling as big as a Pigeon's Egg, puffed up and painful, eſpecially when it begins to ripen and putrefy; a kind of mild Carbuncle.

Fury, Rage, Madneſs, Frenzy, violent Paſſion, Fierceneſs.

Furies of Hell, feign'd by the Poets to be the Daughters of Acheron and Night, nam'd Alecto, Megæra, and Tiſiphone, whoſe Office was to torment the Minds of lewd Tranſgreſſours; whence 'tis ſaid of a terrible Scolding Woman, That ſhe is a meer Fury.

Furze, a well-known prickly Shrub, which us'd in Phyſick opens Stoppages of the Liver and Spleen, helps the Jaundice, provokes Urine, and cleanſes the Kidneys from Gravel or Stone bred therein.

Fuſarole, (in Architect.) a ſmall round Member, cut in form of a Collar, with ſomewhat long Beads, under the Echinus or Quarter-round of ſome Pillars.

Fuſe, a Term in Gunnery. See Fuſil.

Fuſe, Fuſee, or Fuſel, a Pipe fill'd with Wild-fire, or ſome ſuch Compoſition, and put into the Touch-hole of a Bomb or Granado to fire it.

Fuſee, or Fuſil, a kind of ſhort Musket, or light Gun, with a Fire-lock.

Fuſee, or Fuſy of a Watch, that part about which the Chain or String is wound, and which the Spring draws: in larger Works going with Weights, 'tis called the Barrel, and is made in form of a Cylinder.

Fuſibility, (Lat.) aptneſs or eaſineſs to be melted.

Fuſible, or Fuſile, that may be melted.

Fuſil, a kind of Spindle anciently us'd in Spinning: In Heraldry a Rhomboidical Figure, more ſlender than a Lozenge, and ſomewhat reſembling ſuch a Spindle.

Fuſileer, a Foot-Soldier armed with a Gun call'd a Fuſil or Fuſee, which is generally ſlung: The Artillery is guarded with a Regiment of Fuſileers.

Fuſilly, (in Heraldry) is when the Field of an Eſcutcheon is divided throughout into Fuſils; as he bears Fuſil, Sable, and Ermyn.

Fuſion, a founding or melting: In Chymiſtry it is the melting of Metals or Minerals by the force of Fire, ſo as to make them put on the form or appearance of a fluid Body.

Fuſt, (in Architect.) the Shaft, Trunk, or Body of a Pillar.

Fuſtian, a kind of Stuff made of the Down of a certain Fruit growing in Egypt; alſo Bombaſt, nonſenſical Diſcourſe, or affected Style in Writing.

Fuſtick, a ſort of Wood brought from Barbadoes, Jamaica, &c. and us'd by Dyers.

Fuſty, that has a rank ſmell, ſtinking.

Futile, (Lat.) a Veſſel with a wide Mouth and narrow Bottom, us'd in the Roman Sacrifices to hold the Luſtral Water for the Purifications; ſo call'd becauſe it ſpilt what was put into it if it were ſet on the Ground.

Futility, Emptineſs, Lightneſs, Vanity, Sillineſs.

Futtocks, (Sea-Term) the compaſſing Timbers in a Ship that make the Breadth of it, and are ſcarfed upon the Ground-Timbers; thoſe below next the Keel are call'd the Ground-Futtocks, and the other the Upper-Futtocks.

Future, (Lat.) that ſhall or will be, about to be hereafter.

Future Tenſe, a Term in Grammar. See Tenſes.

Futurition, (in Philoſ.) a future Exiſtence or Being.

Futurity, the Time that is to come, or the future State of Things.

Fuze, a Pipe for a Bomb. See Fuſe.

To Fuzz, to ravel or run out, as ſome ſorts of Stuff and Silk do.

Fyrdunga, (Sax.) a Military Expedition, or a going out to War at the King's Command, which, upon refuſal or neglect, was puniſh'd with a Firdewite, or Fine, at the King's Pleaſure.

Fyre-levin, (old Word) Light'ning.

G A

Gaal, (Heb. Abomination) the Son of Ebed, who ſtirr'd up the Sechemites againſt Abimelech, and took the City of Sechem by Storm.

To Gab, (old Word) to prate or lye.

Gabarage, that which Iriſh Goods are wrapped in.

Gabardine, a Shepherd's courſe Frock, or Cloke, made very ſtrong and thick to bear out the roughest Weather.

Gabberies, Mockeries, Gibes, wily Deceits.

To Gabble, to talk faſt, to prate or prattle, to chat or chatter.

Gabel, (Fr.) an Exciſe in France upon Salt: In our old Records, Charters, &c. it is taken for a Rent, Cuſtom, Duty or Service yielded unto the King, or to ſome other Lord.

Gabionnade, a Bulwark or Defence made with Gabions.

Gabions, or Cannon-baskets, (in Fortif.) great Baskets 5 or 6 Foot high, and about 4 Foot Diameter at top and bottom, which being fill'd with Earth are plac'd upon Batteries, Breaſt-works, Lodgments, &c. to ſecure Men againſt the Enemy's Fire.

Gable-end, (in Architect.) the Head or Top-front of a Houſe or Building; ſome take it for the Frontiſpiece or fore-part.

Gablocks, Artificial Spurs made of Braſs, Iron, or Silver, and fix'd on the Legs of ſuch Cocks as want their natural Spurs. Some call 'em Gaffs.

Gabrantovici, an Ancient People of Great Britain, who inhabited ſome part of Yorkſhire.

Gabriel, (Heb. the Strength of God) an Angel mention'd in the Holy Scriptures, and thence taken for a proper Name of Men.

Gad, (i. e. a Troop or Band) the Son of Jacob by Zilpah, and Father of one of the Twelve Tribes of Iſrael; alſo a Prophet, who convers'd with King David.

Gad, or Geometrical Pearch, a Meaſure of Ten Foot, and in ſome places but Nine Foot.

Gad of Steel, a ſmall Bar or piece of Steel to be heated in the Fire and quench'd in any ſort of Liquor.

To Gad up and down, to roam, rove, or range about.

Gad-fly, or Gad-bee, a kind of Inſect that ſtings Cattel.

Gadling, (old Word) Straggling.

Gaff, an Iron-Hook to pull great Fiſhes into a Ship; alſo an artificial Spur for a Cock. See Gablocks.

Gaffle, part of a Croſs-bow.

Gafol-gild, (Sax.) the Payment of Tribute or Cuſtom; it is alſo ſometimes taken for Uſury.

Gafol-land, or Gavel-land, Land liable to Tribute or Tax.

Gagates, (Gr.) Jet, a Stone which when rubb'd ſmells like Brimſtone, and takes fire immediately; ſo call'd from Gaga, a City of Lycia in the leſſer Aſia, where there was good ſtore of it.

Gage, a Rod to meaſure Caſks with; a Ship's Gage is ſo many Foot of Water as ſhe draws, or ſo many Foot as ſhe ſinks in the Water: In a Law-ſenſe Gage ſignifies a Pawn or Surety.

To Gage, or Wage Deliverance, is to give Security that a thing ſhall be deliver'd.

To Gage, or Gauge, to meaſure with a Gage, in order to find the Capacity or Content of any Veſſel that holds Liquors, Powders, Meal, &c.

To Gage a Ship a-float, (among Seamen) is to ſtick a Nail into a Pike or Pole, and put it down by the Rudder, till it catch hold under it, ſo as to know by that means how much Water the Ship draws.

Weather-Gage, when one Ship has the Wind, or is to the Weather of another, ſhe is ſaid to have the Weather-gage of her.

Gager, Gauger, or Gaulger, an Officer having Authority to give a mark of Allowance to all Tuns, Pipes, Hogſheads, Barrels, &c. of Wine, Ale, Beer, Oil, Honey and Butter, before they be ſold in any place.

To Gaggle, to cry like a Gooſe.

Gaging, or Gauging, the Art of meaſuring ſolid Bodies, eſpecially thoſe concave Solids or hollow Veſſels, which are in uſe among Brewers, as Tuns, Backs, Hogſheads, Barrels, &c.

Gaging-rod, an Inſtrument to meaſure Veſſels of any ſort of Liquor, commonly made with three Joints, and a Semicircle to take Diameters.

Gaiety, (Fr.) Gallantry, Chearfulneſs, Pleaſantneſs, good Humour.

Gaillac, or Galliac Wine, a ſort of French Wine, ſo call'd from Gaillac, a Town of Languedoc, where it is made.

To Gain, to get or win, to obtain or carry.

Gainage, or Wainage, a Word anciently uſ'd to ſignify all Plough-tackle, and neceſſary Implements of Huſbandry: in a Law-ſenſe the Profit ariſing from the Tillage of Land held by the meaner ſort of Sokemen.

Gainery, or Gainure, (Law-term) Tillage or Husbandry; the Profit thence ariſing, or of the Beaſts us'd therein.

To Gainſay, to ſpeak againſt, to withſtand in Words, to deny.

Galactites, (Gr.) a precious Stone, ſo call'd becauſe it is a white as Milk: Alſo a ſort of Earth call'd Milk-marle, good to breed Milk in Womens Breaſts.

Galactophori Ductus, (in Anat.) certain Veſſels, which (according to ſome Modern Authors) convey Milk and the Humour call'd Chyle from the Guts, to the Glandules or Kernels of the Breaſt.

Galades, a ſort of Shell-fiſh, commonly call'd Long Oiſters.

Galanga, a Plant brought from China and the Eaſt-Indies, whoſe Root is almoſt of the ſame Shape and Quality with Ginger.

Galaxy, (Gr. in Aſtron.) a broad white Circle in the Sky call'd The Milky-Way, made by the Light reflected from a great Number of ſmall Stars: Alſo a Stone of a Milk-white Colour. See Milky Way.

Galbanetum, (Lat.) a Medicinal Compoſition made of Galbanum.

Galbanum, a kind of ſtrong-ſcented Gum iſſuing out of a Plant call'd Fennel-Giant, which grows in Syria.

Galbula, a Bird call'd a Witwall or Woodwall.

Galbulus, the Nut or little round Ball of the Cypreſs-tree; alſo a kind of Bird the ſame as Galgulus.

Gale, a blaſt of Wind; alſo a kind of Herb. Among Sea-men, when the Wind blows gently, ſo that a Ship may bear her Top-ſails a-trip, i.e. hoiſed at the Higheſt, it is call'd a Loom-gale; when the Wind is very high, it is termed a freſh, ſtiff, or ſtrong Gale. In fair Weather when there is but little Wind, that Ship which finds moſt of it, and ſails faſteſt, is ſaid To Gale away from the other.

Galea, (Lat.) a Helmet or Head-piece; a Pain in the Head ſo call'd, becauſe it takes in the whole Head like a Helmet: Alſo a Term of Art us'd when the Head of an Infant newly born, is cover'd with part of the Membrane, or Skin call'd Amnios: Alſo a Chymical Veſſel upon which a Retort is plac'd.

Galeate Flowers. See Cucullate Flowers.

Galega, Goats-rue, an Herb excellent againſt the Plague.

Galeges, or Galages, commonly call'd Galloſhoos, a kind of Shoo, in uſe among the ancient Gauls, from whom the Word is deriv'd.

Galena, (Gr.) a ſort of Oar in Mines that affords Silver and Lead.

Galen, a famous Phyſician of Pergamus, who flouriſh'd under the Emperour Commodus, and wrote many excellent Books, which are ſtill extant.

Galenical, or Galenick Phyſick, that which is grounded on the Principles of Galen, and often oppos'd to the Chymical Method of Practice.

Galeniſt, one that embraces the Grounds of that Art, fetch'd from Galen.

Galeon. See Gallion.

Galeopſis, (Gr.) Hungary or blind Nettle, ſtinking dead Nettle; the Juice of which with Vinegar is good for the Piles, takes off Warts, and diſſolves hard Swellings.

Galeos, a Fiſh like a Lamprey.

Galeotes, a kind of Lizzard, an Enemy to Serpents.

Galericulate Flowers. See Cucullate Flowers.

Galerita, (Lat.) the creſted Lark, a Bird; alſo the Sea-Lark, a Fiſh.

Galeus Rhodius, a ſort of Sturgeon.

Galgulus, a Bird, which if one ſee that has the Yellow Jaundice, the Perſon recovers and the Bird dies.

Galingale, a ſort of Water-flag.

Galiot. See Galliot.

Galium, or Gallium, Cheeſe-rennet, or our Lady's Bed-ſtraw; the Herb or the Powder of it ſtops Bleeding, and is good for Cancerous Ulcers.

Gall, one of the Humours of the Body.

To Gall, to fret or rub off the Skin; to teaz or vex; to annoy or dammage.

Gall-nut, a kind of Fruit that grows on an Oak, us'd in Dying, and to make Ink. See Galls.

Galla, (Lat.) the Gall-nut or Oak-apple.

Galla Moſchata, a ſweet-ſmelling Confection made and ſold by the Apothecaries.

Gallant, (Fr.) fine, ſpruce, civil, accompliſh'd; couragious, brave.

A Gallant, a Lover, an Admirer of the Female Sex; a Spark, a Beau, eſpecially one that keeps company with a marry'd Woman.

To Gallant, to court a Woman in the way of a Gallant.

To Gallantize, to play the Gallant.

Gallantry, or Gallantneſs, courteous Behaviour, Genteelneſs, genteel or courtly Way; Courtſhip; alſo Bravery, remarkable Courage, or Valour.

Galleaſs, a great double Galley.

Gallehalpens, or Galley-half-pence, a ſort of Coin brought in by the Genoeſe Merchants, who traded hither in Galleys; and forbidden by Stat. 3. H. 5. See Galley-men.

Gallery (Fr.) a kind of Balcony that ſurrounds a Building; or a Paſſage leading to ſeveral Apartments of a great Houſe. In a Ship it is that beautiful Frame, which is made on the outſide of the Stern, and to which there is a Paſſage out of the Captain's ſleeping-room, or great Cabbin.

In Fortification, Gallery is a cover'd Walk a-croſs the Ditch of a beſieged Town, already fill'd with Faggots and Bavins: 'Tis made of Timber fixt in the Ground; the ſides of it are Musket-proof, conſiſting of a double row of Planks lin'd with Iron-plates; and the Top is loaded with Earth or Turf, to ſecure the Miners from the Enemies Fire.

The Term Gallery, is alſo us'd for the Branch of a Mine, i. e. a narrow Paſſage under Ground, leading to the Mine that is carry'd on under any Work deſign'd to be blown up.

Gallery-Ladder in a Ship. See Ladders.

Galley, a kind of Sea-Veſſel with Oars, much us'd in the Mediterranean Sea.

Galley-foiſt. See Foiſt.

Galley-men, certain Genoeſe Merchants formerly ſo call'd, becauſe they uſually arriv'd in Galleys, landed their Goods at a Place in Thames-ſtreet nam'd Galley-key, and traded with their own ſmall Silver Coin call'd Galley-half-pence.

Galley-worm, an hairy Inſect, whoſe Legs on each ſide ſeem to reſemble the Oars of a Galley.

Galliac. See Gaillac.

Galliard, (Fr.) a kind of merry Dance.

Gallicane, (Lat.) belonging to France, or the French Nation; as the Gallicane Church.

Gallicíſm, an Expreſſion according to the Propriety of the French Tongue.

Gallicriſta, (Lat.) an Herb call'd Yellow or White Rattle.

Galligaskins, a ſort of wide Slops or Breeches, that take Name from the Gaſcoons or Inhabitants of Gaſcony in France, who firſt brought them in uſe.

Gallimaufry, a Hotch-potch made up of ſeveral ſorts of Meat minced together; a kind of Haſh: 'Tis ſo called either becauſe it was given to Galley-ſlaves, or firſt invented by the Gauls.

Gallina, (Lat.) an Hen, a well known Fowl.

Gallina Africana, the Guinney-hen.

Gallinago, a Wood-cock: Gallinago Minor, the Snipe or Snite.

Gallinula, a little Hen.

Gallinula Chloropus, the Moor-hen. Gallinula Erythropus, the Runner. Gallinula Serica, the Velvet-runner.

Gallion, or Galleon, a large ſort of Galley, having four Decks, and only uſing Sails; ſuch as the Spaniards make uſe of in War, and to convey the Yearly Stock of Bullion or Plate from their Dominions in the Weſt-Indies.

Galliot, a ſmall Galley.

Gallium. See Galium.

Gallon, an Engliſh Meaſure containing two Pottles or four Quarts. The Iriſh Gallon contains 224 ſolid Inches for Wine or Brandy.

Galloon, a kind of Silk or Ferret-Ribbon, us'd for binding the Edges of Garments, &c.

Gallop, the ſwifteſt Pace of a Horſe: Whence a Man is ſaid To ride a Gallop to the Gallows, when he is eager in taking lewd Courſes.

Gallo-pavo, (Lat.) the Turkey-cock.

Galloſhes, or Galloſhoes, a ſort of Leathern Caſe, which ſome wear in Winter over their Shoes, to keep them clean, and their Feet from the Wet.

Gallows, a Frame of Wood upon which Malefactors are hang'd; alſo a wicked Raſcal that deſerves to be executed; alſo a part of a Printing-Preſs.

Galls, certain rough wild Fruits that grow upon Maſt-bearing Trees, eſpecially Oaks in Bohemia and Spain, on whoſe Trunks and Boughs they often ſtick without Foot-ſtalks: They are of a very binding Quality, ſo as to draw together looſe Parts, ſtrengthen weak ones, and ſtop Fluxes.

Gallus, (Lat.) a Cock, a well known Fowl.

Gallus Gallinaceus, the Houſe or Rooſt-cock.

Gallus Indicus, the Turkey-cock.

Galnes, (in the Practick of Scotland) ſignifies any kind of Satisfaction for Murder or Manſlaughter.

To Galpe, (old Word) to belch.

Galreda, or Gelatina, a Jelly uſually made of the griſtly parts of Living-creatures, as of Calves-feet, &c.

Gamahez, (Arab.) certain Images or Figures of things curiouſly wrought by Nature.

Gamaliel, (Heb. God's Reward) a Jewiſh Rabbin, who was Tutour to St. Paul.

Gambado's, (Ital.) a kind of open Boots made of Leather, for a Man to put his Legs into when he rides inſtead of Stirrups; from the Italian Word Gamba, a Leg.

Gamberia, or Gambria, (in old Latin Writers) a Military Boot or Defence for the Legs.

Gambols, certain Sports or Tumbling Tricks in uſe about Chriſtmas-time, from the ſame Original Gamba; becauſe they that ſhew Feats of Activity, have occaſion to toſs up their Legs.

Gammon-Eſſence, (in Cookery) is made of thin Slices of Gammon of Bacon dreſs'd in a Stew-pan with a Ragoo, and afterwards ſtrain'd thro' a Hair-ſieve; to be put into all ſorts of Meſſes in which Gammon is us'd.

Gammot, a kind of Inciſion-Knife.

Gam-ut, the firſt Note in the Scale of Muſick; alſo the Scale it ſelf commonly ſo call'd. See Scale of Muſick.

To Ganch, to throw one from a high Place upon ſharp Hooks or Iron-ſpikes; a particular way of executing Malefactors us'd in Turkey.

Gander, a Male Gooſe.

Gander-goſſes, an Herb.

Ganet, a ſort of Bird.

Gang, a Company, a Crew, taken for the moſt part in a bad Senſe. In Sea-Affairs Gangs are the ſeveral Companies of Mariners belonging to a Ship, and employ'd in executing their reſpective Watches, Works, &c. eſpecially thoſe that are appointed to Man the Long-boat, Barge, or Shallop, and are commonly call'd the Boatſwain's-Gang, or Cockſwain's Gang.

Gang-Flower, a certain Flower which flouriſhes in Proceſſion or Rogation-Week, by ſome call'd Rogation-Flower.

Gang-Way, (Sea-Word) all the ſeveral Ways, Entrances or Paſſages from one part of a Ship to the other, ſo that whatever is put in any of thoſe Paſſages is ſaid to be put or laid in the Gang-way.

Gang-Week, the next Week but one before Whitſunday, ſo nam'd from the old Word to Gang, i. e. to go, becauſe at that Time Solemn Proceſſions are made for ſurveying the Bounds of Pariſhes.

Ganges, a very great River that riſes out of the Scythian Mountains, and runs thro' the midſt of India.

Gangiators, or Gaugiators, (in the Practick of Scotland.) Officers whoſe Buſineſs is to examine Weights and Meaſures, mark Cloth, &c.

Ganglion, (Gr. in Surgery) a Tumour or Swelling void of Pain that ariſes upon the Tendons and Nervous Parts, proceeding from a Fall, Stroke, or otherwiſe; alſo a Sprain, the ſpraining of a Nerve or Sinew.

† Gangrel, a tall ill-ſhap'd Fellow.

Gangrene, or Gangreen, a beginning of Putrefaction or Mortification of a Member, a dreadful Symptom attended with a Cadaverous or Carcaſs-like Stench, an Inflammation, and ſuch intolerable Pain, as if a burning Coal were laid on the grieved part, which riſes up to a great Swelling, and appears generally of a duſky or blackiſh Colour; whence groſs Errours and deſtructive Doctrines are ſaid to be the Gangrene of true Religion.

Gantlet, or Gauntlet, an Iron-Glove, a ſort of Armour for the Hand.

Gantlop, or Gantlope, as to run the Gantlope, an uſual Puniſhment among Soldiers, the Offender being to run with his Back naked thro' the whole Regiment or Company, and to receive a Laſh with a Switch from every Soldier: It is deriv'd from Gant, a Town of Flanders, where this Puniſhment was invented, and the Dutch Word Lope, i. e. Running.

Ganymedes, the Son of Tros, King of Troy, whom Jupiter, (according to the Fable) taking the form of an Eagle, carry'd away into Heaven, for his admirable Beauty, and made him his Cup-bearer; whence Ganymed is figuratively taken for an Ingle, or Boy hired to commit Sodomy.

Gaol, or Jail, (Fr.) a Priſon.

Gaol-delivery, the clearing of a Priſon, when the Condemned Priſoners are carry'd away to Execution, and ſuch as are acquitted at their Tryal are ſet at Liberty.

Gap, an open Place in a Hedge or Wall, &c.

Garagay, the Mexican Kite that devours the Crocodile's Eggs.

Garamantites, (Gr.) a kind of Carbuncle, a precious Stone.

Garantronium Marmor, a ſort of Marble-ſtone, of a Gold Colour on a Purple Ground, with Lines reſembling Arabick Letters: It is us'd in Aſia among the Ornaments for the Body, Hafts for Knives, and Sword-hilts are alſo made of it.

Garb, Dreſs, or Attire, Carriage, or Behaviour. Wine that is of a quick or ſharp Taſte is alſo ſaid to have a good Garb. In Heraldry Wheat-ſheaves are call'd Garbs, and ſignify Plenty or Abundance.

Garba Sagittarum, (in old Records) a Sheaf of 24 Arrows, otherwiſe termed Shaffa Sagittarum.

Garbage, the Tripe, Fat, Entrails, &c. of Cattel, any ſort of Refuſe.

Garbel, or Garboard, a Plank next to the Keel of a Ship.

To Garble, to cleanſe from Droſs and Dirt, as Grocers do their Spices; to pick or cull out.

Garbler of Spices, an Officer of great Antiquity in the City of London, who is impower'd to enter any Shop, Ware-houſe, &c. to view and ſearch Drugs, Spice, &c. and to garble or cleanſe them.

Garbles, the Duſt, Soil, or Filth, ſo ſeparated.

Garbling of Bow-staves, (in old Statutes) the ſorting or culling out the Good from the Bad.

Garboard-Plank, (in Sea-Affairs) the firſt Plank of a Ship faſten'd on her Keel on the outſide.

Garboard-strake, the firſt Seam next to the Keel. See Strake.

† Garboil, Tumult, Uproar, Diſorder, Trouble.

Garcifer, (in the Practick of Scotland.)

Garcon, or Garcio, (in old Records) a Poor Servile Lad, or Boy-Servant.

Gard, or Guard, (Fr.) Protection, Defence, eſpecially that Care which is taken for the Safety of a Prince, &c. as the Life-guard, or Yeomen of the Guard; alſo the Hilt of a Sword, the Hem of a Garment, &c. In a Law-ſenſe Guardianſhip, or Management of Children under Age, or Idiots. See Guard.

Writ of Gard or Ward, a Writ relating to Guardianſhip, or Wardſhip.

Garde-manger, a Store-houſe, or Cellar for Meat, or other Proviſions; a Buttery.

Garde-robe, a Wardrobe, or place to keep Cloaths in; alſo an Herb otherwiſe call'd Poets-Roſemary.

† Garde-viant, a Wallet for a Soldier to put his Victuals in.

Gardecaut, or Gard-du-cord, is that which ſtops the Fuſee of a Watch when wound up, otherwiſe call'd Gard-du-gut, and Guard-cock.

Garden, a Plot of Ground belonging to a Houſe, or otherwiſe, curiouſly manur'd and furniſh'd with variety of Plants, Flowers, Fruits, &c.

To Garden a Hawk, (in Falconry) is to put her on a Turf of Graſs to chear her.

Gardeyne, an old French Law-Word for Gardian, or Warden.

Gardeyne de l' Estemery, Warden of the Stanneries. See Stanneries.

Gardeyne del Esglise, a Church-Warden, of whom there are two choſen in every Pariſh, to have the keeping and Care of the Church-Goods, to ſettle Rates, and Proviſion for the Poor, &c. See Church-Warden.

Gardian, or Guardian, one that has the Cuſtody or Charge of any Perſon or Thing, eſpecially he that has the Care of bringing up or protecting ſuch People as are not of ſufficient Diſcretion to guide themſelves and their own Affairs, as Children and Idiots.

Gardian, or Guardian of the Spiritualties, he to whom the Spiritual Juriſdiction or Government of any Dioceſs is committed during the Vacancy of a Biſhop's See.

Gardian of the Peace. See Conſervator of the Peace.

Gardian, or rather Warden of the Cinque-Ports, a principal Magiſtrate that governs thoſe Havens in the Eaſt part of England, which are commonly call'd the Cinque-Ports, i. e. the five Ports or Harbours, who there has the ſame Juriſdiction that the Lord High Admiral of England has in other Places. See Cinque-Ports.

Gare, a kind of courſe Wooll, full of Hairs, ſuch as grows about the Pizzle or Shanks of Sheep.

To Gare, (old Word) to cauſe, as he gared him to die.

Gargareon, (Gr. in Anat.) the ſame as the Epiglottis, or Cover of the Wind-pipe.

Gargariſm, a liquid Medicine to waſh or cleanſe the Throat and Mouth, by holding the Head backward, and gargling the Liquor to and fro in the Palate, without ſwallowing.

Gargantua, the Name of a great Giant or Monſter, from the Spaniſh Word Garganta a Throat.

Garget, a Diſtemper in Cattel, that cauſes their Eyes and Lips to ſwell, and Bliſters on their Tongues.

Gargilon, an old Term us'd by Hunters for the chief part of the Heart in a Deer.

Gargle, the Gullet of the Throat.

To Gargle, to waſh the Mouth and Throat with any convenient Liquor.

Gariſh, gorgeouſly cloath'd, gawdy or gay.

Garland, an Ornament for the Head made of Flowers in form of a Crown. In Sea-affairs, a Collar of Rope wound about the Head of the Main-maſt to keep the Shrowds from galling.

Garlick, a ſort of Plant.

Garnerium. See Granary.

Garneſtura, (in ancient Writers) Garniture, Furniture, Ammunition or Implements of War.

Garnet, (Sea-term) a Tackle with a Pendant-rope coming from the Head of the Main-maſt, and a Block or Pulley ſtrongly faſtnen'd to the Main-ſtay, to hoiſt all the Caſks into a Ship, and ſuch Goods as are not over-weighty.

Garniamentum, (in old Latin Records) any manner of garniſhing, or trimming Cloaths, or wearing Apparel.

Garniſh, (Fr.) a Fee which Priſoners give their Keepers at their Admittance into Priſon: Alſo Money ſpent upon their Fellow-Priſoners.

To Garniſh (in Cookery) to ſet out a Diſh with proper Furniture. To Garniſh the Heir is to warn the Heir; a Law-term.

Garniſhee, a Term us'd in the Sheriff's Court at Guild-hall, for the Party in whoſe Hands another Man's Money is attached within the Liberties of the City of London.

Garniſhment, a Warning given to any for his Appearance, for the better clearing of the Cauſe, and informing of the Court.

Garniture, Furniture, the trimming of a Suit with Ribbons, precious Stones, &c. as a Garniture of Diamonds.

Garre, a kind of Diſeaſe that happens to Hogs.

Garriſon, A Place where Forces are put into Winter-quarters; or the Soldiers themſelves that defend any Town, fortify'd Place, or ſtrong Hold.

Garrulity, (Lat.) Talkativeneſs, Prating, Babbling, or Chattering.

Garſumme. See Gerſuma.

Garter, or Order of the Garter, a Noble Society of Knights call'd Knights of the Garter, firſt founded by K. Edward III. from his many ſignal Victories, particularly one wherein (as it is ſaid) the King's Garter was uſed for a Token: This Order conſiſts of 26 Martial and Heroical Noble-men, of whom the King of England is the Soveraign, and the Garter which every Companion is oblig'd daily to wear, is blew, adorn'd with Gold and precious Stones, with this Motto, Honi ſoit qui mal y penſe, i. e. Evil to him that Evil thinks. See Knights of the Garter.

Garter, is alſo the Name of the principal King at Arms, created by K. Henry V. whoſe Office is to order and diſpoſe the Coat-armour of the Knights of the Garter and chief Nobility: In Heraldry Garter ſignifies the Moiety or half of a Bend. See Bend.

Garth, a North-Country Word for a Yard, Backſide, or little Cloſe.

Garth, or Fiſh-garth, a Wear or Dam in a River, for the catching of Fiſh.

Garth-man, (in old Statutes) one that owns an open Wear, where Fiſh are catch'd.

Garus, (Gr.) a kind of Lobſter, of which the Ancients made a Pickle, as we do of Anchovies.

Gas, a Word which Van Helmont chiefly makes uſe of to ſignifie a Spirit not capable of being congeal'd.

Gaſcoyns, the hinder Thighs of a Horſe.

Gaſe-hound, or Gaſt-hound. See Gaze-hound.

Gaſh, a deep Cut.

To Gaſp, to gape for Breath.

Gaſteneſs, (old Word) Terrour, Dread.

Gaſter, (Gr. in Anat.) ſometimes ſignifies the whole lower Belly, ſometimes the Womb, and ſometimes the Stomach.

Gaſtly, looking frightfully like a Ghoſt, dreadful.

Gaſtrica, or Ventricularis, (in Anat.) the upper Branch of the Splenick Vein, ſo nam'd becauſe it is beſtow'd on the Stomach.

Gaſtricus Succus, the Juice of the Stomach.

Gaſtrocnemium, (Gr.) the Calf of the Leg, ſo call'd from its ſwelling like a Belly; whence its Muſcles are termed Gaſtrocnemii.

Gaſtrocnemius Externus, a Muſcle of the Tarſus, which with the Soleus or Gaſtrocnemius Internus, makes up the Calf of the Leg, and is alſo call'd Gemellus from its being as it were double: When this Muſcle acts the Foot is ſaid to be extended or pull'd backward.

Gaſtrocnemius Internus, a Muſcle of the Foot plac'd under the Gaſtrocnemius Externus and Plantaris; being otherwiſe call'd Soleus from its Figure, reſembling a Sole-fiſh. Theſe Muſcles are ſerviceable, in Walking, Running, Leaping, &c. and bear up the Tibia in ſtanding.

Gaſtroepiploica, the Vein and Artery that goes to the Stomach and Cawl.

Gaſtrorhaphia, a ſowing up of Wounds in the Belly.

Gaſtrotomy, a cutting open of the Belly and Womb, to take out a Child.

Gate (in Fortif.) a Door made of ſtrong Planks with Iron-bars, to keep out an Enemy; which ought to be in the middle of a Courtin, that it may be well defended by the Flanks and Faces. Alſo when Huntſmen endeavour to find a Hart by his Slot, &c. and mind his Steps, they ſay, they knew him by his Gate.

Gather-bag, (among Hunters) the Bag or Skin incloſing a red Deer in the Hind's Belly.

Gaude, (old World) a Toy or Trifle.

To Gaude, (old Word) to mock, to ſcoff at.

Gaudies, double Commons, ſuch as are allow'd on gaudy Days.

Gaudy, over-gay, affectedly fine, flaunting; as a gaudy Suit of Clothes.

Gaudy Days, certain Feſtival Days obſerved in Colleges and Inns of Court.

Gavel, (Sax. Law-word) Tribute, Toll, Cuſtom, yearly Rent, Revenue or Payment, of which there were in old Times, ſeveral kinds, as Gavel-corn, Gavel-malt, Oat-gavel, &c. Alſo the Diviſion of a Country in Wales. See Rhandix.

Gavel-bred, Proviſion of Bread or Corn reſerv'd as a Rent, to be paid in kind by the Tenant.

Gavelet, an ancient Cuſtom in Kent, whereby the Tenant in Gavel-kind ſhall forfeit his Lands and Tenements, as a Diſtreſs to the Lord of whom they are holden, if he withdraw his due Rents and Services.

Gavelgilda, or Gavelgida, (in old Records) that yields Rent, or Yearly Profit.

Gavelherte, or Gavelerth, the Duty or Work of Ploughing ſo much Earth or Ground, done by the Tenant for his Lord.

Gavel-kind, an equal Diviſion of the Father's Lands at his Death among all his Sons, or of a Brother, dying without Iſſue, among all his Brethren: This Cuſtom is ſtill in uſe in ſome parts of England, eſpecially in Kent, Urchenfield in Herefordſhire, &c. and the Term is deriv'd from three Saxon Words, Gife, Eal, Cyn, i. e. given to all the Kin.

Gavelmed, the Duty or Work of mowing Graſs, or cutting Meadow-Land, requir'd by the Lord from his Cuſtomary Tenant.

Gavelrep, the Duty of Reaping at the Command of the Lord of the Manour.

Gavelſeſter, a certain Meaſure of Rent-Ale, one of the Articles anciently charg'd on the Stewards and Bailiffs of Manours belonging to the Church of Canterbury.

Gaveling-men, were Tenants that paid a reſerved Rent, beſides certain Cuſtomary Duties to be done by them.

Gauge. See Gage.

Gavia, (Lat.) the Sea-Gull, or Sea-Mew, a ſort of Wild Fowl.

Gaunt, (old Word) Lean; alſo the chief City of Flanders, ſaid to have 20 Iſlands, and 48 Bridges within the Walls.

Gauntree, a Stilling, or Wooden Frame to ſet Caſks on.

Gavot, (Fr.) a kind of Dance.

Gaugeor, or Gaugeator. See Gager.

Gawn, or Goan, a Country Word for a Gallon.

Gawze, a thin ſort of Silk Stuff.

Gay, (Fr.) given to Mirth and Jollity, chearful, pleaſant, fine, neat, ſpruce.

Gayety. See Gaiety.

Gaynarium, Gainagium, or Wainagium, (in old Law Records) Wainage, Plough-Tackle, or Inſtruments of Huſbandry.

Gayle-tree, a Shrub, otherwiſe call'd Prickwood.

To Gaze, to ſtare, or look earneſtly upon.

Gaze-hound, or Gaſt-hound, a kind of Dog that hunts by ſight, ſo as to make excellent Sport with the Fox and Hare.

Gazel, a kind of Arabian Deer, or the Antilope of Barbary.

Gazette, (Fr.) a News-book, or Paper, giving an Account of News and Affairs tranſacted in ſeveral Countries.

Gazetteer, a Writer or Publiſher of Gazettes.

Gazon, a Turf, a green Turf: In Fortification Gazons are Sods, or pieces of Earth cover'd with Graſs, about a Foot long, and half a Foot thick, cut ſquare like large Bricks, and us'd to face the outſide of Works made of Earth, to keep it up and prevent its mouldering: They are alſo often laid on Planks in Traverſes made to paſs a Ditch, to ſecure them from Fire.

Gazul and Subit, certain Weeds growing in Egypt, of which, being burnt to Aſhes, the fineſt ſort of Venice-Glaſſes are made.

Gear, or Geer, Stuff, Womens Attire, Harneſs, or Horſe-Trappings.

Geaſon, (old Word) rare.

Geburſcip, (Sax. Law-Term) Neighbourhood, adjoyning Town or Territory.

Geburus, a Country, Neighbour, an Inhabitant of the ſame Geburſcip, or Village.

Gedaliah, (Heb. the Greatneſs of the Lord) a Governour ſet over a Remnant of the Jews left at Jeruſalem during the Babyloniſh Captivity.

Gehenna, a Valley near Jeruſalem, otherwiſe call'd Tophet, where the Iſraelites threw their Children into the Fire, offering them in Sacrifice to an Idol of Baal; whence the Word is figuratively taken for Hell, or the place of Everlaſting Torments in the Future State.

Gelatina, (Lat.) a Term us'd by Phyſicians, &c. for any ſort of clear gummy Juice, as the Juice of Fruits, the Jelly of Quinces, &c.

Geld, Gueld, or Guild, Money, Tribute, or Tax, alſo Satisfaction or Amends made for a Crime.

Geldable, or Gildable, liable to pay Tribute or Tax; whence one of the three Diviſions or Parts of the County of Suffolk is call'd The Geldable, the other two being St. Edmund's and St. Andrew's Liberties.

Gelder-roſe, a ſort of Flower.

Gelſeminum, (Lat.) Jeſſemin, a ſweet Shrub us'd by Perfumers.

Gemelles, (in Heraldry) the bearing of Bars by Pairs or Couples in a Coat of Arms, as He bears Gules on a Chevron Argent, three Bars Gemelles Sable.

Gemellus, (in Anat.) a Muſcle of the Elbow, ſo call'd from its double Riſe, viz. from the upper part of the Shoulder-blade inwardly, and from the upper back-part of the Shoulder-bone; it is inſerted to the upper and outward part of the Ulna, and its uſe is to ſtretch out the Elbow: Alſo a Muſcle of the Tarſus, the ſame as Gaſtrocnemius externus; which See.

† Gemination, a doubling, redoubling, or repeating.

Gemini, (Lat.) Twins, two Children born at one Birth; alſo one of the Twelve Signs of the Zodiack, being the third in order, and thus mark'd (♊) alſo a Conſtellation, or cluſter of Stars, call'd Caſtor and Pollux: In Anatomy a pair of Muſcles that ſerves to move the Thigh outward.

Geminous Arteries, (according to ſome Anatomiſts) two ſmall Arteries which paſs down to the Joynt of the Knee, between the Proceſſes of the Thigh-bone.

Gemites, (Gr.) a precious Stone, in which one may ſee two white Hands holding one another.

Gemma, (Lat. among Herbaliſts) the ſwelling Bud of any Tree when it is beginning to bear, otherwiſe call'd Oculus; alſo a Gem, Jewel, or precious Stone.

Gemmæ Sal, or Sal foſſile, a ſort of common Salt which is taken out of Pits, and ſhines like Cryſtal.

Gemmow, or Gemmow-ring, a double Ring, with two or more Links.

Gemoniæ Scalæ, or Gemonii Gradus, a kind of Gibbet or Gallows in Rome, upon which Malefactors were Hang'd, and afterwards dragg'd with a Hook into the River Tiber.

Gemote, (Sax.) an Aſſembly or Meeting, a Court of Judicature.

Gemurſa, (Lat.) a Corn, or other Diſtemper in the Toes.

Gena, the Cheek, part of the Face from the Noſe to the Ears; alſo the Chin and Jaw-bone.

Gendarmes, (Fr. i. e. Men at Arms) Horſe-men, who formerly fought in compleat Armour, now a particular Body of Horſe in France, conſiſting of nine independent Troops, Commanded by Captains Lieutenants, the King himſelf being their Captain.

Gender, (i. e. Kind) a Term in Grammar; the difference of Nouns as they are declined, with a Maſculine, Feminine, or Neuter Article; which See in their proper places.

Epicene Gender. See Epicene.

Genealogiſt, (Gr.) one ſkill'd in the Method of deſcribing Pedigrees.

Genealogy, a Deſcription of the Stock, Lineage, or Pedigree of any Family or Perſon.

General, (Lat.) belonging to all Kinds, Common.

General Officers. See Officers.

General Synod. See Synod.

A General, the principal Governour of a Religious Order, the chief Commander of an Army;

alſo a Beat of Drum ſo call'd, being the firſt that gives notice early in the Morning for the Foot to be in readineſs to march.

Generaliſſimo, or Generaliſſimus, a Supreme General, one that commands other Generals; a Commander in Chief.

Generality, the Whole or the greateſt Part; as The Generality of the People, the Generality of Men: Alſo the Diſtrict, Juriſdiction, or Extent of the Publick Office of the Treaſurers of France.

To Generate, to ingender, or beget.

Generated, or Genited Quantity, (a Mathematical Term) whatever is produc'd in Arithmetick, by Multiplication, Diviſion, Extraction of Roots, &c. Or in Geometry, by finding out the Area's, Contents and Sides, or extreme and mean Proportionals.

Generating Line, or Figure, (in Geom.) is that which by its Motion or turning about produces any other Figure: Thus a Right-line moved parallel to its ſelf is ſaid To generate a Parallelogram, and a Parallelogram turn'd about one of its Sides, as an Axis generates or produces a Cylinder.

Generation, a generating, begetting, or a bringing forth: In Philoſophy, it is defin'd to be a natural Action, whereby a Living-creature begets another like it of the ſame kind: Or it is the Production of any thing in a natural Way, which before was not in Being: It is alſo taken for a Lineage, Race, or Deſcent.

Generative, that ſerves to beget; as The generative Faculty.

Generoſa, a Law-Term for a Gentlewoman; ſo that if ſhe be nam'd Spinſter in any Original Writ, Appeal, or Indictment, ſhe may abate and quaſh the ſame.

Generoſity, Greatneſs of Soul, Courage, Bravery, Liberality.

Generous, noble, free, bountiful.

Geneſis, (Gr.) Generation, Original, Riſe: A Title given to the firſt Book of Moſes, becauſe it treats of the Creation or Beginning of the World. In Geometry, the forming of any plain or ſolid Figure, by the Motion of ſome Line or Surface, which Line or Surface is call'd the Deſcribent, and that according to which the Motion is made, is termed the Dirigent. See Generating Line.

Genet, a kind of Spaniſh Horſe; alſo a ſort of Cat bred in Spain, ſomewhat bigger than a Weeſel, of a gray or black Colour; but the Furr of the Black is more valuable.

Geneva, an ancient large and populous City on the Lake Leman in Savoy, next the Borders of Switzerland: Alſo a kind of ſtrong Water ſo call'd.

Genial (Lat.) feſtival, joyful, merry.

Geniculum, (Lat.) a little Knee; among Herbaliſts, the Joint or Knot in the Stalk of a Plant.

Genioglossum, (Gr. in Anat.) a pair of Muſcles, that proceed inwardly from the fore-part of the lower Jaw under another pair call'd Geniohyoideus, and are faſten'd into the Root of the Tongue.

Geniohyoideus, a Muſcle which with its Partner ariſes from the inward and lower Seat of the Chin, and is let into the upper part of the Bone nam'd Hyoides.

Geniſta, Geneſta, or Geneſtra, (Lat.) Broom, a Shrub of good Uſe againſt the Dropſy, and all Stoppages of the Kidneys and Bladder.

Geniſtella, ſweet Broom, Heath, or Ling.

Genital, generative, ſerving to Generation, as The Genital Member.

Genitals, the Male's privy Parts, viz. the Spermatick Veſſels, the Teſticles, and the Penis.

Genitive Caſe, (in Grammar) one of the Six Caſes, by which Property or Poſſeſſion is chiefly imply'd: In Greek and Latin its Termination is vary'd from the Nominative Caſe, as Domini from Dominus; but in the Modern European Languages it is diſtinguiſh'd by an Article; as del, du, and in Engliſh of, &c.

Genius, a good or evil Spirit ſuppos'd to attend upon every Perſon; which the Ancients likewiſe allow'd to each Province, Country, or Town, to Foreſts, Fountains, Trees, &c. Alſo a Man's natural Diſpoſition or Indowment, Temper, or Inclination.

Gennit, or Gennitting, a kind of Apple which is ripe before any others.

Gent, that is in a good Garb, fine, ſpruce, gay.

Genteel, having the Air or Carriage of a Gentleman; handſomly clad, neat, gallant, noble.

Gentian, an Herb otherwiſe call'd Fell-wort, and firſt found out, as ſome ſay, by Gentius King of Illyrium: The Root of it is good in the Plague, and other infectious Diſtempers; alſo for Stoppages of the Liver, Spleen, &c.

Gentianella, a ſort of Gentian.

Gentil, a ſort of Maggot or Worm, often us'd for a Bait to catch Fiſh.

Gentiles, (Lat. in Grammar) thoſe ſorts of Nouns which betoken a Man's being of ſuch or ſuch a Country; as Anglus, Græcus, Italus, &c.

The Gentiles, the Heathen, or Heatheniſh People.

Gentiliſm, Heatheniſm, the Opinion or Practice of Heathens.

Gentility, the Quality or Degree of a Gentleman.

Gentle, moderate, mild, civil, obliging, tame.

Gentleman, a Perſon of Honourable Extraction, one whom his Birth and Race have made noble.

Gentry, the Order or Rank of Gentlemen, deſcended of ancient Families that have always born a Coat of Arms; the leſſer Nobility, i. e. all from Barons downward, viz. Knights, Eſquires and Gentlemen.

Genu, (Lat.) the Knee.

Genuflexion, a kneeling or bowing of the Knee.

Genuine, natural, proper, or true.

Genuine Teeth, the ſame as Dentes Sapientiæ, which See.

Genus, (Lat.) Kindred, Stock, or Lineage; kind, ſort, manner, or faſhion: In Grammar a Gender, as the Maſculine, Feminine, &c. In Logick one of the five Predicables, which contains the Species; an Idea ſo common and general that it extends it ſelf to other Univerſal Idea's: Thus Subſtance is a Genus, with reſpect to Subſtance extended, which is a Body; and Thinking Subſtance, which is a Spirit.

In Geometry, a right-lined Figure of four Sides is a Genus, in reſpect of a Parallelogram or Trapezium.

Geocentrick, a Term apply'd by Aſtronomers to any Orb or Planet that has the Earth for its Center, or the ſame Center with the Earth.

Geocentrick Latitude of a Planet, is its Latitude ſeen from the Earth; or the Angle which a Line joyning the Planet and the Earth, makes with a Line that is drawn perpendicular to the Eclipticks.

Geocentrick Place of a Planet, is ſuch as it would appear to us, from the Earth, if our Eyes were there fixed.

Geodæſia, the Art of ſurveying or meaſuring of Land.

Geodetical Numbers, ſuch as are conſider'd according to thoſe common Names, by which Money, Weights, Meaſures, &c. are generally known or appointed by the Laws and Cuſtoms of ſeveral Nations.

Geoff, or Goffe, (Country-Word) a Mow, or Reek of Corn or Hay.

Geographer, one that treats of, or has Skill in Geography.

Geographical, or Geographick, belonging to that Science.

Geographical Mile, the Sixtieth part of a Degree of a great Circle on the Surface of the Earth or Sea; the ſame as the Sea-mile or Minute.

Geographick Charts. See Charts Geographick.

Geography, A Deſcription of the whole Globe of the Earth, with all its Countries, Parts, Bounds, Situations, and other remarkable Circumſtances.

Geomancy, a Divination or Sooth-ſaying by certain Points or Circles made on the Earth.

Geometrical, or Geometrick, belonging to Geometry.

Geometrical Curves. See Curves.

Geometrical Plane. See Plane.

Geometrical Quotient. See Diviſion Geometrical.

Geometrical Solution of a Problem, is when the Thing is ſolved according to the Rules of Geometry, and by ſuch Lines as are truly Geometrical or agreable to the Nature of the Problem.

Geometrick Place. See Place Geometrick.

Geometrician, one ſkill'd in the Science of Geometry.

Geometry, properly ſignifies the Art of meaſuring the Earth, or any Diſtances on it: But it is taken for a Science which diſcovers the Magnitude or Greatneſs of Things preciſely, with their Capacity, Extenſion, &c. being uſually divided into Speculative and Practical.

Speculative Geometry, is a Science that treats of Magnitude or continu'd Quantity, with its Properties conſider'd abſtractedly, without any relation to material Beings.

Practical Geometry, is the Method of applying the former to Uſe and Practice, for the Benefit of Mankind; as meaſuring of Land or Solid Bodies, Dialling, Fortification, Sailing at Sea, &c.

Geoponical, belonging to Huſbandry, or the Art of manuring and tilling the Ground.

George, (i. e. Huſband-man) a Proper Name, the chief of which was George of Cappadocia, a Tribune or Colonel under the Emperour Diocleſian, who kill'd a huge Serpent in Africa, to which a Virgin was expos'd to be devour'd: And therefore ſome take this Champion for the ſame with our St. George of England, of whoſe Chivalry and Exploits, ſo many Romantick Stories are deliver'd.

George Noble, a Gold-Coin current at 6 s. 8 d. according to Stat. 1 Hen. 8.

Georgicks, Books that treat of Husbandry and Tillage; as Virgil's Georgicks.

Gerah, the leaſt Silver-Coin among the Hebrews, of which twenty made a Shekel of the Sanctuary, value 7 d. ob English: It is otherwiſe call'd Agurah and Keſhitah.

Geranites, (Gr.) a precious Stone in Colour like a Crane's Neck.

Geranium, Stork-bill, Crane-bill, or Herb-Robert, which is good for cleanſing Wounds, and Ulcers, ſtops Fluxes of Blood, and diſſolves it when congeal'd.

Gerard, (Sax. all-towardlineſs) a proper Name of Men.

Gerfalcon, or Gyrfalcon, a Bird of Prey, that is of a Size between a Vulture and a Hawk, and of the greateſt Strength next to the Eagle.

St. Germaine, a ſort of long and pretty big Pear.

Germander, an Herb otherwiſe call'd Engliſh Treacle, being an approved Remedy againſt Hardneſs of the Spleen and Difficulty of Urine.

Germination, a ſpringing or budding forth, bloſſoming or ſprouting: Among Herbaliſts, the growing or ſprouting out of Plants, or any parts of them.

Germins, (in Husbandry) young Shoots of Trees.

Gerontocomia, (Gr.) a part of Phyſick that ſhews the way of Living for old Men, in order to preſerve their Health.

Gerontocomium, an Hoſpital or Alms-houſe for poor old People.

Gerſa, a fine Powder made of ſome ſorts of Roots, as of Snake-weed, Wake-Robin, &c.

Gerſa Serpentaria, a kind of Ceruſs, or Plaiſter made of the Roots of the Herb Aron, or Cuckow-Pintle.

Gerſuma, or Gerſumme, (in ancient Charters) a Fine, or Income.

Gerſumarius, finable, liable to be amerced or fined at the Diſcretion of the Lord of the Manour.

Gertrude, a proper Name of Women, from the Saxon Words Ger and Trude, i. e. All-Truth.

Gervaſe, a Proper Name of Men, from the German Word Gervaſt, i. e. all faſt, firm, or ſure.

Gerundive, (in Grammar) an Adjective made of a Gerund.

Gerunds, certain parts of a Verb, ſo call'd from bearing a double Signification, both Active and Paſſive; they are peculiar to the Latin Tongue, and are three in number, ending in di, do, and dum, as Amandi, of loving, or of being loved; Amando, in loving, or in being loved; Amandum, to love, or to be loved.

Geſamund, (Sax. aſſembled) a proper Name of Men.

Geſſant, (in Heraldry) a Term us'd when a Lion's Head is born over a Chief.

Geſſes, the Furniture belonging to a Hawk.

Geſt, (old Word) a Lodging, or Stage for Reſt in a Progreſs or Journey.

Geſtation, (Lat.) a bearing or carrying; in a Phyſical Senſe, the Time during which a Child continues in the Mother's Womb.

Geſticulation, the uſing too much Geſture, or being too full of Action in Speaking or Diſcourſing; a Fault in ſome Oratours and Preachers.

Geſts, Noble Acts, or Warlike Exploits, as The Geſts of the Romans.

Geſture, the Motion and Carriage of the Body, or way of delivery in Speaking.

Getealed, (Sax.) Numbred.

Gethbrech. See Grithbrech.

Gethyon, (Gr.) a kind of Onion for Sauce.

Geum, (Lat.) the Herb Avens, whoſe Root taken in Poſſet-drink is good againſt Tertian Agues.

Gewgaws, or Gugaws, Trifles for Children.

Gherkins, or Guerkins, a ſort of pickled Cucumbers.

Ghetta, a kind of Mineral found in Turkey.

Ghizzard, a ſort of little Bag under the Throat of a Fowl.

Gibberiſh, Pedler's French, nonſenſical Talk.

Gibberus, (Lat.) bunchy, boſſed: In Anatomy the backward and larger Proceſs or Knob of the Bone of the Arm call'd Ulna, which ends in an obtuſe Angle, and enters the hinder Cavity of the Shoulder.

Gibbet, a Frame of Wood like a half Gallows, ſet up for the Execution of Malefactors.

Gibboſity, (Lat.) a bunching or ſtanding out of any part, eſpecially of the Back.

Gibbous, hunch-back'd, crump-ſhoulder'd, boſſed, bunchy: Alſo a Term applied by Aſtronomers to the inlighten'd parts of the Moon during her Courſe from Full to New, when the dark part appears falcated, or horned, and the light one gibbous, or bunched out.

To Gibe, to mock, flout, ſcoff, or jeer.

Gibellines. See Guelphs.

Gibſere, a Pouch, a Word us'd by Chaucer.

Gideon, or Gedeon, (Heb. a Breaker or Deſtroyer) the Son of Joaſh, and one of the Judges of Iſrael, who defeated a great Army of the Midianites with a Band of Three Hundred Men.

Gift-rope. See Boat-rope.

Gifta, (Sax.) Marriage.

Gigantick, (Gr.) belonging to Giants, Giant-like.

Gigantomachia, the War of the Giants againſt Heaven, often mention'd by the ancient Poets.

Gigg-mill, a ſort of Mill for the fulling of Woollen Cloth.

Gigge, (among Flax-dreſſers) a Hole dug in the Earth, where Fire is made to dry the Flax that is put over it.

To Giggle, to laugh out, to laugh wantonly.

Giglet, or Giglot, a wanton Woman, or Strumpet. Chaucer.

Gigot, (Fr.) a Loyn and Leg of Mutton cut out together; alſo a kind of Haſh, or minced Meat.

Gigs, a ſort of Swellings with black Heads that grow on the inſide of Horſes Lips.

Gilbert, a proper Name of Men, ſignifying in the German Tongue God-like; others write Giſlebert, i. e. bright Pledge.

Gilbertines, a Religious Order, founded by one Gilbert of Lincolnſhire, Anno Dom. 1145. They firſt ſettled at Sempringham, and conſiſted of 700 Friers, and 1100 Nuns.

Gild, Guild, or Geld, a Tribute or Tax, an Amercement or Fine; alſo a Brotherhood, or Company of Men united together, with Laws and Orders made among themſelves, by the Prince's Licenſe or Allowance.

Gild-Merchant, a Privilege whereby Merchants may hold Pleas of Land among themſelves.

Gildale, a Compotation or Drinking-Match, when every one paid his Club or Share.

Gilder. See Guilder.

Giles, a proper Name of Men.

Gilla Vitrioli, (among Chymiſts) Vomitive Vitriol, being only a Purification of White Vitriol.

Gill-creep-by-ground, an Herb. See Alehoof.

Gillet, a proper Name of Women.

Gilliflower, a well known Flower, of which there are ſome that have the ſcent of Cloves, and thence call'd Clove-gilliflowers.

Gilliflower-Apple, an Apple of a pleaſant Taſte, and good for Cider.

Gilt-head, a kind of Sea-fiſh, ſo call'd from its golden Colour.

† Gim, pretty, ſpruce, neat.

Gimlet, a Piercer to broach a Veſſel with.

Gimmer-lamb, or Gammer-lamb, a Country-Word for an Ewe-lamb.

Gimmol. See Gemmow-ring.

Gin, a Snare or Trap; alſo an Engine for raiſing or lifting up of great Guns.

Ginger, a Root that creeps along upon the Ground, with Knots and Joynts, having a Taſte like Pepper; it is brought from Calecut in the Eaſt-Indies both dry and preſerv'd green with Sugar.

Gingerly, ſoftly, or gently.

Gingibrachium, (Lat.) the Scurvey in the Gums and Arms.

Gingidium, the Herb Chervil.

Gingiva, the Gum, a hard ſort of Fleſh, in which the Teeth are ſet, and ſurrounded as it were with a Rampart.

Ginglymus, (Gr.) a joyning of Bones, when the Head of one is receiv'd into the Cavity or Hollow of another, and again the Head of the latter into the Cavity of the other; as the joynting of the Thigh-bone with the Tibia, and of the Shoulder-bone with the Ulna.

To Gingreat, (old Word) to chirp as a Bird does.

Ginnus, (Lat.) a Mungrel Creature bred of a Horſe and a She-Aſs.

To Gingle, to make a noiſe like little Bells; to uſe Words that have a chiming or affected Sound.

Gippon, (Fr.) a Jump, or ſhort Coat.

Gipſies, a Crew of pilfering Stragglers, that pretend to tell People their Fortunes, corruptly ſo call'd for Egyptians, upon account of the Tawny Colour of their Skin. See Egyptians.

Giraffa. See Camelopardalus.

Giraſol, a ſort of precious Stone, or Gem, of a whitiſh ſhining Colour, which ſends forth a golden Luſtre when plac'd towards the Sun, and therefore commonly call'd The Sun-ſtone.

Girder, a main Beam, or piece of Timber that goes a-croſs a Houſe.

Girding-girt. See Girt.

Girle, (among Hunters) a Roe-buck of two Years.

Giron. See Gyron.

Girt, (Sea-Term) a Ship is ſaid to be girt, or to have a Girding-girt, when the Cable is ſo taught, i. e. ſtrained, that upon the turning of the Tide ſhe cannot get over it with her Stern-poſt, but lyes a-croſs it.

Girth, a kind of Girdle buckled on under a Horſe's Belly; alſo a Saddle that is buckled and compleat for uſe. Alſo a Term us'd by Cock-Maſters, for the Compaſs of a Cock's Body.

Girth-web, that Stuff of which the Girths of a Saddle are made.

Girthol, (in the Practick of Scotland) a Sanctuary, or place of Refuge.

Girvii, a People that in Old Times inhabited the Fenny Parts of Lincolnſhire, Cambridgeſhire, &c. the Word ſignifying Fen-dwellers.

Giſarms, or Guiſarms, a kind of Halberd or Weapon with two Spikes, which ſome call Biſarms; a Hand-ax.

To Giſe, or Juice the Ground, (among Graziers) is when the Owner does not feed it with his own proper Stock, but takes in other Cattel to agiſt or graze in it.

Giſements, or Juicements, Foreign Cattel ſo taken in to be kept by the Week.

Giſlebert. See Gilbert.

Giſte, (Fr.) a Couch, or Reſting-place; whence Giſts or Geſts of the Queen's Progreſs, i. e. a Bill or Writing that contains the Names of the Towns or Houſes where ſhe intends to lie upon the Way. See Geſt.

Giſte-takers. See Agiſtator.

Gite, (old Word) a Gown.

Gith, an Herb that grows amidſt Corn.

Gittern, a kind of Cittern, a Muſical Inſtrument.

To Give Ground, (in Military Affairs) is to retire, to loſe the Poſt a Body of Men is in.

Given, a Word that is often us'd in Mathematicks, and ſignifies ſomething which is ſuppos'd to be known: Thus if a Magnitude be known, or that another may be found equal to it, the uſual Expreſſion is, 'Tis a given Magnitude, or ſuch a thing is given in Magnitude.

Gives, Shackles, or Fetters.

Gizzard. See Ghizzard.

Glacialis Humor, (Lat.) the Icy Humour, one of the three Humours of the Eye, which is contain'd in the Uveous Coat, and is thicker than the reſt.

Glaciation, (among Naturaliſts) the freezing or turning of Water or any other Liquor into Ice.

Glacis, (Fr. in Fortif.) any eaſie little Slope of a Bank, but more eſpecially that of the Parapet, or Breaſt-work of the Covert-way, which inſenſibly falls even with the level of the Field, and is alſo ſometimes call'd Eſplanade.

Gladdon, or Gladwin, an Herb whoſe Flower reſembles the Flower-de-luce, and which is otherwiſe call'd Spruge-wort.

Glade, an open light Paſſage made thro' a Wood, by lopping off the Branches of Trees all along that way.

Glader. See Gladiolus.

Gladiator, (Lat.) a Sword-player, or Fencer. The Roman Gladiators fought in the Circenſian Games, and at the Funerals of Great Men, one againſt the other, even to the loſs of their Lives, to divert the People, or to pacify the Ghoſts of their Kindred.

Gladiolus, a little Sword, a Ponyard, or Dagger; alſo the Herb Gladen, or Sword-graſs, a kind of Sedge; whoſe Leaves are ſhap'd like a ſmall Sword.

Gladius, a Sword; alſo the Sword-fiſh.

Gladuſe, (Brit.) a proper Name of Women.

Glair, the White of an Egg.

Glaive, a ſort of Weapon like a Halberd.

Glandage, (Law-Term) Maſtage, the Seaſon for feeding Hogs with Maſt.

Glance, a Caſt with the Eye, an Alluſion, a Reflection.

Gland. See Glandula, and Mucilaginous Glands.

Glanders, a loathſome Diſeaſe in Horſes, when they void a ſlimy, thick, and yellowiſh Humour thro' their Noſtrils, which proceeds firſt from Heats and Colds; but if it be of a green Colour, with reddiſh Specks, and ſtink much, 'tis a certain Sign that the Lungs are ulcerated.

Glandiferous, bearing Maſt.

Glandula, (Lat.) a little Acorn; alſo a Gland, Glandule, or Kernel in the Fleſh, defin'd by Anatomiſts to be a ſoft, fat, ſpungy Subſtance, of a peculiar nature, which ſerves to ſtrengthen the Veſſels, to ſuck up ſuperfluous Humours, and to moiſten other Parts. Theſe Glandules are of two ſorts, viz. either Adventitious, as thoſe Kernels which are ſometimes under the Arm-holes, in the Neck, as the King's-Evil, &c. or Perpetual and Natural, as the Pancreas, or Sweet-bread, the Glandula Pinealis, &c. The Perpetual are likewiſe two-fold, viz. either Conglobated, or Conglomerated; which See.

Glandula Guidonis, a kind of Swelling like a Glandule, ſoft, moveable, without Roots, and ſeparate from the parts about it.

Glandula Pinealis, or Conarium, a Glandule or Kernel in the folding of the Brain call'd Choroides, ſo nam'd from its Shape, which reſembles that of a Cone, or Pine-apple.

Glandula Pituitaria, a ſmall Glandule in the Sella Equina, a place in the Brain ſo termed, which Kernel is cover'd over with the Rete Mirabile in many Brutes, but not in Men.

Glandulæ ad plexum Nerveum ſitæ. See Renes ſuccenturiati.

Glandulæ Lumbares, are three Glands deſcrib'd by Bartholinus, and ſo nam'd upon account of their lying upon the Loins.

Glandulæ Odoriferæ, certain ſmall Glandules diſcover'd by Dr. Tyſon, in that part of the Penis or Yard where the Præputium is joyn'd to the Balanus, and he gives them this Name from the great ſcent which their ſeparated Liquor ſends forth.

Glandulæ Renales, or Capſulæ Atrabiliares, two Glandules which lye wrapt up in Fat between the Aorta, or great Artery, and the Kidney, a little above the Emulgent Veſſels. See Capſulæ Atrabiliares, and Renes ſuccenturiati.

Glanduloſa Tunica Inteſtinorum. See Papillæ Inteſtinorum.

Glanduloſum Corpus, the ſame as Proſtata, which See.

Glandulous, full of Glandules or Kernels.

Glandulous Fleſh, (in Anat.) is ſuch as that of the Almonds of the Ears, Breaſts, Sweet-bread, &c.

Glandulous Roots, (among Herbaliſts) thoſe Roots that grow Kernel-like, and are faſten'd together with ſmall Fibres or Threads.

Glanis, (Lat. a crafty Fiſh, which bites away the Bait without meddling with the Hook, and is ſo call'd from Glanis, a River of Italy, where it is often found. See Silurus.

Glans, Maſt of Oak, or other Trees; a Gland or Kernel in the Fleſh; the Nut or Head of a Man's Yard; alſo a Suppoſitory, or Medicine to be put up the Fundament: Among Herbaliſts it is taken for ſuch Fruit, as being contain'd within a ſmooth hard Bark, has its hinder part next to the Tree cover'd with a kind of Cup, whilſt the fore-part is bare, as Acorns, &c.

Glans Unguentaria, the Fruit of a Tree like Tamariſk, as big as an Hazel-nut, with a Kernel like an Almond, that purges Phlegm and Choler, and cures the Itch.

To Glare, to over-blaze, to dazzle.

Glaſs, a tranſparent Subſtance, made by Art of white gliſtering Flints, mix'd with Sal Alkali, or the Herb Glaſs-wort, or with Salt of Fern-Aſhes for common Glaſs.

Glaſs of Antimony. See Regulus of Antimony.

Glaſſy Humour of the Eye. See Vitreous Humour.

Glaſſy Tunicle. See Vitreous Tunicle.

Glaſtum, (Lat.) the Herb Woad, that ſerves for dying a Blew Colour, and which was us'd by the Old Britains to paint their Bodies.

Glauciſcus, (Gr.) a kind of Fiſh, which being eaten in Broth by Women breeds them plenty of Milk.

Glaucium, an Herb of a Sea-green Colour; alſo a Fieldfare, or Coot; a Bird.

Glaucoma, or Glaucoſis, a Fault in the Eye, when the Cryſtalline Humour is chang'd into a Gray, or Sky-colour.

Glaucus, the Sea-ſtickling, a ſort of Fiſh; alſo the Sea-Blewling.

Glavea, (in old Latin Records) a Gleave, Javelin, or Hand-dart.

To Glaver, to ſooth up, or fawn upon.

Glaux, (Gr.) the Owl, a Bird; alſo the Herb Milt-wort, or Sea-Trifoly.

To Glaze, to work with Glaſs, to varniſh, to poliſh, or ſet a Gloſs upon.

Glazier, an Artificer that works or deals in Glaſs.

Glaziers Rules, an Inſtrument made of two pieces of Box, that ſlide one by another, with Lines fitly contriv'd for their Work.

Glead, or Glede, a ſort of Kite; a Bird of Prey.

Gleam, a Ray, or Beam of Light: Among Falconers a Hawk is ſaid to gleam, when ſhe caſts or throws up Filth from her Gorge.

To Glean, to gather or pick up Ears of ſcatter'd Corn, when cut down in Harveſt-Time.

Glear, or Glair, the White of an Egg.

To Glear, to rub over with Glear, as Bookbinders do the Covers of Books, before they are poliſh'd.

Glebariæ, (in old Latin Records) Turfs, Pete or Earth fit to burn.

Glebe, or Glebe-Land, Church-Land, moſt commonly taken for Land belonging to a Pariſh-Church, or Parſonage, beſides the Tithe; from the Latin Word Gleba, i. e. a Turf, or Clod of Earth.

Glede, (old Word) a hot Ember, or live Coal.

† Glee, Joy or Mirth.

Gleek, a Game at Cards ſo call'd.

Gleet. See Glitt.

Gleire, (old Word) White.

Glene, (Gr.) the Ball or Apple of the Eye; alſo the hollowneſs of a Bone, which receives another within it.

Glenoides, two Cavities or hollow places in the lower part of the firſt Vertebra, or turning-joynt of the Neck.

Gleucinum, Oil of the firſt running, before the Olives be thoroughly preſs'd.

Glib, flowing easily, slippery, smooth.

To Glimmer, to begin to appear by Degrees, as the Light does at break of Day.

Glimpse, a Flash, or Beam of Light.

Glis, Gliris, (Lat.) Vinewdness or Mouldiness in Bread.

Glis, Gliris, the Dormouse, a Creature like a Mouse, which lives in Trees, and spends good part of the Year in sleeping.

Glis, Glitis, a Thistle, or Piony-root.

Glis, Glitis, clammy Earth, or Potters Clay.

Glister. See Clyster.

To Glisten, Glister, or Glitter, to shine, to be bright or ſparkling.

Glitt, or Gleet, a thin Matter iſſuing out of Wounds and Ulcers; eſpecially when the nervous or ſinewy Parts are bruis'd and hurt.

Gloar, as Gloar-fat, i. e. fulſomely fat.

Globe, (Lat. in Geom.) a Solid Body exactly round, contain'd under one Surface; in the middle of which is a Point from whence all Right-lines drawn to the Surface are equal one to another.

The Term is alſo attributed to two Artificial Repreſentations of Heaven and Earth; one of which call'd the Celeſtial Globe, ſhews the Figures of the ſeveral Conſtellations or Companies of Stars, with the imaginary Circles, &c. of the Heaven: And the other named the Terreſtrial Globe, repreſents all the Parts of the Earth and Sea, drawn in their natural Order and Situation, with the Circles, Diſtances of Places, &c.

Globoſity, a being round in form of a Globe or Bowl; as the Globoſity of the Earth.

Globous, or Globular, round like a Globe.

Globule, (in Philoſ.) a ſmall round Body.

Globulus, (Lat.) a little round Ball or Pellet: In Surgery, a round moveable Swelling in the Lips.

Globulus Naſi, the lower griſly part of the Noſe.

Glome, (old Word) a bottom of Thread.

† Glomeration, a winding round in a bottom, a rolling or gathering into a round Lump.

Gloomy, duſky, dark, or cloudy.

Glorification, (Lat.) a glorifying, or giving Honour to; an admitting to the State of Eternal Glory.

To Glorify, to give Glory to, to praiſe; alſo to put among the Bleſſed.

Glorious, full of Glory, famous, honourable.

Glory, Honour, Praiſe, Eſteem; Reputation, Renown, Fame: It is alſo taken for the Majeſty of God, conſider'd with infinite Power, and all other Divine Perfections.

A Glory, (in Painting) ſignifies thoſe Beams or Rays of Light, that are uſually drawn round about the Head of a Saint: In an Opera, or Stage-Play, it is a Repreſentation of Heaven.

To Glory, to boaſt or brag; as to glory in Wickedneſs, to glory of a Thing, &c.

Gloſs, a Comment, Expoſition, or Interpretation; alſo a Luſtre or Brightneſs ſet upon Silk, Cloth, Stuff, &c.

To Gloſs, to comment, or make Notes upon.

Gloſſary, (Gr.) a Dictionary, or Table to ſhew the Signification of Words, eſpecially thoſe that are obſcure and barbarous in ſeveral Languages.

Gloſſocomium, a Surgeon's Inſtrument for broken Limbs.

Gloſſographer, one that ſets down and interprets the meaning of ſtrange or hard Words.

Gloſſopetra, a precious Stone like a Man's Tongue, mention'd by Pliny: Alſo the Stone-tongue, or Tongue-ſtone, ſo call'd from its reſembling the Shape of a Jack-daw's Tongue.

Glottis, a Bird of the Quail-kind, having a long Tongue: In Anatomy, one of the five Griſtles of the Larynx, or Head of the Wind-pipe; the Chink of the Wind-pipe.

Glove-ſilver, (in old Records) Money given to ſome Servants by Cuſtom, to buy them Gloves, as a Reward and Encouragement of their Labours.

Glovers-ſtitch, (in Surgery) is when the Operator having drawn together the Lips of a Wound, holds them between two Fingers, paſſes a Needle underneath, and ſows them upwards all along, after the manner of Glovers.

To Glow, to burn like a Coal, to tingle as the Ears do.

Glow-worm, a kind of Inſect that ſhines by Night.

To Glout, to look doggedly or lowr'ly.

To Gloze, to flatter, coaks, or ſooth up.

Glue, a well known Compoſition made by boiling the Sinews of Sheeps Trotters, Parings of raw Hides, &c. to a Jelly, and ſtraining it.

Glut, great Quantity of any thing, Fill, Fulneſs of Stomach: Among Falconers, the ſlimy Subſtance that lies in a Hawk's Pannel.

Glutæi, (Gr. in Anat.) the Name of ſix Muſcles that move the Buttocks, on each ſide three.

Glutæus Major, a Muſcle of the Thigh, ſo call'd as being the largeſt Muſcle of thoſe that make up the Buttocks: It takes riſe from the outward part of the Spine of the Os Ileum, as alſo from the undermoſt parts of the Sacrum and Os Coccygis, and is let into the Linea Aſpera on the back part of the Thigh-bone; ſo that when this Muſcle acts, it pulls the Thigh directly backward.

Glutæus Medius, a Muſcle of the Thigh which lies chiefly under the Tendinous Beginning of the former, and ariſing from the outward part of the Os Ileum, is inſerted to the upper and outward part of the great Trochanter: This Muſcle is employ'd to turn the Thigh inwards; or as others ſay, it ſerves to ſtretch it out.

Glutæus Minor, a Muſcle of the Thigh, that lies wholly under the Glutæus Medius: It ariſes from the Dorſus Ilei, and has its Inſertion at the upper part of the Root of the great Trochanter; ſo that its Fibres running Parallel with thoſe of the Medius, aſſiſt it in all its Actions.

Gluten (Lat.) Glue, Paſte, Solder: According to the ancient Phyſicians, a kind of dewey Humour, that ſticks cloſe to the Parts, and is otherwiſe termed Ros glutea.

Glutia (Gr.) two Prominences or Bunchings out in the Brain, which are likewiſe call'd Nates in Latin; both Terms ſignifying Buttocks.

Glutination, (Lat.) a gluing together, or joyning together with Glue.

Glutinative, proper to glue, that has a gluing Quality.

Glutinous, that ſticks like Glue, gluiſh or gluey, clammy.

Glutos, (Gr.) one of the Proceſſes in the upper part of the Thigh-bone, otherwiſe call'd the greater Rotator.

Glutton, one that devours much Meat, a greedy Eater: Alſo the Name of a ſtrange greedy Beaſt, that ſtuffs it ſelf with Carrion till its Paunch ſticks out like a Drum; afterwards getting between two Trees or Rocks, it preſſes out the Ordure upwards and downwards, and then returns to the Carcaſs to gorge it ſelf again. This Beaſt is found in Lithuania, Muſcovy, and other Northern Countries.

Gluttony, immoderate eating and drinking.

Glycypicris, (Gr.) Bitter-ſweet, or windy Nightſhade, an Herb ſaid to provoke Urine, to be good in a Dropſy and for the Jaundice.

Glycyrrhiza, Sweet-root, or Liquoriſh, good for the Lungs and Reins, and againſt Sharpneſs of Urine.

Glycyſide, the Piony, a Plant and Flower.

Glyn, a Word us'd in Doomſday-Record, for a Valley.

Gnat

Gnaphalium, (Gr.) Cud-weed, or Chaff-weed, an Herb, the diſtill'd Water of which is of great Uſe for Cancers.

Gnar, or Gnur, a hard Knot in Wood; alſo a Churl or Clown.

Gnat, a ſmall ſort of a ſtinging Fly.

Gnat-ſnapper, a Bird, otherwiſe call'd a Fig-eater.

Gnew, (old Word) gnawed.

Gnoff, (old Word) a Churl, or Fool.

Gnoma, (Gr.) a Sentence; alſo an Inſtrument to meaſure Land with.

Gnomon, a Carpenter's Rule; alſo the Needle, Cock, or Pin of a Dial, that caſts the Shadow on the Hour.

In Geometry, the Gnomon of a Parallelogram, is a Figure made of the two Complements, together with either of the Parallelograms about the Diagonal.

Gnomonick, full of Sentences, as the Gnomonick Poets, Writers of Sententious Verſes.

Gnomonicks, the Art of Dialling.

Gnosticks, (i. e. knowing) a Sect of vile Hereticks, who had one Carpocras for their Ring-leader, A.C. 125. They aſſum'd to themſelves a great Degree of Knowledge, deny'd the Day of Judgment, and held two ſupreme Deities, one Good, the other Bad.

To Go to God, or to Go without Day, a Law-Expreſſion, ſignifying to be diſmiſſed the Court.

Go-to-bed-at-Noon, an Herb ſo call'd.

Goad, a pointed Stick, or Rod with a ſharp Iron-Pin at the end of it to prick Oxen, or other Cattel, forward.

Goal, the Place appointed for the end of a Race, or other Exerciſe; alſo the ſame as Gaol; a Jayl, or Priſon.

Goaling of Vagabonds, (in the Statute-Laws) a ſending them to Goal or Priſon.

Goaring. See Goring.

Goat, a well known Beaſt.

Goat-chafer, a ſort of Beetle; an Inſect.

Goat-hart, or Stone-buck, a wild Beaſt.

Goat-milker, or Goat-ſucker, a kind of Owl.

Goats-beard, an Herb with long ſtaring Leaves, the Root of which is excellent in Sallets, and held to be reſtorative in Conſumptions.

Goats-bread, a kind of eatable Root.

Goats-Marjoram, an Herb.

Goats-rue, an Herb having Leaves ſomewhat like Vetches, but of a lighter Colour. It preſerves the Heart from Panting, and the effect of Melancholy Vapours; being alſo good againſt Poiſon, Peſtilence, and the Small-Pox.

Goats-thorn, a kind of Shrub.

Goave-tree, a Tree in Jamaica, which has ſeveral Trunks growing from one Root, ſeven or eight Foot high, with Leaves of a yellowiſh green Colour; the Fruit round like a Grape, but bigger.

Gob, or Gobbet, a great piece of Meat.

To Gobble up, to eat Gobs, or ſwallow down greedily.

Gobio, or Gobius, (Lat.) the Gudgeon or Pink; a Sea and River-fiſh.

Gobio Capitatus, the Bull-head, Cull, or Millers-Thumb.

Gobites Barbatus, the Loche.

Goblet, a Drinking-Cup of a round Figure, without Feet or Handles.

Goblins, or Hobgoblins, familiar Spirits that are ſaid to do good Offices in Houſes, as to help to dreſs the Horſes, &c.

Gobonated, as A Bordure Gobonated, i. e. divided after ſuch a manner, as if it were cut into Gobbets, and diſtinguiſh'd by ſeveral Colours.

Godard, a proper Name of Men, ſignifying in the German Tongue, Godly Diſpoſition.

Godard, or a la Godard, (Fr. in Cookery) a particular way of dreſſing a ſhort Rib of Beef.

Godbote, (Sax.) an Amercement or Fine anciently paid for Crimes and Offences againſt God; an Eccleſiaſtical or Church-Fine.

Godfrey (Germ. God's Peace) a proper Name of Men, the moſt eminent Bearer of which was that famous Champion in the Holy War, ſtyl'd Godfrey of Bouillon, who took the City of Jeruſalem from the Infidels, and was made King of it.

Godiveo, (Fr. in Cookery) a ſort of Pie fill'd with a delicious Farce made of Veal, and ſeveral other kinds of Meat; or elſe of Carps, Pikes and other Fiſh, for Days of Abſtinence.

Godwin (Germ.) a proper Name ſignifying victorious in God.

Godwit, a kind of Quail, a delicate Bird.

Goff, a ſort of Play at Ball.

Goffe. See Geoff.

Gofiſh, (old Word) ſottiſh.

Gog, (Heb. a Roof of a Houſe) the Son of Shemaiah: Alſo a People, who together with Magog are mentioned in Ezekiel, as Nations that ſhall perſecute the Church.

To be a-gog for a thing, to be eagerly bent upon it, to deſire it earneſtly.

Goggle-eyed, having full rolling Eyes.

Goging-ſtool, a Ducking-ſtool for Scolds and Shrews.

Going to the Vault, a Term us'd in Hunting, with reſpect to an Hare, which ſometimes, tho' ſeldom takes the Ground like a Coney.

Going upon Service, a Military Term. See Duty.

Gola, or Throat, (in Architect.) a kind of Ornament; an Ogee or Wave.

Gold, the moſt weighty, moſt perfect and moſt valuable of all Metals; unequal in its Parts, and having Pores of different Figures.

Gold of Pleaſure, the Name of a certain Herb.

Fulminating Gold. See Aurum fulminans.

Gold-cups, a ſort of Flower.

Gold-finch, a well known Singing-Bird: Of theſe there is a very beautiful ſort in Virginia, with Red, Orange-colour'd, and yellow Feathers.

Gold-hammer, a Bird

Gold-ring, or the Devil's Gold-ring, a ſmall Worm that gnaws the Vine, and wraps it ſelf up in its Leaves.

Gold-ſike, a little Spring in the Pariſh of Orton in Weſtmorland, which continually caſts up ſmall thin pieces of a Subſtance that ſhines and reſembles Gold.

Golda, (in our old Writers) a Gullet, a Water-paſſage, or Sink.

Golden, belonging to, or like Gold.

Golden Fleece, ſmall Grains of Gold found in Rivers and Brooks, and gather'd up by means of Sheeps-ſkins with the Wool on.

Golden Number, or Prime, (in Aſtron.) a Number which beginning with Unity encreaſes Yearly one, till it comes to Nineteen, and then begins again: 'Tis ſo call'd becauſe it was formerly ſet down in Calendars or Almanacks in Golden Letters, tho' now commonly in red ones; or perhaps by reaſon of the great Uſe of it, which is to find the Change, the Full and the Quarters of the Moon. See Lunar Cycle.

Golden-rod, an Herb of a cleanſing and binding Quality.

Golden Rule, or the Rule of Three, (in Arithmetick) ſo call'd by way of Excellency; which may be either Single or Compound; alſo Direct or Inverſe.

The Single Rule, is when three Terms or Numbers are propos'd, and a fourth proportional to them is demanded; as in this Queſtion, If 4 Students ſpend 10 Pound in certain Months, how much Money will ſerve 8 Students for the ſame time, and at the ſame rate of Expence?

The Compound, or Double Rule, is when five Terms being propounded a ſixth proportional to them is requir'd; as if 4 Students ſpend 19 Pounds in three Months, how much will ſerve 8 Students 9 Months?

The Single Rule of Three direct, is when the Tenour or Senſe of the Queſtion requires the fourth Number ſought, to have ſuch Proportion to the ſecond, as the third Number has to the firſt: So in the firſt Queſtion as 8 is the double of 4, ſo ought the fourth Number to be the double of 19.

The Inverſe, indirect, or backward Rule of Three, is when the fourth Term required ought to proceed from the ſecond Term, according to the ſame Rate or Proportion that the firſt proceeds from the third: For Example, if 8 Horſes may be maintain'd 12 Days with a certain Quantity of Provender, how many Days will the ſame Quantity ſerve 16 Horſes? Here as 8 is half 16, ſo ought the fourth Term required to be half 12.

Golden Sulphur of Antimony, a Chymical Medicine, made of the Regulus of Antimony, boil'd in Common Water, and ſtrain'd, afterwards pouring Vinegar on it, ſo that a reddiſh or Gold-colour'd Powder will ſink to the bottom of the Veſſel.

Goldney, or Gilt-head, a Sea-fiſh.

Gold-foil, Leaf-gold.

Goldilocks, or Golden-tufts, a ſort of Herb.

Golding, a kind of Apple.

Goldfin, a Fiſh, ſo call'd from its Colour, its ſides from the Neck to the Tail being curiouſly wrought with golden and red Lines at a certain diſtance on a Silver-ground.

Gold-ſmith, one that ſells and deals in all ſorts of Gold and Silver-Plate, Medals, Jewels, &c.

Golgotha, a place near Mount-Sion, full of Malefactors Bones: The Word in the Syriack Tongue ſignifies a place of dead Men's Sculls.

Goliah, (Heb.) a Giant of the Philiſtines, killed by David.

Golierdies, (old Word) ravenouſly mouthed.

Golp, (Span.) a Slaſh, or Blow.

Golpes, (in Heraldry) little Balls or Pellets of the Purpure Colour.

Goman, (Sax.) a Marry'd Man.

Gome, the black and oily Greaſe of a wrought Cart-Wheel, Printing-Preſs, &c.

Gomer, (Heb. conſuming) the Son of Japhet; alſo an Hebrew Meaſure, containing the Quantity of one Gallon, or ſomewhat more.

Gomphæna, (Gr.) the Herb Jealouſie, or Popinjay.

Gomphiaſis, or Agomphiaſis, a Diſtemper of the Teeth, when they are looſe and ready to drop out: alſo the breeding of the Cheek-Teeth.

Gomphos, a kind of Swelling in the Eye, when the Ball of it goes beyond the Skin call'd Uvea Tunica.

Gomphoſis, or Gomphoma, (in Surgery) the faſtening of one Bone into another, like a Nail, as of the Teeth in the Jaws.

Gonagra, the Gout in the Knee.

Gonambuch, a Bird in Braſil no bigger than a great Fly, with ſhining Wings, which ſings ſo ſweetly, that it is not inferiour to the Nightingale.

Gondola, (Ital.) a kind of flat long Boat, much us'd in the Canals at Venice.

Gone out a head, a Sea-Phraſe, us'd when a Ship under Sail has paſs'd before the Head of another.

Gonfalon, the Banner of the Church carry'd in the Pope's Army.

Gonfalonier, the Pope's Standard-bearer, which Office is claim'd as Hereditary by the Dukes of Parma.

Gonfennon, (old Word) a little Flag.

Gongrona, (Gr. in Surgery) every Swelling that happens in the ſinewy Parts, with hardneſs and roundneſs.

Gonorrhœa, a Diſeaſe which cauſes a frequent diſcharge of the Seed, without any erection of the Yard, which does not always proceed from a Venereal Cauſe, but ſometimes from a Sprain or Wrench; 'tis commonly call'd a Clap, or the Running of the Reins. See Chaude-piſſe.

Gonorrhœa Chordata, is when, together with the effuſion of the Semen Urethra, or Urinary Paſſage, is bent like a Bow with Pain.

Good A-bearing, or Good Behaviour, (Law-Term) an exact Carriage of a Subject towards the Queen and her Liege-People, whereto Men upon their diſſolute Courſe of Life, or Miſdemeanours, are ſometimes bound.

Good Country, an Aſſize, or Jury of Country-men, or good Neighbours.

Good Eſcheat, forfeited Goods. See Eſcheat.

Googe, a ſort of Tool uſ'd by Joyners, &c.

Gool, (Statute Law-Word) a Breach in a Bank or Sea-Wall; a Paſſage worn by the ebbing and flowing of the Tide; alſo a Trench or Ditch.

Gooſe, a known Fowl; a Taylor's Iron to preſs Seams with; a Paſſage or Breach worked by the Sea.

Gooſe-berries, a Fruit, ſo call'd from the uſe that has been a long time made of them for Sauce for green Geeſe.

Gooſe-bill, a Surgeon's Inſtrument, ſerving for the ſame uſe as the Crows-bill, which See.

Gooſe-foot, a kind of Herb.

Gooſe-graſs, an Herb, otherwiſe call'd Clivers, good to cleanſe the Blood and ſtrengthen the Liver.

Gooſe-wing, (among Sailors) a particular way of fitting up the Sail on the Miſſen-Yard, ſo as the Ship may go more ſwift before a Wind, or Quarter-wind with a fair freſh Gale; it is alſo ſometimes call'd a Studding-ſail.

Gor-belly, or Gore-belly, one who is all Paunch or Belly.

Gorce, a Pool, or Pit of Water to keep Fiſh in; alſo any ſtop in a River, ſuch as Wears, Mills, Stakes, &c. which hinder the free Paſſage of Ships or Boats.

Gorcrow, a Country Word for a Raven.

Gore, a piece of Linnen-cloth let into the ſide of a Woman's Shift; in old Records a ſmall narrow ſlip of Ground. In Heraldry a Gore is a Figure conſiſting of two arched Lines drawn from the Siniſter Chief and bottom of the Eſcutcheon, and meeting in a ſharp Angle in the Feſſe-point: It ſignifies a Rebatement for Cowardize; but a Gore dexter is no mark of Diſhonour.

Gore, or Gore-blood, clotted or corrupt Blood.

To Gore, to prick, to puſh at or wound with a Horn, as an Ox does; alſo a Country Word, to make up a Mow or Reek of Hay, &c.

Gorge, (in Falconry) that part of a Hawk which firſt receives the Meat, and is call'd the Craw or Crop in other Fowls. In Fortification it is the entrance that leads to the Platform or Body of a Work.

Gorge of a Baſtion, is made by two Lines drawn both ways from the Angle of the Polygon to the Angles of the Courtin or Flank.

Gorge of a flat Baſtion, is a right Line which bounds the diſtance comprehended between the two Flanks.

Gorge of a Half-moon or Ravelin, is the ſpace contain'd between the two Ends of their Faces next the place.

Gorge of other Out-works, is the ſpace between their Wings or Sides next the great Ditch.

Gorge, Gule, or Neck, (in Architecture) is the narroweſt part of the Dorick and Tuſcan Capitals, lying between the Aſtragal, above the Shaft of the Pillar, and the Annulets: Alſo a kind of Moulding, hollow on the inſide, which is larger, but not ſo deep as the Scotia, and ſerves for Compartments, Chambranles, &c.

To Gorge, to fill, glut, cram, or ſtuff.

Gorged, a Term us'd by Heralds, when a Crown, Coronet, or ſuch like thing, is repreſented about the Neck of a Lion or Swan, &c. as A Lion or Cignet, gorged with a Ducal Coronet.

Gorgeous, coſtly, ſtately, gallant, fine, eſpecially in Apparel.

Gorget, a kind of Whisk, or Neck-cloth for a Woman; alſo a Neck-piece of Plate worn by the Officers of a Company of Foot-Soldiers.

To Gormandize, to be given to Gluttony, to devour greedily.

Goring, a Sea-Term apply'd to a Sail, when it comes ſloping off by Degrees, and is broader at the Clew than at the Earing; as all the Top-ſails and Top-gallant Sails are.

Gors, or Goſs, a Shrub, otherwiſe call'd Furz.

Gortonians, a Sect of New-England Hereticks, not much different from the Quakers, ſet up by Samuel Gorton, who was baniſh'd out of England, A.D. 1646.

Goshawk, a Bird of Prey, of which there are ſeveral ſorts.

Gosling, a young Gooſe; alſo a kind of Subſtance that grows upon a Nut-tree.

Goſpel, (Sax. i.e. God's Word, or good Saying) a Title more eſpecially given to the four Books of the New Teſtament, relating to the Life, Miracles and Doctrine of our Bleſſed Saviour; alſo the Principles and Conditions of Chriſtianity therein reveal'd: Alſo a Portion of the Goſpel, contain'd in the Service of the Church of England, at the reading of which the People ſtand up.

Goſpeller, he that reads the Goſpel in a Cathedral, or Collegiate Church.

Gos-hawk, (q.d. groſs Hawk) a large kind of Hawk.

Goſſip, (in Saxon, Godſib, i.e. of Kin before God) one that undertakes for another in Baptiſm; a Godfather or God-mother.

Goſſipion, or Goſſipium, (Gr.) a Tree that bears Cotten; or the Cotten it ſelf, which being burnt ſtops bleeding, eſpecially of Wounds.

Goſſomers, a kind of thin Cobweb-like Exhalation or Vapour, which hovers in the Air at the beginning of Autumn, and which is ſuppos'd by Country-People to rot Sheep, if it fall upon the Ground, where they feed.

Gote, a Word us'd in Stat. 23. H. 8. for a Ditch, Sluce, or Gutter.

Gothick, belonging to the Goths: In Architecture a Gothick-Building, ſuch a one as is rais'd after the manner of the Goths; wherein the Order is ſo far different from the ancient Proportions, that its Pillars are either too maſſy like vaſt Piles, or as ſlender as Poles; neither have the Capitals any certain Dimenſions, but have Figures carv'd on them, repreſenting the thorny Leaves of Thiſtles, Coleworts, Bears-foot, &c.

To Govern, (Lat.) to rule; to manage, look to, or take care of; to carry or behave one's ſelf.

Governable, that may be governed.

Governante, or Governeſs, ſhe that has the bringing up of a Perſon of Quality's Child, or of a young Prince.

Government, the Office or Employment of a Governour; alſo the Province, City, or Place that is under his Command: Alſo the form or manner of Governing; as an Ariſtocratical or Democratical Government.

Governour, a Ruler or Commander, a Tutour.

Governour of a Garriſon, a conſiderable Officer, whoſe Power not only prevails over the Inhabitants and Soldiers of the Place; but alſo over all Troops that may be there in Winter-Quarters, or Quarters of Refreſhment.

Goule (old Word) Uſury, from the Latin Word Gula, i.e. the Throat.

Gourd, a Plant, of the Nature of a Melon or Cucumber; it is alſo us'd by Chaucer for a Bottle.

Gournet, a kind of Bird.

Gout, a painfull Diſeaſe, occaſion'd by the falling down of a ſharp Humour upon the Nerves and Tendons.

Gout-wort, otherwiſe call'd Herb-Gerard, Aſhweed, and Jump-about, an Herb whoſe Property is to eaſe the Gout and Sciatica, as all Joynt-aches, and other cold Diſtempers.

Goyavier, a ſort of Fruit growing in the Weſt-Indies.

Grabat, (Fr.) a little Bed or Couch without Curtains.

To Grabble, to handle untowardly, or wantonly.

Grace, Favour, or good Will; Agreeableneſs, genteel Air, Comlineſs. In Divinity, the Mercy and Loving-kindneſs of God in finding out means for the Redemption of Mankind, and in ſanctifying the Elect; alſo a Power or Diſpoſition to yield Obedience to the Divine Laws, and to practiſe all Chriſtian Vertues.

Graceful, full of Grace, handſome, comely, charming, agreeable.

Graceleſs, void of Grace, brazen-faced, impudent.

Gracilis Muſculus, (in Anat.) one of the Muſcles of the Leg, ſo nam'd from its being the moſt ſlender of them: It ariſes from the inward joynting of the Os Pubis, or Share-bone, and is inſerted to the Tibia, or greater Focil-bone; ſo as to aſſiſt in bending the Thigh and Leg inwards.

Gracility, Slenderneſs, Slimneſs, Lankneſs.

Gracious, endued with Grace, or that has a good Grace; kind, civil, courteous.

Graculus. (Lat.) a Jack-daw, Corniſh Chough, or Jay.

Graculus Palmipes, the Cowt, or Sea-Crow.

Gradatio, a going Step by Step: In Rhetorick, the ſame Figure, that by a Greek Name is otherwiſe call'd Climax; which See.

Gradatory, a Place to which one may go up by Steps; particularly an Aſcent from the Cloiſter to the Quire, in ſome Churches.

Gradual, that is done or comes by degrees.

Gradual Pſalms, fifteen Pſalms together from 118th to the 133d. or from the 119th to the 134th, which the Levites us'd to ſing, as they went up the fifteen Steps of Solomon's Temple, on every ſtep a Pſalm.

The Gradual, a part of the Maſs, which is ſaid or ſung, between the Epiſtle and Goſpel.

Gradual, or Graile, a Book containing certain Offices and Ceremonies of the Roman Church.

Graduate, one that has taken his Degrees in an Univerſity.

Graffer, (in ſome Statutes) a Notary, or Scrivener.

Graffium, (in old Records) a Writing-Book, or Ledger-Book; a Regiſter of Deeds and Evidences.

To Graft, (in Husbandry) to fix a Cyon or young Shoot upon a Stock, ſo as the Sap may paſs without any Hind'rance.

Grail, or Graille. See Gradual.

Grain, all ſorts of Corn, as Wheat, Rye, &c. or a ſingle Corn, as of Salt, Muſtard-ſeed, &c. Alſo the ſmalleſt Weight us'd in England, being the 20th part of a Scruple in Apothecaries Weight, or the 24th part of a Penny-weight Troy.

A Grain-weight of Gold-Bullion is worth two Pence, and a Grain-weight of Silver but half a Farthing: Three Grains, or Corns of Barley in length, make an Inch in Meaſure.

Grains of Paradiſe, a Plant otherwiſe call'd Cardamum.

Graining-board, a Board made with Nicks, or Teeth like a Saw, and uſ'd by Curriers in graining their Leather.

Grame, (old Word) Sorrow, Miſ-hap, Anger.

Gramercy, a Term commonly uſ'd to expreſs Thanks; from the French Words Grand Merci, i. e. great Thanks.

Gramia, (Lat.) a Rheum in the Eyes.

Gramineous, belonging to Graſs, graſſy, as Gramineous Plants, a Term uſ'd by Herbaliſts for ſuch Herbs as have a long narrow Leaf like Graſs, and no Foot-ſtalks.

Gramma, (Gr.) a Letter, a Writing; alſo a Scruple in Weight, the third part of a Drachma, or Dram.

Grammar, (according to Cicero's Definition) is the Art of Speaking and Writing truly, eſtabliſhed by Cuſtom, Reaſon and Authority: Alſo a Book which contains the Rules of that Art in every Language. 'Tis ſo call'd from the Greek Word Gramma, i. e. a Letter, becauſe it ſhews in the firſt place how to form articulate Sounds, which are repreſented by Letters.

Grammarian, one that is skill'd in, or teaches Grammar.

Grammatias, a kind of Jaſper-ſtone, with white Strokes or Lines overthwart.

Grammatical, belonging to the Science of Grammar.

Grammaticaſter, or Grammatiſta, a Smatterer in Grammar, a paltry School-maſter, a Pedant.

Grample, a kind of Sea-fiſh.

Grampus, a Fiſh ſomewhat like a Whale, but leſs.

Granadeer, (Fr.) a Soldier armed with a Sword, a Hatchet, a Fire-lock ſlung, and a Pouch full of Granadoes.

Granadoes, a ſmall Shell or hallow Ball, made of Iron, Tin, or other Metal filld with fine Powder, and having a Fuſee ſtuck to the Touch-hole to ſet it on Fire, which is no ſooner done but the Caſe flies into many ſhatters, to the great Dammage of all that ſtand near it: So that Granadoes are uſually thrown by Hand into cloſe and narrow Places, as Trenches, Lodgments, &c. or amidſt the Soldiers to diſorder their Ranks.

Granary, or Garner, (Lat.) a Place where Corn is kept.

Granatarius, (in old Records) an Officer who kept the Granary or Corn-chamber in a Religious Houſe.

Granate, that has many Grains, as granate Marble.

A Granate, a precious Stone, ſo call'd becauſe it reſembles that of a Pomegranate; it is an imperfect kind of Carbuncle or Ruby, but of a ſomewhat darker Colour.

Granatum, the Pomegranate, a ſort of Fruit that yields a good Juice agreeable to the Stomach.

Grand, great, vaſt, chief.

Grand Cape, (in Common-Law) a Writ that lies, when any Real Action is brought, and the Tenant does not appear, but makes Default upon the firſt Summons. See Cape.

Grand Days, thoſe that in every Term are ſolemnly kept in the Inns of Court and Chancery, viz. in Eaſter-Term, Aſcenſion-day; in Trinity-Term, that of St. John Baptiſt; in Michaelmas-Term, thoſe of All Saints, and All Souls; and in Hilary-Term, the Feſtival of the Purification of the Bleſſed Virgin Mary, commonly call'd Candlemas-day.

Grand Diſtreſs, a Diſtreſs taken of all the Lands or Goods, that a Man has within the County or Bailiwick.

Grand Seignior, (Ital. i. e. great Lord) a Title commonly given to the Emperour of the Turks.

Grand Sergeanty. See Chivalry and Sergeanty.

Grandee, a Noble-man of Spain or Portugal, that is allow'd to be cover'd in the King's Preſence.

Grandeur, (Fr.) Greatneſs, Dignity, Nobleneſs, Excellency, Magnificence, State.

† Grandiloquence, (Lat.) Loftineſs of Speech, height of Style, or Expreſſion.

Grandimonenſers, a Religious Order ſet up by one Stephen of Avern, A. D. 1076.

Grandinoſum Os, (in Anat.) the fourth Bone of the Foot, otherwiſe call'd Cuboides.

Grando, Hail, a Meteor; alſo a little hard ſwelling in the Eye-lids like a Hail-ſtone.

Grange, a Building that has Granaries, Barns, Stables, Stalls, and other Places neceſſary; a Farm-Houſe.

Grangerus, or Grangiarius, (in old Latin Records) an Officer belonging to Religious Houſes, who was to look after their Grange or Farm, and accounted for the Profits of it.

Graniferous Seed-pods, ſo Herbaliſts call thoſe Pods which bear ſmall Seeds like Grains.

Granite, or Granita, a kind of ſpeckled Marble, found in ſeveral Parts of Italy.

Granivorous Animals, thoſe Living Creatures that feed upon Grain or Corn, and other Seeds.

Grant, Gift, Allowance, Privilege: In a Law-ſenſe a Gift in writing of ſuch a thing as cannot be convey'd or made over by bare Word of Mouth; as Rents, Services, Tithes, &c. Or it is a Gift made by ſuch Perſons as cannot give but by Deed; as the Queen, and all Bodies Politick.

A thing is ſaid to lye in Grant, which cannot be aſſign'd without an Inſtrument or Deed.

Grantee, the Perſon to whom a Grant is made.

Grantor, he or ſhe that grants, or makes a Grant.

To Granulate, (Lat. in Chymiſtry) to pour melted Metal drop by drop thro' an Iron-Cullender, or other Veſſel into cold Water, that it may congeal into Grains.

Granulation, the Act of granulating, or reducing Metallick Bodies, &c. into ſmall Grains.

Granum, (Lat.) a Grain of any Corn; a Kernel of Fruit: Alſo the leaſt Weight now in Uſe, the 20th part of a Scruple, for which White Pepper-Corns are ſometimes taken.

Graphical, (Gr.) curiouſly deſcribed, done to the Life; perfect, exact, excellent.

Graphice, the Art of Painting, Limning, or Drawing.

Graphium, an Iron-Pen with which the Ancients uſ'd to write on Tables waxed over; a Pen, a Pencil.

Graphoides, (in Anat.) a Proceſs of the Scull-bone, ſhap'd like a Pen for a Table-book.

Graphometer, a Mathematical Inſtrument, being half a Circle divided into 180 Degrees, with a Ruler, Sights, and a Compaſs in the middle to meaſure Heights, &c.

Grapnel-Anchors, a ſort of Anchors for Gallies, ſmall Ships or Boats to ride by: They differ from other Anchors in being without Stocks, and having four Flooks.

Grapple, Grappling-Iron, or Grapnel, an Iron Inſtrument, with ſeveral Hooks, to lay hold of a Ship, in order to board it in an Engagement.

To Grapple, to graſp and lay hold on; to contend or ſtrive earneſtly, to ſtruggle with.

Graſs-cocks, little Heaps of mow'd Graſs, in which it lies the firſt Day to dry. See Wind-rows.

Graſs-hearth, or Graſs-hurt, was anciently a Cuſtom in ſome Places, for the Tenants to bring their Ploughs, and do one Days Work for their Lord.

Graſs-Plantane. a kind of Herb.

Graſs-Week, Rogation-Week, ſo call'd in the Inns of Court and Chancery, becauſe the Commons of that Week conſiſt chiefly of Sallets, with hard Eggs, Green Sauce, &c.

To Grate, to crumble Bread, or reduce Solid

Bodies to Powder, by rubbing them upon a Grater, or Utenſil made of Tin, with Holes in it, that are rough on the out-ſide: Alſo to offend or vex, to fret or gall; as Such a Reply grated upon, or gall'd him.

Grates, a ſort of Iron-Lettices, that ſerve inſtead of Windows in Priſons and Popiſh Cloiſters.

Among Confectioners, Grates are a Frame of ſeveral Wire-Circles, ſet very cloſe together in form of Croſs-bars; upon which thoſe Comfits are chiefly laid, which are to be preſerv'd dry.

Grateful, that acknowledges a Favour done, thankful; pleaſant, agreeable.

Gratia Dei, (Lat. i. e. God's Grace) the Name of a Plaiſter made of Wax, Roſin, Suet, Turpentine, Maſtick and Frankincenſe: Alſo a kind of leſſer Centaury, an Herb of great Uſe for the Dropſy and Jaundice.

Gratiæ Expectativæ, certain Bulls whereby the Pope us'd to grant Mandates for Church-Livings.

Gratification, a gratifying or doing of a Pleaſure; alſo a Preſent or free Gift.

To Gratify, to do one a good Turn or Pleaſure, to recompenſe or requite.

Gratings, (Sea-Term) ſmall Ledges of ſaw'd Plank, fram'd one into another like a Priſon-Grate, or Portcullice: They lie on the upper Deck between the Main and the Fore-maſt, and ſerve for the Convenience of the Ship's Company, to let in the Air and Light; as alſo for a good Defence in a cloſe Fight.

Gratiola, (Lat.) Hedge-hyſſop, an Herb.

Gratis, freely, for nothing, or without any Coſt.

Gratitude, Gratefulneſs, Thankfulneſs, Acknowledgment.

Gratuitous, done voluntarily, without any regard to Intereſt or Recompence; freely beſtowed.

Gratuity, a free Gift.

Gratulatory, rejoycing with, or wiſhing Joy to another, for ſome good Succeſs; thankful.

Grava, (in old Records) a Grove, ſmall Wood, Copſe, or Thicket.

Grave, that has a compoſed Countenance, ſerious, ſober; low or deep, in ſpeaking of Sounds.

Grave Accent. See Accent.

Grave, or Greve (among the Germans) a Title ſignifying a great Lord, Earl, or Governour; as Burgrave, Landgrave, Palſgrave, &c. which See.

To Grave a Ship, to preſerve the Calking, by laying over a Mixture of Tallow or Train-Oil, Roſin and Brimſtone boil'd together: Alſo to bring her a-ground and then to burn off the Filth that ſticks to her Sides without board, with Reeds, Broom, &c. in order to pay her a-new.

Gravedo, (Lat.) Heavineſs: Alſo the Poſe or ſtuffing of the Head, a Diſeaſe.

To Gravel, to cover or ſpread over with Gravel or Sand; alſo to perplex, puzzle, or put to a Nonplus.

Gravelled Aſhes, (among Chymiſts) the Lees of Wine dry'd and burnt to Aſhes. See Cineres Clavellati.

Gravelling, a Diſtemper that happens to a Horſe by means of little Gravel-ſtones getting between the Hoof and the Shoe, which ſettles at the quick and there feſters.

Graver, a Tool to engrave with, made of Steel in Form of a Lozenge; alſo a Barber-Surgeon's Inſtrument for the taking Scales off from the Teeth.

Graver of the Mint, he that engraves the Stamps for the Money.

To Gravitate, a Word us'd by Philoſophers, for to weigh.

Gravitation, the Act of gravitating or weighing.

Gravity, (Lat.) Graveneſs, Soberneſs, Diſcretion: In a Philoſophical Senſe, that Quality, by which all heavy Bodies, tend towards the Center of the Earth; haſtening their Motion, as they come nearer towards it.

Abſolute Gravity, is the whole Force by which any kind of Body tends downwards.

Specifick Gravity, is the peculiar Gravity or Weight that any Natural Bodies have, and by which they may be diſtinguiſh'd from all other Bodies of different kinds.

Center of Gravity. See Center.

Gray, a wild Beaſt, otherwiſe call'd a Brock and Badger.

Gray-hound, a ſort of Hunting-dog, that deſerves the firſt place, by reaſon of his Swiftneſs, Strength and Sagacity in purſuing his Game.

Grayling, a kind of Fiſh.

Grays-Inn. See Inns of Court.

To Graze, to feed on Graſs; alſo to glance or paſs lightly on the Ground, as a Bullet does.

Grazier, one that deals in Cattel, that breeds or fattens them for Sale.

Greach-breach. See Grithbreach.

Greaſe, (among Hunters) the Fat of a Boar or Hare; but the former has an Addition, and is call'd Bevy-Greaſe.

Greaſe-molten, a Diſtemper in a Horſe, when his Fat is melted by over-hard Riding, or Labour.

Great, huge, large, big, noble, mighty, powerful.

Great Bear. See Urſa Major.

Great Circles, (in Aſtron.) are thoſe whoſe Plane paſſes thro' the Center of the Sphere or Globe, and divide it into two equal parts; being ſix in Number, viz. The Horizon, Meridian, Equinoctial, Ecliptick, and the two Colures; which See in their proper Places.

Great-Circle Sailing, (in Navigat.) the ſteering of a Ship, the neareſt Courſe between two Places, in the Arch of a great Circle of the Sphere.

Great Hare (among Hunters) a Hare in the third Year of her Age.

Great Men (in ſeveral Statutes) are ſometimes taken for the Temporal Lords in the higher Houſe, of Parliament, and ſometimes for the Members of the Houſe of Commons.

To Greave a Ship. See to Grave.

Greaves, a kind of Boots or Armour for the Legs.

Grecian, one born in the Country of Greece, or one skill'd in the Greek Tongue.

Greciſm, a Propriety of that Language.

Gree, (Fr.) Will, Accord, good-liking. In Heraldry, a Degree or Step: In Common-Law, Contentment, or Satisfaction; as To make Gree to the Parties, i. e. to give them Satisfaction for an Injury done.

Green, the Colour which Nature has given to Trees, Leaves and Herbs: 'Tis obſervable, that Green muſt be firſt died Blew; there being no Ingredient in Nature, which alone can die a green Colour.

Green-chafer, a ſort of Beetle, an Inſect.

Green-cloth, the Name of a Court of Juſtice, that ſits in the Counting-Houſe of the Queen's Court; which See.

Green-finch, a ſort of Singing-bird, whoſe Song is but mean.

Green-houſes, certain Houſes built in Gardens for Ornament, and neceſſary for many choice Greens that will not bear the Winters Cold abroad in our Climate.

Green-hue, (in the Foreſt-Laws) ſignifies every thing that grows green within the Foreſt; it is alſo call'd Vert.

Green-ſilver, a Duty of one Half-penny paid Yearly to the Lord of the Manour of Writtle in Eſſex, by every Tenant, whoſe Fore-door opens to Greenbury.

Green-Wax, a Term us'd in the Statute-Laws, for the Eſtreats of Iſſues and Fines in the Exchequer, deliver'd to the Sheriffs, under the Seal of that Court made in green Wax, to be levy'd by them in their reſpective Counties.

Greeſe, (old Word) a Stair or Step.

To Greet, (old Word) to ſalute.

Gregorian, a kind of Cap ſo call'd, as being the Device of one Gregory a Barber.

Gregorian Account of Time, the New Account or New Style eſtabliſh'd upon the Reformation of the Calendar by Pope Gregory XIII. A. D. 1582. according to which the Year conſiſts of 365 Days, 5 Hours, 49 Minutes, and 12 Seconds; whereas before, according to the Old Style, or Julian Account, appointed by the Emperour Julius Cæſar, it conſiſted of 365 Days and 6 Hours; and Ten Days being taken out of the Month of October the Days of their Months always go Ten Days before ours; ſo that their eleventh Day is our firſt Day. See Julian Account, and Style Old and New.

Gregory, a proper Name of Men, ſignifying in Greek Watchful; and anſwering to Vigilantius in Latin.

Gremil, Gromil, or Grummel, a ſort of Herb, otherwiſe call'd Pearl-plant.

Grenade, (Fr.) a Pomegranate, a Granado. In Cookery, a Diſh of larded Veal-collops bak'd in a Stew-pan between two Fires, with ſix Pigeons and a Ragoo in the middle, and cover'd on the top and underneath with thin ſlices of Bacon.

Grenadin, a ſort of Farce, or ſtuff'd Meat laid upon thin ſlices of Bacon in a Baking-pan, with a hollow place to receive a Fowl cut into Halves and dreſs'd in a Ragoo.

Grenado. See Granado.

Grenate, a precious Stone. See Granate.

Greſham-College, a fair Building in the City of London, formerly the Dwelling-Houſe of Sir Thomas Greſham, who made it a College, and endow'd it with Revenues, for the maintaining of Profeſſours of Divinity, Civil Law, Phyſick, Aſtronomy, Geometry, and Muſick.

Greva, (in old Latin Writers) the Sea-ſhore, Beach, or Sand.

Greve. See Grave.

Grice, a young wild Boar.

Gridelin, a ſort of Colour made up of White and Red.

Griff-graff, (old Word) by hook or by crook.

Griffin, a Bird of Prey, like an Eagle, or a fabulous Creature, ſaid to have the Head, Wings and Feet of an Eagle, and the other Parts like a Lion.

Griffith. See Gryffith.

Grig, the ſmalleſt kind of Eel.

Grillade, (Fr.) a Diſh of broiled Meat.

Grills, a kind of ſmall Fiſh.

Grillus, (Lat.) the Cricket, an Inſect: Among Chymiſts Salt of Vitriol, that provokes Vomiting.

Grim, that is of a fierce and crabbed Look or Countenance.

Grimace, (Fr.) a wry Face, wry Mouth, or crabbed Look; alſo Hypocriſy, Diſſimulation, Shew.

Grimbald, or Grimoald, (Germ. Power over Anger) a proper Name of Men.

To Grime, or Begrime, to ſmut, or dawb with Filth.

Grindle-ſtone, a kind of whitiſh Greet, of which there are ſeveral ſorts, ſome more rough, and others very ſmooth.

Grip, or Gripe, a ſmall Ditch cut a-croſs a Meadow or plough'd Land, in order to drain it.

Gripe, a Handful, as a Gripe of Corn; alſo a pain in the Guts, Remorſe of Conſcience. In Sea-Affairs the Compaſs or Sharpneſs of a Ship's Stem under Water, eſpecially towards the bottom of the Stem.

To Gripe, to ſeize or lay hold on ravenouſly; to oppreſs or cruſh, to twinge or wring the Belly: Among Sailers a Ship is ſaid To gripe, when ſhe keeps a good Wind; alſo when a Ship is apt to run her Head or Noſe too much into the Wind they ſay ſhe gripes.

Gripe-ſtick. See Tornequet.

Griph, (old Word) a Riddle.

Griſhild, (Germ.) the proper Name of ſeveral Women, ſignifying Gray Lady.

Griſly, hideous, frightful to behold; as A griſly Hue.

Griſly Seeds, the ſkinny, thin, flat Seeds of Plants, ſo call'd by Herbaliſts.

Griſſel, a light Rount, or light Fleſh-Colour in Horſes.

Griſt, Corn ground, or fit for grinding; Meal, Flower.

Grit, a kind of Fiſh, otherwiſe call'd a Grampler; alſo the Duſt of Stones, Gravel, Metal, &c.

Grith, a Saxon Word for Peace.

Grithbrech, or Grichbrech, (old Law-Term) a Breach of the Peace.

Grithſtole, (i. e. Seat of Peace) a Sanctuary, or place of Refuge for Malefactors.

Grizled, hoary, gray-headed.

To Groan, to make a lamentable Noiſe, to ſigh: Among Foreſters a Buck is ſaid to groan or troat when he makes a Noiſe at Rutting-time.

Groat, an Engliſh Silver-Coin, worth four Pence, or the ſame Value in other Money.

Groats, Oats after the Hulls are off, or great Oat-meal.

Grobian, (old Word) a ſlovenly ill-bred Fellow.

Grocers, formerly were Merchants, or Wholeſale Dealers, that engroſs'd all vendible Merchandizes, but now a particular well known Society of Traders, and one of the Twelve chief Companies of London.

Grocery, or Grocery-Ware, Commodities ſold by Grocers, as Sugar, Spice, dry'd Fruit, &c.

Grogram, a ſort of Stuff made of Silk and Hair.

Groin, the Parts about the Privities.

Gromel, an Herb. See Gremil.

Gromets, (in Sea-Affairs) ſmall Rings fix'd with Staples on the upper ſide of a Ship's Yard, to which the Lines call'd Laskets and Caskets are ty'd or made faſt.

Gron, (Sax.) a fenny place.

Gronna, or Grunna, (in ancient Writers) a deep hollow Pit, a Bog, or Quag-mire.

Groom, a Servant in ſome mean Station, formerly ſuch Youths as were ſent on foot of Errands, and ſerv'd as our Lackeys do; but it is now generally taken for a Perſon that looks after Horſes.

Groom of the Stole. See Stole.

Groom-Porter, an Officer belonging to the Queen's Court.

Groot, a Dutch Coin, of which two make 1 Stiver, and 20 Stivers one Guilder, or 1 s. 10 d. Sterling.

Groove, a Channel or Furrow cut out in Wood, Iron, or Stone.

Groove, or Grove, a deep Hole or Pit ſunk in the Ground to ſearch for Minerals.

To Grope, to feel untowardly.

Grope, or Tickle, a kind of Fiſhing, by putting one's Hand into the Water-holes where Fiſh lie and tickling them about the Gills, by which means they'll become ſo quiet that a Man may take them in his Hand and caſt them to Land; or if great Fiſh, he may thruſt his Fingers into their Gills and bring them out.

Groſs, thick, fat, dull, foul, notorious. In a Law-ſenſe abſolute, or independent; ſo Advowſon in Groſs, is diſtinguiſh'd from Advowſon Appendant. See Advowſon.

Groſs Weight, (in Traffick) the Weight of Merchandizes or Goods, with their Duſt and Droſs; as alſo of the Bag, Cheſt, Frail, or other thing wherein they are contain'd, out of which groſs Weight allowance is to be made for Tare and Tret.

A Groſs, Twelve Dozen.

Groſſe Bois, (Fr.) great Wood, properly ſuch as is counted Timber, either by the Common Law or Cuſtom of the Country.

Groſſome, an old Law-word for an Amercement or Fine. See Gerſuma.

Groſſularia, (Lat.) the Gooſe-berry Buſh, the Fruit of which is very agreeable to the Stomach.

Groſſulus, or Groſſus, a green Fig, not yet ripe.

Grot, or Grotto, (Ital.) a Cave or Den, either natural or made by Art.

Groteſks, or Groteſk-work, (in Painting or Carving) Antick Work, certain rude Figures made at the Pleaſure of the Artiſt, which repreſent Things after an odd and confuſed manner.

Grove, a little Wood; alſo a kind of Mine. See Groove.

Groveling, lying prone, or with one's Face downwards upon the Ground: Among Hunters a Deer is ſaid To feed groveling when ſhe feeds upon her Belly, being tir'd with the Chace.

To Growl, to grumble or mutter.

To Ground, to lay a Ground-work, to eſtabliſh.

To Ground a Ship, (in Sea-Language) is to bring her on the Ground, to be trimmed, i. e. to be made clean or ſcrubbed, to have ſome Leak ſtopt &c.

Ground-angling, a fiſhing under Water without a Float, only with a Plumb of Lead or a Bullet, which is done in cold Weather when the Fiſh ſwim very low.

Ground-Ivy, an Herb. See Ale-hoof.

Ground-pine, a ſort of Plant.

Ground-Tackle, a Sea-Term, ſignifying a Ship's Anchor, Cables, &c. in general, or whatever is neceſſary to make her ride ſafe at Anchor in a convenient Road.

Ground-Timbers of a Ship, thoſe pieces of Timber which are laid upon the Keel, and made faſt to it with Bolts thro' the Keelſon; they are ſo call'd becauſe the Ship reſts upon them when ſhe lies aground.

Grounds, Ground-work, the Principles of an Art; the Settling or Dregs of Drink.

Groundleſs, that has no Grounds or Foundation, uncertain, feigned.

Groundling, a ſort of Fiſh.

Groundſel, or Groundſil, the Threſhold of a Door; alſo a kind of Phyſick-Herb.

Group, (Fr. in Painting or Carving) a Piece that conſiſts of ſeveral Figures; a Complication or Knot of Figures.

Groupade, (in Horſemanſhip) a lofty kind of Management, and higher than the ordinary Curvet.

Grout-head, one that has a great Head.

Grown, an Engine to ſtretch Woollen Cloth with after it is woven.

Growſe, a ſort of Fowl. See Caſtrel.

Growth-half-penny, a Rate paid in ſome places for Tithe of every fat Beaſt.

Gruarii, (in the Foreſt-Records) the principal Officers of the Foreſt.

Grub, a ſort of Maggot, an Inſect; a capricious Humour or Whimſey; alſo a Dwarf, or ſhort Fellow.

Grubbage, or Grub-ax, a Tool to grub up Roots of Trees, Weeds, &c.

Grubbing a Cock, (among Cock-fighters) is a cutting off the Cock's Feathers under the Wings.

Grudge, ſecret Hatred.

Gruff, or Grum, grim-fac'd, ſower-look'd, dogged, ſurly.

To Grumble, to murmur, to mutter between the Teeth; to ſignifie Diſpleaſure, tho' unwilling to declare the Cauſe.

Grummel. See Grewil.

Grumoſity, (Lat.) a curdling of any liquid Subſtance into a thick Maſs or Clod.

Grumous, full of Clots or Lumps.

Grumous Roots, (among Herbaliſts) knotty kernelly Roots that are faſten'd to one Head.

To Grunt, to cry like a Hog.

Grus, the Crane, a Bird; an Engine to draw up Stones with; a Surgeon's Inſtrument reſembling the Beak of a Crane.

Gry, a Term us'd by Mr. Lock for a Meaſure containing $\frac{1}{10}$ of a Line, a Line being $\frac{1}{10}$ of an Inch, and an Inch $\frac{1}{10}$ of a Philoſophical Foot.

Gryffith, an old Britiſh Name, ſignifying that has a great or ſtrong Faith.

Grygallus, (Lat.) the Birch-cock, a Bird often found in the Woods of Germany.

Gryllo-talpa, the Mole, or Fen-cricket, an Inſect.

Gryllus, a Graſs-hopper, or Cricket.

Gryphites, (Gr.) one that has a crooked Noſe, like a Hawk's Bill.

Gryphus, a Griffin, alſo a kind of Pincers, like the Beak of that Creature, us'd by Surgeons.

Gryps, a Grype, or Griffin.

Guacatane, Indian Pile-wort, an Herb.

Guaiacum, or Lignum Sanctum, (Lat.) the Wood of a large Tree that grows in the Weſt-Indies, very much us'd in Decoctions to provoke Sweat; the Bark is alſo made uſe of, and the Gum that runs from it.

Guarantee, (Fr.) a Perſon appointed to maintain the Articles of Peace agreed upon between two Nations; as The King of England was Guarantee of the Treaty of Nimmeguen.

Guard, or Gard, Defence, Protection: In the Art of War the Duty perform'd by a Body of Men, to ſecure all with Watchfulneſs againſt the Attempts or Surprizes of an Enemy.

Advanced Guard, a Party of 15 or 20 Horſe, under Command of a Lieutenant, beyond, but within ſight of the Main Guard, deſign'd for the greater Security of the Camp.

Main Guard, (in the Field) is a conſiderable Body of Horſe ſent out to the Head of the Camp to ſecure the Army, by diligently guarding all the Avenues or Paſſages that lead to it: In a Garriſon, it is that to which all leſſer Guards are ſubordinate, the Commanding Officer keeping it with the greater Number of Men.

Picket, or Picquet-Guards, ſmall Guards Commanded by Lieutenants or Enſigns, at the Head of every Regiment, as they lye incamp'd, to be continually in a readineſs againſt all Surprizes.

Gardes du Corps, or Life-Guards, Troops of Horſe-Guards maintain'd for Defence of the Queen's Perſon, which take place of all other Troops of Horſe.

Regiments of Guards, certain Regiments of Foot, that do Duty whereſoever the Queen's Perſon is, for her Security, and have Precedence before all other Foot-Regiments.

Guard-cock. See Gardecaut.

Guardant, (in Heraldry) as a Lion Guardant, when the Face of a Lion in a Coat of Arms is turn'd towards the Beholder, and he appears as it were in a Poſture of Guard for his own Defence.

Guardian. See Gardian.

Guaſtald, one that has the Cuſtody or keeping of a King or Queen's Manſion-Houſes.

Guaſtallians, a Religious Order of Monks and Nuns, ſet up by the Counteſs of Guaſtalia Ann. Dom. 1537.

Gubbins, an old Word for Fragments, now taken for the Parings of Haberdine, Cod-fiſh, &c.

Gudgeon, a River-Fiſh, ſomewhat like a Smelt; the Word is often apply'd to a meer Fool or Ninny, one that is eaſily chows'd or trepann'd. In Sea-Affairs Gudgeons are a ſort of Rudder-Irons for Ships, being the Eyes drove into the Stern-poſt, into which the Hooks call'd Pintles go to hang on the Rudder.

Guelphs and Gibellines, two great Factions in Italy, one of which maintain'd the Pope's Intereſt, and the other took part with the Emperour of Germany.

Guerdon, (Fr. old Word) Recompence, Reward.

Guerite, a Centry-Box, or Centinel's Box, made like a little Tower, of Stone, Brick, or Wood, to preſerve the Centinel from the Weather.

Guerkins. See Gherkins.

Gueſt, a Perſon invited to or receiv'd at a Feaſt or Entertainment. It is us'd by Bracton for a Stranger that lodges with one the ſecond Night. See Uncouth.

Gueſt-rope, (Sea-Term) that Rope by which the Boat is kept from ſteeving, or going too much in and out as ſhe lyes in the Tow of a Ship, eſpecially the Rope that tows the Long-boat.

Gueſt-takers. See Agiſtator.

Gueuſes, a reproachful Name heretofore given to the Proteſtants in Flanders; the Word in French ſignifying Beggers.

Gugaws. See Gewgaws.

To Guggle, to make a noiſe like a narrow-mouth'd Bottle that is emptying.

Guidage, (old Law-Word) Money paid for ſafe Conduct, or guiding thro' a ſtrange Territory or unknown Ways.

Guidance, a guiding, leading, or directing.

